City of Wayne out of water warning

Wednesday evening, the City of Wayne announced that the drinking water warning about high nitrate levels has officially been cancelled.

In the press release, Wayne mayor, Cale Giese offered a timeline of the water tests that led to a week-long drinking water warning.

--Nov. 12 - Regular testing was conducted at well sites. The tests included older wells, which the City knew would be high in nitrates. There is no way for the nitrate-high water to reach the water supply without being blended to a safe nitrate level.

--Nov. 26 - A second test, triggered by the failed Nov. 12 test, was taken at the well site. Giese cites a miscommunication leading the test to be taken at the well site, as the second test could have been taken at the point of entry, where the water would have been blended.

--Dec. 3 - The City received notice of the results of the second test scoring high nitrates.

--Dec. 4 - The City initiated the State of Nebraska-required water warning protocol. The City took an additional test at the point of entry and drove the sample to Lincoln. The lab results came back safe but the State had not officially approved the results.

--Dec. 6 - The State verbally confirmed the test results over the phone but told the City of Wayne that the warning could not be lifted.

--Dec. 10 - The City received notice via certified mail from the State, confirming the test results.

--Dec. 11 - The water warning was officially lifted.

"Once again, at no point in time was any water that was high in nitrates available to the public," Giese said. "Our water experts here at the City were frustrated by the miscommunication and the subsequent protocols that were initiated by the State, but we must remember that those protocols are in place to ensure the safety of our citizens - which is our number one priority."

Wayne area gives to those in need through Haven House program

While the holidays conjure warm, fuzzy feelings for most, that's not the case for everyone, especially some of the most vulnerable members of the community. For many years, Haven House has tried to take some of the stress out of the season with their Adopt-A-Family program.

Haven House is a domestic violence and sexual assault shelter with offices in Wayne and South Sioux City. Adopt-A-Family lines up volunteer donators with Haven House clients in need, according to Connie Reyes, Wayne County shelter manager.

"A lot of times, the clients that we're continuously working with don't have the funds (for gifts during the holiday season)," Reyes said. "They're either just starting out or they're just trying to make ends meet with only one income so we just try to alleviate that stress during the season."

For Haven House clients taking part in Adopt-A-Family, they anonymously make a list of wants and needs for themselves and members of their household, as well as listing clothing and shoe sizes. For clients that are experiencing big life changes, what becomes holiday wish lists can be eye opening, according to Haven House executive director Amy Munderloh.

"It's really humbling to see that most of their wants and needs are food and basic necessities," Munderloh said.

Over the last three years Denise Tello, bilingual advocate and Reyes have been spearheading the program. According to the pair the community has stepped up to ensure that Adopt-A-Family participants have something under the tree. This year, 27 families, including 70 children will receive something over the holiday season.

"The community support for the program has increased over the past three years," Tello said. "The first time we took over we had to call people to adopt and now we have people calling us."

After school program, accreditation visit on school board agenda

By Clara Osten
clara@wayneherald.com

The possibility of implementing an After School program to assist students who may be at risk in a variety of ways will be explored following discussion at Monday's meeting of the Wayne Community Schools Board of Education.

Elementary Principal Russ Plager told the board he would like permission to form a committee, made up of both school personnel and community members to determine who would be served by the program and how it would be implemented.

He noted that the changing demographics of the student population, especially at the elementary school, has resulted in more at-risk students who would benefit from such a program.

"This program would allow for expanded learning opportunities for our students and that is good for our kids," Plager said. He indicated the district would look for grants to assist with the costs associated with the program. Also discussed was the possibility of working with Wayne State College students and upper level high school students as part of the program.

Plager said there are a number of competitive grants available for this type of program, which the district could apply for to be used in the 2019-2020 school year.

Additional information will be shared with the board as it becomes available.

Superintendent Mark Lenihan gave the board information on the recent AdancED Accreditation team that visited the school. The external team visited the school Dec. 3-6 and "had a very good visit," according to Lenihan. He listed a number of board goals and accomplishments that the district shared with the team.

The district should receive a report from the visit in the next 30-90 days.

Melody Hill, Wayne High Guidance Counselor, presented information on the Class of 2018, including ACT scores and post-high school plans.

Hill said the district's ACT scores were "really close to the state average. Our district averages changed when the state began testing all the students as juniors." She did note that three students in the class of 2018, three entered the work force, two entered the military and 51 planned to attend post-secondary education. Thirteen of these chose a two year school and the remainder plan to further their education at a four-year college.

During the Facilities committee report, Superintendent Lenihan talked to the board about where the district is at in terms of work on the heating system at the elementary school, the restrooms at the high school and lighting in the buildings.

"We don't want to just rush into this project, but we need to get something done this summer," Lenihan told the board.

Discussion centered on which of the projects needed to be completed first and the time frame for getting the projects done during the time school is not in session.

In other action, recognition was given to the three board members who have completed their terms and will be going off the board.

Board members Dr. Carolyn Linster, Dr. Jeryl Nelson and Scott Hammer were recognized for their time on the board. They have a combined 40 years of service to the district.

Superintendent Lenihan thanked them for the work they have done, noting "it is more than just one meeting a month. The needs of our students are always foremost for these board members."

Dr. Linster, who served as Board President for several years, thanked all those she has worked with, including fellow board members, the administration and others in the school system.

Dr. Nelson said the district "has come a long way in the last 12 years, both with our finances and our facilities."

Hammer said the district "still has needs and they need to be addressed."

The Wayne Community Schools Board of Education will next meet in regular session on Monday, Jan. 14 at 5 p.m. in the junior-senior high school library.

Frosty mornings

Area residents woke Saturday morning to picture perfect scenery as the recent cold snap has been naturally decorating trees just in time for the holiday season.

and businesses have lined up to adopt a family this year, that currently, Haven House has more people willing to adopt a family than families in need of adopting.

Reyes and Tello said that Haven House began getting calls about Adopt-A-Family as early as October. Some area business have held drives for supplies for Haven House and some have decided to adopt families instead of having Christmas parties. The donations are good for both the adoptees and adoptors.

"It's fun to see, when the clients come in to pick up their gifts or when we drop them off, the look on their face like 'oh my gosh, this is so much,'" Reyes said.

"Even the people who adopt the families, the community members, when they drop off the presents they're just so excited about giving. It's nice to see both reactions," Tello added.

Though Adopt-A-Family was so successful that all of the participating families will have gifts, there are still ways to donate to Haven House.

"People can donate in other ways, whether that's gift cards for around town or personal hygiene items, cleaning supplies, things like that," Reyes said.

Other items needed include children's socks and undergarments, paper products, toothbrushes and pillows.

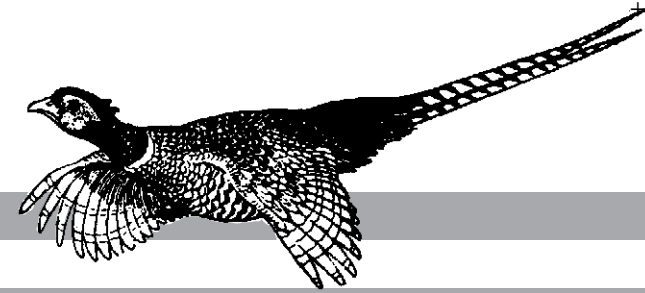

For those interested in participating in Adopt-A-Family next year, or those interested in donating at any time, contact Haven House at (402) 375-5433.

Northeast Arboretum receives Excellence Award

The Northeast Arboretum at the UNL - Haskell Ag Lab (HAL) received the Nebraska Statewide Arboretum's state-wide Affiliate Excellence Award at a reception Dec. 7 in Lincoln.

The award recognizes "excellence in collection development, maintenance practice and community engagement."

The Northeast Arboretum located on the grounds of the UNL Haskell Ag Lab two miles east of Concord dates to 1988 with the planting of hardy tree and shrub species that could be promoted for northeast Nebraska. With its farm-orientation, the arboretum showcases trees and shrubs for rural home landscapes and conservation tree and shrub plantings with agricultural uses.

The five main collections of the arboretum include nut trees with more than 30 different species (especially oaks and hickories); a shade tree collection with approximately 40 species; a living snow fence with 30 different types of trees and shrubs; a fruit tree orchard with various apples, pears, plums, cherries, peaches, apricots, and persimmons; and a seed-planted riparian forest & nut tree demonstration.

The Northeast Arboretum at HAL became an affiliated site with NSA in 1990 after Extension Home Economics instructor, Anna Marie White worked with area clubs to plant trees on Arbor Day to beautify the property around the Dixon County Extension office.

Since that time, the arboretum has been one of the most active and well-organized affiliate sites, despite the occasional restructuring and near-closings of the Ag Lab itself.

Steve Rasmussen, Nebraska Forest Service District Forester who is the current Northeast Arboretum curator and Del Hemsath (retired Extension Educator and curator from 2004 - 2009) along with Barbara Junck, Nebraska Extension in Dixon County have worked hard at outreach including the programming of meetings with guest speakers; annual Arbor Day celebrations; ReTree Nebraska participation; sponsoring visits to area arboretum sites; and organization of various workshops around such topics grafting, wreath making, pruning, tree planting, and tree ID.

The arboretum has also involved various 4-H, Eagle Scout, and Extension club projects.

"Being located on the University property and associated with Nebraska Extension has been a very good way of combining outreach and educational opportunities," Rasmussen said.

Many people have been involved in the success of the Northeast Arboretum over the years through memberships, participation in workshops and work days and financial support. The Northeast Arboretum is an excellent example of what can be done with a spirited mix of volunteers and dedicated staffers working together to make a difference for trees.

City snow plow procedures explained

During a recent meeting of the Wayne City Council, City Planner Joel Hansen presented information to the council on the city's procedures for moving snow and clearing the city streets following a snow storm.

At 4 a.m. crews begin clearing snow on the highways and downtown.

From there two trucks go to work on north-south streets while two more work on east-west streets. The streets are cleared working from the highways into the residential areas.

At the same time, pickups are working on parking lots and cul-de-sacs while a skid loader is used to clear public sidewalks and the trail.

During a normal snowfall, by 8 a.m., all streets have been cleared and sanding has already begun.

Residential alleys are cleared as needed.

The four large plow trucks are then used to haul snow from downtown.

Depending upon the amount of snow to be hauled, this may be completed the same day, along with hauling snow piles away from City parking lots.

"What is left after an eight-hour shift will wait until the next day except for the fact that we always try to remove snow from Main Street before we leave for the day since it is a State Highway," Hansen said.

Brookdale Wayne holds second annual tree decorating contest

Brookdale Wayne is asking residents and the public to help them pick the best decorated Christmas tree in the facility.

This is the second year Brookdale has held a tree decorating contest, open to individuals and organizations. This year, six groups took up the challenge of having the best tree in Brookdale — Wayne High's band, Wayne State College's Womens Basketball team, Providence Medical Center, Wayne Rotary Club, Our Savior Lutheran Church and St. Mary's Catholic Church.

The contest was designed to help spread the holiday cheer, according to director of sales and marketing, Kyla Miller.

"It's been a lot of fun for our residents," Miller said. "They like to see the creativity of all of the groups."

Each tree features something special, from WHS band's homemade sheet music ornaments to Rotary's unique tree topper.

Miller said she was happy that some organizations are repeat decorators, but there are also new groups participating in the contest.

Voting opened Dec. 3 and will run until Dec. 25. Those who visit Brookdale can grab a sheet with all of the tree locations and vote on ballots provided.

"The contest helps give the residents a connection to the community with people coming in, not just to decorate, but to vote too," Miller said.

The group with the most votes will win a special prize.

Brookdale is also offering the use of their fireplace for Christmas card photos on Wednesday, Dec. 19 starting at 1:30 for members of the public who still need a holiday photo.

For more information about the Christmas tree decorating contest or to participate next year, contact Brookdale at (402) 375-1500.

Connect the Dots: A Career Exploration Day held in Wayne

Nebraska Extension in Wayne County hosted the Connect the Dots: Career Exploration Day for 114 freshman students from Laurel-Concord-Coleridge, Randolph, Wakefield, Winside and Wisner-Pilger.

The event was held Dec. 5 at the Wayne National Guard Armory.

High School guidance counselors registered them for the event and also attended with their students.

Connect the Dots is an interactive career exploration simulation program that is designed to help ninth grade students learn more about careers of interest. It also allows them to explore options to "connect the dots" from ninth grade through postsecondary study to the workplace. Students were able to learn more about future careers by visiting with 16 different community individuals, who represented the 16 career cluster areas which are identified in the Nebraska Department of Education, Career Education Model.

In addition to being able to learn from the 16 career cluster areas, students were also able to learn from representatives from Northeast Community College, Wayne

State College, the Nebraska National Guard, and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. In 2018, a total of 26 Connect the Dots day-long programs were held throughout Nebraska. These programs involved 66 school districts and more than 550 community partners.

The program in Wayne was sponsored by the Nebraska National Guard in Wayne, Wayne Area Legacy Fund, Wayne County Commissioners, and Nebraska Extension in Wayne County.

8-1 Wildcats off to best start since 1969-70

You have to go back a long way to find as hot a start as the Wayne State men's basketball team is experiencing right now.

The 8-1 Wildcats' seven-game winning streak is the longest since the Greg McDermott-coached 1999-2000 team rolled off 15 in a row, and the team's start is the best since the 1969-70 squad that finished the season 23-6.

It was also the first time since the Wildcats joined the Northern Sun Conference that they were able to visit Upper Iowa and Winona State in the same weekend and come home unscathed after blowing out the Peacocks 83-56 on Friday and winning a wild 82-80 overtime thriller at Winona State on Saturday.

Friday's game in Fayette, Iowa was close early on, with three lead changes and four ties. The Wildcats took control of the game with a scoring surge at the midway point of the first half. A 12-4 Wildcat scoring run, culminated by a Kendall Jacks three-point play, gave the Wildcats their first double-digit lead of the game at 24-14 at the 9:39 mark of the first half.

Later in the half, the Wildcats scored seven straight points on a Trevin Joseph 3-pointer followed by a Jacks basket and two free throws by Joseph to lead 37-19 at the 4:05 mark before taking a 43-28 lead at intermission.

After shooting 57.6 percent (19-33) in the first half, the Wildcats continued their strong play and never allowed Upper Iowa a chance to get back into the contest.

The Wildcats put together a short highlight reel in the second half with two dunks as Trevin Joseph threw down the first slam following a Jacks steal. That was followed by another Jacks steal and breakaway dunk to put the Wildcats ahead 61-36 with 13:23 remaining and they were able to cruise to the easy win.

Kendall Jacks led the Wildcats in scoring with 21 points on 10 of 12 shooting from the field. Jacks moved past Brett Cain (1,228 pts from 2001-05) into 14th place in all-time scoring at Wayne State with 1,244 points.

Also scoring in double figures were Trevin Joseph with 16 points and Nick Ferrarini with 14. Chris Olson led Upper Iowa in scoring at 14 points followed by Munachiso Okonkwo and Jareese Williams with 12 and 11 points, respectively.

Wayne State won the rebounding battle over Upper Iowa 37-30 thanks to seven boards each from Jacks and Ben Dentlinger. Dentlinger was credited with four of Wayne State's eight blocked shots in the contest while Luke Ter-Hark and Jacks each had three assists while Nick Ferrarini had three steals.

On Saturday, Wayne State used an alley-oop inbounds pass and basket from Vance Janssen to Ben Dentlinger with 0.4 seconds left in regulation to send the game into overtime, then Janssen hit two free throws with 2.5 seconds remaining in overtime to give the Wildcats a thrilling 82-80 overtime win at Winona, Minn.

Winona State held a 16-14 lead just shy of the midway point of the first half, but Wayne State used a 10-0 run to take their biggest lead of the game at 24-16 following a Vance Janssen jumper at the 7:20 mark.

A Ferrarini 3-point play put the Wildcats ahead 27-20 with 4:50 to play, but Winona State produced 13 consecutive points over the next 3:17 to take a 33-27 lead. The Wildcats closed the half with six points in a row to tie the score at the half, 33-33.

After Winona State opened the second half with the first basket, Wayne State held the lead for the next 10 minutes until the host Warriors got red-hot from the 3-point line to take control of the game.

Wayne State held a 52-47 lead following a Dentlinger layup with 12:04 to play, but the Warriors canned four straight 3-pointers to highlight a scoring surge that gave Winona State a 68-60 lead with 6:13 to go. The Wildcats responded with an 11-0 run and took a 71-68 lead on a Vance Janssen jumper with 1:07 to play.

After two baskets by Winona State, Vance Janssen came up big again for Wayne State with a runner from the left of the lane giving the Wildcats a 73-72 lead with 7.5 seconds to play. On the ensuing inbounds pass, Winona State's Devin Whitelaw went coast-to-coast and made a layup and was fouled with 1.7 remaining, making the free throw for a Warrior lead of 75-73.

The Wildcats attempted an inbounds pass that was knocked out of bounds in Wayne State's front court with 0.4 seconds to play following a video review. Wayne State set up a play where Vance Janssen lobbed a pass from in front of the Wildcat bench back door to Dentlinger, who tipped the ball off the glass as the horn sounded to send the game into overtime tied at 75-75.

Winona State's Kevion Taylor opened the overtime with a trey giving the Warriors their only lead of the extra session at 78-75. A Ferrarini 3-pointer knotted the score followed by a Joseph layup that put Wayne State in front 80-78.

Taylor answered on the next possession with a jumper for Winona State to tie the score at 80-80 with 1:34 to play. Both teams missed shots on the following possessions and Wayne State had the ball with under 10 seconds to play when Janssen drove towards the basket and was fouled with 2.5 seconds left. He calmly stepped to the line and made both free throws to give Wayne State the lead. A Winona State inbounds pass was tipped at center court and time ran out as the Wildcats escaped with the win.

Vance Janssen paced Wayne State in scoring with a career-high 25 points, going 11-of-18 from the field. Jacks added 15 points, Joseph scored 14 with Jordan Janssen and Ferrarini also hitting double figures with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Wayne State held a slight 36-34 edge in rebounding with Vance Janssen grabbing six for the Wildcats. Joseph had three assists while Dentlinger finished with three of Wayne State's seven blocks.

The Wildcats (8-1, 3-0 NSIC) will be at home this weekend, hosting Bemidji State Saturday at 4:30 p.m. and Minnesota Crookston Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

Wayne girls go 1-2 in non-conference action

After getting the week off to a good start, the Wayne High girls basketball team struggled in a pair of non-conference battles.

On Tuesday, the Blue Devils lit up the nets for 12 3-pointers and cruised to a 72-43 home win over Logan View/Scribner-Snyder.

Ashton Boyer was on fire early, hitting five treys and scoring 17 of her game-high 22 points in the opening stanza to help Wayne to a 25-8 advantage that ballooned to 39-17 at intermission.

Gabi Meyer added 15 points, Rubie Klausen scored nine, Frankie Klausen and Sidney Biggerstaff each had seven, Sarah Greenwald scored six, Tori Kniesche had four and Annie Kniesche put in two.

Defensively, Biggerstaff and Tori Kniesche each had five rebounds, Allison Claussen had four blocked shots, three rebounds and three steals, Frankie Klausen had eight assists and five steals and Rubie Klausen grabbed four rebounds.

Friday's matchup with Wahoo was a tough one for the Blue Devil girls, as their offense was shut down by Wahoo in a 72-21 blowout.

The visiting Warriors built a 38-15 halftime advantage and continued to frustrate the Wayne offense, ending the game on a 31-0 run to produce the one-sided outcome.

Frankie Klausen had eight points for Wayne, Boyer, Kendall Dorey and Rubie Klausen each had three points and Meyer and Annie Kniesche each had two points.

Dorey and Biggerstaff each had four rebounds and Tori Kniesche added three. Rubie Klausen dished out three assists.

On Saturday, the Blue Devil offense picked things up, but it was not enough as they dropped a 70-54 road decision at Columbus Lakeview.

Boyer led the 2-3 Blue Devils with 20 points and Rubie Klausen added 10 points. Frankie Klausen put in eight points, Biggerstaff had six, Meyer had five, Dorey had three and Claussen put in two.

Biggerstaff had six rebounds and five assists, Tori Kniesche had five boards and five assists, Rubie Klausen grabbed five boards and Frankie Klausen dished three assists.

Wayne continues their four-game road trip next week with games at Wisner-Pilger on Friday, O'Neill on Saturday and Guardian Angels Central Catholic on Monday. They close out the pre-holiday schedule at home Friday, Dec. 21 against Lutheran High Northeast.

Wayne High wins dual on eighth criteria

The Wayne High wrestling team and Norfolk Catholic battled to a 36-36 deadlock that was decided with the eighth tie-breaking criteria Thursday at Wayne High School.

Both teams earned four wins by pins and two forfeits, so the tie-breaking procedure was used to determine a winner. The eighth criteria — most first points scored — gave the edge to Wayne, as they had five first-match takedowns to three for the Knights.

Winning matches for Wayne were Reece Jaqua (126), Cameron Muhs (132), Juan Vergara (145) and Dakota Spann (195). Harley Wheeler (170) and Mike Leatherdale (285) accepted forfeits.

The Blue Devils went 2-3 at the West Point-Beemer Duals on Saturday, as the Wayne team went with a smaller lineup due to injuries.

Jaqua won four matches on the day and Leatherdale picked up three wins. Cameron Muhs won a pair of matches and James Dorcey and Harley Wheeler also picked up wins.

Wayne will play host to the Blue Devil Invitational on Saturday at Wayne High School.

Wayne State women manage split in road matchups

The Wayne State women's basketball team continued to battle through injuries and managed a split in last week's road trip to Upper Iowa and Winona State.

Wayne State built a 20-point lead early in the third quarter, then held off a second-half comeback from Upper Iowa as the Wildcats defeated the Peacocks 68-60 Friday at Fayette, Iowa.

After Wayne State jumped out to a 9-4 lead at the 4:47 mark of the opening period, Upper Iowa scored the next six points to grab their final lead of the night at 10-9 with 3:22 left in the first quarter. The Wildcats closed the quarter with eight straight points — a Halley Busse 3-pointer and a layup and 3-pointer from Kylie Hammer — to take a 17-10 advantage after one quarter and never trailed again.

Wayne State used a 9-0 run early in the second quarter to take their first double-digit lead of the night following a Erin Norling basket and Busse 3-pointer to put the Wildcats in front 26-12 at the 6:31 mark of the second quarter. Wayne State continued to build on their advantage, closing the half with seven straight points to take a 37-19 lead at the break.

The host Peacocks came out strong in the third quarter, however, and did not allow the Wildcats to put the game away so easily.

After Wayne State took a pair of 20-point leads early in the third quarter, Upper Iowa battled back and got as close as eight at 48-40 at the 1:58 mark of the third before Wayne State rebuilt their lead to 12 going to the fourth quarter.

Wayne State pushed the lead to 57-43 on a Busse trey with 7:16 to play, but the Peacocks battled back and got as close as four in the final minute before a pair of Kylie Hammer free throws and a steal and layup from Norling in the final 30 seconds sealed the win.

Erin Norling led Wayne State in scoring with 19 points followed by Brittany Bongartz with 15 points and Halley Busse with 14. Samantha Domeyer poured in a game-high 23 points to lead Upper Iowa in scoring while Natalie Dinius also hit double digits with 12.

Wayne State held a 51-47 advantage in rebounding over the Peacocks thanks to nine boards from Norling and eight by Andrea Larson. Busse handed out six of Wayne State's 17 assists with Norling adding five. Bongartz was credited with three blocked shots while Taylor Reiner and Amelia Ivester each recorded two.

Wayne State could not come back from a 29-10 second quarter deficit as Winona State held on for a 61-56 win over the Wildcats Saturday in Winona, Minn.

The only lead of the game for the Wildcats came on the first points of the contest with a Bongartz layup. The Wildcats went cold the rest of the first quarter, going 2-of-16 from the floor as the Warriors built a 15-8 lead.

Winona State continued to pull away, leading by as many as 29-10 midway through the second, but the Wildcats went on a 12-0 run to cut the deficit to 29-22 at the half.

The Wildcats continued to hang tough in the second half, getting as close as 46-43 on an Larson 3-pointer with :30 to go in the third period. Winona State built the lead back up to seven, but Wayne State got as close as four on two occasions, the last coming with 5:01 to go on a Hammer layup to make it 52-48.

Winona State regained the seven-point advantage before Wayne State made one last stab, getting a three-point play from Hammer to make it 59-56 with :16 left before the Warriors iced the game with a pair of free throws.

Wayne State shot a season-low 32.8 percent from the floor and was led by Hammer with 13 points and seven rebounds. Norling added 12 points and Bongartz put in 11.

After two home losses, Blue Devils win on the road

After losing a pair of home matchups, the Wayne High boys basketball team bounced back to post a win at Columbus Lakeview.

On Tuesday, Wayne had a rough night shooting the ball, but were able to stage a late fourth-quarter comeback that fell one shot short in a 44-41 home loss to Logan View/Scribner-Snyder.

Both teams struggled to score in the early going. The game was scoreless until Tyrus Eischeid hit a free throw to break the ice, and Wayne led 3-0 before the Raiders scored three late in the period to tie the game.

The Raiders built an 11-point lead going to the fourth quarter, but Wayne was able to come back and get within three points with two seconds left. A missed free throw allowed for a half-court heave by Sweetland that just missed the mark, allowing the Raiders to leave with the win.

Sweetland led Wayne with 11 points, Eischeid added eight, Kallan Herman and Cody Rogers each had five, Marcus Fertig scored four, Aaron Reynolds and Josh Lutt each had three and Trevor DeBoer scored two.

Rogers and Eischeid both had nine rebounds for Wayne. Tyler Gilliland had three steals.

On Friday, the Blue Devils led Wahoo by six at the half, but the Warriors came from behind in the second half to come away with a 72-64 win.

The Blue Devils rode the hot shooting of Herman in the first half and led 39-33 at intermission, but the Warriors came back with a 21-11 third-quarter surge to turn the halftime deficit into a four-point advantage, building on that lead in the final period to claim the win.

Herman hit eight 3-pointers and finished with a career-high 26 points to lead the Blue Devils. DeBoer put in 12 points, Sweetland added nine, Fertig had five, Rogers had four and Eischeid and Lutt each had three.

Lutt had five rebounds and Eischeid added four to lead Wayne. Fertig dished out eight assists, Eischeid had four and Lutt had three.

On Saturday, Wayne had a good balanced effort and got a double-double from Eischeid to post a 55-47 win at Columbus Lakeview.

Eischeid had a career-high 20 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead the Blue Devils. Herman added 14 points, Sweetland had 13 and Fertig put in eight.

Sweetland added nine rebounds and a team-best five assists, DeBoer had four rebounds, Eischeid had five assists and Fertig had three.

Game and Parks suggests tips for safe ice-fishing

Stay safe on the ice this winter while enjoying a day of ice-fishing. Follow these tips from the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission for safety on the ice:

- The minimum ice thickness for supporting one person is at least 4 inches of clear, solid ice.
- Drill holes or use an ice chisel or spud bar to check the ice conditions while working your way out to your fishing spot.
- Wear a life jacket.
- Commercial or homemade ice picks should be worn around your neck in case you fall through and need something to grip the ice and pull yourself out.
- Fish with others in case trouble arises.
- Have a long rope with you so someone can rescue you if you break through the ice.
- Before heading out, tell a family member or friend where you will be fishing.
- Avoid alcoholic beverages. These affect your judgment and increase your chances for hypothermia.

Fishing permits can be purchased at OutdoorNebraska.org.

Northeast women fall to New Mexico Juco

The Northeast Community College women's basketball team had a tough time getting to the basket on Saturday, dropping an 83-46 contest to No. 7 New Mexico Junior College at the Iowa Western Classic in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Down by five points after the first quarter, the Hawks (6-6) managed to chip away at the Thunderbirds' lead early in the second quarter after a three-point play from Irene Sanz (Vilassar de Mar, Spain).

The second half was a different story as New Mexico Junior College allowed just 19 points in the third and fourth quarters combined to Northeast. The Thunderbirds would go on to shoot 53 percent from the field, compared 36 percent by the Hawks.

Sanz tallied 14 points, while Jade Blackburn (Surrey, England) chipped in 11 points.

The Hawks return home to square off with Midland University JV at 5 p.m. Thursday at the Cox Activities Center in Norfolk.

WSC students commit to service learning for Elkhorn Valley Museum

Wayne State College undergraduate and graduate business students completed a service-learning project for the Elkhorn Valley Museum and presented the museum with ideas for new activities to help expand community involvement.

Students learned more about the museum and agreed to partner with Elkhorn Valley Museum to help find new and creative ways to bring individuals to the museum's doors. Students brainstormed ideas on how to expand the museum's outreach on social media, incorporate a Día de los Muertos event, host a fun run, and offer invitations for various other activities the museum could host for the community to attend.

This Wayne State College service-learning project allowed students to show the skills they learned in class into a real-life situation while supporting a non-profit museum dedicated to preserving history for future generations.

The Elkhorn Valley Historical Society has been a part of the community of Norfolk for more than 60 years. Museum organizers continue to strive to preserve the history of the area for future generations. Built in 1997, the museum houses more than 10,000 artifacts and provides opportunities for children to make discoveries and to play through a hands-on approach in the midst of many of the areas.

The museum also features a bird library with hundreds of books relating to nature and a research center that allows people to revisit their roots and the area's incredible past. The museum hosts annual events such as a nostalgic independence picnic, a birthday party for the late famous comedian Johnny Carson, a History and Harvest Fest, and others.

For more information about Elkhorn Valley Museum, check out elkhornvalleymuseum.org or find them on Facebook at Elkhorn Valley Museum. ## Going to the movies

mikesportshome@yahoo.com

A couple of weeks back, the Darling Wife and I took the Grandgirls to the movie.

The Darling Wife knew the only way I would go to the movies in the theatre would have to involve something entertaining – meaning it had to be funny.

Lily, Sophia and I had watched enough advertisements for the new “Grinch” movie, we knew it was time to get Papa to the theatre.

We love the cartoon version of the tale and the Jim Carey version of the Grinch is in my recorded programs – which we will watch during this Christmas Season.

But the new Grinch got our attention, so we had to go.

And off we went. Have you been to a movie in the theatre lately?

My goodness, you can't just decide to go to the theatre anymore – at least not in the city.

We were in Omaha and wanted to hit an early afternoon showing because we all wanted to go home later in the afternoon.

So, I got myself ready, cosmetically anyway, and the Darling Wife and I set out from our daughter's house (Michala and Bryce) in Omaha to head to some Cine-Plex West Super Cinema Extravaganza. Whatever to meet our other daughter (Mikenzie) and the important people – Lily and Sophia.

I think the movie was set at 1:10 p.m. and we arrived at noon.

I thought perhaps we were meeting my little Sweeties for lunch, so I was a little excited.

Well, turns out, the Cine-Plex West Super Cinema Extravaganza Whatever, is in a shopping mall – I should have known.

We had to stop at four different stores to “checkout” the shopping bargains, according to the Darling Wife.

I mean really, this wonderful Lady has my mailman, Al, working overtime delivering packages from the cra...er things she purchases from QVC for crying out loud.

All of this at a bargain rate – I'm sure.

Al has threatened to take me off this route and require the United States Postal Service to give me (or the Darling Wife) her own mail person.

I have so much traffic at my house this time of year, they're considering making us pave the road in front of the house...OK that may be a bit of an embellishment.

But, good heavens, the other day Al dropped off five packages – a day later, UPS dropped off two and the lady delivered them from a personal vehicle – there was no “brown” around.

Back to the movie – I know, I know, it's about time.

I kept telling my wonderful Sweetheart as she shopped, we needed to get to the Cine-Plex West Super Cinema Extravaganza Whatever to get our tickets to the movie.

Come to find out, she already had the tickets and all she had to do was point her phone at this computer in the lobby and it printed the tickets out.

Well, it was like going to a football game, the ticket had a row and seat number on it.

You know how dark theatres are? Well, I had no idea where row 3, seat 17 was and there was no way to see the ticket once we got in there – thank goodness Lily was in seat 18 – she showed me to my seat.

Insult to injury, seat 17 was part of a couch, row three or row 28 – I was sitting on a couch.

This was quickly turning into stress.

After Lily showed me where to sit where we were to share our $19 “endless” pop and popcorn, she sat down and pushed a button beside her arm of the couch.

It turned into a recliner.

After asking how she did that, Lily reached over and pushed the button by the arm of the couch – my goodness, all I needed was a blanket and a pillow and I could have taken an $84 nap – but I was there to watch a movie?

And I figured the entire experience out with the help of a kindergarten?

Thank goodness, I didn't have a pillow and a blanket, I got to laugh through the entire movie with Lily and Sophia by my side – it was priceless.

Well, technically, it had a pretty hefty price, but I'll gladly pay it the next time Lily and Sophia want to watch a movie with Papa.

Ballot issue may be proposed as redistricting fix

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

As if they won't have enough on their plates when they convene next month, lawmakers will have to address a redistricting plan that must be in place before the 2021 Census. They'll have to find a veto-proof way to avoid partisan bickering and the inevitable gerrymandering that usually accompany such work.

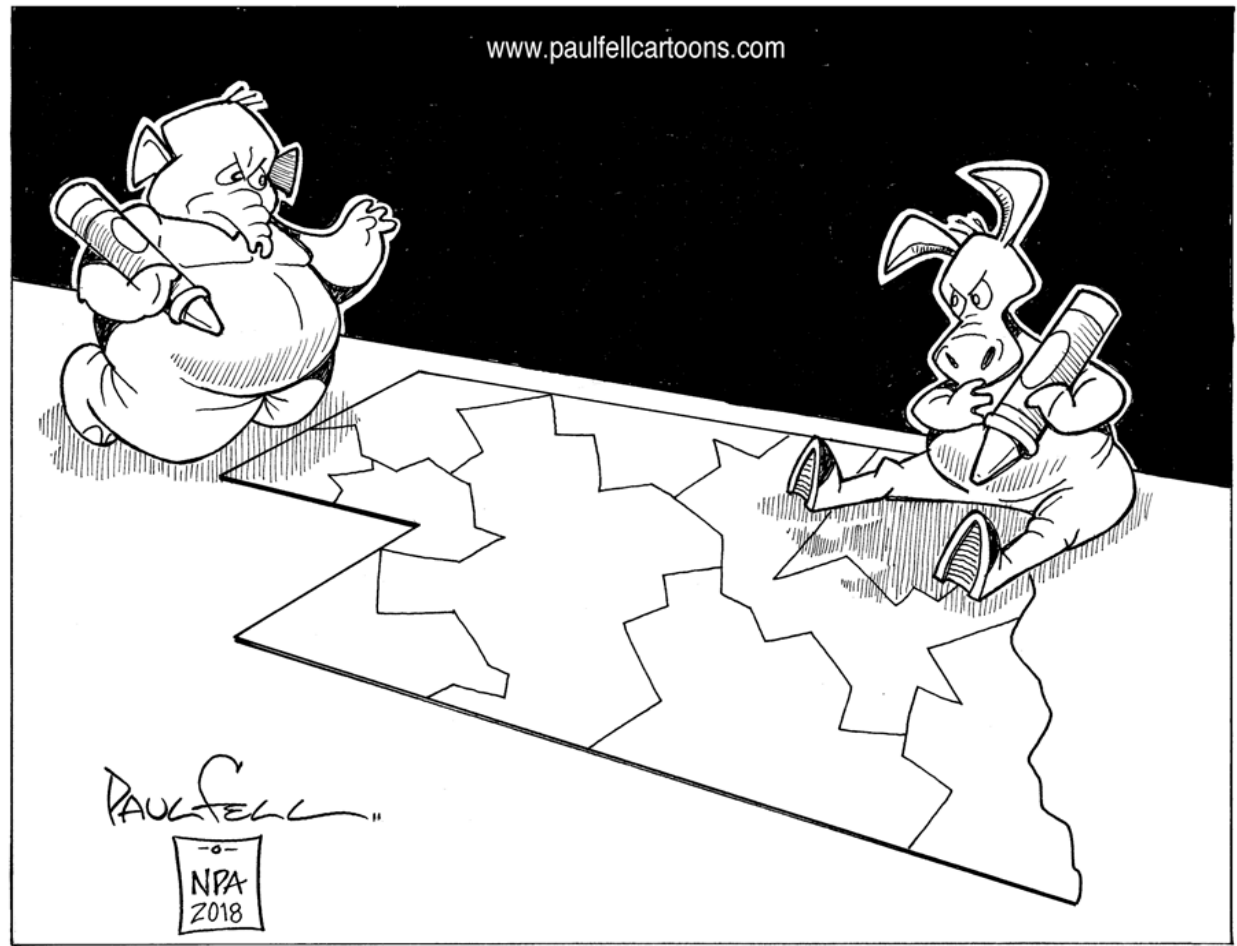

Given the difficulty of the process and the known gubernatorial resistance to a citizen's commission, there is talk of placing the issue on the 2020 ballot. Several states have already done that successfully. A recent challenge to redistricting in Wisconsin was sent back to the lower courts by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Gerrymandering is the manipulation of political boundaries to favor one party or candidate. It happened in Nebraska in 1991 in an upheaval that negated the election in one district, wound up in court and still resulted in a loss for the alleged perpetrator who was chairman of the Legislature's Government and Military Affairs Committee and had hoped to ensure his re-election.

In 1991, the Legislature passed a bill that, among other things, divided Madison County between two legislative districts, each of which incorporates portions of other counties, as well. Madison County citizens challenged the constitutionality of the plan as it pertains to their county, arguing that the Nebraska Constitution requires the Legislature to follow county lines when a county has sufficient population to constitute a single legislative district. The state Supreme Court agreed and forced a special session in August 1992 to correct the situation.

Still, gerrymandering persists nationally as a way to pack as many supportive voters together in one district, while diluting the political power of voters who are enrolled in a different political party. Political party mapmakers choose their voters, instead of voters choosing their elected officials.

New district lines are drawn at least every ten years in response to population changes identified in the U.S. Census. The changes in the population require a reapportionment of the 435 members of the U.S. House of Representatives. In addition, state lawmakers must redistrict legislative political boundaries within the state to reflect population changes.

Back in 2016, Nebraska lawmakers passed a plan that was the result of a bi-partisan effort between Omaha Democrat Heath Mello and Gretna Republican John Murante. Governor Pete Ricketts vetoed the measure saying a proposed new citizens commission would be “highly likely to be (composed of) party insiders who know how to draw districts to favor their friends and political allies,” opening the process to “political cronyism.”

The commission would be composed of five members of the party that won the most recent gubernatorial election and four members of the other party. Read that five Republicans and four Democrats in a state where the officially nonpartisan Legislature has 30 Republicans and 18 Democrats and every constitutional state office is run by a Republican.

Under the vetoed measure, redistricting plans recommended by the commission would be aired at public hearings throughout the state before being submitted to the Legislature for approval or disapproval.

So, what's going to change? There's talk of a possible initiative petition drive to place the matter on the 2020 ballot. Such a proposal would attempt to distance political parties and elected officials from the process of drawing the maps that will reshape those districts by handing that assignment to a citizens' commission.

Similar proposals designed to combat partisan gerrymandering and incumbent protection efforts recently won overwhelming approval in a number of states, including Michigan, Colorado, Utah and Ohio.

State Sen. Adam Morfeld of Lincoln, a proponent of the recently voter-approved ballot measure to expand Medicaid coverage, said he thinks people are ready on the tough, fundamental issues to consider needed reforms, realizing that elected officials aren't getting the job done.

If a redistricting initiative is placed on the 2020 ballot and approved by Nebraska voters, it would mark the third time in six years that voters stepped in to take action when the Legislature failed. In addition to the expansion of Medicaid, voters have also approved a ballot issue to hike the minimum wage. Both of those issues were discussed – Medicaid for seven years – by lawmakers without definitive action.

Let's hope the Legislature can take care of redistricting in a fair and equitable manner this time.

Legislative Update

Catching up with District 17

As Chair of the Business and Labor Committee, my staff and I spend much of the interim studying the need and effects of potential business and labor related legislation. The Business and Labor Committee held a hearing Nov. 27 on a Legislative Resolution I introduced: LR 383, Interim study to examine the feasibility of adopting a workers' compensation drug formulary. A drug formulary is a list of prescription drugs, sometimes adopted by health insurance companies, used by doctors to identify drugs that offer the greatest overall value for specified injuries or illnesses. We invited professionals in the drug formulary and health care industries to share their experiences and ideas on the benefits or downsides of introducing a drug formulary to worker's compensation related health care. It was a pleasure to hear from experts and share ideas with fellow senators on the topic.

On Dec. 4, the Nebraska Chamber of Commerce and Industry hosted the 2018 Chamber Economic Development Summit in Lincoln. State Senators and business leaders heard from Governor Pete Ricketts as he discussed the economic success of Nebraska over the last year and his plans for the future. David Drozd of the University of Nebraska Omaha and Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City VP and Omaha Branch Executive Nathan Kauffman gave attendees a snapshot of current Nebraska, regional, and national economic trends. Greater Omaha Chamber President David Brown and Department of Economic Development Director Dave Rippe gave a great review of the competitive economic advantage Nebraska provides businesses and University of Nebraska President Dr. Hank Bounds gave attendees an outlook of the University's role in the future of Nebraska's economy. Our state continues to make strides towards strong economic growth. Workforce and economic development will continue to be a focus of the Legislature in the upcoming 2019 session.

At the Chamber Economic Development Summit, the town of Pender was recognized for winning one of the 2018 Midwest Messenger Rural Communities of the Year awards. Pender was cho-

From December 5th-7th, I was invited to attend the Foundation for Government Accountability's Solution Summit in Florida. The FGA is a non-partisan, non-profit organization and think tank dedicated to implementing policy reform to improve the lives of Americans. The organization focuses on welfare, health care, and work reform. I met with legislators and policy analysts from across the country to discuss welfare reforms that have helped Americans to move off of government dependency and champion personal responsibility, pathways to bring more affordable health care and insurance to our state, and successful strategies to create economic opportunity to Nebraska.

Holiday eating tips offered

Food, food, everywhere you turn there's more food!

To avoid over-indulging, you'll need some proven tips to reduce the potential for the average holiday-season weight gain of five pounds.

For years, people have been told to drink lots of water before going to a holiday event, but honestly, that just doesn't work for most of us.

These updated tips can bring success as you face the holiday feasts in the weeks to come.

- Be realistic — don't focus on losing weight during the holidays. Focus on maintaining your current weight. You can get back on track with weight loss when the diet danger zones of November and December have passed. Also, don't let yourself justify binge eating during the holidays because you expect to restrict food after January 1. Plan in advance to eat a little more when you face holiday temptations. This way you can enjoy treats more often, and you'll be less likely to binge.

- Don't go to a holiday event hungry. It is not a good idea to starve yourself all day so that you can indulge at one meal. We just eat more and faster when we're hungry. You need to eat healthy throughout the day to keep glucose levels stable and to boost metabolism; this will work to reduce hunger for an evening event. Choose a high-protein snack before an event such as an apple with peanut butter, yogurt, unsalted almonds or walnuts, hard-boiled egg or nonfat mozzarella cheese.

- Watch your portions. Treat yourself to a nice drink, sweets or creamy dips without guilt, but keep portion sizes under control. This is a great way to sample different foods. Commit to the mantra "small plate, no piling."

- Survey party buffets before filling your plate. Decide what you're going to eat in advance, and make only one trip to the buffet. Make a small plate that is 1/2 vegetables, 1/4 lean meat and 1/4 starches.

- Avoid recreational eating. It takes about 30 minutes for the message that your stomach is full to get to your brain. During this time you can pile on the calories from "social eating" — food is there and everyone else is eating. Enjoy your choices and then wait at least 30 minutes before deciding if you would like a bit more.

- Make sure whatever you're offered is splurge-worthy. We all have some favorites that we look forward to during this time of year. Why waste calories on foods you can have anytime (chips, salted mixed nuts, dip, etc)? Try rating food options on a scale of 1 to 10 (10 is best) and have a bit more of the foods that are truly special and unique to the season.

- Make a conscious choice to limit high-fat items. If it's creamy, fried or cheese-filled, it's going to be loaded with calories. Commit to tasting portions. Low-fat, high-fiber foods allow you to eat a larger amount for fewer calories and not feel deprived.

- Use strong, intense mints or gum. These dull the taste buds and also trigger satiety messages to the brain. So use one when you arrive and use it again when you find yourself wanting to nibble.

- Maintain perspective. Overeating one day won't make or break your eating plan. It certainly won't make you gain weight. It takes days and days of overeating to gain weight. If you do overindulge, don't just give up. Plan to get back on track the next day. There are going to be a few bumps on the road to healthier eating and we have to acknowledge this to avoid guilt and despair ing event. Choose a high-protein snack before an event such as an apple with peanut butter, yogurt, unsalted almonds or walnuts, hard-boiled egg or nonfat mozzarella cheese.

• Watch your portions. Treat yourself to a nice drink, sweets or creamy dips without guilt, but keep portion sizes under control. This is a great way to sample different foods. Commit to the mantra "small plate, no piling."

Acme Club members share memories of cups, saucers

The Nov. 19 regular meeting of ACME Club commenced following lunch at the Senior Center with the Thought for the Day —

"Life isn't meant to be easy, it's meant to be lived. Sometimes good, other times rough. But with every up and down, you learn lessons that make you strong."

Bonnadell Koch called the meeting to order and Betty Witting presented the Thought for the Day, followed by the minutes of the previous meeting and financial report given by Virginia Backstrom.

Pennies were collected and roll call taken as each member told how Santa used to come to their house. Plans were made for the December meeting, including holiday giving plans for the club.

Following the meeting each member described the reasons for the cup and saucer that they brought to display, as well as the history behind each of them. Some very interesting stories were shared.

Power in four little words: 'it's not about me'

Can you imagine what it must have been like for Mary, when the angel Gabriel told her that she was going to be pregnant, even though she was a virgin and not yet married? This was a big deal. This was a different time, a different culture. To experience an unplanned, out-of-wedlock pregnancy would have been scandalous; in fact, it was considered to be a crime that could be punishable by death.

Joseph had every right to walk out on her, which, is what he planned on doing until an angel instructed him otherwise. And if her parents disowned her, which was quite possible, this already-poor teenager would have been destitute and forced to live a life of begging or prostitution just to earn enough to scrape by.

The faith of Mary is both inspiring and convicting. Think about it. Her reputation was on the line. Who in the world is going to believe her story? What are people going to think of her? Nobody would have given her the benefit of the doubt.

Not only that, but her relationships were at risk. Her relationship with Joseph, with her parents, with her friends who could have so easily shunned her. She could have been kicked out of her family, kicked out of her synagogue, kicked out of her village. This was a huge risk.

And that meant that her future was up in the air. She was like: "Man we had all these plans, but now what are we going to do? Where are we going to live?"

Mary and Joseph were dirt poor already, and now you throw a baby into the mix. And this baby was going to be the Son of God? Can you imagine trying to raise the Son of God? How do you teach the One who flung the stars into space how to throw a ball? It boggles the mind, doesn't it?

Yet Mary courageously said, "I am the Lord's servant; may it be to me as you have said" (Luke 1:38).

She made herself available to God even though it meant that her world would be turned upside down. How could she do that? Where did she find this kind of faith, this kind of courage to be used by God in this way?

I think the answer is found in four little words: It's not about me.

It's not about me. I think the only way that Mary could say, "May everything you have said come true"; the only way she could demonstrate this type of faith was to have this mindset that "it's not about me."

There is power in these four little words. And that's where God's blessing is found. In complete surrender. That's where joy is found, when you get to the place where you realize that it's not about you. When you understand that your career isn't just about you; and your marriage isn't just about you; and your parenting isn't just about you. It's not about you. It's about God. It's about making yourself available to God and saying, "Here I am, God. I'm your servant. Whatever you say, I will do, even if it means that my world gets turned upside down."

And it's this attitude that motivates our generosity. It's this attitude that motivates our compassion. It's this attitude that motivates the way we see other people. It's this attitude that enables us to be used by God. "It's not about me."

Farmers, ranchers adopt policy positions, elect leaders at Farm Bureau annual meeting and convention

Farmers and ranchers from across the state set Nebraska Farm Bureau (NEFB) policy positions for the coming year and elected four individuals to the organization's Board of Directors during the NEFB Annual Meeting and Convention held Dec. 2-4 in Kearney. NEFB is Nebraska's largest general farming organization, representing the interests of farmers and ranchers who produce virtually every agricultural commodity in Nebraska. "It's clear property taxes remain a top priority for our members. We spent considerable time discussing the importance of solving our state's property tax problem, but our delegates also covered a wide range of other policy issues that impact their operations," said Steve Nelson, Nebraska Farm Bureau president. Among the policy resolutions adopted was support for the continued availability and use of dicamba herbicide for use on dicamba tolerant crops. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) recently released new label directions for dicamba use in response to concerns about di-camba drift. Delegates also shared support for continued education efforts on proper dicamba application. Protections for farm and ranch operations were also addressed by the delegate body in calls for strengthening private property and nuisance laws for agriculture. The resolutions seek to ensure existing Nebraska farms and ranches would continue to have the flexibility to change their operations as needed into the future without loss of private property rights and nuisance protections.

NDA encourages producers, feed manufacturers to be mindful of mycotoxin levels in grain

The Nebraska Department of Agriculture (NDA) is encouraging producers and feed manufacturers to be mindful of mycotoxin levels in corn being fed to livestock this winter. Mycotoxins are naturally occurring mold fungi that affects corn. "Summer drought coupled with wet harvest conditions creates a high risk for mycotoxin's to grow," NDA director Steve Wellman, said. "Fortunately, we have not seen alarming concentrations of mycotoxins in Nebraska like our neighboring states, but it is important for producers to remain vigilant to help protect the safety and wellbeing of their livestock herds." NDA Animal and Plant Health inspectors collect corn samples at grain elevators across the state each year during harvest. The NDA laboratory tests the samples for mycotoxins, including Aflatoxin and Fumonisin, as part of a collaborative effort between NDA and the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). Test results showed no detectable levels of Aflatoxin, but did indicate an increased presence of Fumonisin in several of the samples. Livestock fed feedstuffs with a high enough concentration of Fumonisin can cause harm or even death. The most susceptible animals include horses, rabbits and swine. Cattle and poultry seem to have a higher tolerance for Fumonisin. The FDA has established safe feeding recommendations for grains containing significant levels of Fumonisin, those recommendations can be found here: <https://tinyurl.com/ybdj2z7l>.

Delegates also supported a resolution to prevent plant-based and lab-produced protein makers from using the word 'meat' or other 'meat' related terms from describing their products. With the lab-produced protein products entering the market, our members felt it was important to protect the significant financial investments made by farmers and ranchers over the years in programs to market and promote meat products from the traditional harvesting of livestock," said Nelson. Several resolutions were also advanced for consideration by delegates to the American Farm Bureau Federation's Annual Meeting and Convention in January. "With all the advancements in technology, our members want to make sure there is appropriate oversight for these technologies when applied in the agriculture marketplace. Our members adopted resolutions encouraging enhanced oversight of block trading should those types of market exchanges be found to be problematic in the future. Delegates also supported the use of blockchain technology provided it is beneficial to agriculture and trade relations," said Nelson. Delegates also called for the U.S. to join the Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for the Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP). The agreement would provide tremendous market access for Nebraska agriculture commodities into CPTPP member nations. In addition, delegates advanced resolutions urging the U.S. to work with its allied trade partners to pressure China to address unfair trade and business practices. Resolutions seeking flexibility in regulations governing the acquisition and use of antibiotics by farmers and ranchers to treat sick livestock also advanced. In addition to setting state and making national policy recommendations, delegates elected four individuals to the Nebraska Farm Bureau Board of Directors. Mark McHargue of Central City was re-elected to the position of Nebraska Farm Bureau first vice president. Dennis Beethe of Elk Creek was elected to represent the Southeast Region on the Nebraska Farm Bureau Board of Directors. Beethe will represent members from Cass, Dodge, Douglas, Gage, Johnson, Lancaster, Nemaha, Otoe, Pawnee, Richardson, Sarpy, Saunders, and Washington counties. Kevin Peterson of Osceola was elected to represent the Central Region on the Nebraska Farm Bureau Board of Directors. Peterson will represent members from Boone, Buffalo, Butler, Colfax, Greeley, Hall, Howard, Merrick, Nance, Platte, Polk, Sherman, and Valley counties. Lance Atwater of Ayr was elected to the Youth-At-Large position on the Nebraska Farm Bureau Board of Directors. The Youth-At-Large position is charged with representing the Nebraska Young Farmers and Ranchers Committee on the state board of directors. The Nebraska Farm Bureau is a grassroots, state-wide organization dedicated to supporting farm and ranch families and working for the benefit of all Nebraskans through a wide variety of educational, service and advocacy efforts. More than 61,000 families across Nebraska are Farm Bureau members, working together to achieve rural and urban prosperity as agriculture is a key fuel to Nebraska's economy. For more information about Nebraska Farm Bureau and agriculture, visit www.nefb.org.

The future of Ag

Area producers and those in agriculture related businesses took part in the annual Agriculture Outlook Seminar and Appreciation Lunch on Dec. 7. The event began with a presentation by the Wayne FFA students on parliamentary procedure. The students were able to take part in all of the days activities, including a visit to the Northeast Community College Precision Ag Demonstration trailer. Pictured are (front) Abby Ankeny, Faith Junck, Josie Thompson and Madison Jenkins. (back) Grace Lindsay, Terran Sievers, Mason Dorey and Allyson Claussen.

Former president's funeral brings back memories

The stars must have been perfectly aligned on Saturday; not only did the Nebraska volleyball team defeat Oregon in three sets to punch a ticket to the Final Four, but the men's basketball team beat Creighton for the first time in eight years, and the first in fifteen tries for Coach Miles! Almost as an afterthought, the sports announcer said that the girl's basketball team had also won... A trifecta!

We were transfixed, as many of you were, by the funeral proceedings for President George H.W. Bush. The service at the Washington Cathedral was impressive, especially because of the venue and also, because of the dignitaries attending. True, the former presidents and their wives did not say much and stared straight ahead after President Trump and his spouse arrived, but as one announcer put it, a perfect example of the peaceful transfer of power, no matter how much disappointment any of the campaigns may have caused.

The hymns by the Navy band were traditional: "Nearer My God to Thee" and "My Faith Looks Up to Thee." I had read that President Bush had told someone recently he did not fear death, as someone with faith does not have to fear death. Another pundit commented that when a couple has been together for a very long time, when one dies, the survivor often follows within the year. We have seen this over and over.

Then, the Navy violins and their choir did The Navy Hymn, my brother's song. Of course, it made me cry. And that's okay; tears are often a relief. I think it was fine that Bush the son, had tears as he finished his eulogy. Again, fitting and a relief.

I had worn pearls for Barbara, so I dug out my Santa socks for George. That's as wild as my socks get; nothing like those he wore. I thought again of the question of how we want to be remembered; attributes like integrity, honesty, gregarious and caring were banded about all day. He also obviously had a sense of humor and did not take himself too seriously.

I loved the story I read on the net about Christie's restaurant in Houston where the president had met with old friends for years before he was famous. He had ordered oyster stew and the waitress told him they did not have any. When she came back to the kitchen, the owners said they certainly did, and hurried to make some! Eventually, all the guys ordered oyster stew. Since that is a favorite of mine, I thought again at how exceptional President George H.W. Bush was.

There is a Christmas special on the tube, so time to wrap this one up. Hope you are enjoying the sunshine and having a blessed Advent.

Five things to do for your year-end tax planning

I'm going to confess right now, this past week was kind of a hectic week for me so I am going to pass along an article prepared by Tina Barrett, Executive Director of Nebraska Farm Business Inc., that appeared on the CropWatch website.

2018 was anything but a normal year. We saw tariffs, price declines, and a long, hard harvest for many farmers, as well as significant tax changes. These changes have led to uncertainty that you may not be able to control, but one thing you can do is be prepared for some year-end tax planning that will likely be different than what you are used to.

Here are five things you can do to make your tax planning go smoothly:

1. Actually do tax planning. Many times I find producers who believe that in low-income years, tax planning is not important. In reality, it is often more important. Avoiding losses takes on even more significance with the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act (TCJA), which was passed in December 2017. If we can find ways to generate income in order to avoid losses, such as rolling traditional IRAs to Roth IRAs and liquidating excess machinery, it could be in your best interest.
2. Bring your trade documents. In the past, we have not needed to worry about anything but the boot difference paid on a trade. However, another change from the TCJA is that we must "sell" the old asset for the trade-in value and put the new asset on the depreciation schedule with the full fair market value (FMV). This can generate significant taxable income, so you will want to make sure you have planned on the recognition of this sale. For many operations that trade equipment regularly, this could be hundreds of thousands of dollars in new gain you may not be used to.

John Wilson

3. Bring a split on the grain you sold to a cooperative versus a private grain company. One of the provisions of the new 199a deduction is a separate calculation for income from cooperatives. The impact to your deduction will vary depending on 1) your income level, 2) whether you pay wages, and 3) what percentage of your sales are made to a cooperative.
4. Review your records. I often see reports printed at 4 a.m. on the morning I meet with a producer and I know that the likelihood of information being "dumped" into the computer without another look is pretty good! No matter how current you stay on your bookwork, it's important to review the information you put in there. Look at the detailed reports and make sure the information makes sense and is accurate. For example, principle payments need to be separated from interest and the principle should not be included in your expenses. These types of errors can be costly if found after the first of the year. Mistakes are easy for anyone to make, but if you're running on just a few hours of sleep, they may be even more likely!

5. Compare your inventory change. One thing that we try to do to help guide where taxable income should be, is to review inventory change. This allows us to see if you are pushing significantly more income into the next year (or pulling more expenses from the next year into this year). If your inventory change is significant, consider moving up a tax bracket into to recognize more income.

Tax Strategy Adjustments May be Needed

Also consider that tax strategies of the past may no longer apply.

the past may no longer apply.

- For C corporations used to keeping taxable income at $50,000, the new flat tax has changed the plan entirely. The only real consideration is how much tax you want to pay. Whether you recognize the income this year or next year, it's going to cost you 21 percent.
- The new 199a deduction and lower tax brackets are allowing many producers to recognize more income for the same amount of tax as last year.
- The higher standard deduction has significantly reduced the number of people who will be itemizing deductions. You may want to consider giving grain to charitable organizations instead of cash.
- It may be a good time to reduce inventories and debt by recognizing more income. Utilizing the lower brackets and 20 percent "free" (199a deduction) may prove to lower your deferred tax liability in the future.
- A lot of focus has been placed on potentially changing entities and or fiscal years to fully utilize the 199a deduction. I would be cautious in making a major change to your business structure, especially if there is a significant cost associated with the change. The 199a deduction is currently only in law until 2025, so weigh the short-term benefits with the long-term consequences.

Most of these tax laws are not permanent, so taking advantage of them while they are here may be important. It will be imperative to spend more time with your tax advisor to discuss how these changes impact your own operation, as they vary greatly from one tax return to another.

Splitting Up Isn't That Hard To Do - Multiple N Applications

This fall, some growers from my area received notice from their local NRD that they will be subject to more stringent regulations on the timing and amount of Nitrogen that they can apply to their corn fields going forward. This is by no means the first instance of regulations coming to growers about their application of crop nutrients, and I seriously doubt that it will be the last. However, as I have spoken to both Ag producers and the general public in the past couple of weeks, I think that there is some serious misunderstanding about the how and why we find ourselves dealing with regulations such as this.

Before I get into the heart of this discussion, I want to make one thing clear for all of you that may be reading this that aren't a part of agriculture production. It is not now, nor has it ever been in the best interest of a farmer to over apply Nitrogen or any other fertilizer. Not only does it not pencil out and make budgets tighter than they need to be, but we often forget that farmers are stewards of the land. They live, work and eat within a few feet of their "offices" every day. Most farms today are part of a family operation and encompass multiple generations.

I think that there are many people outside of Agriculture that don't understand that all plant and animal material contains nitrogen. Nitrogen was a part of this ecosystem long before we started tilling the land. Nitrogen is a part of chlorophyll, amino acids, proteins, enzymes and nucleic acids (RNA and DNA). While there is a great amount of nitrogen in the earth's atmosphere, virtually no plants are able to use it directly. Instead, they primarily absorb nitrates (NO<sub>3</sub>-) from the soil throughout their roots.

I could go on a scientific explanation of Nitrogen cycles and when products are in what form for all the different sources of Nitrogen. But the fact of the matter is that we are subject to loose Nitrogen up into the atmosphere from volatilization or down into the ground as Nitrates. And that is where the regulations today are starting with, the Nitrates that have worked their way down to the aquifer and into our drinking water.

The reason that government bodies like the NRD are starting with regulations about when we apply Nitrogen to our crops, and how much we can apply at a time is a result of some linear thinking. Corn takes up roughly 75% of its Nitrogen needs after the V9 stage, or in most year's mid-June. That means if we have a 250 bu yield goal, we will take up about 170 lbs of Nitrogen after June 10th. If you look at some regulations that are out there right now that say no Nitrogen applications before March 15th, to me that can make some sense for certain soils.

Now, why do I say certain soils? There is an old rule in Agronomy that says you should put on no more than 10 pounds at a time for every 1 part Cation Exchange Capacity you have. So a CEC of 7 should not get more than 70 lbs applied at one time. This rule was built around a soils ability to safely hold onto Nitrate for a period of time.

After almost 20 years in Northern Nebraska, I decree myself as a sand farmer. I understand the challenges that come with growing a crop on a CEC of less than 12. And one of those is that split applications are a must. You just can't put 100 lbs of N on at a time and expect all 100 lbs of it to be there for your crop. You must feed the crop throughout the year to get the yields you desire. In essence, that is what these regulations are asking us to do throughout these Nitrogen Management areas. Feed the crop when it is going to use it to eliminate the risks of losing it. And research data from multiple sources will tell us that in season applications of Nitrogen will usually lead to a yield increase.

So over the coming weeks, I am going to focus on exposing you to some tools you may not be familiar with. Tools that help us determine the right rate of Nitrogen to apply like VR Nitrogen prescriptions and Adapt-N will make up part of the discussion. New tools for application of N on our planter will be another part. And of course, we will talk about the in-season application from toolbars, sprayers, and fertigation. By necessity, this will hit a bit closer to home for some than others, but it will also be a good walkthrough for all of us on ways we may be able to improve our Nitrogen use efficiency, get more bang for our buck out of our budgets, and help the environment.

Bids for a new articulated motor grader were received from Road Builders Machinery and Supply Co., Inc.; Murphy Tractor & Equipment Co.; and NMC, Inc. Burbach tabled action on the bids until the next meeting so he could research the machines.

A conference call with Berggren Architects and Kingery Construction Co. was held to discuss changes that could be made to the courthouse renovation project so the cost would not exceed two million dollars. The copper cladding on the oriel bays was not approved by the State Historic Preservation Office; it could be removed. Masonry cleaning of the brick was mostly cosmetic; it could be removed. The cost of windows needs to be verified; that bid was double the estimate.

The brick repointing bid was much higher than the project estimate, which was attributed to the method of tuck pointing required. A compromise would be to allow the use of power tools and premix mortar so there would be less labor. It was also noted that the mason bid the mortar at 90% replacement rather than 65%.

With the implementation of the above changes, it was estimated there would be around $250,000 available for repointing. The board was concerned that they still don't know how much work would be done. They requested to see the spec sheets with line item costs but could only get summaries. It was explained that the project would be value-engineered at two million dollars. Within the contract would be an allowance for the re-pointing of existing brick, focusing on the most critical areas first, and proceeding as far as the allowance permits. If the proposal was approved, the final numbers from the subcontractors could be locked down.

A motion was made by Larson to accept the Kingery Construction Co. December 4th proposal to enter into a contract that includes the use of pre-mixed lime mortar and the use of power mortar removal tools; deducts copper cladding on oriel bays and deducts masonry cleaning of brick; and doing as much tuck pointing as possible while capping the total project at $2,000,000. Burbach seconded the motion. Roll call vote: Larson, Burbach, Rabe - aye; motion carried. A contract will be drawn up and submitted for the board and the county attorney to review prior to the next meeting.

The following claims were approved on a motion by Burbach and second by Larson. Roll call vote: Burbach, Larson, Rabe - aye, motion carried.
