Wakefield City Council meets

By Sarah Lentz editor@wayneherald.com

Wakefield's City Council met Nov. 11 at the Wakefield Civic Center. An LB840 tax loan request was heard, drainage near Michael Foods was discussed and an application to join the Wakefield Volunteer Fire Department was approved among other agenda items.

Early in the meeting discussion was held about selling The Hatchery building in downtown Wakefield.

"I'm not against the sale of the property, but I'm not for the sale of the property,' council member Larry Soderberg said.

Soderberg said he was uncomfortable making a decision because he felt there were too many questions still on the table about the City's responsibilities in regards to the building and what would happen to the tenants. Council member Ross Hansen said he wished the council had been kept more in the loop about the sale as well.

An LB840 tax loan request for $20,000 was granted to El Jalisquillo, LLC for start up costs. El Jalisquillo will be a Hispanic restaurant that will open in the old Luna's location at 208 Main Street.

Vacant property was again discussed. The issue has come up several times as Wakefield tries to address the housing shortage in the community. The council discussed the possibility of meeting with homeown- rity insurance. ers face to face about the City obtaining vacant properties. There was some discussion er Street project was approved and billabout what could be done to further conver- ing dates for water rates were officially sations if the owners live out of state and if changed to match what the City is doing a different approach might work better and previous communications with vacant property owners haven't been successful. Brady Weaver, Michael Foods plant manager, updated the council about the progress on the Rural Housing 360 process. The program is supposed to help workers find affordable housing in the communities they're working in. Weaver said COVID-19 has slowed down the process for Wakefield, but there were meetings with officials from Rural Housing 360 coming up.

"I wanted to thank the council for participating in that program, unfortunately, it's taken a little longer," Weaver said.

Weaver also spoke to the council about drainage issues near the plant. Flooding has been an issue in the past. Wakefield mayor, Paul Eaton expressed interest in carrying out some sort of study about what can be done to fix the issue. Weaver suggested coming up with a contingency plan in case of flash flooding for both the plant and homes in the area.

The council discussed the COVID-19 case increase in the area.

"I would like us to make all the businesses affected aware," Ross Hansen said. "Some people have a tendency to stick their head in the sand and if that continues we're going to have a serious issue."

He told the council that both Wayne and Pender's hospitals are filling up and a reminder about taking proper precautions might be in order.

An application to join the Wakefield Volunteer Fire Department from Jenna Mc-Afee was approved. Also tabled during the meeting was setting a date for a public hearing to rezone the Peters property from farm to residential and action on cybersecu-

COVID-19 update, liquor license discussed by council

By Clara Osten clara@wayneherald.com

Information from the Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department on COVID-19, an update on the hours of operation at the Community Activity Center and the issuance of a liquor license for a new business were among the items on the agenda when the Wayne City Council met in regular session on Nov. 17.

Julie Rother with the Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department spoke to the council via Zoom. She said the number of cases in the district is "skyrocketing and there is a backlog in the area of contact tracing."

She shared with the council the current restrictions in place, as the state is now in the "orange" category. She also explained what would happen should the state move to the higher "red" category.

Rother said the percentage of COVID-19 patients in hospitals is growing. However, See County commissioners, Page 3A in regard to taking precautions, "schools are doing a pretty good job."

Also in regard to COVID-19, information was shared on the use of the Community Activity Center (CAC). It was determined that due to both the need to keep crowds out and the difficulty in having staff available, the CAC would be only open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. by appointment. Families and small groups will need to contact the CAC to determine if the facility, especially the track, can be used during this time frame.

A public hearing was held on an application for a Class D Liquor License for DSF Wayne Short Stop LLC, doing business as Short Stop.

Dan and Shelly Fehringer are purchasing the former G's Quick Shop at 1034 Main Street. The Fehringers said they plan to operate the business similarly to what it is now, with the possibility of adding additional alcohol options and using the empty space at the west end of the building for an additional business.

The request was unanimously approved. Following discussion the resolution that would have awarded a bid and accepted a contract for the Pine Heights Road & Utility Improvement Project was tabled.

Due to an error in unit pricing, the bid from A&R Construction was actually higher than the bid from Myers Construction.

Jon Mooberry, Project Manager with JEO Consulting, explained what the project entailed and noted that Myers Construction had positive references from previous work.

However, Council member Chris Woehler questioned some of the proposed work on the project and said the firm had no history with some of the types of paving that would be part of the project.

Following additional discussion, council members agreed to have Mooberry look for additional information from the firm and obtain additional references before a bid is awarded. He noted that because the project is not scheduled to begin until the spring of 2020, the delay in awarding the bid should not slow the project down.

izations continue to rise in our community, I am deeply troubled as to what the future may bring unless we take action very soon.

Providence Medical Center is vital to this community; however, the impacts of this pandemic are putting both our healthcare workers and our patients at risk.

Our hospital staff is currently being stretched and pushed to the limit; the COVID-19 surge is upon us and everyone at our facility is greatly concerned. We have a loyal and dedicated team of men and women working here, but for a variety of reasons, they are getting taxed, both mentally and physically. Working in full personal protective equipment is not easy and can be extremely draining for our health care workers; however, it is necessary to protect their own health so Wear a mask, wash your hands frequently, maintain six feet of social distance and avoid the 3 Cs (crowded places, close contacts and confined spaces). These preventative measures are important and can significantly curb the spread.

With the holidays fast approaching, it's even more important to do your part. By taking preventative actions now, we can protect our family and friends from this deadly virus.

I implore you to help us put an end to COVID-19 in Nebraska.

Wayne State College Delta Sigma Pi Fraternity Earns Award

ta Sigma Pi Professional International Business Fraternity Eta Pi Chapter from Wayne State College received the regional Outstanding Professional Activities Award for a Collegiate Chapter Award and the regional R. Nelson Mitchell Outstanding Collegiate Chapter Award.

Award winners were announced via virtual presentations posted on the Delta Sigma Pi website in October.

"The awards are considered the highest honors a chapter can receive, recognizing excellence in areas of professional development, fundraising, recruitment, community service, and leadership. Through countless hours of dedication and high expectations, our students excelled by demonstrating the best qualities of teamwork, commitment, and overcoming the challenges of Covid and virtual networking," said Dr. Trish Kolterman of Wayne State College. "I am so proud of our students as they adapted to challenging situations, exuded confidence and resilience, and continued to actively participate in Delta Sigma Pi.

To be recognized for an award, the chapter must submit an online application. Each application is first reviewed by a group of fraternity volunteers within each region (groups of five to 10 collegiate chapters in a geographic area). Regional winners were progressed to a provincial award selection committee. (Provinces include: Northeastern, North Central, Southern, South Central and Western and University, and University of Nebraseach province has approximately 40 ka – Omaha. Outstanding Professional Activities (regional recipient) — This award is presented annually to a chapter that plans and implements the most effective and comprehensive program of professional development.

"We also want to show our appreciation to our District Director, Jeni Kemnitz, who received the Outstanding District Director of our region as well this year," Kolterman said. "Kemnitz is a great district director. We appreciate everything she does for our chapter. She definitely deserves this award. With everything going on with the pandemic, it was a huge honor to receive these awards. We are continuing to work hard and become better and hopefully we will receive more awards in the future.'

"I have always been impressed by the number of students who attend going goal to grow the Nebraska Wayne State from out of state," Rames said. "We have students pursuing degrees in our quality academic programs from 34 states. This new rate will allow us to make their pursuit of a life-changing four-year degree more affordable and make us more attractive to students who want to venture a little farther from home yet remain confident in a safe and supportive learning environment."

> "Wayne State has had a footprint out of state for a very long time due to our incentive programs for non-resident students," Halle said. "Our former non-resident rate often rivaled the cost of a four-year degree at many institutions outside Nebraska. Now, we will become an even more affordable choice for nonresident students."

The Nebraska State Patrol joins law enforcement agencies throughout the United States in an effort to keep travelers safe leading up to and during the Thanksgiving holiday. The "Click It or Ticket" event began Monday and runs through Thanksgiving weekend.

"Thanksgiving is traditionally one of the busiest travel seasons of the year," said Colonel John Bolduc, Superintendent of the Nebraska State Patrol. "While your travel plans may be different this Thanksgiving, using your seat belt for every trip, even just across town, remains important."

"Click It or Ticket" is a national effort for law enforcement agencies, in partnership with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. In Nebraska, dozens of local law enforcement agencies join NSP in the effort, which is made possible thanks, in part, to grant funding from the Nebraska Department of Transportation - Highway Safety Office (NDOT-HSO). NSP's portion of NDOT-HSO grant funding is $25,000.

In 2019, 63 percent of people who lost their lives in passenger vehicle crashes in Nebraska were not wearing a seat belt. NDOT estimates that seat belt use reduces the risk of fatal injury by 45 percent for front-seat passenger car occupants and by 60 percent for light truck occupants. "The stats are clear: seat belts save lives," said Colonel Bolduc. "Throughout the Thanksgiving season, troopers will be on patrol to keep Nebraska roads safe. But all motorists have a role to play by following traffic safety laws, avoiding distractions, and wearing a seat belt." During the winter driving season, travelers are advised to stay up to date on the forecast and check road conditions in the event of inclement weather. Nebraska's 511 system is available online, on the phone, and through the Nebraska 511 app. Any motorist can also call *55 or 800-525-5555 to reach the NSP Highway Helpline for assistance or to report a dangerous driver.

A gift idea for the child with everything School Lunches

'Tis the season for gift giving, all. With a variety of camp lengths, already has plenty of toys, video games, clothes, etc? This is a challenge that many people face. So, why not consider giving a child a gift certificate to a 4-H camp.

Whether your child's interest learning a few "bytes" about robots, but what do you give the child that interest areas, locations, and prices, 4-H Camps can meet your summer camp needs.

> The Nebraska State 4-H Camp - Halsey, is open to everyone ages 5-19 to attend.

Maybe your child isn't interested is in tubing down the Niobrara, in attending a 4-H camp far from home. If that is the case, check with or zipping down a zip line on the your local Extension Office about T.R.U.S.T. I was very young when my grandfather suffered his first stroke and began his battle with vascular dementia. I grew up understanding that he was not like the other adults in my life. He would take me on long walks around the neighborhood, but it was never entirely clear who was supervising who. He rarely had much to say, and when he did, it did not make sense. He communicated mostly through gestures, and sometimes unnerved my cousins and I with his uncertain

With the benefit of age and experience, I appreciate now how frustrated he was, and what a herculean task my grandmother took on.

Medicine has made progress in the nearly 40 years since my grandfather's death. We are better at preventing strokes and mitigating the aftereffects. We are better at distinguishing between the diseases that cause dementia. We have treatments for some of those causes, however disappointing those treatments are. Families struggle when they know Dad is not safe behind the wheel or at home, but Dad thinks everything is fine. One of the many things that dementia robs from people is the ability to grasp their condition. Some patients are skilled at hiding the extent of their impairment. Sometimes spouses fill in the gaps, so problems are less noticeable to the rest of the family. Patients can hide troubles from their doctors, too, so it is critically important that families and care teams maintain communication.

Just like many fully capable adults, dementia patients may fiercely resist the involvement of others in their business and many suffer for it. One of my patients hid her impairment until she was conned out of her entire savings. HEALTH SMART FROM HEALTH MART

WHAT TO DO IF YOU GET THE FLU

I'm guessing that the flu isn't on your top-10 wish list, right? But just in case you get sick this flu season, here's a list of 10 things you can do to help ease your symptoms-and to stop the flu in its tracks and protect others. 1. Stock up. A few supplies may make it a bit easier to manage the flu. It's best to have these on hand before you get sick. Otherwise, send a healthy member of your family out on an errand, if you can.

- · Acetaminophen, ibuprofen, or naproxen for reducing fevers and easing achiness
- A thermometer
- Cough syrup or cough drops
- Saline nose drops or sprays
- Drinks such as fruit juices or tea (avoid caffeine)
- Easy-to-eat foods such as clear soups, crackers, or applesauce^{1,2}

2. Stay home! The first day you have symptoms, you may be tempted to venture out to work or school. Please don't! Not only do you need the rest, but this is also when you're most contagious.¹ Try to nap—and read or binge-watch your favorite television episodes. 3. Prevent the spread. In addition to staying home, wash your hands often and cover your cough and sneeze into your sleeve.²

4. Drink fluids, breathe steam. This is a great way to thin your mucus, making it easier to cough up. This may help prevent a lung infection. Using a humidifier (a cool mist) or breathing in steam from a hot shower may also help ease congestion.¹

5. Calm your cough. It can be exhausting, I know. Try over-the-counter (OTC) cough medicines-an expectorant helps thin mucus. Do not give a child under age 4 any type of cough medicine. Sucking on lozenges may also help your cough or scratchy throat.

6. Ease nose woes. You—or your kids—can try saline nose drops or sprays to ease nasal congestion. First, put a few drops into one nostril. Then gently blow the mucus and saline out. Repeat on the other side.

7. Treat other symptoms. Sure, a fever—along with chills and achiness—is a sign your body is fighting off the virus. But that doesn't mean you need to suffer in silence. Ask me if you have any questions about which fever reducer to take. But don't forget: Never give aspirin to someone younger than 19—it can lead to a serious illness.

8. Ask about antivirals. Your health care provider may advise you to take one. If you do this within 48 hours of when symptoms begin, you have a fighting chance of reducing their impact.1,2

9. Know when to seek medical help. If you or a loved one has any of these symptoms, call the doctor: •Dark urine; •Dizziness; •Fever of 100 degrees F for 3 or more days; •Returning fever or sore throat after feeling better

More serious symptoms require immediate medical care:

 Wheezing or shortness of breath; •Coughing up blood; •Chest pain or pressure; •Balance problems or confusion²

10. Talk to me! And of course it goes without saying: If you need guidance about any products—or any questions whatsoever—let me know, and I'll try to steer you in the right direction

Nothing herein constitutes medical advice, diagnosis or treatment, or is a substitute for professional advice. You should always seek the advice of your physician or other medical professional if you have questions or concerns about a medical conditior

+ www.mywaynenews.com The Wayne Herald – Thursday, November 19, 2020 3C + We should thank the veterans for their sacrifices

Perhaps it was because of my familv tradition of watching war movies with my dad. Movies that portrayed John Wayne, Steve McQueen, Clint Eastwood, or Tom Hanks as the valiant soldiers fighting against the oppressive forces of corrupt men. Or maybe it was because my family has had at least one person serve in each of the branches of the armed forces throughout history.

But whatever the reason as I grew up, I learned to appreciate, value, and honor the sacrifices that others have made for the sake of my free-

And yet, I can tell you that there is a difference between a cognitive knowledge of what these men and women braved, a knowledge that is only fed by books and movies, and an experiential knowledge of what it must have been like for these eighteen and nineteen year old's who found themselves far from home.

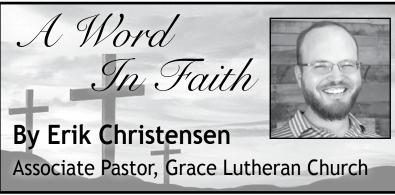

And while I will never truly have that experiential knowledge, it wasn't until I found myself standing amongst fox holes that had been dug over sixty years ago during World War 2 in the Ardennes Forest where American troops had fought tooth and nail to slow the surge of German forces in search of a precious resource called... gasoline... that I began to fully understand the immeasurable weight of their selflessness. As the bitter cold seeped into my bones, I knew standing where men had once lain that I would never think of Veteran's Day in the same way again.

So, as I write this article on Veteran's Day this year, Nov.11, I want to share with you one of the most humbling stories that I have ever heard.

The date was Dec. 24, 1914. The place was in the very woods where 24, 1914 voices could be heard risfound myself standing almost one hundred years later. However, unlike my trip to those hallowed grounds, in 1914 the mood was much different. Because in 1914 World War 1, the war that would later be had only been raging for five months. Still those excruciatingly long five show just how bloody a fight this would become.

their last. And amid that emotional beautiful hymn that they sang... tidal wave something beyond amazing took place. The night of Dec. calm, all is bright.

ing above the trenches in that eerie place as the Germans sang one line after another of the well-known hymn "Silent Night, Holy Night." As those words echoed off the snow laden trees and carried to the allied described as the war to end all wars, forces, they raised their own voices in unison. Where once lay enemies now there were only brothers. Where months had been long enough to once was hatred, now there was only peace and good will to all.

It sounds unbelievable. It seems And soldiers from both sides were shocking that men at war could scared, homesick, and faced with a find time to sing together. Unless of dark reality that any day might be course you think of the words of that "Silent night, holy night! All is

Round yon Virgin, Mother and Child. Holy infant so tender and mild, Sleep in heavenly peace, Sleep in heavenly peace."

And with these words they understood that even during the ugly realties of war the fact that a baby had been born over nineteen hundred years before was enough to make them a family. Sadly, those same soldiers would pick up their weapons again on Dec. 26, but that would not erase what had taken place over the prior twenty-four hours. And it could not erase the love that a Mother and Child had for each other as they slept in a manger all those years before.

Alli, a senior, will compete for e Tri County Northeast Wolfack girls track team this spring. ne medaled at the Nebraska State Track and field meet in the 400 and 800 meter runs as a freshmen and sophomore. COVID-19 kept her from making a straight year of gathering a medal.

Alli also is the two-time defending Lewis & Clark champion in the 400-meter and 800-meter events. Because of COVID-19 last spring, Jackson did not get to defend her two-time, two event championships, and possibly be a dual event winner, four consecutive years.

"Alli, is a hard-working, goal driven individual. She is strong willed mentally and will work to achieve what she believes is attainable. We expect good things from Alli this upcoming spring.", states coach Dave Uldrich. "She is the epitome of what coaches hope for. Give her the challenge, she takes it and goes with it."

Sustainable ranching: A landowner's journey to using prescribed fire By Renae Blum

Nebraska Game and Parks Commission

Looking at the numbers, and seeing the state of his pastures. Jim Jenkins knew it was time for a change.

The Callaway rancher turned to prescribed fire after his efforts to remove eastern redcedar trees from his land mechanically proved too costly and ineffective at stopping the spread. However, using prescribed fire on a larger scale was unfamiliar.

"It was complex and I was a bit scared of it, because I'd just never been around burning," Jenkins said.

The learning curve to use prescribed fire can be intimidating for touch with several prescribed burn landowners, said Brian Teeter, a prescribed fire coordinator with Pheasants Forever. Yet, every year, conservation professionals across the state help many landowners through the process. In recent years, Jenkins became one of them.

Jenkins knew the local Natural Resources Conservation Service office provided help for landowners looking to burn, and so several years ago, he sat down with Lisa Clarke McMillan, a soil conservationist at the agency, and signed up for the Environmental Quality Incentives Program. The program provides incentive payments for brush management, deferred grazing and prescribed burning.

McMillan helped him develop a burn plan and visited his ranch to lay out where the burn would take place. Then, with McMillan's guidance, Jenkins began prepping for the burn, creating a firebreak and cutting and strategically placing trees to facilitate a better burn.

"I would tell anybody that it's important that you talk to people like Lisa," Jenkins said. "If you can spend some time with them, it's really helpful because they've been through literally hundreds of burns.'

Last fall, at McMillan's recommendation, Jenkins attended a prescribed fire workshop led by the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission and Pheasants Forever, where he learned the basics of prescribed fire, including techniques, equipment and common terms.

At the workshop, Jenkins also networked with other landowners and resource professionals. Teeter was one of them and offered Jenkins the use of a trailer of equipment for his burn. He also got Jenkins in associations, groups of landowners who team up to conduct prescribed burns in their communities.

Last spring, using his new connections, Jenkins went to a couple of prescribed burns.

"I was impressed at how relatively easy the burn goes," he said. "Once you have all the preparation work done and you've got a good crew and you've got the right conditions, the burn itself is almost anticlimactic."

Jenkins hoped to conduct his burn in late February or early March, but ultimately decided to wait for better weather conditions and to finish more prep work. He's looking forward to holding his first burn next spring.

"I can't wait," he said. "I don't drink, but I might consider having some champagne or something."

It takes time and effort to learn how to use prescribed fire, Jenkins said. However, "if you're willing to invest the time, there are plenty of people out there willing to help you," he said.

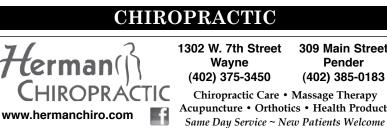

A number of organizations throughout the state assist landowners in implementing prescribed fire, including Game and Parks, Pheasants Forever and Quail Forever, The Nature Conservancy, the Nebraska Grazing Lands Coalition, and the Natural Resources Conservation Service. They do it because prescribed fire is beneficial: It of fers a boost to pasture productivity, is a valuable conservation tool, improves wildlife habitat, reduces wildfire risk and eliminates invasive species. "If somebody wants to get a fire on the ground in the state right now, it's a high priority of most every land management or conservation organization in the state," Teeter said. "They're never alone."

On the hunt for silver linings

The Wayne

As good friend Vonnie asks, "why do all the other teams make half time adjustments? And why don't we?" I don't know, but the Blackshirts looked good on Saturday.

Once again, I took a nap and missed the second half; a good thing, too, because it did not look like the first half. Friend Marlyce asked, "where did that quarterback come from?'

Anyway, as Coach Frost said. 'the fans needed that, the team needed that; and I needed that!"

It's officially Fall, and Thanksgiving is just around the corner. We are being told to make it small, as in as few numbers for a meal as possible. At the same time, the airlines are preparing for large numbers of people heading home for turkey. Which, to me, has been the problem all along; not enough folks are heeding the guidelines.

week to find evidence of silver linings. As in a story about some Jew-cakes to the elders for Shabbat. As in a group called Desks by Dads. who are building inexpensive desks for kids who are studying at home remotely. I think the kitchen tables were getting crowded. Besides, more families are using that table to roll out cookies and cinnamon rolls

There is another organization, with a chapter in Omaha, called No Kid Without a Bed. These guys are building simple bed frames for children sleeping on the floor! I find it hard to realize that there are kids in Nebraska who don't have beds, but there are.

Friend Kelli has had a little free pantry built to put up by her home. It will hold non perishables on the same premise as a little free library. Come to think of it. I saw a very old friend from Hoskins on the news last week, Jim Falk, who has I have been on a mission this ish kids who are baking and taking already built a bunch of these and is giving them away

In this month's newsletter from the Aldrich Foundation, the curator there quotes the last paragraph from her book, The Cutters, that speaks to family ties that cannot be broken, even when we can't observe holidays together.

"Across the table Ed and Nell Cutter, alone, faced each other, as they had done many years before. Two middle aged people are a pitiful number to sit down to a meal. But there were others there....invisible guests,,, held by the cords of affection. You cannot break the radii which stretch out from a good home. They are the most flexible things in the world. They pull at the hearts of the children, until, sometime, somewhere, they draw the wanderers all back into the family circle."

May God Bless.

Borg wins the 2020 Syngenta #RootedinAg Contest

Hannah Borg, 22, of Wakefield, Nebraska, is the 2020 Syngenta #RootedinAg Contest grand prizewinner.

the seventh Borg is #RootedinAg Contest winner. She was chosen from a hearty pool of applicants and two other strong finalists with her testimony that moved both online voters and a panel of judges.

The number of submissions this year was one of the largest - and one of the most difficult to rank, said Pam Caraway, Syngenta marketing communications lead.

"Thank you to everybody who took the time to share their story. Each submission was a delight to read or watch. Each story gives us confidence in the future of agriculture, thanks to those who take the time to teach us," Caraway said.

This annual competition from Syngenta invites growers and other ag industry professionals across the nation to describe the person who most nourished their agricultural roots for their submission entry.

In a heartwarming video entry, Borg pays tribute to the matriarch of their sixthgeneration family farm — her 86-year-old grandmother, Lois Borg. "Grandma is the perfect mix of grace and grit," Borg said. "I've always admired how she lives her life and her role in our family. She always knows what's happening on the farm and never turns down the opportunity to ride along on any kind of trip. She has passed down many stories to me and inspires me every day."

As the grand prizewinner, she receives $500, a professional photoshoot with her mentor and a $1,000 donation to her favorite local civic organization: the Wakefield Heritage Organization, a group in her community dedicated to preserving and maintaining the local history of her hometown.

"I chose this organization because preserving our community's heritage is important to me as the next generation to carry it on," Borg said.

In addition to being part of her family farm, Borg has worked for the Rural Radio Network/ 880 KRVN as a part-time farm broadcaster; a communications intern for FarmHer in Des Moines, Iowa; and an intern for the National FFA Organization.

"Every year, we have the privilege of hearing the stories of people in the ag community whose peers, mentors and family members have inspired them,' Caraway said. "And every year, we learn something new about this community, which has engrained itself within all of us and become a part of our DNA. Hannah's video about her grandma resonates with everyone who hears her story."

Wetland resources get boost with grant to Nebraska Game and Parks

With the help of a $280,000 matching grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, working with partners, will be able to modernize wetland conservation resources for educators and the public.

The three-year project is expected to result in a new online collection of educational materials, including a fifth-grade curriculum and activity book; Platte Basin Timelapse short films and multimedia stories; a public-consumption Guide to Nebraska Wetlands; and an online wetland ES-RI StoryMap.

Game and Parks, Ducks Unlimited, and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln are providing the matching funds for the project, expected to be completed in 2022.

"We want to tell the stories of the important aspects of wetlands," said Ted LaGrange, Game and Parks wetlands program manager and lead on the project. "The benefits of wetlands are important to understand, as are the conservation actions being taken to sustain them."

Communities benefit from wetlands in a variety of ways. They act as habitat for a diversity of fish, wildlife and plant species; offer recreational benefits to hunters, anglers and wildlife observers; and improve water quality, provide groundwater recharge, and reduce the effects of flooding.

"These are stories that need to be told no matter where a person lives: Wetlands — and the benefits they provide — are just as important to urban communities as they are to rural ones," LaGrange said.

A team of producers from Platte Basin Timelapse started collecting those stories across the state in summer 2020. For the next year, they'll continue to collect photos, time-lapse images, video and audio recordings, and interviews that will be woven into compelling stories about Nebraska's wetlands, the role wetlands play in people's lives and why wetlands need to be conserved.

"This is a tremendous opportunity for our team of storytellers, and I'm confident Nebraskans will be both surprised and take pride in the beauty, diversity and richness of our wetlands critical to life in the region, and value them in new and important ways," said Michael Forsberg, Platte Basin Timelapse co-founder and prominent Nebraska conservation photographer. The multimedia products will be used in educational curriculum focused on the science of wetlands. The lessons, to be developed by Game and Parks' Fish and Wildlife Education Division, will be available online at outdoornebraska.gov.

Other partners on the education project include the Nebraska Cooperative Fish and Wildlife Research Unit and U.S. Geological Survey, and many other organizations, agencies, and schools.

To track the project, follow Game and Parks and the Platte Basin Timelapse on Instagram or Facebook and search by #nebraskawetlands. To learn more about Nebraska wetlands, OutdoorNebraska.org/nebrasvisit kawetlands.
