Providence Community Pharmacy opening soon

Plans to open the Providence Community Pharmacy are currently underway and began immediately upon Skopko Pharmacy's announcement to close. This expansion will allow the community to continue to have options when it comes to where they choose to fill their prescriptions.

Providence Medical Center administration has worked quickly to secure a location and a pharmacy team for the Providence Community Pharmacy.

"Although there are many details to finalize, we plan to open the retail pharmacy mid-March 2019. We are enthusiastic about what this expansion will offer our patients, our service area and the community of Wayne," Jim Frank, CEO of Providence Medical Center said.

Providence Community Pharmacy will be located at 803 Providence Road, Suite 101 in the Sunnyview Business Park. The retail pharmacy will employ the pharmacists and certified pharmacy technician team previously employed by Shopko Pharmacy.

City of Wayne, Wayne County, Area Economic Development debut new websites

By Sarah Lentz
editor@wayneherald.com

After about a decade with the same old platform, The City of Wayne, Wayne County and Wayne Area Economic Development rolled out new website layouts on Jan. 24.

"The site we had was getting close to 10 years old, so it was time for a visual refresh," Brian Kesting, City technology support specialist said. "We needed to clean up some of the page organization and the big thing now is for sites to be mobile-friendly. The old site was not as friendly for those smaller screens."

The new design didn't happen overnight for any of the entities.

Dwaine Spieker-Wayne City Council, Third Ward

Dwaine Spieker is used to responding when someone needs help. As a 22-year teacher, 19 of which was spent at Wayne, he's lent a helping hand to many residents. In November, his former student Cale Giese called on him again, this time to represent Ward 3 on Wayne's City Council.

"We ran into each other and he asked me if I would consider throwing my name in the hat to be nominated to take his place on City Council," Spieker said. "It was one of those situations where the immediate answer was no and after awhile I thought maybe that wouldn't be so bad."

Spieker was one of a handful of prospective appointees and ultimately was chosen to take over Giese's seat. Spieker said he was swayed to join because it would give the teacher an opportunity to learn.

"I work in the English area and Speech," Spieker said. "This gave me a chance to learn about our infrastructure and our economy."

With three meetings as a councilmember, Spieker is getting his bearings when it comes to complex issues like utilities and in particular, electricity.

Going forward, Spieker said he hopes to be able to help families who are in the same position he and his family were in when they moved to Wayne.

"One of the things I plan to support heavily is small, working families and families with small children and making sure Wayne is an area that is receptive to them in terms of housing, in terms of cultural opportunities and in terms of cultural and business opportunities," Spieker said.

Spieker said his goal is to make Wayne the type of community that people want to come to and come back to.

"I'm looking for things to keep people in this community who opt to move here after college or who want to move back after being away for a while," Spieker said.

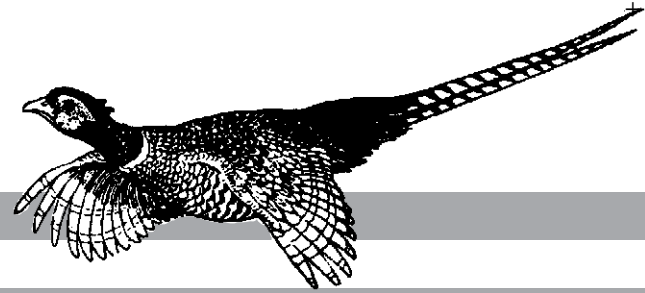

Despite his initial misgivings, Spieker is ready to make a difference in the place he calls home.

"I'm very grateful to serve the community and the citizens of Wayne," Spieker said. "Wayne's been very good to me as an outsider to the town who has moved here. It's a place that we're happy we stayed in."

The Wayne Herald will continue to bring our readers an introduction to recently installed Wayne County, City of Wayne and Wayne Community Schools Board of Education officials.

After more than 16 years of service to his Wayne congregation, the Rev. Cal Kroeker and his family "have the opportunity to reach out in a new location."

Pastor Kroeker's final service in Wayne will be Sunday, Feb. 8. On March 1 he will begin his duties as pastor of Central Plains Evangelical Free Church in Omacoma, S.D., which is located near Chamberlain, S.D. Pastor Kroeker will be the first full-time pastor for the church, which was formed two years ago.

The Kroeker family came to Wayne in August of 1992 and Cal began serving as the pastor of the Wayne Evangelical Free Church, located just north of Wayne on Centennial Road. They had previously served a church in Chicago, Ill. for three years.

When Pastor Kroeker leaves Wayne, Calvary Bible Evangelical Free Church will be served by an interim pastor while the congregation searches for a new pastor.

Wayne's Church of Christ has a new minister. Troy Reynolds and his wife Stephanie recently moved to Wayne from Norfolk.

Troy is finishing up his senior year at Nebraska Christian College in Norfolk and will graduate in May with a degree in Pastoral Ministry.

Stephanie is a math education major at Wayne State College and will graduate in December, 1995.

Troy is a third generation minister. His father and grandfather have been and still are ministers.

The Reynolds are excited to be in Wayne. Both said they felt glad to finally have a house to live in after living in a small apartment for nearly two years.

The Reynolds say their main goal at the present time is to get to know people and get involved with their congregation. "We want to become a part of the lives of those to whom we minister," said Troy.

Approximately one hundred people attended a cornerstone laying service in the new Evangelical Covenant Church building at Wakefield Sunday. The 3 p.m. ceremony was presided over by the congregation's pastor, Rev. Fred Jansson.

Following the call to worship and congregational singing, documents of historical importance were placed in a metal box to be sealed for posterity behind the new cornerstone.

Former Church Chairman,

Arthur Felt, gave the prayer. After a congregational hymn, "The Church's One Foundation," the group repeated the Apostles Creed. Pastor Jansson and Mr. Felt put the new cornerstone in place.

Plans are to dedicate new educational and worship units May 11, according to Elmer Carlson, Church Chairman.

Retail shoe stores may make ration-free sales of limited quantities of women's shoes at $3 or less a pair through February 5, according to word received from OPA.

Retailers had been granted a two-week period, January 17 through 29, for the ration-free sales. The period is extended to three weeks in order to promote orderly buying and avoid a possible rush that would put heavy pressure on limited store personnel.

Robotic-assisted surgery comes to Pender

In keeping with the mission to provide a continuum of exceptional healthcare services in a healing environment for everyone, Pender Community Hospital announced the arrival of robotic-assisted surgery services.

"We are honored to be the first critical access hospital in Nebraska to offer the da Vinci System," Melissa Kelly, CEO said. "Beginning in early March, Pender providers will be using da Vinci technology—the exact same technology that was previously only available at bigger hospitals—for general surgery, gynecologic surgery, and urologic surgery."

The da Vinci System has brought minimally invasive surgery to more than 3 million patients worldwide. It is robotic technology that allows the surgeon's hand movements to be translated into smaller, precise movements of the instruments inside the patient. One of the instruments is a laparoscope, a thin tube with a tiny camera and light at the end that sends images to a video monitor in the operating room to guide doctors during surgery.

The da Vinci Surgical System features several key patient and provider benefits, including:

- Magnified vision system that gives surgeons a 3D HD view inside the patient's body
- Ergonomically designed console where the surgeon sits while operating
- Wristed instruments that bend and rotate far greater than the human hand
- Minimally invasive techniques that, studies show, provide shorter recovery times and better outcomes than traditional surgery

The da Vinci System joins other exciting innovations at Pender Community Hospital, the move and opening of the Pender Medical Clinic and Apothecary and the upcoming grand opening of the Emerson Medical Clinic and Apothecary.

Pender's hospital dates back to 1913. Over the years, the Pender Community Hospital District has become a model of an effective Rural Health System. Through the loyalty and generous support of everyone making up the hospital district, plus the dedication of the medical staff, Board of Directors, and hospital staff, we continue to deliver top quality health care.

University of Nebraska celebrating milestone

By Amy Topp
Extension Educator -
University of Nebraska-Lincoln

The University of Nebraska was chartered on Feb. 15, 1869 and charged with its land-grant mission of public education and service to Nebraska.

In 2019, we mark a 150-year legacy of improving the quality of life for Nebraska and beyond. Please join us in celebrating the historic past of your University and helping us chart a bold new future. The Nebraska Extension Office in Wayne County will host the Chamber Coffee on Friday, Feb. 8 in honor of the 150th year of the University.

Throughout the year we will also be celebrating the N150 with "Flat Herbie." He will be making his way around the community as we snap pictures at local events, favorite landmarks, or 4-H activities.

Nebraska Extension is also excited to be partnering with the Wayne Public Library. The Nebraska Library Commission, along with partners University of Nebraska—Lincoln, Nebraska Innovation Studio, Nebraska Extension, and Regional Library Systems, are excited about the Library Innovation Studios: Transforming Rural Communities project, which was awarded a National Leadership Grant of $530,732 by the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS). The project began July 1, 2017 and will conclude June 30, 2020. The project uses Library Innovation Studios hosted by public libraries to support community engagement and participatory learning experiences by providing access to technological and innovative learning tools not readily accessible locally. This strengthening of the maker culture in Nebraska communities is expected to stimulate creativity, innovation, and the exchange of ideas to facilitate entrepreneurship, skills development, and local economic development.

The Wayne Public Library will have an open house with the Library Innovation Studios on Friday, Feb. 8 from 4-6 p.m. Come and check out all the wonderful resources that will be at the library through Monday, May 27.

by its destruction in the 2013 tornado, and the immediate rebuilding efforts; the Wayne airport provides an important economic impact and enhanced quality of life for the community. The airport authority works hard to make sure that pilots recognize Wayne as a great destination during flights to the Oshkosh Air Show and that has put Wayne on the map."

The Wayne Area Economic Development Business of the Year Award went to Providence Medical Center.

PMC plays an important role in the community by hosting activities such as community health screens, grief support group, CPR classes, flu shot clinics and more. PMC employees can be seen during various volunteer activities and events around the area.

In accepting the award, CEO, Jim Frank, acknowledged his employees and the support of the community.

Misty Bear, 2017 Educator of the Year, introduced Courtney Maas as the 2018 Educator of the Year.

Maas' nominations noted her "dedication to students, going above and beyond to instill confidence in her students and providing them a safe classroom environment; working often outside of school time and often on weekends."

Maas started the Wayne Run Club for youth, coaches Rec Basketball for the Activity Center, and is a CCD teacher at St. Mary's Church. Maas has been at Wayne Public Schools for 18 years and currently teaches first grade and has been part of the Cross Country coaching staff for eight years.

Bill Reeg announced the 2018 Citizen of Year to Scott and Mary Kay Hasemann.

Websites

Keating, the county and WAED started working on new websites roughly a year ago and it took six to eight months for the sites to be built.

A web design company called CivicPlus helped create the sites.

"They specialize in government pages and we liked what we saw from them," Keating said. "We picked what we liked and what we thought would work for us."

Along with looking sharper, the new website will also allow the three organizations to have more control over design elements on the pages.

Keating said there is still some fine-tuning that needs to be done before the sites are fully ready to go, but CivicPlus helped the entities get to the point where the sites could go live. Cityofwayne.org, waynecountyne.org and waynetworks.org have all the functionality that visitors are used to.

"I hope people like it," Keating said. "It's a change."

Hailey Busse strips the ball from a Minnesota State player during the Wildcats' fourth-quarter comeback Saturday. Wayne State erased a 15-point fourth-quarter deficit in the final seconds, only to lose 80-78 to the Mavericks.

Wildcat women rebound, get split at home

The Wayne State women's basketball team lost a heartbreaker on Saturday, but came back to get a win on Sunday to salvage a week-end split at home.

On Saturday, the Wildcats rallied from a 17-point deficit with 9:27 remaining to tie the score with 22 seconds to play, but Minnesota State's Taylor Drost ruined the comeback by sinking a jumper with 1.8 seconds remaining to give the visiting Mavericks an 80-78 victory.

The Mavericks limited the Wildcat offense early on, taking a 10-0 lead in the first three minutes of the game. Down by as much as 16-3, the Wildcat offense slowly chipped away at the early deficit. A 5-0 run by Maggie Lowe helped Wayne State close the distance entering the second with a 12-3 run to end the quarter.

Minnesota State held steady in the second, able to fend off any Wayne State run with buckets of their own. The Mavericks held at least a four-point advantage the whole quarter, building their lead as much as nine as they went into the locker room with a 37-29 lead.

Minnesota State seemingly looked to be heading comfortable win as the Wildcats couldn't get a shot to fall and the Mavericks ended the third with a 15 point advantage.

Down by 11 with just over four minutes to play, the Wildcats put on an extra gear to get back into the game. Six straight points, including four from Erin Norling, more than halved the deficit into a two-possession game.

Wayne State went on another 6-0 run after a Taylor Drost basket to cut the lead to 74-73. After two Monica Muth free throws to put the Mavericks up 78-75 with 30 seconds left, Wayne State drove down the other side. Kylie Hammer's pass fell into the hands of Lowe, who tickled the twine from distance to tie the ballgame up at 78-78.

With no timeouts for either team, the Mavericks were forced to hurry up their shot. With the ball in the hands of their scoring leader Drost, she forced up an off-balance shot that sliced through the net with 1.8 on the clock, spoiling a valiant effort from the Wildcats and silencing Rice Auditorium.

Brittany Bongartz led the Wildcats with a career-high 23 points while Erin Norling recorded a 16-point, 10-rebound double-double. Lowe finished the afternoon with 13 points.

On Sunday, Wayne State held Concordia-St. Paul to just 25 percent shooting as the Wildcats shut down the NSIC South Division-leading Golden Bears 71-49.

The Wildcats (13-7, 8-6 NSIC) never trailed in the contest, taking a 16-5 lead in the first 5:15 of the contest. Wayne State maintained a double digit lead in the first quarter and held a 20-9 lead after 10 minutes of play.

The Golden Bears scored the first six points of the second stanza to get within five at 20-15, but the Wildcats responded with their own 7-0 run and pushed the lead to 27-15 followed a Halley Busse jumper at the 6:15 mark. The Wildcats sustained a double-digit lead the rest of the quarter and ended the half with a 37-26 lead.

The Wildcat defense never allowed Concordia-St. Paul a chance to get back into the game in the second half, limiting the Golden Bears to 21 percent shooting (8-of-38) in the half. The Golden Bears were within nine at 43-34 late third quarter, but Wayne State closed the quarter on a 8-2 run to push the lead back to 15 and come away with the 22-point blowout win.

Norling and Halley Busse each scored 18 points to pace Wayne State.

Wayne State held a 48-45 edge in rebounding over the Golden Bears, thanks to a career-high 14 rebounds from Andrea Larson. Busse had four of Wayne State's 11 assists and three of the team's six steals.

The Wildcats hit the road this weekend, visiting the University of Mary Friday night at 5:30 p.m. and Minot State Saturday for games at 3:30 p.m.

Thomsen earns third-team All-American honors

The Don Hansen Football Committee released its 2018 Don Hansen NCAA Division II All-America Team Tuesday morning and Wayne State College linebacker Tyler Thomsen was named third-team All-American on defense.

It's the second straight season that a Wildcat defensive player received Don Hansen All-America honors after safety Glenn Harris was a second-team All-America honoree last season.

Thomsen, a 6-foot-1 225-pound linebacker, was a first-team All-NSIC South Division selection this season after leading Wayne State and the Northern Sun Conference in tackles with 120, averaging 10.9 tackles per game.

He recorded 10 or more tackles in eight games this season, highlighted by a season-best 15 stops with one interception for 49 yards in a 42-35 win at Upper Iowa. Wayne State men beat Concordia, fall to Mavericks

After falling to Minnesota State on Saturday, the Wayne State men's basketball team salvaged a weekend split at home with a win over Concordia-St. Paul.

On Sunday afternoon, Kendall Jacks paced four Wildcat players in double figures with 21 points as the Wildcats used a late scoring surge to finish off pesky Concordia-St. Paul 77-68 and improve to 15-4 overall and 10-4 in NSIC play.

An entertaining first half saw the two teams exchange three ties and 11 lead changes. The third and final tie of the first half came at 21-21 on a Vance Janssen free throw with 7:10 to play in the half.

A Jacks jumper with 1:36 to go before halftime gave the Wildcats their biggest lead of the first half at 36-29, but Concordia-St. Paul closed the half with a pair of baskets to cut the lead to 36-33 at intermission.

The Golden Bears stayed close with Wayne State for most of the second half, taking their final lead at 49-47 on a pair of Bryndan Matthews free throws with 11:44 to play.

The Wildcats took the lead for good by scoring the next seven points, highlighted by a dunk from sophomore Ben Dentlinger. The Golden Bears got as close as two at 54-52 on a Lee Higgins 3-pointer with 8:47 to play, but Wayne State went on a 12-4 scoring run and took their first double-digit lead at 66-56 on a pair of Nick Ferrarini free throws at the 4:56 mark and they were able to go on and post the victory.

Jordan Janssen followed Jacks in the scoring department, recording his sixth double-double of the season with 15 points and 10 rebounds. Trevin Joseph and Vance Janssen also hit double digits with 13 and 10 points, respectively.

In Saturday's game, Minnesota State opened the game with a 33-12 lead in the opening 11 minutes and remained the lone unbeaten road team in NSIC play as the Mavericks disposed of Wayne State College 90-79.

The Mavericks got off to a hot start offensively and never turned back. Tied 8-8, Minnesota State went on a 25-4 run to create a gap between the two teams. The Wildcats cut the lead to as little as 10, but were unable to keep the streaking Mavs off the board.

Minnesota State increased their lead to 20 going into the first media timeout of the second half. The Mavs only had four missed shots in the opening four minutes and offensive rebounds on half of those possessions.

Wayne State got as close as 10 late in the first half at 40-30 before the Mavericks closed the half with the final four points for a 44-30 lead.

Minnesota State pushed the lead back to 21 several times in the second half with the final one coming at 73-52 with 7:38 remaining. The Wildcats trimmed the deficit to single digits in the final two minutes, getting as close as seven at 86-79, but could get no closer.

Jacks and Joseph each scored 17 points to lead Wayne State. Jordan Janssen produced his fifth double-double of the season with 15 points and 13 rebounds while Vance Janssen added 14 points.

Jordan Janssen corralled a game-high 13 boards for Wayne State. Luke TerHark and Vance Janssen each had three assists while Jordan Janssen had three steals.

The Wildcats will be on the road this weekend, visiting University of Mary Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Minot State Saturday at 5:30 p.m.

Wayne girls fall in conference play-in game

The Wayne High girls basketball team faced some tough competition and lost a pair of games last week, including the play-in game for the Mid State Conference tournament.

On Thursday, the Blue Devils got off to a slow start and couldn't recover in a 58-30 loss to state-rated West Point-Beemer at Wayne High School.

The Blue Devils were able to come back from a 17-0 first-quarter deficit and got as close as 12 on a buzzer-beating 3-pointer by Kendall Dorey to end the first half. The Lady Cadets wouldn't let Wayne get any closer, however, pulling away in the fourth quarter for the easy win.

Ashton Boyer scored 10 points to lead Wayne. Frankie Klausen added five points, Gabi Meyer and Annie Kniesche both had four, Dorey and Rubie Klausen had three apiece and Allison Claussen hit a free throw.

Sidney Biggerstaff led the team with five rebounds, Tori Kniesche had four and Meyer and Boyer each had three. Boyer added three steals. On Saturday, the Blue Devils fell in the play-in game for the Mid State Conference tournament, losing 62-31 to Boone Central/Newman Grove in a game played at Newman Grove High School.

Frankie Klausen had 13 points and Boyer added eight to lead the way. Rubie Klausen had three, Meyer, Annie Kniesche and Tori Kniesche each had two and Emily Longe hit a free throw.

Meyer, Longe, Tori Kniesche and Frankie Klausen shared rebounding honors with three apiece.

Wayne will play Hartington Cedar Catholic on Monday at Wayne High School. They close the regular season on Friday at Arlington.

Wayne High alum named to Mount Marty hall of fame

YANKTON, SD — Mount Marty College athletics is announced four new members and a team will be inducted in to the Lancer Athletic Hall of Fame. On of those inductees is 1976 Wayne High graduate, Monte Lowe.

Lowe graduated (1980) as a four year starter on the team that was the most successful four year period of Lancer basketball, winning 80 games, including three 20-plus win seasons. He was a starter as a freshman on the first Lancer athletic team to qualify for the NAIA National Tournament. He was known as the stopper on defense, always drawing the opponent's best offensive player, not matter the position the opponent played. He was voted as Mr. Hustle and Mr. Defense all four years by his teammates, and was the team captain as a senior.

Other inductees include: Patrick Frank — Frank is a longtime supporter, employee, and fixture of the Lancer Athletic Department and Mount Marty College. He started working at Mount Marty College as part of a work study program his senior year of high school, and has been part of the college ever since. He takes particular pride in the work he does as the videographer for the department. It would likely be impossible to find an athlete in the last 18 years that would not be able to speak fondly of Frank with a big smile. His personality and hospitality is a big part of the face of Lancer Athletics.

Matt Giever — He started out his career as a sometimes-used freshman, and then became the spark off the bench, that is so important for a complete team; for one of the greatest teams in Lancer history his second season. He finished his career as one of the all-time great men's basketball players. Three of the seasons with the Lancers the team was rated in the nation. A graduate in 2000, Giever was named All-Conference his last two seasons with the Lancers. After averaging 20 points and 6 rebounds a game his senior season, he was named 2nd Team All-American and was voted the SDIC Most Valuable Player by the coaches. He was also named to the South Dakota All-College Team.

Kathleen (Velder) Sobotka — One of the pioneers in Lancer women's athletics, Sobotka, a 1976 graduate, participated in five sports in her tenure at Mount Marty College. She starred in volleyball, basketball, softball, track, and field hockey at a time when women's athletics was looking to gain a foothold in the collegiate sporting world, and she was instrumental part of this movement at Mount Marty. Statistics were incomplete, but both teammates and coaches mentioned that she was highly skilled, outstanding player who was also humble and unassuming.

The 1985-1986 Women's Basketball Team — The 1985-86 Lancer basketball team was the first year a Mount Marty women's team was invited to the NAIA National Tournament. First year Head Coach Warren Anderson played a very tough schedule to prepare the team, finishing the season 24-8, despite not having a true home court and just 11 players. The team broke 23 team and individual records during the year, and won the NAIA District 12 and Bi-District Championships to earn their spot in the 16 team national field.

The formal induction ceremony will be held on June 21, but the new class will be introduced at half time of the men's basketball game on Saturday, Feb. 2 at Laddie E. Cimpl Arena.

Year of progress, achievements for Northeast Community College

Originally for Norfolk Daily News' In-sight edition

From national recognitions to the addition of a new athletic program, Northeast Community College earned a number of accolades in 2018 as it continued to expand opportunities for its students across its 20-county service area.

Northeast Community College was among several community colleges that were honored for their work advancing access and success for students at the American Association of Community Colleges' (AACCC) Awards of Excellence Gala, part of AACCC's 98th Annual Convention in Dallas, TX, in April. Northeast was one of six colleges recognized in the Student Success category for its five-year advising model that is transforming institutional culture. The initiative is jointly led by the Educational and Student Services division.

The National Security Agency (NSA) and the Department of Homeland Security have designated Northeast Community College as a National Center of Academic Excellence in Cyber Defense Two-Year Education (CAE2Y). The College is one of only 70 two-year colleges in the United States with the CAE2Y designation. Four Northeast information technology associate of applied science degree programs that focus on cybersecurity have been recognized by the NSA and the Department of Homeland Security to qualify as a CAE2Y college.

The College's Health Information Management Systems (HIMS) program earned official accreditation from the Commission on Accreditation for Health Informatics and Information Management Education this summer. Accreditation allows students who have graduated from Northeast's HIMS program to apply for and take the Registered Health Information Technician (RHIT) exam, which awards them an associate-level credential in the field.

Now in its third year, the Fridays @ Northeast program, which allows high school seniors to spend the final day of their school week on campus as college students, introduces students to a variety of career and technical education classes that lead directly into programs of study upon completion of their high school education. This academic year, over 80 students from 17 schools are enrolled in 29 courses that take place each Friday on Northeast campuses in Norfolk, O'Neill and South Sioux City.

In February 2018, 65 high school seniors from Nebraska and Iowa signed letters of intent to enroll in career and technical education (CTE) programs at Northeast Community College. The ceremony was similar to when athletes commit to continue their careers at the collegiate level.

Northeast further expanded into CTE programming with the formal groundbreaking in April 2018 of a new training center in West Point. The 15,000 square foot Donald E. Nielsen Career and Technical Training Center will provide educational and training opportunities for area high school students, adult learners, and business and industry. The building, which is immediately north of West Point's Nielsen Community Center, will open this spring.

The Ainsworth regional office of Northeast Community College celebrated its first graduate since its re-establishment in 2015. Lane Clapper, Ainsworth, graduated from Northeast Community College in May with an associate of arts degree, completing his coursework entirely through the College's Ainsworth regional office.

A delegation from Northeast Community College met with education, agriculture and municipal leaders in the African Republic of Malawi in May 2018. Dr. Michael Chipps, president, and other Northeast officials joined representatives from Norfolk as part of a visit centered around Norfolk Schools in Malawi. The school was founded in the city of Blantyre by Dr. Joe Mtika, of Norfolk.

Student-athletes at Northeast Community College were not only busy on the field this past fall, they were just as busy in the classroom. The Iowa Community College Athletic Conference announced that 60 student-athletes at Northeast were named to the 2018 Fall Academic All-Region list.

For the third consecutive year, the Northeast Community College women's volleyball team ended its season at the National Junior College Athletic Association Division II National Tournament in Charleston, WV. The Hawks took seventh place at the tournament and concluded their season with an overall record of 21-15 and an 8-1 conference record. Northeast was a perfect 11-0 at home.

In October, Northeast Community College announced that men's and women's rodeo will become the 10th intercollegiate athletic program at the college beginning in fall 2019. Northeast will contend in the competitive Great Plains Region of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association. Rodeo will join men's and women's basketball, men's and women's soccer, men's golf, women's volleyball, baseball and softball in Northeast's athletic program line-up.

A member of the Northeast Community College Board of Governors and a staff member were recognized by the nation's community colleges in 2018. Steven Anderson, Concord, was recognized by the Association of Community College Trustees (ACCT) with its 2018 Western Region Trustee Leadership Award, while Diane Reikofski, board recording secretary and executive assistant to the college president, received ACCT's 2018 Western Region Professional Board Staff Member Award. The awards were presented at ACCT's annual Leadership Congress in New York, NY. Northeast was the only community college to receive two awards at the event.

Donovan Ellis, Pierce, was named to fill a District I seat on the College's eleven-member Board of Governors in October. He succeeds Shirley Petsche, Petersburg, who resigned her seat in August.

The Norfolk campus of Northeast Community College is undergoing a number of security and infrastructure improvements as part of its Master Site and Facilities Plan, a document approved by the Board of Governors in 2017. Work has taken place on the northern and western portions of campus that is designed to divert storm water and channel it through an underground drainage system.

Additional improvements have also been made to the electrical primary loop, which includes replacement of the aging, 40-year-old conductors. The project has also focused on the installation of a system of accessible sidewalks to connect the residential end of campus to the academic corridor as well as a campus lighting system to increase safety.

With the added improvements to infrastructure, construction crews have created an environment that will give Northeast students additional opportunities for more connected experiences with the College and each other.

student services, said with residence halls, apartments, and dining and meeting facilities located on the northern end of campus, the master plan calls for creating a housing zone that will now be recognized as Hawks Village. The sidewalks will also lead to green spaces including recreational fields, basketball courts and other amenities.

"This area of campus is designed to feel more like home for all students, not just those who live on campus," she said. "By naming it Hawks Village, we are creating spaces for students where they can learn, play and connect with one another."

round of the Lewis & Clark Conference tournament on Monday.

In action Thursday, the Eagles battled Emerson-Hubbard and came from behind to tie the game late, only to see the Pirates hit a shot in the closing second to win 38-36.

Noah Carr led a balanced effort with nine points, Brogan Jones and Lukas Oswald each had six, Reed Hingst and Nate Oswald had five apiece, Steven Cooks scored four and Kyle Smith added a free throw.

On Monday, the Eagles got off to a slow start and Wausa never let them get back in the game as the Vikings posted a 61-44 win in the opening round of the Lewis & Clark Conference tournament Monday at Wakefield.

Winside edges Wayne, improve state dual hopes

Winside outlasted Wayne 42-36 in an in-county dual matchup Tuesday at Wayne High School.

Both teams were open in five weight classes, including a double open at heavyweight, and the visiting Wildcats won three of the five contested matches, all by pin, to come away with the win and improve their chances of making the eight-team Class D field for next week's state dual tournament in Kearney.

Alex Carlson and Dominic Reed both got pins for Winside at 152 and 160 pounds to start the dual. Wayne countered with pins by Reece Jaqua and 126 and Cameron Muhs at 132, and Art Escalante gave Winside the win with a quick 27-second pin of James Dorcey.

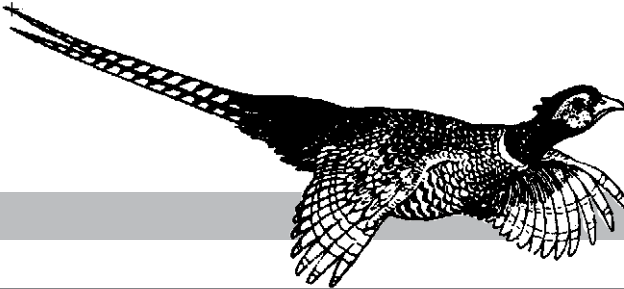

Winside travels to the Ainsworth Invitational on Saturday, while the Blue Devils compete at the Plainview Invitational.

MIKE'S MIC

Phones, phones, phones

By MIKE RENNING
mikesportshome@yahoo.com

I have documented in this space on numerous occasions my lack of technological abilities, in regard to technological abilities.

They have been and still are less than, a now, three-year-old, but looking at the glass-half-full-part of the equation – there are advantages.

My experience with cell phones began years ago.

I remember sitting with my father-in-law watching fishing shows early Saturday mornings.

There was a commercial with a guy fishing in a beautiful stream with a fly rod.

Gurgling water, the serenity...his phone rings.

He pulls from his belt, a three-inch by eight-inch box with an antenna, starts talking and stops fishing.

My father-in-law and I would remark how we would never want to take a phone fishing – it's part of why we went fishing.

My, how far I've come.

Keeping with the theme of this scribbling, it was just great to see the little guy and great to see his smile and hear his little voice.

I have watched Lily and Sophia dance in the living room, pull out a tooth, and have shown them Jake and Yippee laying together on a dog bed.

The phone has its advantages. When our own children were younger, I knew where they were – pretty much.

I had a five-minute rule. If I called the phone, they had five minutes to call me back.

Every five-minute increment after my call resulted in a one-week suspension from using the phone.

After 20 minutes, the suspension involved the car.

Back in that day, I didn't have the technology to know "exactly" where they were, but at least I knew they were alive.

"Sonny", you remember my neighbor, Mark Casey – I call him "Sonny" to save him embarrassment?

Well, "Sonny" and I made a trip to his farm one day to goof...er, I mean, do the chores.

Inadvertently, I may have locked his pickup as we exited, and we were stranded at the top of a hill goof...er, doing chores.

Thankfully we had a cell phone and called his wife, Nancy, whom I call Nancy because she doesn't do anything embarrassing.

She bailed us out – at an extreme expense – that story still comes up from time-to-time.

You think she would have pulled us off a sinking ship.

But, again I digress – we were very thankful to have a cell phone and more thankful she answered – the phone tells who's calling you know.

Yes; Twitter, Facebook, Snapchat, etc. are not what I call necessary, but they all hold a convenience which may be worthwhile.

Today's technology helps us keep in touch with friends and loved ones, but face-to-face encounters are becoming a thing of the past.

Corrections director says department won't reach de-population goal by 2020

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Statehouse Correspondent
The Nebraska Press Association

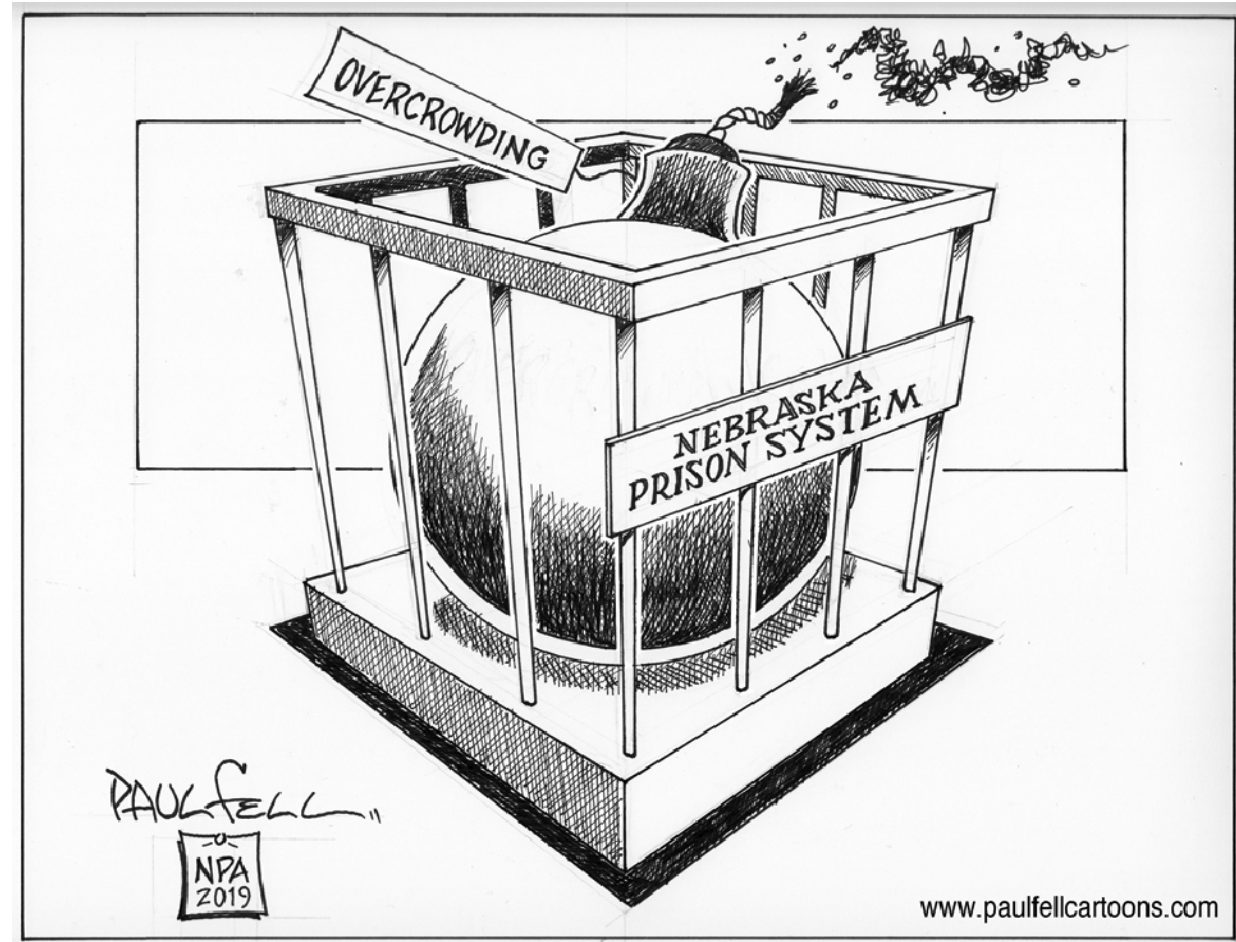

Nebraska's prison system is still overcrowded – at least 158 percent of design capacity at the latest count. That's 5,338 people in facilities designed to hold 3,375.

In 2015, lawmakers gave the Department of Corrections until July 1, 2020 to reduce that number to 140 percent or declare an emergency. Such emergency would require the release of parole-eligible individuals in a safe and orderly manner. Can you imagine the debate over the definitions of the words I used in that sentence? Can you imagine the fear and loathing such a move would foment?

Let's put a human face on this. These people are more than numbers on a spreadsheet. These are fathers and mothers and brothers and sisters and aunts and uncles and children and grandchildren and nieces and nephews of somebody. Once-productive citizens who can be once again. But some things have to change, and soon.

Nebraska Corrections Director Scott Frakes has told the Legislature's Judiciary Committee that his department will probably fail to meet the mandatory deadline. Committee Chairman Sen. Steve Lathrop of Omaha said he is concerned that the state will be staring at an emergency if they don't act now. He asked Frakes what the Legislature can do to help.

Frakes said he and his staff take the matter seriously and will do what they can to reduce inmate population. But he had no recommendations other than to ask that senators support Governor Pete Ricketts' proposed budget request for $49 million for two new high-security units (384 new beds) at the Lincoln Correctional Center. Construction likely won't be complete until 2023, two years past the deadline.

I applaud the Corrections Department for wanting the new units to place the state's most dangerous in one central location in Lincoln, where they'd be less likely to cause problems that make it harder to rehabilitate other prisoners. The placement of high-security inmates at the rural Southeast Nebraska facility near Tecumseh was never a good idea. Given four dead people in two riots at the facility and on-going staffing problems, it's time to change the focus of that institution.

Committee member freshman Sen. Wendy DeBoer of Omaha, voiced concern that prison officials aren't doing enough to address the immediate problem. "I feel a little bit like we're in a house that's on fire, and we're installing fireproof tiles," she said.

Committee member Sen. Kate Bolz, of Lincoln, suggested lawmakers also look at state agencies outside of corrections -- such as parole, probation and the court system -- to help reduce the inmate population.

Nebraska Board of Parole Chairwoman Rosalyn Cotton says the board is working to release as many parole-eligible inmates as possible, but doesn't want to compromise public safety just to meet the deadline.

I like Bolz' suggestion. Great strides have been made with drug courts and veteran's courts that seem to be lessening the numbers of people headed to prison by diverting them to probation and programs that will help them instead of just warehousing them. Perhaps the proposed DUI courts and other rehabilitation programming would lessen the numbers going into the system. It's time for the Legislature to make those things happen, now.

Lawmakers set the overcrowding deadline as part of a 2015 prison reform package to hold the corrections department accountable in reducing prison crowding. Parole and rehabilitation emphasis in that package has yet to produce the desired results.

Revisit it and fix it!

Legislative Update

Working on property tax in the legislature

Multiple bills have been introduced with the goal of reducing the property tax burden this year. These bills are great conversation starters that will help us work towards finding a solution that benefits all Nebraskans. I do not agree with every provision of the bills as they have been introduced, and expect these bills will be amended and worked on throughout the legislative session as we build a viable piece of legislation. I will not be looking to increase taxes and will be working closely with my colleagues to find other means of lowering the property tax burden. I am so proud to represent District 17 and am dedicated to keeping our rural communities and small businesses vibrant and thriving, and property tax relief is an essential piece of sustaining our great communities.

Wednesday, Jan. 23, was the last day to introduce bills for the 2019 legislative session. I introduced an additional three bills: LB 581, LB 595, and LB 722.

LB 581, Require the use of generally accepted accounting principles in preparing budgets under the Nebraska Budget Act, was introduced as an opportunity to study the best way to create accounting uniformity, transparency, and accountability in the budgets of governmental bodies. LB 581 proposes requiring governmental bodies to use Generally Accepted Accounting Principles using the accrual basis when preparing budgets and financial statements as a possible solution. The recent budget crisis in the City of York demonstrates the necessity of creating uniformity in financial statements to help elected officials and residents understand where their tax dollar are being spent. I look forward to inviting and receiving input from all interested parties to the committee hearing so we can work towards the important goal of achieving efficiency and transparency in government.

LB 595, Change Office of Dispute Resolution to Office of Restorative Justice and Dispute Resolution and change powers and duties of the office, amends the Dispute Resolution Act to incorporate Restorative Justice into the Office of Dispute Resolution's mission and purpose. This approach would provide long-term sustainability to both the practice and the implementation of restorative justice in the statewide court system, primarily in juvenile justice arena as well as into the adult criminal arena. Over the last three years, the Supreme Court has implemented a pilot program has seen significant success in reducing recidivism of youth in the juvenile justice system through Victim Youth Conferencing and other restorative justice practices.

LB 722, Authorize seizure of gray devices under the Nebraska County and City Lottery Act, amends the Nebraska County and City Lottery Act to clarify the definition of "grey devices", which are machines that are used for a form of gambling and allow for the regulations and seizure of the grey devices.

National School Choice Week was celebrated at the Capitol this week. On Thursday, I proudly gave the prayer at the School Choice Rally and introduced Governor Ricketts as he signed a proclamation celebrating the occasion. School choice empowers parents with additional options to make the best decision for their children, whether that choice be private or public schools. I strongly support our public schools and am dedicated to ensuring our public schools receive fair funding, our children receive a quality education and parents maintain the ability to make the best choice for their children.

District 17 is home to three wonderful Extension programs. The Thurston County Extension Program is located in Pender and offers programs to school age children in addition to 4-H programs. The College and Career Readiness program offers future-first generation college students the opportunity to tour UNL, Real World Money classes that teach middle-schoolers financial management, and Connecting the Dots simulations that offer career exploration and education to high school students. Thurston County Extension's Library Program partners with local libraries to provide lessons to teach students about STEM oriented lessons. The After School programs help youth develop internal strength to resist risky behaviors to reduce tobacco, drug, and alcohol use. Thurston County Extension has made such a positive impact on our community. I am proud of their outreach and thank the directors for all their hard work.

The National Geographic Society developed the GeoBee in 1989 in response to concern about the lack of geographic knowledge among young people in the United States. Over more than three decades, 120 million students have learned about the world through participation in the GeoBee.

School champions, including Easton Blecke, will take an online qualifying test; up to 100 of the top test scorers in each state then become eligible to compete in their State GeoBee. The winners of the State GeoBees receive an all-expense-paid trip to the National Geographic Society headquarters in Washington, D.C., next May to participate in the GeoBee national championship, competing for cash prizes, scholarships and an all-expense-paid Lindblad expedition to the Galapagos Islands aboard the National Geographic Endeavour II.

GeoBee contestants included (front) Reese Rethwisch, Kael Frana, Cale Eischeid, Ava Elliott and Megan Magnuson. (back) Nina Hammer, Mason Ley, Jamison Meyer, Easton Blecke, Alex Rodriguez and Rylin Hall.

Reflecting on women who worked for God's justice

Not too many weeks ago our country celebrated Martin Luther King Jr. Day, honoring his memory and legacy in working for racial justice in the United States.

And February will be here soon, a time to celebrate Black History Month. So in keeping with the theme I thought I would write about two of my very favorite Christian heroes of history, who just happen to be women, Americans, and black.

Two heroes of the faith who I hold dear are Sojourner Truth and Harriet Tubman. I'm sure you have heard their names before; they are both important in American history. But perhaps you didn't know that they both found the courage to fight against the sin of slavery because they were deeply faithful Christian women who believed that God was liberating them and their people just as God had liberated the Hebrew people from Egypt.

Sojourner Truth was born into slavery but escaped in the 1820's. It was then that she encountered compassionate Christian friends and became a devout Christian herself. In the 1840's she said that she felt the Holy Spirit calling her and she began traveling with other abolitionists, speaking at rallies, and preaching passionately for the freedom of all slaves, and the equal treatment of African Americans and women. Twenty years before the Civil War and 80 years before women won the right to vote, Sojourner Truth made appeals to the white American public based on Scripture, exhorting them to repent of the sins of oppression. She was an incredible and dynamic preacher, on fire with the Holy Spirit, committed to God's justice.

Harriet Tubman was also a devout Christian, but while Sojourner Truth was God's prophet during America's troubled times, Harriet Tubman was God's new Moses, sending her again and again into dangerous territory in order to lead God's people to freedom. Harriet had escaped from slavery in Maryland only to turn back 13 times and rescue 70 enslaved people. She was guided by her faith in God, and the Christians who operated the Underground Railroad called her Moses. In her later years, she was the founder of an AME Zion church in New York and was known to always welcome a black traveler in need into her house and send him away again with a little money in his pocket even though she was poor herself.

I'm hoping that the U.S. treasury will soon keep its promise to put Harriet Tubman's picture on the new twenty-dollar bill. When the new twenty-dollar bill comes out, I'm planning on going to the bank, and asking for a withdrawal. When the cashier asks, "In what denomination?", I'm going to tell her in "Tubmans". That will be a great day.

These two fearless women of faith were not only liberators and justice-seekers in our American history, they were on fire with the Holy Spirit. I think Christian churches throughout our country, no matter what language we worship in or the color of our skin, should give God thanks for their example of courage in the face of injustice.

It's not easy to be a prophet or a freedom-seeker. But when God speaks and calls you to stand up and act, it's time to trust in God's vision of justice.

Catholic Schools Week observance

St. Mary's Elementary School kicked off Catholic Schools Week by hosting the Weekly Chamber Coffee on Jan. 25. At that time students presented information on the words "Learn," "Serve" "Lead" and "Succeed." Pictured are (left) Sophia Spieker, Lilyan Hurner, Nyamalo Kantai, Claire Reinke and Lucas Allemann. During the Chamber Coffee the students also sang several songs, under the direction of Jillian Allemann, proclaiming the importance of faith in their lives. The observance of Catholic Schools Week continues through Feb. 1.

LENRD Board moves forward with flow meter compliance notifications

All active wells which pump greater than 50 gallons per minute, within the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD) boundaries, are required to have a flow meter installed.

The board decided at the Jan. 24 meeting to move forward with sending out compliance notifications to the owners of irrigation wells impacted by the meter installation requirement who have yet to install a meter on their well.

"We have been working diligently with well owners in our district to help them understand the installation requirements, and have provided financial assistance to many property owners to incentivize them to install water meters. Irrigation well owners had a deadline of Jan. 1, 2018, while all other high-capacity well owners had until Jan. 1, 2019 to get their meters installed," LENRD General Manager Mike Sousek, said.

"We are here to answer your questions and develop a plan. We know there are cases where excavation may need to occur after the ground thaws, and we are working with those individuals. If you still need to install your meter, and you haven't developed an installation timeline and plan with our staff, you will be receiving correspondence that articulates the next step," Sousek said.

Those individuals who receive a compliance notification in the mail will have until April 1, 2019 to install their meters, if they wish to irrigate in 2019.

If meters are not installed by April 1, a notice of intent to issue a cease and desist order will follow. The letter will also provide reference to the consequences that could occur, if a well owner elects to ignore the requirement.

"Some individuals may still be asking, why meters?" Sousek said. "The board has long supported the use of flow meters as another groundwater management tool by first adopting an installation requirement for any new high capacity well in July of 2007. After the drought of 2012, it became very evident that we needed to be proactive in the management of our groundwater since numerous in-season shortages were reported across the district, from all types of groundwater users (irrigators, public water supply systems, livestock, and domestic) with a high number of impacts being felt in Madison, Pierce and Wayne Counties during the 2012 irrigation season. Quantity management sub-areas were delineated within those counties which required the installation of flow meters on irrigation wells. More recent changes to the District's Rules and Regulations for Groundwater Management made flow meter installation mandatory on all other high capacity wells effective January 1, 2018 for irrigation wells and Jan. 1, 2019 for other types of high capacity wells located within the District. With meters installed across the district, we can be better equipped to handle a drought and share the water in a manageable way. Meters not only protect the farmers, the domestic users, and the cities, but they also protect the resource."

Sousek added, "The meters protect current water users and allow for the development of new water users. They provide a fair and equitable measurement that will allow the LENRD to manage groundwater and provide policies that concentrate on sharing our most precious resource among all users. Should allocations ever be needed, all stakeholders will be treated equally through the meter program. Meters can also be a very effective learning tool in measuring how much water is needed to grow a crop."

In other business, eight board members recently took the Oath of Office and settled into their four-year terms. They are: Chad Korth, Meadow Grove; Scott Clausen, Norfolk; Scott McHenry, Norfolk; Bob Noonan, Humphrey; Kurt Janke, Wayne; Dennis Schultz, Wisner; Roger Gustafson, Emerson; and Joel Hansen, Wayne.

The next LENRD board meeting will be Thursday, Feb. 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the LENRD office at 1508 Square Turn Boulevard in Norfolk.

Nebraska Extension to offer land application training

Turning manure nutrients into better crop yields while protecting the environment will be the focus of eight Nebraska Extension workshops being held across the state this February.

"The workshops will help livestock producers put to use the nutrient management planning requirements of Nebraska's Department of Environmental Quality regulations and increase the economic value of manure," Leslie Johnson, UNL animal manure management coordinator said.

Participants who attend the day-long event will receive NDEQ Land Application Training Certification. Livestock producers with livestock waste control facility permits received or renewed since April 1998 must be certified, and farms must complete an approved training every five years. Re-certification will be held during the first two hours of the day-long land application training. Farm personnel responsible for land application of manure are encouraged to attend for either the initial or re-certification portion of the training.

The morning portion of each workshop will consist of a two-hour program including updates on changing regulations and other manure management topics, such as using weather forecasting to decrease odor risk and transferring manure off a livestock operation. Any farm staff responsible for implementing the farm's nutrient plan are encouraged to attend.

Pre-registration is required for all workshops. The initial training workshop cost is $60 per operation (includes one representative) plus $15 for each additional participant from the same operation to cover local costs including lunch.

For those who want to recertify, the cost is $30 for each participant for that portion of the workshop.

Pre-register at least eight business days in advance of the workshop you're planning to attend by using the online form at <http://go.unl.edu/lat>. The workshops are sponsored by the Nebraska Extension Animal Manure Management Team, which is dedicated to helping livestock and crop producers better utilize manure resources for agronomic and environmental benefits.

For additional information on the workshops and other resources for managing manure nutrients, visit <http://manure.unl.edu> or contact Johnson at 402-584-3818 or ljohnson13@unl.edu.

Farm safety website offers resources for families

According to a release from University of Nebraska Medical Center, more youth are injured working in agriculture than all other industries combined.

Marsha Salzwedel, M.S. Youth Agricultural Safety Specialist at Marshfield, Wisconsin's National Farm Medicine Center, says farm youth are exposed to a wealth of hazardous equipment and circumstances every day where they live, work and play.

"Tractors, skid steers, animals and ATVs are most often involved in on-farm youth injuries," Salzwedel said. "Those elements are so common to the family's day-to-day life we lose sight of hazards they pose."

Tractors always have been and continue to be the cause of most farm youth injuries and fatalities. Another common factor related to youth injuries is poor visibility for operators of large farm equipment.

Risk is great when youth ride in a tractor or on any farm equipment. There are many documented incidents of children falling out of a cab or off equipment and being injured or killed. Whether parents, grandparents or hired workers, equipment operators are distracted by the presence of a child in a cab or on equipment.

Implementing recommendations found at cultivatesafety.org can assist parents with safety practices. The website, produced by the National Children's Center for Rural and Agricultural Health and Safety (NCCRAHS), offers safety information for parents and youth, with a wealth of additional safety resources for youth and adults.

Salzwedel recommends that children ages 10 and younger be kept off work sites anytime someone's operating tractors, combines or other farm equipment. Ideally, small children should be in an enclosed area - fenced yard, etc. - if they're outside when equipment is used or animals are present.

"If children or teens want to help with work being done, guidelines at cultivatesafety.org can help assess their ability and readiness for performing specific jobs," Salzwedel said.

Assessment information addresses 35 different common farm jobs, with guidelines for 20 more jobs coming soon. Information ranges from simple tasks such as properly dressing and preparing for a job requiring a lot of bending, to cleaning grain bins or service alleys and safely climbing.

Training youth for specific tasks and working with them numerous times to ensure they're ready to accomplish it on their own is a safe way to approach a major new undertaking.

"Even if they seem to be doing the job okay, don't hesitate to check on them periodically," Salzwedel said. "Taking a proactive approach to safety is always the best practice."

Commenting on recently read book

A nice weekend, giving us a break before more cold socks in. The sun shining helps the attitude immensely.

As a native of York county, I was interested when the folks declared "This Blessed Earth" would be the book for One Nebraska, One Book this year. It was about a year spent with a farm family in that county from one harvest to the next.

I became even more so when our governor announced that he would not promote it because the author was an "activist" who had not always been kind in his writing. Of course, that created a run on the book; I'm told there are 95 "holds" just at the library nearest us. So, I got online and ordered; I think I got the last one because Amazon has announced today that they are restocked.

The Farmer's Wife
By: Pat Meierhenry

I learned a lot!

Even though I had detasseled acres of corn, I never knew the science behind the development of those hybrids. Even though I had set many siphon tubes, I had not followed the development of the center pivots.

Even though I had read a bit about the proprietorship of Pioneer seed corn, and have driven by the buildings east of York on Highway 34, I had no idea how stringent the rules were for anyone planting their seed.

This guy was given access to a family involved in a farm that has been in the family for six generations; the book ending in the birth of the seventh. It points out that corn and soy beans have not been cash crops for at least four years, and that farm land values have dropped accordingly, with loans at the bank being called in, sales of equipment and pickups way down, and, at least for now, beef actually making some money.

It brought back so many memories, of weather, and markets, and long days that lasted into the night, of repairing things that seemed to break down at crucial times, and on and on. This guy has been lucky in that his daughter's husband is a crack mechanic. Think of the time and money that saves him.

This family is also involved in the Canada pipe line dispute, but that is not the center of the story. I'd say it's well worth the read. As a reviewer in the New York Times says, "Everyone in America who eats should read this."

That's all of us, folks, including Pete Ricketts.

Checking stored grain requires caution

I just looked at a long range weather forecast this morning and it is predicting that temperatures generally will be near or slightly below average for the next couple of months. While we all enjoy unseasonably warm weather this time of year, cold temperatures are a benefit for a couple of reasons. Anyone with a feedlot appreciates not having sloppy pens and anyone with grain on the farm doesn't have to worry quite as much about grain going out of condition in the bin.

Notice I said "quite as much" because it can still happen so it is important to check the condition of stored grain at least once a month over the winter, and more frequently if we start getting periods of unseasonably warm temperatures. Warm weather can warm grain unevenly in the bin with the warmest grain being on the south and southwest sides of the bin where the sun hits it.

When grain temperatures in the grain mass vary by 10 degrees or more, there will be convection currents in the bin which can result in moisture migration. Warm air will rise in the warmer grain, often carrying moisture with it, and then settle and drop in the cooler grain.

The moisture in the air can condense on the cooler grain, resulting in wet spots and this grain potentially going out of condition.

John Wilson
Extension Educator

This is the same as moisture condensing on the outside of a glass of ice tea in the summer, warm humid air comes in contact with a cooler object.

To avoid this problem, you need to run aeration fans as temperature rise to warm the grain mass evenly. This can prevent costly problems of grain going out of condition. You may need to do this several times, several weeks to a month apart, depending on how quickly outdoor air temperatures rise.

You can check grain temperature with a thermometer on a grain probe. Check the temperature several feet below the surface at different locations in the bin. Check the temperature around the bin walls as well as near the center of the bin.

Remember, whenever you enter a bin, you should use a safety harness and lifeline and have someone else stay outside the bin in case of an emergency. Sometimes grain can crust at the surface and a void below the crust can develop as the grain dries and shrinks. There is no way to tell if this has happened just by looking in a bin.

If you break through this crust, you can easily be trapped and suffocate if emergency measures aren't taken. Instruct the person outside the bin to immediately turn on the fans if you should become trapped in the grain, then call 911. If this should happen to you, cup your hands in front of your face to create a pocket of air for you to breathe without grain by your nose and mouth. Under no circumstances should the person outside enter the bin to try to free you.

When the aeration fans aren't running, remember to close roof hatches to prevent rain and snow from getting into the bin. Cover the fan when it's not running to prevent problems caused by the chimney effect that can draw in moist air at the bottom of the bin, rewetting the grain there.

Running an aeration fan for a brief period can be a good way to do a quick check to detect if problems are developing in your bin. To do this, you will need another person to help. Have someone else turn on the fan after you are situated outside with your face by the roof hatch. If that first blast of air when the fan is turned on is fresh and cool, this is a good sign. However, if the first blast of air has a musty smell or feels particularly warm or humid, this indicates the grain in the bin may be going out of condition.

Whenever there are signs of grain heating or going out of condition, run the fan continuously no matter what the season or weather. Also, feed or sell this grain as quickly as possible. Grain quality never improves during storage, but it can decline if you don't manage it properly.

So protect your investment of the grain you have stored in the bin. I tell farmers if they have a 10,000 bushel bin and corn is worth $3.40/bushel, that's worth $34,000. They should check their farm stored grain as often as they would check an envelope laying on a shelf in their shop with 340 $100 bills in it.

For more information on managing stored grain, contact your local Nebraska Extension office.

The PTI Event – What you can fit in a Semi Trailer

The ACS team here at Central Valley Ag believes that educating our growers is one of our most important jobs. That is why we focus so much of our time and effort into it. Every spring we do a cooperative event with Northeast Community College around planter technology and how the things they are learning at school will be put into play that spring during harvest. We also place a lot of time and effort into our Innovation Sites and events led by Mick Goedeken. Those events put not only new and old Agronomy products on display and against each other, but also Agronomy practices to see how they perform in different areas. And while the Innovation Events are the culmination of those sites, we don't stop there. We record and publish the replicated trials so that you see them in the field, and how they perform. The 2018 Data Harvest Book can be found online at cvcoop.com. And while all of that would seem like a lot, perhaps even enough to many, I am excited to be able to invite you all to one more.

Friday, February 1, 2019, we will be hosting the Precision Planting PTI Trailer at our 81/20 location in Norfolk, NE. PTI stands for the Planter Technology Institute and serves as a mobile event center. The PTI trailer is a 53-foot enclosed semi-trailer that slides out on both sides to make a 50 x 18 mobile auditorium for our morning or afternoon session.

For those of you with an extremely good memory, you might recall that we talked about the Plater Technology Institute last summer. Precision Planting's Planter Technology Institute is a 200-acre research site where Precision Planting tests products, agronomy principles, and pushes the boundaries of how to profitably grow crops. It is an event that I encourage you to make it to at least once, even though it is Illinois. Yes, it is in Illinois. I know that many of you are now preparing to tune out, because if their research is in Illinois, it can't possibly be relevant to us? And if that is what you think, you couldn't possibly be more wrong.

Where the PTI farm is located might be where some extremely good ground is located, but they also go to great lengths to test in widely varying conditions as well. And while the ground there might be predominately tilled and good in organic matter, think about this. If they can show an ROI in those conditions, imagine what it could do in some of our conditions.

But the PTI Trailer we are hosting isn't just a rehashing of their PTI event this summer. It is also a very different and unique experience compared to the Precision Planting Winter Conference that some of you attended just a week ago. Precision Planting spent the 2018 growing season looking at how technology, agronomy, and equipment can all be used to maximize profit on farms like yours. The results and things learned from the past growing season, are now being shared with growers across the country in this mobile event center. Within the walls of this auditorium, we will have a large video screen to show up close action of how Precision Planting products work in the field. At the same time, there are multiple demonstrations that will take place inside the trailer as well. It is not your normal classroom setting, nor is it anything like a normal planter clinic.

So consider this your formal invitation. We know that in 2019, maximum profitability on your farm will be based on the management decisions that you make with your inputs and your equipment. Come spend a morning or afternoon with 60 other growers who want to be the best growers they can be. If you can join us for the Morning, or Afternoon session Friday the 1st, with lunch served for both groups at noon, then please register at this link: <http://www.precisionplanting.com/centralvalleyag>. I speak for all of our ACS team when I say, that I hope to see you next Friday at our location near Randolph.

Radon Action Month observed

Radon is a colorless, odorless, tasteless, invisible gas that is present in some types of soil. The types of soil in northeast Nebraska usually contain very high levels of radon. The Environmental Protection Agency's action level of radon is 4 pCi/L. This means that any test result over this level is considered dangerous to your health and steps should be taken to minimize radon exposure. Twenty-one thousand Americans die each year from radon-induced lung cancer. A simple test can tell you whether your home has radon. Now is the time to take precautions and test your home. Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department (NNPHD) offers residents of Cedar, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne Counties radon test kits for $5. Test kits are available at NNPHD or your local county extension office. For more information about Radon visit www.epa.gov/radon, call Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department at (402) 375-2200, 800-375-2260 or stop by the office at 215 North Pearl Street in Wayne.

NET unwraps a sweet story about chocolate in Nebraska

NET's newest television documentary "Nebraska: The Chocolate Life" is a decadent journey about the sweets we love. It premieres on NET, Nebraska's PBS & NPR Stations, at 8 p.m. CT on Friday, Feb. 8. For most of its history, chocolate was consumed as a bitter beverage, but with the addition of cane sugar, it became a celebrated confection. "Nebraska: The Chocolate Life" traces the history of chocolate, follows its journey from pod to package and takes viewers across the state to meet passionate chefs and creative craftsmen who put their signature stamp on this ancient treat. The documentary visits chocolate makers and chocolate lovers in several communities, including Columbus, Greenwood, Kearney, Lincoln, Omaha, Sidney and Tekamah in Nebraska, and Kansas City, Mo. In Greenwood, Kevin Baker started Baker's Candies in 1986, and it is now a family-run operation. In 2017, the company produced as much as 400,000 pounds of chocolate, resulting in at least 30 million of its famous meltaway candies. At the Mill Coffee and Tea in Lincoln, Shinya Takahashi, associate professor of nutrition and health science at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, sells Nama Choco chocolates he prepares in a special kitchen in his mother-in-law's basement. The Japanese treats are a way for Takahashi to bring a taste of home to family and friends in Nebraska, especially for the Valentine's Day holiday. Also in Lincoln, explore the city's fascinating chocolate history with historian Ed Zimmer and longtime Russell Stover employee Margaret Lehl. The two share stories about the former Russell Stover factory in the Haymarket. At Christopher Elbow Chocolates in Kansas City, Mo., viewers can see hand-painted and airbrushed chocolates that often take days to make. Now a premiere chocolatier who creates bonbons and truffles, Christopher Elbow has a degree in restaurant and business management from UNL. During several short segments of the documentary, he discusses the ancient history of chocolate and shares the basics of growing, producing and storing it. Susie Robison of Tekamah started her love affair with chocolate as a single mother making and selling candles with her kids. Today, she's expanded her business to include a floral shop, boutique, restaurant, bakery and Serendipity Chocolates. Robison describes how she makes all of her chocolates with real cream, real butter and "real love." Cup of Coa is a luxury hot chocolate, made with all natural ingredients. It's produced in Nebraska and hand-packed in Kearney at Barista's Daily Grind. Business owner Jasmin McGinnis explains that she keeps the recipe for the tasty hot chocolate mix under wraps, while her non-coffee drinking customers appreciate it being on the menu. In Sidney, viewers meet a chocolate making duo offering their signature sweets just twice a year – on Valentine's Day and Christmas. At Mueller's Fine Chocolates, fondant made by Bertha Mueller and her daughter Pam Uhl, comes in as many as 60 different flavors. For just the cost of postage, the company mails its chocolates to fans in the U.S. and around the world. Melissa Stephens of Omaha explains how she went from making handmade chocolate cherries to pay for her doctorate degree to having her store, The Cordial Cherry, garnering attention from Oprah Winfrey and NBC's "Today Show." Stephens has designed more than 200 cordials, including her favorite, the snowman. In addition to stories about chocolate concoctions across the state, "Nebraska: The Chocolate Life" explores how chocolate brings people together. In Columbus, chocolate inspired author Deb Burma wrote the women's Bible study "Living a Chocolate Life," and developed a themed event, using recipes and chocolate as a way to "break down walls." On radio Thursday, Feb. 7 and Friday, Feb. 8, NET will explore more about the decadent story of chocolate, plus offer gifts to share with those you care about, including cordial cherries, flowers, DVDs of "Nebraska: The Chocolate Life" and tickets to a sweet chocolate tasting event on Saturday, April 27, at Course Restaurant on the Lincoln campus of Southeast Community College. "Nebraska: The Chocolate Life" repeats at 3 p.m. CT on Saturday, Feb. 9 and 6:30 p.m. CT on Sunday, Feb. 10 on NET.
