Restoration project moved ahead at Wayne County Commissioners meeting

By Sarah Lentz
editor@wayneherald.com

The Wayne County Commissioners have moved on the Courthouse Restoration project, heard bids for equipment and were given reports from an area agency and county department at the Tuesday, Dec. 4 meeting.

After approving the consent agenda and claims, representatives from Northeast Nebraska Community Action Partnership (NENCAP) gave an update on services provided in Wayne County.

NENCAP provides WIC assistance, clinics, food pantries, monthly food packages for seniors, assistance with housing, utilities, SNAP applications, immunizations and more.

Next, highway superintendent Mark Casey updated the commissioners about several items. Utilities at the Temme bridge are now buried underground. On Thursday, Nov. 29, the last concrete pad for the Sholes Wind Energy Project was poured. Casey also said that as of now, NextEra expects the last tower to be delivered by Dec. 22.

Casey also opened bids for a new articulated motor grader. Bids came in from Road Builders Machinery and Supply Company, Murphy Tractor and Nebraska Machinery. The grader is for District 2, and commissioner Dean Burbach moved to table any decision until the next meeting.

The Wayne County Commissioners then joined a conference call with Jerry Berggren and Jake Geisert from Berggren Architects and several members of Kingery Construction, the firm with the low-bid on the Wayne County Courthouse project.

Bids had come in much higher than the original estimate from Berggren to renovate the Wayne County Courthouse.

Initially Berggren wanted masons responsible for tuck-pointing exterior bricks to hand-mix a lime-heavy mortar on-site and use only hand tools. Contractors aren't used to working with those restrictions, which Berggren believed was one factor that caused the bids to come in high.

During the last two county commissioners meetings, Berggren and the commissioners have been working to keep the project close to the initial estimate while ensuring the majority of the work would be completed.

During Tuesday's meeting, Berggren sent a new proposal that allowed the contractors to use pre-mixed mortar and power tools. This lowered some of the cost. Money taken out of the equation from the initial bid will be moved to an allowance, which will fund any tuck-pointing. A $2 million cap is proposed for the project.

The roof and oriels are top priority and will need to be done first. Berggren believes they've estimated for enough brick to get a substantial amount of work done to the exterior.

Because this bid has been so long in the works, Kingery told the commissioners they would need to decide what to take out or leave in the bid so that they can lock-in subcontractors.

The commissioners approved a contract with Kingery but are still waiting on hard numbers from the architects and contractors before the work will begin.

The next Wayne County Commissioners meeting will be Tuesday, Dec. 18 at 9 a.m. in the Wayne County courtroom.

New mayor, council members sworn into office during Tuesday meeting

By Clara Osten
clara@wayneherald.com

A new mayor and three members of the Wayne City Council were sworn in during Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne City Council.

Cale Giese was elected to the position in early November and will replace Ken Chamberlain who resigned from the position earlier this year. Jill Brodersen, Council President, has served as interim mayor.

Council members Jill Brodersen, Matt Eischeid and Jason Karsky were re-elected to their positions.

Chris Woehler, who will represent Ward 1, was not able to be at Tuesday's meeting to take the oath of office.

Following the swearing in of new officials, the council selected Jill Brodersen to serve as President of the Council.

Plaques of appreciation were presented to outgoing council members Rod Greve and Nick Muir for their service on the council.

Mayor Giese will now accept nominations to fill the Ward 3 council position which he held. Interested persons are asked to contact him in regard to the position. Giese had two years left on his term.

In other action, the council approved a change order for the Second Street Storm Sewer Project.

Information was presented to the council on the quantity overruns on the project and additional details about the project were discussed.

Following approval of the change order, council took action on Payment No. 6 (final) in the amount of $18,250.00 to Robert Woehler & Sons Construction Company, Inc.

A resolution amending the wage and salary schedule to include a two percent cost of living increase was approved, as was an interlocal agreement with the village of Carroll for building inspection services. The agreement with the village of Carroll is similar to the one the city has with the village of Concord.

Discussion was held on the city's snow removal and ice control operations policy manual.

City Planner Joel Hansen told the council the manual had not been reviewed since 1997. He explained to the council the city's plan for snow removal during a normal (two to four inch) snow storm, including the emergency routes that crews work to keep open.

Several changes may be made in wording in the manual at a future meeting.

A resolution was approved allowing for a contract between the city of Wayne and the State of Nebraska Department of Economic Development. It involves in our water. The fact is the water that each customer would have used during this time was not any higher in nitrates than before.

City Administrator Wes Blecke explained the process and details of the grant and said work would most likely be completed in 2020.

The short of the story is that a well (Well #6) in the City that is high in nitrates (when pumped) is always blended with water from another well that is low in nitrates. This blending is common in municipalities and allows cities to be compliant with quality regulations by the State. These rules are needed to protect our water supply.

What happened recently was that two samples were taken at the well location proper and tested high in nitrates. The second test could have been taken at the "point of entry" (or where the water is blended) and the levels would have been compliant with State regulations. Unfortunately, there was some miscommunication between State and City personnel, and the second sample was taken at the well location (higher in nitrates) instead of taken at the point of entry where the nitrate level is much lower and meets the drinking water standards.

A third sample was taken at the point of entry and was below the nitrate limit. The notice that was distributed to the public was mandated by the State, even though City officials knew our water system was never distributing water high in nitrates. Sometimes public policies have unintended consequences that simply make no sense.

In my opinion this was one of those (notifying the public when we knew consumers were not at risk).

If you have any questions regarding the circumstances leading up to this violation, don't hesitate to contact me.

Planning session

A group of 16 people from Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and South Dakota took part in a 40 hour class at the Wayne Fire Hall last week. Travis Davis, a FEMA Instructor, took the students through a scenario involving how to deal with evacuating a city following a train derailment into a river. The group was made up of volunteer and paid fire firefighters, state employees, emergency managers, state fire marshall instructors and those with the Department of Health and Human Services.

Haven House receives grant from Gardner Foundation

More to Wayne's failed nitrate tests

Tuesday morning the City of Wayne announced, in accordance with the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) Regulations Governing Public Water Supply Systems, that the City Of Wayne public water supply system was in violation of the established nitrate drinking water standard of 10 milligrams per liter. Nitrates had been measured at an average concentration of 12 milligrams per liter in two samples collected from the system on Nov. 13, 2018 and Nov. 26, 2018.

While the water tested above acceptable nitrate levels, Wayne's drinking water wasn't affected. According to City Administrator Wes Blecke, the wells that tested high never directly enter Wayne's water supply. "We knew Wells 6 and 7 (the wells that tested high) are high, but we don't use them directly. Those wells are blended with the wells we do use, which dilutes the nitrate level making it safe to drink," Blecke said. State regulations require all wells that add to the water supply be tested, even those that aren't main wells. The failed test on Nov. 13 meant that there would have to be a secondary test. A miscommunication regarding the second test triggered the DHHS-outlined response.

"We thought there was a rule that said we had to test at the site of the well that tested high, it turns out we could have tested at the point of entry (where the well gets diluted) and it would have been fine," Blecke said.

Blecke said there's no physical way for water from the nitrate-high wells to make it into the water supply without being diluted to safe levels, but two failed tests require Nebraska communities to release the statement the City released Tuesday morning.

"There is no access point so you physically can't drink that water without it being blended," Blecke said.

It also required a handful of City employees to go door to door in Wayne passing out the notice and required the City to provide drinking water, despite the water supply actually being safe to drink.

Because State offices will be closed Wednesday for a national day of mourning for former president George H.W. Bush, the City rushed a sample to Lincoln Tuesday. By late afternoon, preliminary tests showed that the City's water tested at 6.6 milligrams per liter, under the limit of 10 milligrams per liter limit. Final results will be released by the end of the week.

For questions or concerns, contact Jeff Brady, Water Supervisor, at (402) 375-5250 or (402) 375-9129; or Wes Blecke, City Administrator, at (402) 375-1733.

These 'Cats have nine titles: Wayne State claims ninth NSCRO title, third consecutive 15's crown

By MICHAEL CARNES
For The Herald

It's been said that cats have nine lives — but these 'Cats also have nine national championships.

Wayne State's run of dominance in National Small College Rugby Organization championship weekends continued as the Wildcats rolled to their third straight national title in 15-on-15 competition and ninth overall with a 67-12 blowout of Washington, D.C.-based Catholic University in the championship match Sunday afternoon at the Life University rugby complex in Atlanta, Ga.

In what was unquestionably the most dominating of Wayne State's championship-game efforts during its run of NSCRO national titles over the last five years, the Wildcats buried Catholic with a stifling defense that led to numerous short-yardage situations which helped Wayne State build a 33-0 halftime advantage and leave no doubt as to whether or not the Wildcats were going to lay claim to their third straight 15-on-15 championship.

That this team was even in position to play for a national title was something of a surprise to coach Darrin Barner, considering that only three of the 15 girls who started Sunday were starters on last year's championship team.

"With how young we were coming into the season, our goal (at the start of the season) was just to have a winning record this year," he said by phone during the team's bus ride home to a heroes' welcome Monday afternoon at the WSC Student Center. "We were hoping to possibly get into the playoffs, but I never would have thought we'd have a prayer of making the final four, let alone winning the national championship and then doing it in a dominating fashion."

A tired, but happy, Wayne State women's rugby team gets together for a group photo after returning home from Atlanta, Ga., where the Wildcats defended their NSCRO 15-on-15 national championship with a dominating 67-12 win over Catholic University Sunday afternoon to win their third straight national championship.

Indeed, there was no doubt who the best of the final four were after Sunday. Wayne State opened semifinal play Saturday with a 51-7 blasting of Minnesota Moorhead, then scored the first 50 points of Sunday's championship game before Catholic finally found the Wayne State try zone with about 18 minutes left in the contest.

The key to this year's championship was team chemistry and a willingness by the newer players on the team to learn and improve each time out.

"With all the rookies we have who are believing in the system, there is just a lot of pride on this team and the way the program has worked, it just all came together for us as the season went on," Barner said.

In Saturday's win, Wayne State built a 36-7 halftime lead on the strength of three Kennedy Jones tries. Scores by Gillian Herrera and Cassie Pickler were added before the deceptively-fast Jones scored two more times to help build the big halftime advantage against the bigger Moorhead lineup.

Selma Taylor, who finished as the tournament MVP, added a try midway through the second half before Jones scored her fourth try to put the cap on the dominating win.

"Those 51 points we scored Saturday were the lowest we scored all year, mostly because of the rain that slowed us down," Barner said.

And while it was the offense that led the way to victory on Saturday, Wayne State's defense helped set up the offense for a number of easy scores as the game was played in the Catholic University side of the field for much of the 40 minutes, allowing Wayne State to score early and often to build a 33-0 halftime lead.

Cheered on by a bunch of Georgians For Nebraska cowbell-clanging supporters, Wayne State's defense continued to set up opportunities in the second half. Jones scored off a stolen ruck seven minutes in to make it 38-0, and an 30-yard interception return by Taylor made it 50-0 with 26 minutes to go. Brook Hoising scored on a 50-yard run a minute later, and it was academic at that point in spite of two late scores by Catholic. "We played like the (1985) Chicago Bears' defense that first half," Barner said. "Our defense just swarmed them, which created some short opportunities for us to score."

Taylor, who was joined on the All-Tournament Team by teammates Hoising, Jones, Holly Schupbach, Julia Baxter and Anna Fleecs, said it was amazing to see this young team come through a perfect 13-0 season and perform the way it did.

"We worked really hard for it," she said. "We put in a lot of work, and even though we were really young we stepped up and worked hard. We went in with a positive mindset and knew we were going to win, and we just crushed them."

Alex Gordon, the lone senior on the team who finished her career as part of three national title teams, said the young players bought into the system and created some fantastic team chemistry.

"I was a little worried at first, but our freshmen and rookies stepped up and were an amazing class," she said. "We were a little unsure against Moorhead, because we had lost to them before, but this team just clicked so well and it was amazing."

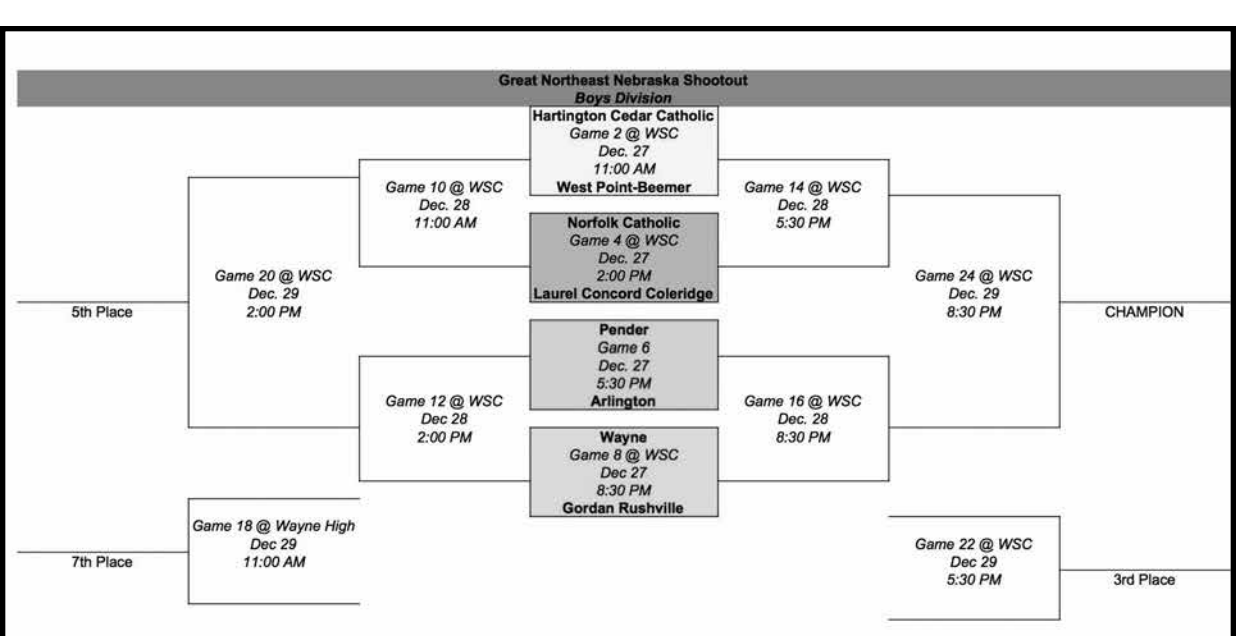

Historically, Wayne State has won with an exclusive group of home-grown players who, prior to coming to college, had no experience with the game and learned as part of the rugby club.

This year's team was different, with six players having previous rugby experience, including Australian-born Isabelle Robinson, one of several newbies who played a key role in this team's success.

"We all put in the work and it paid off for us," she said. "We wanted a little tougher match and thought it would be more physical, but a win is a win and the hard work we put in paid off."

Now, the Wayne State rugby team turns its attention to the 7-on-7 spring season, where they are the defending champions and winners of four of the five 7's titles in NSCRO history.

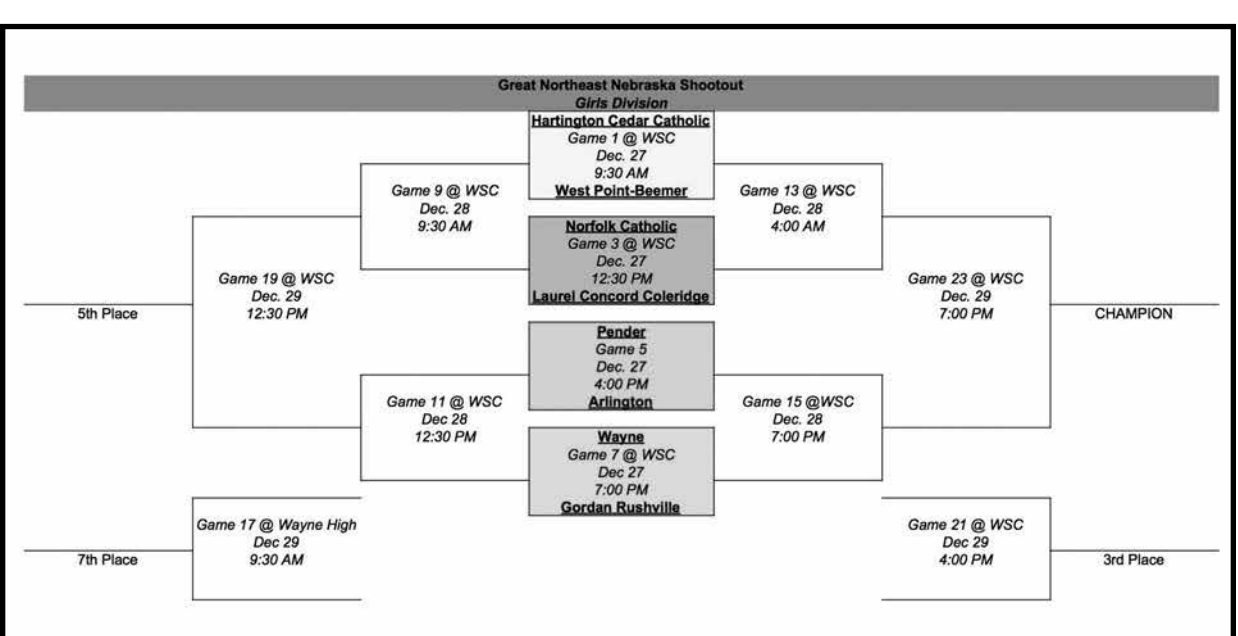

"A number of these girls will be on the sevens team, and we're going to give it a shot defending that title and I think we'll have a good chance," Barner said.

The Pendragons built a six-point lead going to the fourth quarter, but Wakefield came back to force overtime and outscored the hosts 14-8 in the extra session to claim the win.

Blue Devils fall to Bravettes in season opener

The Wayne High girls basketball team opened the 2018-19 season with a 49-43 loss at Battle Creek on Friday.

The Blue Devils held a seven-point lead at the half, but the Bravettes' defense helped them come back in the third quarter, turning that deficit into a four-point advantage. The Blue Devils had chances to come back in the fourth quarter, but were unable to get over the hump as they fell to 0-1 on the season.

Frankie Klausen led the Blue Devil girls with 16 points, while Gabi Meyer, Ashton Boyer and Rubie Klausen each added six. Allison Claussen had four points, Kendall Dorey and Tori Kliesche each had two and Sidney Biggerstaff tossed in a free throw. Saturday's matchup with Ponca was postponed due to weather. They were to play Logan View on Tuesday at home and will host Wahoo on Friday before traveling to Columbus Lakeview on Saturday.

for the NSCRO Final Four 10 times and, on nine of those occasions, brought a national championship home to Wayne, America.

Monday afternoon, the bus made what is becoming an annual trip back home from Atlanta, Ga., coming to a stop in front of the Kanter Student Center on the campus of Wayne State College to unload a tired, but happy, national championship team to an awaiting throng of cheering students, instructors and school administrators.

That it happened this season is probably the biggest story in what is fast becoming an annual tradition.

Last year's WSC women's rugby team was loaded with seniors. Barner referred to it as the "Dream Team" as they dominated, buried and beat all comers on their way to a second consecutive national title, and fourth overall, in 15-on-15 competition last December.

This year was SUPPOSED to be one of those years where Wayne State would rebuild with a new bunch of young farm girls, star athletes in their home towns whose only experience with rugby may have come while asking for a definition of the word at their local fourth-grade spelling bee. Barner has built this program almost exclusively on Nebraskabased athletic talent, teaching the game to an eager, competitive bunch of young ladies who learn, and move, fast.

As the team has continued to make a name for itself on a national scale, however, recruits with experience in the sport have started to trickle in, coming from as far away as Brisbane, Australia, home of freshman Isabelle Robinson, one of several key young players that helped minimize the learning curve on this year's team.

The team seemed to click as a unit almost immediately, and this Wildcat championship run really picked up steam in October and early November. Big wins over big-university schools Oklahoma and Arkansas helped build this team's confidence, and they rolled to big wins over Northern Michigan and Mira Costa College of California in the regionals to set up another bus ride to Georgia.

Barner expressed concern about the other three teams in the NSCRO Final Four. Minnesota-Moorhead has had some success against Wayne State in the past, and there is always a fear of the unknown with the other half of the bracket that featured two programs loaded with players whose

Wildcat men get first win at Augie since 2010

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. -- Wayne State used balanced scoring while holding Augustana to just 33 percent shooting as the Wildcats won at Augustana for the first time since 2010 with a 65-54 win Saturday at Sioux Falls Arena in the NSIC opener for both teams.

The Wildcats, who last won at Augustana on March 3 2010, never trailed in the contest. Each team started the game with five point scoring runs and with the score tied at 5-5, Wayne State went on a 13-2 run and took an 18-7 lead on a Trevin Joseph 3-pointer with 12:55 remaining in the first half.

Augustana got as close as four points several times, but the Wildcats pushed the lead back to nine at 31-22 on a Nick Ferrarini 3-pointer with 1:58 to play before halftime and the Wildcats ended the half with a 33-25 lead at intermission.

Wayne State opened the second half with a basket to take a 10-point lead at 35-25, but Augustana battled back as the Wildcats went cold from the field, making just 4 of their next 16 shots.

Augustana got within one on several occasions, however, Wayne State answered each challenge and used a 10-0 run late in the game to push the lead back to double figures to come away with the win.

Seniors Vance Janssen and Kendall Jacks led Wayne State in scoring with 16 and 15 points, respectively. Freshmen Nick Ferrarini and Jordan Janssen each added 11 points while Janssen hauled in a team-high 11 rebounds for his third double-double in four games. A.J. Plitzuweit led Augustana in scoring with 14 points while Michael Schaefer and Tyler Riemersma also scored double figures with 11 points each.

depth of experience in the sport far outweighed that of the young Wildcat team.

Watching both of Wayne State's games on YouTube, you'd have never guessed which side was the more experienced, talented and best-conditioned team on paper. Wayne State simply manhandled their northern neighbors on Saturday, then put on a defensive clinic that completely neutered the Catholic University attack in a manner unlike any I've seen in the 10 years I've followed this program.

That it was done by a team with just ONE senior and a massive number of underclassmen, and done in such a dominating fashion, was amazing to witness. And if the rest of the NSCRO rugby community was blown away by what this team did over the weekend, what REALLY should blow their minds is the fact that, aside from Alex Gordon — the lone senior on the team — barring injuries, transfers or other unforeseen circumstances, this entire lineup will be back next year for a crack at a fourth straight 15's championship . . . and they'll be a year older, a year wiser and experienced in the art of winning a national title.

Right now, Wayne State is the odds-on favorite to defend its 7-on-7 championship from a year ago, which would give the program 10 national titles (and one runner-up finish) in the last six years.

Like the old saying goes — you can't win 'em all . . . but if you're playing rugby for the Wayne State women's program, you're coming pretty darn close.

21-18 advantage.

After UNK scored to make it 21-20, the Wildcats responded with a 20-0 run over six minutes to take a 41-20 lead, settling for a 45-29 advantage at intermission.

UNK closed the first-half deficit to 10 at 51-41 five minutes into the second half, but the Wildcats rebuilt the lead to 20 points on a Ferrarini 3-pointer with 8:40 to go and extended the lead to as many as 31 points before closing out the easy win.

The Wildcats shot 49.3 percent (33-of-67) from the floor and had five players finish in double figures, led by Vance Janssen's 17 points. Jordan Janssen had 15 points and 10 rebounds for his second double-double in three games, while Jacks added 13 points, Ferrarini scored 12 and Bonner had 10.

Wayne State outrebounded UNK 39-38, led by Jordan Janssen's 10 rebounds. Trevin Joseph and Dentlinger each had six. Wayne State had just seven turnovers in the contest compared to UNK's 18. Dentlinger had five blocked shots and Al'Tavius Jackson led the offense with three assists.

Wayne State (6-1, 1-0 NSIC) will play NSIC road games at Upper Iowa Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Winona State Saturday at 5:30 p.m.

Late rally helps Augustana women to 81-73 win over WSC

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. — In a game of scoring runs by both teams, Augustana rallied from a 64-59 deficit with 6:46 remaining to outlast Wayne State College 81-73 Saturday evening in the Northern Sun Conference women's basketball opener for both teams at the Sioux Falls Arena.

The Wildcats got off to a slow start, trailing 13-3 less than five minutes into the contest. Despite making just 4-of-13 shots in the first quarter, Wayne state worked their way back and trailed by just four at the end of the first quarter 16-12.

The Wildcats came on strong in the second quarter, making eight of their first nine shots from the field that included 3-of-4 behind the arc to take the lead. A 17-2 Wildcat scoring run over a span of 4:48, highlighted by a three consecutive 3-pointers (two from Maggie Lowe and one by Haley Vesey), turned a 22-18 deficit into a 35-24 lead following an Erin Norling layup at the 3:36 mark of the second quarter.

The host Vikings then went on a similar run at the end of the second quarter that carried into the third quarter as Augustana cut the Wildcat advantage to 36-32 at intermission.

Augustana's scoring run over the two quarters was 17-3 covering 6:48, giving the Vikings a 46-41 lead.

Wayne State then countered with a 10-0 run that put the lead back in the Wildcats' favor at 51-46 with 3:28 to play third quarter before the Vikings charged back to end the third quarter tied at 57-57.

After Augustana scored the opening basket of the fourth quarter to take a 59-57 lead, Wayne State used an Andrea Larson 3-pointer, a pair of Haley Vesey free throws and a jumper by Amelia Ivester gave the Wildcats a 64-59 lead with 6:46 to play.

The Vikings reeled off the next 11 points to take the lead for good at 70-64 with 3:26 remaining. Wayne State got as close as one at 70-69 on a Vesey 3-pointer with 2:44 remaining, but the Wildcats went cold from the field the rest of the way and Augustana finished off the eight-point win.

Brittany Bongartz paced Wayne

State in scoring with 15 points. Vesey and Norling each added 14 points. Augustana's top scorer was Lynsey Prosser with 15 points. Shelby Selland followed with 14 points followed by Vishe Rabb and Abby Hora with 12 points each.

WSC held a 43-39 edge in rebounding thanks to nine boards from freshman Amelia Ivester. Halley Busse tied a career-high with eight assists while freshman Kylie Hammer had four. Ivester was credited with three of Wayne State's four blocked shots.

The Wildcats (4-2, 0-1 NSIC) will be on the road again next weekend for NSIC games at Upper Iowa Friday at 5:30 p.m. and Winona State Saturday at 3:30 p.m.

Beware of holiday scams

The opportunity to acquire new information is easier now than at any point in our world's history. Access to information at the right time can spark a new passion for learning, inspire new ideas, or save a life.

With a few clicks of a mouse or search on a phone, we can rapidly obtain any and all the information we desire.

The Good Life has 45.2 million acres of farms and ranches. The first 911 emergency system was developed and tested in Lincoln. If Nebraska's groundwater was poured over the surface of our state, the water would measure to nearly 38 feet in depth. Throughout history we've constructed libraries to account for this kind of information. Now, we have that data in the palm of our hands.

America has led the world economy largely due to our innovations in digital infrastructure. Whether it's a small businesswoman taking inventory in Norfolk, the farmer analyzing his crop yield in Ogallala, or the nurse in an Omaha hospital documenting health information- we depend on digital networks to get the job done and grow our economy. According to a U.S. Census Bureau report, retail sales in e-commerce increased to a staggering $453.5 billion in the last year.

But one of the ironies of the digital age is that as our technology advances, so does our vulnerability to become a victim of cybercrime. Personal, sensitive information is now stored on our phones and computers. Families pay their mortgages, make healthcare decisions, and file their taxes online.

As we have moved into the digital era, millions of families have had their identities stolen, accounts emptied, and lives turned upside down because of egregious acts of cyber criminals. This year the FBI reported that malicious cyber scams and attacks cost the U.S. more than $1.4 billion in 2017.

Scammers will try to attack from all angles. Some will call your phone disguised under a legitimate number and demand action on an account that has been compromised. They may even try to forgive your student loans or offer a job opportunity that you didn't solicit. All in exchange, of course, for your social security or credit card number.

Congress has taken significant steps to address these fraudulent scams. I've been a leader on solutions like the Spoofing Prevention Act and the Senior Safe Act that are helping stop certain scams and increase reporting of these crimes. But unfortunately, bad actors constantly evolve and come up with new ways to fool Americans.

The Social Security Administration usually reports a spike in crime during the holidays and as a member of the Senate Special Committee on Aging, I'm well aware that scammers often choose seniors as their prime targets. Now that we are in open enrollment season for health insurance, Nebraska seniors are handing out some of their most sensitive information. If you receive a suspicious call regarding health plans, hang up the phone immediately.

A "Secret Sister" gift exchange scam is now moving through social media outlets. A Facebook or Twitter post will advertise that participants will receive up to 35 gifts in exchange for one 10-dollar gift. As the Better Business Bureau of Nebraska warned, it's better to quickly delete any of these solicitations right away.

As we enter this holiday season, I encourage you to stay vigilant against scammers. Be cautious when handing out personal information. Hang up the phone if you are skeptical of a caller. Protect your information to ensure that you and your loved ones do not fall victim to these deceitful tricks.

Thank you for participating in the democratic process. I look forward to visiting with you again next week.

Capitol View Legislature could restructure committee assignments

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

The nation's only one house Legislature is looking at changing its committee structure to streamline the process and equalize the work load of bills that are considered to become law.

Much of it makes sense, but who cares outside of the 49 elected lawmakers, their staff of hundreds and members of the Executive and Judicial branches? We should all care if it will give the average citizen the same access to the process and retain the transparency of that process. Imagine lawmakers getting more work done in less time.

Remember, this isn't just politics, even though it seems like the wrangling of 30 Republicans, 18 Democrats and one Independent is sometimes similar to the mess we hear about in Washington. We're talking about measures that have the potential to change your way of life and affect your health or safety, even your taxes.

A study committee chaired by Rules Committee Chairman Sen. Mike Hilgers of Lincoln is looking at ways to possibly combine some of the 14 standing committees that review hundreds of bills each session. For years, only the nine-member Appropriations Committee has met every day. Some suggest that the Judiciary Committee should also meet every day to handle what has become a larger bill load than most other committees. There is also talk about possibly combining the Agriculture and Natural Resources committees and taking a fresh look at exactly what the General Affairs Committee does.

Change is not a four-letter word, but it can ruffle some feathers. Long-standing committee chairs may have to relinquish, or at least rethink, some of their perceived power. Lobbyists might have to adjust their thinking.

Logistically, filling 14 committees from the ranks of 49 senators can be tricky. Currently, senators who serve on a Wednesday through Friday committee also serve on a Monday - Tuesday committee. Eliminating one or more committees from either category will present challenges. Likewise, making one or more committees a five-day-a-week responsibility creates similar staffing issues.

In short, that's a lot of moving parts. That's a lot of tradition to justify and uproot. Senators generally serve on one to three standing committees, and some of them on additional special committees, such as oversight of the justice system, the Executive Board or Performance Audit.

If the General Affairs Committee is eliminated, how are the issues of gambling and liquor regulation divided among other committees, and which committees make the most sense to consider the issues?

Maybe the Judiciary Committee could meet five days a week. With the 218 bills before that committee last session, such a change seems to make sense. The Agriculture Committee only heard 18 bills. The Natural Resources Committee received 38 bills. Then there's talk about making the Education and Revenue Committees larger. Each currently has seven members.

The study committee is expected to take a formal vote this month and schedule hearings on the proposals. A Rules Committee vote would follow and then discussion by the Legislature in the next session. Given how rules changes bog the session down in the initial days, look for a fight if the new plan isn't nailed down fairly tightly before-hand. Time is definitely a factor in this one.

Committee chairs can wield immense power over whether legislation advances to debate before the full Legislature. The Governor and party agendas and even committee membership can paint the fate of a bill. There's a reason the governor has chosen to throw his own money at some candidates. We just act like we can't see the strings.

Preserving the nonpartisan composition of the Nebraska Legislature is crucial through all this. Public access to the Legislature and the process - unprecedented in any other state, is of high importance.

It's encouraging to see some creative thinking in this area. Let's hope that there is also some positive action and the whole exercise is more than just re-arranging the deck chairs on the Titanic.

Governor's Update

Building, growing Nebraska's brand internationally

Trade has been front of mind for Nebraskans and Americans across the country over the last couple of years. President Trump has put a new focus on getting the best trade deals for our country, and has succeeded in securing new agreements with Canada, Mexico, and South Korea. His administration is also holding bilateral trade talks with the European Union, Japan, and the United Kingdom.

For Nebraska, international markets have created major opportunities for our top industries, agriculture and manufacturing, for many years. With over 95 percent of the world's population beyond America's borders, there are endless opportunities to promote the quality products we are producing. From jobs at Hendrix Genetics in Grand Island, Kawasaki in Lincoln, and Novozymes in Blair to the beef we export to China and partnerships with higher education, Nebraska is building a strong global presence, which is helping to grow opportunities for farm families and working Nebraskans.

To expand trade opportunities, I have led missions to Mexico, Canada, Japan twice, China twice, and the European Union. These missions have resulted in new investments in Nebraska and have been followed by expanded exports to key markets. We are taking this momentum and building on it. This year, I worked with my Council for International Relations to release a strategic plan for growing trade. Right now, my team is working on preparing trade missions for the coming year. Here are a few of our critical markets we are focused on and some of the successes we have seen.

Mexico & Canada: Our neighbors to the north and south are Nebraska's top two trade partners. We ship over $1 billion in products to each of these countries annually. After our trade mission to Canada last year, Agriplastics, a Canadian company, created jobs with a new facility in Sidney. One of President Trump's top promises was to replace the North American Free Trade Agreement, and he announced a new agreement in September, which is called the U.S.-Mexico-Canada Agreement. That agreement was recently signed by the three countries and is now awaiting congressional approval before it is finalized.

Japan: Japan is Nebraska's largest direct international investor and second largest export market outside of North America. Nebraska's oldest Japanese investment, Kawasaki, employs over 2,000 people in Lincoln. With two trade missions in the last two years, our beef exports to the country have increased 46 percent year-over-year and our pork exports 26 percent. This year, Nebraska had the honor of hosting the 50th Annual U.S. Midwest-Japan Association Conference, which allowed us to show off the Good Life to hundreds of Japanese business representatives and government officials involved in trade and investment.

China: As the second largest economy in the world, China is a very large market with many opportunities for Nebraska's ag producers. It is an important market for Nebraska's soybeans, beef, hides and skins, and sorghum. Following our trade mission to China in 2016, President Trump successfully worked to reopen China's market to beef. The state has also established a model farm in China to help our agriculture equipment manufacturers market their products.

South Korea: South Korea is an important market for Nebraska. South Korea is a major consumer of Nebraska beef, corn, and hides and skins. That is part of the reason why both the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Economic Development have traveled there in 2018. In September, President Trump announced a new deal with South Korea, which we believe will support further growth in trade between Nebraska and South Korea.

European Union (EU) & the United Kingdom: The EU is home to over 500 million people and has strong demand for our beef and soybeans. Right now, the Trump Administration is in trade negotiations with the EU. Moreover, with Brexit happening in just a few months, we look for this to be an opportunity for the United States to strike a new bilateral trade deal with the United Kingdom (UK). Nebraska has already had some success with promoting beef in the UK, and we would like to see a deal that allows us to sell more of our quality ag products to Great Britain.

These are just a few of the key markets for Nebraska in the coming years. In addition to the trade missions I lead, we have a team of trade representatives who are working in my agencies and are traveling internationally to promote Nebraska on a regular basis. If you see an opportunity to promote Nebraska internationally, we want to work with you to gain access to new export markets and figure out how to promote Nebraska products overseas. For more information, please email me at pete.ricketts@nebraska.gov or call (402) 471-2244.

New beginnings for 4-H in 2019 School Lunches

If you know anything about 4-H and its wonderful possibilities, you will hopefully be interested in looking into 4-H as an activity for your children.

We have just finished up our 4-H year this fall. Many clubs are starting to organize and get their planning in place for the 2019 year. It might also be a time to start new clubs.

Here is some interesting information on starting a 4-H club and some vital background information as to why 4-H is such a wonderful organization for your children. Call the Nebraska Extension office in your county to learn how you can get your family involved.

Mastery, independence, belonging and generosity. These are the parts that make up the 4-H essential elements to create a positive environment for all youth in the 4-H program. The combination of these promote youth development and empower members to contribute positive impacts to their club, their community, their country and their world!

4-H club meetings have been a primary method of delivery for

Senior Center Congregate Meal Menu

Meals served daily at noon. For reservations, call 375-1460. Each meal served with water, 2% milk, skim milk and coffee. All menus subject to change.

Tuesday: Tater tot casserole, seven layer salad, mandarin oranges in gelatin, banana muffin.

Wednesday: Sliced roast beef, mashed potatoes & gravy, corn, dinner roll, strawberries, bananas.

4-H members and their families since the foundation of the program. Meetings are structured encounters that serve as an effective means for delivering positive youth learning opportunities. They help guide youth to reach their full potential, while being involved and engaged. Participation in numerous related 4-H events have shown to increase participation, rather than just a single event.

4-H Club meetings almost always have opportunities for club members to learn new things. They also create the perfect environment for active participation and a safe place for youth to meet new friends and share their ideas and opinions. Meetings are perfect avenues to put youth in charge, giving them leadership roles as officers and committee members which in turns provides the members a sense of ownership to their 4-H club. As a leader, you are there to help guide youth, while also providing a safe and caring adult figure who helps form the successful leaders of tomorrow.

Whether you offer a face-to-face meeting or a virtual meeting they are all vital in building your club and the membership. Don't just meet to meet, think about the purpose of your gathering. Meetings need to have an agenda to keep the group on task as well as a time limit so that families know what they are to expect when getting involved. Meetings should offer an opportunity for youth to all get involved. Try "Getting to know you" activities or group building tasks.

There are many other extra-curricular activities at schools, church and other organizations that families must prioritize their activities in which they participate. 4-H meetings must offer true, valuable experiences for members in order for 4-H to retain its position as vital and meaningful in the lives of young people.

Nebraska 4-H requires club membership to have a least five youth members from three different clubs, an adult leader who has passed the volunteer screening and must meet at least six times throughout the year. These meetings focus on 4-H programming, educational experience, community service and so much more!

WHAT TO DO IF YOU GET THE FLU

I'm guessing that the flu isn't on your top-10 wish list, right? But in case you get sick this flu season, here's a list of 10 things you can do to help ease your symptoms—and to stop the flu in its tracks and protect others.

1. Stock up. A few supplies may make it a bit easier to manage the flu. It's best to have these on hand before you get sick. Otherwise, send a healthy member of your family out on an errand, if you can.

- Acetaminophen, ibuprofen, or naproxen for reducing fevers and easing aches
- A thermometer
- Cough syrup or cough drops
- Saline nose drops or sprays
- Drinks such as fruit juices or tea (avoid caffeine)
- Easy-to-eat foods such as clear soups, crackers, or applesauce^{1,2}

2. Stay home! The first day you have symptoms, you may be tempted to venture out to work or school. Please don't! Not only do you need the rest, but this is also when you're most contagious.¹ Try to nap—and read or binge-watch your favorite television episodes.

3. Prevent the spread. In addition to staying home, wash your hands often and cover your cough and sneeze into your sleeve.²

4. Drink fluids, breathe steam. This is a great way to thin your mucus, making it easier to cough up. This may help prevent a lung infection. Using a humidifier (a cool mist) or breathing in steam from a hot shower may also help ease congestion.¹

5. Calm your cough. It can be exhausting, I know. Try over-the-counter (OTC) cough medicines—an expectorant helps thin mucus. Do not give a child under age 4 any type of cough medicine. Sucking on lozenges may also help your cough or scratchy throat.¹

6. Ease nose woes. You—or your kids—can try saline nose drops or sprays to ease nasal congestion. First, put a few drops into one nostril. Then gently blow the mucus and saline out. Repeat on the other side.¹

7. Treat other symptoms. Sure, a fever—along with chills and aches—is a sign your body is fighting off the virus. But that doesn't mean you need to suffer in silence. Ask me if you have any questions about which fever reducer to take. But don't forget: Never give aspirin to someone younger than 19—it can lead to a serious illness.¹

8. Ask about antivirals. Your health care provider may advise you to take one. If you do this within 48 hours of when symptoms begin, you have a fighting chance of reducing their impact.^{1,2}

9. Know when to seek medical help. If you or a loved one has any of these symptoms, call the doctor: •Dark urine; •Dizziness; •Fever of 100 degrees F for 3 or more days; •Returning fever or sore throat after feeling better

More serious symptoms require immediate medical care:

- Wheezing or shortness of breath; •Coughing up blood; •Chest pain or pressure; •Balance problems or confusion²

10. Talk to me! And of course it goes without saying: If you need guidance about any products—or any questions whatsoever—let me know, and I'll try to steer you in the right direction

Nothing herein constitutes medical advice, diagnosis or treatment, or is a substitute for professional advice. You should always seek the advice of your physician or other medical professional if you have questions or concerns about a medical condition.

Spirit of Christmas is in God's blessings

It's that time of the year when, it seems, one is either in the Christmas Spirit or not. Some people are joyfully putting up their Christmas trees, decorating their porches and windows and planning cookie baking and shopping days and the rest of us are walking by the Christmas isles in stores snorting, shrugging or muttering "already?" under our breath. A friend, one of those joyful people, often tells me that I have, what she calls, "seasonal affected disorderliness." I think she has a point.

It often takes me awhile to get into the spirit of Christmas that everyone else is in and I used to wonder if this was peculiar just to me. However, a closer look at Scripture tells me that I'm not alone. Zechariah, father of John the Bap-

A Word In Faith

By Jeanne Madsen
Pastor, Our Savior Lutheran Church

tist, was certainly not in the spirit of Christmas when he doubted the message of the coming messiah that the Angel Gabriel brought to him. Zechariah got a good scolding and he was stricken mute for nine months. Joseph, fiance to Mary, when he learned she was pregnant was less than joyful at the news. It took another Angel to just get him on board. I don't want to say I know how he felt but I'd bet he didn't feel all that merry until after the child was born. I'm actually in good company with those Biblical models of faith.

What calms my heart this time of the year is that in the Gospels of Luke, Matthew and John and many passages of Isaiah and other prophets that foretell the Messiah's coming -- all of these invite us to be ever ready for the Savior's birth from whatever frame of heart and mind we may have. And, in our own way, Christmas sneaks up on me -- I sing a few carols and read the Advent stories and the Spirit of Christmas begins to come alive in the silence of early morning prayer.

And then what really does it for me is when I read from the book of John, chapter 1: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. All things came into being through him, and without him not one thing came into being. What has come into being in him was life, through him. And without him not one thing came into being that has come into being. In him was life; "and the life was the light of all people. The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not overcome it. And the Word became flesh, and lived among us, and we have seen his glory, the glory as of a Father's only Son, full of grace and truth..."

That beautiful story of Jesus, Son of God, Word of God, who has become flesh and lived among us is the story of how God has entered into our human lives and now knows all of the pain and sorrow and suffering and struggles that we humans go through. And in the midst of all of those human trials that we go through God not only experienced our pain God brought love and joy and truth and grace and the peace of God's heavenly kingdom to us.

After reading that what further gets me into the Christmas Spirit is seeing acts of kindness and people greeting each other warmly. The Spirit of Christmas is awakened in me when I hear of anonymous givers - whenever I hear of the God's Spirit moving someone to make another person's day better.

The Spirit of Christmas doesn't ignite in me by putting up decorations but rather by seeing God's blessings and kindness in the world and sharing our joy and love with others as God first shared with us. May the love and joy of God be with you, in whatever way it inspires you, in this season and always.

Lindberg recognized for service to First Presbyterian Church of Wayne

The congregation of the First Presbyterian Church honored retiring Clerk of Session, Judy Lindberg on Nov. 18.

Lindberg began as clerk in 1997 and has served as an elder and Clerk of the Session. Lindberg gave notice to the Session earlier this fall that she was going to retire from the position of clerk as she would be moving to the Kansas City area. On Nov. 18 Lindberg was recognized by the Session with the title of Clerk Emeritus, which was presented by Elder Kevin Peterson. A gift was presented to Lindberg from the Session by Elder Gail McCorkindale.

In addition to her roles as elder and Clerk of Session, Lindberg has been instrumental in the Presbyterian Women's (PW) organization and FPC Sewing Souls. Karen Johnson thanked Lindberg for her leadership and devotion to PW and Sewing Souls.

Pastor Teresa Bartlett said, "It was a bittersweet day as we thanked Judy for her years of faithful service as an elder and as Clerk of the Session. We will miss her greatly but wish her God's richest blessings in her new home and her retirement."

A card shower for Lindberg was also held in conjunction with the recognition of her service and departure.

Following worship, a reception was held in Judy's honor featuring cake prepared and decorated by Audrey Harder and served by members of the Session.

Women of agriculture shine at Northeast conference

A signature event sponsored each year by Northeast Community College has marked a milestone. Back in 2009, Corinne Morris, associate dean of agriculture, suggested to Bonnie Schultz, agriculture technology instructor, that the Ag Division develop a new initiative targeted toward farm wives and other women in agriculture. Schultz's eyes lit up with enthusiasm, "We should host our own women in ag conference," she said. Ten years later, the AG-ceptional Women's Conference is a strong as ever with approximately 400 women attending the 2018 edition of the event recently. Morris, who is now dean of agriculture, math and science at Northeast, said the committee and volunteers spend countless hours throughout the year planning and implementing all aspects of the conference. "This includes creating two video tributes which comprised this year of not only the AG-ceptional Woman of the Year presentation to Shana Beatie, of Sumner, but a "Where are They Now?" video of the past recipients of the award. The videos are professionally produced with Drew Dolezal, of Media Production Group, serving as the lead photographer and video editor. Morris works closely with Dolezal to produce the story line for the videos. Farm Credit Services of America has sponsored the production of the video for the AG-ceptional woman of the year for the past several years.

Factors affecting profitability is focus of GrowingOn 2019

Farm Credit Services of America (FCSAmerica) is hosting GrowingOn® meetings in Columbus, Grand Island, Lincoln, Norfolk, North Platte and Ord to help farmers plan for a new growing season. GrowingOn 2019 will focus on factors affecting profitability in the current economic cycle and strategies and tools producers can use to improve their business results. Steven Johnson, farm management specialist with Iowa State University Extension and Outreach, returns to GrowingOn with his outlook for the year ahead.

Johnson has looked at five farm operations served by FCSAmerica to glean insights into what strategies are working for producers in the face of today's slim margins. One factor that rose to the front is disciplined pre-harvest marketing. Attendees will also hear a global weather outlook from Eric Snodgrass of Agrible and a beef and swine outlook from Jim Robb from the Livestock Marketing Information Center. While attendance is free, pre-registration is required. Registration details can be found at GrowingOn.com or by calling 1-800-884-FARM. Farm Credit Services of America is proud to finance the growth of rural America, including the special needs of young and beginning producers. With nearly $29.2 billion in assets and $5.5 billion in members' equity, FCSAmerica is one of the region's leading providers of credit and insurance services to farmers, ranchers, agribusiness and rural residents in Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming. Working on getting the decorating done

The first bunch of cards went into the mail today; since one was going to the UK, I had to wait in line for a postal person. It was a fellow I've not seen before, with a nice smile, and a "how are you today?" as I approached his cubicle. "Well" I said, "it's cold, & messy out, and I'm out of groceries." That was not what he wanted to hear! And as I walked away after paying for the giant poinsettia on the card, he called, "hope you have a better day." I was kind of ashamed of myself. But I really am not enjoying this stuff. By stuff, I mean we have over four inches of snow on top of ice, our side streets are really slick. The sign on the church on North 70th always has cute sayings; right now, it says "too cold to change sign. Come inside for message."

By: Pat Meierhenry

Sounds good to me!
I was determined to get the decorating done by Wednesday, when I was expecting a friend. Alex, who is usually here for supper on Friday nights, carried the tree up from the store room and plugged in the lights. The ones on the top tier are burned out. Never fear, I had more lights, but they have a blue glow, instead of a yellow one. I did find some at the grocery store this eve; now, all I have to do is get them in place. And get the decorations from the basement and on the tree. I know one gal who simply left those on and threw a plastic cover over all and moved it into a closet. It was so cold that the key receptacle in the mail kiosk was frozen. But never fear, I trotted out there with the mini flame thrower that lights candles, and I had the mail. I think our generation will be the last to send Christmas cards, though. I've already had one by email. Plus, an invite to an anniversary celebration this month. Speaking of anniversaries, I just read that it was 200 years ago that Franz Gruber composed the song Silent Night. The overhead in the store was playing it this afternoon and I was singing along (silently)...a man pushing a cart whizzed by and said he was happy that someone besides him knew the words! I hate to burst his bubble, but I'm pretty sure that most of us know those words. I think it's one of the most beautiful Christmas hymns there is, and our Christmas Eve service always closes with it, as do most, I'm sure. Last year, there were no candles lit for it, though. I intend to speak to the choir director about that. You cannot sing Silent Night on Christmas Eve without candles, right? Okay, back to the decorating.

Alternative to pesticide applicator training: Confronting Cropping Challenges

Farmers in Northeast Nebraska, particularly those who have private pesticide applicator licenses that expires in 2019, will want to take advantage of a series of meetings in mid-December. Nebraska Extension staff will present Confronting Cropping Challenges that focus on the crop production challenges faced by farmers. Anyone is welcome to attend the first part of the program for the crops information. This will be followed by a short overview of pesticide applicator topics that will allow those attending to recertify their private pesticide applicator license. This is the third year we've presented these programs and past participants overwhelmingly prefer this format, with the majority of the program focusing on crops issues followed by a short overview of pesticide training information, compared to the traditional two and a half to three hours of pesticide training programming. This year, programs will be offered at the...

- Nielsen Community Center in West Point on Monday, Dec. 17 from 9:00 a.m. - noon;
- Community Center in Pender on Monday, Dec. 17 from 1 - 4 p.m.;
- Club Room at Ag Park in Columbus on Tuesday, Dec. 18 from

- 1 - 4 p.m.;
 - Nebraska Extension Office in Madison County at the new location (on the southeast corner of the junction of Highways 275 and 81) in Norfolk on Wednesday, Dec. 19 from 1 - 4 p.m., and
 - Public Library in Blair on Thursday, Dec. 20 from 1 - 4 p.m.
- Topics that will be covered at the 2018 Confronting Cropping Challenges include...
1. Crop Insect Update (Soybean Gall Midge, Western Bean Cutworm, and Decetes Stem Borer).
 2. Crop Disease Update (Gray Leaf Spot, Soybean Cyst Nematodes, Frogeye Leaf Spot, and Cercospora Purple Seed Stain and Blight).
 3. Hail Know Resources (things to know and places to go after a hail storm).
 4. Cover Crops 101 (an introduction to cover crops).
 5. Resistant Weed Update and Herbicide Carryover.
 6. Private Pesticide Applicator Recertification.
- Anyone who just wants the crops information can attend the first five sessions and leave. If you need to have your private pesticide applicator license renewed (recertification only, not initial certification) in 2019, you need to attend the final session to be recertified. Even though this training is being offered in 2018, you will not lose a year of certification on your license. The cost for the program is $10 if you only attend the first five sessions. If you need to be recertified, the cost will be $50. The additional $40 is the same fee you would pay to be recertified at a traditional private pesticide applicator training. Preregistration is appreciated but not required. To preregister for any of the sessions, please call the Nebraska Extension office in Burt County at (402) 374-2929. Confronting Cropping Challenges does not replace, but is an alternative to the traditional private pesticide applicator training sessions that will be held in early 2019. For more information on this program, contact your local Nebraska Extension office.

Minerva Club meets at Senior Center

Joyce Mitchell hosted 11 members of Minerva Club at the Senior Center Nov. 26. Members answered roll call by telling something they were thankful for. President Phyllis Rahn shared "What happened to Thanksgiving Day?" about relatives leaving Grandma's early to go shopping, to meet friends at the movies, to go hunting, etc. Among quotes read were: "I was married by a judge. I should have asked for a jury," by Groucho Marx and Victor Borge saying Santa Claus has the right idea...visit people only once a year. Historian Hollis Frese shared minutes from Nov. 4, 1946 when new members were welcomed. A bill of $5 was allowed for rent of Woman's Club Room. The program focused on WSC Hilites. Minutes of the Nov. 18 meeting of the same year shows a $2 donation given to the Girl Scouts, the constitution was read to benefit the newer members and program was a review of the book East River. The birthday song was sung for members, MaryAnn DeNeayer and Hollis Frese.

Utah, Nevada, Oregon, and Washington with Canada to the north. Boise is the capital and largest city. Idaho is 45 miles wide at the northern border and 316 miles from east to west at the southern border. It's a land of rivers (3100 miles-more than any other state), mountains, wilderness and agriculture. At the Oregon border the Snake River plunges into a gorge called Hell's Canyon, the deepest river gorge in North America, at 7,900 ft deep it's deeper than the Grand Canyon. Most of Idaho is a great sea of mountains. 63 percent of Idaho is public land managed by the federal government; rugged, unspoiled back country. The depression had hit Idaho hard but then a railroad executive chose a site near the old mining town of Ketchum and in the late 30s developed the luxury resort called Sun Valley. Ernest Hemmingway arrived in Sun Valley to work on his novel For Whom the Bell Tolls. He died and is buried in Ketchum.

Five of history's pioneer trails, including the Oregon Trail and the California Trail cross southern Idaho. Wagon ruts are still visible all along the rugged terrain. Idaho has many public and private hot springs. The statehouse in Boise and dozens of other buildings in the city are geothermally heated from underground springs. A blot on the history was the creation in 1942 of a relocation camp at Mindoka for Japanese Americans. In 1951 a power plant began producing electricity from atomic energy: the world's first nuclear power plant. The nearby town of Arco (in 1953) boasted in that it was the first city to be lit by nuclear power. Idaho's top industries are Manufacturing - mainly lumber, paper products and also food canneries; Agriculture - mostly potatoes, wheat and hops for the nine micro breweries; Mining accounts for the state being known as the Gem State - you can find 72 types of precious and semi-precious stones there; Fishing in the Hagerman Valley produces 85 percent of all commercial trout; Tourism finds visitors lured to the state by ski resorts, lush scenery and it's many outdoor activities. However, Idaho doesn't lack for cultural interests with ballet, symphony, operas, museums, and art galleries found in the Mormon Corridor, home of the state's colleges. Minerva Club members will gather Monday, Dec. 10 at Fauneil Bennett's home for a noon pot luck and gift exchange.

4R's of Manure Management

Many of us have heard of the 4Rs that has been laid out by The Fertilizer Institute and endorsed by a wide variety of players in agriculture such as the American Society of Agronomy, NRCSS, and the Ag Retailers Association. The 4Rs means using the right source, at the right rate, applied at the right time and in the right place. It's an excellent concept for maximizing the benefit of crop nutrients such as nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium, sulfur, zinc, and other nutrients while limiting any negative environmental impact. How does that apply to manure management? Well, really, it's no different. We need to know the nutrient (N, P, K, and more) value of our manure to make sure we know what the product consists of. We need to understand how nutrients cycle and what unique characteristics different manure sources have to understand application timing. We need to take that knowledge about our manure's characteristics to make good decisions about application rate. We need to place the manure appropriately in our fields to make the most of its nutrient value while limiting any chance of those nutrients reaching ground or surface waters. Let's talk a little bit more about product. A lot of different types of manure get grouped into the term manure. We say, "hey, this field has low fertility. I wish I could get some manure applied." It's like manure is some kind of magic fertilizer that will just fix everything in one application. Generally, that is not the case. Today I am looking at a couple of reports on my desk. One is liquid swine manure (product) with 59 lbs of nitrogen per 1,000 gallons of product that will be available for next year's crop if we inject it into the ground (placement) to keep the ammonia in it from volatilizing off. It also has 19lbs of phosphorus as P2O5 in that same 1,000 gallons. Let's say that low fertility field I am going to apply this on is going into corn following soybeans. The field is very low on phosphorus. I have grid sampled it, and the soil test values range from 4 to 25ppm but average only 8 ppm across the entire field. I want to apply this hog manure on it because I know manure will help with my low phosphorus. I figure I need about 170lbs of N to raise 200 bu corn following soybeans. To get there, I am going to apply 3,000 gallons of this manure/acre which will give me 177lbs/acre N. At that rate I will get 57 lbs of P2O5 (19x3) per acre. The problem with this plan is my 200 bu corn crop will take off around 75 lbs of P2O5 and the 55-bushel beans following it will take off another 45 lbs or so. I have actually lost ground. If I want to use this manure source and still address my low P soil, I will need to supplement this manure application with some P fertilizer like MAP or MESZ. If I tried to use this manure to meet my phosphorus needs I would end up significantly overapplying nitrogen which is not the correct thing to do for our environment. On the other hand, I also have a report on my desk for some beef feedlot manure. It has around 4 lbs of nitrogen per ton applied available for the first year crop and a total of 12.4 lbs of P2O5 per ton. Now if I apply 30 tons/acre of this product I don't meet my corn's N needs but will make a large dent in my low phosphorus fertility. I am applying 120 lbs of nitrogen but in this case two of the four pounds per ton available to my first-year crop is ammonium N which will volatilize if I do not get it incorporated right away. I am no-till dryland, so that is not an option. I can only take credit for two pounds per ton of nitrogen or 60 lbs total. I will need to purchase another 110 lbs of nitrogen as commercial fertilizer to supplement the manure. The good news is I am applying 372 lbs of P2O5. That will meet the crop removal from my next two crops (120 lbs P2O5) and leave me over 250 lbs P2O5 to build soil test levels on this low fertility field. That 250lbs P2O5 should raise soil test P by around 15 ppm moving my average P level from 8ppm to 23 ppm. That's what I wanted to accomplish on this field. Feedlot manure is the right product for this field. Since my soil test values vary from 4 ppm to 25ppm before I applied the manure, I would be smart to apply the manure using a VRT prescription to put higher rates in those low testing areas and lower rates in those higher testing areas. Central Valley Ag can help you accomplish this. To learn more about CVA and their partnership with Settle Agri-Services & Engineering, Inc., visit cvacoop.com
