Wayne County Commissioners hear roads, courthouse restoration updates

By Sarah Lentz

editor@wayneherald.com

The Wayne County Commissioners held their first March meeting Tuesday morning in the courtroom of the Wayne County Courthouse. While there were no actionable agenda items past approving claims and the agenda, the commissioners heard several updates.

Wayne County clerk, Deb Finn, told the commissioners rural Wayne County residents will now vote by mail instead of at a polling place. The move is something many communities around the state are embracing. By mailing ballots to the rural county residents, Finn said the County will also save some money. The cost per voter in Wayne's rural precincts ranged from $2.79 to $4.84 per voter. Now that cost will drop

Finn said rural residents were sent information about the change and only a small fraction raised concerns, some stemming from the reliability of the postal service, concerns of voter fraud, and some saying they'll miss going to a polling location. Finn said rural residents can still vote at the courthouse if they so desire. Ballots will be sent out with return postage already paid for. From there, Finn said she's encouraging rural voters to allow for up to five days in the mail to return their ballots. For questions about voting by mail, Finn can be contacted at (402) 375-2288

Wayne County emergency manager, Nic Kemnitz told the commissioners about several upcoming training events. On March 19, Kemnitz will be leading a follow-up table top exercise from January's training event where multiple agencies were asked to think about how they would respond within the first few minutes to an hour after a tornado hit. These repairs will begin almost immediately.

LCC senior Noah Schutte scored a game-high 37 points and became the second player in Nebraska history with 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds for a career to send the Bears to the Class D-1 state tournament with a 63-36 win over Anselmo-Merna Tuesday in Albion.

Bears ride Schutte's milestone night to district title

ALBION — It had been almost 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds 20 years since a Laurel-Concord boys basketball team had made it to state, and the Bears would need a big effort against a talented Anselmo-Merna team if it was going to end that state tournament dry spell.

The Bears turned to one of their senior leaders, who not only had a big night, but made a little history in the process.

Noah Schutte scored a gamehigh 37 points and became only the second player in Nebraska high school history to record in a career to help the thirdranked Bears pull away for a 63-37 win Tuesday in the D1-3 district final at Boone Central High School and earn a trip to next week's Class D-1 state tournament.

Schutte joined Bob Siegel of Fairbury (1973) as the only 2,000-1.000 club members in state history when he hit his first shot of the second half, a 3-pointer that gave LCC a 42-20 lead and quashed any hopes of a Coyote comeback.

LCC came out hot in the early goone quarter, extending it to 19 by the half at 39-20. The Bears hit 50 percent from the field and easily advanced to the state tournament, which begins next Thursday, March 12, in Lincoln.

Set Sail with the satirical 'Pirates of Penzance' at Wayne State College

Sail the seven seas with the comic opera "Pirates of Penzance" March 26-29 in Ramsey Theatre at Wayne State College. Shows are 7 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, March 26-28; and 2 p.m. Sunday, March 29. This musical theatre performance is a collaborative effort between the WSC Theatre Program and Department of

"Pirates of Penzance" is an amusing satire by playwright W. S. Gilbert with music by Sir Arthur Sullivan. Gilbert also provided the libretto. "Pirates of Penzance" is notorious for fast tempo songs where each syllable corresponds to a single musical note. This patter style is a spoof on operatic conventions and was a staple of Gilbert and Sullivan's works. "Pirates of Penzance" premiered in New York City in 1879, however its social commentary remains relevant today. The story follows Frederic who is indentured to a band of pirates. Frederic loathes piracy. Upon his 21st birthday, he vows to find a wife and devote his life to pirate eradication. He soon meets beautiful songbird Mabel, the ward of Major-General Stanley. But a twist of fate, or rather being a leap-year baby, forces Frederic back into the raucous pirate world. Mabel vows to wait for Frederic. Meanwhile, the Pirate King decides to plunder the General's home. A rowdy clash ensues with a noble ending, steeped with sentimentality and acceptance.

Tickets are available at the door: $10 for adults, $5 for students 12 years of age and under, and free admission for WSC students, faculty, and staff. This production is directed by Rusty Ruth, assistant professor of Communication Arts. Brian Rusty Ruth at (402) 375-7422.

Another fall and other stuff

By MIKE RENNING mikesportshome@yahoo.com

Thank goodness I still live with the Darling Wife as our daughter keeps reminding me I would be kicked out of assisted living if I was living in assisted living and fell as often as I have over the past few

Now, if we recall, none of the falls have been my fault. The fall off the stove was a clock-change for the Darling Wife. The fall in the shower was a displacement of my soap. The fall fishing was the uneven rocks along the Missouri River. Well, this was Jake's fault.

You remember Jake? The Darling Wife's beagle? Out of the goodness of my heart, I

I blasted the ground and cracked a couple of ribs.

Jake was unconcerned.

As I looked to my right, he was already squatted down and taking care of his liquid business.

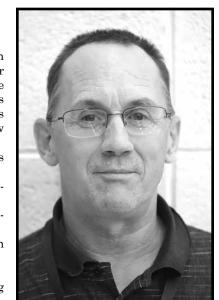

I then realized I was a touch downhill from her little beagle and momentarily the pain went away as I jumped once again, this time to

When that was put back in place, I nearly did what Jake was doing just after we exited the back deck, but man did I feel better.

Now, I can add cracked ribs to my 178 stitches, two broken bones, seven... oh, never mind.

But I'm sure you all understand these falls are not my fault.

It is unfortunate circumstances and has nothing to do with age, or agility or state of mind, really.

On to the other stuff.

I know I have promised not to get political in this space, but does it bother anyone that we have spent months and probably billions of dollars to impeach a president we elected just a couple of years ago?

I'm not picking sides but just stating facts, impeachment can be done at the voting booth and will or will not be, depending on the outcome of

And don't make them wrestle the boys - that is just weird.

So why is Nebraska fighting ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment?

By J.L. SCHMIDT Statehouse Correspondent The Nebraska Press Association

A recent poll shows that 73 percent of Americans favor the Equal Rights Amendment. Why, then, is Nebraska joining a handful of states seeking to stop Congress from acting on it? Could it be politics?

Constitutional amendments must be ratified by three-quarters of the 50 states, or 38. But the ERA's future is uncertain, in part because the ratification deadline set by Congress expired so long ago.

Nebraska Attorney General Doug Peterson said there's been a movement to get states that had not previously ratified the ERA to reconsider their prior decision in spite of the expiration of the time limit.

In their lawsuit against the archivist of the United States, Nevada, Illinois and Virginia seek to ratify the 1972 ERA, concluding the time limit issued by Congress was not enforceable, and that states like Nebraska that rescinded their ratification vote (in 1973) should still be counted as supporting it.

Peterson noted that a prior U.S. Supreme Court decision held that once the time period expired, the ERA had become moot. He said Nebraska intervened in the lawsuit because the case asks the court to ignore Nebraska's rescission.

"As attorney general, I cannot allow the formal action taken by the Nebraska Unicameral to rescind its prior ERA vote to be ignored," Peterson said. "Therefore, intervening on the matter was necessary. This is consistent with my oath of office."

Lincoln Sen. Patty Pansing Brooks, a Democrat in the officially nonpartisan Legislature, told her colleagues during floor debate she was more than aggravated and disturbed that state dollars are being spent on the lawsuit. "Of all the messages for Nebraska to send," Pansing Brooks said, "'We do not want to protect women. We do not want to give women equal rights."

The five states — Nebraska, Tennessee, Alabama, Louisiana and

South Dakota — filed a motion last month to intervene in a lawsuit filed by Virginia, Nevada and Illinois. All five intervenors rescinded their approvals of the ERA amendment before a congressionally mandated ratification deadline more than 40 years ago. Virginia recently became the 38th state to ratify the measure, designed to guarantee women the same legal rights as men.

The ERA says, "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex."

A recent poll conducted by The Public Affairs Research shows that 73 percent of Americans support the gender equality amendment, which uals polled were in opposition with 22 percent neutral. The margin of ing.

error was 3.6 percent plus or minus. The poll indicated that 89 percent of Democrats favor the ERA with only 61 percent of Republicans in favor. Of those Democrats, one percent was in opposition and 10 percent were neutral. Republicans were 9 percent in opposition and 30 percent neither. Seventy six percent of women and 70 percent of men favor it. There's the politics. The ERA also faces opposition from conservative activists who see it as endangering their positions on abortion and transgender rights.

Pansing Brooks does not like Associated Press-NORC Center for the message Nebraska's intervention sends to the rest of the country when the state is trying to get people to move here, notably its rural is now before Congress following areas, to allow businesses to grow Virginia's ratification in January. and thrive. Nebraska was one of the Only 4 percent of the 1,353 individ- first states to ratify it in 1972. She called the change of direction shock-

In their argument to stop the ratification process, the states argue the ERA could put enacted laws at risk, such as those to prohibit expenditure of public funds on abortion, restrictions on abortion, regulations that protect women's health or rules that bar boys from playing on girls' sports teams.

It could force states to spend massive amounts of time and money to defend or change laws, they said.

Pansing Brooks said the states don't know that this would affect any of their laws, but just in case, they are going to take a stand against economic development and bringing businesses to the state,

"We need all people," she said "Quit discriminating.'

Comfortable death nothing to fear

When he was diagnosed with cancer of the pancreas spread to liver, he, his daughters, and his friends knew how this was likely going to go. But we didn't realize how graciously he would handle his dying process until it happened.

Christians around the world attended Ash Wednesday worship services where they received the sign of the cross on their forehead in recognition of their human mortality and sinfulness. During the forty days of Lent, Christians are encouraged to engage in self- reflection, many add some form of spiritual practice to help them grow closer to God as they remember Christ's sacrifice on

Lent is an opportunity to reflect on our lives as disciples, the direction we are heading and how we can improve our relationship with Christ. There may be times in our journey of faith that might be compared to driving down the interstate and realizing you should be going in the opposite direction or you missed your exit. Either case will require getting turned

The immediate problem on the Interstate is that U-turns are not permitted and that is a good thing; imagine what it would be like if people were free to make U-turns wherever they wanted! No doubt

Come back to the Lord and say and we will keep the promises we made to you." Hosea 14:1-3 New Century Version.

During Lent Christians are encouraged to reflect on our lives as disciples, are we following Christ, we never intended to be. In the have we made a wrong turn, are we at a dead end?

Some of the signs that you are fulness has caused them to go in going the wrong way in your walk with Christ include not attending worship regularly, not taking time "Israel, return to the Lord your for personal Scripture reading and God, because your sins have made study, not joining in regular fellow-

When we find we are going the wrong way, unlike driving on the Interstate, U-turns are permitted and encouraged in our journey of discipleship. In "church-speak" recognizing we need a U-turn is called confession, an important element of reformed and Presbyterian worship. Each week we come together before God and confess our individual and corporate sinfulness. In confession we ask God's forgiveness, ask for God's guidance and clarity of vision, strength to keep focused on Christ and not to take wrong turns or be frustrated by dead ends.

Our Triune God offers each of us who humbly confess our sins mercy and grace and a new beginning. Thankfully for Christians U-turns are permitted, even encouraged, to bring us back to worship, to study and fellowship with God and other Christians. No matter how many U turns we've made or need to make in our lives, we can be thankful that our Triune God is always ready to welcome wayward travelers' home.

port of the bill. "A major benefit of this legislation is that it will spare mothers the agony and guilt of knowing that they consented to a procedure which caused their child to be torn limb from limb while it was alive," she said. "It also protects medical personnel from the emotional trauma of knowing they assisted in this gruesome proce-

Dr. Aultman's concerns are echoed by other abortionists who testify of the psychological trauma that they and their staffs underwent after performing dismemberment abortions. During a dismemberment abortion, the baby's severed limbs and other tissues are placed on a tray. Medical staff then have to account for each piece to make sure no parts of the body remain inside the mother to cause dure on a live baby."

Kristen New formerly worked as a counselor for three years at abortion clinics, and she also testified in support of Senator Geist's bill. Kristen witnessed a dismemberment abortion up close. She held the hand of the mother about to have the procedure as she was sedated and put to sleep. Kristen then eyed the ultrasound screen as the abortion occurred. She could not endure watching its brutality and had to excuse herself from the room. After the abortion ended, she insisted on seeing the baby's dead body. Looking at the boy's onceperfectly formed body, now pulled apart and clinically arranged on a tray, disgusted and horrified her. The sickening experience motivated her to quit her job.

These stories make a compelling case for ending this method of abortion. Senators have the opportunity this session to act quickly and decisively to end this horrendous form of abortion. The Judiciary Committee is expected to vote on this bill this week. I encourage Nebraskans to contact their State Senators to voice support for LB 814. Their information can be found at NebraskaLegislature.gov. If you have questions about LB 814, I invite you to contact me by email at pete.ricketts@ nebraska.gov or by phone at (402) 471-2244.

We could do a better job stopping unnecessary medicines. touching our patients more and providing comfort to not only the patient, but to the patient's family as

Dying people have the right to ask for and be reassured that enough comfort medicine will be provided and that it's going to be alright. Our profession has been improving in this regard, but certainly could do better. When it's time, it's important that we all have the opportunity for a comfortable death, Chochon, president of Great Plains State Bank, has announced that the bank would invest $25,000 in Northeast's Nexus project.

"Agriculture will always be important in the state of Nebraska," Chochon said, "and that's never going to change. I think the innovation that Northeast Community College is coming up with is definitely going to help the ag sector moving forward. What they're working toward with the Nexus project is well worth our investment."

Great Plains State Bank was formed when an investment group headed by Chochon purchased the former Petersburg State Bank in 2016. There is a slogan about our state besides Nebraska Strong, which became so popular, and deservedly so, last year. That's Nebraska Nice. I think maybe it's real. I keep running into folks who came here to go to school and never left.

For instance, a month ago we spent an afternoon in the local emergency room. The nurse assigned to us was from St. Louis. That is where she got her education, at Barnes, which has a very good reputation. She came to Lincoln as a traveling nurse and decided to stay because "the people are kinder." That says a lot. Plus,

Then there was the fellow who came to play chess with Mike on Saturday. He came here to go to college and doesn't plan to leave. However, as an incidental story, he was scheduled to go to Shanghai for a semester abroad this year and obviously had to cancel that plan. It was a huge hassle getting his money back from the air lines. Multiply

And finally, I went to a local mattress store (I read somewhere that We had a visit from a medical there is never a day when mattresses are not on sale, but this is supposed to be a good time) and one of the sales people there had here. Yep, same story; he's not go-

Balanced Nutrition and Protein Sources for Performance Horses

As we continue to grow our knowledge as an equine industry, research has proven that selecting a feed based off one ingredient or number on a tag is not the ideal theory to correctly manage a performance horse. Two products with a 14% protein and 6% fat could look like the same feed to an untrained eye, but these feeds may be very different because they are using different formulation strategies. Total balance and availability of all nutrients is the most important component when developing a feed program for a performance horse. Did you know that protein is 2nd to water as the most abundant substance in the horse's body? Horses do not have a protein requirement; they actually have an amino acid requirement. Lysine is the number one limiting amino acid for a horse. Data has shown that ingredients with similar crude protein levels, like soybean meal and cottonseed meal, for example, may be the same protein, but cottonseed meal does not provide the same quality of protein (amino acid composition) to support growth as soybean meal does. Another example is oats. Not all oats have the same protein or mineral content, varying from regions and growing season. This will also change the nutrients in a feed bag. Please remember that transitioning from one protein source to another can affect palatability and can cause digestive upset so it's important to consult a specialist if you decided to change sources.

How many of you read the feeding directions? If a horse feed is not fed at the suggested feeding rate, the full nutritional benefit and performance will not meet the desired expectation. This is why our equine consultants work with customers to create a plan specifically for your horse and have feed scoops available as all feeds do not weigh the same. Meaning the old coffee can or cup explanation doesn't help ensure your horse is getting the nutrients

More fun facts: Even though an ingredient is listed on the tag, it could only be included in a trace amount. As horse owners, we like to assume all horse feed companies have done some research before having their product put on the market, however, this isn't always true. At Central Valley Ag, we work with companies who have put resources into research programs to support a horse's development. In certain situations, a 12% protein feed using quality ingredients will supply more protein and essential amino acids then a 14% protein feed with lower quality ingredients.

This also proves the same with fat, fiber, vitamins, and minerals. Horse owners try to do what is best for their animals like sometimes adding an additional fat like an oil top dress for a performance horse. This will increase the fat and calories, but it doesn't necessarily meet the requirement for protein, vitamins, or mineral, thus losing the balance of the total diet. If you would like to use a high fat supplement, make sure the proper amounts of protein, amino acids, and other essential nutrients are available to get the desired performance. As Purina Animal Nutrition likes to remind us as salespeople, "Not all ingredients are the same quality, stability, or availability for the horse." That is why at Central Valley Ag we have highly trained individuals on our Equine Team to help with any questions you may have. THANK YOU

Many caring friends and family You all are the very best.

Kind thoughts, texts, and words of encouragement. We'll help with your tasks, you need your rest.

How will I thank all these fine people. The thoughts ran through my head. All I can do is be thankful and pay it forward. The lawn got mowed - the bins got cleaned - the cattle are fed.

All the offers to help and food brought to the home. No one left me in the dust to go through it alone. Let us know if we can help - especially if you need a ride. So many wonderful people, so much thoughtfulness almost gets me misty eyed.

A positive attitude are in my plans for this hand I've been dealt. Thanks to everyone for all your thoughts and prayers I so dearly felt.
