Wayne State secures National Science Foundation Grant for STEM students

Wayne State has received a National mer camp before their first year. Science Foundation (NSF) grant, Scholar-

$750,000 for a six-year period to strengthen and expand student-centered activities and infrastructure in STEM education. More than $540,000 of the funds have been earmarked for scholarships for students in biology, chemistry, and math degree programs who intend to pursue careers in research and discovery.

The project, titled Ne-

Success Through Scholarship and Support Services, targets students who are academically talented and financially needy (high school GPA above 3.0 and Pell eligible).

"In Nebraska, we are seeing growth in STEM career opportunities and this program will help us educate students to fill those roles," said Dr. Ron Loggins, Dean of the School of Science, Health, and Criminal Justice at Wayne State. "We are excited that these new young scientists will be working alongside faculty mentors and engaging in research beginning their first

Jane Kleeb with BOLD Nebraska shared information on what it would mean to landowners in Wayne county should a carbon pipeline run through the county.

Informational meeting held in regard to CO2 pipelines

By Clara Osten, clara@wayneherald.com

Approximately 50 landowners and concerned citizens attended a meeting last week at The Table in Wayne to learn more about a proposed carbon (CO2) pipeline.

The pipeline could cross portions of Wayne county and adjoining counties in northeast Nebraska. It would involve approximately 22 miles of Wayne county.

Jane Kleeb with BOLD Nebraska and Tom Genung with Nebrask Easement Action Team (N.E.A.T.)spoke to the group on past experiences with attempts to install pipelines in Nebraska. Kleeb told those in attendance at last week's meeting that while "I believe in climate change, I don't believe carbon pipelines are the answer."

She shared information on the dangers of pipelines and the impact should the CO2

"There are no set-back requirements in Nebraska and the pipeline can get close to neighbor's property. Also, the landowner assumes the liability should any leaks oc-

Kleeb also discussed several types of easements and noted that permanent is for a lifetime, limiting what the landowner can do with the property and exposing the landowner to a lifetime of risk.

Kleeb said BOLD Nebraska has stopped five pipelines so far in the state of Nebras-

Those in attendance at the meeting learned that pipelines often follow electric power lines, but there is no agency in the state reviewing the route and there are no set rules on the process moving forward. The topic of eminent domain was also addressed, especially when used by a private company, rather than a government entity.

"The pipeline companies say they plan to start building in 2023 or 2024, but they have to go through other states that do have regulations in place and this will take

One of those expressing concern about the proposed pipeline is Shelli L. Meyer, who grew up on a farm in Wayne county. She noted she is "protecting my fourth generation farm and my lifelong neighbors, which include my cousins."

Meyer now lives in Iowa and has done extensive research on CO2 pipelines and the methods used to secure land for these

She and representatives of N.E.A.T. handed out packets of information from Iowa and South Dakota and from an insurance company discussing property owners liability should a pipeline be built on their property.

In addition to the meeting held in Wayne, informational meetings were held in Columbus, Norfolk and Grand Island

the federal and state level, we did to work and encouraged to rely on government handouts well after an emergency is over. That is why Nebraska is not seeking the second round of the Emergency Rental Assistance Program (ERAP). We cannot justify asking for federal relief when we don't have an emergency.

Biden Administration launched ERAP in January 2021. Its intent was to help renters whose livelihoods had been impacted by the coronavirus pandemic. But ERAP's design was shoddy, and its distribution has been poorly executed. For example, the federal government misallocated the money it gave to states. Nebraska initially received $158 million for our nonurban areas, while only $42 million went to Lancaster County/Lincoln and Douglas County/Omaha. We knew early on this didn't match the reality that more than half of our renters live in our urban areas. To better aid Nebraskans in need, we worked to reallocate over half of the State's ERAP funds to our urban counties and cities-$85 million was voluntarily transferred to Omaha and Lincoln and their respective counties. Even after this adjustment, the State still has nearly $30 million of unused ERAP funds. This means that after more than a year, we have only expended about 40 percent of the program's dollars. The remainder is more than enough to meet the legitimate needs for assistance through the end of the year. In total, the federal government spent $25 billion on the first round of ERAP. Now, they've printed up an additional $21 billion for a second round of funding. The State of Nebraska is eligible to receive $120

Applying for emergency rental assistance remaining the least indebted state now is like applying for emergency disaster aid without a flood or tornado. That is not what we do.

'Emergency' in name only: The second round of the

It's wrong on principle, too. The Biden Administration has changed the rules and no longer requires proof—or even a claim—that need is tied to the coronavirus. That ERAP is a perfect example of the means this "emergency" aid isn't kind of blind spending from the fedtied to any emergency at all, not eral government that has ushered even in theory. And, unlike the first round of funding that expires at the end of 2022, the second round can our kids and grandkids will be the be used through 2025. That's three ones footing the bill. In Nebraska years of rent subsidies. ERAP is now no longer about addressing the impacts of coronavirus. Instead, it appears the Biden Administration wants to subsidize people's rent and make them reliant on the government for years to come.

Nebraska is not a welfare state. It's not who we are. But if we take these funds, it will be.

Some believe we should take the money simply because it's available. However, there's no such of funding, or any other matter, ended the State's emergency declathing as "free money." Somebody please email me at pete.ricketts@ ration for coronavirus nearly nine has to pay taxes to finance govern-

Our State isn't an island; our fate is connected to the financial health and well-being of our nation. The second round of in record inflation. And if we continue to pile onto our national debt that's not who we are.

Mild TBIs may affect the brain cells temporarily. Physical symptoms include headache, nausea, fatigue, dizziness or problems with speech. There may be sensory and behavioral symptoms as well. Severe TBI symptoms can appear within the first hours to days later. It can result in bruising, torn tissues that may lead to infections. bleeding, and other physical damage to the brain. These injuries can result in long-term complications or death. Those at most risk are children under four and adults over 60. Symptoms include profound confusion, unusual behavior, slurred speech, dilation of the pupils, weakness or numbness in the extremities, repeated vomiting, loss of consciousness, and seizures. Any or several of these symptoms may linger for a few weeks to a few months after a TBI. When a combination of these symptoms lasts for an extended period of time, this is generally referred to as persistent post-concussive symptoms. Some research suggests that repeated or severe TBI might increase the risk of degenerative brain diseases. A degenerative brain disorder can cause a gradual loss of brain functions, including Alzheimer's and Parkinson's disease. Dementia pugilistca, which is associated with repetitive blows to the head as in boxing can also cause symptoms of dementia and movement problems, resulting in a brain injury. ## Plan fishing trip using Game and Parks publications

Plan a fishing trip with the help of the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission publications.

Prepare to make your trip the best by reviewing Nebraska fishing regulations and researching locations in our 2022 Fishing Guide and our 2022 Fishing Forecast.

The fishing guide is a summary of regulations and orders and includes a section detailing the state's public fishing areas. The fishing forecast provides a look at where some of the best fishing, and maybe some of the biggest fish, may be found in Nebraska based on 2021 lake sampling. Both publications are online at OutdoorNebraska.org, and printed copies may be picked up wherever fishing permits are sold. Find additional planning tools, such as a fish stocking database, lake contour maps, and other fishing publications — or buy your annual fishing permit — at the same website.

Ice depths at the local Ike's Lake northeast of Wayne continue to be variable and potentially dangerous around the edges. Ice fishing is not advised for now.

Spring fishing tips from Nebraska Game and Parks Commission are listed below:

Fish for Cold-Water Fish. Yes, that means trout! Early spring is one of my favorite times for catching Nebraska trout, a very catchable cold-water fish," remarks Daryl Bauer, Outreach Program Manager and a Fisheries Biologist at Nebraska Game and Parks Commission. Whether it is one of our trout streams or a stocked pond or lake, these fish are hungry and usually easy fooled.

Fishing for stocked trout is a great way to introduce kids to fishing because simple and inexpensive equipment may be used. A basic light or medium action spinning or spin-cast rod and reel combo with a No. 6 or 8 hook baited with a couple brightly colored nibbles of Berkley's Trout Powerbait of Gulp Bait will work well. Add a small to medium-sized split shot about 1 ½ feet above the hook, and fish just up off the bottom. If need be, pack a small bobber and set it a couple of feet above the split shot. Worms, salmon eggs, small spinners, small spoons and artificial flies also can catch

Some are Spawning. Bauer says northern pike, walleye and yellow perch spawn not long after the ice is gone. "If you target those species now, look for them to be on or near their spawning habitat; shallows with flooded or aquatic vegetation for pike and perch, and rocky dam faces or points near dams for walleyes on most Nebraska reservoirs." He points out that the actual spawn can be a tough time to catch any fish because they have other things on their mind.

Target channel catfish. Channel catfish are not a cold- or cool-water fish, but Nebraska has some surprisingly good fishing for channel catfish right after ice-out on many lakes, reservoirs, pits and ponds and rivers, according to Bauer. Baitfish like gizzard shad and panfish such as bluegill may have perished under the ice during the winter.

Once open water is prevalent though, those prey fish killed under the ice during the winter are pushed by winds toward shorelines and readily available for channel catfish to consume. Bauer emphasizes looking for your channel cats feeding rampantly on the dead baitfish along those wind-blown shorelines, especially on a warm afternoon immediately following a few days of steadily increasing temperatures. Again, if you see dead baitfish on the shoreline, it is a sure sign that channel catfish are most likely nearby. Remember, the dead baitfish can be for bait. You might even try a worm or two.

Finding other species of game fish, think "warm."

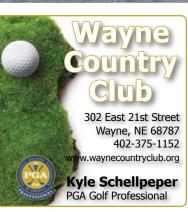

For all the other species of Nebraska game fish to catch in early spring, think "warm," stresses Bauer. "Any area where the water can warm a few degrees can be a key spot." He says to seek sheltered bays and coves with darker bottoms, and pay attention to southfacing shorelines and corners where the afternoon sun can warm the water. Look for cover (e.g. fallen trees, brush piles or beaver lodges) as well, in those protected areas. Any inflow can be productive, too. Do not overlook the sunny sides of docks or boat storage sheds. Small waters, by the way, warm quicker than larger bodies of water.

Fish slowly. Bauer recommends fishing slowly in early spring. "Generally," he says, "you want to fish slowly or drift-fish with your presentation because the water is relatively cold and the fish are not active yet." He continues: "Keep that ice-fishing attitude when it comes to fishing for ice-out bluegills, crappies, and largemouth bass and fish late in the day." It is important to not only fish slowly, but vertically to give the fish a chance to react to your bait, especially if they do not seem to be active. "I love neutrally-buoyant crankbaits for a variety of bass fishing situations in the colder waters of early spring," comments Bauer. With regard to catching crappies and even bluegills in the early part of the spring, Bauer says where allowed nothing is simpler and more effective than using a plain, old slip bobber, split shot weight, light wire hook, and a small, lively minnow. If you cannot use minnows, try a lighter-colored jig. "Dabble that in front of a crappie or bluegill most anytime and they will strike it.'

Keep moving! In the early part of the spring game fish can literally be at different places on different days even along the same shoreline. Just ask Daryl Bauer. He says a good tactic for any season, especially in the early spring, is to keep moving! An assertive, always-on-the-move approach, he adds, helps professional tournament bass fishermen be successful and helps those of us who enjoy sport fishing catch fish.

Be prepared for the wild shifts in weather. There is no doubt that we will go through several wild shifts in the weather in the coming weeks. Early spring is truly one of the toughest times of the year to fish. Nebraska's fisheries outreach program manager encourages planning your fishing trips around warming trends and stable weather patterns for better success. When a cold front pummels us or we experience a massive Nebraska weather swing, we have to take our lumps. Bauer reminds us that fish tend to move toward warmer water when the weather is nice. "But," he added, "Obviously expect them to drop back into deeper water when the weather turns cold once more and the winds

'Roots and Routes' is Senior Art exhibit at Wayne State College

Roots and Routes, featuring artwork by four Wayne State College seniors, opens Wednesday, March 23 with a 4:30 p.m. reception in the Nordstrand Visual Arts Gallery in Conn Library.

Artwork celebrates the foundation and personal growth of each artist. The exhibit is free and open to the public through April 13.

Employing printmaking, drawing, painting, sculpture, and ceramics skills, each artist details a unique perspective. With a shared foundation securely rooted in the WSC Department of Art and Design, their influences are distinctly different. # Art exhibit on display at Blue Cat Gallery & Studio Blue Cat Gallery & Studio is currently hosting an art exhibit featuring photographic works by artist Chad Petska, titled "Abandoned Nebraska & Other Works".

Petska reflects on his interactions with forgotten spaces and objects such as abandoned homes that still contain evidence of lives lived, as well as discarded, timeworn objects. He spends time familiarizing himself with the area and all that is left behind. He keeps an open eye for objects that are unusual in some way: weathered, broken, or out of place. Petska translates his experience of the environment into his photos to show sadness, isolation, peace, or beauty. The environments have their own life, their own aura. Many homes are empty containers

Trip brings back lots of memories

We have gone from 80 degrees last week to snow last night, and cold temps tonight. It's a bit too extreme, for sure, and my neighbor's crocuses were peaking out midweek. It makes it hard to decide how to dress and what clothes to take on an overnight trip to Kansas.

Yes, we tested the new car and drove it to Wichita on Saturday. I'm sure I haven't been there since Jon lived there in his first job out of college. Or, maybe it was a quick trip there when Sue applied for therapy school at Wichita State, I don't recall. Sally Donnelly worked at Lutheran Hospital back in the day; I'm actually not sure when she started there. But she was eventually a head nurse in OB, and we did a few shifts together. Anyway, Sally and her brood eventually moved to Hill City, Kansas, to work in a hospital there, but we always stayed in touch. She enjoyed the Mitford books so much, she borrowed them for a second time, and returned them by USPS.

And last Saturday, those kids honored Sally with a 90th birthday celebration. I really wanted to be there, and Sue and Kay made it possible. We took the new Escape (new to me) and drove south of on two lane paved roads much of the way, and had to stop twice for trains we thought would never end,

We saw old pictures, ate delicious wraps, and hugged and laughed and reminisced. I met Esther, who owned a farm near Hill City, so those kids had another place to tear around in, and ate chocolate cake with butter cream frosting. And we marveled at how our kids have all grown up and become adults, and we lied to each other about how great we all looked, and wondered where all the years have gone. And then, we found a barbecue place, and ate some more, and slept, and went on to Kansas City, where we delivered birthday presents to Mac and Laney. But that's another sto-Lincoln through Beatrice. # Alfalfa growth, spring pasture discussed

Fall Dormancy In Alfalfa By Ben Beckman

The time for spring planting alfalfa is just around the corner and two traits often confused are fall dormancy and winter survival. Both are critical to a long lasting and productive stand. Today, let's look at fall dormancy.

Fall dormancy is a measure of an alfalfa plant's ability to regrow in the fall after harvest and spring following winter. It is scored on a scale ranging from 1 to 11 with 1 being most dormant and 11 the least. Higher dormancy means a harvested plant will focus its resources in the fall more on building reserves to survive the winter and less on new growth.

This tendency toward slower regrowth manifests throughout the year, with less dormant varieties typically recovering faster in the spring and producing overall higher yields. Another role dormancy plays is keeping plants from starting growth during the random warm-ups in the fall and winter months. Plants that break bud during these periods are subject to winterkill.

Finally, fall dormancy can impact the harvest timetable. Lower dormancy ratings means a plant regrows slower. This translates into more time to remove forage from the field before "windrow disease" and field traffic become a concern.

In the past, fall dormancy traits were linked with winter survival. With new varieties, this isn't always the case, so fall dormancy needs to be evaluated on its own.

Variety selection depends upon your management, production goals, and ability for a stand to very well. So, it's important to start have regular issues with stand winterkill, a lower rated variety with improved dormancy. In Nebraska, we recommend dormancy ratings 1 through 5.

Oats And Italian Ryegrass For Pasture By Jerry Volesky

Good quality pasture might be in short supply this spring. If you need some spring pasture, plant oats or a mix of oats and Italian ryegrass.

Spring-planted oats grow during spring when we are likely to receive rain and when moisture is used efficiently to produce forage. Oats can be grazed earlier than anything else you plant this spring. Once it gets five or six inches tall, which is usually about the third week of May, it quickly can shoot up to a foot tall in oats get that tall it may not stool out, tiller, and regrow after grazing

For straight oats, drill at least two bushels per acre in late March to early April. With good moisture and 40 to 60 pounds of nitrogen, oats can provide a couple months of grazing for 1 or 2 cows per acre. For extended grazing, drill oats plus almost no time. Unfortunately, once around 15 to 20 pounds of Italian

NDA advises poultry owners to watch for Avian Influenza

The Nebraska Department of Agriculture (NDA) is advising poultry owners to protect their flocks against avian influenza by closely monitoring their birds for signs of the disease and by maintaining strict biosecurity practices.

Highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI) is very contagious and can cause severe illness and/or sudden death in domestic birds. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has confirmed HPAI in commercial and/or backyard flocks in Connecticut, Delaware, Iowa, Indiana, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, New York

To date, the virus has not been found in Nebraska.

"While we have not seen HPAI in Nebraska since 2015, protecting the health of poultry in the state is a top priority," said State Veterinarian Dr. Roger Dudley. "It's important for poultry owners to know about this disease, take the necessary steps to help prevent its spread, and protect Nebraska's poultry industry."

As part of existing avian influenza response plans, NDA is working alongside federal and state partners to monitor for the disease in commercial poultry operations, backyard poultry flocks, live bird markets and in migratory wild bird populations.

Symptoms of HPAI in poultry include: a decrease in water consumption; lack of energy and appetite; decreased egg production or soft-shelled, misshapen eggs; nasal discharge, coughing, sneezing; incoordination; and diarrhea. HPAI can also cause sudden death in birds even if they aren't showing any other symptoms. HPAI can survive for weeks in contaminated environments.

Dudley is asking Nebraska poultry producers, large and small, to monitor their flocks for symptoms of HPAI, review and maintain their biosecurity activities, and notify NDA immediately if they suspect any problems. Bird owners should report unusual bird deaths or sick birds to NDA at 800-831-0550 or 402-471-2351, or through USDA at 866-536-7593.

Enhanced biosecurity helps prevent the introduction and spread of viruses and diseases including HPAI. NDA and USDA have re-

Who benefits the most from income tax rate cuts?

Statehouse Correspondent Nebraska Press Association

It has been said "the rich get richer, and the poor get poorer."

That aphorism (a pithy observation that contains a general truth) is attributed to British poet and author Percy Bysshe Shelley in than one iteration during the debate on a major income tax cut are married filing jointly. bill (LB939) currently before lawmakers

The measure, introduced by Elkhorn Sen. Lou Ann Linehan, would cut Nebraska's top individual income tax rate in three steps, from the current 6.84 percent to 5.84 percent by tax year 2025.

The rate applies to taxable income 1840. It has been heard in more of $29,000 and over for individuals and $58,000 and over for those who

She said it would help attract workers and businesses and provide a tax cut to middle class Nebraskans at a time when the state is collecting hundreds of millions of dollars more in revenue than is necessary to fund its operations. "We need to send it back to the people," she said. The state Department of Revenue estimates the bill would reduce general fund revenue by $61.7 million in fiscal year 2022-23 and $176.5 million in FY2023-24. By FY2026-27, the reduction would grow to $363.4 million.

Speaker of the Legislature Mike Hilgers of Lincoln said the tax cut would give middle-class families more disposable income that they could use to save for a house or invest in a business. Albion Sen. Tom Briese said Nebraska's top individual income tax rate is higher than the top rate in all neighboring states except one.

Sen. Megan Hunt of Omaha opposed the bill. She said millionaires and billionaires would benefit most from cutting the top individual income tax rate. "If this was really a tax cut for middle-income earners ... then we would be supporting a bill to create additional income tax brackets, not cut rates for top earners," she said. Omaha Sen. Machaela

Cavanaugh offered an amendment to remove the corporate income tax provisions from the proposal and change individual income tax brackets and rates to provide a larger tax cut for individuals with a taxable income of less than $200,000. A new top bracket, with a rate of 8.01 percent, would apply to families with a taxable income of more than $1 million. The amendment failed.

Hunt said a state's minimum wage, types of available jobs and housing and childcare costs — not its tax rates — are what young families and professionals consider when deciding whether to move.

Lincoln Sen. Patty Pansing Brooks suggested amending the bill on the second round of debate to increase the state's earned income tax credit, which would benefit lowincome, working Nebraskans.

www.paulfellcartoons.com

She said it would be best to adjust the numbers after the Nebraska Economic Forecasting Advisory Board made updated projections.

Those projections subsequently came in with increases across all tax receipts for the current fiscal year and FY2022-23. The board projected a $160 million increase in individual income tax receipts in FY2021-22 and a $200 million increase in individual income tax receipts in FY2022-23.

Total projected revenue receipts for FY2021-22 were raised to $5.72 billion, an increase of $370 million. Projected total revenue receipts for FY2022-23 were set at $5.96 billion, an increase of $405 million.

The OpenSky Policy Institute

warned lawmakers and state officials to be cautious with their largesse. While the forecast provides a "rosy state revenue picture, we also know we are in unprecedented times," said Executive Director Rebecca Firestone.

CUT SCAM

"Our revenues are being impacted by a range of factors beyond the control of the Legislature – such as a massive influx of federal relief dollars, substantial inflation, and workforce shortages. We therefore urge caution about enacting ongoing tax or spending measures as they will force tough choices in the future when revenues fail to keep up with state needs," she said.

After lengthy debate over several days, Linehan filed a motion to Nebraska government and politics invoke cloture, which ends debate since 1979. He has been a regisand forces a vote on the bill and tered Independent for more than any pending amendments. The

I agree with Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha who said the bill provides the most benefit to people who need it the least. These are the people who "already are ahead."

Dear Editor,

A group of concerned citizens encourages the citizens of Wayne to contact your City Council members to advise them to vote NO on ordinance 2022-5, and to recommend that the City of Wayne works with local entities (government, funding/lending institutions. businesses, developers/contractors, property owners, landlords, Wayne State College, Wayne Community Schools, etc.) to address and solve the current and future housing needs of Wayne, Nebraska. Background:

The City of Wayne is about to sell 7.94 acres to an out of state developer for $1.00. This property, Lot 3 Southeast addition, is located south of 4th and Jaxon Streets (the former community garden and upper soccer field property). The developer, R. Perry Construction has proposed to build 3-story apartment buildings for a total of 144 units. The purchase agreement is dependent on Tax Increment Funding, which gives the developer 15 years of property tax relief valued at $4,000,000. The proposed monthly rent for these apartments will be 1-bedroom $850, 2-bedrooms $1150, and 3-bedrooms $1275.

The R. Perry proposal exceeds the future housing needs for the City of Wayne. This proposal is for a large luxury apartment complex (6 buildings, 144 units). The Wayne, Nebraska Community Housing Study, approved by the Wayne City Council on March 1, 2022 states: The greatest challenge for the City of Wayne, during the next 5 years, will be to develop housing units for workforce persons and families, elderly households, off-campus students, and special populations. Overall, Wayne should, at minimum, develop up to 200 new housing units; 72 owner and 128 rental units, by 2027. The Community Housing Study projects a need for 56 rental units in this luxury price range in the next 5 years, and calls for a variety of units including single family dwellings, duplexes, triplexes, townhomes, and apart-

Please advise your Wayne City Council members to vote NO on ordinance 2022-5 and to work with local entities to meet Wayne's current and future housing needs at all price points for persons and households of all income levels. The contact information for City Council members can be found at: https://www.cityofwayne.org/121/ City-Council. The next City Council meeting is Tuesday, March 15 at 5:30 pm - Council Chambers located on the 3rd floor of City Hall, 306 Pearl Street. Show your concern for this project by contacting your City Council member and by attending this meeting.

Respectfully submitted, B. J. Woehler, President Wayne Rental Association

Legislative Update Senator discusses vaccine mandates

Thirty-six days into this 60 day Session, Tuesday we will begin twelve-hour days of floor debate with a focus on some of the most important bills of the session. Eight days of budget debates will be beginning very soon as well. I am hoping to see some significant tax relief legislation become law for the benefit of all Nebraskans.

Revenue Forecast Increase

Nebraska Economic Forecasting Advisory Board voted to increase revenue projections during a Feb. 28 meeting at the Capitol. The board provides an advisory forecast of general fund receipts used by the Legislature to craft the state's budget. Revenue projections for the current fiscal year and FY2022-23 were raised based on anticipated increases across all tax receipt categories, including a projected $160 million increase in individual income tax receipts in FY2021-22 and a $200 million increase in individual income tax receipts in FY2022-23. Total projected revenue receipts for FY2021-22 were raised to $5.72 billion, an increase of $370 million. Projected total revenue receipts for FY2022-23 were set at $5.96 billion, an increase of $405 million. The increased forecast can be very encouraging to all of us. Nebraska can possibly deliver a variety of tax relief that will return excess revenue back to the people with income tax relief and property tax relief. Education Recovery Act This week I introduced LB1240 which is part of the Governor's American Rescue Plan Act of 2021. recommendation includes $30 million in fiscal year 2021-22 and an additional $30 million in fiscal year 2022-23 for a threeyear temporary program to pro-Family-Directed Education Recovery Accounts for low-income children and families. This threeyear program will provide direct assistance to children in K-12 for the 2022-2025 school years. For each school year, up to $20 million will be allocated to parents for educational expenses to address learning loss caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. The overarching purpose of these accounts is to put students most impacted by the pandemic back on the right path and avoid the long-term negative impacts that occur with significant learning losses. The pandemic's impact on education has far-reaching negative ramifications. According to a July 21, 2021 report, students lost on average five months of math and four months of reading, which will lead to lower lifetime income of at least $49,000 and reduced annual economic growth of at least $128 billion. Deeply concerning is the fact that the students most affected by the crisis were already behind their peers before the pandemic. This temporary program will give parents resources to close these gaps, and it is available to eligible students whether they're in a public, private, or home school. This temporary recovery bill is for Nebraska's most vulnerable learners. Eligibility for Nebraska children will be determined if a child is eligible for the federal free lunch program, and attends grades K-12 in a public, non-public, or exempt school. A child can receive up to $2,000 of benefit per school year for educational services that include but are not limited to; private school tuition, tutoring, digital learning subscriptions, exempt school curriculum, and other K-12

Vaccine Mandates Governor Pete Ricketts signed

LB 906e into law. LB 906e allows Nebraskans to claim medical or religious exemption from coronavirus vaccination requirements in most workplaces. The bill has an emergency clause and took effect at 12:01 AM on March 1, 2022. LB 906, introduced by Senator Ben Hansen, passed on a vote of thirty-seven yes, five no, five present not voting and two senators excused. The law requires the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) to develop a vaccine exemption form for Nebraska citizens who are employees of a private company. The new law allows employees to claim an exemption based on his or her strong moral, ethical, or philosophical beliefs or convictions. If the employer requires employees to be vaccinated, the employer must also allow for an employee to receive an exemption to vaccination. The employer may also require the employee to be periodically tested and wear or use personal protective equipment, at the employers expense. This is the Nebraska answer to what is a much larger national debate about the President's wrong-headed vaccine mandates. This federal onesize-fits-all approach has taken a sledgehammer to the liberty of Nebraskans to make an intensely personal decision according to their own convictions. I am very glad Senator Hansen got this bill passed. A lot of Nebraskans can now breathe a little easier knowing their individual liberty has been defended. And for those who need one, an exemption to manda-

ing blood thinners like aspirin or warfarin, it may take longer for the bleeding to stop or clot.

The next step after the blood starts to clot is forming a scab. This happens when blood vessels around the wound narrow and platelets in the blood clump together to create the scab. A protein called fibrin helps hold the clot in place. After someone has had a stroke or heart attack caused by a clot, they may be placed on medications to make the platelets more slippery and less likely to clump together. Medications like Plavix and Aggrenox make platelets slide past each other rather than clumping to make a clot which can delay the scabbing

At this point, the body cleans the wound. Blood vessels will dilate and increase blood flow to the area. White blood cells called macrophages arrive on the scene to clear out infection and release chemicals called growth factors and cytokines that help tell the body to form new skin cells. If the infection is not cleared by the body, the wound will not heal properly.

The body also creates new blood cells to bring in nutrients and supplies to help heal the wound. Conditions like diabetes, atheroand the skin may look slightly pink and stretched. After about three months the wound should be about 80 percent healed. It can take up to two years for the scar to remodel

Yes, it takes time to heal all wounds, but if you have concerns don't bide your time. Talk to your doctor to learn about options that can assist you through the healing process. We want to help your wound heal, all in good time.

Nicotine causes blood vessels to narrow and reduces the number of macrophages and fibrin in circulation. Carbon monoxide in cigarette smoke decreases the oxygen transport needed to help repair and rebuild the skin cells. The final step of wound healing is strengthening or maturation. At this stage the wound looks closed

As we gather, we become the Church

Why do we gather each week for a worship service? Some would say because it's tradition, others would say because it is required of us as followers of Christ.

Lately, in my own life, the Lord has been gracious to teach me about the purpose of our Sunday morning (or otherwise) services. We often say that we are "going to church" when the reality is that we are going to be with the church and a part of the church.

Theologian Alexander Schmemann says that church begins when Christians sacrificially leave their homes to head to their regular service. In their going, they are initiating the transformation that is about to happen. As each person walks in the doors, no matter how many are gathered, they become transformed into the Church of God.

Schmemann says, "...now they have been called to 'come together in one place,' to bring their lives, their very 'world' with them and to be more than what they were: a new community with a new life." God's very presence is among the gathering of Christ followers, and he is actively doing something in our midst, whether we acknowledge it or not.

The meaning of the word "church" is an assembly or gathering of people for a similar purpose. While it is true that one can worship - and arguably should – on their own in an intimate one-on-one fashion with God, it is also God's desire and design that his children should come together to worship as Christ's body. It's in this corporate worship that we experience God's presence in a way that calls us to higher living and righteousness. We were never meant to do life alone (Genesis 1) and that doesn't change, even in times of severe persecution (Hebrews 10:25).

St. Paul's Ladies Aid conducts March meeting

St. Paul's Ladies Aid and LWML met on March 2 with seven members, one guest and Pastor Blanken

President Claire Brogren opened the meeting with everyone reciting the LWML pledge.

Pastor Blanken began the afternoon with the group singing several Lenten Hymns. The secretary and treasurer's reports were given. Mites were collected. The books for 2021 were audit and approved.

The Ladies Aid discussed on what Saturday they would like to have Ladies Aid on was tabled until later but the time will remain the same starting at 1:30 p.m. Also discussed on how long we should keep old secretary and treasurer's breathe and allow ourselves to be vulnerable with God and with our trusted co-laborers in Christ.

Of course, this is idealistic and totally uncomfortable. But if we took the challenge, the result would be deeper worship of our Creator and refreshment for our souls. Sunday service could become a lifeline for us weary travelers, and a literal sanctuary from the troubles of the fallen world. If we would approach the church assembly as a place to not only receive from fellow believers and from God, but give to them as well, we would all walk out after the service with our spirits lifted, knowing that we have this awesome privilege as brothers and sisters by the Spirit.

There is something supernatural that happens when we gather together to worship the one true God, Yahweh. This short blurb can't even come close to describing it, and my finite mind can't begin to truly understand it. But my prayer for you, and for the church as the bride of Christ, is that we would experience it in spirit and truth. And that in our acknowledgement of the presence of God and the powerful way he works in the gathered church, we might be transformed in our minds and hearts for his good purposes.

To quote Schmemann once more, "The purpose of this 'coming together' is not simply to add a religious dimension to the natural community...the purpose is to fulfill the Church and that means to make present the One in whom all things are at their end and all things are at their beginning."
