Construction continues

The 2nd Street Storm Sewer Project is still underway. For the past several weeks, crews have been working east of Main Street. Construction on that side is still on-going and has been delayed, in part by the rainy weather this week. Work on the west side may begin before the east side of Main Street is complete. Culverts have now been moved to the west side of 2nd and Main Streets to prepare for work.

Considerable debate was held on changing the city code in regard to open hours for city parks, camping time limits and penalties for violations of the laws.

It was noted that the city does not have laws in place at the present time to deal with a situation that is currently taking cently completed.

He told the council that the study looked at three areas - debt coverage, net operating income and cash.

"This document is a robust picture of the city's electric department and now is a good time for the city to give us direction on where we should go from here. The city is the rate making authority. We will offer advice and show projections on what will happen if the city does nothing. Ultimately, that would result in the negative net operating income."

Ross recommended an average increase of 4.3 percent for electric customers, but noted that it is not an emergency to put the increase in effect immediately. Instead, he recommended the increase go into effect in place at one of the camping parks. A camper has made the park a somewhat permanent residence and is 23 days delinquent in making the camping fees.

He also encouraged the city to look at the large discrepancy between the city's sum-

Information was also presented on activities taking place in city parks, particularly those with bathrooms, and the advantages to having closing hours at these parks.

Police Chief Marlen Chinn said he feels it would be beneficial to take a pro-active approach to dealing with situations that take place in these parks.

'Without rules, we (the police department) can't do anything," Chief Chinn said. Council member Cale Giese spoke on denying those who wish to use the parks late

> During the meeting the council took the necessary steps to approve the city's budget for the coming fiscal year.

City Finance Director Beth Porter presented information to the city, noting that there were only minor changes from the numbers presented at the city's August budget work session. She told the council that the city's valuation is higher than anticipated and this will allow for a larger amount of money to be put into the city's cash reserves. The final levy will be slightly less than last year. The city's fiscal year 2018-2019 budget takes effect Oct. 1, 2018. Ordinance 2018-23 received second reading approval. It will amend the city code in regard to fences and screens on private properties in the city.

City Attorney Amy Miller explained the process of changing the code and suggested that wording be added to allow for a waiver, on a case by case basis, to have a fence higher than six feet, but no more than eight feet. Miller explained that the code deals with the shape of a piece of property, rather than an individual owner.

Mayor Jill Brodersen read a proclamation in regard to the month of September being designated National Senior Center Month. She noted the Wayne Senior Center reinforces the dignity of those it serves and recognizes their contribution to the community.

In other action, the council approved a request for a Community Development Block Grant loan for Jason Sears Flooring in the amount of $50,000. The money will be used toward the purchase of the building at 904 Jaxon Street and will allow for the hiring of additional employees.

Jill Brodersen, Terri Buck and Bryce Meyer will represent the city of Wayne on the Recreation and Performing Arts Community Task Force following their appointments at the meeting. They will join representatives from Wayne State College, Wayne Community Schools and Wayne County in looking at needs within the community and the feasibility of items such as an indoor swimming pool, gym and performing arts center. No plans for any of these facilities are being considered at this time, but the three groups will meet in a regular basis to discuss options.º

The council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, Sept. 18 at 5:30 p.m. in council chambers.

Wayne County's total budget is $21,327,799.91. The tax dollar request will go up to $4,771,7763.30. That is an increase of $181,685.28 for the year, a result of inflation and the courthouse improvement project. The tax levy will be .252311 cents, an increase of .0118 cents per $100 of valuation. Wayne County's total valuation experienced its first decrease to $1,891,230,906. That's a $17.4 million decrease from the year prior. The unused budget authority for next year is $2,155,498.68. by the State. The NextEra Sholes Wind Energy Center project was a topic of discussion again. Wayne County residents Ray and Jody Kingsley came before the commissioners to follow up on past discussions and concerns they've expressed about the project.

The Kingsleys said that non-participating landowners needed to be notified of their rights and accused NextEra of "bullying their way through" the project. The couple Nic Kemnitz gave the commissioners an update on the federal disaster declaration for severe weather and flooding between June 17 and July 1. The next step in the process will be a meeting for affected areas to discuss FEMA and NEMA rules, regulations and time lines, which Kemnitz will attend. Kemnitz also informed the commissioners that he would be participating in a response exercise in Yankton on Sept. 22. He will also be helping at the Missouri River Expo at Ponca State Park on Sept. 15-16.

Highway superintendant, Mark Casey gave an updated and road and bridge projects in the county. A bridge will be built two miles west and one and a half miles south of Wayne, just south of Grainland Road, to re-alleged that another landowner had crops destroyed by the company without permission or compensation. Commissioner Randy Larson asked both Casey and NextEra representative Kimberly Dickey to look into the second-hand report and remind NextEra that trespassing would not be tolerated. Dickey was able to confirm that a written agreement was made between the company and landowner in question.

Dickey also came before the commissioners to have a document signed confirming for the Department of Transportation that Wayne County doesn't have zoning regulations against wind turbines.

The next Wayne County commissioners meeting will be held Sept. 18 at 9 a.m. at the Wayne County Courthouse.

Budget At its Sept 4 meeting the City

Council passed the budget for the 2018-2019 fiscal year (or 2018). The tax levy (or rate) remained relatively the same as last year at 0.449048 (to be completely transparent, the levy actually decreased 0.000947, meaning this will save you almost 95 cents for every $100,000 of valuation). This levy translates that for every $100,000 of assessed value your property has your tax liability would be $449 to the City next year in property taxes. This includes the general fund (police, administration, etc) as well as debt service (i.e. streets) and the municipal airport (general and debt). Your tax bill as a resident of the City of Wayne will obviously be more than this as the other taxing entities, besides the City. include Wayne County, Wayne Community Schools, Northeast Community College, Natural Resource District (NRD), Educational Service Unit (ESU), Rural Fire District and the Wayne County Ag Society (County Fair) You will soon be able to access the City's ap-

dentified the organization's top five priorities for the new farm bill, as representatives of the U.S. House and U.S. Senate work to negotiate a final Farm Bill from the versions passed by the House and Senate. Nebraska Farm Bureau shared the priorities in correspondence to members of Nebraska's Congressional delegation thanking them for their efforts to advance farm bill discussions, while also encouraging them to communicate the priorities to members of Congress tasked with putting the finishing touches on the bill. "The farm bill is an important piece of legislation for all Americans, but it is especially important to our farmers and ranchers. While only a small percentage of the dollars allocated in the farm bill aid farm and ranch families, those dollars are vital to funding risk management programs that help farmers deal with the volatility in agricultural markets, while also assisting farmers and ranchers impacted by catastrophic floods, rain and hail, droughts, and other natural disasters beyond their control," said Steve Nelson, Nebraska Farm Bureau president.

Nebraska Farm Bureau's priorities for the farm bill negotiations

1. Protecting and improving risk management programs.

"Both the House and Senate versions of the farm bill largely leave federal crop insurance untouched. Our members have made it clear the preservation of a robust federal crop insurance system is a top priority," said Nelson. "The House and Senate versions of the farm bill also

2. Ensuring the conservation title does not include new permanent easement and Conservation Stewardship Program (CSP) language.

Coverage (PLC) program."

"The Senate passed version of the bill created a new permanent easement program to help transition acres out of the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP). These acres would then be held in their "retired" condition in perpetuity. Nebraska Farm Bureau policy raises concerns with the concept of permanent easements and it's important this program is dropped out of the final bill," said Nelson. "The Senate bill also modifies CSP by re-infusing top-down bureaucracy and carving up the program. It adds multiple layers of bureaucratic hurdles and consultation requirements, as well as redirecting funding away from on-the-ground conservation practices, which is a concern."

3. Growing federal trade promotion programs.

"Now more than ever we need programs focused on export growth and promotion of U.S. agricultural products overseas. Both the House and Senate bills combine the Market Access program, Foreign Market Development program, the Emerging Markets program, and Technical Assistance for Specialty Crops into one program," said Nelson. "These programs are vital to market growth and it's important these efforts have bipartisan sup-Congress strengthens the budget port."

The Nebraska Farm Bureau has offer beneficial changes to federal for this new program," said Nelson. 4. Helping create new health insurance plans for farmers and ranchers who are suffering the brunt of the Affordable Care Act's unaffordable health insurance.

"The House bill creates a new loan and grant program under the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) to assist in the establishment of agricultural association health plans. The cost of health care and health insurance ranked second in terms of the most concerning issue for farmers and ranchers at Nebraska Farm Bureau listening sessions held around the state this summer. As organizations around the country look to better serve the agricultural community by trying to offer new health insurance options, this new program could go a long way in helping to provide the necessary seed-money to get these options from concept to reality," said Nelson.

5. Continuing work to eliminate unnecessary and harmful federal regulations. "Both the House and Senate bill make separate attempts to address a number of regulations which have been points of concern for the agricultural community for years. It is imperative the final bill include measures to fix problems we have had with the enforcement of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act, federal Hours of Service regulations for transport of agriculture commodities, efforts by states to improperly regulate interstate commerce, as well as the 'Waters of the U.S.' rule," said Nelson. "It is important to note that each of Cybercrime occurs approximately one-thousand times per second and it includes a number of different types of attacks. Vogt said it is necessary to discuss the issue since hacking has become more of a problem around the world. He said it is sponsored by state governments as well as organized crime and individual hackers. In a letter addressed to Vogt,

Karen Leuschner, program director for the NSA's National CAE Cyber Defense Unit, said Northeast's ability to meet the increasing demands of its program criteria will serve the nation well in contributing to the protection of the "National Information Infrastructure." Leuschner said national and international strategies to secure cyberspace "address the critical shortage of professionals with these skills and highlights the importance of higher education as a solution to defending America's cyberspace."

Vogt was with Dr. Wade Herley, dean of the business and technology division at Northeast, at the Def-Con 26 hacking conference in Las Vegas when they learned the College received the CAE2Y designation. The United States Bureau of Labor Statistics predicts a 28 percent increase in information security analyst positions through 2026. However, Vogt said there are not enough people to fill those positions. But that's where the CAE2Y designation comes in.

At the DefCon conference, the head of NSA's cybersecurity unit spoke of the need for more people to assist in the effort to combat cyber threats. Blue Devils bounce back with win at O'Neill

O'NEILL — In their season opener, the Wayne High football team struggled to generate any momentum on offense. The Blue Devils seemed to solve that problem on Friday night, pulling away in the second half for a 34-14 win at O'Neill to improve to 1-1 on the season.

The Wayne High defense made a statement in last week's 16-0 loss to third-ranked Wahoo, limiting the Warriors to less than 150 yards in total offense, and continued to show its strength in the Blue Devils' first road test of the season,

Wayne's offense had troubles in the early going with turnovers and penalties, but the defense got wayne on the board with a safety in the opening period as Korbin Hardenbrook tackled an O'Neill ball carrier in the end zone to give Wayne the early 2-0 advantage.

The Blue Devils put a nice third-quarter drive together, and Tyler Gilliland finished it off with a 14-yard lob to Shea Sweetland, who leaped over an O'Neill defender for the grab to give Wayne an 18-8 lead going to the fourth. In the final period, Gilliland hooked up with Marcus Fertig on a 51-yard pass that set up a six-yard run by Brandon Bartos, and Bartos scored again midway through the fourth on a two-yard surge to put Gililand, who came in late last week after starter Tyrus Eischeid was sidelined with a concussion, performed well in his first start. He was 10-of-12 for 187 yards and handled the offense well as Wayne put up 369 yards in total offense. Bartos ran the ball 15 times for 68 yards and two scores to lead the Wayne ground game, while Hardenbrook made the most of his attempts late and finished with 57 vards on six carries. Koenig had 11 carries for 38 yards and Toby Braun rushed twice for 13 yards.

In the receiving department, Fertig had two catches for 64 yards, Kaleb Anderson had three for 51 yards, Koenig had two for 41, Sweetland's touchdown catch was good for 14 yards, Aaron Reynolds had one catch for 10 yards and Reid Korth had a seven-yard reception.

On defense, Korth led the team with 10 tackles, Mason Frevert had six, Cade Janke had five, Drew Buck and Victor Kniesche each had four, and Koenig and Fertig had three apiece.

The evolution of trash

By MIKE RENNING

Trash has become a real thorn

Our trash pickup is on Thursday and every Wednesday evening, I suffer from "trash anxi-

We have a recycling bin to put recyclables in, but every time I've been around, and the trash people have come around - they just dump my recycle bin in with the other trash.

So, if they are not doing their part, which rules do I need to follow? And which rules can I ig-

It's a timeless dilemma. (Hey, I spelled that right!)

The Darling Wife can accumulate a big trash bin full of weeds and grass almost weekly.

Who cares if it's in a trash bag?

You may put this in the trash, you can't put that in the trash? I mean really? It's trash. I'm done with it.

I remember a much simpler time for trash removal.

As a young boy, I recall living in the suburbs of Harrison, Nebraska.

The suburbs mean the only thing that separated my house from the ountry was an alley and a Quonset.

I'm not sure why we capitalize Quonset, but according to spell-check we Rattlesnakes were a concern, but trash was not.

My Dad would light our trash barrel, usually every Sunday night, and go back into the house.

Max Mumby, who also lived in the suburbs a couple of blocks away, although he didn't have the Quonset, he did have the alley so he was in the suburbs, would bike over to my house and we would find anything we could find to throw in the fire. The Mumby's burned their barrel on Thursday, so it was another opportunity for fun.

At any rate, we would try to get the fire as hot as possible, because we wanted the various aerosol cans in the fire to blow up.

At times, these "small" explosions would send a red-hot can hurdling through the air with a smoke trail behind – it was a real week-maker for us and we usually accomplished our goal once a week, either on Sunday purposes for the administrative fee charge of ensuring that all state

Naturally, you could imagine the repercussions with a red-hot can and a tinder-dry prairie, but it only added to the fun.

Capitol View Auditor discovers $2.6 million off-the-books in treasurer's office

Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

The state has audited the Treasurer and discovered an "off the books" account of more than $2.6 million gathered from fees paid by people who have established college savings accounts for loved ones.

State Treasurer Don Stenberg says that one of his predecessors started the account years ago. So, one particular constitutional branch of government has a nest egg while the rest of government is cutting to make ends meet.

Please Don, you served a couple terms as Attorney General and should absolutely know better. It's taxpayer money accumulated in a fund that is managed by the bank in which the funds are held. You proudly graduated from both law school and business school at Harvard University. Seriously.

For some reason the fox and the hen house keep popping into my

Good for State Auditor Charlie Janssen's office discovering the funds had been building up in an account at First National Bank of Omaha since 2010. The money came from administrative fees paid by people participating in Nebraska's college savings plans. According to the audit report, the account earned no interest and was not recorded in the state's accounting system, included in the state budgeting process or reflected in the state's comprehensive annual financial report

The report called it "material noncompliance and a material weakness" in the Treasurer's Office accounting. Stenberg's spokeswoman said the fund had been created by former State Treasurer Shane Osborn. She said her boss maintained the account "in the good faith belief that the account met legal require-

Stenberg said his office used $150,000 from the account to provide a financial literacy program free to Nebraska high school students and their families. The au-motion of the savings program and tion had been arranged. the literacy program had been a successful advertising and promotional activity.

He argued the account was not public because it held fees paid by savings plan participants and he didn't have to follow the usual requirements governing public money. Janssen contended it was public money and Stenberg did not have authority to maintain and use such an account. Attorney General Doug Peterson agreed with the auditor and Stenberg closed the account names of First National Bank emand transferred the money to the state in July.

All well and good, but here's what's troubling. Before the routine examination of the Treasurer's Office finances in April, the account had been little known. The treasury management program director in the State Treasurer's Office dit said the program didn't fit the didn't know about it, and she's in gram director's travel. gued that state law allows the fees loss through a sufficient amount of ports were not properly recorded

But wait, there's more. The account didn't earn interest, an estimated $51,507 during 2017 alone. The funds were never reported to by the attorney general that was the Department of Administrative Services or the State Legislature, a practice the audit said, "not only conflicts with statute but also effectively hinders the full legislative appropriation process."

In a "highly unusual" procedure, the authorized signature card for the account contained only the ployees, not state employees. Remember, the money was being held in trust on behalf of the state. Expenditures made from the fund were done outside the budgeting process. Stenberg's office spent $173,136 from the account in 2017 for a birthday baby scholarship promotion and the college savings pro-surer failed to deposit $874,349 in unclaimed property receipts for months; he used the services of an outside law firm with an approval made 17 years ago. Oh, the attorney general at the time was Stenberg.

Perhaps Don Stenberg is just worn out by politics. He has been Treasurer since 2010. He was Attorney General from 1991 to 2003. He was legal counsel to then - Gov. Charlie Thone from 1979 to 1983. He ran unsuccessfully for: Lieutenant Governor in 1978; Attorney General in 1986; the U.S. Senate in 1996, 2000, 2006 and 2012. I hope he enjoys his retirement.

It's good to see Janssen carry on the tradition of the State Auditor's office begun by John Breslow in 1991 when the Auditor became known as the watchdog of state gov-world because of our people. Our ple to great career opportunities. people are hard-working, loyal, and family-oriented, and are constantly striving to make Nebraska the best place in the world to live, work, and raise a family. Our work ethic is reflected in national rankings: Nebraska has one of the highest labor force participation rates. Since 2014, our state has ranked third best out of all states for wage growth. And we consistently have tens of thousands of job openings in any given month along with one of the lowest unemployment rates in the nation.

This week, Labor Day is a celebration of the unparalleled work ethic and unique Nebraska grit that lies at the foundation of the Good Life. Providence Medical Center to offer Grief Support group

One of the most profoundly lonely experiences can be going through a difficult time, particularly a time of loss or grief. Joining a supportive and caring group can be a source of great comfort and strength.

That is why a bi-annual Grief Support Group is offered at Providence Medical Center in both the fall and spring.

The fall group will begin on Wednesday, Oct. 3 and continue until Nov. 7, each Wednesday (six sessions) from 6:30-8:15 p.m. Please call Providence Medical Center at 402-375-4288 by Friday, Sept. 21 to pre-register.

"We hope you will join us," said Pastor Anna Speiser, hospital and hospice chaplain at Providence Medical Center.

And then out of seemingly nowhere, my mother's face swooped down into my field of vision and exclaimed, "Well, there you are, I was looking for you!" And I remember that flood of relief—to be looked for,

It feels good is be searched for. There is something wonderful to have someone looking for you. To know that you are not forgotten, that someone is thinking of you and searching for you and determined to

to be found.

Right in the middle of the Christian New Testament, the Gospel Psalm 139 opens with these two tinctly, trooping along behind what of Luke, verse 15, is a whole series of parables about being lost and found-- about a lost sheep that is found by the shepherd, a lost coin that is found by a determined housewife, and perhaps the most famous, a prodigal son, who is welcomed home again by his father. It feels wonderful to be searched for you today.

Our verse today speaks of a God who does that very thing. Who not only searches for us but searches us, and what he finds, he loves. The verse says, "God knows us completely, and loves us just as thoroughly." Just like my mom, sweeping down with open arms to scoop me up in a big hug, right there in the grocery aisle; God is opening his arms wide, searching for us, searching us, waiting to welcome us home.

I'll close with one of my favorite prayer-poems, by Shifra Alon, which end with these words--

"We fall, we fail, to the end of the road.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU GET THE FLU

I'm guessing that the flu isn't on your top-10 wish list, right? But just in case you get sick this flu season, here's a list of 10 things you can do to help ease your symptoms—and to stop the flu in its tracks and protect others.

- 1. Stock up. A few supplies may make it a bit easier to manage the flu. It's best to have these on hand before you get sick. Otherwise, send a healthy member of your family out on an errand, if you can.
- Acetaminophen, ibuprofen, or naproxen for reducing fevers and easing achiness
- A thermometer
- Cough syrup or cough drops
- Saline nose drops or sprays
- Drinks such as fruit juices or tea (avoid caffeine) • Easy-to-eat foods such as clear soups, crackers, or applesauce^{1,2}
- 2. Stay home! The first day you have symptoms, you may be tempted to venture out to work or school. Please don't! Not only do you need the rest, but this is also when you're most contagious. Try to nap—and read or binge-watch your favorite television episodes.
- 3. Prevent the spread. In addition to staying home, wash your hands often and cover your cough and sneeze into your sleeve.²
- 4. Drink fluids, breathe steam. This is a great way to thin your mucus, making it easier to cough up. This may help prevent a lung infection. Using a humidifier (a cool mist) or breathing in steam from a hot shower may also help ease congestion. 5. Calm your cough. It can be exhausting, I know. Try over-the-counter (OTC) cough
- medicines—an expectorant helps thin mucus. Do not give a child under age 4 any type of cough medicine. Sucking on lozenges may also help your cough or scratchy throat. 6. Ease nose woes. You—or your kids—can try saline nose drops or sprays to ease
- nasal congestion. First, put a few drops into one nostril. Then gently blow the mucus and saline out. Repeat on the other side. 7. Treat other symptoms. Sure, a fever—along with chills and achiness—is a sign your body is fighting off the virus. But that doesn't mean you need to suffer in silence. Ask me
- if you have any questions about which fever reducer to take. But don't forget: Never give aspirin to someone younger than 19—it can lead to a serious illness. 8. Ask about antivirals. Your health care provider may advise you to take one. If you do this within 48 hours of when symptoms begin, you have a fighting chance of reducing their
- impact.1,2 9. Know when to seek medical help. If you or a loved one has any of these symptoms, call the doctor: •Dark urine; •Dizziness; •Fever of 100 degrees F for 3 or more days; •Returning fever or sore throat after feeling better

More serious symptoms require immediate medical care:

•Wheezing or shortness of breath; •Coughing up blood; •Chest pain or pressure; •Balance prob-

10. Talk to me! And of course it goes without saying: If you need guidance about any products—or any questions whatsoever—let me know, and I'll try to steer you in the right direction

Coming Soon - Market Facilation Program

By John Wilson Extension Educator

I was just visiting with staff at our local Farm Service Agency office and it seems that the MFP, or Market Facilitation Program, has been generating a lot of questions.

If you are not familiar with it, this program provides direct payments to help producers of certain agricultural commodities that have been directly impacted by illegal retaliatory tariffs, resulting in the loss of traditional exports.

This program is administered through the USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) and qualifying producers can sign up starting on Sept. 4, 2018, through Jan. 15, 2019. Here are some FAQs that hopefully help you understand the process. What commodities are covered and what is the payment for each of these? Cotton ($0.06/lb.); Corn ($0.01/bu.); Dairy ($0.12/cwt.); Hogs first 50 percent of the producer's On or about Dec. 3, 2018, the CCC (Commodity Credit Corporation) will announce a second payment rate, if applicable, that will apply to the remaining 50 percent of the producer's production. The second payment, if available, may be issued using a different MFP payment rate.

How do I document produc-

Dairy production will be based on historical production reported for the Margin Protection Program for Dairy (MPP-Dairy). Who is eligible?

• To be eligible for a MFP payment, each corn, upland cotton, sorghum, soybean, and wheat producer is required to be a person or legal entity who was actively engaged in farming in 2018.

Other considerations!

Since production must be verified before payments can be made, a producer (if eligible) could apply for payments for dairy, hog or wheat production now, but would have to wait until after harvest (but before Jan. 15, 2019) for payments on eligible fall harvested crops. However, it may be simpler (and I'm sure FSA would appreciate it) if you only made one claim for all eligible commodities after harvest is completed. MFP payments are capped per person or legal entity as follows: · A combined $125,000 for eligible crop commodities · A combined $125,000 for dairy

Understanding the critical time of weed removal (CTWR) would not only ensure effective weed removal and minimize unnecessary weed control inputs but can also potentially help minimize development of herbicide resistance in weeds. Most studies have shown that the critical time of weed removal in soybean starts at very early crop stages (V1 to V3; equivalent to 5-15 days after soybean emergence) as early emerging weeds are known to be the most competitive with soybean.

It is well known that pre-emergence (PRE) herbicides control early emerging weeds and delay the need for post-emergence (POST) weed control inputs including POST application of field study in 2017 at Concord, Ne- loss threshold. braska, to evaluate the influence herbicide programs (Authority Assist® [12 oz/acre] and Zidua PRO® [6 oz/acre]) influenced CT-WR compared to soybeans with no PRE herbicides. Authority Assist® comprises sulfentrazone and imazethapyr, while Zidua PRO® contains saflufenacil, imazethapyr and pyroxasulfone. PRE-herbicides were applied immediately after planting soybean. Weed removal timings were done at V1 (1st trifoliate), V3 (3rd trifoliate), V6 (6th trifoliate), R2 (full flowering) and R5 (beginning seed) soybean growth stage, as well as weed free and weedy season long. Weed species composition included common waterhemp (48 percent), green foxtail (27 percent), velvetleaf (13 percent) and common lambsquarters (12 percent). Turkey hunting can be combined with big game, upland game, waterfowl or fishing for a true Nebraska mixed bag outdoor adventure.

On Saturday, our guests headed to Waco to visit her brother and wife. I went to a new place on North 48th to meet with three retired Tabitha ladies, where we solved the world's problems and caught up on the news from our former employer.

Of course, we were tired when we got back, but we had to have Valentino's pizza before they left!

That night, my friend, Virginia, arrived from Creighton, so we had a good visit and I actually got the sheets changed on the guest bed. The Friday night supper consisted of barbecued ham balls and there were enough left to serve for lunch on Monday when cousin Paul and his wife arrived for another visit. get your bluegrass and tall fescue lawns back in good condition after the stressful summer months. There are a lot of lawns with areas of dead or dying grass from disease problems this summer. Some of those will fill in as temperatures cool in September, but if they don't, overseed thin areas no later than mid-September to give new grass a chance to germinate and get established this fall. Lightly rake those areas to remove as much dead material as you can, then spread grass seed that is a blend of at least three improved cultivars of bluegrass or fescue, whatever you have seeded in the rest of your lawn. If you don't get timely rains, remember to keep the top inch of soil moist, but not too wet, after seeding or overseeding. One advantage to seeding in the fall is you usually won't have the weed competition you do when seeding or overseeding in the fall, apply about 1/2 to 3/4 pound square feet now.

September is an excellent time to of actual nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of turf in early September, and apply a similar amount toward the mid-September to mid-October are end of October. If you're only going to fertilize once this fall, apply If you haven't fertilized yet this about 1 pound of nitrogen per 1,000

However, the last fertilization in bicides applied then will also be late October can be the most important one you make all year. It gives vour lawn a slower, more uniform green-up next spring rather than the fast flush of growth you get if you fertilize too early. Avoiding the rapid flush of growth in the spring also reduces the chance of injury and disease later in the growing season. If you fertilize in October, you shouldn't need to fertilize until around May 1 next year.

If you have a thatch buildup, over 1/2 inch of thatch, power rake your lawn by mid-September. This allows the turf a chance to recover after this stressful operation. Rake up and compost or dispose of the dead plant material after power raking, don't leave it on the surface

If you have problems with perennial broadleaf weeds such as dandelions, ground ivy or white clover, the best times to apply broadleaf weed killers. The plants are busy making food and sending it to the translocated to the weed roots, giving you better control. If you wait until after a light frost, you can also reduce the potential for injury to ornamental plants.

We used to recommend lowering your mowing height in the fall. Research has found that maintaining a higher mowing height in the fall is better for your lawn. (My lawnmower NEVER comes off of the highest mowing setting.) As lawns start to grow faster in the fall, mow more frequently so you don't remove more than 1/3 of the total height of the grass. Removing more than that with one cutting will stress the turf.

As leaves start to fall, don't let these accumulate because they can smother areas of grass if allowed to become too deep... especially if you get a rain that packs them down. Mow over them and mulch them in if they don't leave a layer of ground leaves on top of the turf. You may have to mow over them twice, Or you can rake them or bag them as you mow and add them to your compost pile or dispose of them.

other thing you need to remember is to water your lawn well later this fall if you don't get timely rains. The later in the fall you do this, the better, as long as the ground hasn't frozen and the water just runs off. This will help your turf go into the winter in a healthier condition and reduce the chance of winterkill. Following these steps will help your lawns recover from the stress of summer, go into winter in a healthy condition, and reduce problems next year. For more information on fall lawn care, contact your local Nebraska Extension office.

Changing with the Times

Every year about this time, I implore you all to make preparations for harvest. In the past, I have talked about the yield monitor components, the combine components, and the calibration procedures for each one of your machines. And while still important, I'm going to shift my focus this year. Instead, I am going to get with the times and talk about this preparation period in a sense that is a bit more fitting to where we are in 2018, and this is from a data standpoint.

There are literally a dozen ways to collect and/or transfer the data that your combine and yield monitor are going to collect this year. Everything from the simple data card being pulled from your display and handed off to your trusted advisor all the way up to integrated Wireless data transfer, challenges. The Data Card: On a scale of cool and exciting, it's a zero. There is nothing new or innovative. It is the most reliable form to collect and move data, but

and everything in between. Each of these comes with their benefits and also the slowest. Relying on people to transfer the data over distance it is the slowest way to get maps to your trusted advisor, and therefore to you. But with this comes reliability. Data cards almost never fail (unless they go through the washing machine). But you don't know if the Monitor, GPS, and data card are all working as expected until harvest is done. The CAN Plug: One of the newer areas of data acquisition is the CAN plugs.

Systems like FieldView Drive and Farmobile are touted as simple solutions. Just plug and go. But there are more moving parts to them than you might think. These systems need calibrations that are separate from the yield monitor to be accurate. They also need data. If you are anywhere on NE Hwy 14, Northeast Nebraska, or a slew of other areas, using these systems can be frustrating, especially if you want to view the data remotely while it is being collected, because with spotty data comes spotty data transfer. All of your maps are there, you just might not see them for a while.

Display Data Transfer: Last, but not least is the group I consider the best solution. In this group, you have offerings from OEM's like John Deere, and systems from aftermarket companies like Ag Leader. While up to date, these systems aren't universal (they only work on their own display), they are still handy. Systems like Ag Leader's AgFiniti make it possible to send prescriptions to the monitor, as well as transfer data to yourself or your trusted advisor. While they may have a step or more to the data transfer process, the significant benefit is they don't need their own data plans (which can save you hundreds of dollars a year.) You can use the Hotspot on your phone or the Wi-Fi in your yard or shop to transfer the data at your convenience or stream in near real time to other mobile devices. These systems give you confidence in not losing data for only a few hundred dollars a year instead of a thousand or more.

Our data and how we move it is evolving in Agriculture just like it is in any other sector. When we choose to stick with what we know, we are comfortable, but also falling behind the times. I know none of us want to talk about it, but these solutions can be especially useful for those of us that have weather-related insurance claims. It enables us to have your maps quickly and to get them back to you or your insurance company ASAP to put those claims behind you. And with these Data transfer systems, getting the harvest data is essential, as they will prove useful year round.
