Amy K. Miller-Wayne County Attorney

Amy K. Miller is no stranger to her new role as Wayne County Attorney. She's been the Assistant Wayne, Thurston and Pierce County Attorneys, serving for 13 years at the latter. Wanting to represent her home community, Miller decided to run in May's primary elec-

"I've always enjoyed doing prosecution and doing county attorney work," Miller said. "My family is here in Wayne and I wanted to serve my community and county.'

Since being officially sworn in in January, Miller has gotten busy, often coming in very early in the morning to catch up on unfamiliar cases and projects. "I enjoy it," Miller said. "It's been a lot of catch up. It's extremely busy but I do enjoy it and it's going well." She also accomplished a goal she set version program and we've gotten that started now," Miller said.

classes instead of being adjudicated. The program is run entirely from grant money and the Wayne County Commissioners voted unanimously to start Wayne's program.

Miller said she's working hard to keep her office's budget down and to continue to make Wayne county communities as safe as possible. She's also looking forward to working with new officials and getting to know members of Wayne's surrounding communities.

A month into the job, Miller's focus on the job isn't waning.

"I worked hard to get elected and I worked hard on my campaign and I'm coming into the job with the same intensity and same hard work and I want to do my very best for the citizens of Wayne County," Miller said.

Wayne County Commissioners approved a new juvenile diversion program and heard the Road Department's One and Six Year plan at Tuesday's meeting.

Wavne County Attorney Amy K. Miller and Northeast Nebraska Juvenile Justice Partnership Officer, Sherry Peterson came before the commissioners to request approval to use Community Based Juvenile Service funds to begin a diversion program for children aged 11-18. Other surrounding counties have had the same program, but Wayne County never used the grant money that funds the program.

"I was already familiar with the diversion program as the Deputy Pierce County Attorney," Miller said.

Miller began working with Peterson to begin Wayne's program. The hope is that juveniles can have an opportunity to get assistance to deter delinquency.

"A lot of times juveniles make mistakes, it doesn't necessarily mean they need to be adjudicated as a delinquent if they screw up," Miller said.

The program would provide support and structure for the juvenile and their

"Maybe they need some counseling or their family needs some support or they need mental health services that have not been available to them. Sometimes when you adjudicate it's almost a selffulfilling prophecy," Miller said. "You tell a kid that they're bad and that they're a at 9 a.m. in the Wayne County Courtdelinquent, they're going to continue to room.

be a delinquent and if you can offer services to prevent that, why wouldn't you?" Because the program is funded by grant money, Wayne County tax payers won't foot the bill for services offered. The commissioners unanimously approved implementing the program and authorized Miller to get it up and running.

Mark Casey, Wayne County Highway Superintendent presented the commissioners with his One and Six Year roads plan. Casey said there were 26 projects on the One Year plan and 50 on the Six Year. Many of the projects on the One Year plan are already underway or in the planning stages according to Casey. He also told the commissioners that there were only a few projects from last year's One and Six Year plan, but that can be

"It's not like we didn't get a lot of work done, we just got a lot of work done that didn't show up on the One and Six," Casey told the commissioners.

Wayne Street and Planning Director Joel Hansen came before the commissioners to discuss a proposed subdivision along Centennial Road. Wayne Area Economic Development Director Luke Virgil talked about partnership between WAED and the County, and District Court Clerk Deb Allemann-Dannelly requested the commissioners move her discussion for replacement courtroom tables to the next

City audit, revolving loan fund request on council agenda

By Clara Osten clara@wayneherald.com

The City of Wayne "has good cash reserves and being very pro-active in financial matters" was the message Wayne City Council members received during Tuesday's meeting of the council.

Terry Galloway with Almquist, Maltzahm, Galloway & Luth, PC, presented the fiscal year 2017-208 audit to the council and noted that the audit was an "unqualified opinion, which gives the city the highest level of assurance" in regard to its find-

He went on to say that compared to other cities, which spend approximately $210 per person on taxes, Wayne only requires $156 per person on taxes.

Galloway also praised the city for a number of other sound financial practices and commended those who make the decisions.

The council also took action on the LB840 Revolving Loan Fund Review Committee's recommendation for a $250,000 loan to Talon Capital, LLC in connection with the purchase of the former D.V. Fyre Tech facility.

Innovation Studios Makerspace Partnership arrives at Wayne Public Library

The Library Innovation Studio has arrived at Wayne Public Library and is set up. An Open House is scheduled for Friday, Feb. 8 from 4-6 p.m.

Governor Pete Ricketts announced in 2018 that 18 Nebraska libraries will be the initial local participants in Nebraska's Library Innovation Studios: Transforming Rural Communities project to create library makerspaces.

The Nebraska Library Commission was awarded a National Leadership Grant of $530,732 by the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) for this partnership project with the University of Nebraska Lincoln (UNL), Nebraska Innovation Studio, Nebraska Extension, Regional Library Systems, and local public libraries.

The Wayne Public Library is one of the initial local library partners that will host one of the four rotating makerspaces.

In the meantime, community residents are encouraged to drop into the library to talk about the equipment, volunteer to serve on the Community Action Team or as a trainer/mentor, and invite library staff to visit your group or organization.

"This partnership demonstrates how our Nebraska communities can use technology and education to empower community residents to create, learn, and invent," Gov. Ricketts said. "By expanding the skills of the workforce in our communities, supporting entrepreneurs, and encouraging lifelong learning, this partnership reinforces our vibrant business climate and supports community development.'

The project uses Library Innovation Studios makerspaces hosted by public libraries to support community engagement and participatory learning experiences by providing access to technology and innovative learning tools not readily accessible locally. This is expected to stimulate creativity, innovation, and the exchange of ideas to facilitate entrepreneurship, skills development, and local economic development.

The Nebraska Innovation Studio-the UNL makerspace—is the creative and collaborative hub of UNL's Nebraska Innovation Campus, where makers and builders team up to conceptualize, prototype, and iterate projects that solve problems and influence change. The primary focus is on creativity, interdisciplinary collaboration, entrepreneurship, and education.

Nebraska Extension is one of three components of UNL's land-grant mission. It is dynamic educational organization that puts research to work in local communities. businesses, and individuals' lives. Extension professionals are recognized for subject matter competence, excellent teaching skills, and community presence. They live and work in Nebraska communities across the state and engage with local and state partners in educational program delivery to address critical issues identified by con-

Dec. 19, 1925, the daughter of Karl and Margaret (Kunstler) Rosenbaum in Munich, Germany. Her mother, devoted stepfather, Nathan Ullman, and sister arrived in the United States, fleeing Nazi Germany, on July 18, 1938. Edith attended Hunter College in New York City earning a Bachelor's of Science Degree in Chemistry. She worked as a biochemistry technician in cancer and photosynthesis research at Sloan-Kettering Institute for Cancer Research and IBM, respectively. While working full-time and raising a family she also founded and joined community organizations that paved the way for affordable housing where racial discrimination was not tolerated. As Edith aged she became hard of hearing, which became a barrier to socializing and social activism. Edith then led a chapter of Hearing Loss Association of America where she worked to develop awareness of the needs of people who are hard of hearing or deaf. In her later years, she developed her artistic side and wrote a memoir and created many pieces of pottery and jewelry.

Edith moved to Wayne to be near family in 2017. When people asked about her experiences as a girl in Nazi Germany, she articulately described her life to local audiences and helped people see how she transformed her experience as a Jewish child who experienced hatred and persecution, into advocating for justice for those who are discriminated against. Edith married Bernard Shapiro on May 9, 1948 in New York, N.Y. To this union, two children were born; Charles and Cindy. In 1986 she married Lenny Harris who died in the fall of 2016. Edith moved to

The Mayor and City Council held its annual retreat at the Wayne Fire Hall on Friday and Saturday, Jan. 18-19. The Mayor and Council discussed 20+ topics. Some topics were discussed at length and others were discussed by just scratching the surface of the issue.

The Mayor and Council will cluded better debt coverage in the likely pass a resolution at its next electric and sewer funds (signifymeeting acknowledging its goals for ing increased rates and/or lower the next one to five years as they were discussed at the retreat.

One and Six Year Street Improvement Program

Typically referred to as "the 1 & 6 Year Plan," the Council approved the annual plan for improving certain street segments in the next one to six years. If the street segment doesn't appear on this plan in the one year list, it cannot be completed by the City in 2019. While there is flexibility to amend this plan if need be throughout the year, since the plan is approved every year amendments are rare. One of the main projects on this plan for 2019 is the replacement of the existing street and storm sewer on Nebraska Street from Seventh to Second Streets. This will greatly improve drainage issues along this stretch of street.

announced BlackHawk and Diamond Rio will headline the 2019 Wayne County Fair. For more than 20 years, BlackHawk has shared a unique sense of harmony with their voices, their songs and their fans. It's a harmony that has sold over 7 million albums, scored some of the most distinctive country radio hits of the '90s, and still draws tens of thousands of fans to their electrifying live performances. Today BlackHawk continues to honor its past as it forges its future, and does it all with a commitment that takes their music - and the harmony - to a whole new level.

BlackHawk's 1993 self-titled Arista debut album launched with the smash single "Goodbye Says It All", followed by the Top 5 hits "Every Once in a While", "I Sure Can Smell the Rain", "Down in Flames" and "That's Just About Right". The album certified Double-Platinum, and the band received an ACM nomination as Best New Vocal Group Of The Year. BlackHawk followed up with the hit albums Strong Enough, Love & Gravity and Sky's The Limit, which collectively featured such hits as "I'm Not Strong Enough To Say No", "Like There Ain't No Yesterday", "Big Guitar", "Almost A Memory Now", "There You Have It" and "Postmarked Birmingham".

In 2001 BlackHawk member Van Stephenson passed away from complications from an aggressive form of melanoma.

Since Stephenson's death, the band and its fans have raised nearly a quarter of a million dollars for The Van Stephenson Memorial Cancer Fund at Nashville's Vanderbilt-Ingram Cancer Center.

The remaining members regrouped and soon returned to the album charts with their Greatest Hits - dedicated to Stephenson and featuring his final track "Ships Of Heaven" – as well as 2002's Spirit Dancer and 2011's Down From The Mountain, along with a touring schedule that brought the music to fans like never before.

Hot-shooting Tigers outscore LCC in L&C title game

By MICHAEL CARNES For The Herald

HARTINGTON — When LCC and Osmond met a few weeks ago, the Bears used a big second half to pull away and beat the Tigers.

This time, it was Osmond's turn. The Tigers shot a blistering 63 percent from the field and pulled away in the second half, handing the Bears an 81-64 defeat in the championship game of the Lewis & Clark Conference tournament Monday night at Hartington Cedar Catholic High School.

In an exciting, fast-paced first half, the Tigers got out to a quick 10-3 lead as Justin Maertins hit a pair of threes and two more baskets to get the top-seeded Tigers going, then built a lead up to as many as eight points before the Bears closed the gap to two at the half.

Osmond never cooled down from the field, hitting 9-of-14 from 3-point range and never allowing the Bears to get the lead, avenging that loss from earlier in the month and claiming the conference title.

'We just didn't shot the ball very well," coach Todd Erwin said after the game. "Their man defense is tough and quick and low, and it caused us a lot of havoc. It made things tough for us."

The Bears stayed with Osmond in the first half, tying the game twice early in the second period on baskets by Austin Hall and Ty Erwin.

Osmond built their lead back up to as many as eight points at 29-21 with 4:52 to go in the first half, but Erwin hit a pair of treys and added another basket to get the Bears back within two at 31-29 with 2:21 to go.

Osmond's Merrix Denn hit a trey to build the lead back up to five, but Noah Schutte converted a threepoint play in the final minute of the period to make it a 34-32 game at

The Tigers continued to shoot the ball well and built an 11-point lead late in the third quarter, but Izac Reifenrath drained a 35-foot rainbow as the buzzer sounded to keep LCC in the hunt at 56-48 going to the fourth period.

Schutte and Erwin scored back-toback baskets to make it a four-point and the LCC coach thought the momentum was shifting his team's direction at that point.

"We got into our 1-2-2 and tried to trap and speed it up and that helped us get within four, but they adjusted and were able to get the ball in the

Osmond responded with seven straight points, capped by a 3-pointer by Graysen Schutze to make it 63-52, and the Bears were never able to get closer than nine after that.

The Tigers did a good job of pressuring Reifenrath, limiting the senior to 10 points and making it difficult for him to get the Bears offense

"They guarded him well and got him out of his comfort zone," Erwin said. "He had a good game, but nothing came easy and that was because of their defense. They did a great

By MIKE RENNING

The other night I was having trouble falling to sleep and I'm not a sheep-counter.

I started recalling all the cars I had driven over the years.

At this stage of my life I have owned the lion's share of the vehicles, but in my driving infancy, I basically shared a car with either my brother or my Mother until I headed off to college.

My brother and I shared a very classy 1970, two-door Ford Maverick for a while.

It was a beautiful puke-yellow and would top out at the current speed limit – which was 55-milesper-hour – going downhill.

Is it a property tax problem or a school funding problem?

www.paulfellcartoons.com

By J.L. SCHMIDT

Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

A tax is a sum of money demanded by a government for its support or for specific facilities or services, levied upon incomes, property, sales, etc. Thanks dictionary.com. It is also a burdensome charge, obligation, duty, or demand. Taxing, says our source, is wearingly burdensome.

Just ask the 49 members of the Nebraska Legislature. Just ask the cadre of reporters who have covered the issue, some of us for decades. Just ask the lobbyists who try to either get some or avoid some for their clients. Ask the governors who have lost their jobs over the issue or have fought

So, here we are again. There are a number of options on the desks of the members of the 106th Legislature's spanking new (5 newbies, 3 veteran committee members) Revenue Committee. Some offer elimination of sales tax exemptions or tax credits and incentives. Others look to increase the sales tax on things like alcohol and tobacco and haircuts. Another proposes an overall increase in the state sales tax rate. One slices an exemption that serves only the state's wealthiest to the tune of $83 million.

Some seem like good ideas that would create lively discussion and a fresh take on much-needed tax reform in a state that ranks among the highest in property taxes. That's the one tax that has caused the greatest pain amongst the agriculture, business and homeowner interests. Not the only pain, just the greatest.

But any discussion is clouded by Gov. Pete Ricketts who adamantly opposes tax shifts and tax increases (he equates the two) and a Legislature that wants to avoid getting bogged down in filibusters and the 33 votes necessary to break the logjam, let alone having to come up with 30 votes to override the likely gubernatorial vetoes. That's just politics.

How do we get meaningful tax discussion started and, just maybe, something definitive passed? I suggest we re-frame the problem with the question, is it a property tax problem or a school-funding problem?

New Revenue Committee Chair Sen. Lou Ann Linehan of Elkhorn framed the issue correctly for the Omaha World-Herald before the session even started. "I don't think you can fix (property taxes) until you fix school funding," she said. The problem is that too many school districts — about 175 of the state's 245 districts — don't get any of the "equalization" aid from the state. That needs to be

Then there's the debate over K-12 spending. Education Committee Chairman Sen. Mike Groene of North Platte, a bulldog conservative, said that schools could reduce spending without affecting educational outcomes. The Nebraska State Education Association – the statewide teacher's union -- argues Nebraska lags behind in its support of public education and cuts do affect quality.

Committees (Groene is on both) would have collaborated and held public hearings, most likely in an interim study, to look at the joint problem and worked toward a joint solution. Past Legislatures might have embraced the opportunity to forge a grand bar-Sadly, times have changed. With geting your opponents from both parties. That's on every senator who says that committee elections should no longer be by secret ballot so the party faithful can keep lists. That's on term

Shame on every one of you. If there was ever a non-partisan issue -- a true Nebraska issue -- that needs a solution, this is it. Now is the time. The Nebraska school children and teachers have waited long enough. The taxpayers have certainly waited way too

Get off your elephants and asses and work together to figure this thing out. I don't expect to see you all sitting around a campfire toasting marshmallows and singing Kumbaya. But I do expect you to be cooperative and civil and non-partisan and expedient in your deliberations.

Just do it. Now!

Legislative Update

As our kids started driving, our barking area became a used car Catching up with District 17 events

Since I was elected to the Nebraska Unicameral, I have been disappointed and disheartened that we did not recite the Pledge of Allegiance each morning before beginning the legislative day. Reciting the pledge is a small but important tribute we can make to veterans that have given everything to protect our freedoms. I am proud to be leading an effort to ensure that we recite the Pledge of Allegiance each morning before starting the legislative session. My colleagues have been excited to join me and we have secured pledge leaders for each day of session so far.

On Saturday, Jan. 26, Nebraska celebrated our 45th annual Walk for Life. Each year, thousands of Nebraskans gather at the Capitol steps to celebrate life and march to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Student Union to stand for life. I had the opportunity to share information about my bill LB 209 and join fellow elected officials to support the pro-life movement. This vear, we heard from Catherine Adair, a former Planned Parenthood employee. After being pressured into an abortion at 19, she began working at Planned Parentabortions. After seeing the aftermath of a second-trimester abortion, she could no longer participate in the horror of what she was doing. I am thankful for women like Catherine who share their stories and continue to stand for life. We are so blessed to live in a pro-life state!

I introduced LB 307 on behalf of the Department of Environmental Quality in the Natural Resources Committee this week. The bill updates statutes relating to the revolving funds administered by the Department to allow more flexibility as authorized by federal law. The ability to transfer funds will provide the state with flexibility to allocate the funds where the demand for community infrastructure improvement is greatest. I want to thank South Sioux City administrator Lance Hedquist for coming to testify in support of the bill. LB 307 was advanced to General File from the Natural Resources Committee unanimously, I am looking forward to passing LB 307 and seeing its benefits to South Sioux City and the rest of District 17.

I also introduced LB 222 and LB 223 in committees this week. LB 222, Change the Volunteer Emergency Responders Incentive Act, hood and witnessed thousands of cleans up language to simplify the Volunteer Emergency Responders Incentive Act to ensure that all qualifying emergency responders can receive the $250 tax credit the act allows. LB 223, would provide a state-sponsored insurance program for members of the Nebraska National Guard, adds language into law for a common practice in the National Guard regarding the sale of National Guard sponsored life insurance, to ensure that National Guard members may continue to have access to the life insurance benefits. I look forward to working with my colleagues to pass both of these bill.

District 17 is home to three wonderful Extension programs. The Wayne County Extension Program is located in the City of Wayne and offers a stellar 4-H program and other Ag related programs for school age children. The 4-H program reached over 60 percent of the age-eligible youth in kindergarden-12th grade in the county in 2017. Also in 2017, Nebraska Extension in Wayne County, along with current and past 4-H'ers and industry leaders, hosted an agriculture literacy event designed to target 4th grade students to learn about "life on the farm". Wayne County Extension has made such a positive impact on agriculture and our community. I am proud of their outreach and thank the directors for all their hard work. To learn more about extension programs in your county, please call their office or visit their website.

The state is divided into three geographic areas: 1) The Rocky Mountain System; 2) The Great Basin and Range Land in the west-

Important dates in the state history were the telegraph in 1861, Railroad completed east to west in 1869, and in 1890 when the leader of the Morman Church advised Mormans to cease the practice of polygamy. In 1896 after much conflict Utah became the 45th state in the Union. The state averages 237 days of sunshine a year. The desert gets only 5 inches of rain a year, while the mountain areas can get up to 40 inches. The ski resorts are happy to see this turn to snow. Utah's most famous body of water is the Great Salt Lake which has no outlets and depends solely on rain and snowmelt each year. Today forestry, farming and mining are only two percent of the workforce as the state's economy includes medical research, health care, the aerospace industry, tourist trade and the computer industry.

Humbling yourself in your walk with the Lord

I have had the greatest conversations and experiences over the past few months in regard to giving and receiving. The following are just a few examples:

·Our high school students went to Shopko during Christmas and purchased gifts for some children in our community. I was in awe of how excited our students were about purchasing gifts so that they could make a child smile on Christmas morning. Those students truly embraced the power of giving to others. They didn't do this for the recognition. They simply did this because they wanted to bring joy to

·I had a conversation with a parishioner about how humbling it was when they had a loved one die. They said the outpouring of help was almost overwhelming. They did admit that they struggled with receiving the help at first. They finally realized that they needed to accept the help. People wanted to help them and they needed to re-

For any of us who have received help from others, we understand how humbling it can be. I think that sometimes we feel if we have to ask for or accept help that it is a sign of weakness or failure. It is actually a sign of strength. When you don't ask for help when you need it, you assume all of a burden that might easily (and gladly) be shared. You cult to keep things in perspective turn a blind eye to the evil occur-

We need the support praise Him for the wonderful plans of Him and others. We hear in the He has in store for you. Take a step Beatitudes that "Blessed are those back and look at the big picture. who are poor in spirit for theirs is Look at those around you and ask the Kingdom of God". Jesus makes yourself, "What can I do for someit clear that being humble is a very one else today?" Refrain from Judging - It's so we are humble, we are showing easy to judge others – after all, it's human nature. Judging, though, leads to a clouded mind, burdened heart, and a soul that is robbed of joy. Remember, you aren't perfect either. No one is perfect except for Here are a few tips to help you God. Forgive others of their faults and overlook their flaws.

Bear Wrongdoings Patiently Focus Outward – It can be diffi- – This is not to say that you should at times, especially when you're ring around you; however, when someone treats you cruelly, do as Jesus said and "turn the other cheek" (Matthew 5:39). Demonstrate your strength and godliness by responding to unjust accusations and wrongdoing with patience and understanding.

Be Quick to Forgive - One of the greatest things that we can do to demonstrate humility is to forgive those who have hurt us. When we forgive, we are showing others that we are not insisting that our way be carried out. The next time someone says or does something unkind to you, try not to get frustrated. Instead, be patient, try to understand their side of the story, and ask God for the strength to help you truly forgive them.

Serve Others - Jesus came to Earth not just to redeem our souls but also to serve. Follow our wonderful Savior's example and serve others freely and without reservation. Give your time and talent to your church, teach a Sunday school class, give to your favorite non-profit organization, or sit and listen attentively to the troubles of your spouse, friends, coworkers, or friends. When we serve others, we focus outward and help establish the Kingdom of God here on Earth!

Humility isn't easy, but it is necessary if we want to become more Christ-like. "No one reaches the kingdom of Heaven except by humility" ~ St Augustine

Week full of theater experiences

A welcome respite from the cold before another "front" approaches. We had a "wear the garb of your favorite pro team" in honor of the Super Bowl at church today; I actually saw a Steelers shirt! A lot of red, of course, a Dorsett jersey, one that said Tharnish, and another one that said Vick, of all things. It makes you want to ask them how they decided to support these folks. Oh, and a fair share of Chiefs; the best one was all red, and said, "A Cornhusker on Saturday, and a Chief on Sunday." Can't beat that. I've had a fun theater week, as

'Take Charge of Change' is the focus of the 2019 Women in Agriculture Conference

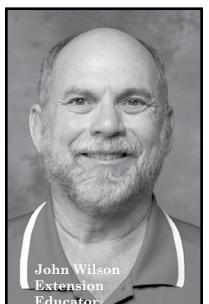

Women producers looking to increase their business-management skills are encouraged to attend the 2019 Women in Agriculture Conference on Thursday and Friday, February 21-22. Organized by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, the conference will be at the Holiday Inn Convention Center, in Kearney.

The Women in Agriculture Conference allows women to build relationships with each other, attend workshops and gain valuable knowledge that will help them support their own farms and ranches. The theme for this year's conference is "Take Charge of Change."

A great lineup of speakers includes:

· Tim Hammerich, an Agribusiness Recruiter and the host of the "Future of Agriculture" weekly podcast. He is the Founder of AgGrad. com, which helps students and young professionals find their place in modern agriculture.

·The keynote speaker, Marji Guyler-Alaniz, is President and Founder of FarmHer.Through FarmHer she is updating the image of agriculture by showing the female side of farming and ranch-

·Joan Ruskamp is the capstone speaker. She and her husband, Steve, operate a feedlot and row-crop farm west of Dodge. She received the Livestock Industry Appreciation Award from the Nebraska Corn Board and the Farm-Her Hall of Fame award. In addition, she has been active in her community as a 4-H leader, EMT, and other local organizations. Joan has been a 25 year 4-H leader and currently serves as Chair on the Cattleman's Beef Board (CBB).

The conference also features more than 30 concurrent workshops on production, market, financial, human and legal risk. I don't have time to list them all, but a few that caught my eye include:

The 4 Rs of Manure Management: The Right Place

I would like to focus on the right placement of our manure and its nutrients. Of course, what type of manure we are dealing with makes a big difference, and the first thing we generally think of is what kind of animal the manure came from. I am going to look at it a little differently and say the most important factor in placement is actually the amount of moisture in the product.

The term "manure" covers a wide variety of different products ranging from the nutrient and organic-rich water in a lagoon or settling basin to a dry product like composted or even dehydrated poultry manure. These products are going

Since we already covered variable rate application, I am going to talk here about how we place manure relative to the soil surface not where we place it in the field. Lagoon water or the nutrient-rich water in a settling basin that catches runoff water across open lots will generally have less than 2% solids. Since that product is 98%+ liquid we can often run it through a pivot or pump it through a hose attached to an injector out in the field. The pivot will water about half of the ammonia into the soil, and the injector should get nearly all of the ammonia under the soil surface depending on its design.

By Tim Mundorf

CVA Nutrient

Management Lead,

Guest Writer

Getting manure into the soil vs. laying it out on top of the soil surface allows us to take advantage of the ammonia nitrogen in that manure that will volatize off into the air if we leave it on top of the soil surface. The same is true with liquid dairy, cattle, or hog manure stored in a pit. These products normally have higher "solids" values but are still 85-98% water. These pit stored manures tend to have high nitrogen content with large ammonia values. That ammonia N can be put to use by our crops if we can get it incorporated into the soil. If we do not get it incorporated right away, we lose that ammonia nitrogen. Typically, every day manure lays on top of the soil surface you lose 20-30% of that ammonia N depending on temperature and other factors.

How we get that manure incorporated into the soil makes a difference as well. Injecting the manure, and getting good closure of the slots allows you to take credit for all of the ammonia N. If you use some type of coulter system to mix the manure with the soil but still leave some manure on the soil surface you probably need to discount that N credit from the manure. If you apply a liquid or solid type manure on the soil surface and disk it in later you will need to discount those ammonia N values by about 30% for every day it sits on the soil surface. We don't normally think about the P, K, or other nutrients in manure and how surface application or incorporation affect them. These nutrients are not easily lost to the atmosphere like ammonia. We probably should think about how placement affects them more. I am a big fan of no-till. I like how it cuts down on soil erosion especially on hilly or rolling ground. When we place manure on the soil surface in a no-till system we set ourselves up for some nutrient loss through runoff and erosion. Water quality problems associated with nitrogen and phosphorus from agricultural land are going to continue to be an issue for producers. We need to think about how we can limit loss of manure nutrients especially N & P to surface water. It may make sense to disc in manure vs. leaving it on the soil surface to try to get that phosphorus worked into the soil and not just laying on top of it. Every case is different and needs to be considered on its own merits but don't just dismiss the idea of getting manure worked into the soil because you don't normally till.

As you deal with dryer forms of manure such as feedlot manure or poultry manure look at two things: 1) How much ammonia N do I have in this product? If there is a large amount get it worked into the soil to take advantage of that N. 2) How can I best limit N or P loss to the environment? Maybe that answer is; do not till because the erosion loss will be too great or the soil health benefits of no-tillage outweigh the benefits of getting the manure into the soil. But maybe the right answer is the negative short-term impact to the soil is outweighed by getting that P & N into the soil where it cannot run off as easily. At least ask yourself or others you trust these questions.
