NNPHD suggests for those with city water, pay attention to announcements regarding water quality. Plans approved for street improvement project

Acting as the Board of Equalization, members of the Wayne City Council tabled two resolutions during Tuesday's City Council meeting.

The resolutions deal with street and sanitary sewer costs in Street Improvement and Sanitary Sewer Extension District No. larly since it was formed in September of

Council members were told additional details about the project and district residents and is available online to obboundaries needed to be obtained before a vote could be taken. Jon Mooberry with JEO Consulting spoke at the meeting on the plans and estimated costs for the 2019 Nebraska Street Improvements, Second to Seventh Street

He told the council the project is ready to go out for bids and two options will be available to contractors. The first would require substantial completion by Nov. 15, 2019 and the second would require the work to be substantially completed by September of 2020.

Mooberry said the estimated cost for construction of the project is $1.19 million. This is slightly higher than original estimates because of unknown soil conditions that may require extra materials and time to be handled properly.

Following Mooberry's presentation, council members voted unanimously to approve the resolution moving the project

Council members listened to an update from Bryce Meyer, representing the Recreation and Performing Arts Community Task Force.

Meyer said the task force consists of representatives from Wayne State College. Wayne Community Schools and the city of Wayne. The group has been meeting regulast year.

A survey has been distributed to area tain public input on the possibility of three projects in the city - an indoor pool, additional gymnasium space and a performing arts facility.

The deadline for completing the survey is April 1 and the task force hopes to have 4,000 surveys completed by that time. The results will then be tabulated and information brought to the city council at the end

In other action, council members passed a resolution and ordinance authorizing the sale of two outlots in Western Ridge II Addition to the Wayne Community Redevelopment Authority. The three readings of the ordinance were waived, allowing the project to move forward and allow for building on the par-

Flood Damage

With the recent flooding in rural Nebraska and many communities, the City of Wayne in comparison, was very fortunate to avoid incredible damage. We had no loss of life and no massive loss of property (that we know of). But with that being said, the City did have significant damage to the airport and trail. The City declared a state of emergency with the State of Nebraska on March 14 due to existing and anticipated damage. This was to make the city eligible for emergency funding should it become available. The city filed with the Nebraska Emergency Management Agency a preliminary damage assessment for public property at over $1 million. This includes largest contributor to City general significant damage to a segment of fund revenue. Most people would say property taxes, and they would be correct that the City uses property taxes to operate. But did you know that under 18 percent of the City of Wayne's general fund revenues comes from property taxes!

Property taxes are just the third

(FY18) the City's largest general fund revenue stream (28 percent) was from franchise fees. Those revenues include fees imposed by the City from the Electric Fund, Water Fund, Wastewater Fund and others, including natural gas, cable television and telephone.

Sales tax currently contributes the second highest amount to the general fund at about 24 percent of revenue. The remaining 30 percent comes from a variety of sources including the State of Nebraska (roads funding, Handi-Van reimbursements, etc), activity center, pool memberships, occupation motel/hotel taxes, police dispatch, Senior Center meals, and many other smaller sources.

Wayne wins four events at WSC Indoor

The Wayne High track team had yet to get in an outdoor practice before Saturday's WSC Indoor Invite, but performed well enough to earn four first-place finishes.

Coach Dale Hochstein said the team has not been able to get in any good workouts due to last week's weather, but showed up and performed well in their first competition of the season.

"The team competed very well considering the lack of decent training conditions with several athletes stepping up to fill in for injuries," he said. "It was good to at least be able to use the day for a solid workout."

In girls action, Wayne got wins in the 3,200-meter relay and the pole vault. The 3,200-meter relay of Gabi Mever, Kiara Krusemark, Kubie Klausen and Frankie Klausen broke the tape in 11:09.68, while Masyn Dorey took top honors in the pole vault with a best mark of 9 feet, 8 inches.

Second-place finishes came from Kendall Dorey in the 200 and long jump, Meyer in the 800 and the 640-meter relay of the Doreys, Ashton Boyer and Mikaela McManigal.

Thirds were earned by Sidney Biggerstaff in the 55-meter hurdles. and in the 1,600-meter relay with Frankie Klausen, Krusemark, Erin O'Reilly and Meyer.

In boys action, Wayne earned wins in two events. Aaron Reynolds won the 200-meter dash in 24.81 seconds, while Reece Wilson Jaqua took top honors in the pole vault with a best mark of 10-6.

Crookston sweeps Wildcats Blue Devils Track in NSIC opening series

The Wayne State baseball team ror. played its "home" opener at Omaha Westside over the weekend due to wet grounds, but the home-awayfrom-home-field advantage did not serve them well.

Minnesota Crookston took a three-game series from the Wildcats in the Northern Sun Conference opener for both teams, finishing it off Monday with an 8-7 win at Omaha Westside High School.

On Sunday, Minnesota Crookston used strong starting pitching to shut down Wayne State College in both games of a doubleheader, winning 4-0 and 6-4.

In the opener, Golden Eagle starter Zach Rustad blanked the Wildcats with a one-hit shutout. The lefthander fanned seven Wildcats, allowing just a Kyle Thompson single in the fourth inning, along with three walks in recording the shutout. Crookston used a solo homer to take a 1-0 lead in the second and added three runs in the sixth inning to account for their offense.

In the second game, the Golden Eagles were able to hold off a late Wildcat rally to secure the doubleheader sweep.

Minnesota Crookston plated single runs in the third and fourth innings followed by a three-run seventh to grab a 5-1 lead before the Wildcats tried to rally in the bottom of the seventh. Brendan Madsen's opposite-field double down the left field line brought home Peyton Barnes and Garrett Graveline. Wayne State had the tying run on base when Bryce Bisenius walked, but Crookston was able to get out of the jam and added an insurance run in the top of the ninth. Wayne State had a chance in the bottom of the ninth, starting the inning with pinch hits from Colin Chick and Jake Nielsen. Madsen walked to load the bases with no outs, and Alex Logelin's sacrifice fly to center scored Chick, but the Wildcats could not do any more damage.

Thompson led a 12-hit attack with four hits, including two homers and three RBI. Chick was 2-for-4 with a double and Lorenzini and Logelin both had doubles. Aaron Ras took the pitching loss, allowing four runs in two innings of work.

The Wildcats (9-7, 0-3 NSIC) are scheduled to host Bemidji State in a Northern Sun Conference doubleheader on Thursday, with a location and time yet to be announced because of field availability and wet field conditions in Wayne.

We should not be seeking the 'lite' church

In Faith

By Michael Buchhorn

Pastor, Grace Lutheran Church

It seems that these days there is a "light" everything. There is light beer, light potato chips, light salad dressings and the list goes on. These products boast that they have fewer calories, less cholesterol or trans fat, and yet they claim to retain all of the great taste of the original. I'll admit that some of these products are pretty good. Most are probably at least marginally more healthful to eat than their "heavy" counterparts. But there are some things that just don't stack up with the original.

I got to thinking about this a while back when I saw a cartoon that had a church that proclaimed itself, "The Lite Church". The sign out front read, "The Lite Church, 24 percent few commitments, home of the 7.5 percent tithe, 10 minute sermons, 45 minute worship services. We have only eight commandments your choice, everything you've wanted in a church – and less!"

Now I have not actually seen churches with such a sign. But I have seen the attitude. "Everything you wanted in a church and less." Like those other light products, the light church makes the claim that it offers all of the good part of the original without some of the drawbacks. It is a tempting offer, after all who doesn't enjoy getting a bargain? But is life with God something

There is not an alternate plan for those who desire less commitment. To follow Him means to give our life

ly given into death on behalf of a guilty one. Our salvation is a gift. It is freely given to whoever believes in Jesus Christ. But because it is freely given does not mean that it is without cost.

Is it natural for those who have been given such a costly gift to say, "What is the least that I can give in return?" No, as the hymn put it, "Love so amazing, so divine, demands my soul, my life, my all.' The light church causes us to ask the wrong question. Rather than asking, "What is the least that my Lord should ask of me?"; the people of the church should rightly ask, What shall I render to the Lord, for all his benefits to me?" (Ps. 116:12).

If we see the church as simply laying down rules and regulations to keep us in line, we probably will want to search out the light church. But if we see the church as people living in fellowship with God and each other, the people of God growing in the grace and knowledge of the Lord, and people growing to-Elementary School $70.00 gether as the body of Christ, then I pray you join me in saying "forget the light church. USDA funds encourage cover crops

The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is leading a state-wide effort to enhance soil health management through the Advanced Cover Crop Initiative. Landowners interested in applying for funding to establish cover crops should submit their application at their local NRCS office by Friday, April 19. According to NRCS, the purpose of this initiative is to provide funding to producers to plant cover crops to improve soil health. Participating landowners will be required to plant cover crops for a total of five years on the same acres and share their what they've learned.

Producers participating in this initiative will have the option to conduct strip trials of various cover crop management strategies. Producers will receive funding assistance to demonstrate soil health management by planting cover crops. NRCS and involved partners will facilitate using these projects for public field days and the development of case studies showcasing the changes observed. NRCS' Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) will be used to fund this initiative. Producers selected will receive this EQIP funding to plant cover crops for five years. For more information, visit NRCS at the USDA Service Center or www. ne.nrcs.usda.gov.

Alfalfa is the forgotten crop

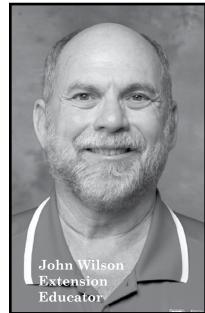

Often alfalfa is the forgotten crop on the farm. Confession: I know it seemed that way on our family farm when I was growing up. Looking back, I'm sure we could have managed it better. We can take that cutting next week... We won't worry about those weeds, we'll get rid of most of them with the first cutting... That stand looks OK, we'll harvest it one more year... I'm sure there were other poor choices we and other alfalfa growers made.

With grain prices where they are and seasonal demand for alfalfa, it can be one of the most profitable crops on the farm. If you don't think hay prices are good, ask anybody with cows trying to purchase enough hay to get them through until pastures are available for grazing. Our winter forced producers to supplement with hay when they were planning to graze stalks. Here are a few things you can do to improve your alfalfa.

Check alfalfa for winter injury: Alfalfa will soon green up and start to grow, at least those plants that survived the winter. Hopefully winterkill won't be too bad this year, but it pays to assess your stand... especially on older stands. We didn't have snow cover early, but temperatures were moderate most of that time. During the most recent bitter cold spell, most fields were protected by a blanket of snow.

Evaluate your own stands early this spring. Older, dryland fields that have fewer than 30 new shoots per square foot coming from two or three plants may need to be planted soon to a different crop and new fields planted to alfalfa. Very productive sites, such as irrigated fields, should have at least 40 shoots per square foot from four to six plants. Anything less should be a strong candidate for rotation. Stands tend to lose about one-tenth of a ton in yield potential for every shoot below

early shoots are four to six inches tall. Since some shoots begin growing later than others, stands with enough plants but slightly low shoot density may be alright, especially if shoot height and distribution is fairly uniform. However, if plant density is low or shoot growth is not uniform, yields probably will be lowered.

Add Grass to Thin Alfalfa Stands: What do you do if you checked your fields for winter- year, but next year they should be your alfalfa. If alfalfa shoots are kill and find you have a marginal stand? You might not want to try to establish a new stand of alfalfa this spring because of rotational restrictions from herbicides applied last year or you prefer to establish new stands in the fall when there is less weed competition. In those cases, thin alfalfa stands can be rejuvenated by interseeding grasses and converting them to pasture or haying them as a grass-alfalfa mixture.

Most alfalfa fields start to lose stand and yield after cutting hay several years. Sometimes winterkill thins stands. As your stands begin to get thin, consider interseeding grasses into it. Not only might you extend the useful life of your alfalfa field by several years, you also will develop exceleral areas of your fields when the lent hay or grazing for your live-

The most common grasses interseeded into alfalfa are orchardgrass and smooth brome, but other grasses like wheatgrasses or Garrison creeping foxtail (excellent on a wet site) also can be used. If you plan to use this field as pasture, include other legumes like red clover for short-term pasture or birdsfoot trefoil if you plan to graze this as pasture more than three years. This will add diversity to animal diets and help assure good legume growth for several more years.

You must get these new seedlings off to an early start, so be sure to interseed as soon as soils thaw and the soil is dry enough to allow tractor and drills to operate properly. If your alfalfa still is relatively thick and vigorous, also take a very early hay cutting well before buds form, probably during the first week of May. This will allow sunlight to continue to reach new seedlings below the alfalfa.

Then use your good judgment regarding competition from the existing alfalfa for subsequent hay cuts. By mid- to late summer you could be able to start rotational grazing. The new seedlings won't contribute much forage this grass into existing alfalfa takes can improve both the land and the livestock.

Dormant Spraying for Alfalfa Weeds: It's too early and too wet now, but it is amazing how quickly the seasons will change. Don't put things off, soon it will be spring and your alfalfa will be greening up and limit your options for control weeds. Be prepared to manage weeds in your alfalfa before they get a stronghold.

Weeds like pennycress, downy brome, mustards, cheatgrass, and shepherd's purse are common in first-cut alfalfa. They lower yields, reduce quality, lessen palatability, and slow hay drydown. If you walk over your fields during the next few weeks when any remaining snow is gone and it gets a little dryer, you should be able to see their small, green, over-wintering growth.

If your alfalfa variety is Roundup Ready, you can spray almost any time without hurting your alfalfa. However, once conventional alfalfa starts growing, you can't control these weeds very well without also hurting your alfalfa. Fortunately, if you treat your alfalfa as soon as possible during upcoming spring-like weather, you can have cleaner, healthier alfalfa at first cutting.

Before spraying these weeds, be sure they are causing economic damage to your alfalfa. Spraying will give you more pure alfalfa but may cost some in total tonnage. Several herbicides can help control winter annual grasses and weeds in conventional alfalfa. They include metribuzin, Velpar, Sinbar, Pursuit, Raptor, and Karmex. They all control mustards and pennycress, but Karmex and Pursuit do not control downy brome very well.

To be most successful, you must apply most of these herbicides before alfalfa shoots green up this spring to avoid much injury to a welcome addition. Interseeding green when you spray, growth may be set back a couple weeks. If it timely planting and haying, but does get late, use either Raptor or Pursuit because they tend to cause less injury to your alfalfa. Timing is crucial when controlling winter annual weeds before alfalfa starts to green up. Take advantage of the nice weather when it occurs.

I don't know when planting season will start, but I do know that when it does, it will feel like we are going 100 mph. When we are in the tractor, with that planter hooked up behind us, we find ourselves in a state of conflict. We want to know that we are doing a good job, but a stopped planter doesn't get anything done either. So, we rely on the monitor to our right to feed us information. Today, I want to remind everyone of the about what is happening out the back of our planter. Notice that I used the term planter monitor and not display. While these two terms have been used interchangeably through the years, they are not. Some OEM monitors are displays that

What is far more useful and comes from a modern planter monitor is information about seed spacing, singulation, doubles, skips, downforce, and gauge wheel load on each and every row. More useful yet is when the monitor in your cab maps that information, so you don't have to watch it like a hawk. Instead, you can pay attention to the other aspects of your planter, the field, and the fence. Then, you have a map to see if things are a bit askew when you can divert your attention.

But what the modern planter monitor, or specifically the Precision Planting 20/20 lets us do is go beyond the seed tube. We have talked before about the SmartFirmer, and some of its capabilities as a sensor, but for those that don't remember, it allows us to see into the seed trench. Of course, its abilities to sense Organic Matter and CEC are useful, but some of the other pieces are incredibly important as well. The three things that it sees and tells you as you are in the field that you get on the go is if you are getting the furrow clean or dragging in trash, the soil temp you are planting into, and the soil moisture you are planting into. Gone are the days of asking what the right seeding depth are. If you are below 1.5" and have good moisture and soil temps, then you are in good shape. If not, make an adjustment.

But for as much as I would like this conversation today to be about convincing you to upgrade your planter monitor or add some SmartFirmers to your operation before planting starts, that may not be practical. So instead my call to action for you today is to reach left instead of right, and use the tool you have on that side of the cab. For those of you that are still wondering what I am talking about, it is the door latch. The most important thing you can do is get out and dig. It is essential whenever conditions change. And it does not happen often enough. We field far too many calls every spring where the operator is concerned about something they are seeing on their display. But when we ask, "Did you get out and dig?" it is often met by silence.

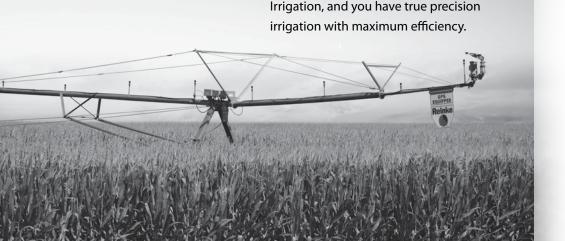

So for those of you that don't have all of the latest and greatest tools on your planter to be your eyes from different angles, please get out and check things out a few times a day. Even if it is just five extra minutes after the planter is loaded, that's a start. And for those of you that have all the latest and greatest, guess what, you still need to dig too, if for nothing more than confirmation of the sensors readings.

At the end of the day, if you have dug for 30 minutes each day, you should feel good and have some confidence in the job you are doing. If planting takes you ten days, then that is five hours you have added to your season. As my Grandma used to say, "If you don't have time to do it right the first time, when will you find time to do
