Break in main transmission line causes water woes

By Sarah Lentz editor@wayneherald.com

The City of Wayne reported a break in the main water transition line on July 21. While the City worked to repair the break quickly, the break meant a series of voluntary water restrictions and boil notices for those who use Wayne's water.

The area where the break in the line occurred has had problems before, according to Wayne mayor, Cale Giese.

"It's the same spot where we already put a clap around the pipe," Giese said in a video update on his Facebook page.

From the evening of July 21 until the evening of July 22, Wayne residents were asked to conserve their water usage. However, another clamp was placed over the break by the evening of the 22. Residents were told that the water restriction was lifted, but to prepare for an impending boil boil advisory," Giese said. notice.

On July 23, the City went to work to replace three sections of pipe. This required the line to be open. Having an open water line opens up the possibility that bacteria or other unsanitary issues can arise in a water line. Because of the potential for risk, the City is obligated to go on a boil notice.

"We're already chlorinating the water, so the odds of it having health impacts for notices. However, Giese said the City plans healthy adults, in my opinion, I'm going to take the risk," Giese said.

The City told residents that the boil notice could stretch into Friday, July 26. Information about the boil notice being lifted will be released by the City of Wayne and updated on mywaynenews.com.

Because the City of Wayne currently gets about 90 percent of all its water from a main transmission line, when a break occurs, residents have to observe restrictions and boil to remedy that problem eventually.

"We will have another line next year, It was still suggested that citizens either and once that is up and operational, then we can stop and work on any section of the boil until the notice was lifted. Gilliland comes back to old employer in new role

Dr. Rachel Gilliland, OD, the newest optometrist at Magnuson Hopkins EyeCare in Wayne was a woman with a plan from a young age. She knew as an eighth grader at Wayne Junior High that she wanted to be an eye doctor.

" I just very vividly remember the optometrists that came, the way she talked about her patients and how she liked her job, it was very personable. And you could just genuinely tell that she liked her job," Gilliland said. "Then she brought cow eyeballs for us to dissect and at first I thought that was gross, weird, but I loved every moment of it and just to see like the small organ that does so much, it kind of got me hooked."

Gilliland, a 2011 graduate of Wayne High, got her bachelor's degree from the University of Nebraska-Kearney and went on to optometry school in Oklahoma. Longtime Magnuson Hopkins patients may recognize her as a former tech at the practice.

"I worked here the summer between my first and second year of optometry school,' Gilliland said. "I was a tech, so I've been keeping in touch with everyone in the office while I was at school."

Gilliland completed her education and boards and began her work at Magnuson Hopkins EyeCare on July 1.

"It's still taking some time to get used to being referred to as a doctor," Gilliland said. As a tech, I got to work a little closely with everyone's I got to know everyone well, so that I think has helped being a doctor." She is now one of three doctors, joining

"In my early years, I moved with my parents to various places - Syracuse, Lenox, Iowa, and Winner, S.D. before ending up in Wakefield. My father was a light plant engineer and so moving was part of his job. My mother was a professional seamstress. The majority of my education was spent in Wakefield where graduated from high school in 1958. While in high school I participated in football, band and choir. I was also a boy scout.

"One of my first jobs was a pin setter in the Wakefield bowling alley. I also worked in the junk yard, for a painter, a mink ranch and a feed company. In 1960, I enlisted in the U.S. Navy, but due to high pitch hearing loss, was honorably discharged from the San Diego naval base. In 1962, I met Nancy Reed on a blind date and we got married on March 5, 1967 in Wayne at the United Methodist Church. I worked at a truck stop in South Sioux City, until a job opened up in Newcastle where we lived. I wanted to be more than a gas station attendant, so I enrolled in Southeast Community College in Milford where I received a degree in diesel technology and was offered a job at International Harvester in Aurora. Since that time, I have worked at Behlen Manufacturing, as head of maintenance and as an electrician, driven semi-trucks, was a body man, and before my retirement in 2001, was the head of maintenance for 21 years at Bonnavilla Homes.

In January 1977, we adopted our first baby, a son, Robert (Bobby) at 12 days old. Four years later, in April, we adopted a baby girl, Lezlee. She was 11 days old. Robert is married to Wendy and they have one daughter, Montana. Lezlee has one daughter, Gracie and special friend. Janet.

"I have been involved in Boy Scouting ever since Rob started in Cub Scouts and continued through his attaining his Eagle Scout ranking.

"My hobbies include model trains, model car building, latch hook, roller skating, word search and jigsaw puzzles.

"In my later years, my eyesight left me, so I can't do those things any more. Nancy drives me to coffee every day so that I can keep up on things with my coffee buddies.

Northeast Community College has received two large pieces of equipment that will assist students in their training to become technicians in the industry.

Representatives of NextEra Energy Resources, LLC, have announced the donation of a wind turbine nacelle and a rotor hub to the college.

Weighing approximately 180,000 pounds, the nacelle houses all the generating components that sit at the top of a 300-foot commercial wind turbine. The hub connects the blades to the main shaft and ultimately to the rest of the drive train. Both components will be incorporated into Northeast's program's curriculum and will provide students with hands-on training.

'Urinetown: The Musical'

The cast of "Urinetown: The Musical" performed July 19-21 in the Black Box Theatre in the basement of the Fine Arts Building on Wayne State's Campus. The musical featured many tongue-in-cheek songs about what society would be like if corporations controlled the most basic human need - to use the bathroom. Zach Halsey and Paige Parsons played star-crossed lovers humourously listening to their hearts, trying to make the world a better place.

Wayne State College, a leading, public four-year college in northeast Nebraska, is a proud member of the Nebraska State College System.

It can't get more 'ag-citing' than a Northeast summer camp

Area high school students had the opportunity recently to explore careers that focus on agriculture technology at Northeast Community College.

"The students experienced the incredible advances in precision agriculture and play with the tools and gadgets in precision ag management such as satellite imagery, auto-steer, sensors, drones and other technology," said Tara Smydra, associate dean of agriculture, math and science.

The two-day Ag-Citing Precision Ag Camp allowed the students to work with precision equipment that is used from planting to harvest. Smydra said the students also toured facilities, including the college farm, greenhouse and Northeast's Precision Agriculture Learning (PAL) simulator, which is outfitted with multiple hands-on mobile training modules to train current and future producers. They also participated in field trips to area farms.

"The whole idea of the camp was to allow the students to work with our fantastic agriculture instructors and workforce partners as they learned about amazing careers in precision agriculture," Smydra said.

The activity was partially funded with federal Carl D. Perkins Career and Technical Education Act of 2006 funds administered through the Nebraska Department of Education, grant number V048A180027.

Jim and Sandy Hoffman, caretakers at the Wayne Municipal Airport have had a busy week. According to Jim, hundreds of pilots and passengers have stopped at the airport on their way to the aviation event of the year — EAA AirVenture Oshkosh air show in Oshkosh, Wis.

"Basically it's Sturgis in the air," Jim said.

So how does an air show in Wisconsin bring in so much traffic to Wayne, Nebraska? It's all in the flight plan.

Lots of the pilots that come through Wayne are from western states like Utah and Colorado, Protest #19-09: Garfield & Sherman Precinct - IOLL/Wind Turbine sites #38, 39, 36, 37 35, 3, 5, 6, 2, 1, 4, 7, 10, 9, 8, 14, 15, 12, 17, 16, 18, 13, 21, 20, 22, 23, 19, 24, 27, 25, 30, 28, 32 31, 29, Prop ID# 9006.00, filed by Kerrecia Shearer. Protested Valuation: $12,212,200. Requested Valuation: $7,150,152.80. Reasons for requested valuation change: The leasehold cost is too high Sholes Wind is a 160 MW wind farm and each landowner is paid $4900.00 per MW for lease. The roads are incomplete and our records show only $3,871,475.53 in expenditure as at 01/01/19.

Assessor recommendation: Lower value from 12,212,200 to 7,150,150 (-5,062,050) Corrected cost figures for the access roads and leasehold values. 35 turbines on this parcel = 4.855.200 (foundations) + 1.908.550 (roads) + 386.400 (leasehold) = 7.150.150.

A motion was made by Rabe, seconded by Sievers, to approve the Assessor's ecommendation and set the valuation of $7,150,150. Roll call vote: Rabe, Sievers, Burbach - aye motion carried.

Protest #19-10: W75ft Lots 11 & 12, Blk 4, Heikes Addition, Prop ID #5519.00, filed by Albert & Janelle Nelson. Protested Value $102,310. Requested Value $85,000. Reasons for requested valuation change: Our house is 60 years old. In that many years, valuation has quadrupled. Also there is 2 electric wires across our lawn going to two homes. This is dangerous!

Assessor recommendation: Lower value from 102,310 to 77,640 (-24,670) After reviewing property, make a correction to the basement square footage and correct the finished area to ninimal finish with no finish under the front porch and no basement under the laundry room. Lowe the value of the storage shed from 1,030 to 500. Adjust the condition rating from 'very good' to average' and raise the physical depreciation from 14% to 38%

A motion by Sievers, seconded by Rabe, to approve the Assessor's recommendation and se the valuation of $77,640. Roll call vote: Sievers, Rabe, Burbach - aye; motion carried.

Protest #19-11: (No legal description shown on protest form) Prop ID #4050.00, filed by Selma D. Addision. Protested Value $79,190. Requested Value $97,420. Reasons for requested valuation change: 12' x 20' "addition" is an unheated, uninsulated porch that has been judged a porch by First Realty for resale. Selma Addison was present for the hearing.

Assessor recommendation: Lower value from 97,420 to 93,865 (-3,555). After review of property, make correction to square footage of house - back porch should be done as a closed porch not part of the house. This would lower the square footage from 1,552 to 1,312. Correct the amount of finished basement. Lower the value of the driveway due to the amount of cracking Raise the depreciation on the yard shed. Average condition rating on the house is appropriate due to the work that has been done to the kitchen and main floor bath, along with the work needing done to basement and garage floor. No problems visible in the exterior of the house (roof/sidina foundation/windows, etc).

A motion by Rabe, seconded by Sievers, to approve the Assessor's recommendation and se the valuation of $93,865. Roll call vote: Rabe, Sievers, Burbach - aye; motion carried.

Protest #19-12: House located on NE1/4 13-27-2. Prop ID #1048.00 filed by Merrill Baier Protested Value n/a. Requested Value n/a. Reasons for requested valuation change: Siding is weathered, no major updates since 1970s, no central heat or air. Partial dirt floor basement. 2/3 are original 1920s windows. Merrill and Mitch Baier were present for hearing

Assessor recommendation: Lower value from 870,710 to 849,560 (-21,150). After review of property with owner, make correction to the square footage of the house. The closed porch on the southeast part of the house should be priced with the house as square footage, not porch. This area is finished like the house and is now the laundry room. Correct the size of the basement Re-measured and the dimensions are 21' x 21' not 24' x 24'. This is a shelf basement. Average quality rating on house seems to be correct. Condition rating needs to be adjusted from average to fair/badly worn. Raise the physical depreciation from 38% to 57%. Correct the HVAC on the house No central air conditioning or heating. Electric baseboard heat only. Reviewed buildings. No value all buildings except the 1,800 bushel Behlen bin. Flat value the bin at 200.

A motion by Sievers, seconded by Rabe, to approve the Assessor's recommendation and se the valuation of $849,560. Roll call vote: Sievers, Rabe, Burbach - aye; motion carried. The meeting was adjourned.

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln and Nebraska 4-H works hand-in-hand with hundreds of volunteers to make this happen. 4-Hers may participate in a local workshop learning a new skill or take part in a 4-H day camp by being a camper or teen counselor. They may pracchange. It could be completing record The fair is portrayed as the books that will help them apply for college scholarships or give them various opportunities to participate in leadership opportunities. They may also use what they have learned to advance beyond the county level. They may have already participated in a State or National event this summer in which they represented themselves, Wayne County, or even their entire state. These are opportunities that youth can be involved in when participating in 4-H.

> I am proud of each 4-H member who participates in the program, whether it be at the county fair or another educational event. I realize there may be disappointments along the way, things do not go as planned, but it is that process that allows youth to learn and grow into young people who care and contribute to their communities. We have talented youth in our community who are investing in themselves and others by learning by doing. We also have caring adults who assist in this educational process, and it is because of that combination in an involved community that we can display our learnings at the county fair. It is a combination of support by volunteers, businesses, the county, and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

I am thankful to everyone who contributes in any positive way to the 4-H and Youth Development program, thank you for your support. See you all at the fair!

Luke 10:41-42: But the Lord answered her, "Martha, Martha, you are worried and distracted by many things; there is need of only one thing. Mary has chosen the better part, which will not be taken away from her.'

The gospel today speaks of Martha's busyness as a distraction. She is so worried about being a gracious hostess, that she gets lost in the details and misses being present to her guest. Then we have Mary, being present in the moment. Being present is a true mark of faithful discipleship.

Martha appears to be doing the right thing by serving Jesus. Mary, on the other hand is just sitting and listening. In our bible, Jesus has been known to say that he came "not to be served, but to serve" with the instruction along the way to the disciples that Jesus followers are to do likewise.

And suddenly with today's bible reading and with one statement, Jesus throws the whole system of serving into doubt. "Martha, Mar-

What we do not realize is that we are victims of our own way of life. The Prairie Doc Stand up to bullies

We have all had to deal with bullies throughout our lives, and I have had my share. One fall day, coming home from school, I saw two guys from my third-grade class beating up on a smaller kid and was moved to step in to help. I was chagrined but not surprised when the victim ran home, and I became the new target. The beating I took that day was minimal, however, the sense that I did the right thing by standing up against bullies has propped up my self-worth my whole lifetime.

Bullies and abuse are everywhere. While in medical school, I was in an Atlanta emergency room when a woman came in with a broken nose and other broken bones and bruises that were explained away as the result of a fall, when we knew full well the injuries were inflicted by her spouse. Since coming to this prairie town 38 years ago, I have seen several cases of parents who physically and emotionally abused their children, and of adult children who physically and emotionally abused their parents. I remember numerous cases where women came into my office, explained their husbands were physically beating them, and despite my recommendations to escape and seek shelter, they stayed married to the scoundrels.

The American Psychiatric Association defines domestic violence and abuse as control by one person over another in any relationship. Control is the operative word. The means of "Not only are we changing the this control can result from physi-

The National Coalition for the Homeless estimates ten million children are exposed to domestic violence every year, and that people exposed to such hostility as children are three to four times more likely to become abusive or be abused than people raised in families without it.

Sometimes it's right to stand up to a bully, and when there is danger, it's right to escape and get help. And it's always right to save your children

Mini camp for youth held in Hoskins

On July 16, the Village of Hoskins, in conjunction with Nebraska Extension in Wayne County, held a youth mini-camp for youth 5-8 years of age.

Youth completed Nebraska themed projects in honor of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln turning 150 years old. They were also able to participate in team building activities

The 4-H and Youth development program is the youth component of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. 4-H is delivered by Cooperative Extension-a community of more than 100 public universities across the nation. Nebraska Extension provides experiences allowing young people to learn by doing. Hands on activities include project areas such as health and nutrition, science, agriculture, and citizenship.

The Nebraska 4-H mission is to empower youth to reach their full potential, working and learning in partnership with caring adults. Youth and adults learn, grow, and work together as catalysts for positive change. The phrase "Learning by Doing" sums up the educational philosophy of the 4-H program.

NDA opens Hay and Forage Hotline

The Nebraska Department of Agriculture has opened a "Hay and Forage Hotline," to connect buyers with sellers of hay, pasture and other types of forage. This Hotline service is available to all buyers and sellers for free. The Department is providing this information as it has been given to them; listing of individual names does not in any way constitute an endorsement of anyone or their respective product. The Hotline is merely designed to be a clearinghouse of information for producers in need.

The hotline number is (402) 471-4876. Sellers of available hay and forage can contact this number and have their name, contact information, and inventory placed on the "Sellers List," which is updated regularly. The Nebraska Department of Agriculture will then make the "Sellers List" available to buyers by mail or by the Nebraska Department of Agriculture website, nda.nebraska gov. Once buyers obtain this information they will be responsible for contacting the sellers directly to negotiate any transactions.

In order to help ensure that the sellers list contains accurate, upto-date information, sellers are encouraged to call the hotline number if they no longer have hay or forage available or if they would like to update their posting. However, postings older than one year will be removed automatically. Once a posting has been removed for this reason, sellers can call the hotline and reenter their posting with any updated information. Contact the Nebraska Department of Agriculture if you have any questions.

The Nebraska Department of Transportation has posted information on its web site to address questions related to the hauling of hay in and through Nebraska. This information can be found at: dot.nebraska.gov/business-center/permits/hayharvest/.

Lots of news shared at grocery store

I'm just home from the grocery store; no matter how I plan, I usually make two trips there a week. I find it hard to imagine that on the farm, when it was five gravel miles to Oberle's in Winside, or at the BandB. a few more than that. albeit on pavement, to Jack and Jill in Louisville, I almost always made do with one trip a week.

Now, it's five minutes, and takes me longer to put them away than to drive there and back. Today, I ran into an old nurse friend; I guess she is old, but I mean we have been friends for a long time, get it?

Watering your lawn and garden

The ongoing heat and drought stress are impacting garden and landscape plants. Brown lawns and wilting plants are the most visible signs. Low yields and poor quality vegetables are additional signs of heat stress.

Brown lawns are a common sight. Kentucky bluegrass has the ability to go dormant during summer to protect itself from heat and drought. This is what is happening when bluegrass lawns start to turn brown . . . the grass is dormant, not dead.

To conserve water on turfgrass, it is fine to allow bluegrass lawns to go dormant. To keep them alive so they recover when cool temperatures return, you should apply about a half inch of water every week to 10 days, as needed, if you don't get it from precipitation.

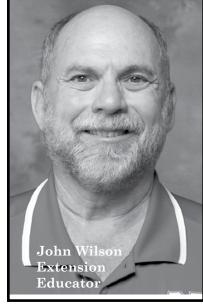

Fescue lawns are another story. You need to water them enough to keep them green . . . not golf course green . . . but at least a light green. Unlike bluegrass, fescue does not go dormant. If it turns brown, it enters a state which we call permanent dormancy . . . which is another way of saying it died and you will need to reseed the brown areas later this summer.

and drought. As long as the soil is moist and the plants only wilt during the day and then recover in the evenings, they are fine.

When plants wilt, you automatically assume they need water. In most cases they do, but check to see the soil is dry before watering. Larger leaved plants, like cucumbers, wilt during the heat of the day even when the soil is moist. This is the plant's way of Ornamental plants and vege- reducing the amount of water lost tables wilting during the heat of from leaves during the day. them more than if you don't water um in the soil. It is often a result them at all.

Less obvious signs of heat and drought stress are bitter cucumbers, tomatoes with leathery brown bottoms, missing kernels in sweet corn ears, potato plants turning brown, poor fruit set, and the list could go on and on.

Most cucumber plants contain a bitter compound. When plants are stressed from heat, too little moisture, or poor fertility, bitterness in cucumbers is more prominent. Cucumber varieties listed as bitter-free or burpless are less likely to develop bitterness.

Bitterness is often limited to the stem end of the cucumber and the skin. Cutting off these portions will remove most of the bitterness. If the stress is severe. some cucumbers will be bitter all the way through and are best discarded. Even when pickled, they will remain bitter tasting.

When the bottom of a tomato fruit turns brown, this is blossomend rot. It is caused by a lack of calcium in the fruit and peppers. squash and watermelon also can be affected. This deficiency is not necessarily due to a lack of calci- fice.

of factors that slow growth, such as heat or drought stress. To reduce blossom end rot, use mulch around plants to keep the soil cooler around the roots and slow water loss from the soil. maintain a uniform soil moisture with timely irrigation, and avoid overfertilizing with nitrogen.

If hot, dry conditions occur during pollination of sweet corn, then pollination is often reduced. The results are sweet corn ears that do not develop kernels to the ear tip or have missing kernels throughout the ear. This sweet corn can still be eaten. Tomatoes with end rot can also be eaten if the brown portion is removed.

Some potatoes are turning brown due to hot air and soil temperatures. Once plants begin to die, harvest the potatoes. Even if there are not many potatoes or the tubers are small, once the plant dies tubers stop developing. If left in the ground, they are likely to rot.

In this week's Agronomy Focus video, we talk about some of the soil applied nutrient trials we are undertaking in soybeans in 2019. We worked with MAP, MicroEssentials MESZ, Calcium Products SO4, and multiple micronutrient products to understand how they would impact yield across multiple soil and fertility environments, weather conditions, and growing seasons. All of these are replicated trials to gather more accurate results.

At each field day, we will tour these plots as well as others on infurrow applications for soybeans and on foliar applications of nutrient and biological products. We also compare several management practices such as hydraulic downforce and variable variety or hybrid seeding. At the field days, we will share our harvest data from last season as well as place 2019 attendees on the distribution list for the 2019 harvest data.

Mark your calendar for the date of the field day closest to you and come join Central Valley Ag during our ACS Innovation Series as we review our research and show you how the treatments differed in plant growth and final yield.

LOWER ELKHORN Natural Resources District

Nebraska's NRDs celebrate 47 years of protecting natural resources

July 2019 marks 47 years of protecting lives, property and the future of natural resources for Nebraska's 23 Natural Resources Districts (NRDs). NRDs are unique because they are governed by locally elected boards and Nebraska is the only state to have this system.

Senator Maurice Kremer introduced and the Nebraska Legislature enacted Legislative Bill (LB) 1357 in 1969 to combine Nebraska's 154 special purpose entities into 24 Natural Resources Districts by July 1972. The original 24 NRDs' boundaries were organized based on Nebraska's major river basins which allows for better management practices to be applied to similar topography. In 1989, the Middle Missouri NRD and the Papio NRD were merged into one, becoming the Papio-Missouri River NRD which resulted in the current 23-NRD system.

"Nebraska's 23 NRDs have been addressing natural resources issues and concerns with local solutions for 47 years," said Mike Sousek, General Manager of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD) in Norfolk. Nebraska's NRDs are involved in a wide variety of projects and programs to conserve and protect the state's natural resources. Sousek added, "NRDs are charged under state law with 12 areas of responsibility including flood control, soil erosion, and groundwater management. While all NRDs share the 12 main responsibilities, each district sets its own priorities and develops programs to best serve local needs and to protect Nebraska's natural resources for future generations."

NRDs are local government entities with broad responsibilities to protect our natural resources. Major Nebraska river basins form the boundaries of the 23 NRDs, enabling districts to respond best to local conservation and resource management needs. To learn more about Nebraska's NRDs visit www.nrdnet.org or your local NRD website at www.lenrd.org

By MIKE RENNING mikesportshome@yahoo.com

Every now and then, you do a favor to just do a favor.

At times you do a favor for what you expect to get back.

At times you do a favor because, well, you really like the person/people the favor is intended to benefit. That being said, (don't you hate when someone says 'that being said') well of course it was just said,

I just said it for crying out loud. Well, that being said, the Darling Wife and I were asked to watch our Granddog? Is that what you call your daughter's dog or your Grandkid's dog?

Actually, it's Lily and Sophia's dog, Peter – or as Sophia would say, "Petew."

Peter is a beagle, just like the Darling Wife's beagle, Jake.

Peter is a younger beagle and quite frankly, a pain in the...well, ne's a puppy.

He even bothers Jake and the old dog, Yippee.

And nothing bother's Jake - it may scare the heck out of him and Yippee can't hear anymore - but Peter is a pain in the...puppy.

Another set of Grandparents, I won't name them because I haven't asked permission to put them in these scribblings, (Mike and Kelly Blessing) which I'm sure they wouldn't mind and they are very wonderful people - but they took Lily and Sophia to Arizona along with my daughter and their son, whom I won't name because of the permission-thing. (Zach).

What did I get to do? I was left holding the bag – I got Peter.

I will preface this entire scribbling with the fact I am a dog lover as long as they aren't my dog.

The Darling Wife has two dogs

July with all of the fireworks and noise, and it was a weekend to remember.

Now, Bob is a golden doodle, a mix between a golden retriever and a poodle.

He's a pretty dog and a great dog, but Bob and fireworks don't mix. So, we have Jake, the neurotic beagle and Bob the firework-hating golden doodle and Petew the beagle puppy. I'm pretty sure the breed of the dogs had little to do with the weekend, but I'm just putting that out there – the personality of each is what made the weekend so much... er. fun.

Now Yippee, the long-haired miniature dachshund was a non-factor. Poor little guy would growl at Petew, and Petew would listen and at 15-years-old, Yippee couldn't hear the fireworks.

Teresa's husband (let's skip all the permission stuff), Pat, and I in the 2018 farm bill — regarding were left at his home while the its cultivation, handling, market-Darling Wife, Teresa and my favorite Mother-in-Law, Priscilla went shopping...for two days straight. Poor Bob, he would survive the relentless pawing and advancements of Petew all morning only to have the fireworks start just after noon each day.

Capitol View Is the state agriculture department slow-walking hemp growers?

ALL ABOARD! WE'LL HAVE YOU THERE IN NO TIME ...!

Herald

By J.L. SCHMIDT Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

The state senator who introduced the Nebraska Hemp Farming Act (LB657), which was passed and signed into law with immediate implementation, said he thinks the Governor and the Nebraska Department of Agriculture slow walked the process.

Slow walking is defined as delaying a request or command, dragging one's feet, stalling, obstructing, dragging out a process.

The department recently announced that 176 applications were filed to participate in the newly established industrial hemp 2019 growing season. That came after they opened the application process June 28 and gave growers, businesses and corporations one week to apply. The department hasn't said how many were chosen, but they have been notifying those who were not successful.

That group includes Sen. Justin Wayne of Omaha, the bill's sponsor, who said he applied on the manufacturing side so he could monitor the application process. Wayne said he's been contacted by many people who said they wouldn't be allowed to participate in the hemp program this year. He said two companies told him they'll look at Iowa or Texas for hemp manufacturing.

Wayne said lawmakers had envisioned 1,000 applicants with 400 to 500 approved. After all, hemp was first grown in Nebraska in the late 1800s and many people grew it under government contract for World War II. So, it's not a new crop and there's sufficient evidence that it will grow well in Nebraska. The rub is that it would have had to be planted by June 1 to avoid a possible early frost.

The Nebraska Hemp Farming Act, which Wayne worked on extensively, recognizes the plant as a viable agricultural crop and aligns state law with federal law — industrial hemp was legalized open up new commercial markets for farmers and businesses through sale of hemp products. The agriculture department has reporting and enforcement requirements under the law. Plants are required to be submitted for testing to determine whether they contain less than 0.3 percent THC, the psychoactive drug in marijuana.

Wayne said his trust with the department is gone. Nebraska will be behind surrounding states. Kansas has approved 202 industrial hemp licenses, for 150 growers, 15 distributors, 30 processors and seven universities. More than 3,605 acres will be planted in the first year.

One of those who was denied, Firth farmer Diane Mulder, wanted to grow a quarter-acre for CBD oil. She said the state seemed to throw up obstacles for growers and businesses to get approvals, with the one-week-only time frame to apply, and requiring a background would take five business days to get. She was able to apply because she found a place online to get a background check faster.

She attended a Midwest Hemp forum last month in David City and said many of those present were frustrated with the process. She is hoping now there will be wider approval in January so she can participate.

Mulder said she was impressed by how many products come off of a hemp plant, including food, CBD oil, fuel, fiber and wood products. Another benefit is that its root system can pull impurities out of the soil.

The prospect for a new agricultural crop comes at a time when commodity prices are lagging on traditional crops. It was also something of a ray of hope countering the devastation of the bomb cyclone and massive statewide flooding and I'd have to agree with Byrnes. destruction in March.

Screw Press in Lyons, a company focused on development of oil seed-processing systems throughout the United States and Central and South America, didn't like the short window for applications. He called it a slap in the face to those who have been advocating for the crop for years. With his nationwide experience, he said the Nebraska government environment is unbelievably restrictive.

He questioned why the department insists on calling hemp production a pilot program. He said the department's reluctance to diversifying agriculture is a paranoia reminiscent of the old 'reefer madness' mentality.

Given that one of the most vocal opponents of Wayne's bill was a state senator who called hemp production a gateway for allowing recreational marijuana in Nebraska,

Give hemp a chance. It might and I assist her in caring for the little...fellows.

I put them out before I leave – I feed them from time-to-time. I pet them often.

I buried Max's dog in the backyard, Tracker, another beagle, after he spent around 15 years with us.

I even held one of the Darling Wife's dogs when she was put to sleep, the dog, not the Darling Wife, come on!

Which might be my reasons for not getting anymore after Jake and Yippee expire - it is very heartwrenching when a member of the family expires – but I take solace in the fact all dogs go to heaven.

Wow, I really got off track here, my train hit a trestle.

Back to Petew.

For the 4th of July, the Darling Wife told me we were going to her sister's in Omaha. I would tell you her name but I haven't asked permiss...Teresa Eberhart.

Teresa has a dog named Bob, who is a service dog for her daughter... haven't asked for perm...Emma, and a great dog.

Then we took the Darling Wife's dogs, Yippee and Jake, and of course. Petew.

Add to the mix it was the 4th of fire anytime.

By the end of the "celebration", Jake and Bob became buddies to the extent they would lay next to each other and lament their predicament.

Yippee just slept and Petew was just Petew.

Once I accepted the fact this young beagle was not Peter but Petew, it all dawned on me (I know, I'm a slow learner), but if Lilv and Sophia love Petew, I love him too.

He can take up the lion's share of my bed every night for four or five days, he can make me get up all hours to go outside, he can even mistake my basement for a place to relieve himself.

Petew is not my dog, he is the dog of Lily and Sophia, that alone makes me love him every time either of them gives a great big hug to Petew or Peter.

As they said in the 'Man from Snowy River', he's welcome at my ing and processing. It is meant to

WALTHHILL MEMORIAL RODEO –

On a sadder note, the 45th Annual Walthill Memorial Rodec put on its last show July 12-14. Though incredibly fun and entertaining as always, the finality of this years' performances was sad for many. "It ain't our first rodeo, but it is our Last," declared the rodeo banner and photo. Some who are saddened by the rodeo's end say that the organizers of the Rodeo have, over the years, provided not only a great time for friends and family, but also an annual opportunity for a "reunion" that will be greatly missed. I wish to extend my heartfelt appreciation for the Rodeo's dedication to Thurston County and say Congratulations on 45 years of a successful event for all ages. Thank you Walthill Rodeo for nearly five decades of family and community fun and enjoyment!

As always, it is of great importance that I hear from my constituents to effectively do my job as your voice in the Legislature. I encourage you to contact me and I look forward to hearing from you.
