Residents encouraged to attend visioning session with Wayne Area Legacy Fund

Communities that work together, grow together. The Wayne Area Legacy Fund (WALF) was established to help maintain long-term viability within our area communities. Affiliated with the Nebraska Community Foundation (NCF) a 501(c)3 charitable organization, WALF was founded in February of 2017.

"The community support for starting the foundation has been strong," Bill Dickey, WALF council chairman said.

Dickey continued to explain that there are several programs the Legacy Fund helps to support. "We have on-going projects we support fundraising for, such as The Majestic Theatre and The Wayne County Historical Society," he said. Recently, WALF provided $15,000 in a matching grant in cooperation with NCF to support the after school children's program that will begin this fall.

"Community input is key to our overall success and the areas that we focus on improving," said council member Liz Onder-

On Thursday, May 30, at 6:30 p.m., WALF will be hosting a visioning session are invited to attend.

"The purpose of the visioning session is to brainstorm ideas about where we can focus our time and future funding that will make a difference for communities in our area," Onderstal said.

The event will be professionally facilitated and all ideas will be put on the table. Dickey said that their fund should have additional resources available next spring. "Eventually we would like to get the endowment to $1 million," Dickey said. "We are about half way there with current commitments that are being fulfilled, but we don't want to wait, either, to start supporting the community projects where we can."

With a $1 million endowment, the WALF council hopes to award up to $50,000 a year in grants to not-for-profit organizations or key projects within the area communities.

"We've seen what other communities are doing with their foundations and we are excited about what the Legacy Fund can also provide for Wayne and other area communities," Eric Knutson, council member said.

For more information on how to become a founding member, those who have committed funding to the endowment before Sunday, June 30, or have ideas on projects, contact Bill Dickey or attend the WALF er to make a difference. The event is being Community Visioning Session on Thursheld at the Wayne Country Club and all day, May 30 at 6:30 p.m. at the Wayne Country Club.

New coffee shop aims to offer everyone a seat at The Table

By Sarah Lentz editor@wayneherald.com

What started as a conversation about long-term dreams for Wayne State College's Christian Student Fellowship (CSF) group has now turned into an actual, brick and mortar space well on it's way to becoming a new coffee shop in Wayne.

Justin Raulston, CSF director, said that a quick remark during a conversation has led to the purchase of what used to be Miss Molly's downtown location.

"I made an offhand comment about if I had unlimited resources I'd buy a building in Wayne and we'd open a coffee shop," Raulston said. "The guy said, 'well, my business partners and I, love investing in things, why don't you find us a building and we'll buy one?""

Raulston's dream became a reality much quicker than he expected.

"The building happened in a week. It was God thing that we started talking about it and the day after our investor said to start looking, this building dropped in price and our guys came and looked at it," Raulston said. I think a week later we made an offer and a month later it closed. The coffee shop, located at 213 Main Street will serve breakfast and lunch at least six days a week and be open from 7 a.m. until 9

"There's just no place other than a bar to go hang out if you're a college student at night, or anybody for that matter," Raulston said. "We just always wanted a place for people to come and hang out, especially in the eve-

That place to hang out will be named The Table and is slated to open sometime around Wayne's Chicken Show.

"That's kind of the heart of our ministry, our model is just sitting around a table and getting to know people and hanging out and and even a semi-private meeting space in Running The Table will be Lisa Lenihan and Kelly Williams, who will serve as house managers. They and Raulston are excited to be able to offer the community grab-andgo food options, plenty of small, cafe tables

"We want to be known as a community place that is open to everybody and is used by everybody," Raulston said.

The Table is expected to hold a soft open, hopefully before the Chicken Show, and Raulston said they are planning a ribbon cutting once school is back in session.

Impaired drivers cited on Memorial Day weekend

Troopers with the Nebraska State Patrol (NSP) removed 14 impaired drivers from Nebraska roads during Memorial Day weekend.

Memorial Day weekend traditionally marks the start of the summer driving season. It also marks the start of NSP's "100 Days of Summer" initiative, designed to encourage safe driving throughout Nebraska.

Over Memorial Day weekend, troopers conducted special enforcement operations in many areas across Nebraska. During the three-day weekend, troopers arrested 14 people for Driving Under the Influence.

In addition to those arrested for DUI, troopers also issued citations for Speeding (315), Open Container (14), Minor in Possession of Alcohol (2), Seat Belt violation (12), Child Restraint violation (5) and No Proof of Insurance (13).

Troopers also assisted 199 motorists in need of help on Nebraska roads. Any motorist who needs assistance while traveling in Nebraska can call *55 to reach the NSF Highway Helpline and speak directly with an NSP dispatcher.

As the summer driving season is officially underway, NSP reminds motorists to practice safe driving by always wearing a seat belt, avoiding distractions, following traffic safety laws, and never driving impaired.

Jack Beeson

Jack D. Beeson, 90 of Wayne, died Sunday, May 26, 2019 at Providence Medical Center in Wayne, surrounded by his family.

Memorial services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday, June 3 at the First Presbyterian Church in Wayne. Burial will be in Black Hills National Cemetery at a later date. Visitation will be from 5 -7 p.m. Sunday, June 2 at the church.

Arrangements are under the direction of Waterbury Funeral Service of Sergeant Bluff, Iowa.

Jack Delmer Beeson was born March 17, 1929 on a farm near Hunter, Okla., the son of Dell and Olive (Neff) Beeson. He attended country school for four years, Hunter grade school for four years, then transferred to Garber, Okla. High School. The reason for transfer was his interest in agriculture and FFA. Jack showed steers at Oklahoma City and Kansas City and was President of what was considered the strongest FFA in the county at the time. After graduation he worked for Honey Creek Ranch in Oklahoma and Riffel Polled Herefords in Kansas. Then he poured concrete at cement elevators for a while, but he liked cattle raising better.

On July 12, 1950 he became Herdsman for Hervale Farms near Wayne. Jack served two years in the U.S. Army during the Korean Conflict. He came right back to Hervale Farms where he showed cattle in over 20 states and Canada. Jack remembered, "Early we used boxcars on railroad then semi trucks and later gooseneck trailers. We had the National Champs Female in 1965. Made several herd bulls Gold Trophy Bulls by point system." In 1954, Jack met Beverly Ann Lunstra (Bev) of Beaver Creek, Minn. It was love at first sight for Jack, but it took him three years to convince Bev. On June 19, 1957 they got married in Beaver Creek, Minn. In this union one son, Jock, was born. He traveled with his parents from a young age until he went to college.

Jack was very proud of the accomplishments he and Bev received showing and selling bulls and also in the friendships they had developed across the country and especially with Nebraska and Midwest cattle people. Jack and Bev showed cattle in more than 50 Nebraska State Fairs. He was a board member of Wayne County and Nebraska Farm Bureau and believed strongly in their programs. Jack served as Beef Superintendent for 4-H breeding beef at the County Fairs for many years, and more than 20 Nebraska Cattleman Classic shows and sales. He loved his family more than cattle, but was always so happy when Jock, and Bev would receive particular awards for their achievements in livestock activities.

Jack was first a Deacon and then an Elder for the First Presbyterian Church in Wayne. He also served on many committees which he thought

After graduation from Caribou High School in 1961, Jan earned a bachelor of science degree from the University of Maine at Orono in History and Biology Education in 1965. She began her education career as a World History teacher at Limestone High School in Limestone, Maine. On March 5, 1968 Jan married Steven

C. Dinsmore in a civil ceremony in Basel, Switzerland. They had a second military-style wedding ceremony March 9, 1968 on Wiesbaden Air Force Base in Germany. Jan taught for the US Department of Defense at Wiesbaden from 1968-1972, while Steve completed his military service and his

The couple returned to the states in 1972 and settled in Muncie, Ind. where Steve completed his doctorate in Counseling Psychology at Ball State University. Steven C. Dinsmore II was born in 1973. Jan completed the major part of a master's degree in Counseling at Ball State during that time. In Muncie, the family developed life-long friendships with five other families, all of them spending their summers together exploring the US. After Steve graduated, the family took up residence in Wayne, where the couples' careers began at Wayne State College.

Known to family, friends, and colleagues as Jan, she earned an MAE in History; and she completed requirements for an MSE in Counseling, both degrees conferred by Wayne State College in 1981. Jan's employment at WSC began in 1981, with adjunct teaching assignments. In 1987 Jan took the administrative position of Director of Extended Campus, now known as Continuing Education. During the years she served as director, Jan developed WSC Extended Campus services from a budding program idea to a comprehensive regional program, offering a wide array of classes and pleted in 1996, Jan was offered a contract in perpetuity to teach in the department of her choice for the coming semester, and the semesters to follow. Over her career years at WSC, Jan taught in the Schools of Social Sciences, Business, and Education. Her teaching focused on the human capacity to learn from history and to create a better world for future generations. The world was her classroom, and the lessons she learned throughout her travels made their way into her syllabi each semester. She advised many WSC students majoring in Education, both on campus and via Skype and/or phone across the state and throughout the region for many years before retiring from WSC in December of 2017. Jan taught students the importance of the lessons learned from the Holocaust. She was an invited guest to receive an insider's look at the Holy Land and brought her passion for teaching tolerance to the classroom. She organized several Holocaust survivors' visits to the WSC campus during those years. Jan's students continue to teach her message of tolerance world-wide. Jan will be remembered among her colleagues and friends at WSC and in the Wayne community for her strong educator voice in support of the diverse richness that exists within the human experience. The daughter of a potato farmer, Jan never lost her love for Maine.

She returned many times to her roots in Aroostook County to visit family and friends. She also enjoyed spending summers in New Harbor, Maine, sharing a cottage they named 'MelMarJan' with her sisters. Jan had a passion for travel. She lived in Rodenbach, Germany for 10 years with her husband and her son, Steven. They traveled over many parts of Europe together. She visited Stonehenge in England multiple times when people could still walk amongst the stones (all visitors are kept away by a fence today). Over the years she traveled the world, from Patagonia and the Arctic Circle to Nepal and Tibet and most places in between, with family, friends, and co-workers. Jan's knowledge of history made her a natural tour guide for her travel companions. Every trip was an educational adventure. Her zest for travel is a gift she freely gave others. They in turn have shared the travel bug with more folks. Her gift is a legacy that will keep on giving with every trip that her family, her students, her friends, or their descendants make. Never complacent, Jan was an advocate for others. Often, she was a voice for those whose voices were silenced or unheard. An example of that advocacy was her participation in the 2017 Women's March in Washington, D.C. Now, free from pain, Jan walks unfettered amongst the stones, and her spirit soars amongst the stars.

Survivors include her husband, Steve Dinsmore of Wayne; her son, Steven Dinsmore II of Lincoln; sisters, Melba (Elden Churchill; in recent years, Paul Light) of Brooksville, Fla. and Mary Lou Zavon of Sacramento, Calif., her brother, Joseph Davis (Joy Taylor) of Sanbornville, N.H.; numerous nieces and nephews, grand-nieces and grand-nephews, as well as close friends.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Ida (Wardwell) and Henry

Davis of New Sweden, Maine.

Northeast Nebraska reflects on Mental Health Awareness month

The Wayne Herald - Thursday, May 30, 2019

For The Wayne Herald

May is Mental Health Awareness Month, and as the month comes to a close, it's important to remember that mental health isn't something that should be ignored until a problem arises, it's a conversation that should continually exist.

"I think there's such a focus on mental health in negative terms, when really, we need to look at mental health as a continuum, like physical health. You can have good physical health, and not so good physical health. We really need to look at mental health along the whole spectrum, not just in illness," said Alicia Dorcey, Director of Counseling at Wayne State College Counseling

Mental Health Awareness Month offers a great opportunity to increase the conversation about mental health and what it means to take care of one's self. According to Mental Health America, over 44 million American adults have a mental health condition. "I think sometimes we just think,

'Oh, I don't need to worry about it until I'm sick,' but we need to take care of our mental health," Dorcey She listed a few things that we need to do to take care of ourselves mentally, including eating healthy, a collection of people to talk to and feel supported by.

"I would say depression and anxiety are the number one reasons people seek treatment, and that's pretty much across the board nationwide and age-wise," Dorcey said.

According to the Anxiety and Depression Association of America (ADAA), anxiety disorders are the most common mental illness in the United States, but even though they are highly treatable, only 36.9 percent of those suffering receive treat-"Tve always been an anxious kid

Since taking medication, while my anxiety can still get the best of me, it has helped in so many aspects of my life including school, work and my social life," recent WSC graduate and local, Alex Gorden said.

Dorcey stated that, to anyone who thinks they may need help, your regular doctor should be the first person you visit, because what feels like depression could be something else en-look like depression because they are similar. Second, seek treatment. You don't have to go to counseling forever, but you can go and get assistance and get through the hurdles that you're dealing with now," Dorc-

As far as the discussion on mental health has gone, while the communication is becoming more open, there is still one area that is being pushed to the side, and that is men with mental health issues. "That's kind of a taboo subject for most men, especially in rural Nebraska. We tend to keep our emotions to ourselves, not ask for help, we want to be seen as tough so they oftentimes suffer in silence," Dorcey

With society telling men to "man up" or "tough it out" there can be many times when men feel unheard or like they don't have anywhere to

"I've struggled with having Bipolar Disorder my whole life as well as Post Traumatic Stress Disorder from abuse. It took me a long time to get the help I needed, time that cost me a lot of friends, education and years of my childhood. Whenever I mentioned it people would say, 'it's puberty,' 'cowboy up,' or 'you'll grow out of it,' never to get help. To anyone struggling that's what I say, get help," local Kyle Hamilton said.

With the recent flooding that has happened many farmers have lost their entire livelihood, which can take a great toll on a person both physically and emotionally.

The suicide rate for farmers is huge. Natural disasters can just wipe away their whole livelihood," Dorcey said.

The Center for Rural Affairs offers free counseling that can assist farmers, especially those that have been affected by flooding.

"The stigma associated with mental illnesses, prevents many people from seeking mental health care," WSC Sociology professor, Dr. Monica Snowden said. "Suicide deaths have risen more than 30 percent since 1999 according to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention. Suicide is the 10th leading cause of death, the second leading cause of death for people aged 10 to 34, and it is estimated that 18 to 22 veterans die by suicide each day. Moreover, suicide deaths are greater in rural areas, and for people aged 10 to 24, the suicide death rate is double their urban counterparts. While we know there is a shortage of mental health care providers in rural areas. increasing access to mental health care alone will not be enough. The stigma surrounding mental illnesses must also be acknowledged and changed." It's also important to remember that while mental health is something that should be kept in mind it's not an identity, someone with depression is more than their depres-

"As an aspiring mental health professional, I believe mental health is something that everyone should be aware of, but also is not something that we, as people, should identify as. Identifying one's self as a mental illness leaves the door open for negative stigma and poor self-image, WSC graduate, Caleb Green said.

In the end, mental health is something that should be checked up on like physical health. If you need counseling, it's okay to go and you should get the help you need. We need to change the rules that have been set for us and say what needs to be said instead of holding in every problem because we can "deal with it

Northeast Nebraska celebrates Memorial Day

Though the rain moved the celebrations to Wayne's Elementary School gym, Greenwood Cemetery was decorated in observance of Memorial Day. Air Force veteran and U.S. Air Force veteran and Wayne State College football coach, Dan McLaughlin was the featured speaker. McLaughlin shared his own experience in the military, shared stories of Nebraska veterans who died in the service of their country and reminded those in attendance that "We honor the dead by treating the living well." After McLaughlin spoke, Galen Wiser read the Roll of Honor. Similar programs were held in Carroll, Winside and Wakefield, honoring service men and women who died in service to their nation. Guest column

A long, thin line of personal anguish

NORMANDY BEACHHEAD, June 17, 1944 – In the preceding column we told about the D-day wreckage among our machines of war that were expended in taking one of the Normandy beaches.

But there is another and more human litter. It extends in a thin little line, just like a high-water mark, for miles along the beach. This is the strewn personal gear, gear that will never be needed again. of those who fought and died to give us our entrance

Here in a jumbled row for mile on mile are soldiers' packs. Here are socks and shoe polish, sewing kits, diaries. Bibles and hand grenades. Here are the latest letters from home, with the address on each one neatly razored out - one of the security precautions enforced before the boys embarked.

Here are toothbrushes and razors, and snapshots of families back home staring up at you from the sand. Here are pocketbooks, metal mirrors, extra trousers, and bloody, abandoned shoes. Here are broken-handled shovels, and portable radios smashed almost beyond recognition, and mine detectors twisted and ruined.

Here are torn pistol belts and canvas water buckets, first-aid kits and jumbled heaps of lifebelts. I picked up a pocket Bible with a soldier's name in it, and put it in my jacket. I carried it half a mile or so and then put it back down on the beach. I don't know why I picked it up, or why I put it back down.

Soldiers carry strange things ashore with them. In every invasion you'll find at least one soldier hitting the beach at H-hour with a banjo slung over his shoulder. The most ironic piece of equipment marking our beach - this beach of first despair, then victory – is a tennis racket that some soldier had brought along. It lies lonesomely on the sand, clamped in its rack, not a string broken. Two of the most dominant items in the beach refuse are cigarettes and writing paper. Each soldier was issued a carton of cigarettes just before he started. Today these cartons by the thousand, watersoaked and spilled out, mark the line of our first sav-Writing paper and air-mail envelopes come second. The boys had intended to do a lot of writing in France. Letters that would have filled those blank,

Always there are dogs in every invasion. There is a dog still on the beach today, still pitifully looking

He stays at the water's edge, near a boat that lies twisted and half sunk at the water line. He barks appealingly to every soldier who approaches, trots eagerly along with him for a few feet, and then, sensing himself unwanted in all this haste, runs back to wait in vain for his own people at his own empty boat.

Over and around this long thin line of personal anguish, fresh men today are rushing vast supplies to keep our armies pushing on into France. Other squads of men pick amidst the wreckage to salvage ammunition and equipment that are still usable. Men worked and slept on the beach for days before the last D-day victim was taken away for burial.

I stepped over the form of one youngster whom I thought dead. But when I looked down I saw he was only sleeping. He was very young, and very tired. He lay on one elbow, his hand suspended in the air about six inches from the ground. And in the palm of his hand he held a large, smooth rock.

I stood and looked at him a long time. He seemed in his sleep to hold that rock lovingly, as though it were his last link with a vanishing world. I have no idea at all why he went to sleep with the rock in his hand, or what kept him from dropping it once he was asleep. It was just one of those little things without explanation that a person remembers for a long time.

The strong, swirling tides of the Normandy coastline shift the contours of the sandy beach as they move in and out. They carry soldiers' bodies out to sea, and later they return them. They cover the corpses of heroes with sand, and then in their whims they uncover them.

As I plowed out over the wet sand of the beach on that first day ashore, I walked around what seemed to be a couple of pieces of driftwood sticking out of the sand. But they weren't driftwood.

They were a soldier's two feet. He was completely covered by the shifting sands except for his feet. The toes of his GI shoes pointed toward the land he had come so far to see, and which he saw so briefly.

In honor of the 75th anniversary of D-Day, The Wayne Herald will be publishing columns from renowned war correspondent Ernie Pyle.

The son of a tenant farming parents in west-central Indiana, Pyle became one of history's greatest war correspondent. When Pyle was killed by a Japanese machine gun bullet on the tiny Pacific island of Ie Shima in 1945, his columns were being delivered to more than 14 million homes according to his New York Times obituary.

During the war, Pyle wrote about the hardships and bravery of the common soldier, not grand strategy. His description of the G.I.'s life was more important to families on the home front than battlefront tactics of Gens. Dwight Eisenhower, Douglas MacArthur, George Patton or Omar Bradley.

Prior to the United States' entry into World War II, Pyle traveled to England and wrote about the Nazi's continual bombing of London. His columns helped move the mood of America from isolationism to sympathy for the stubborn refusal of Great Britain to succumb to the will of Adolf Hitler.

The Pulitzer Prize winning journalist's legacy rests in his words and the impact they had on Americans before and during a war that threatened to take the world behind a curtain of fascism. His columns open a window to the hardships endured by the common U.S. soldier during World War II and serve today to honor what has been called "The Greatest Genera-

Three Wildcats earn regional honors

Three Wayne State baseball players were voted to the 2019 National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association Div. II Baseball All-Central Region Team, as Andrew Hanson received second-team All-Region honors while Ryan Obrecht and Kyle Thompson were honorable mention selections.

Hanson, a 6-foot-1, 185-pound sophomore designated hitter, received second-team All-Region honors with a .303 batting average this season. He produced five homers with 31 RBI and ranked second on the team in stolen bases (14) and was third on the team in hits with 54. Hanson went 4-for-6 with two homers and a career-best six RBI at Fort Hays State on Feb. 14. Other postseason honors for Hanson this year include second-team All-NSIC and D2CCA All-Central Region Second Team.

Obrecht, a 6-foot-4, 170-pound freshman pitcher, was named firstteam All-NSIC and D2CCA All-Central Region Second Team after a stellar freshman season on the hill for the Wildcats. He posted a 7-2 record in 12 appearances and nine starts with a 2.04 ERA, ranking fourth in the NSIC. In 57.1 innings of work, Obrecht allowed just 40 hits and 13 earned runs while striking out 50 batters with just 15

Obrecht had a streak of 21 1/3 scoreless innings late in the season that included three straight shutout wins at Minot State, at Winona State and vs. Concordia-St. Paul. He took a no-hitter into the seventh inning against Concordia-St. Paul on April 24 and finished with a season-high 10 strikeouts and a one-hit shutout in a 11-0 win, resulting in NSIC Pitcher of the Week honors. Obrecht led the NSIC this season in opponent batting average (.194), tied for first in fewest earned runs allowed (13), tied for second in fewest hits allowed (40) and tied for sixth in wins (7). He was also the only pitcher in the NSIC this season to not allow a home run.

Thompson, a 6-foot-1, 190-pound senior third baseman, was a firstteam All-NSIC honoree for the Wildcats this season after leading the team in batting with a .343 batting average. He led Wayne State in hits (61), total bases (101) and slugging percentage (.567), finishing the season tied for 10th in total bases and 11th in slugging percentage. Thompson hit eight homers with 44 RBI this season and was named NSIC Player of the Week Feb. 19 after opening the season with grand slams in back-to-back weeks at Northeastern State and Fort Hays State.

Ashten Gibson, of Wayne, poses with the NJCAA awards she earned this year pitching for the CCC-Columbus Raiders.

Gibson goes out on top

By Sarah Lentz editor@wayneherald.com

Ashten Gibson decided to go out on top. Though her college softball career came to a close this year at Central Community College-Columbus, Gibson leaves the field with plenty of accolades behind her. Gibson, who graduated from Wayne High in 2017, has been no slouch during her time as a Raider. Last year, Gibson was named NJCC Region IX Division II Freshman of the Year. This year, she racked up the awards including being named to the All-Regional Team, All-Tournament Team and last but not least Pitcher of the Year.

The awards are even more impressive considering Gibson wasn't sure she'd ever pitch again after a season-ending injury last year.

"During a regional game last year, I was pitching and the ball came right back at my face," Gibson said. "It was just an instinct to put my hand up and the ball hit my thumb and popped my bone right out. I had a compound fracture and three pins in my thumb and two surgeries and now I cannot bend my thumb.'

While Gibson can smile and giggle when she tells the story now, she said then, it was difficult to have to watch the team finish out the season without her. Her first pitch after healing left her a bit nervous.

"I couldn't hold on to it (the ball) and I had to re-adjust from (throwing) like a 10 and under," Gibson said. "That was really hard, but it definitely made me enjoy the sport

Gibson put in the time and effort to come back and gained some impressive stats. During her time playing at CCC, Gibson had an ERA of 4.77, 82 total strikeouts, averaging 5.08 per game and only allowed 11 home runs.

In the fall, Gibson will return to Wayne to attend WSC where she plans to study to become a Physical Education teacher and coach. She'll leave her softball career in Columbus, however.

"I ended on a good note so I want to leave it at that," she said.

That doesn't mean she's entirely done with the sport. Gibson is busy this summer coaching the Dirt Devils 16s team along with offering pitching lessons around the area. She hopes to help coach during the fall as well.

Gibson said she's enjoyed attending a junior college and having the opportunity to spend that time playing the game she's loved since she was five. As that chapter comes to end she'll focus on finishing her education in the hopes of getting back out on the field, next as a coach.

For information about pitching lessons, Gibson can be reached at (402) 369-2849.

Making time for God today, rather than tomorrow

A little child looked up with eager eyes and asked, "Daddy, will you play with me?"

The father looked into the eyes of the child he loved more than anything in the whole world. He loved to hold his little girl in his lap with her head tucked beneath his chin and her soft hair tickling his nose. He loved to hear her laugh. He loved to feel her tiny arms squeezing him in a child's

The child repeated the question, "Daddy, will you play with me just a little while?" The father replied, "I can't tonight sweetheart. Daddy hasn't got time." The child protested, "But that is what you said last night." The father countered, "Well, I thought I could last night, but something's come up since then. Daddy will be sure to play with you tomorrow night." The little girl watched her daddy leave the room - her heart filled

"Yes, honey, daddy will be sure to play with you tomorrow...." so easy to say, so hard to do. It is easy to make promises of tomorrow time. But sadly, too often we find tomorrow just as busy as today and the things which matter most are put off for yet another day. While we pursue the seemingly urgent, little girls grow up leaving us only memories of those

The story concludes with seem to have the time just now maybe tomorrow... maybe next Sunday... maybe in the summer... invited will get a taste of my banmaybe when we retire. Sadly there are times when we look up to find that we have squandered the gift tunity to live for Christ, to speak of time and the opportunities God has given to us.

Jesus warned about putting off the things of God in the parable of to his word through a daily devothe wedding banquet. He said: "A tional and each week at His house banquet and invited many, many guests. At the time of the banquet he sent his servants to tell those who had been invited, 'Come, for to put aside the "urgent" for that everything is now ready.' But they all alike began to make excuses. The first said, 'I have just bought precious years of happiness and a field, and I must go and see it. these things will be given to you as moments when we took time to Please excuse me.'Another said, 'I well" (Mt. 6:31).

Each day we are given the opporof His love, to receive His absolution, to share His forgiveness. We can begin each day listening certain man was preparing a great in worship. During this summer time, may we take time for what is genuinely important and may the Holy Spirit give us the strength which is truly important. Tractor safety classes to be held in Wayne Tractor safety classes will be held at the Wayne County Fairgrounds on Thursday and Friday, June 20-21.

The course will tentatively run from 8 a.m. 5 p.m. Thursday, June 20; and 8 a.m. - 4 p.m. (or until testing is complete) Friday, June 21. At least 10 participants are requested to hold this Nebraska Extension's Tractor Safety & Haz-

For the past five years, faculty in the Northeast Community College Ag Department have been consistently stressing key concepts to their students across all ag programs.Corinne Morris, dean of agriculture, math and science at Northeast, said the concepts are those things important throughout agriculture, including risk management, profitability, safety, professionalism and communication, and stewardship and water management. The effort is called TAC - Themes Across the Curriculum. "Students learn best by repetition," Morris said. "They don't just learn about these concepts once and pass a test." The discussions on TAC began in 2013 among members of the Ag Advisory Committee, a group of area producers and agri-businessmen who provide guidance for the Ag Department. Committee members spoke of helping Northeast be the leader in producing competent workers for the agriculture industry, those who understand current ag themes, act in a professional manner, and are good communica-"Communication skills are what employers ask for more than anything," Morris said. "Students are reminded to make eye contact, to use the language of business and words that everyone will understand, not the latest slang terms." TAC also stresses professional dress and behavior. "It is simple things like carrying a clean pair of shoes in their vehicle," Morris said. "Students might requires that they be both outside and inside." Risk management is another one of the TAC themes.

"Risk management touches so many areas," Morris explained. "Agriculture is always at the mercy of the weather. Diversity is good risk management on the farm, and risk management is a big part of managing a business." Morris said the ag faculty discuss these themes each summer during their curriculum meeting. They are always reviewing essential skills and how best to present those in class. The issues and behaviors covered in TAC can be adjusted to meet current employer needs. TAC may be one of the best kept aware of the conscious effort to promote these ideas," she said, "but employers are starting to notice. We get emails and other comments that refer to our students as very knowledgeable. When Northeast ag students speak, people are often impressed."

She said the college's farm partners have also noticed that students ask better questions and provide more complete answers since TAC was implemented.

Morris said she would like to make the TAC program more visible, perhaps with posters or other visual reminders for students in the hallways. She said that TAC is just one of the ways the Northeast ag faculty continue to raise the bar for Northeast students.

Wayne fourth grade students become published authors

Fourth graders at Wayne Elementary School have announced that 70 students have become published authors through a national student publishing program.

As part of the publishing process, students in fourth grade planned, wrote and illustrated their own books using a free publishing kit provided by Studentreasures Publishing. The topic of their books Poetry. The students of Mrs. Hix's, Mrs. Metzler's and Mrs. Stewart's classes have been working hard on their books for three to four weeks. The idea for their Poetry book started when Mrs. Hansen, K-6 Librarian at Wayne Elementary School, had the students write poetry using digital websites.

The Studentreasures publishing program provides teachers an easy way to incorporate writing and illustrating into a fun and memorable activity.

Publishing a book in the classroom engages students through hands-on learning and inspires a love of reading and writing.

"The best part? A classroom full of proud, smiling young authors, with a memory that lasts a lifetime, plus, a full-color, deluxe hardcover book for the teacher or school library," said Mrs. Hansen. The students' parents also have

with six-year-old Kai Baldwin of Vernal, Utah. He saw a news story about the flooding in Nebraska and could not hold back the tears. "How will they get home and save their animals without a bridge?" he asked his mom. "We have to send them our money!" Touched by her son's desire to help, Kai's mom, Kristin Forbis, rea donation could be sent, and the pair invited friends and family to empty their pockets and add their change to Kai's piggy bank donation of $3.21. The donations would be sent to the Nebraska Farm Bureau Disaster Relief Fund, knowing that 100 percent of it would be used to help farmers, ranchers, and rural communities.

"I let him set his own goal, and Kai decided a new bridge would cost $60," said Forbis. "Kai walked our neighborhood gathering change and was ecstatic as he counted every nickel and penny." Forbis also posted the fundraiser on her Facebook page, Kai raised $285.28. The check was sent to the Nebraska Farm Bureau Disaster Relief Fund along with Kai's 'Dear Nebraska, I'm sorry you got flooded...' card and all his hope that a bridge could now be fixed. Enter Jesse Wise of Culpeper, Virginia, a farmer who raises hay on 200 acres near Culpeper and feeds it to his cow/calf pairs. He also owns Wise Services and Recycling, a scrap metal recycling business. Recently, a customer had Wise scrap a functional temporary bridge, and Wise thought he would find a home for the bridge somewhere in Nebraska. "I knew people were hauling hay to Nebraska; I didn't have enough hay to share, but I wanted to help. So, I wondered if Nebraska could use the bridge we scrapped. Believe me, I had a lot of dead silence on the phone as I tried to find the bridge a home," Wise laughed. "It's not every day you get a call saying; 'I have a bridge for you, can you use it?" he said. After getting nowhere, Wise called staff members from the Nebraska Farm Bureau Foundation, which manages the Nebraska Disaster Relief Fund. The Foundation began working with Cedar County Commissioner Craig Bartels who lives near Belden, Nebraska.

"There is a good chance that at least two bridges, if not more, will need to be replaced in Cedar County," said Bartels. "We have several miles of road in Cedar County that is completely washed out and in

LINCOLN, NEB. - It all started need of repair. With all the rain that continues to fall, and all the mud, it is hard to fix those welltraveled roads, and now the less traveled ones are in need of repair

Two months after floods devastated Nebraska causing billions of dollars of damage, road crews are working hard to repair 3,300 miles of roads that were closed due to searched a reputable source where flood damage. According to the Nebraska Department of Transportation website, it is estimated that 27 state bridges were washed out or damaged. The number of county bridges damaged is still unknown.

It costs a lot to load a bridge and transport it across the country, but Wise put the pieces together. The cost to get the bridge to Nebraska is being split by Wise Services and Recycling, who donated the bridge Neff Crane Rental, who donated their crane time to load the bridge onto a truck; and Read Transportation, who transported the bridge from Culpeper to Coleridge. "We thank them for their generosity and support of our rural community needs," Steve Nelson, Nebraska Farm Bureau president said.

Talk of bridges had died down in the weeks leading up to the day Kai received a Thank You card in the mail from the Nebraska Farm Bureau with a note attached to call for updates. "I was told that just days after receiving Kai's donation the Nebraska Farm Bureau staff received a call that Mr. Wise of Virginia had a bridge to donate. They immediately thought of Kai and after a few seconds of silence said to me, 'It's Kai's bridge!' and that left me just speechless," Forbis said. As for Kai, he hasn't seemed surprised with the announcement of the bridge donation, as if a hardworking stranger across the country donating a bridge is the most natural thing he's ever heard. Maybe that's because six-year-old Kai Baldwin of Vernal, Utah and Jesse Wise of Culpeper, Virginia have something very rare in common. A kind heart and the desire to help in whatever way they can.

The Nebraska Farm Bureau Disaster Relief Fund continues to seek financial donations to meet the growing aid requests. To donate, apply for aid, or access other disaster assistance resources, visit www.nefb.org/disaster. The Nebraska Farm Bureau is a grassroots, state-wide organization dedicated to supporting farm and ranch families and working for the benefit of all Nebraskans through a wide variety of educational, service and advocacy efforts.

require a blood meal to produce viable eggs. Eggs are laid in batches are attracted to the carbon dioxide between blood meals. A single female may deposit several hundred eggs in her lifetime. Under favorable conditions, a new generation of mosquitoes can be completed in less than a week.

To keep mosquitoes out of your home, check all doors, windows and window screens, to make sure these are tight and in good repair. Screens should be 1/16th inch mesh or smaller to prevent mosquito entry into the home. Keep porch lights off as much as possible in the evening. Or replace traditional white light bulbs with yellow ones to help reduce attracting mosquitoes and other night-flying insects to your home.

To prevent mosquito bites when working outside, wear long-sleeved shirts and full length pants. Two layers of clothing are more difficult to penetrate by biting mosquitoes. Wearing light-colored clothes will reduce your attractiveness. Work outdoors when it is cooler, or when there is a brisk air movement or strong sunlight. Different species of mosquitoes have specific feeding periods, but many are most active in the early evening hours, generally from 5 to 9

But, because female mosquitoes that we exhale, using an insect repellent while outdoors may be the most important method to prevent mosquito bites. You can use repellents containing DEET. These come under numerous brand labels and many formulations such as lotions, gels, aerosols, creams, and sticks and may be applied to skin or clothes.

Mosquitoes are always a nuisance, but they can also pose a health risk because of their potential to transmit West Nile Virus (WNV). According to data from the Center for Disease Control, Nebraska ranks third in the country, behind California and Texas, for the number of cases of WNV between 1999 and 2017.

In humans, WNV causes flu-like symptoms such as fever and muscle weakness. WNV can also cause encephalitis (an inflammation of the brain), disorientation, convulsions and paralysis. People over 50 and those with weak immune systems are especially vulnerable to the disease and should take extra precautions to avoid mosquito bites.

Innovation Plot Planting

For the past several years, Central Valley Ag has planted test field plots throughout our territory as research areas. Throughout the growing season, CVA utilizes each of these plots to test the latest technology and practices. These plots are called our ACS Innovation sites.

Like everyone else this year, we had to battle wet conditions and cold, moist soils throughout the spring of 2019. Our Norfolk, Nebraska Innovation Site was under water during the flooding in March, and our posts and frame washed away with the

By Mick Goedeken ACS Innovation Agronomist flood. Mother Nature has controlled our planting progress throughout the spring. As of Monday, May 20, 2019, all of our ACS Innovation sites have been planted. Fortunately, able to finish planting the Norfolk site before the rain pushed us out yet again.

We started planting this year at our new location east of Polk, Nebraska, on April 23rd and 24th. Then we moved to Cuba, KS, and planted that location on April 26th. We were able to plant several grower trials on and off between April 29th and May 15th. On May 16th and 17th we planted 30.5 acres of corn and 32.1 acres of soybeans at Northeast Community College (NECC) in Norfolk. The NECC location has all the trials that are at our Innovation Sites, plus new trails that we were not able to include at our other sites.

Our team is excited to see some new trials at our Innovation sites in 2019 and look forward to sharing our data with you this fall. We spent the winter upgrading to a new planter and getting it put together. We are pleased that the planter has worked very well this season and it has been a great addition to our ability to plant more grower trials.

Below are the dates for our ACS Innovation events later this Summer. We will continue to provide updates from these sites throughout the growing season! Mark your calendars and join us to see our trial results.
