Robert D. Fritschen was born on Nov. 27, 1935 to Andrew C. and Matilda (Wehner) Fritschen in Mitchell, South Dakoa. He was baptized in St. Peter's Catholic Church in Farmer, S.D. Bob grew up on the family farm near Spencer, S.D. and attended school at St. Peter's grade school and Edgerton Consolidated

High School, both in Farmer, S.D. He was offered an athletic scholarship to attend college but stayed on the farm to help his parents until he was 23. He then enrolled at South Dakota State University in Brookings where he earned his BS and MS degrees, graduating in 1963. While in graduate school he also managed the first co-ed dorm in the history of the university.

Bob married a childhood friend and sweetheart, Hazel Robinson on May 3, 1958 in Saint Mary's Catholic Church in Spencer, South Dakota. Two daughters were born to them, Annette and Annita Kay. Following graduation from college in 1963, Bob went to work for the University of Nebraska, starting out in Scottsbluff. He was transferred to the Northeast Research and Extension near Concord in 1965 to develop a swine research program. He raised money from farmers/business donors and built a complex of buildings to study housing management needs for growing/finishing pigs. In a few years his work was known nationally and internationally. He was very active in the swine industry and established Nebraska's first Area Swine Producers Association in 1966. He was invited to 29 countries and nearly every state in the Union to speak and report on his studies. He designed a building for growing/finishing pigs that at one time was the most popular style in the country, known as the Nebraska Modified Open Front Building. The Canadian government asked for and received permission to use the plans for their swine industry.

For his extensive work, he was nationally recognized three times, including the National Extension Award from the American Society of Animal Science and the United States Superior Service Award from the Unites States Department of Agriculture. In 1981, he received the National Hog Farmer Award for outstanding service to the nation's swine industry. He was named to Who's Who in Agriculture Higher Education, and Personalities of America as well as American Men and Women of Science. Bob was a prolific writer and wrote articles for many swine related publications including the British Pig Farming Magazine. His fact sheets on space requirements for pigs and tail biting are still in use today by the National Pork Producer's Council. Several of his fact sheets have been translated into Spanish. While at Concord, he organized a 4-H club and was co-leader for ten years and served 4-H in numerous volunteer roles.

In 1979, Bob was transferred to Scottsbluff where he assumed the role of Associate Direction of the Panhandle Research and Extension Center. From there he transferred to Lincoln, where he taught the Swine Production course and was responsible for coordinating the Statewide Swine Extension Program. Later he was promoted to Director of the Panhandle Research and Extension Center in Scottsbluff where he established a Distance Learning Center to make the resources of the University more available to people in remote places. In 1992, he was asked to take on a similar role at the Northeast Research and Extension Center, partnering with Northeast Community College to build a Learning Center in Norfolk. For his pioneering work on distance learning, Bob was awarded the Distinguished Education Service Award from the University of Nebraska in 1997. In 1998 after 35 years with the University of Nebraska, Bob retired with the title of Professor Emeritus. In retirement, Bob stayed active. He helped establish the Laurel Community Foundation of which he and Hazel contributed to. He was instrumental in developing a TeamMates mentoring chapter at the local school and coordinated the program and mentored students for six years. Bob also served on the city council for 11 years and helped establish an economic development office for Laurel and served as an advisory board member. He was a member of the Nebraska Hall of Agricultural Achievement and a Trustee and served as Secretary Treasurer. He was also a member of Agriculture Builders of Nebraska Inc. and chaired the University of Nebraska Distance Learning Advisory committee. In 2006, Bob received the Knights of Ark Sar Ben Ike Friedman Community Leader Award. Bob wrote and published two books after he retired. He was an avid fisherman and while he fished from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada, his favorite locale was the family fishing camp in the Black Hills called Thunderbird Roost near Deerfield Lake. April is Alcohol Awareness Month

April is Alcohol Awareness Month and the Division of Behavioral Health in Nebraska's Department of Health and Human Services has an important message about alcohol use. For those struggling with alcohol use disorder and/or any other addiction -- help is available and people do recover.

Alcohol is the third leading cause of preventable death in the United States. 95,000 Americans die from alcohol-related causes each year. In Nebraska in 2020, there were 123 alcohol-attributable deaths.

"It is important to bring awareness to the signs and effects of substance use disorder and misuse of alcohol," said Sheri Dawson, director of the Division of Behavioral Health. "It is also important in April for communities and families to talk about alcohol, how to talk to a loved one who may have concerning behaviors, and how to find help. Substance use disorder is a complex illness, but there is help and there is hope, no matter what your situation is."

Nationally and in Nebraska, alcohol is by far the most misused sub-

Protecting our land and water

By Governor Pete Ricketts

Here in the Cornhusker State, agriculture and conservation go hand in hand. Nebraska's farmers and ranchers are the original conservationists. Agricultural families in our state have been growing crops and tending livestock for generations. They know their land and animals better than anyone else and care deeply about them. They also accept paper and cans at the Wayne Recycling & Trash Center (RTC) in separate containers.

Last year, the community helped trailer full of baled aluminum cans. These recyclable materials help raise funds for the Scouts to support their youth camps and activities. Over 20 Boy Scouts and their families participate in picking up cans and paper from Wayne homes each month, all as a free service.

"We are proud to recognize the Wayne Boy Scouts for their impact at reducing waste in our community by collecting and recycling paper and cans for reuse, whether as home insulation or a can again,' said Sandy Brown, chair of the City of Wayne Green Team. "We thank the Wayne Boy Scouts Troop 174 for being a Zero Waste leader in our community.'

For 60 years, the Wayne Boy Scouts have been active with recycling efforts in the community. According to an article from the Wayne Herald in 1951, they were part of a city wide clean up to collect papers. During the 1970s, they began regularly recycling paper and had to store it in various locations around town, including barns and even a church garage. By the mid-1980s, the Troop purchased its own trailer and eventually upgraded to its current system at the Wayne RTC. The Boy Scouts began aluminum can recycling in the mid-1990s.

For more information about their current recycling program, contact Mike Schlickbernd at (402) 375-3700.

Founded in 2009, the Wayne Green Team is a group of community volunteers, city personnel and Wayne State College partners focused on minimizing waste and increasing sustainable behavior. Find more information about the Wayne Green Team on Facebook and at www.cityofwayne.org/greenteam.

By MICHAEL CARNES

For The Herald

Before the championship game of Saturday's Great Plains Sevens regional, Wayne State coach Darrin Barner said that if his team played to their potential, it would take a perfectly-played game to beat them.

Northern Iowa managed to get the job done, handing the Wildcat women their first loss in almost five years in a 20-19 upset to claim the regional championship and an automatic berth in the National College Rugby championship next month in New Orleans, La.

The loss took a little luster off what was an otherwise perfect day for the Wayne State rugby club, as the Wildcat men swept all four games in a double-round robin with St. Scholastica and Central (Iowa) College to claim the men's automatic berth.

The only thing that has stopped the Wayne State women during the past five years was last year's COVID pandemic, which wiped out the spring 7's season and denied a chance at a fourth consecutive national championship. then ran out the clock after a Wayne Lauren Nelson, but the Panthers State turnover that happened on the ensuing drive with about :45 left in the match. "That's the most points we've given up in a long time," Barner said the game, and that really hurt us after the match. "UNI played absolutely perfect, and I told the team before the game that we're good enough where if we play our game, someone will have to play absolutely perfect to beat us. We made a couple of small mistakes and they played perfect and came out on top. Northern Iowa scored first, but Wayne State answered quickly with keep possession until time ran out a try by Taylor Ference, followed by an amazing conversion by Isabelle Robinson, who drop-kicked the point-after attempt from a tough angle on the east side of the pitch for a 7-5 lead.

Northern Iowa retook the lead later in the half, but Wayne State them, the games were decided by countered again with a second score just one score," he said. "We were by Ference. The conversion failed to very evenly matched and we were make the score 12-10 at the half.

The momentum continued to On Saturday, the Panthers were change sides and Wayne State took continued to pound the left side of Wayne State's defense.

"Holly Schubach was knocked unconscious about 20 seconds into becvause she's a really good player on that side and they took advantage of that," Barner said.

Northern Iowa found the end zone one last time with 90 seconds to go, which was plenty of time for Wayne State to mount a comeback, but Northern Iowa's defense forced a turnover and they were able to to claim the victory.

The men's championship came down to Wayne State and Central (Iowa) College, and Barner said he knew going in that the matchup would be a tough one for his side.

Allen Community Club

The Allen Community Club met April 19 in the firehall.

President Sharon Puckett called the meeting to order. The secretary and treasurer's reports were read and approved. Several items of old business were discussed.

Sandy Chase told of the committee's work on choosing new Christmas decorations for main street. A fund-raiser has begun and anyone wishing to donate money can do so directly at the bank.

A "thermometer" showing the amount raised will be placed west of the post office. The Allen Community Center re-opened today for inside visiting, dine-in meals, FROGS exercising, and other group meetings. It was decided to give them flowers in recognition of the re-opening.

A review of the many characters and their problems intertwined with the Willow Creek, Montana, basketball games made for an interesting discussion at the Book Club on April 21 as members talked about Blind Your Ponies by Stanley Gordon West.

After losing 93 basketball games in a row, Coach Sam Pickett has hopes of a better season with the addition of a 6'11" foreign exchange student, a Minneapolis student who plays basketball, and two senior varsity players. But never did he expect the boys to dedicate themselves to the game, become a team physically and spiritually, and eventually winning the state championship. While the book goes into details of each game throughout the season, it also reveals the difficulties endured by many of the adults and boys in the small town. This includes fighting leukemia, an abusive-drunken father, a lost love 25 years ago, a cerebral palsy child, parental rejection, tax evasion, being bullied because of large ears, witnessing a wife's tragic death by shooting, killing your child in a car accident, etc. Although it is a 539 page book, it reads quickly as the

This resolution declares support for the constitution and does not allow anyone to infringe upon the right to keep and bear arms. Scott Sievers reminded the commissioners they had taken an oath to support and defend the United States and the U.S Constitution, and they needed to follow the majority of other counties in Nebraska by passing this resolution

Resolution No. 21-09 in support of the second amendment to the constitution was adopted on motion by Burbach and second by Rabe. Roll call vote: Burbach, Rabe, Sievers - aye; motior carried Resolution No. 21-09: "WHEREAS, the Second Amendment to the United States Constitution provides that it is the right of the people to keep and bear arms, and that right shall no be infringed; and,

WHEREAS, Article 1, Section 1-1 of the Nebraska Constitution also provides the right to keep and bear arms, specifically "for security or defense of self, family, home and others, and for lawful common defense, hunting, recreational use, and all other lawful purposes" and all provides that such right shall not be infringed; and,

WHEREAS, the United States Supreme Court in the District of Columbia v. Heller, 554 U.S 570 (2008) affirmed an individual's right to possess firearms, unconnected with service in a militia for traditionally lawful purposes, such as self-defense within the home; and,

WHEREAS, it is the desire of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners to declare its support of the Second Amendment to the United States Constitution and Article 1, Section 1-1 or the Nebraska Constitution; and,

WHEREAS, the members of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners took an oath to support and defend the United States and Nebraska Constitutions.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, THAT THE Wayne County Board of Commissioners hereby declare that we support the rights and liberties of all Wayne County citizens guaranteed by the United States and Nebraska Constitutions.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED THAT THIS Board affirms its support for the duly elected Sheriff of Wayne County, Nebraska, and his continuing efforts to uphold the United States and Nebraska Constitutions.

Berggren Architect representative Doug Elting reported there was still work to be done on the punch list. They had relayed information about the broken door hardware and the grass damage but hadn't heard much from the contractor. The commissioners stated nothing had been done since the last meeting, and they would not approve the contractor's application for payment unti they completed the work. David Levy called to verify the county would be responsible for the installation of temporary signage for the Sholes Wind Project drives that did not meet certification requirements. Highway Superintendent Mark Casey estimated the materials and labor at $2,000.00, which will be billed to

Older is not a bad thing

By Mike Renning mikesportshome@yahoo.com

As I get older, I fight getting older, but there are times when I am as happy being older as I am being younger.

I should come up with a "catch phrase" for my happiness, but for now, I'll just enjoy my happiness.

As you all know, we have four children, Michala, Mikenzie, Max and Mason.

And as you know they all have four spouses, Bryce, Zach, Chelsea and Stephanie.

Over the years, the Darling Wife and I have assisted in moving these kids from dorm room to apartment, house to apartment, house to house, town to town, time zone to time zone...and back.

If you've never experienced a brutal move, move a kid into a thirdfloor apartment in August in sweltering heat after loading all of the couches, chairs, televisions, beds, refrigerators, blah, blah.

And when they were younger, none of them lined up a cart or trolley to lift the heavy items.

For the past 18 years or so, we have moved these four or eight kids 37 times.

That includes house to house, apartment to apartment, first floor to third floor, town to town, time zone to time zone.

Emerson to Blair, Emerson to Norfolk, Emerson to Valentine, Emerson to Auburn, Blair to Fremont, Omaha to Omaha and even once, we assisted in Omaha to Buffalo, New York.

I forgot about that one, take it up to 38 times.

This all came to light recently when our youngest favorite kids, Mason and Stephanie, moved from an apartment in Blair to a home they recently purchased also in Blair.

There were 14 stairs from the move into the space.

The "old" part is coming directly ton.) and I appreciate Mason recognizing the fact I have all of this "experience" and put me mostly in a supervisory role for the two-day adventure.

Mason told me when I arrived to only haul boxes and drive the pickup to the new home and wait for some of "his guys" to get there to unload.

I pondered asking why I wasn't one of "his guys", but I hauled a (LB428) would require that YRTC good share of that cra...er stuff up those 14 stairs a couple years ago and was thrilled with my assignment.

By the end of the weekend, I backed the pickup, waited for a load, drove to the new house, waited for "his guys" to unload it.

I don't think I dripped a drip of sweat the entire weekend, except when we smoked a pork roast - to feed "his guys".

Point number two of the advantage.

I like to save above-ground projects around the house for times when certain people are around.

When Mason, Max, Bryce or Zach are at the house and I just happen to have an above-ground project, I wait until about 8 a.m. and head for the ladder.

Wherever I place the ladder on the house, I make certain I bump ground floor to their apartment, it clumsily against the side of the would transfer to any public school and I'm positive, we helped them house ... sometimes two or three times. (Everyone has a snooze but-Ironically, ALL of these projects begin under the window of the bedroom where one of them is sleeping. Best alarm clock ever.

Capitol View Lawmakers take important step toward treating at-risk youth

era

Commentary by J.L. Schmidt Statehouse Correspondent Nebraska Press Association

Lawmakers have amended and advanced a package of bills that will keep the Nebraska Youth Rehabilitation and Treatment Centers on track toward becoming treatment-based instead of corrections-based facilities.

Back in the day, "bad boys" went to Kearney and "bad girls" went to Geneva after the scarce number of local social services agencies and the court system had pretty much given up on them.

More importantly, this package of Health and Human Services Committee bills will ensure that the whole YRTC issue will be monitored and stay in the public eye for something other than escapes and disturbances.

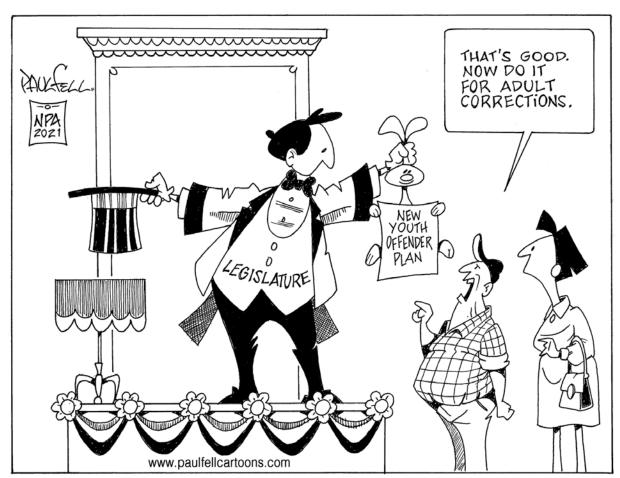

The Kearney campus, built for boys in the 1950s, will receive needed improvements. The Geneva campus, originally built for girls, will be phased out and replaced by a newer campus in Hastings. The state Department of Health and Human Services says the physical condition of the Geneva campus and the inability to hire adequate staff make the closure necessary.

The main bill of the package residents receive educational opportunities equivalent to those offered to students at Nebraska public schools. Under the bill, each YRTC would maintain accreditation by the state Board of Education and provide age-appropriate and developmentally appropriate educational programs.

Committee Chairman Sen. John Arch of LaVista said the proposal was the result of the recommendations made by the Legislature's YRTC special oversight committee, which was established several years ago, when big problems surfaced at the boy's and girl's campuses. Arch said the bill was just a start on improving the education of YRTC students.

Nebraska Commissioner of Education Matt Blomstedt has said the bill would guarantee that academic credits earned at YRTC in Nebraska. That hasn't always happened in the past, he said, forcing students to retake classes upon their return to public school.

In recent years there have been multiple calls for improvement within DHHS Juvenile Services Department and specifically the YRTCs. Historically, the primary concern is that Nebraska, indeed the country, still relies too heavily on a corrections-based model instead of the treatment-centered model. The department said it is their goal to get to the treatment approach within 5 years.

A committee amendment, adopted 35-0, added the provisions of additional committee bills on related subject matter. One measure (LB425) would require DHHS to hire a consultant to perform a needs assessment and cost analysis of an inpatient adolescent psychiatric unit at the Lincoln Regional Center by December 1.

Arch said YRTCs currently are not equipped to care for youth with severe mental illness and individuals who need that type of care have until the Legislature reviews said not received it. Omaha Sen. Steve Lathrop said the needs assessment would be critical in determining if nitely a response to the closure the state can establish a "no eject, no reject" youth behavioral health facility. "We really need that for the young people so that we do have, truly, a continuum of care," Lathrop said.

Also added to the bill was a measure (LB427) to prohibit DHHS from delaying inpatient or subacute substance abuse or behavioral health residential treatment complicated oversight of YRTCs. for youth under the jurisdiction of a juvenile court when such treatment has been determined necessary after the youth's commitment to the state Office of Juvenile Services or has been ordered by a juvenile court.

-BRARE STREET

Arch said this legislation is defiof YRTC-Geneva after a "multiple system failure." He said the Legislature isn't going to be caught by surprise as it was with that crisis in August 2019.

Inspector General for Child Welfare Jennifer Carter told Arch's committee earlier this year that in the past DHHS implemented numerous significant changes that The changes created a good deal of instability in the system, she said. "Many of them were significant changes and yet there really wasn't any legislative action or policy change driving it.'

The Legislature needs to pursue Finally, a bill (LB429) would these changes with due diligence and urgency. The time is now.

In my defense he had some very large friends - large in 6-5 290 pounds and the like...three of them, and Mason is a big Fella.

I could have sat on the couch as they hauled it out of the apartment down the 14 stairs.

Dear Editor,

the "Voices for Vision Coalition" committee that is asking Wayne City Council to rename the fitness trail system as the "Freedom Trail". The trail, by action of the Council has already been named.

Phase 1 is named after former council member, and community member Doctor Will Wiseman. Will formed the original committee to develop a plan for the trail which included the original Phase 2 plan. Phase 2 is, according to the City Web Site, the Leila Maynard Trail. Will traveled to Lincoln on several occasions to present and secure funding for the trail system. Because of his hard work, commitment to community health and fitness, time and effort, grants were secured for this system.

Over the years Phase 2 did change but Will and his committee did lay the groundwork for the trail svstem.

The hard work of Will Wiseman

Usually, before I haul the ladder to the actual spot of the aboveground project, Max, Mason, Zach or Bryce comes around the corner saying, "Here Dad/Mike, let me do that.'

Does the white fence and Tom Sawyer ring a bell?

I have overheard conversations between all of these people and the consensus is; "Dad can't do it." and I'm comfortable with that. (See

Work smarter, not harder, right?

and the service of Leila Maynard I saw the article in the paper about need to be honored/remembered. The Wayne City Council took action to ensure that on Dec. 21, 2010 when the names Will Wiseman Trail, Phase 1 and Leila Maynard Trail, Phase 2 were approved. In my opinion any other name ignores/ overshadows Will's service to the community and Leila's service to the country.

The following is from the council minutes, Dec. 21, 2010.

"It is recommended by the trail committee that "the Phase I Trail be named the "Will Wiseman Trail" and the Phase II Trail be named as the "Leila Maynard Trail". Will Wiseman was a driving force in the movement to get a trail in Wayne. Leila Maynard is a former Wayne resident who was a World War II war hero."

The Governor highlighted other notable rodeos scheduled to take place this summer in Nebraska. They include: The Nebraska High School Finals

Rodeo, June 17-19 in Hastings.

• The 2021 National High School Finals Rodeo, July 18-24 in Lincoln. Nebraska's Big Rodeo, July 28-31 in Burwell.

This year marks the 100th anniversary of Nebraska's Big Rodeo, which Nebraska Tourism honored as the state's "Outstanding In-Person Event" of 2020.

Legislature approves 2021 Budget

The Legislature gave final approval to the state's $9.7 billion biennium budget package.

The package includes a number of appropriations and transfers. The governor has until Monday, to sign, veto or line-item veto appropriations within the budget bills.

Bills That Impact Landowners LB2 works toward addressing the tax burden inequity on agricultural landowners for taxes used to service school bond debt. LB2 encourages accountability at the voting booth by more closely linking voters' decisions with their responsibilities for school bond taxes. Agricultural and horticultural land is valued at 75 percent of its actual value for purposes of property taxation under current law. Under LB2 it would be valued at 50 percent of its actual value for purposes of school district taxes levied to pay the principal and interest on bonds issued on or after Jan. 1, 2022.

Revenue bills early next week

Revenue Committee Priority Bill. On Monday, Governor Pete It will come up early next week. a sales and use tax exemption for certain products used in the process of manufacturing ethanol, to harmonize provisions with other states and industries. As it is, ethanol producers are paying a tax that is not consistent with other industries and state regulations for inputs.

Ethanol production is vital to our agricultural economy as the 25 plants throughout the State of Nebraska process nearly 500 million bushels of corn every year. Let me put this in perspective for you: 500 million bushels is the equivalent of one out of every four rows of corn grown in every cornfield in Nebraska. Combined, these plants produce more than 2.2 billion gallons of Ethanol every year, the second most per state in the country, behind Iowa. This bill simply exempts sales taxes on inputs used in the production or "manufacturing" of Ethanol.

The other bills being carried under LB595 include:

LB182- would clarify the tax treatment of tower leases for purposes of providing internet access to make clear such leases are exempt from sales and use tax.

LB672- creates a new definition for agricultural machinery and equipment to clarify the sales tax exemption on such equipment.

LB502- allows taxpayers with existing agreements, or who have filed applications under the Nebraska Advantage Act prior to the sunset of the Act, the same sales and use tax exemptions that are now provided to taxpayers under the ImagiNE Act.

LB350- would extend the sunset date from October 1, 2022, to October 1, 2027, for the distribution of sales and use tax to the Game and Parks Commission Capital Maintenance Fund from the state of motor boats, personal watercraft, My bill, LB595 will be the lead all-terrain vehicles and utility-type role in the 4-H program. National Volunteer Week was recognized by Nebraska 4-H last week. In Nebraska, 4-H volunteers play a vital role in the ongoing growth and development of 4-Hers.

4-H has learning experiences in which volunteers can help youth build confidence and practical life skills. Nebraska 4-H offers a wide variety of involvement opportunities for adult volunteers from a onetime event or program to a multiyear experience. 4-H volunteers engage youth ages 5-19, using Positive Youth Development.

For the safety of the 4-H program, certain volunteer roles within Nebraska 4-H require additional training and all 4-H volunteers and staff are required to complete the Nebraska 4-H volunteer screening process. Volunteers learn about the role of Positive Youth Development in the 4-H experience, learn about best practices in creating a safe en-

Volunteers play an important vironment for youth, and learn how to successfully work with youth.

> This past week, Nebraska 4-H hosted daily 4-H Volunteer Lunch & Learn sessions, including topics on How to Incorporate Positive Youth Development into Your Work; How to Keep the 4-H Experiences Fresh; How to Lead a Club that Works; and the week wrapped up with a session on Confidence in Conflict Resolution.

We are grateful that there are nearly 12,000 volunteers of Nebraska 4-H. These volunteers play a key role in sharing knowledge about a variety of 4-H project areas.

For more information on how you can become a 4-H volunteer, contact your local Nebraska Extension office or by visiting 4h.unl.edu/volunteer. Thank you to all of our 4-H volunteers!

Acme Club holds April 5 meeting

ACME Club met April 5 in the neighbors in their neighborhood meeting room at Taco's & More and began the meeting with the speaker and hostess, Betty Wittig, presenting her autobiography as written and bound into a book during her senior year in high school.

It was a term paper composed as if it were a letter written to a friend. Her grandparents came from Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Illinois, and Indiana. One set of grandparents homesteaded southeast of Sedgwick, Colorado; the other had ten children in Indiana before they moved to Nebraska. Betty's mom and dad, Edward and Hildagard were married in 1929. Her sister was born two years before Betty and loved training her cats. The doctor came to the farm and delivered Betty Ione Bivens in 1934, who weighed eight pounds and had her grandmother's beautiful dark red hair. Two years later, another sister was born.

In 1938 the family moved to Sedgwick, Colorado. During these years, jobs were scarce; but after six months, Betty's dad thought he could find a job in Idaho and moved his family in a trailer house that he had built. There was an enormous cherry harvest, but much wet weather caused the cherries to spoil. The family then returned to Sedgwick, where Betty's brother was born in November of 1938 and her sister, Ileen, started to school.

Betty and her sister helped her mother to care for the new brother, until the next fall when Betty got to start school. Two of her uncles drove school buses and they would sometimes get to ride along. Her dad then was working for the railroad. Another brother was born and they moved back to a large farm three miles south of Sidney and attended a country school across the state line in Colorado about 5 miles south of their home where her cousins also attended. They again had to move when the farm on which they lived was sold and had moved everything out except the fruit still stored in the basement. They stayed with their grandma that night as the house was being fuclub called "Friendly Neighbors" replaced all the canned food they had lost in the fire.

- Ball Barter

In the summer of 1943, Betty's dad had a celebration at the Sedgwick Reservoir for his July birthday and a picnic was planned to add to the excitement. Her dad and uncles were out on the water when the boat started sinking, but only her Uncle Vern could swim. Many people tried to help but her dad and another uncle did not survive. After the funerals, among all those who helped the family out was Al Wittig, who came out to help with chores. During her seventh grade summer, Betty helped her Aunt Flora, who loved to cook. At the end of eighth grade the family was moved into a big older home that Betty's Uncle Hank bought and moved about a mile from her Grandma Laaker's home. In high school, Betty worked any jobs she could find; the first summer for an invalid lady; the second year in the laundry room for a couple who owned the hotel; the third and fourth years as house cleaner and babysitter for a family with two boys; then worked for a dentist as helper and bookkeeper for his office.

Al and Betty and their families still have a family reunion every two years at Sidney. It is no surprise that Betty received an A grade on her Senior term paper.

Following the presentation, Bonnadell Koch called the meeting to order and Betty Wittig gave the thought for the day, "Push will get a person almost anywhere - except through a door marked 'Pull.'" Minutes were approved with one correction: it was printed that Joann Temme moved from north of Wayne to south of Wayne as a child; this should have been written that she moved from south of Wayne to north of Wayne. Marylou Erxleben gave the treasurer's report; it was voted to again donate to the Nebraska Childrens Home Society. Correspondence included a letter from Verdelle Reeg's daughter, Jana. Roll call included talk about what each member did for Easter and many stories were shared about church services, bell choirs, sunrises, as well as welcome family events. Everyone enjoyed fresh cookies and coffee supplied through Taco's & More with Easter treats from the hostess. ACME Club will meet next with Mary Lou as hostess and presenter.

This next month I will have several "endings" in my life.

I will no longer be a campus minister after having this position for ten years. Our oldest son, Christopher, will be graduating from high school. The last college group that I will work with will be graduating. I will help 33 students be Confirmed and "end" their religious education journey.

Several of these "endings" I was preparing for, but a few of them I didn't know about until a week ago. I have spent many sleepless nights and shed many tears over these "endings" in my life. As I prayed about these "endings" I kept remembering a quote from The Sound of Music. I have watched this movie countless times since I was a little child and this quote has always stayed with me. "Where the Lord closes a door, somewhere He opens a window." I have always believed this, but at this point in my life I was struggling with those words. I turned to my Bible and read Phillippians 4:6. "Have no anxiety at all, but in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, make your requests known to God.'

After truly praying on that quote from The Sound of Music and reading Phillippians 4:6, I knew that I needed to change my mindset. I needed to somehow give praise for my sufferings. I needed to realize that these "endings" were actually "beginnings. I might be having a few doors closed on me but I have had windows opened. I will walk through these doors for the last time but I will fly through the windows to better things.

be ending, but I now can devote more time to my family and helping people in our community and parish grow in their faith. Our son, Christopher, might be graduating from high school, but he will be growing and learning so much during his need is for someone to tell them to college career. Our college students might be graduating but now they are going to pursue careers, families and vocations. Our Confirma- my way through the pain. tion students might be ending their religious education journey but they all the time throughout the day. are just beginning their adult faith in our church.

I realize that asking someone to give praise during times of suffering isn't usually helpful. When someone is experiencing a painful moment in their lives, the last thing they really give praise to God. But....as the pain starts to lessen here are few ways I have found that help me start make brings me comfort. I'm sure some of you think that you can't sing so you probably don't think that singing could be pleasing to God. Always remember that God made us perfectly as we are. He wants to hear us singing and praising Him no matter how "good" we think our voices are! St. Augustine once said that "singing is praying twice!"

3. Help others. I have found throughout the years that nothing helps me more than helping another person. It helps me to stop thinking about my own pain and find joy in helping someone with their pain. I realize that in helping someone, my pain doesn't go away but I have found peace in knowing that my pain could make a difference in someone else's life.

God never promised us that life would be easy. We just have to keep doing the best that we can to navigate this life.

Please always remember that "Where the Lord closes a door, somewhere He opens a window." The window might not open as quickly as we would like. We just have to be patient. It is up to us what we do while we wait. Pray, sing and help others! Each "ending" in our life is truly a new "beginning".

"Yesterday is gone. Tomorrow has not yet come. We have only today. Let us begin." ~Mother Teresa Farmers State Bank annually awards a $1,000 scholarship to a high school senior at each of their eight locations.

The directors and staff of the bank have witnessed a growing need to bring back community members to serve their small towns in banking and ag-related leadership positions. They are hopeful this scholarship will plant the seed in students' minds that quality opportunities exist in their hometowns. This scholarship is intended to benefit students interested in business or agriculture and who would consider returning to a rural community upon graduating from college. Recipients must show an exceptional interest in community and demonstrate the ability to balance academics and extracurricular activities during high school. Farmers State Bank, Carroll, is pleased to award their 2021 scholarship to Emily Eilers of Wayne High School. Congratulations, Emily!

Why are we concerned about pollinator health? Pollinators are first and foremost critical to our food supply. Most notably, some of our favorite fruits and vegetables, like apples, peaches, cucumbers, and beans, would not exist without our pollinator friends.

Just have a balcony-sized garden space? The good news is research indicates no gardening space is too small to foster pollinator health. Your garden, when combined with the neighbor's garden, nearby creeks, and prairie spaces, add to the collective whole. So limited space excludes no one from contributing to pollinator health and this series will provide the know-how to get started.

Enjoying connecting with old friends

The Wayne

On Monday of this week, we hit a temperature of 92! And the good old wind was blowing, too; although it was not as powerful as it was on Sunday. I think it's only supposed to get to 80 today, (Tuesday). I'm not ready for that kind of heat.

I boxed up Mike's clothes last week. I'm not sentimental about them, and they are going to an outreach called Barnabas, where 75% of the folks who come in are working. They just are not making enough to make ends meet. Obviously, Mike was not hard on his clothes the last few years; nothing like when he was actively farming.

I still enjoy some of the comics, though I admit skipping a few because I fail to see the humor. But in Sunday's For Better or Worse column, we see the family members all exclaiming about the clothes they have not seen for months! And the mother admits she did the mend-disappeared for life! I am not alone, I know. A friend once confessed she husband had had open heart surwent to the basket to retrieve a pair of jeans for patches, discovering they were in better condition than the pair she was working on! Anyway, I chuckled at the column..

Which is all I ask of the comics, make me chuckle, okay?

We went to Murdock on Sunday to the Firemen's annual pancake feed. We were well fed, with sausages and scrambled eggs to boot. But the fun came when, at noon, a large bunch came through the lane I told my companion, "some church must be over."

Sure enough, both of the Lutheran churches on Church Road finished their services and a lot of moms had announced they were not cooking dinner that day. We got to see several old friends, and I could My trouble was, once they got in recognize them and put names on

One very special gal confided her gerv. He had NO symptoms! But a check had found major occlusions, including in the famous "widow maker", and they were not able to use stents. Hence, the operation. He's still wondering how that came to be, in the absence of any distress.

I reminded him that on the farm, with an all volunteer rescue squad, those of us who choose to live in the country will not survive long enough for them to get there and start CPR. A sobering reality. A reason to have annual wellness checks. I get mine next month, and I only live a few blocks from a paramedic group now! They have been in our cul de sac several times in the last year, picking up those who fell. That's a very special service, believe me! I just hope they don't have to come for me!!

Fruit trees are blooming, or will soon be, marking the beginning of another growing season. Many diseases become active during blooming, so it's time to protect your trees and ensure a good harvest.

Brown Rot

After harvesting, gardeners are often disappointed to find their apricot, peach, cherry or plum fruits quickly develop a soft fuzzy brown rot. This is caused by a very common fungal disease aptly named brown rot.

Two major infection periods occur with brown rot, 1) during flowering and 2) several weeks before fruit harvest. During the early spring blossom blight period, flower petals are infected. The disease quickly spreads causing entire flowers to turn brown or black and die. Spring infections are not serious in themselves, but dead infected flowers remain in the tree producing fungal spores which infect stems and twigs causing cankers. They can also infect fruits later in the season. If humid or wet conditions occur during fruit ripening, brown rot outbreaks can be severe clobutanil, thiophanate-methyl and propiconazole.

Note - shuck fall occurs when papery coverings over the expanding young fruits have split open and fallen from a majority of fruits.

Cherry Leaf Spot

More severe on sour cherries than sweet cherries, this fungus overwinters on fallen cherry leaves and in the spring produces large numbers of spores on these old leaves. Spores are moved by air currents and rain. In the presence of spring moisture, spores initiate new infections on young leaves.

Symptoms include numerous, tiny purple spots on upper leaf surfaces, which enlarge and die. Affected leaves turn yellow, with a green halo around the infected spots giving leaves a mottled appearance. Masses of spores appear tures develop on junipers during wet spring weather and disperse spores to susceptible apple hosts.

Spores that land on a leaf or fruit and come in contact with water germinate and cause infection, so disease development is favored by wet, humid weather that prevails from late April through June. Symptoms

Apple scab causes bright yellowish-orange leaf and fruit spots, which often have a band of red or yellow around the outer edge.

Cedar-apple rust causes olive to greenish-black leaf spots. Similar cracked, scabby spots appear on the fruits with heavily infected fruits becoming misshapen.

Organic Control Strategies

Do not plant eastern red cedar or other junipers within a few hundred vards of a susceptible fruit tree. This will reduce infection rates, but not eliminate it completely.

Plant rust and scab resistant apple cultivars, such as Enterprise, Freedom, Liberty, Macfree, Novamac and Priscilla. For a more complete listing, visit Disease Susceptibility of Common Apple Cultivars.

Brown rot fungus overwinters primarily on dried infected fruits from the previous season, called mummies. Organic control of this disease includes the following.

Prune out cankered branches ASAP, if you have not already done so. (Ideal pruning time for stone fruits is late March.)

Remove and discard any remaining mummies from last year, both on the tree branches or beneath the trees.

Remove mummies as they appear during the growing season.

After harvest, immediately cool and refrigerate fruits, or process fruits, to prevent fungal infection from advancing to fruit rot.

If you choose to use fungicides for preventive control, the first brown rot application should be made when 25% of flowers are open, followed by two additional applications - 10 days after shuck fall and a final application 10 days later. Applications to prevent the fruit rot disease stage should begin one month before harvest and continue on a 7- to 10-day intervals until harvest is complete. Recommended fungicides include captan, my-in dead leaf spots. Infections may also girdle the fruit stems, causing fruit drop. Damage comes from early summer leaf loss, or defoliation, caused by heavy leaf spot infections and can weaken the tree.

Organic control strategies. Control is greatly improved by raking up and destroying last year's infected leaves and fruit debris before new leaves emerge. Copper fungicides are acceptable in many organic production programs and can provide some protection. Use the application timing below.

Preventive fungicides are recommended at petal fall, shuck fall and two weeks later. Recommended fungicides include myclobutanil, thiophanate-methyl and propiconazole.

Cedar Apple Rust & Apple Scab

Wet spring conditions also favor heavy infections of these two apple fungal diseases. Apple scab overwinters on infected leaves and fruits. Mature fungal spores are released into the air during periods of spring rain and blown to nearby trees. Cedar-apple rust overwinters on its secondary host - juniper.

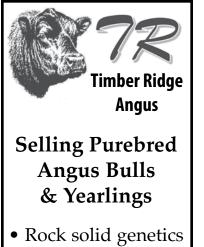

some control.

Effective control using fungicides depends on the timeliness and repetition of applications, and the degree of coverage obtained on both the upper and lower leaf surfaces. Begin applications in spring at bud break and repeat applications as directed by the fungicide label. Typically, 3-4 fungicide applications made 7-14 days apart are required for good control. Recommended fungicides include chlorothalonil, thiophanate-methyl, myclobutanil, mancozeb or propiconazole.
