For the second straight year, the Lady Blue Devils took home the Great Northeast Nebraska Shootout championship spot. Wayne High outscored Hartington Cedar Catholic 69-50 in their final match of the tournament. It was also Lindsay McLaughlin's last Great Northeast Nebraska Shootout as head coach.

Reed and Heidi Allen welcomed baby boy Harrison Russ into their family. Harrison was the first baby born at Providence Medical Center in 2018.

Looking back at 2018

Though 2018 isn't quite over, we're taking a look back at a year with lots of change for Wayne, it's leaders, educators, businesses and citizens. In this edition of the Wayne Herald we'll be taking a look back at the first six months of 2018.

January 2018

January brought lots of success for Wayne athletics. First, Wayne High's Lady Blue Devils took home their second straight Great Northeast Nebraska Shootout championship title with a 69-50 win over Hartington Cedar Catholic. Then-coach, Lindsay McLaughlin, praised her team's hard work and chalked the championship up to their true team effort, with 10 players scoring in the championship game.

In other sports news, Wayne State College Rugby coach, Darrin Barner was named USA Rugby Male Coach of the Year. Barner received the honor at the annual National Rugby Summit in Denver, Colo. Barner is the man behind the WSC's rugby program and it's long-term success on both the men's and women's sides.

Just two days into January, the first baby of the new year joined the Wayne community. Harrison Russ Allen, was born at 4:36 p.m. Harrison has two brothers, also with presidential names, Carter and Lincoln. Mom and dad, Reed and Heidi Allen received a load of gifts donated by community members and businesses. Dr. Melissa Dobbins delivered Harrison, making it the fourth year in a row Dobbins delivered the first baby of the new year.

Winter Storm Jaxon ripped through the area at the end of the month, dumping up to 16 inches of snow. Clean up from Jaxon took quite some time with the 40 mph winds ripping through Northeast Nebraska, knocking out power in Wayne, Emerson, Wakefield, Carroll, Winside and Sholes.

The Wayne County Commissioners decided in January that it was time to get serious about restoring the courthouse that was built in 1899. The commissioners tasked Berggren Architects with finding the best, most cost-effective way to protect the exterior of the building.

The annual Chamber banquet changed formats this year. Instead of a formal, sit-down banquet the event was a Community Celebration with card games and "casino games" for entertainment and light food from all of Wayne's restaurants. Robert Ensz was named Citizen of the Year. Providence Medical Center's ambulance drivers were named Patrons of the Year, Rustic Treasures/The Coffee Shoppe/Thrifty Warehouse/1912 Emporium all, at the time, owned by Lukas Rix and Mark Kanitz earned Small Business of the Year, and Misty Bear was named Educator of the Year.

February 2018

A long-time Wayne business celebrated a big milestone at the beginning of February. Tacos & More turned 20. Sandra and Rick Gathje started the business 20 years earlier, having almost no food service experience. All those many years later, Gathje said Tacos & More sold over 1,600 tacos at the last $0.99 taco day. These days Tacos & More often plays host to various organizations for weekly meetings and has become one of Wayne's favorite restaurants.

Nancy Braden, the City of Wayne's finance director of 38 years was given a send off into retirement. Braden "officially" retired from her post in January, but stayed on to help train her replacement, Beth Porter.

Wayne Community Schools saw several personnel changes. During the school board meeting in February, the board accepted the resignations of Special Education teacher Stacy Johnson and director of maintenance, Travis Meyer, both with regrets. Johnson and her family moved to Palmyra. Meyer resigned to join Wayne's business community as co-owner of Select Appliance. Andi Diediker (fifth grade), Jesse Mayo (7-12 Special Education) and Lauren Gilliland (7-12 Math), were all hired as new Blue Devil faculty.

On Feb. 24, Wayne High's Speech team competed at the Mid-State Conference Speech Meet at Battle Creek. Since joining the conference in 2001, the Blue Devil speakers had never taken the top spot. In 2018, impressive performances from the whole team, and the seniors in particular, according to coach Dwaine Spieker, secured the crown for the team. Wayne outscored the runner-up team by 10 points.

Several area athletes medaled at NSAA State Wrestling. Two Winside wrestlers took home hardware. Koby Ellis at 113 pounds was a runner-up, and Jon Escalante at 220 pounds became Class D champion.

The She Devils Dance Team had an impressive performance at the NSAA State Cheer and Dance competition in February. The dance troop put in lots of time and effort throughout the season and walked away the C-1 High Kick Division runners-up.

March 2018

The Logan Valley Pheasants Forever chapter held their annual banquet on March 16. The Logan Creek chapter of Pheasants Forever has been involved in many habitat projects, including tree planting at the Thompson Barnes Wildlife Management Area northwest of Wayne. The banquet is a fundraiser for the group. During the event, there were several games, silent auction items to be bid on and raffle drawings. Careage Campus of Care in Wayne earned a 5-star rating from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid. Then-Careage administrator JR Moss said that while less than 20 percent of facilities hit the 5-star rating, Careage did so through its attention to providing the best care possible with its dedicated staff and well-kept facilities.

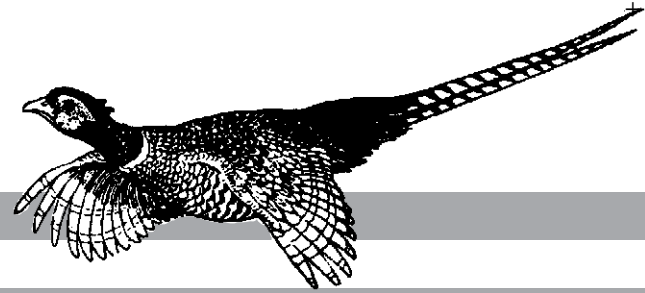

2018's weather was nothing if not unpredictable. Many area events had to scramble to keep up with severe weather and the 2018 Legislative Forum was one of them. Despite nasty winter weather, District 17 Senator Joni Albrecht, District 16 Senator Lydia Brasch, District 19 Senator and Speaker of the Unicameral Jim Sheer, District 22 Senator Paul Schumacher and District 22 Senator Mike Groene all ventured to Wayne State College to discuss the legislative landscape in 2018.

Also in March, WSC's men's rugby advanced to the National Small College Rugby Organization's semifinals in Pittsburgh, Penn. The Wildcats had to take on Texas University LeTourneau to advance. WSC defeated the Texas team 46-24 to punch their ticket to the semis.

Chippis appointed to community college association commission

Dr. Michael Chippis, president of Northeast Community College, has been appointed to a commission that will offer guidance on trends and issues impacting the nation's rural community colleges.

The work of the American Association of Community Colleges' (AACC) Commission on Small and Rural Colleges will highlight innovative practices in small and rural colleges that can serve as models for other institutions. The commission will also make suggestions to the association on ways that it may address the needs of the segment of this sector.

"Dr. Walter Bumphus, AACC president and the association's board of directors, see the value of the nation's rural community colleges," Chippis said. "I had the privilege as one of 15 college presidents who were able to meet with USDA research officials to discuss and better understand the conditions of rural America. This work is vitally important to the rural sector of this nation's economy."

The commission is one of 10 authorized by the AACC Board of Directors. Each commission consists of an average of 24 people from member institutions who are CEOs or administrators.

Holiday Daughter Dance boasts largest turnout ever

Wayne Elementary Boosters (WEB) hosted a "Tropical Night in the Rainforest" at the fifth annual Holiday Daughter Dance on Dec. 14 at Wayne Elementary School.

WEB had its highest turnout ever in five years with 325 dance tickets sold. The event raised $5,700 to support students and staff at school.

"That's very strong," WEB member Sandy Brown said. "It's our second highest amount raised in the last five years."

Over 90 businesses, parents, and teachers donated auction items, and over 40 parents (along with a few kids even) donated food or time to help. Brown said roughly $3,000 was generated by the auction, which is higher than usual.

PinMonkey Entertainment provided music, and during the event, there was a photo booth by Angie Rethwisch, candid photos by Shona Junck, and desserts including a chocolate fountain and "Jungle Juice" punch.

The dance had two special guests, high school freshmen, Tyler Reinhardt and Mason Frevert. The pair volunteered to escort two elementary students who otherwise would not have had a "date" for the evening.

Fourth grader Janelly Lucas was the lucky winner of the raffle for Husker football tickets against Northwestern next year.

WEB thanks everyone in the community who helped support this special night. The boys will have their chance to dance at the Valentine Son Dance on Friday, Feb. 8, 2019, along with their mothers and mother-figures.

Wayne Area Economic Development office to celebrate 'flourishing' Wayne at community celebration

Wayne Area Economic Development (WAED) will be celebrating another year at the annual banquet scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 27 at the Beaumont Event and Concert Hall.

Norfolk YMCA announces youth tourney

The Norfolk Family YMCA recently announced scheduling for the 33rd Annual NEN Youth Basketball Tournament.

The NEN Tournament in a one day event for both boys and girls basketball teams. Players in fourth through eighth grades are accepted.

A minimum of three games are guaranteed for all teams and all games will be played at facilities in Norfolk.

Registration is on a team basis, not individual players. A team may have 12 players on the roster. The tournament fee is $100 and must be paid for with one check by Wednesday, Jan. 23.

For further information contact Alesha Rosberg at the Norfolk Family YMCA by calling (402) 371-9770.

This year's theme is "Flourish in Wayne," a fitting moniker according to WAED marketing, events and tourism coordinator, Abby Schademann.

"The (special events) committee chose this theme because of the growth 2018 saw with the new businesses and all of the schools' enrollments being up and just to celebrate the fact that Wayne grew and flourished this year," Schademann said.

The annual banquet will be held in the event space at the Beaumont starting with a 4 p.m. social hour. At 5, a buffet dinner with plum-glazed pork tenderloin medallions, parmesan-crusted brussel sprouts and more will be served. This year, dessert will be a new experience as those in attendance will be encouraged to bid on their pick during a dessert auction.

"We were discussing different things to do at the banquet this year and I had seen something like that done before and the committee thought it would be something fun to do and thought the community would enjoy it," Schademann said. "All proceeds will go towards purchasing new American flags to line Highway 35." As always, the silent auction will be another feature of the annual banquet this year and the Chamber is taking donations. Proceeds from the auction will go towards Band Day Scholarships for Wayne State College students.

"If you or your business is interested in donating to either the silent auction or the dessert auction just get ahold of us in the (WAED) office," Schademann said.

Awards for Citizen of the Year, Educator of the Year and Business of the Year will also be given out at the banquet. Nominations for each of the honors are still being accepted by the Chamber until Friday, Dec. 28.

Tickets for the Flourish in Wayne annual banquet are $30 per person or $275 for a reserved table of eight. Included with the cost of a reserved table are eight drink tickets. Schademann said that tables are limited so she encourages those interested in attending to RSVP as soon as possible.

For tickets, contact the WAED office by calling (402) 375-2240 or stopping into the office at 108 W. 3rd St.

Wayne mayor, Ken Chamberlain announced he would be stepping down in April. After the announcement, the council presented Chamberlain with an award. Back row: Council, Matt Eischeid, Nick Muir, Jason Karsky, Cale Giese, Rod Greve and Jon Hasse. Front Row: Ken Chamberlain, interim mayor, Jill Brodersen and Jennifer Sievers.

Looking back

April 2018

April was a month of change, starting with a change in the mayor's office. At the first Wayne City Council meeting of the month, mayor Ken Chamberlain announced he was resigning from the position. Chamberlain told the council that he and his family were moving from Wayne in the summer and wanted to reign to be "fair to his family and the community." Councilmember Jill Brodersen was later named interim mayor. Nick Muir was then named to the council to fill Brodersen's temporarily vacated seat.

After 55 years in business, Darrell Doescher, owner and operator of Doescher Appliance, retired from business. Doescher sold the business to Kelby Herman and Travis Meyer, who honored him at this retirement party. Also retiring in April was State Nebraska Bank and Trust's Lorie Bebee. May 2018

The Wayne County Commissioners officially ok'd wind power to come to Wayne County. A road haul agreement between the County and NextEra Energy was struck, opening the door for the Sholes Wind Project. After environmental impact studies, surveying, planning and discussions, NextEra presented the Wayne County Commissioners, highway superintendent, county attorney and county clerk with draft site maps for the project. County officials wanted to be sure NextEra would not use roads or bridges unsuitable for the extremely heavy loads that would be hauled throughout the course of the project. Though there is no county zoning to prohibit wind farms, the Sholes project was the first approved.

Wayne County treasurer winner was Tammy Paustian, Amy Miller beat incumbent and fellow Republican Michael Pieper for Wayne County attorney position, while Terry Sievers earned his spot on the November ballot for District 1 Wayne County Commissioner.

Paasch signs to throw for Wayne State

Wayne State track and field coach Marlon Brink announced that Kendra Paasch of West Point-Beemer High School has signed a national letter of intent to attend Wayne State in the 2019-20 academic year and compete in women's track and field for the Wildcats.

Paasch is a 6-foot thrower who is a three-year starter in track and field and volleyball along with starting in basketball last season as a junior. Last spring, she placed in two events as a junior at the Class B State Track and Field Meet with a third place medal in the discus (131-10) and an eighth place medal in the shot put (39-3 3/4). Paasch was also the champion of the shot put and discus at the Northeast Nebraska Track and Field Classic. In 2017 as a sophomore, Paasch placed eighth in the Class B discus with a top mark of 121-8.

In volleyball this season, Paasch averaged 2.1 kills per set and had 33 blocks and was named All-State honorable mention while receiving Academic All-State honors.

"I believe Kendra will bring a lot of energy and passion to our throws squad," Brink said. "She has had some good success in high school and with the environment of having great teammates and an excellent throws coach in Coach Suckstorf I feel will help her reach her full potential."

"I am very excited for Kendra to join our group of throwers," said Wildcat throws coach Brett Suckstorf. "Kendra is a very good three-sport athlete as well as a very good student. I look forward to working with her to help her develop into a great thrower and add to the success of our program."

Nebraska 4-H program reaches one in three youth

In Nebraska, 4-H reaches one in three age-eligible youth in all 93 counties with the support of over 12,000 volunteers. These youth, ages 5-18, by Dec. 31, 2018, participate in 4-H through a variety of delivery modes, including clubs, camps, afterschool programs, school enrichment, and special interest programs.

Nebraska 4-H strives to enable all youth to develop strong personal mindsets and social skills necessary for successful futures. Youth engaged in Nebraska 4-H reported that 70 percent like learning new things, 65 percent set goals for themselves, 45 percent like helping others achieve their goal, and 65 percent are comfortable speaking in front of a group.

Nebraska 4-H also prepares youth to make well-informed decisions through career development and healthy living programs. Statewide, 1,200 youth participated in the Food Smart Families program. Eighty-seven percent agreed that they learned what makes up a balanced diet and 92 percent reported that they learned how to make healthier food. Connecting the Dots was delivered across Nebraska. Thirty-three percent of participants reported that the program helped them learn about colleges that will be a good fit for them. Sixty percent reported that they learned how to act professionally.

4-H youth are engaged in STEM (science, technology, engineering, and math) and agricultural literacy efforts that will enable them to lead these industries in the future. Youth and educators were engaged in single and multi-session programs across Nebraska which explored a wide variety of STEM content. Following participating in a program 66 percent of youth participants are interested in pursuing a future career in the STEM field.

Nebraska 4-H empowers youth's unique leadership skills and entrepreneurial spirits to ensure they make a lasting and positive contribution to their communities. This includes such things as the Wayne County Teen Supremes planning and teaching at our Clover Kid events throughout the year.

Check out more information about the Nebraska 4-H program at 4.unl.edu.

Intentions vs. resolutions as the new year begins

There's something so refreshing and exciting about January and the start of a new year; a chance to renew our commitments to what's working in our lives, and a chance to let go of what's not.

Resolutions don't always put us in the right frame of mind. A resolution feels somewhat like being judged, especially when I make a commitment and then fail to follow through. I can feel pretty bad and be very hard on myself when I fail.

When I think of the word intention, I think of it as a way of being, a way of life and living into the presence of what God intends. Intentions for me help me be more aware of my own purpose in life and how I can intentionally be of joy to others.

A Word In Faith
By Deb Hammer
PMA, St. Peter's Lutheran Church Pilger

If I intend to live the way God intends us all to live, and we all follow the greatest commandment, we would have lots of peace and joy in the world. John 15:10, "If you keep my commandments, you will abide in my love, just as I have kept my Father's commandments and abide in his love." So, instead of resolutions, I prefer to have intention. I've set an intention to feel more JOY in 2019! My intention is to be more mindful of the activities, people, and events around me. My intention is to cultivate a feeling of

JOY. That also includes being of service to others, and trying to bring them more JOY- whether I'm teaching a bible study class, making home visits, or helping at the food truck. I intend to bring joy to everyone I meet, whether at the grocery store, in the hospital, or just someone down and out that I meet on the street.

When I bring joy to others, I am filled with even more joy in return. There is no greater joy, than receiving the gift of joy from another. John 15:11-12, "I have said these things to you so that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be complete. This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you."

May you find your joy in all you do in the New Year! Amen.

Las Posadas celebration

Students and teachers in St. Mary's Catholic Church Religious Education took part in the annual Las Posadas journey and pinata celebration. The event focuses on Mary and Joseph's attempt to find lodging and being turned away at several homes. (The Spanish word "Posadas" means lodging or accommodations). The students also learned of the history behind the shape of the pinata and the significance of each point on the star. Following the procession, the students broke the pinata and were able to enjoy its contents.

(Contributed photo) UNL Extension educator F. John Hay guided Allen students as they designed and built small prototype wind turbines at an educational event about wind energy hosted by University of Nebraska-Lincoln and Enel Green Power North America, Inc.

Students take part in wind energy tour

Twelve students from the Allen Consolidated Schools participated in an educational event about wind energy provided by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and Enel Green Power North America, INC. on Dec. 12, through the Allen FFA program and advisor, Josh Batenhorst.

Energy is one of the top concerns for our nation today. Wind is a clean, renewable energy source. According to the U.S. Energy Information Administration, it's been growing at an average rate of 25 percent per year, making wind the fastest growing source of energy today. Nearly every one of our 50 states has locations that could be good for the development of wind power.

The students were able to complete the engineering design process to design, create, build, and test small prototype wind turbine blades led by F. John Hay, UNL Extension Educator (Biological Systems Engineering) from campus. They calculated the wind speeds and the efficiency of their wind turbine blades applying science and physics concepts.

Christopher Hardy, a representative from the Enelo Green Power North America, INC. shared information about the Rattlesnake Creek Wind Farm Project in Dixon County and possible career opportunities in the field of wind energy.

Health tips for farmers from UNMC

No one – including farmers – is immune from cardiovascular changes, weakened bones, slowed reflexes, memory loss, vision and hearing changes and more.

In the farming industry, staying healthy is a key to avoiding injury or death. As time takes its toll on a person's physical condition, paying attention to health and working in a safe manner become even more important.

In comparison to their younger counterparts, farmers advancing in age are more likely to experience events like tractor rollovers, contact with livestock, and slips, trips or falls.

"Falling from the steps of equipment is a very common injury among farmers who are 55 or older," Ellen Duysen, outreach specialist for the Central States Center for Agricultural Safety and Health based at the University of Nebraska Medical Center College of Public Health said.

When movements become difficult or painful, the risk of injury around farm equipment increases significantly. Reduced grip strength and decreased ability to tolerate heat and cold also put any aging person at risk, especially farmers.

Because brain function changes with age, farmers may find they struggle with depression more than they did in the early years of their career. Physical reflexes slow while distraction is more likely and coordination is less efficient.

"One of the most important things a farmer can do to protect their health is ensure that their health care provider knows about the work they're doing on the farm," Duysen said.

Well-informed health care providers may be able to manage medications to help avoid drowsiness or other major physical symptoms that could put an active farmer at high risk for injury.

"Balance can often be a problem for the entire aging population, but especially for farmers," Duysen said. "Maintaining immunizations such as tetanus is something we may overlook as we age, but it's very important to staying safe on the farm."

Duysen emphasized the need for farmers to have a clear and ongoing plan for accessing help in the event of some kind of accident that renders them unable to use a cell phone or walkie-talkie.

Since many farmers experience some kind of back injury or chronic pain by age 50, minimizing twisting and lifting activities reduces the risk of further injury.

"Make sure you know how to lift safely," Duysen said. "Take frequent breaks if you're doing a lot of lifting, and stay hydrated. Dehydration quickly leads to fatigue, which is a leading cause of injury on the farm."

Bones naturally shrink in size and density over time. Changes in our bones also can result in greater potential for fractures. At the same time, muscles, tendons and joints may lose strength and flexibility. Replacing worn or high steps on tractors and equipment can reduce the chance of falls and sprains.

There's nothing anyone can do to prevent changes to hearing that come with advancing age. But we can prevent further noise-induced hearing damage. Continuing to wear hearing protection – even if you have lost some hearing – is essential. Duysen reminded farmers to "save what you have left."

Duysen advised purchasing a pair of vented safety goggles to wear in windy or dusty conditions to reduce eye irritation.

The fat layer under our skin diminishes as we age, and we sweat less, making us more susceptible to heat stroke and heat exhaustion. Couple that with the fact that aging bodies become less efficient in regulating body temperature, and it's easy to see why high temperatures are dangerous for aging farmers.

Changing sleep patterns are another part of the aging process. Falling asleep and staying asleep may not be as easy.

She said reducing stress, eating a balanced diet, practicing good sleep habits, continuing to actively learn new things, and drinking ample water are all ways for farmers to help reduce aging effects and be at their best.

New minister is cause for celebration

Well, trust the Lutherans to do it up brown! After eighteen months without a head pastor, and just a temporary "interim", we installed a new minister this afternoon. I mean, I know Catholics like a lot of Pomp and Circumstance, and their vestments have ours beat by a mile, but it's hard not to look with awe at a parade of pastors in white robes and red stoles, as befitting the Season, and the fact that we were celebrating, also.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

Dec. 22? She must be a saint. We have a small brass choir, three trumpets and a baritone, but they really sounded good on a neat arrangement of "A Mighty Fortress." Then, the praise band and choir led us in "The Church's One Foundation" in a slightly swingy rhythm. But it sounded good, honest!

There is a chancel choir that sings at the early service on Sunday mornings, and they did the traditional cantata a week ago, but today, they were joined by our little Saturday evening group, plus anyone who felt the urge, I guess.

The song was a hymn commissioned for this church's 25th anniversary, so several who are no longer singing knew it and we had a total of 28 voices! As one tenor commented, "the trouble is, now, Pastor Miller is going to expect this every Sunday morning!" Ah, well.

After a sermon that assured us that our new leader is not perfect, really? and an impressive reading of several appropriate Bible verses, Pastor Miller made several promises regarding doctrine, etc, and then, knelt for "laying on of hands" and blessings.

He then greeted us with a "hi, you'all!" And told us that when we make mistakes, we are to use the new line, "we planned it this way," and we all said that with him.

Finally, everyone processed out to a mission hymn and we ended the afternoon in the usual Lutheran way, with coffee! There were handshakes all around, and we are all praying that he likes us and that we like him; this is the first new guy in ten years! All I can say is, he's off to a good start!

Merry Christmas, everyone!

Fremont Corn Expo planned for January

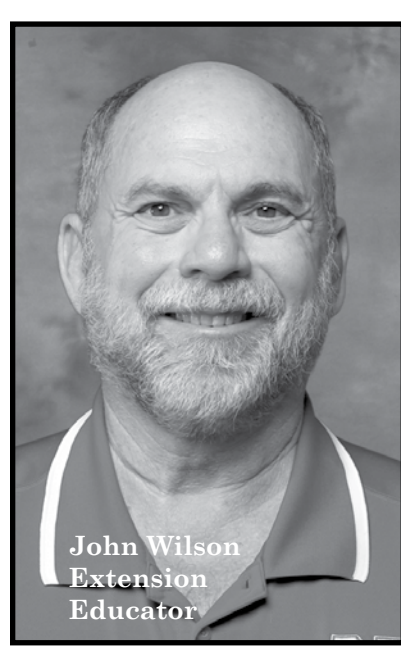

Eastern Nebraska corn growers can sharpen their marketing, production, and pest management strategies at the 2019 Fremont Corn Expo on Thursday, Jan. 3, at the Christensen Field Main Arena, in Fremont.

The event starts at 7:30 a.m. with a complimentary breakfast and time to view exhibits. Presentations begin at 8:45 a.m. and end at 3 p.m. Lunch is also provided.

The expo will feature timely topics and is designed so growers can come and go among presentations, exhibits and ag equipment throughout the day. This program is unique in that it focuses on east-central Nebraska and the challenges faced by corn growers here the last few years.

The keynote speaker is Elaine Kub, an independent market economist and author of the book "Mastering the Grain Markets: How Profits are Really Made." Kub's presentation is titled "Prepping for Grain Market Opportunities."

Amelia Breinig, assistant director of the Nebraska Department of Agriculture, will discuss the three E's of corn economics - production efficiency, ethanol and exports - and how they can keep Nebraska corn trending upward.

Other presentations will look at Hail Know resources for managing hail-damaged crops and how to find a balance between the benefits of cover crops and the risk of insect damage. There will be an ag industry update and a final report on Project SENSE, a three-year study of sensor-based nitrogen management in irrigated corn production.

The event is sponsored by Nebraska Extension, the Fremont Area Chamber of Commerce, Nebraska Farm Bureau, the Nebraska Corn Board, the Nebraska Corn Growers Association and local ag businesses.

For more information on the program or speakers, visit <http://croptechcafe.org/fremontcornexpo> or contact your local Nebraska Extension office.

Market Facilitation Program

I have talked about the Market Facilitation Program or MFP several times since it was announced in early September. This program provides a payment to producers of several agricultural commodities to help make up the losses caused by tariffs and reduced trade with international buyers. The original program gave payments on half of a farmer's actual production in 2018.

The first round of payments are $1.65/bushel for soybeans, $0.01/bushel for corn, and $0.86/bushel for sorghum. Payments are also available for hog and dairy producers. Hog payments will be $8.00/head for the number of hogs on the farm on any date of the producer's choosing between July 15, 2018 and Aug. 15, 2018. Dairy payments are $0.12/cwt and will be based on historical production reported for the Margin Protection Program for Dairy.

Farmers have until Jan. 15, 2019, to sign up for the program and until May 1, 2019, to prove their actual production. However, they will not receive a payment until they document their production in 2018. This payment is for half of the production in 2018. I just checked with our local USDA FSA office and they indicated only about half of those eligible had signed up.

It was just announced last week that the payment on the second half of the production was authorized at the same rates as was announced in the original program. The good news is, if farmers signed up for the original program or will sign up by Jan. 15, 2019, they will not need to do anything additional to receive the payment on the second half of their production. BUT, they need to get in and sign up for the original program no later than Jan. 15, 2019 and document their production no later than May 1, 2019.

For more information on the MFP, contact your local USDA Farm Service Agency office or check out their fact sheet at https://go.unl.edu/mfp_fact_sheet which has all the information on this program, what is required for production documentation, and links to the form that producers will need to complete.

Old Iron - Turning the old Coultter Machine into a Modern Applicator

This week we are continuing our theme of talking about splitting up our Nitrogen application. We have covered pre-emergence and planting time, so now we move into the in-season application. I fully understand that in-season application can be tricky. We have to balance the timing and growth stage with the weather, and it seems that the deck is always stacked against us. And to be fair, those were two pretty big reasons (weather and timing) why many people parked their sidedress machine in the tree line 15 years ago. But, they were not the only reasons, and I know there is a way to put that machine back to work for Nitrogen application.

A few years ago, 360 Yield center introduced their Y Drop system. Shortly thereafter, the hardware was modified to fit a toolbar. But why in the world would we not just reuse the toolbar as is? Some new bearings and coulters and we could be back in business. Well, let's look at the reason to upgrade.

Erosion: For those of you on flat ground, the slot that was made by the coultter was never a problem. But for those of you that farm on any sort of a slope, you have seen it before. You rush to get the Nitrogen on before the rain gets here. Just after you finish, the wind shifts and the rain hits. And the next day you go out to see little finger ditches washed in the field. Did it take our fertilizer with it when it went? Who knows, but it is unsettling. When you use the Y Drop that is eliminated. The product is applied at the base of the plant, and since there isn't an opportunity to wash, it goes into the soil.

Placement: When we used a coultter machine, we were applying Nitrogen 10-15 inches away from the plant. We understand today that 60% of the Nitrogen a plant uses comes from within 7" of the plant. When it was applied a foot away, you didn't always get the "pop" you wanted. When Nitrogen is applied in season, it is gratifying to see the corn turn green. When we use the Y Drop, it is applied at the base of the plant when just a few hundredths of rain gets it into the soil where it can be taken into the plant.

Cost: Whether that old Sidedress machine has sat for 2 years or 20, it is going to take some work to get it back into shape. New bearings are a minimum, and in all likelihood, we are looking at new coulters to go with it. Those parts add up to have the same machine you parked before. The cost of those parts go a long way towards paying for the Y Drop system for a Sidedress machine.

Timing: We have talked before about corn using 75% of its Nitrogen after V9. This application will be before that window opens. But, when you compare it to putting those same pounds on before the corn is out of the ground, there are still timing advantages. East of Highway 281 whether you are in Kansas, Nebraska, or Iowa; May and June are our biggest rainfall months, with April being in the top half as well. If avoiding leaching is big concern, then delaying the application of part of those pounds, even if only for six weeks, is a big deal.

Now, I certainly don't want to make a Y Drop Sidedress out to be perfect. And UAN is always prone to volatilization, but a banded application is not as in danger as a broadcast of Urea. The window for application between V4 and when you can no longer clear corn with the bar is limited, and weather will always make the window smaller.

But, if you want to, or need to split apply your Nitrogen application up, this is an option for those of you that are on Dryland or don't want to Fertigate. True, a Y Drop system on a high clearance sprayer affords us a bigger application window, but not all of us have a high clearance sprayer or can afford one. Converting an old toolbar to a Y Drop machine is affordable, and could be one of the main pieces in your Nitrogen application plan in 2019.

GROWING AGRICULTURE TOGETHER

Reinke recognizes Grossenburg Implement with Gold Pride Award

Reinke has recognized Grossenburg Implement in Wayne with a Gold Reinke Pride award in recognition of the company's marketing year success. The dealership was honored during Reinke's annual convention in Spokane, Wash.

"I congratulate Grossenburg Implement on receiving this award," Reinke Vice President of North American Irrigation Sales Mark Mesloh said. "Reinke appreciates the dedication they have to the growers in their community. We're proud to work with them and have them representing Reinke in Wayne."

Reinke dealerships from across the United States and Canada gather each year to attend the company's sales convention. The convention's awards ceremony recognizes select Reinke dealerships for their hard work and dedication to sales and marketing throughout the past year.

The Reinke Pride awards are determined as part of an incentive program that distinguishes superior achievement levels according to an evaluation based on a dealership's exterior and interior house-keeping and maintenance, indoor and outdoor displays, safety, retail environment, merchandising, professionalism, promotions, event participation and market share.

Nebraska Pulse Crops Expo is Jan. 7 in Kearney

As corn, soybean and wheat prices decrease, some growers are looking to integrate pulse crops into their cropping systems. The 2019 Nebraska Pulse Crops Expo will offer information on getting started or enhancing existing pulse production.

The free program is 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, Jan. 7 at the Kearney Holiday Inn, 110 S. Second Ave.

"Pulse crops, such as yellow or green field peas, lentils and chickpeas, fit well with cropping systems throughout the state," said Strahinja Stepanovic, program coordinator and extension educator. "With a rapidly growing industry and increased knowledge and resources, it is becoming easier to grow them as well as to find seed, crop insurance and a market for them."

Last year, growers from seven states attended the Nebraska Pulse Crops Expo in Grant.

Lucas Haag, northwest area agronomist with Kansas State University, will give the keynote address, on development and management of field peas at critical growth stages.

Other presentations will cover university research on response of field pea to planting date and seeding rate, challenges and opportunities with field peas, tillage effects on germination and yield, irrigated production, high-performing pea cultivars for different areas of the state, and double cropping with forages or cover crops. There also will be a session on industry promotion and whether Nebraska should have a pulse crop checkoff, as well as market reports and crop insurance updates.

The Nebraska Pulse Crops Expo is sponsored by Sustainable Agriculture and Research Education, the Nebraska Environmental Trust and pulse crop industry partners.

The event includes lunch. Pre-registration is required by Wednesday, Jan. 2. Registration is available at <https://cropwatch.unl.edu/pulse-expo-registration>, by emailing sstepanovic2@unl.edu, or by calling or texting 402-318-1124. A special lodging rate is available at the Holiday Inn.

- g. Designate The Wayne Herald as the official county newspaper for 2019

A motion was made by Larson and seconded by Burbach to approve the consent agenda. Roll call vote: Larson, Burbach, Rabe – aye; motion carried.

A motion was made by Burbach and seconded by Larson to approve the regular agenda. Roll call vote: Burbach, Larson, Rabe – aye; motion carried.

Emergency Manager Nic Kemnitz received his Type 3 All-Hazards Planning Section Chief Certification from the Nebraska Emergency Management Agency on December 13, 2018. The planning section chief facilitates the operational meetings and briefings and is responsible for the development of the Incident Action Plans. The certification process required successfully completing seventy different tasks in the FEMA All-Hazards Planning Section Chief Task Book while working on Type 3 Incidents or Planned Events.

Updates presented by Highway Superintendent Mark Casey:

- A reimbursement check in the amount of $12,490.50 for the Rattlesnake Creek wind project has been received from Nordex.
- M.E. Collins is working on Project C-90(620), the Beckmann bridge. They will pour the culvert floor on Thursday, after two trees inside the permanent easement are removed.
- Updated bridge signage requirements were distributed. Bridges are now being rated for multi-axle loads resulting in bridges with a capacity in excess of twenty-five ton needing signage.

A Construction Engineering Agreement between Wayne County and Mainelli Wagner & Associates for Project No. BRO-7090(20), Control No. 32067 Wayne West, aka Temme bridge, was reviewed. A motion was made by Larson and seconded by Burbach to adopt Resolution No. 18-23 authorizing the signing of the agreement. Roll call vote: Larson, Burbach, Rabe – aye; motion carried.

Resolution No. 18-23: "Whereas: Wayne (County) and State entered into an LPA Program Agreement for State to assist County in the development and construction of an LPA Federal-aid transportation project;

Whereas: County wishes to hire a consultant for the design or construction of LPA's project; Whereas: The LPA Program Agreement specifies that consultants be selected using the State's consultant selection process;

Whereas: The consultant selection process was used to select Mainelli Wagner & Associates to provide engineering services for LPA's Federal-aid project; and

Whereas: This resolution is to authorize the chair to sign an agreement between County and Mainelli Wagner & Associates.

Be It Resolved by the Board of Commissioners of Wayne County that: The Chair, James Rabe, is hereby authorized to sign the attached LPA Consultant Professional Service Agreement between the County and the Mainelli Wagner & Associates.

NDOR Project Number: BRO-7090(20); NDOR Control Number: 32067; NDOR Project Description: Wayne West."

Burbach stated he had reviewed the bids opened December 4, 2018, for a new articulated motor grader. Burbach made a motion to accept the net bid of $247,050.00, plus a $14,000.00 parts credit, for a 2019 Caterpillar 140 AWD as submitted by NMC, Inc. Larson seconded the motion. Roll call vote: Burbach, Larson, Rabe – aye; motion carried.

The office and courtroom space previously used by the District Judge in the annex building is almost cleared. Sheriff Dwinell and Emergency Manager Kemnitz were asked to consider what they would do with the space if it was made available to them. The board stated they are open to ideas to make the best possible use of the space.

A draft of an agreement with Kingery Construction Co. for the courthouse exterior restoration was received on December 10th, but the final agreement did not arrive until after the meeting had convened. The delay was attributed to waiting for final numbers from the contractor for changes requested by the county.

The owner and contractor agreement included but was not limited to the replacement of the roof, restoration of the brick and stone work, replacement of the south stairs, replacement of the south and east exterior doors and miscellaneous site work. The date of commencement would not be sooner than March 15, 2019. The contract sum would be two million dollars, subject to additions and deductions as provided in the contract documents.

County Attorney Mike Pieper did not have time to review the draft copy; and neither he nor the Deputy County Attorney would have time to review the agreement prior to December 31st. Pieper sent a written recommendation that the board delay any decision on the agreement until the new commissioner and new county attorney were in office.

The board did not want to approve an agreement that had not been reviewed by an attorney. However, the effective date on the bid had already been extended, and would now expire on December 31st.

A motion was made by Larson to accept the AIA Document A101-2017 agreement between Wayne County and Kingery Construction Company as received at 9:15 a.m., subject to attorney approval. Burbach questioned if the approval was preliminary. Larson responded his motion was to approve the agreement. If the county attorney's office approved the agreement, then no further action was necessary. If changes were recommended, action could be taken at the December 31st meeting. Burbach seconded the motion. Roll call vote: Larson, Burbach, Rabe – aye; motion carried.

A masonry workshop organized by the Nebraska Masonry Alliance, and supported by the Nebraska State Historic Preservation Office will be conducted in Wayne on May 7th and 8th, and possibly May 9th and 10th. Masonry conservator Nigel Copsy of Great Britain will lead the workshop(s). The first day will be in a classroom setting at the Wayne Fire Hall, and the second day will be hands-on at the courthouse.

The following claims were approved on a motion by Burbach and second by Larson. Roll call vote: Larson, Larson, Rabe – aye; motion carried.

Fee Reports: Debra K Allemann-Dannelly, Clerk of District Court, $852.25 (Nov Fees); Debra Finn, County Clerk, $8,242.50 (Nov Fees); Jason Dwinell, County Sheriff, $1,038.40 (Nov Fees).
