Dr. Michael White to premiere first feature film

Dr. Michael White, video production professor at Wayne State College, wanted to have what he called a "substantial work" for his tenure portfolio. White has made a career of not only teaching video production skills, but writing and creating his own short films and working on other people's productions. That desire for a "substantial work" led him to writing and directing the full-lenth feature film, "Ever Fallen" that will have a red carpet premier at the Majestic Theatre in Wayne on Tuesday, Oct. 1 and a second showing on Wednesday, Oct.

"I wanted to challenge myself and do something big," White said. "A feature film is about as big as you can go. And it was a massive undertaking."

"Ever Fallen" took a year to make and challenged White in a number of ways. Including taking a chance on cast and crew for the film that's described as a "punk rock Romeo and Juliet story."

Junior forward Rylie Wehner scored with just over 3:30 left in the second overtime to give the Wayne State women's soccer team a 1-0 win over Sioux Falls Friday afternoon at the USF Sports Complex in the NSIC opener for both teams.

It was the fourth straight overtime contest for the Wildcats as Wehner converted on the Wildcats' first goal of the season with assists from Brooke Worrell and Sophia Ketchmark to get Wayne State the thrilling overtime win.

Wayne State held an 8-3 advantage in shots over the Cougars and 5-2 in shots on goal. The Wildcats had one more corner kick than Sioux Falls, 4-3, and were charged with 11 fouls compared to eight on the Cougars.

Goalkeeper Rachel Grisham was stellar in goal again for the Wildcats, recording her third straight overtime shutout in the win with two saves Megan Phillips had two shots on goal to lead the WSC offense. Wehner, Megan Schuster and Emily Kilby also registered shots on goal for the 'Cats.

On Sunday, Southwest Minnesota State scored three second half goals to take down Wayne State College 3-0 at Mattke Field in Marshall, Minn.

Both teams had six shots while playing to a scoreless tie in the first half. However, the second half was all SMSU as the Mustangs held a 7-1 edge in shots, resulting in three goals.

SMSU scored four minutes into the second half for the opening goal, followed by another five minutes later with the final score coming at the 75:12 mark.

Southwest Minnesota State held a 13-7 advantage in shots over WSC but had just one more shot on goal than the Wildcats 5-4. SMSU held a 6-2 edge in corner kicks over the Wildcats.

Madison Kemp, Gabi Rosa, Sophie Ketchmark and Rylie Wehner each had shots on goal for Wayne State in the contest. Goalkeeper Rachel Grisham allowed three goals in 78 minutes of playing time without recording a save, while freshman Regan Ott played the final 11:42 and was credited with two saves.

Devils came The Blue through, as Walling handed off to junior fullback Reid Korth on a one-yard plunge for the touchdown. Korth added the twopoint conversion to tie the game at 22-22 and send it to a second overtime.

This time, it was Wayne scoring first as Korth punched in from six yards out and followed with the conversion run. Lakeview scored again on a four-vard run by Joel Lemburg, but the Wayne defense came up huge on the two-point conversion, stopping Lakeview short to earn the upset victory.

Individual offensive statistics were not available at press time. Defensively, Victor Kniesche led Wayne with 12 total tackles. Korth had 10. Landanger had nine, Gunnar Jorgensen recorded eight, Walling and Noah Lutt each had seven, Mike Leatherdale had six and Bartos and Brendan Swanson both had five.

The Blue Devils replaced Lakeview in the No. 9 spot in this week's Omaha World-Herald and Lincoln Journal Star rankings. The Bears scored 26 straight points after spotting the host Tigers the first touchdown of the game.

Evan Haisch got the Bears going with a four-yard run, with Dylan Reimers running in the two-point conversion to make it 8-8. Late in the opening period, Reimers caught a four-yard pass from Ty Erwin to give LCC the lead for good at 14-8, and the two would connect again on a 10-yard strike to make it 20-8 at the half.

Erwin gave LCC a three-score cushion in the third period with a two-yard plunge to make it 26-8. Osmond tried to mount a fourthquarter comeback, but the Bears answered both Tiger challenges in the final period with Erwin hitting Noah Schutte on scoring passes of 14 and 19 yards to close out the win.

Erwin had one of his best efforts throwing the ball, going 20-of-36

Capitol View Letters What precedent is being set? Let's stop using the word impeachment, please

Dear Editor,

First, I want to express my appreciation for the Wayne City Council members (Woehler, Broderson and Sievers) who carefully listened to Jenna Vilkas' presentation and voted to approve her request to keep a few backyard chickens for a 4-H project. These Council members observed someone who had done the footwork, gained permission from her neighbors, approached the Council, thus completing her due diligence. Jenna Vilkas proved herself to be an engaged and active young citizen, just the sort who should be encouraged, especially in her first foray into city government.

Unfortunately, she was turned away (after she was congratulated by the Council for having the guts to come to a meeting and present in the first place). Why? Because some Council members claimed it would "set a precedent" to allow her to keep a few chickens for a project. I assume that the precedent that the Council members are referring to would be that they would feel that by approving her request, they would have to approve any similar request that came down the pike, including requests for horses, pigs and cows, which would then supposedly lead to an uptick in the vermin population.

I can't be the only person who sees the implausibility of this supposed slippery slope between a few chickens and town-wide farmyard chaos. First, granting Jenna's request would not be setting a precedent, because the Council has complete autonomy in approving or disapproving any appeal it receives. Clearly, Vilkas is no ridge-runner, wishing to live off the grid and support herself with a free-range flock of birds. She had a thoughtfully conceived academic plan, and she answered all the Council's questions articulately. If someone like her can't receive a permit, then who can?

What is interesting to me is that by denying Jenna, the Council IS setting a precedent, either purposely or not: That diligence and good faith are not rewarded, and that anything new or progressive will surely be suspected to end in disaster.

I would like to propose another potential outcome; that maybe, by permitting Jenna to pursue her agricultural curiosity, especially in a town that reaps tourism dollars each year by using the image of a chicken, that perhaps Jenna's work could end up being really fantastic and fulfilling. In addition to Jenna gathering hands-on experience for her 4-H project, maybe her neighbors would receive gifts of fresh eggs, and come winter, the Vilkases could have a few fat birds in the freezer to make soup with. I believe that is a precedent I would want to encourage, not prevent.

Sincerely, Mollie M. Young

The Wayne

era

"Jack Sprat could eat no fat." Impeach him!

"His wife could eat no lean." Well then, impeach her!

That would be today's solution and call to action.

But, guess what, back in 1639 England, when the famous rhyme was published, the solution was so much simpler: "And so betwixt them both, they lick'd the platter clean." Cooperation, compromise. Wow

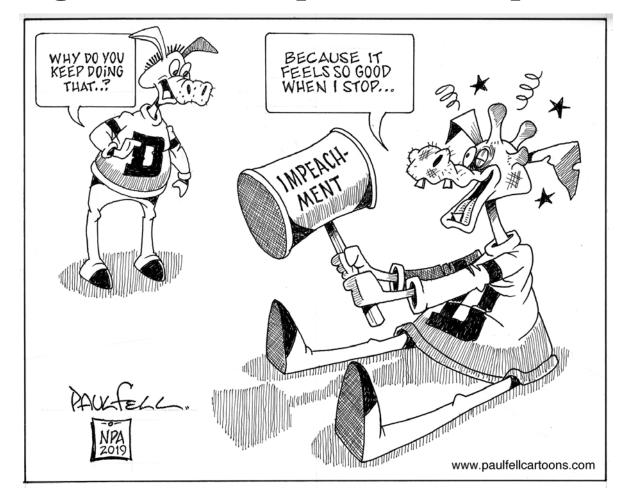

If you Google it, you'll find myriad explanations, tutorials and even YouTube videos explaining impeachment. It's the process by which a legislative body levels charges against a government official. Once an individual is impeached, he or she must then face the possibility of conviction by a legislative vote, which judgment entails removal from office.

Ah yes, the legislative vote. Read that, politics, which party has the power edge? Would taking it to a vote have the desired outcome? Remember that President Bill Clinton was impeached and acquitted by the Senate in 1999 and completed his term in office. He is only the second U.S. president -following Andrew Johnson 131 years earlier — to ever be impeached.

Helps you understand why the zeal to do the same to the current President of the United States runs hot and cold. It's obviously satisfying to some to throw the threat out there. But the reality is there is always the probability of acquittal by the Republican controlled Senate.

President Richard Nixon could likely have been impeached for his knowledge of - and dare we say, involvement in - the 1972 break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate office complex in Washington, D.C. The articles of impeachment in July 1974 covered obstruction of justice, abuse of power and contempt of Congress. Nixon wisely resigned on August 9 and avoided probable impeachment and removal from office.

Now the focus has shifted to im-have called for impeachment.

I have a confession to make. In 1951, as a morning kindergartener in the Panhandle community where I grew up, I stole small chunks of clay during craft time. It was from this big brown glob of what was obviously government-subsidized clay that had a distinctive smell and was a bit oily. I was prompted by my friend Lloyd who was doing the same thing.

My older sister - a fifth grader found out and told my mom who promptly marched me to school the next day with my accumulated clay and forced me to turn it in to my two kindergarten teachers - one of whom was the wife of a very popular deputy sheriff – and confess my transgression. I think I lost some recess privileges and they never trusted me around clay again.

I am just glad the people involved in that incident had long since forgotten about it when I ran for the peachment of U.S. Supreme Court village board in a small town in the Democratic Presidential hopefuls er. I did get elected and served that liam K. Sebastian of Arkansas, member and a business owner. No July 11, 1861, the Senate expelled talk of impeachment for me.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Samuel Chase wasn't quite as lucky in ary, the Senate expelled another 1804. He had campaigned vigorously for John Adams in the election of 1800, and in 1803, gave a grand jury charge in the U.S. circuit court in Maryland that was sharply critical of the Republicans. The grand jury charge proved highly controversial and led many to call for Chase's removal from the bench. In March 1804, the House of Representatives voted to impeach Chase.

During his 22-day trial before the Senate, Chase argued that he could not be impeached for errors in judgment or improper behavior on the bench, but rather only for an indictable offense. On March 1, 1805, the Senate acquitted Chase when none ing for impeachment every time a of the eight articles of impeachment secured the votes required for conviction.

Governor's Update Nebraska's Great Outdoors

Like many Nebraskans, I enjoy while creating treasured memories in hunting and fishing, and these activities have instilled in me an enduring love for the outdoors. There's no better way to take in the beauty of Nebraska, whether it's on a turkey hunt in the Pine Ridge or spending a quiet evening fishing at a community pond. Hunting and fishing are relaxing ways to unplug from the work week, enjoy the outdoors, and spend time with friends and family. While hunting and fishing, I have met Nebraskans from throughout the state, all bound together by appreciation of our state's natural resources.

This month, on September 28th, Nebraska will join the nation in celebrating National Hunting and Fishing Day. This is an important day across the United States, but it has special significance in Nebraska. Hunting and fishing are important elements of our rich outdoor heritage. Families have hunted and fished together for generations. For numerous Nebraskans, hunting and fishing remain ways to put food on the table,

the process

Outdoorsmen and women are drawn to our state because of its plentiful wildlife, picturesque open spaces, and well-kept parks. We have mule deer and whitetails, along with such an abundance of upland game that Nebraska has been called the mixed-bag capital of the Great Plains. We have turkeys in every county of the state and the popular Merriam's bird in the Pine Ridge. The thriving turkey population in Nebraska has led to our state being known as the best turkey hunting destination in the country. Our lakes have outstanding stocks of fish: walleye in Lake McConaughy, Harlan Reservoir, and the Sandhills lakes; trout in the cool-water streams in the north; channel catfish at Branched Oak; and muskies at Merritt Reservoir. These opportunities draw hunters and anglers annually from every across Nebraska, and throughout the single state in the nation.

Hunting and fishing are a significant economic force in our state. Each year, they contribute more than $1 billion to our state's economy, or about one percent of our state's economic output. Hunters and anglers from all nation, travel throughout our beautiful state in pursuit of a wide variety of game, fish, and outdoor recreation opportunities. They purchase fuel, program. Many other landowners enjoy meals, hire guides, stay at hotels and motels, and shop at other local businesses.

Proceeds from the purchases of hunting and fishing permits and stamps in our state are reinvested in growing the population of wildlife in Nebraska. Hunting and fishing permit and stamp sales are used to research game species in our state. The funds also go to conserve and restore habitat for these species, which in turn benefits songbirds, pollinators, and many other plant and wildlife species as well.

Nebraska's traditional commitment to hunting and fishing flows from our agricultural heritage. To a large extent, Nebraska's generous landowners are responsible for our state's desirability as a destination for sportsmen and women. Hundreds of landowners across the state have opened more than 325,000 acres of their own property to walk-in access for hunting, fishing, and trapping through the Open Fields and Waters and ag producers have implemented programs on their land to improve habitat for wildlife. Still others open their land to family, friends, friendsof-friends, and to strangers who knock on their doors each year when deer or turkey season rolls around. If you're invited to hunt on private land, make sure you thank the landowner who hosted you.

I'm doing my best to pass the tradition down to my son, Roscoe. We've hunted turkey and pheasants together, and we've enjoyed seeing our state's natural beauty on these trips. For his part, Roscoe has introduced his friends to fishing. Inviting family and friends on a hunting or fishing expedition is the best way to pass on these treasured Nebraska traditions to future generations. You should also check out the Youth Lifetime Half Price Permit Program through Nebraska Game and Parks at outdoornebraska.gov/yltp. Over the years, generous donors have supported 6,400 lifetime hunting and fishing fall!

permits for young Nebraskans.

This fall, the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission has developed a program to thank hunters who take the time to introduce hunting to a new or novice hunter. The Take 'Em Hunting program encourages hunters to introduce-or reintroducesomeone to hunting, take a photo of their experience, and upload that photo to the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission website (OutdoorNebraska.org/TakeEmHunting). Anyone who submits a photo will be entered to win great prizes, including the grand prize, a camo John Deere crossover utility vehicle from Plains Equipment Group.

There has never been a better time to pass down the tradition of hunting or fishing and to celebrate the benefits of these time-honored activities. If you'd like to share your favorite hunting or fishing tradition, I invite you to email pete.ricketts@nebraska. gov or call (402) 471-2244. I hope to see you on the lake or in the field this

The 2017 Rural Road Improvement Bond balance of $470,000 can be refinanced or paid off in 2020.

A motion was made by Sievers and seconded by Burbach to sign an Underwriting Engagement and Disclosure letter with DA Davidson for the proposed offering and issuance of bonds. Roll call vote: Sievers, Burbach, Rabe - aye; motion carried.

Sievers will look into upgrading the county skid loader. The unit will continue to be shared by the road districts and used for courthouse snow removal. A dirt bucket attachment will be considered.

Doug Elting of Berggren Architects presented an ASI #1 document that outlined in specific terms how work will be prioritized, and how work is to be done on the courthouse restoration project, was submitted for board approval. Berggren's felt it was necessary to establish priorities since project cuts will have to be made to reduce costs. The document was already signed by the architect, contractor, and sub-contractor. The board wanted time to study the terms; they referred it to Deputy Attorney Knudsen for review.

Noxious Weed Superintendent Doug Deck offered to use his private cell phone and receive a stipend rather than carrying a county-provided cell phone. The board felt it would be best to keep county and personal business on separate phones.

The new tables for the courtroom have arrived. The four additional courtroom chairs will be purchased from One Office Solution at $149.99 each.

The Experiential Learning Model explained School Lunches

Nebraska 4-H utilizes experi- that knowledge can be applied to ential learning when a youth is other life situations. involved in an activity and they look back at it to determine what was useful or important.

The five-step Experiential Learning Model guides the process, turning activities into fun learning experiences. 4-H uses this hands-on learning approach to teach new topics and life skills.

It is important that youth are aware of the learning that takes place as they are involved in learning experiences. As they reflect on these experiences, they can identify what was most important and how adult volunteers can help youth develop these reflective skills.

The Experiential Learning Model provides five steps to assist with this process. Adult volunteers can begin by:

· Setting aside enough time for reflecting on the experience.

• Planning developmentally appropriate experiences that lead to reflection.

•Listening carefully.

·Supporting each youth's unique learning

Step 1: Experience: The hands-on action step where youth do their project.

4-H & Youth

·Youth experiment with new ideas, interests, and projects.

Step 2: Share: Describe what was done.

·What kinds of hopes and dreams did you have for your 4-H experience this year?

•What was your goal for this project when you began?

• Tell me about your most favorite things about working on your proj-

•Tell about your least favorite things about working on your project.

•What did you learn while doing this project?

Step 3: Process: Identify common themes and discover, what was most important, (the life skill), about project work.

·What did you learn about yourself by doing this project?

·How did you make your decision? What steps did you take?

•What was the most challenging part of your project? Why? How did you solve it?

•What did you learn from this project that you didn't know before? •Why was this an important/useful thing to do?

Step 4: Generalize: So what?

Identify how to use what's been learned in real life. These questions transition the experience or "product" itself to the skill being practiced in "real" life. Youth are able to explore the nature of the life skill, reflect on how the life skill has been developed through their work and set the stage for application of the life skill in new situations.

•What key points have you learned?

•What similar experience have you had throughout this project/ activity?

·Where have you faced similar challenges in your life?

•What did you learn about your decision-making skills?

Step 5: Apply: What's next?

Adults can help youth show that they have gained new knowledge and practiced the life skills learned rather than solely focusing on the subject matter or product development skills.

•What did the project mean to your everyday life?

•What have you learned about yourself and others? ·What principles or guidelines can you use in real-life situations?

•In what ways do people help each other learn new things? ·How will you act differently in the future as a result of this experience? Adapted from: Questions for

The Prairie Doc Historical trauma and cultural healing

Starting in 1805 through 1858 the Dakota Indian people living in Minnesota were, by U.S. government treaties, gradually cut out of their traditional hunting areas. In 1861, crops failed, winter was severe, meager federal payments were late and Dakota children were starving. By August of 1862, desperation moved some of the Dakota Indians to attack white homestead farmers and families and the state militia responded. War was on.

After six weeks of fighting the Dakota warriors surrendered and 303 men were sentenced to death by hanging. President Abraham Lincoln commuted many but left 38 Dakota men to hang in Mankato, Minnesota just after Christmas 1862. Those commuted were shipped to prison in Iowa where more than a third died as conditions were so poor.

Although many Indian people did not go to war, white hatred of all Indians grew like a prairie fire. Within a year, a $25 bounty was paid for the scalp of any Dakota Indian found free within the state. Lives were lost on both sides of that war, but the Dakota Oyate (Oyate means people) lost their lands and their culture. Pride and family traditions were severely compromised affecting many generations to come.

Heart, Historical Trauma Response is a societal diagnosis now used by psychologists and historians. It refers to the cumulative, transgenerational, traumatic experience which causes long-lasting injury to communities, cultures and descendants, like that of the American Indian. Another example of HTR is the African American slave experience.

Experts state that HTR may cause as guest speakers. Each of the 10 formerly invited guests will be contacted and invited to join the group for a Monday, Oct. 7 meeting.

The regular meeting was then adjourned and members spent time visiting and having treats.

smoldering animosity between groups as well as poverty, alcohol abuse, violence, depression and suicide behaviors. How can this be treated without compromising a culture's traditions? Do ancestors of immigrant Europeans have a societal responsibility to right a wrong? Does smoldering animosity block the path to healing?

I believe prejudice hurts all of us Hate poisons the well, even if it is "inherited hate" that came from more than 200 years of conflict and violence. It is time for European descendants to free ourselves from the bonds of historical bigotry and better understand the perspective of the Indian people. It is time for people of all races to stop hating and find ways for cultural healing through spiritual kindness to each other.

Lakota leader and mystic Black Elk said, "The bison were the gift of a good spirit . . . and from the same good spirit we must find another strength.

Zechariah: Hope in Messiah

At Calvary Bible we have been studying the book of Zechariah. Zechariah was a prophet who was sent to the nation of Israel after they had returned from captivity to their homeland. The people had started rebuilding the Temple upon their return but had grown discouraged with the opposition and had stopped with the laying of the foundation. Zechariah, along with his contemporary Haggai, was sent to encourage the people to continue the work of rebuilding the Temple of the Lord.

The Temple was the center of worship for the Jewish people at that time. It was the place where the presence of the Lord dwelt. It was the place where sacrifices for sin were made. It was the place where they came to worship The Lord. The Temple was crucial to their relationship with the Lord and their worship of Him. The Lord wanted the people of Israel to rebuild the Temple so that they could worship Him properly and so He could fulfill His promises to the nation.

The Lord still had work for His people to do. He intended the nation to be like a city on a hill: a bright shining light all people regarding His power and character. Other nations were to look to the nation of Israel and see a people who worshipped a great, powerful, holy God who was also living, gracious and merciful.

Of course the nation failed in many respects. They continued to failing to represent the Lord well. This was why they were sent into encouraged to be faithful to the captivity. The Lord disciplined the work the Lord had given them so people but eventually brought them that He could fulfill the promise of back to the land. He still had a plan the Messiah. Even though their cirfor them and wanted them to be His representatives in the world.

One of the things the Lord had planned to do was to bring Messiah through the Jewish people to bless all the world. The Lord's promise to Abraham in the Genesis 12 is that through him the Lord would make a great nation that would bless all the nations and people of the world. This would be accomplished by Israel's representation of the Lord to the world and ultimately Israel Messiah would come.

The nation had long hoped in the coming of Messiah to deliver them new life and a new spirit. They have from bondage. However, the Mes- been given an eternal purpose and siah was not going to just bless the the hope of eternal life. Jewish people with deliverance, he would bring that same deliverance avenue through which He reveals

For this reason, the people were cumstances were difficult, the Lord was still working in their midst. He still had a plan and purpose for them in the world. Their hope was in the Lord and in His Messiah who would eventually come.

Today, we know that Messiah has come. Jesus is the Christ is the Messiah. He came to bring deliverance from sin and eternal salvation to those who would believe in Him. His death on the cross and His glorious resurrection from the dead has would be the nation through whom provided the way for anyone to find deliverance and hope. Those who do trust and receive Him are given a himself to the world. The Church is to be His light to the world just as Israel was to be a light to the world. We also trust in the coming of Messiah. He came the first time as Savior. He will come again as Lord of lords and King of kings.

The Church must continue the work of the Lord because He is not done with us yet. He still has a plan and purpose for His Church. He is still bringing people to Himself and He chooses to use His people to spread the message of the Gospel of salvation by grace through faith in Jesus Christ. We are also reminded to be faithful because we have the hope of the return of our Great God and Savior Jesus Christ.

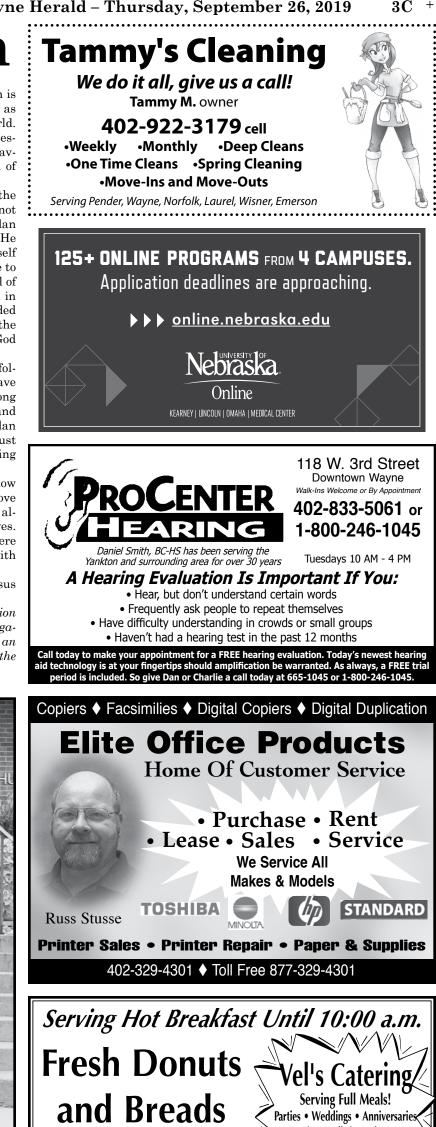

As individual believers and followers of Jesus Christ, we can have the hope and assurance that as long as we have breath in our lungs and a conscious mind, He still has a plan and purpose for our lives. We must continue to be faithful to His calling and purpose for each of us.

What a blessing it is to know that for those who know and love the Lord Jesus Christ, He will always have a purpose for our lives. When that purpose is complete here on earth, He will take us to be with Him forever.

I hope you know the Lord Jesus Christ as your personal Savior.

A Historic Route 20 sign has arrived. Last minute details were completed for Bryan Farr's presentation, "People and Places Along Historic Route 20." It will be held Sunday, Sept. 29 at 2 p.m. at the museum in Allen.

A letter was read from the Boone County Historical Society inquiring about the structure of the Dixon County Historical Society. Gloria Oberg will answer their query.

The deadline to sign up for the Heritage Museum Network meeting in Plainview was discussed.

Mrs. Oberg showed copies of military records she had received from the National Archives. It was discussed as to what kinds of records are available in the Archives and how to access them.

Crop Residue Exchange is valuable resource

The Wayne

The Crop Residue Exchange continues to expand in usage as well as features available to better connect livestock producers with available forage resources.

AND DESCRIPTION OF THE OWNER OWNE

The goal of the Crop Residue Exchange is to increase the use of crop residue for livestock grazing by helping crop producers better make available their crop residue to cattle producers and develop mutually beneficial grazing agreements. More information can be found at their website at https://CropResidueExchange.unl.edu.

The Crop Residue Exchange continues to link cattle producers to available grazing resources. To date, a majority of the listings have been for available corn residue. Crop producers who have listed residue available for grazing in the past are encouraged to log in their preferred contact information. tion for available listings have oc- per bushel or 20 percent of the toand update their listings on the Exchange for the upcoming fall and winter grazing season.

Recent updates to the Exchange have expanded its geographical reach to include large portions of the states that surround Nebraska. Crop producers in much of Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, and South Dakota can now list fields they have available for grazing.

After establishing a free log-in account on the Crop Residue Exchange, producers can draw out the plot of land available for grazing by using an interactive map and entering basic information about the type of residue, fencing situation, water availability, and dates available. They also need to provide

The land available for grazing can be described as a "Residue Type" such as corn, wheat, or sorghum fields or pasture. Pricing can be listed as a cost per acre or a cost per head per day. Livestock producers can search the Crop Residue Exchange database for grazing available within a radius for the location of interest. Livestock producers must be logged in to view the contact information attached to each listing.

The Crop Residue Exchange came online in August, 2017. To date there are 281 registered users that have posted 45 listings available for grazing. Over 6,000 searches for grazing resources have been conducted on the Exchange and almost 600 views of contact informa-curred. The Exchange continues to expand in usage as well as features available to better connect livestock producers with available forage resources

In addition to providing a winter feed resource, grazing corn residue can increase the amount and rate of corn residue breakdown. When grazed at proper stocking rates, small but positive impacts on subsequent crop production after grazing have been observed.

University of Nebraska-Lincoln recommendations for establishing corn residue stocking rates are based on 50 percent utilization of leaves and husks (8 pounds tal corn residue). Some additional corn residue disappears through trampling and wind loss, but there has been no increased erosion risks when only 40 to 50 percent of the corn residue was removed through grazing

The Crop Residue Exchange is made possible with funding support from Nebraska Extension and the Northern Plains Climate Hub.

For more information on the Crop Residue Exchange, visit their website at https://CropResidueExchange.unl.edu or contact your local Nebraska Extension office.

How does your herd score going into fall?

Husker football games have started, and the corn is starting to turn colors, getting producers thinking about the fall harvest. Before starting up the combines, I encourage cow owners to take the time and body condition score your cow herds. Making up lost pounds during the cold winter months can be a challenge if not an expensive challenge. So now is the time to supplement a little extra to those thin cows or 2nd calvers adjusting to motherhood. Invite your feed specialist over to take a drive through the herd to determine an average percentage on body condition, write down your averages as well as weather conditions, take some photos, and act on what needs addressed. These written records become useful each year to see what changes a cow may encounter as well as her offspring that may have been kept for replacement. Keep in mind to look past the hair coat which may be thicker in the winter as well as stage of pregnancy.

Body Condition Scoring (BCS) is a 9-point system used to determine the amount of flesh a cow has. 1 is an extremely thin cow, 5 is an ideal weight, and 9 is obese. The spine, pins, ribs, and tailhead are a few areas to evaluate when scoring. If the number system is overwhelming start with placing cows in the category of thin, moderate, or fleshy. Options for these cows may be to wean calves sooner and give them 45 days to hopefully return back to a normal healthy weight. Economically, 90 days prior to calving is the last time to put some pounds back on a thin cow. If in a time crunch, remove thin and younger cows from the herd to feed separately a higher quality forage.

Cows that are thin during calving will produce less colostrum and calves may have a hard time getting going, leaving room for disease challenges to present. Heifers are only at 85% of their mature weight when calving so I like to see them at a BCS of 6. Economically a BCS of a 7 is not ideal either. These cows may have a shorter postpartum interval but a BCS of 5-6 has shown in studies to bring cows back to estrus in as early as 55 days with a decreased feed cost. 80 days is the estimated amount of time it will take a BCS 3-4 cow to return to estrus in return reducing chances of a maintained 365 day calving interval. Besides cows don't forget your bulls! Our young bulls worked hard this summer and we are supplementing to get those extra pounds back on and an average of 5.5-6.5 BCS. Take advantage of supplements such as Hi Fat or Energy tubs, cubes, liquid or a feed program designed by your CVA feed specialist to get your herd prepared for winter. New project taps Nebraska youth to help boost monarch butterfly population

A new project launched by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln is involving the state's youth in an effort to save monarch butterflies.

Milkweed in the Classroom is a pilot program engaging 45 schools across Nebraska in growing milkweed plants in the classroom. Third to fifth grade students will plant milkweed seeds in the classroom and as the plants grow, corresponding educational activities will accompany science and biology lesson plans. The curriculum is designed to educate students on the role pollinating insects play in producing the many common foods humans relay on for a healthy diet, and the positive impacts of pollinator on many habitats. Monarch butterflies eat milkweed plants exclusively.

"More important than actually growing the milkweed is the opportunity to foster sound conservation practices in our youth," said Doug Golick, associate professor in the Department of Entomology. Also involved with the project are Jennifer Keshwani, associate professor in biological systems engineering, Tom Weissling, associate professor in entomology, and Erin Ingram, curriculum development specialist. The team is working with partners at Pheasants and Quail Forever and the Prairie Plains Resource Institute to launch the program.

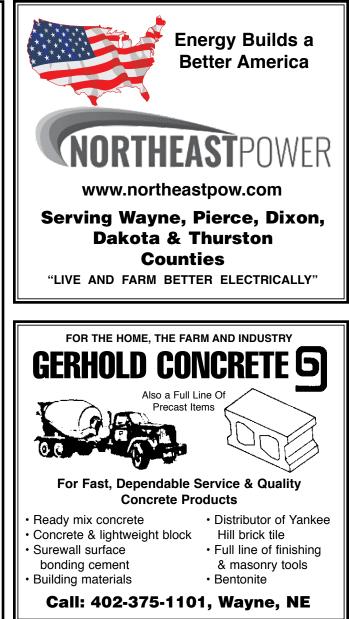

Recent studies indicate that the Monarch butterfly population is in decline. This is especially true for the Eastern overwintering monarch butterflies, or those that winter in the Sierra Madre Mountains of Mexico. According to the World Wildlife Fund Mexico, the 2018 overwintering population of Eastern monarch butterflies decreased 14.8 percent from the previous year. In response, the conservation community has been working to establish habitat projects that benefit the monarch butterfly and other pollinating insects.

"Milkweed in the Classroom can help conservation efforts by planting high quality monarch and pollinator habitat in the monarch butterfly eastern population flyway," Golick said. Golick and his partners are currently working to identify schools to partner with on the program. In-person and online training will be provided for teachers from participating schools. The training will include information on monarch butterflies and pollinators, how to grow milkweed plants, and how to incorporate curriculum into the program.

Once teachers are trained, planting of the seeds will take place in the spring of 2020. The plants will grow for three months in the classroom before being transferred to a site on school property dedicated to the establishment of a milkweed garden. Pheasants Forever chapter volunteers and staff will provide local support to classrooms for growing and planting milkweed seeds.

Program leaders anticipate Milkweed in the Classroom will educate approximately 1,100 students about the importance of pollinators, while establishing at least 2,000 milkweed stems throughout the state.

youth archer did the same, but at 50, 40, and 30 yards," said Coach Eric Frye.

The adults shot 60, 50, and 40 vards

Sunday was also very rainy and windy but the shooting for cubs started with 20 arrows at 10 yards and moved out to 20, then 30 yards. Youth were at 30, 40, and then 50 yards. Adults started at 40, then 50, and finished at 60 yards. "Luckily, the day was a bit shorter with shooting being done around 2 p.m. Equipment and weather were factors, along with a whirlwind of activity at such a large event, but everyone there was very excited and surprised at how well a local group of archers held up at a national contest," Frve said. Jenny Thies of Winside finished second in Adult Female Freestyle Limited; Alexis Frye of Wayne finished 10th in Female Youth Freestyle and Brayden Lurz of Hoskins finished second in Male Cub Recurve. Bryce Lurz of Hoskins finished as National Champion in Male Cub Bare Bow and Bailey Lurz of Hoskins finished as National Champion in Female Cub Bare Bow. Coach Frye said "I am very happy with how everyone finished with the weather and the long days. It's a great opportunity for them to get to compete at this level and we went home with two national second place medals and two national championship cups."
