Smoke, dirt and baby animals... it's fair time

Smoke, both from wildfires across the country and from the tractors, filled the air in Concord last week during the Dixon County Fair. If tractor pulling did not suit your fancy, a variety of other activities took place during the five-day event. One of those was a petting zoo with lots of baby goats to pet. More photos from this year's fair can be found on page 2B of today's Wayne Herald.

New Northeast-Wayne State agreement designed to strengthen area industrial technology workforce

A new agreement between Northeast Community College and Wayne State College has the potential to strengthen the region's industrial technology workforce.

On Tuesday, the presidents of the two colleges signed a Memorandum of Agreement that creates the Associate of Applied Science (AAS)/Bachelor of Science (BS) Technology program. It allows graduates who complete their associate degrees at Northeast Community College to transfer all of their completed academic credits to Wayne State College to study industrial technology and earn a bachelor's degree.

“Northeast Community College is looking for opportunities to give our students options beyond the AAS degree and this agreement does that,” said Dr. Leah Barrett, Northeast president. “In addition, with fewer industrial technology faculty in high schools this may also help fill that pipeline. Combining AAS and bachelor degrees creates a pathway for our students to continue their education which will lead to more opportunities that may include higher paying supervisory or management positions.”

“We are excited about this new degree partnership with Northeast Community College,” said Dr. Marysz Rames, president of Wayne State. “Wayne State’s work with Northeast on this program demonstrates the effectiveness of two powerhouse regional schools coming together to directly benefit students and support the Nebraska economy. Additionally, this unique agreement allows Wayne State to accept up to 80 credit hours rather than the usual 60, which lets us meet students where they are in their community college experience. Our colleges’ proximity to one another also opens the doors for students to simultaneously enroll in both schools to create a seamless academic pathway without the hard stop and start typical of some transfer programs. And finally, our partnership reflects a shared philosophy, passion, and commitment to helping students succeed.”

Students enrolled in a number of concentrations qualify for the new program including agriculture, business services, computer, construction, drafting, industrial management, industrial trades, management services, manufacturing, and safety-related occupations. Transfer students from Northeast will have the opportunity to apply for transfer student scholarships through Wayne State.

Graduates who earn bachelor degrees in technical fields have the prospect of earning higher salaries - over $600,000 more than individuals with a two-year degree over the course of a 40-year working career, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. Such degrees can also lead to increased job opportunities as an increasing number of careers are requiring or preferring applicants with a bachelor's degree; in addition to faster advancement opportunities in management and supervisory roles.

“This agreement is designed to provide pathways for industry-ready graduates of Northeast’s AAS programs to transfer credits seamlessly to Wayne State College to further their education for employment potential and advancement in business and industry of their chosen profession,” said Dr. Michele Gill, vice president of educational services at Northeast. “We feel this partnership will assist in expanding the area’s workforce by keeping our graduates in northeast Nebraska as they develop their careers in these most important professions in the years to come.”

Northeast Community College and Wayne State College have had a long-standing working and transfer relationship to serve students since 1986. Over the years, various institutional and programmatic agreements have been signed to create a seamless transfer of pathways for students between the two colleges. In addition, both institutions offer classes in the College Center in South Sioux City.

Cost of feasibility study debated by council

By Clara Osten, clarac@wayneherald.com

After more than an hour of debate, the resolution on a 'pond feasibility study' was tabled during Tuesday's Wayne City Council meeting.

The resolution would have accepted a proposal from engineering firm Olsson for $11,800 for the study for the former lagoon area.

Mayor Cale Giese started the discussion of the agenda item by stating "I have some reservations about this. Are we going to pump city water into the pond. We already have Ike's Lake five miles from town."

Council member Matt Eischied said he felt that "if we (the city) do something down there, we need to do it right. This is an amenity that we have to pay for."

Wayne Area Economic Development (WAED) Director Luke Virgil encouraged the city to move forward with the study, noting "that even if you don't do anything, this would be something for people to do."

Council member Chris Woehler said if the pond were built, "it would be a lake without water going it to it. JEO (the city's engineer) should be able to give us the answers we need before making any decisions." Mayor Giese questioned what the city would be getting for the $11,800 investment and said the city already has access to data that they can get for free.

"The one question we need answered is how much drainage is coming off this ground?" Giese asked.

Council member Eischied and Mayor Giese debated the need for certain questions on the proposal from Olsson.

Following the debate, council members voted to table the item until several of the questions Giese rased could be answered by the engineering firm.

In other action, the council approved an application for corporate manager for Krystal M. Carter in connection with Casey's Retail Company dba as Casey's General Store 2738.

Luke Virgil, Director of Wayne Area Economic Development, spoke to the council and gave an update on LB 840 activity.

The city receives an update every six months from the LB 840 committee and Virgil told the council there has been only one request for Revolving Loan Funds during the last six months - an $85,000 low interest loan to Short Stop.

Following a public hearing, council members approved Resolution 2021-37, which allowed the chief elected official to sign an application for Community Development Block Grant - Public Works Funds in the amount of $303,000.

Jan Merrill with the Northeast Nebraska Economic Development District explained to the council how the money would be used if the city were awarded the grant. This includes $268,000 to renovate the bath house at the former swimming pool. The building would serve as the trail head for the city's recreation trail. In addition, $25,000 would be used for general administration and $10,000 for construction management. The city would be required to provide $80,400 in matching funds.

It is anticipated that the city would be notified in late fall if the grant money would be received. If so, it would need to be used within 30 months.

An application for Payment No. 1 in the amount of $58,059.75 to Meyers Construction, Inc. for the Pine Heights Road & Utility Improvements Project was approved. Work is currently underway on the project.

A resolution authorizing the allocation of property taxes to the Wayne Airport Authority was approved unanimously. It was noted that the airport cannot levy taxes on its own and that this year's request of $63,408 was less than last year's asking of

By Morgan Cardenas, editor@wayneherald.com

At Tuesday's meeting, the Wayne County Commissioners had different groups explain what they are doing with their budget money.

Luke Virgil from Wayne Area Economic Development was the first to speak at the meeting. Virgil explained the budget allocation that WAED has received over the last couple of years and brought up a possible increase for it.

Previously, they had received $3,000 in 2006 and then in 2014 it was raised to $8,100 until 2017 where it was increased by only $100. Virgil was asking for it to be increased.

He explained how Wayne County is a large contributor to WAED at about $76,000 and has continued to increase 5%

Groups explain how their budgets are used annually to around $93,000 currently.

"Anytime that there is a project developed that comes through our office, it is going to be in Wayne County," Virgil said. "It is going to be contributing to your guys' property tax rolls so it is going to increase your guys' budget for each year. Yes, it does create a little bit more that you need to work with as far as maybe road maintenance depending on where the project is located."

Virgil was hoping to double the amount that they had previously received but was awarded $10,000 instead.

Next, Heather Headley and Lara Lanphear of the Wayne County Library Association explained what they had done with their previous budget allocations.

Obituaries

Bonnie O. Stanley

Bonnie O. Stanley, 96, of Wayne, died Friday, July 30, 2021 at Providence Medical Center in Wayne.

Services will be held Thursday, Aug. 5 at 10:30 a.m. at Our Savior Lutheran Church in Wayne. 4 from 5 to 7 p.m. at the church. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery in Wayne.

Memorials may be directed to Our Savior Lutheran Church and Wayne Volunteer Fire Department.

Arrangements are with Hase-mann Funeral Home of Wayne.

Bonnell Oline 'Bonnie' Stanley was born Sept. 20, 1924 to Adam 'Ed' and Anna (Andersen) Grier on a farm 4.5 miles north of Wayne. She graduated from Wayne High in 1942. She studied briefly at the Norfolk College of Business but when she was offered a full time job at the Wayne Gamble Store she jumped at the opportunity. A year later she was offered a job at the Wayne City Clerk's Office where she worked until she married Robert E. 'Bob' Stanley on Aug. 31, 1947 and became a farmer's wife. Bob and Bonnie lived on several farms around Wayne. In 1951 their son, Douglas Robert, was born, followed by daughter Nancy Ann in 1954. In 1962 the Stanley family moved into Wayne where Bonnie began working for the superintendent of the Wayne Public Schools, a job she would keep until she retired 27 years later. Bob and Bonnie were married for 53 years but she lost Bob to a heart attack Dec. 11, 2000. It took years for her to get over her loss but she kept going, taking care of her friends, her house and rental property and her family. Her grandson, Matt, was especially dear to her and she delighted in hearing about his studies and adventures. She was baptized, confirmed and married in St. Paul's Lutheran (now Our Savior Lutheran) Church and she and Bob served the church in many different capacities. She served on the board of Villa Wayne from 1990 to 2008 and worked for the Hase-mann Funeral Home from 2002 to 2017.

The last few years of her life she slowed down a bit but, whenever she could, she'd be out picking up fallen branches, trimming bushes and even shoveling snow (when it wasn't too heavy!) She loved her home and worked hard to stay there. Just a month before she died, she moved into an apartment at Country View Assisted Living, realizing that maybe life on just one floor did have certain advantages to a three story house. She loved her family, her friends, her home, milk (whole, no skim milk for her), big trees and dogs (as long as they were someone else's). She had a kind heart and maintained her sense of humor to the very end.

She was preceded in death by her parents, husband, Bob Stanley, in 2000; one brother, Don Grier; and various in-laws.

She is survived by daughter Nancy and son-in-law Tom Andersen of Denver, Colorado and their son Matt of Portland, Oregon; son Doug Stanley of Dallas, Texas; sisters-in-law Dorothy Boucher of Springfield, Oregon and June Stanley of Crawfordville, Florida; nieces, nephews and cousins, Pat Stanley, Mary (Dave) Thurman, Bill Stanley, Cathy (Jim) Bledsoe, Janet (Terry) Hudson, John (Marie) Manz, David (Janet) Manz, Debbie (Bob) Schroeder, Claudia (Don) Koeber, Monte (Katie) Niemann, Scott (Marilyn) Niemann, Shaun (Earla) Niemann, Craig Grier, Pam Rutherford, Debbie Brown, Bill (Betty) Reeg, Diane (Dean) Bruggeman and Garry Zour.

Rhonda Rager

Rhonda Lea (Wendte) Rager, 57, of Emerson, died on Monday, Aug. 2, 2021 at her home in Emerson.

Services will be held on Saturday, Aug. 7 at 10 a.m. at St. Luke Lutheran Church in Emerson; Pastor Charlotte Eversoll will be officiating. Visitation will be held on Friday, Aug. 6 from 5 until 7 p.m. at St. Luke Lutheran Church in Emerson. Burial will be in the Rose Hill Cemetery of Emerson.

Memorials are suggested to the family for future designation.

Arrangements are under the direction of Munderloh-Smith Funeral Home in Emerson.

Rhonda Lea (Wendte) Rager was born in Sioux City, Iowa on June 12, 1964, the daughter of Ronald and Jeanette (Hall) Wendte. In 1982 Rhonda graduated from Emerson - Hubbard High School. On Jan. 25, 1986 she was united in marriage to Billie E. Rager. To this union three children were born - Joshua, Nicole and Alissa. For many years she has worked at Pac 'N' Save in Wayne. She enjoyed reading, watching and feeding birds, adventurous road trips, and working with her plants. Most of all she enjoyed spending time with her girls and grandkids.

Survivors include her husband, Billie of Emerson; daughter, Nicole (Jose) Fregoso of Wakefield and their son, Remington; daughter, Alissa Rager of Wayne, and her sons Treyvan and Kamdyn; sisters, Deanna Wendte of Pender and Jennifer (Ray) Thompson of Pender; a brother, Robert (Glenda) Wendte of Emerson; sisters-in-law, Lela Rager of Sioux City, Iowa, Lila (Bob) Hadcock of Decatur, Patty (Ken) Pojar of South Sioux City, Jackie (Rick) Claassen of Dakota City and Paula (Karen) Rager of Sioux City, Iowa; brothers-in-law, Alvin "Butch" (Teresa) Rager of Thayer, Iowa, Robert (Betty) Rager of Emerson; and many nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Ronald and Jeanette Wendte; a son, Joshua Rager; father-in-law and mother-in-law, Robert and JoAnn Rager; brother, Brian Wendte; nieces, April Claassen and Laura Wendte and a nephew, Anthony Kubik.

Advice shared for preventing heat illnesses this summer

Summer has made itself known in Nebraska, bringing not only the heat but also the usual high humidity. Going outside for just minutes may be dangerous for anyone when the temperature soars, but older people especially need to be cautious. As people age, sweating, thirst, and releasing heat through dilated blood vessels at the surface of the skin are certain physiological responses that diminish when encountering hot temperatures. While coping with this extreme heat is a seasonal ritual, the elderly are much more susceptible to heat exhaustion and heatstroke than the average adult.

As people age, the body becomes less efficient at regulating temperature because older adults (65+) don't sweat as much as younger adults, which is one of the body's most important heat-regulation mechanisms. Seniors also store fat differently than younger adults, which further complicates heat-regulation in the body. This is serious because as the temperature rises, so does a person's internal body temperature, especially when exposed directly to the sun or extremely hot environments.

Seniors suffer from heatstroke more often than those who are younger throughout the summer season. An estimated 12,000 Americans die of heat-related causes annually, according to research by scientists at Duke University. More than 80% of those dying from heat-related illnesses are over 60 years of age, with 90% of these deaths occurring during the months of May-September, according to The Centers for Disease Control (CDC).

Adults should take heat warnings seriously, especially those older adults who are living in southern states and at higher altitudes. Don't underestimate the real risks of extreme heat and pay attention to the heat index, which factors in relative humidity. Heed the air quality and ozone warnings in weather reports; heat and sunlight convert pollutants into ozone, an invisible gas associated with automobile exhaust and factory emissions. Ozone gas is associated with the progression of emphysema-like changes on lung scans and a decline in lung function. Lifestyle and health factors increase the risk of developing heat-related illnesses and hospitalizations. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), which surveys health data as an indicator of climate change, notes the higher hospitalization rates in the Southeast and Midwest areas; the rates suggest a connection between hotter and more humid summers, and increased rates of heat-related illness when compared to other regions. Hospitalizations and ER visits for kidney failure, urinary tract infections, and other health problems have also increased for older adults during heat waves. Salt-restricted diets and prescription medications that are normally prescribed to this group further boost the odds of hospitalization for heat-related problems by about 33%.

Symptoms of Heat Exhaustion
Heat exhaustion is a precursor to heatstroke caused by too much heat and dehydration. Some warning signs that indicate heatstroke include: heavy sweating or no sweating at all, cold or clammy skin, dizziness, headache, nausea or vomiting, weak pulse, and fainting. If these symptoms appear, move to a cooler, shaded location immediately and drink plenty of fluids like water or sports drinks with electrolytes (such as Gatorade). If relief has not occurred in a few minutes, or if you have heart disease, call 911 immediately.

Symptoms of Heatstroke
Heatstroke is serious and can be deadly. It does not always happen suddenly; it can occur gradually after several days of heat exposure. Generally in cases of heatstroke, a person's body temperature is above 104 degrees. In addition to a very high body temperature, other signs of heatstroke include hot, red skin, fast pulse, headache, nausea or vomiting, confusion or lethargy, and fainting. If these symptoms appear, call 911 immediately. Then, move to a cool, shaded location. Take off heavy clothing, and, if possible, apply cool water. Clothes can be soaked in cold water and applied to the neck area, wrists, ankles, and armpits to help lower the body's temperature. Drink some cool water or a sports drink while waiting for emergency personnel to arrive.

Summer Heat Safety Tips
These are some things seniors can do to stay cool and safe during the hot summer months:

- Avoid direct sun exposure.
- Stay in an air-conditioned location, and if a home does not have air conditioning, go somewhere that does. Visit a friend or relative, stop by the local library or mall, or head to the movie theatre for the afternoon.
- Schedule your appointments in the early morning or late evening hours when the sun is not at its worst.
- Dress appropriately, wearing loose fitting, light colored clothing. A large, broad-brimmed hat will help to avoid any sunburn on the face and neck, and always wear sunscreen when outside.

Seniors who either can't afford to buy or run the air conditioner in their home, should check with their local Area Agency on Aging (AAA) for assistance. Additionally, Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) provides financial assistance for managing costs of heating and cooling your home. For details, visit <https://dhhs.ne.gov/Pages/Energy-Assistance.aspx>.

During the summer months, staying hydrated is more important than ever, especially during heat waves. Lack of water, or dehydration, diminishes a body's ability to regulate its temperature, so the risk of developing a heat illness rises dramatically. Seniors should avoid alcohol during a heat wave and drink water and juices regularly. A good practice to follow is to drink fluids with every meal, as well as sipping fluids throughout the day, rather than drinking them quickly.

If you know elderly relatives or neighbors, check in with them during the summer heat. Make sure they are using their air conditioners if available, and watch for warning signs of heat exhaustion. It is always better to be safe than sorry; heatstroke and heat exhaustion are serious conditions. If anyone shows signs of heat exhaustion, don't hesitate to call 911 and get help.

Blood drive to be held in Laurel

LifeServe Blood Center, the SOLE supplier of blood to Laurel area hospitals, is asking community members to give blood to help patients this summer.

T r a v e l, boating, outdoor fun and work, can all lead to an increase in traumas in local emergency rooms. Many of these patients will require blood transfusions as part of their treatment or recovery.

To ensure blood is available for the predicted increased need, those eligible are being asked to give blood at the Laurel Community Blood Drive on Friday, August 20 from 2:30 - 6 p.m. at United Presbyterian Church in Laurel.

To schedule an appointment, visit www.lifeservebloodcenter.org or call 800-287-4903.

Looking Ahead in Wayne

By Wes Blecke, City Administrator

If awarded this grant and depending on a contractor's availability, work could start spring 2022.

Lake feasibility on hold
After a long discussion, the Council tabled a decision on a lake feasibility study with the engineering firm Olsson. Discussion centered on whether the City needed a full study to determine the questions it wanted answered. Staff will get the answer specifically for how much runoff currently comes from the area (to serve a possible lake) before the Council determines if it moves forward with a more in depth study. Stay tuned.

College Hill Park grant application
An application for $303,000 will be applied for to the State of Nebraska to assist with funding the College Hill Park's old bathhouse and trail project.

The plan is to renovate the bathhouse into an updated, modern facility along with an exterior shelter area. There will also be a restroom available to the public, including the trail users. The project will also connect the old bathhouse (restroom) to the new trail.

Mini-Retreat, August 31
The Council will meet on Tuesday, Aug. 31 for a mini-retreat specifically to discuss public facilities and buildings. Through budget discussions there have been a few buildings and facilities that need some attention, whether it be updating what the City already has, renovating or adding on to existing, or perhaps building new. Some departments with possible needs include the Library, Street Shop, Parks and Recreation space, Community Activity Center, and City Hall improvements.

Budget Workshop
The Mayor and City Council held its second budget work session on Aug. 3 in the Council Chambers. The Council reviewed department requests from the Library, Senior Center, Electric, Streets and Economic Development.

The next formal step in the budget process is to hold hearings. The City will hold one hearing on Aug. 31 before the mini-retreat, and then hold an additional hearing, along with the passing of the budget document, etc. on Tuesday, Sept. 7. After the budget is final and submitted to the State of Nebraska, City staff will place the document on the City website.

As always if you have comments about the budget or the process, let City staff or elected officials know... or feel free to attend the hearings to publicly comment.

Area students heading back to classes

After what was a short summer (in the opinion of students) or a stressful summer (in the opinion of parents), it is time for area students to head back to the classroom.

At Wayne Community Schools, classes begin on Wednesday, Aug. 11. That day classes will be dismissed at noon. Lunch will not be served that day. A full day of classes will be held on Thursday, Aug. 12.

A K-12 Open House will be held Monday, Aug. 9 from 5 to 7 p.m. Because of that, the monthly Board of Education meeting will begin at 7 p.m., rather than the normal 5 p.m.

At Winside Public Schools, classes begin on Thursday, Aug. 12. Both breakfast and lunch will be available that day.

A Back to School Community Barbecue Meet and Greet will be held Wednesday, Aug. 11 at 7 p.m.

In Winside, the first day of Pre-School will be Monday, Aug. 16.

The Allen Community Club will be holding an end-of-summer picnic in front of the schoolhouse in Allen beginning at 5:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 10.

Also that day in Allen, a PK-6th Grade Open House will be held from 6 to 7 p.m. and Seventh grade orientation from 6:30 p.m.

Classes for students at Allen Community Schools will begin Thursday, Aug. 12 with both breakfast and lunch being served.

Students at St. Mary's Elementary School in Wayne head back to the classroom on Tuesday, Aug. 17 with an early dismissal. Classes will also be dismissed at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 18.

A Back to School Grill Out and tours of the school will be held on Sunday, Aug. 15 following the 10 a.m. Mass.

At Laurel-Concord-Coleridge, students go back to class on Wednesday, Aug. 18 with both breakfast and lunch served that day.

A Back-to School Night will be held Monday, Aug. 16 from 4 to 8 p.m. at both the Coleridge and Laurel campuses.

Students at Wakefield Community Schools will be the last of the area schools to start the 2021-2022 school year.

Classes begin on Thursday, Aug. 19. There will be 1 p.m. dismissal that day.

There will be a Meet & Greet Night on Monday, Aug. 16 from 5 to 7 p.m.

There will be a full day of classes on Friday, Aug. 20.

WAKEFEST celebration is set for Aug.21 in Wakefield

Plans are underway to celebrate in Wakefield on Saturday, Aug. 21, with the annual WAKEFEST celebration.

Formally known as Balloons N' BBQ, the newly reimagined festival promises a day full of fun for the whole family. WAKEFEST is a joint venture between the Wakefield Community Club and Wakefield Youth Recreation. Funds raised go to support local events, business promotions, and youth recreation in the Wakefield Community.

WAKEFEST is slated to feature live music entertainer Billy McGuigan and his dynamic band, the Downliners, as well as local musician Tegan Nissen. Both are sure to please your ears and get your feet moving.

A BBQ competition featuring all-you-can-eat chicken wings and pork ribs will fill the air as visitors stroll the streets of downtown, which features a car show, street fair with food and craft vendors, the ever-popular corn hole tournament, a humanities speaker, as well as kid's activities like laser tag, a video game truck, bounce houses, inflatable obstacle course, and other street games.

The day will also include a parade, 5K run/walk in the morning and breakfast at the Wakefield Fire Hall.

Events begin at 8 a.m. in the morning and run throughout the day and into the evening with the BBQ Cook-Off and live music.

While most of the event is presented free of charge to the community, participants do have the option to upgrade their experience. Tickets for the BBQ, Live Music, and gated beer gardens are $20 if purchased in advance or $25 at the door. Some kids' activities require an "activity bracelet" that gives the wearer unlimited access to the bounce houses, video game truck, and laser tag arena inside the Little Red Hen Theatre. Discounted student/child tickets and combo packages are available for purchase.

A full and detailed listing of WAKEFEST activities, and access to purchase tickets to paid portions of the event can be found at www.wakefieldcommunityclub.com

National Coalition of Certification Centers names Northeast Community College as School on the Rise

Northeast Community College has been recognized for its work in providing industry recognized certifications to its students in several of its programs.

The National Coalition of Certification Centers (NC3) presented Northeast with its School on the Rise award during the organization's Virtual Leadership Summit recently. NC3 is a network of education providers and corporations that supports, advances, and validates new and emerging technology skills in the transportation, aviation, and energy industry sectors. The organization develops, implements and sustains industry-recognized portable certifications built on national skill standards. Northeast Community College has been an NC3 Leadership School since 2014.

The School on the Rise award identifies schools that have shown consistent growth in issued certifications since joining the NC3 network and have demonstrated innovative career and technical education (CTE) initiatives and programs to support their students and their service area.

Erika Staackmann, NC3's customer success coordinator and creator of the award, said Northeast has established a leading role within their community and has empowered their students with the knowledge and skills they need to enter thriving careers in the trades.

The College offers certifications to students from Lincoln Electric, Trane, Snap-on, and Greenlee in automotive, autobody, building construction, electrical construction and control, diesel, heating, ventilation and air conditioning, machining and manufacturing, welding, and wind energy. Additional certifications are in the works with Lincoln Electric and Greenlee as well as a new opportunity with Festo for Glen and MRW (mikerowWORKS) Foundation's Work Ethic Certification.

Shanelle Grudzinski, dean of applied technology at Northeast, said industry credentialing is important to employers who hire Northeast graduates.

Since the start of it, industry credentialing for us was really a discussion about opportunities for our students. We were looking to find fits with companies that met our mission and goal as a school as well as fit our programming,' Grudzinski said. "What we didn't want were non-value-added or credentials that would take away from our current programs, which were very good. Through NC3 and their industry partnerships, we were able to find a good alignment that would enhance our curriculum and really add value for our students."

For Grudzinski, industry credentials and the partnership with NC3 provide a two-fold benefit. She said the certifications are not only assisting graduates in their employment search, colleges, such as Northeast, also build quality curriculums for each of the programs.

"When we first started this process of learning, the industry credentials really allowed the students to experience real-world demands and real-world skill sets in a practical way that suited our hands-on learners," she said. "The credentials were able to cater to that learning style and it helped many of these programs really establish their foundations. Not only does this increase the student's ability to use critical thinking and problem-solving but it also helps build that professional credibility and competitiveness."

Grudzinski said the goal is to take what has already been developed in Northeast's Applied Technical programs and expand that across the College because of anticipated growth. She said they are routinely evaluating programs, evaluating curriculum, and finding the best model for students that also works for its industry partners.

"One thing we try to push to add more value for our students is stackable credentials," said John Liewer, wind energy technology instructor. "With such a wide variety of certifications to offer through NC3, there's plenty of opportunities for students to add quite a few of them on their resumes to help set them apart from other candidates. When industry-recognized certifications show up on their resumes, it's proof that they've been successful in mastering certain skills. It's a way for employers to find the candidate that is best suited for their needs."

With its industry partnerships, Northeast Community College has been able to broaden its reach to students and raise awareness about the opportunities that careers in technical education bring.

Brad Ranslem, associate dean of applied technology, said quality faculty and modern state-of-the-art facilities has allowed Northeast to become a premier institution offering its graduates the education and training necessary to become productive members of the workforce.

"Our faculty do an amazing job and they get to know their students extremely well. I know the students would say they feel very close to their faculty," Ranslem said. "Our facilities are also amazing and I think that our investment into different technology is a huge thing that sets us apart."

Ranslem said another value is industry partners and advisory committee members for each of the programs. They come in to share what's current in industry and what the College can improve upon. "School on the Rise was established as a way to honor and recognize schools within NC3's Network that are leading the nation towards the future of Career and Technical Education," Staackmann said. "Northeast Community College is an incredible example of what education and industry can truly accomplish by working in harmony to empower students pursuing technical careers."

Neihardt Conference to be held at Wayne State College

Wayne State College will be the setting for the John G. Neihardt Conference, "Youth Remembered, 1881-1901," Sept. 20 - 21. The conference title relates to Neihardt's final book written in his 90s, "All is But a Beginning."

Events begin Monday, Sept. 20 with a session from 3:30 to 5 p.m. in Gardner Hall Auditorium. Panelists for the session include Nancy Gillis, Joseph Weixelman and Meena Dalal. A reception follows in Gardner Hall Lobby. The public is also welcome to examine an exhibit on John G. Neihardt completed from Conn Library Archives by Marcus Schlichter. Marianne Reynolds, Director of the Neihardt Center in Bancroft, will offer a book sale to the public.

The event continues on Tuesday, Sept. 21, from 10 to 10:30 a.m. at State Nebraska Bank and Trust, 122 Main Street in Wayne with a special chamber coffee open to the public. Dalal will give a presentation on the history of Wayne State College and the Ley Family's involvement with the College.

Everyone is welcome to participate in a walking tour of historic downtown Wayne from 10:30 to 11 a.m.

The public is invited to attend a Native American Dance performance by the Many Moccasins Dance Troupe in Ley Theatre, 5 to 6 p.m.

Tim Anderson, Nancy Gillis, Joseph Weixelman and Meena Dalal will share insights during a panel discussion in Gardner Hall Auditorium from 6:30 to 8 p.m. The public will again have an opportunity to examine an exhibit by Conn Library Archivist Marcus Schlichter. Reynolds will again offer an opportunity to purchase books. There will be reception after the panel discussion in Gardner Hall Lobby.

Game and Parks offers depredation tools

The Nebraska Game and Parks Commission reminds landowners there are tools and resources available to those experiencing crop and livestock damage due to wildlife.

Landowners can contact their nearest Game and Parks district office to discuss options to alleviate damage, such as scare devices, fences, damage control permits or opening lands to public access for hunting. Find an office at outdoor-nebraska.gov/locations.

In addition, landowners can go online to relate wildlife damage issues to Game and Parks at outdoor-nebraska.gov/depredation.

Big game wildlife populations are best managed through hunting. In 2021, Game and Parks increased tags for deer, antelope and elk. Antlerless elk permits increased 75% from 2020 numbers, with early and late season splits in most units to focus hunters into desired seasons. The January River Antlerless season now will run the entire month of January to focus on areas with higher deer populations.

Game and Parks continues to offer the Antlerless Hunter Database, which connects hunters who wish to harvest antlerless deer with landowners who are experiencing damage. Issues from deer on their property. Learn more at outdoornebraska.gov/antlerlesshunterdatabase.

Wakefield man arrested by Dixon County Sheriff's office

Jose Alfredo Fregoso, 27, of Wakefield was taken into custody on July 29 by the Dixon County Sheriff's Office on the charge of Possession of Sexually Explicit Conduct, a Class IIA Felony, punishable by up to 20 years in prison.

Further charges may be forthcoming as the investigation continues under the direction of the Nebraska State Patrol. Mr. Fregoso was released after posting 10% of his $100,000.00 bond and is scheduled to appear before the Dixon County Court on Aug. 24, 2021.

Library, talked about how they went through their patron database and cut down the ones that had not been for a while.
"I know we went from having a database of almost 5,000 names down to about 3,000 and of those 3,000 about 500 are county users instead of 800," Headley said.
They have also invested in more audiobooks and electronic materials and databases for easier access outside of the library. Due to the pandemic, they increased their budget focus on audiobooks and ebooks on OverDrive.
Lanphear, the director of the Winside Public Library, said they used their budget for their bigger purchases such as the big book orders and periodicals. They also invested in a laminator, their summer reading program and OverDrive.

The Wayne County Library Association was requesting $13,000 and was awarded that amount.
Then Doug Temme and the Wayne County Ag Society Board talked about the improvements that they had made at the fair grounds with their money along, with some more improvements they would like to do such as new bathrooms at the Expo building.

Temme said that there were a large number of people who were from out of the county that attended the fair. They spent around $150,000 on all of the entertainment at the fair. The Wayne Ag Society was awarded $125,000.
Finally, Highway Superintendent Mark Casey answered any questions from the commissioners such as the green wall progress and the removal of a mobile home in a ditch.
The Wayne County Board of Commissioners will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, Aug. 17 at 9 a.m. in the Wayne County Courthouse.

Council members also authorized Wayne Police Chief Marlen Chinn to move forward with the purchase of a 2021 Chevrolet Tahoe through the state bid. A bid proposal was received from Arnie's Ford for $38,837 for the vehicle.
It was noted that the vehicle would be ordered by the end of August, but could take up to six months to be delivered.
Council members voted to set a Mini Retreat date of Tuesday, Aug. 31 at 5:30 p.m. at the Wayne Fire Hall. The retreat will be held to discuss public facilities and buildings.

In addition, a budget hearing for the proposed 2021-2022 fiscal year budget will be held at the same time.
The final item on the Tuesday agenda was a budget work session.
City Finance Director Beth Porter presented information to the council members on several departments and those department heads were on hand to answer questions posed by council members.
Among the department requests were several upgrades to the Wayne Public Library and the possible change of a part-time position into a full-time position.
Information provided by the Electric Department included moving to four full-time employees in the production side of the department and several items that would be purchased to be used by both the electric department and the water and sewer department.

The budget for the technology department includes a request for a phone system upgrade and upgrades to the sound system in the council chambers.
The Wayne City Council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, Aug. 17 at 5:30 p.m. in council chambers.

Public is reminded it is unlawful to place campaign signs on state's right-of-way

The Nebraska Department of Transportation (NDOT) is reminding the public that it is unlawful to place political campaign signs, or any unpermitted signs, on state highway and interstate right-of-way.
This includes intersections, medians, entrance and exit ramps, side-walks and the ditches and lands that make up the right-of-way bordering the length of each roadway.
NDOT maintenance crews will remove any signs that are improperly placed within the state highway right-of-ways. These signs will be stored for a brief time in the maintenance yards throughout the state where the owners may reclaim them.
Additional regulations governing political campaign sign placement and size are sometimes set by each county and/or municipality. The public is advised to reference local regulations for questions regarding a specific location and to keep in mind that violation of local sign ordinances may result in a fine.
Those needing further information concerning the boundaries of state right-of-way corridors or seeking sign permit information should contact their local district permit officer listed below. Inquiries may also be made to NDOT's Right-of-Way Division office at (402) 479-4463.
District 1, Lincoln (402) 471-0850; District 2, Omaha (402) 595-2534; District 3, Norfolk (402) 370-3470; District 4, Grand Island (308) 385-6265; District 5, Scottsbluff (308) 436-6587; District 6, North Platte (308) 535-8031; District 7, McCook (308) 345-8490; and District 8, Ainsworth (402) 387-2471.

Final installment in the Sculpture Walk

The final part in the Wayne Sculpture Walk series is a piece called "Artifact" created by Vernon Willits.
This sculpture is made of steel and is located outside of Verizon. Willits is from Camanche, Iowa.
The welding technique he uses to create most of his work is a skill Willits began learning at age 10 from his father who worked in a welding shop.
He taught Willits everything, from the characteristics of materials such as steel, cast iron and aluminum to the various welding techniques; arc, TIG, MIG, torch, etc.
In 1983 Willits produced and installed his first major public sculpture. Since that time he has continued to make things both large and small. Yearly, Willits participates in numerous exhibitions and produces commissioned work across the United States, Canada and Europe.
He has taken part in many exhibits in the Midwest and has also won many awards and grants for his work.
Willits lives and works, happily, on the banks of the Mississippi River. He says the things that he makes are integral parts of who Willits is and the objects that he makes contain strands of his identity. Making art is an integral part of Willits' life experience.

Building in Wakefield home to several new businesses

A new business in Wakefield held a grand opening recently and brings new life to a building on Main Street.
Jim Lehmkuhl, a 1986 graduate of Pender High School, purchased the building at 226 Main Street and held a grand opening for his business, NEN Arms & Ammo, on July 24.
Lehmkuhl has been working at IPB/Tyson for the last 25 years. He is currently the Pork Industrial Engineering Manager. He has been a resident of Wakefield for 26 years.
"With the COVID pandemic I worked from home for much of last year which allowed me to spend more time in Wakefield. A friend of mine tipped me off about a building that might be coming up for sale on main street so I called and asked if I could look at it," Lehmkuhl said.
He had gotten his Federal Firearms License approximately four years ago, which allows him to buy and sell firearms.

"I was looking for something I could do on the side as I got a little older that would supplement my income, especially with retirement in the not-too distant future. I'm not necessarily a gun nut, but grew up on the farm and have been around guns my entire life. At the time I was looking for a side business, for some reason this just seemed like a good idea," he said.
Don Dinslage was the former owner of the building, which he bought from the Masonic Lodge.
Lehmkuhl said Dinslage had put a lot of work into the building and used it for his business, which was to finish or trim out the interior of new houses.
"I didn't really know what to expect (when I went to look at the building) but as he showed it to me, I just kind of visualized what it might look like. I came home and told my wife that I was going to buy this building and she just kind of looked at me funny. But she could tell I was somewhat determined to make it happen," he said.
The building was purchased on

Aug. 1, 2020, and the Lehmkuhls immediately started turning the front office into a hair salon with three chairs.
"The building was big enough that I could utilize the front to generate some income and a salon seemed logical on Main Street. 226 Salon opened up on Oct. 1, 2020. From there we started on the gun store which is located in the middle of the building and accessed from a hallway down the south side wall," Lehmkuhl said.
He noted that it took some time and some sweat equity from family and friends, but it's been rewarding being able to bring two new businesses to main street Wakefield.
Current plans call for NEN Arms & Ammo to be open every Saturday from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. and by appointment.
"We have a nice selection of handguns and long guns and I am finally starting to get some ammunition," Lehmkuhl said.
More information about the business can be found on Facebook and the internet.

Four Wildcats collect NABC honors court accolades

Four Wayne State College men's basketball players were honored Tuesday afternoon by the National Association of Basketball Coaches with the 2020-21 NABC Honors Court, awarded to players that highlights the talent and gifts that players possess on the court and in the classroom.

To be eligible for the NABC Honors Court, student athletes must be a junior or senior and have maintained a cumulative grade point average of 3.2 or higher.

Ben Dentlinger, a senior from New London, Iowa, recorded a 3.59

grade point average majoring in biology and is a repeat selection to the NABC Honors Court. The 6' 7" forward averaged 6.4 points and 3.3 rebounds per game while ranking fourth in the NSIC in blocked shots per game at 1.9.

Jordan Janssen, a 6' 7" junior forward from Lincoln (East HS), had a 3.48 grade point average majoring in economics and finance. On the court, he was voted NSIC South Division Player of the Year and NABC All-Central Region First Team after leading the Wildcats in most offensive categories averaging 16.0 points and 9.8 rebounds a contest. Henry Penner, a 6' 6" junior forward from Aurora, posted a 3.65 grade point average majoring in business administration. He averaged 6.5 points and 2.6 rebounds per game this season.

Nate Thayer, a 6' 3" guard from Springfield (Platteview HS), maintained a 3.43 grade point average majoring in accounting and finance and accounted for 2.3 points and 1.8 rebounds per game this season.

Wayne State finished this season with an 11-7 overall record and 10-4 mark in the NSIC South Division. The Wildcats won the NSIC South Division title for a second time in three seasons and advanced to the NCAA Division II Central Regional Tournament before falling to MSU Moorhead 84-72.

Two transfers join Wayne State women's golf program

Wayne State College head women's golf coach Joey Baldwin has announced the addition of two transfers to the Wildcat women's golf program for the 2021-22 season. Viktoria Bortkiewicz-Hamelin from Montreal, Quebec Canada and Napatsorn "Mekky" Winyarat of Bangkok, Thailand join Abigail Brodersen from Albion as members of the 2021-22 Wildcat recruiting class.

"I am very excited to welcome Viktoria and Mekky to our golf program," remarked Coach Baldwin. "Both players are very dedicated and extremely hard workers on the golf course and in the classroom. They are international players who have both played college golf and will bring experience to our team. I believe they will have an immediate impact on our team and I know they will be great things at WSC."

Bortkiewicz-Hamelin (bork - uh - witch / ham - lin) is a transfer from Dawson College in Montreal and will have three years of eligibility with the Wildcats. She was named golf team MVP and had an 83 scoring average in her one season at Dawson.

Winyarat (win - yuh - ROT) is a transfer from Dodge City Community College in Kansas and will have two years of eligibility with the Wildcats. She was named Female Athlete of the Year in 2020 after notching one individual tournament title, one team title and a hole-in-one in the COVID shortened season. Winyarat had an average score of 79 at Dodge City that ranked 26th nationally while helping the Conquistadors to a #19 national ranking in the 2020 season.

The Wildcats are scheduled to open the 2021 fall season September 7-8 at the Central Region Preview in Blue Springs, Missouri.

Dixon County Fair - 2021

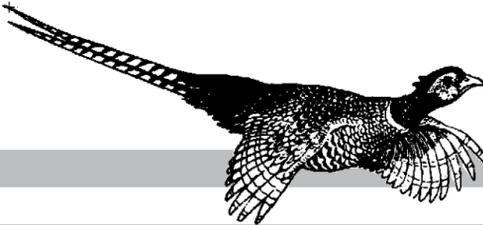

Photos by Clara Osten

Clothing exhibits, cattle and food were just some of the things fairgoers found at this year's Dixon County Fair. In addition, those in attendance had the opportunity to have a pony ride, view a display of antique machinery and watch pickups compete in a pull on Saturday. Other 4-H entries included swine and horses. Also on Saturday, tractors of various colors and sizes competed in tractor pulls both in the afternoon and in the evening. While the smoke-filled skies created hazy conditions, the weather cooperated for all during the five-day event.

MIKE'S MIMIC

Old friends are the best

By: MIKE RENNING
sports@norfolkdailynews.com

I recently went back to my old stomping grounds in Albion for a couple of days.

Wasn't a reunion type of thing, I was actually in the area to cover a state baseball tournament in Palmer, which Albion is much closer to Palmer than Emerson...and I didn't mind hooking up with an old friend.

I know we have discussed my friend and neighbor, "Sonny", who is really Mark Casey but I call him "Sonny" to save him any embarrassment - I mean I have to live by the guy for crying out loud.

Well, I stayed with Rick and Connie Nelson outside of town for my impromptu "work" vacation?

I call them Rick and Connie Nelson in this space because, well, that is their names and Connie has never done anything embarrassing to my knowledge and any embarrassing thing Rick has done...I was probably with him - much like "Sonny".

I'm starting to think I may be the common denominator in embarrassing moments concerning my friends, exactly why I don't think too deeply about events that have occurred in the past.

This would normally be the spot where I would recall one of those embarrassing moments, but most of those moments involving Rick revolve around a sporting event or something even I can't make appropriate for a newspaper - this ain't FaceBook.

But - Rick did challenge me, no dared me to relate something in this space about a memory - never tempt the guy with the pen.

From time-to-time, I may take a few liberties in this space, what the heck, it's my space?

Not really liberties, but embellishments?

Rick came to school "in town" as a pudgy freshman from District 49 country school east of town that could really hit and catch a baseball - if he could get to it-never saw him drop a fly ball, never.

Well, at our 10-year class reunion from good ol' Albion High School before it became Boone Central - later in the evening we decided we needed to take a dip in the Albion Swimming Pool before it became the Albion Aquatic Center.

Do you need to call a pool an aquatic center because you added a huge slide and took out the high-dive?

At any rate, we didn't realize the pool closed at 9 p.m. and we didn't decide to go swimming until later in the evening - much later.

The statute of limitations has hopefully run out on this mis-guided decision. If it hasn't, it was all Rick's idea and the rest of us were in a very impressionable state of mind - I mean we missed the news on TV that night - it was late in the evening.

Well, we reverted back to the days when we graduated from Albion High School in 1980, and took care of the problem of the pool horse not fitting into our schedule.

We had a marvelous time swimming, wasn't a big crowd, and other than snagging my shorts on a fence near the entry point - we really had fun.

The Darling Wife still recalls what fun friends I had from high school.

She is right.

Eventually, it was time for us to leave the pool, we left at the 3 o'clock pool check.

After a walk back to our cars, which was quite a journey, we returned to our respective places for sleep.

Wait a minute, Rick didn't even go along, neither did Connie - but I know it was Rick's idea.

Again, never tempt the guy with a pen.

Also, this newspaper you are reading does not condone or accept any activities that may be construed as somewhat illegal. But we did have a good time.

Where have all the Nebraska State Troopers gone?

Commentary by J.L. Schmidt
Statehouse Correspondent
Nebraska Press Association

A few weeks ago, I made my first post-pandemic road trip across Nebraska driving from Lincoln to Scottsbluff and then back to Lincoln a couple days later. It was great to see the crops growing, the traffic whizzing by and even the billboards beckoning me to stop and see what I had been missing all these months.

About that traffic whizzing by, have you ever asked yourself out loud "where's a cop when you need one?" It dawned on me; I had seen few, if any Nebraska State Troopers.

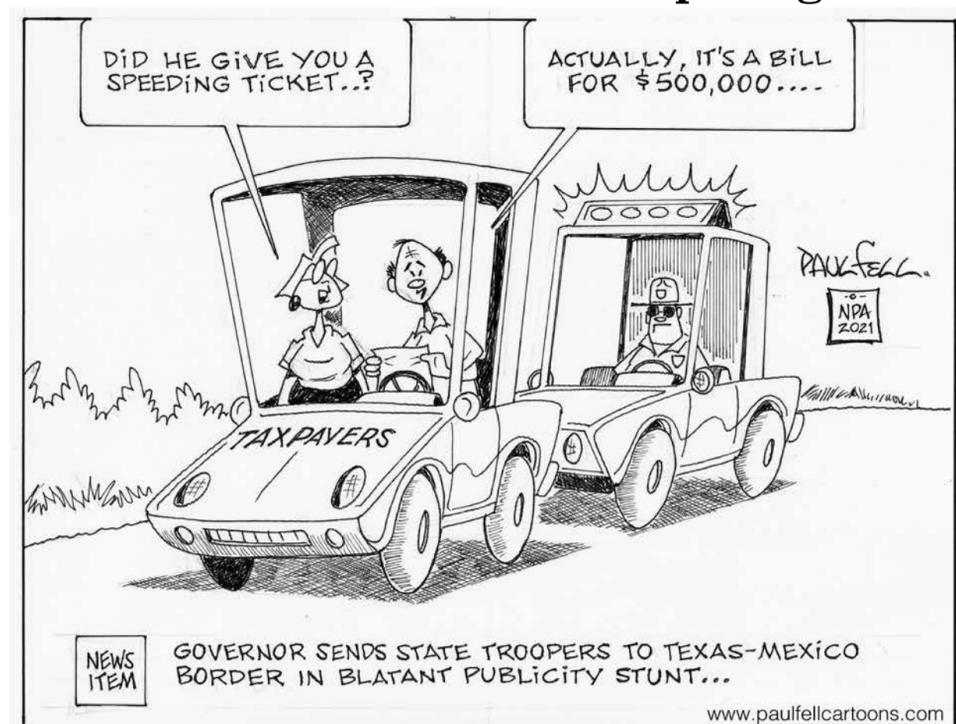

They weren't in their usual spots in the medians or the on-ramps. When you travel statewide like I did for years, you tend to remember those spots.

So, where were the Troopers? Gone to Texas, 25 of them to help protect the border with Mexico in what has been variously described as a mutual aid request or an overblown case of political grandstanding.

When he announced the deployment, Governor Pete Ricketts said, "Nebraska is stepping up to help Texas respond to the ongoing crisis on their border with Mexico. The disastrous policies of the Biden-Harris Administration created an immigration crisis on the border. While the federal government has fallen short in its response, Nebraska is happy to step up to provide assistance to Texas as they work to protect their communities and keep people safe."

That sounds like political posturing. But Ricketts' spokesman Taylor Gage said the decision to send troopers to Texas was answering another state's request for assistance.

"We were asked by a fellow State for help, and we want to help," he said. "This is similar to requests for assistance that we've received in Minnesota around the George Floyd verdict and in North Dakota during pipeline protests."

So, the troopers went to Del Rio, Texas, while the Patrol said it wouldn't impact operations at home. Spokesman Cody Thomas said the Patrol has adequate staffing for the deployment and no overtime was planned to cover the shifts of those who had gone to Texas.

If things died down on the home front during the deployment, they heated up again when the operation was completed, and it was learned that the cost to send the Nebraska Patrol Troopers to Texas was $500,000. That's half a million dollars folks, and no one was quite sure who was going to pay for it.

After some finger pointing that Democrats in the Texas Legislature were going to hold up any reimbursement, the Nebraska State Patrol said it had the funds available to cover the cost. Those are taxpayer funds and you and I are footing the bill.

State Patrol Capt. Jason Scott, who led the Nebraska state troopers in Texas, joined State Patrol Superintendent Col. John Bolduc and Ricketts at a news conference to describe a border that is being breached by an influx of illegal immigrants with resulting drug and human trafficking issues, including sex offenses against minors and child exploitation. They said many of the people fleeing across the border into Texas are in desperate need of water, food and shelter.

According to Bolduc, the deployed troopers assisted with 500 traffic stops and 25 commercial vehicle inspections, which led to several arrests. Meanwhile, in Nebraska, the state patrol made 500 fewer traffic stops during the time the troopers were gone.

As the dust settles, I must agree with the editorial boards of the Lincoln and Omaha newspapers that have decried the whole thing saying spending Nebraska's money for a Texas project with no legislative approval is an outrage in itself.

Equally as disturbing, in using the officers to support a headline-grabbing stunt by Texas Gov. Greg Abbott, Ricketts has politicized the patrol in an overreach of his authority.

Yes friends, we call that a "waste of taxpayers' money."

Legislative Update

Senator discusses the proposed Health Education Standards

It's hard to believe that the summer is nearing an end and just around the corner our schools will be opening their doors. I hope that the children in District 17 have had a chance to enjoy a summer full of rest and fun.

As we prepare for the 2021-22 school year, I cannot help but think about curriculums and the situation we have faced this year with the unacceptable Health Education Standards proposed by the Nebraska Department of Education.

I have been at a National Conference for Legislators this week, where numerous national education statistics are being reported. It has been a bit sobering to see where Nebraska stands academically in comparison to other states.

We simply need to go back to the basics, where our focus is doing an excellent job teaching Math, English, Science, Social Studies and History.

Though it is vital for every child to learn the value of taking care of themselves and other people, those things are and should be taught first by parents and guardians.

If children do not get an excellent education in the core subjects between K-12, it is probable they never will, and that will greatly affect their ability to thrive throughout their lifetime.

Currently, 49 School Districts across the state have stood in public opposition to the first draft of the Nebraska Department of Education Health Standards, they are: Alma, Arcadia, Amherst, Axtell, Beatrice, Bertrand, Boyd County, Broken Bow, Bruning- Davenport, Cairo, Chase County, Clarkson, Columbus, Cozad, Eustis-Farnam, Gehring, Gordon- Rushville, Gothenburg, Harrison/Sioux, Hayes Center, Hitchcock County, Holdrege, Keya Paha, Lincoln Christian, Logan View- Hooper, Loomis, Loop County, Madison, Mayfield, Maywood, McCook, Mead, Mullen, Newman Grove, Norfolk, O'Neill, Potter-Dix, Scottsbluff, Sidney, Thayer Central/ Hebron, Theford, Yutan, Wakefield, Wallace, Weeping Water, Wilcox- Hildreth, Winnebago and Wood River.

The second Health Standard draft came out this week. I would implore any local school boards in District 17 and throughout our state who have not signed the Resolution, to join the thousands of Nebraskans who are greatly concerned, and reject the proposed Health Standards all together.

I am in complete agreement with Governor Ricketts when he said, "While this new draft of the health education standards scraps many of the topics Nebraskans found objectionable, the standards still need improvement, for example, this draft proposes to teach the concept of 'gender identity.'"

"The continued presence of gender ideology in the standards leaves the door open for this material to be expanded either before these draft standards are approved or in future years when these standards are revisited. Sex education and other controversial topics should be addressed at home. This responsibility should not be shouldered by teachers in schools."

I encourage you to take the time to review the second draft for yourself. I know it is not convenient to sit down and read, but as the gatekeepers for our children's minds and hearts, it is VITAL that we proactively engage ourselves in stewarding their education.

I can tell you, there are others who absolutely have an agenda for our children, and if we do not pay attention, they will win this battle. You can review the new draft at education.ne.gov.

Next Friday, August 6 at 9:00 am the State Board of Education will hold its next meeting at the Nebraska Innovation Campus, 2021 Transformation Drive, Lincoln, NE

Access to the meeting will be made available to members of the public and members of the media at the meeting site and by live internet broadcast via the Nebraska Department of Education's YouTube channel.

The meeting will be recorded and available after the meeting on the NDE YouTube channel. Link to Live Internet Broadcast: <https://www.education.ne.gov/live/>

In the meantime, continue to contact your state and local school board members and representatives and ask them to sign on the Resolution rejecting the draft of the proposed Health Education Standards.

I am so proud of the hundreds and even thousands of Nebraska's parents, grandparents, teachers and guardians who have drawn a line in the sand and made their voices heard, that teaching our children value systems that we do not align with is not going to be okay here in this great state.

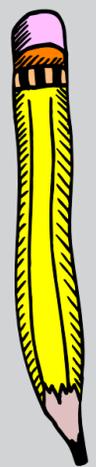

I always appreciate hearing from you, the Constituents of District 17. Your input helps me know how to effectively serve you in the Legislature. If you have any comments or concerns, please contact me at 402-471-2716 or jalbrecht@leg.ne.gov.

Other awards included nine blue ribbons to those reading 40 or more books, 13 red ribbons to those reading 17-39 books, and 13 white ribbons for 8-16 books.

August 5, 1971 Cattlemen Keep Trying to Improve Quality

Northeast Nebraska cattle feeders are all eyes and ears as they watch and listen to Robert Turner, a USDA meat grading specialist, during Monday's closing activities in this year's NEN market beef study. The feeders got to see the slaughtered carcasses of cattle shown Friday at the Iowa Beef Processors plant at Dakota City. The specialist pointed out how the cattle look and grade in the coolers, offering cattlemen a chance to actually see what they are raising in their feed lots. About 50 feeders and interested people from this part of the state turned out for the chance to see their cattle in the coolers. Earlier Friday the group got to see colored slides of their slaughtered animals and films of the cattle in the IBP pens. The study is an annual event sponsored by the Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association in an attempt to improve the quality of cattle raised in the area.

Homework tips: Develop good study habits

It is hard to believe the new school year is almost here with the joys of purchasing new school supplies. Teachers, parents, and students are adjusting to the new school schedules after a busy summer. The buildings and teachers and even some of the subjects have changed since parents were in school themselves. But one thing is still the same: homework. Some school kids "thrive" on doing homework; they think it's fun. Others, however, have a tougher time.

When homework becomes a chore, here are some suggestions for parents to help their child develop good study habits:

- Develop a positive attitude about helping the child. Let the child become your teacher at home. Doing homework together is an opportunity for the parent to continue expressing the care and affection they have for the child. Plus, kids still like showing off what they're learning to mom and dad.

- Develop a routine for when homework is done. Some kids may need to play for a while when they get home; others want to do their homework right away so they'll have free time later. Either way is fine, but parents must encourage consistency regarding the time that children are expected to do their homework.

- Choose a place that is quiet and free from distractions such as TV, radio, and other family activities, if possible. Make sure there is good lighting. Provide a desk or table with a comfortable chair for your child. The kitchen table will work if other family members agree to stay out of the room during study time.

- Store needed items such as pencils, pencil sharpener, glue, erasers, markers, scissors, and paper near the study area. It is easier and faster to do an assignment when everything is at hand. A basket or shoe box can be decorated to store these items.

While homework is part of the total school experience, it's a smaller part of life. When parents believe that their child is bringing home too much work from school, they need to take their concerns to the teacher. Other activities in the child's life are important, too. And a child's relationship with his or her family is important.

We each grieve in our own way

My niece passed away last week, after a heroic battle with cancer. Shelly was only 48 years old. She had been diagnosed more than three years ago with stage 4 cancer and given six months to live. But she decided to fight and prove the doctors wrong. She had been on different types of chemo for three years, which slowed, but did not stop the spread of the cancer. She kept her family and friends informed of her ups and downs, and marked the anniversaries of her battle on Facebook.

Many of us encouraged her to stay strong and supported her decision to keep fighting. Her posts, over the past few months, led me to believe that the end of her fight was near. She texted me a couple of weeks ago, asking me to call her mom, writing that all she could do was cry. I learned from my sister-in-law that Shelly had a bad reaction to her newest chemo. She made the decision to stop the chemo treatments and was placed on hospice. I texted my kids to let them know.

Jen, my oldest daughter, who is Shelly's age, visited her two days later. A few months ago, Jen was promoted to supervisor, and has responsibility for what had been two full-time jobs - so she rarely takes time off work. But she had a sense that she should go to see Shelly, and they had a wonderful visit. Jen called me and passed on a request to look for pictures of Shelly, Jen, and the kids when they were young. A couple days later, I went through several boxes and was able to find some pictures. I texted them to Shelly and Jen.

By Deb Valentine

Associate Pastor, Our Savior Lutheran Church
PMA, St. Peter's Lutheran Church Pilger

Many years ago, when I was just beginning my ministry, I served on a Hospice Team with a doctor, nurses, social worker, and clergy. It helped me to see firsthand the impact of spiritual support for those on hospice as they are nearing the end of their life. Later, I became involved in training for Hospice Volunteers, sharing the need to provide spiritual support for those who are open to it. Today, most (if not all) hospice programs have a chaplain.

In 1969, Elisabeth Kubler-Ross M.D., wrote a book called On Death and Dying. She had spent time with people who had a terminal illness, and shared information that she learned from them. She discovered that they seemed to go through several stages as they worked through their grief.

The first stage is denial. When someone first gets the horrible news, it doesn't seem real, and it may take time to sink in. The second stage is anger. It may be expressed in a number of ways: it may be anger at God, or anger at the disease. They may take out their anger on their loved ones. The third stage is bargaining. This may involve asking God for help. Sometimes people will say, God, if you heal me then I will live my life differently. The fourth stage is depression. The depression may be caused by repressed anger, or it may be just a great sadness as the reality of the situation is faced. The fifth stage is coming to acceptance. As the individual continues to work through their feelings, they may finally find peace. Even though the situation has not changed, their attitude has.

People do not always go through the stages in a certain order, and they may go back and forth between them. After Kubler-Ross wrote her book, many people realized that we go through the same stages of grief for other types of losses we face: the loss of a loved one, the loss of a job, the ending of a relationship, the loss of a home, etc.

Although there may be some similarities in the way people grieve, there are also many differences. We need to recognize that people grieve in their own way, and we need to respect, even if we don't always understand, the way people work through their grief. Although some ways of grieving may be healthier, there is no right or wrong way to grieve.

Many years ago, I attended a conference at Eden Seminary in St. Louis, Missouri, titled, Health and Wholeness, Care Giving in a Suffering World.

Doug Meeks, a well-known theologian, and author of the book, God, the Economist, spoke to us about the difference between pain and suffering.

Each of us experiences pain at some time in our lives. Pain is something that happens to us - it is not something that we choose, and it is not something that we can control. The pain can be physical pain, or emotional pain due to the trials that life brings. Pain is something that happens to us. But suffering is different. Suffering, according to Meeks, is something we choose.

Suffering is a response to the pain we experience, and it involves entering into the pain. Pain is passive. But suffering is active. When we engage in suffering, we are choosing to deal with the pain, and to work through the pain. Meeks stated that suffering always leads to growth. Entering into suffering, as Meeks describes it, reveals a way to work through the stages of grief.

Throughout the scriptures, we find that God is with those who suffer. It was during the 40 years in the wilderness, after God brought them out of slavery in Egypt, that the people of Israel were formed into a community of faith. Jesus ministered to people who suffered from illness, poverty, classism and sexism. He shared the love of God in his ministry of preaching, teaching, healing, and casting out demons. Through his death and resurrection, we have been given the gift of eternal life. Jesus calls us to share the good news and to love our neighbors as He loves us.

One of the most important things that we can do for someone who is grieving is to listen. Sharing one's thoughts and feelings plays an important role in the process of healing. They may need to share their story over and over again. Do not feel as if you have to talk to fill up the silence. Sitting with someone in silence may be just what is needed. Feel free to ask if there is anything they need, to offer words of encouragement, or to pray with them. Jesus modeled for us the ministry of presence. Let them know you are keeping them in your thoughts and prayers. Do not offer advice (unless it is requested). Things never to say include: "This is God's will", "You shouldn't feel" that way, "You should feel" this way, or "Snap out of it."

I called my sister-in-law a few days after Shelly's death to see how she was doing. I asked her if Shelly had seen the pictures I sent her. She said she was sure that Shelly had not seen the photos. She asked me to thank Jen for visiting Shelly, and said that it meant so much to her. Then she shared that after Shelly went to bed the night of Jen's visit, she didn't wake up. Jen was one of the last people to engage in conversation with her. Shelly was non-responsive until her death. When I called Jen to pass on the news, I let her know how much her visit meant to Shelly. I thanked her for listening to the nudge of the Holy Spirit, and I told her I believe that her visit helped Shelly to find peace and make the transition to eternity. Jen was awed by the impact that her visit had on Shelly. This helped me to see once more, the positive influence that we can have in someone's life, and the importance of paying attention to the prompting of the Spirit.

God is able to use us to touch the hearts of God's hurting people.

Those present at the 2021 LWML National convention at Lexington, Kentucky from the Wayne Zone were (left) Ron and Rhonda Sebade and Ellen Heinemann from Grace Lutheran, Wayne and Suzy Awe and Marie Wakefield from Hope Lutheran from South Sioux City.

Several area residents attend LWML Convention

The Lutheran Women's Missionary League (LWML) welcomed 2,787 people to the LWML Convention in Lexington, Kentucky, June 24-27, under the theme "Running the Race ... Looking to Jesus." The convention theme was based on Hebrews 12:1-2.

Those present at the 2021 LWML National convention at Lexington, Kentucky from the Wayne Zone were Ron and Rhonda Sebade and Ellen Heinemann from Grace Lutheran, Wayne and Suzy Awe and Marie Wakefield from Hope Lutheran from South Sioux City.

During their time in Kentucky, the group was also able to visit the Ark Encounter.

The voting body adopted a $2,150,000 mission goal for the 2021-2023 biennium. This goal, by the grace of God, will fund 28 mission grants as women and men respond in prayer and mites (offerings) during the next two years.

Voting Body Elects New Leaders

The convention voting body elected these servant leaders:

Vice President of Christian Life: Susan Brunkow, Kansas District;

Vice President of Communication: Kathy Pavelock, Eastern District; Vice President of Gospel Outreach: Karen Morrison, Kansas District; Recording Secretary: Brenda Piester, Kansas District; Jr. Pastoral Counselor: Rev. Gary Piepkorn, Rocky Mountain District; Nominating Committee: Kaye Wolff from the Michigan District, Chair, Lois Teinert from the Texas District, Janis McDaniels from the Carolinas District, Lisa Asmus from the South Dakota District, Melissa Salomón from the Pacific Southwest District, committee members

Gifts from the Heart are donations of gift cards and specific items chosen by the LWML Convention Planning Committee. They come from LWML members and donors.

A mission pledge walk was held to support the new $2,150,000 mission goal for the 2021-2023 biennium. Groups and individuals unable to attend the convention were encouraged to walk in their neighborhoods. In Lexington, nearly 1,100 individuals took part, walking from the convention center to Thoroughbred Park in a 1.5 mile loop. Contributions raised totaled $96,232.92.

The Sixth Biennial Tee Up 4 Mites Golf Outing was held on Wednesday, June 23, at the beautiful University Club of Kentucky. There were 69 golfers, comprising 18 teams, sponsored by the Lutheran Federal Credit Union. The funds raised totaled $30,710.00 in gross receipts.

The Lutheran Women's Missionary League (LWML) is an official women's auxiliary of The Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod. As Lutheran Women in Mission, we joyfully proclaim Christ, support missions, and equip women to honor God by serving others.

NOTICE OF PERMIT ISSUANCE

The Nebraska Department of Environment and Energy (NDEE) proposes to reissue with change the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permit for the City of Wayne Wastewater Treatment Facility, 205 Dearborn Avenue, Wayne, NE (NPDES# NE0033111; SIC 4952). The publicly owned treatment works receives and treats domestic wastewater which discharges from a mechanical treatment system through Outfall 001 to the South Logan Creek, Segment EL2-20900 in the Elkhorn River Basin. The permit would be issued for a period of up to five years and would restrict pollutant discharges to comply with the requirements of Department regulations. The draft permit, fact sheet, and other public information are available for review and copying at NDEE's Lincoln Office, 245 Fallbrook Boulevard, Lincoln, Nebraska 68521 between 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. (CT), weekdays, excluding holidays. To request copies of the draft permit and other information, call 402-471-3557. Individuals requiring special accommodations or alternate formats of materials should notify the Department by calling 402-471-2186. TDD users should call 800 833-7352 and ask the relay operator to call the Department at 402 471-2186. Written comments, objections, and/or hearing requests concerning permit issuance may be submitted to Kim Bubb, NPDES and State Permits Section, Nebraska Department of Environment and Energy, PO Box 98922, Lincoln, NE 68509-8922, before the comment period ending date of September 4, 2021. A determination to hold a hearing will be based upon factual environmental or regulatory consideration.

Commenting on Olympics, mental health

August! I can't believe it. And we had welcome cooler weather to usher it in. In fact, as I did a few laps around the cul de sac in the evening, it even felt a bit like Fall. I see by the forecast, though, we are still expecting hot weather later.

I have not watched the Olympics as much as I usually do. Not sure why, but when the TV focuses on gymnastics and swimming exclusively, I lose interest. I would like to see more volleyball and basketball games.

I've certainly learned a lot about mental health for athletes, though.. In this morning's paper, Garrett Nelson, the football player from Scottsbluff mentions working with the team psychologist. I'm guessing that being a starter at a young age did present some emotional discomfort. And it's been a Nebraska standard for a very long time to have a mental health advocate available for anyone on the teams.

By: Pat Meierhenry

I certainly had never heard of the "twisties". Now that I have, it makes total sense. I have literally cringed when I watched the youngsters on that vault. And now, hearing more about the mental preparation, I wonder how they even get the nerve to try it the first time!!

Another Olympic athlete who has been open about the mental aspects of his routine is Caleb Dressel, a winner of five gold medals in the pool. He commented he had trouble sleeping and eating and had probably lost 10 pounds! Those are the exact things that happen to me when anxious or depressed. To hear a young guy in the prime condition of his life admit to the same symptoms was eye opening to me.

It sounds like dealing with the press has a lot to do with it; and also, the trolls. The trolls on the internet who think they know all about what it takes to be an elite athlete! There was sympathy expressed for Simone, but a lot of negative talk happened, too. I was relieved to see the big smile after winning the bronze on the balance beam today. And the lesson here is what she said after winning the same in Rio five years ago: it's a medal, for herself, and for her country.

And the reporters are right; there needs to be more emphasis on mental health; not just in the Olympics, but for we every day folks, too. I know I could have used a counselor many times in my life. Somehow, most of us muddle through and hopefully, come out stronger for the fight! Thankfully, there are no AP people watching, and filming, and critiquing. Now, I'm rooting for that volleyball team with THREE HUSKERS on it!

Benefits of late summer planting of alfalfa

By Jerry Volesky, Extension Educator

Do you have plans for a late summer planting of alfalfa? The time for getting this done is rapidly approaching.

Irrigated alfalfa planted in late summer establishes well. The same is true for dryland acres where moisture is available. Be sure to plant early enough, though, so alfalfa has six to eight weeks between emergence and a hard freeze to develop good cold tolerance. In north-west Nebraska or southern South Dakota, you probably need to plant by the second to third week of August, but only if you also have moisture present for seeds to germinate. Any delay is likely to cause poorer stands. In southeast Nebraska you can plant as late as Labor Day but earlier is better. In central Kansas, alfalfa can be planted as late as mid-September.

Proper seedbed preparation is crucial for late summer plantings. Good seed-to-soil contact and weed control are critical, both when seeding into tilled, prepared seedbeds or into wheat stubble. Conserve soil moisture whenever possible and put extra effort into getting a firm seedbed. Extra packing often gives faster and more uniform emergence.

Whenever seeding alfalfa in late summer, be especially wary of grasshoppers. They sometimes seem to come from nowhere, and they love to eat new alfalfa seedlings. Spray field margins with insecticides before planting if necessary.

One important caution — never plant into dry soil. Late summer plantings into dry soil may lie dormant for several weeks until it rains. Too little time then will remain for seedlings to develop good cold tolerance. Many failures occur because fall rains come too late or not at all.

With some help from Mother Nature, good hay is just a spring away.
