Leading Locally program helps create leaders in rural communities

"To lead is to seek out different viewpoints," said Lexi Curnyn of Wayne.

"To lead is to be an example," said Christine Haney of Schuyler.

"To lead is to encourage one another to be their best self," said John Mullen of Wayne.

"To lead is to be that resourceful person that anyone can come to," said Adi Perez of

Everyone has different views on what it means to lead. What's important, however, is that anyone, in any community, can be Organized by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Rural Prosperity Nebraska team, Leading Locally is a communitydriven program that works with residents to create an outline that matches their goals on leadership development. A series of workshops, presentations and service opportunities revolving around those goals helps create stronger, more capable, more proactive leaders in rural Nebraska communities. This month, Schuyler concludes its second consecutive year, and Wayne its

"It opened my mind to think not so much about me, but the community of Wayne and how we can just be better," said Mullen, who graduated from the program in 2021.

The program isn't only for current leaders, it's for everyone, said Extension Educator Amanda Kowalewski, co-head of Leadership Wayne. "It's refreshing to see a lot of younger people invest back into their community," she said. "Younger in terms of age, but also people who have just moved in.'

That doesn't mean, however, that Leading Locally focuses on bringing in "new blood" to fix communities. The program is about self-selected improvement.

"It starts out asking 'What's been working?' and 'What's behind that success?" said Milan Wall, co-director of the Heartland Center for Leadership Development he presented information on enrollment and contact for Leadership Schuyler. "The transformed into opportunities."

Throughout the nine-month program, this reflective process, known as appreciative inquiry, is augmented as residents participate in networking presentations from economic development officials, conflict resolution workshops with representatives from local colleges, Gallup strengths development activities with extension educators and even visits to the state capitol to meet with area legislators, to name a few of the experiences. All that to help participants discover what type of leaders they can and want to be.

"Taking that time to step back and evaluate myself and my own leadership strengths and weaknesses, I think that that made me more aware of myself and the way that I do things," said Taylor Gardner, a 2021 Wayne graduate. "I can deal better with some situations. I see some problems that before I didn't see," said Alberto Chavez from Schuyler. "Now I can be more respectful of all the things happening around, not only seeing one part of the picture. Now I can see the full pic-

As program participants become more cognizant of their strengths and positive attributes, the presentations and workshops they engage in help steer that awareness outward to their communities, focusing on how they can apply the lessons and newfound skills to improve their neighborhoods and local businesses, especially through diversity and inclusion.

"The more people you can get involved, the more backgrounds you can draw from, the more viewpoints you can get," said Nolan Samek of Schuyler. "It's going to benefit these small towns to get more people involved and more people out in the community.' Even with the focus on improving neighborhoods, cultivating an active main street and strengthening community culture what individuals take away from the experience is unique and personal. That is one of the major tenets of the program, Kowalewski said, "thinking about your own leadership philosophy, how you want to define your leadership involvement within the community. It's not going to be the same for everyone."

But the program itself is for everyone. Participants re-engage their communities and are better able to make a difference and usher in the next generation of leaders. What they've learned throughout the part of who they are.

"It's not like they just learn some stuff about leadership and turn it on only if they're playing a community leadership role," Wall said. "It becomes a part of how they deal with their world."

Leadership Wayne is holding graduation from 1 to 8 p.m. Thursday, April 14 at the Beaumont, north of Wayne. The day will include exercises reflecting on the previous year, a social hour, dinner and presentations from the graduates.

Power Drive season continues

The Wayne High School Power Drive team competed at their second event of the 2022 season on a 0.42 mile track on UNL's Tractor Test Laboratory.

The Blue Devils competed with two vehicles on Saturday — Advanced class car A22 and Exhibition class car E39 to see how far they could travel in 60 minutes.

Car E39, driven by Matthew Kufner-Rodriguez, spent the first half of the rally battling for second

During the scheduled pit stop the left tire was changed to prevent a blowout and keep the E39 in the race. Unfortunately, this put the E39 2 laps down on the leader with 22 minutes to go in the rally. With the time remaining the E39 clocked some of the fastest laps of the day and gained ground, finishing in third place with 70 laps, just one lap behind the leader.

Wayne will compete next at Motorsports Park Hastings, which is a one mile road course in Hastings on Saturday, April 23.

Wayne will also be hosting the 2022 EVERON Power Drive State Championships on Saturday, April 30, at 1100 East 10th Street (First National Bank Card

It not only helps the financial burden, but it also provides encouragement and confidence in that student so they can keep working hard and complete their education.

Rotary District Governor Carol Horner (right) presented several awards to the Wayne Rotary Club. Accepting the awards was President William Engebretsen.

District Governor visits Rotary Club

Rotary District Governor Carol Horner was a guest at the April 6 Wayne Rotary Club meeting.

Horner presented awards the club had earned during the 2020-21 Rotary year that were handed out during the last district conference but there were no club members in attendance to receive them at that time.

These include: Appreciation of Participation in the End Polio Now project;

A joint award for $100+ giving per member and 100% participation of members in giving (includes Happy Dollars);

Number one in per capita giving to the Rotary Foundation in the 5650

Horner also discussed Rotary's participation in supporting Ukrainians in their struggle with Russia.

In March Rotary partnered with the Ukrainian Medical Association In North America and airlifted 150 tons of medical supplies to Poland that would secretly be sent to Ukraine.

District Governor elect, Barbara Bartle, is now in Poland. She and others have been looking for medical supplies (overstocks, outdated, unused) from district hospitals, fire departments, medical supply houses, health department offices and clinics.

Horner explained the situation in Poland as the country accepts Ukraine refugees into the country, including the need for additional schools to handle the number of children who have arrived in the country.

Letter to the Editor

Not in favor of selling land

Dear Citizens of Wayne,

I, again, want to urge you to sign the remonstrance petition to delay for one year the City of Wayne selling the soccer fields and former community garden to an out-of-state developer, R. Perry Construction.

Yes, there is a need for more housing in Wayne, but the City should be working with local entities (government, funding/lending institutions, businesses, developers/contractors, property owners, landlords, Wayne State College, Wayne Community Schools, etc.) to address and solve the housing needs of Wayne, Nebraska.

In 1961, in an unfriendly move, our City used its power of condemnation and eminent domain to take over 80 acres of land from Herbert and Bessie Perry to build a municipal sewage disposal plant. The sov-

This is NOT a move against Wayne growing and I am the first to admit we need more housing. Multiple local people have been working with the City for years to keep things moving to meet the housing needs of Wayne. We have asked the City to work with locals first in a fair and transparent way, and although the City Council admits that the R. Rediscover America during National Library Week

Free countries need free libraries. Americans depend on libraries to learn to read, to go online, to research vital health facts, to find a job, to understand world events, to explore business opportunities, to seek inspiration and to find food for the soul.

This year the Wayne Public Library, Wayne Community School libraries, and the American Library Association celebrate the vital role our libraries play in our democracy.

National Library Week, April 14-20, marks the kickoff of Rediscover America@yourlibrary™ —a nationwide initiative to focus on our national heritage and remind decisionmakers that libraries and librarians are needed now—more than ever.

One of the things librarians have discovered in the aftermath of Sept. 11, is that many people are taking a fresh interest in what it means to be an American, especially in today's global society. Increasingly, libraries are being called upon to do what they do bestto serve as community resource centers and provide open access to Every library—whether school, public or college—has something unique to offer that ties its community to the very concept of a free people in a free land.

Rediscover America@yourlibraryTM is the newest phase of The Campaign for America's Libraries, a five-year public education campaign to speak loudly and clearly about the value of libraries and librarians in the 21st century. The campaign launched last year in Washington, D.C., with the help of First Lady Laura Bush.

Tha campaign emerged from research that shows while libraries are popular and rooted in nearly every community—including schools, campuses and businesses across the country—they are often not highly visible. Visit your local libraries to find out about special activities offered during National Library Week!

CITY NOTICE

The Wayne Public Works Department wants to remind all residents that blowing lawn mower clippings into the street is prohibited and is a violation of City Code, Section 78-237. These grass clippings and other such debris left on the street will travel to the storm sewer inlet and can block them. The blocking of the inlets can cause local flooding from storm water accumulation.

Because the water from the storm sewers runs into Logan Creek, the grass clippings can negatively affect the creek with the chemical content in the grass from lawns that have been fertilized and treated

When mowing, please mow the first few rounds so that the grass blows in towards the lawn and when finished, sweep up the grass that has been thrown into the street.

We thank you for your cooperation during this mowing season.

Finding an eating spot challenging

I'm not liking the forecast for today and tomorrow; the promise of some rain will bring with it wind and tornadoes!! We have been very fortunate in that category this year.

My heart goes out to the folks in Gosper and Furnas counties; the loss of eight homes, several outbuildings, and livestock will be significant. And losing a fire chief in an awful accident compounds things. As I've said before, appreciate the volunteer fire departments! This fire has involved some forty or fifty units all weekend.

Since Jaxson missed out on the Friday evening suppers when his siblings and cousins were at the U, we have been involving him in some Sunday evening meals. Last weekend, I decided we needed to take him to Round the Bend. Round the Bend started in a hole in the wall cafe in South Bend that had good steaks. They also have a reputation things happens every Father's Day weekend, and it has become so well known, the owners bought a lot high on a hill overlooking South Bend several years ago and built a new, improved restaurant, complete with a huge party room to the back. It's now a destination place to get good steaks, prime rib and the

They are not open on Sunday, which I personally approve of, so we decided to go on Saturday eve. Leaving here early, in order to arrive there early, and beat the rush!

Ha! We did not factor in the Spring Game!!

It seems hundreds of the viewers had the same idea. When we turned east on the park highway, we could see lots of cars. As we got closer, we could also see lots of folks in line outside. LOTS of folks! There apparently was a wedding in the party and a half! Well, shoot, we thought, we will just go to Parker's, on highway six west of Ashland. We had no problem finding a parking place but once inside, we saw LOTS of folks waiting here, also.

Since there was a couch, I took a seat and we opted to wait. When we were finally seated, we could see many empty booths. The problem? Not enough wait staff. On a sign announcing hiring needs, it said waiters could make $100 to $300 a night! Oh, and they also need cooks..And for that, $15 an hour. I'm sorry, but I would need a lot more than that to cook in that atmosphere.

Anyway, we got plenty to eat, it was very tasty, our waitress was a student nurse, and we told Jaxson it was time to get him off the interstate so he could see what else is between Lincoln and Omaha.

Have a blessed Easter!

Another soybean pest to watch for

By Tom Hunt,

UN-L Professor of Entomology

It seems like every year there is a new or emerging insect pest in northeast Nebraska. This year that insect is the soybean stem borer, sometimes called the Dectes stem borer. In the past, this insect has not been of concern for northeast Nebraska farmers, but during the last few years it has reached economically damaging levels in a few fields as far north as Knox County. The soybean stem borer is a native species that is widely distributed across North America east of the Rocky Mountains. Adults are elongate, gray beetles with antennae longer than the body, and about 1/4 to 1/2 inches long. The larvae are found in soybean stems and are legless, creamy white with a strongly segmented body, enlarged near the head and gradually tapering toward the rear, with brown heads, and about 1/2 to 5/8 inches long when mature. Its main hosts are cultivated sunflower, soybean, giant ragweed, and cocklebur.

In mid-summer the females lay eggs in the upper soybean leaf petioles and the larvae gradually borer into and up and down the stem. It is not the "boring" that is really the problem, but the girdling of the stem base late in the season. If enough of the plants are infested, a strong wind causes the stems to break about 2 to 4 inches from the ground, so plants fall over (lodge) and are not harvestable.

In the past this insect only reached pest levels in soybean fields south of Nebraska, but over the last 20 years it has gradually reached climate change, changes in agronomic practices, or some other combination of factors, but whatever the reason, we now must watch for it in northeast Nebraska. The first indication you may have soybean stem borer in your soybean field is leaf flagging, which is a single wilting or brown leaf on an otherwise healthy plant. This is caused the leaf petiole and into the main Unfortunately, there are few consistently effective management options for soybean stem borer. Adults emerge and lay eggs over a long period, so it is hard to target a good time to treat them with insecticides. Larvae are in the stem, so it is hard to reach them with insecticides. However, there are several cultural practices can help reduce

Weed control to reduce alternate hosts, such as ragweed and cocklebur, can help reduce soybean stem borer. Burying borer-infested stub-

Adult soybean stem borers are not strong fliers, so crop rotation may reduce damage in areas where soybean acreage is limited. Early planted, short-season soybean varieties are more likely to suffer harvest loss from lodging, so longer season varieties that mature later may allow more time to harvest before lodging occurs. If by the young larvae boring through one has a history of injury, or observes injury symptoms this year, they should carefully monitor these fields August through September. If extensive stalk tunneling occurs, the fields are at risk for lodging and should be targeted to harvest first to minimize harvest loss due to

The soybean stem borer is still at low levels in most of northeast Nebraska, but bears watching. Additional information on scouting and management for soybean stem borer can be found in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Crop-Watch Newsletter at https://cropwatch.unl.edu/.

tunities for career exploration give 4-Hers a broader exposure to the working world they will enter. It helps them "connect the dots" between school and career in ways that keep them motivated to graduate with the skills they will need for

UNL Extension

Career exploration experiences can improve academic performance. They increase the likelihood that members complete high school and pursue post-secondary education.

Career exploration opportunities improve attitudes of youth about their career possibilities, motivating them to persevere. Career exploration improves members' knowledge of career options, encouraging them to develop and work toward goals during the critical years when they are also beginning to venture beyond their families.

With understanding the working world, youth can envision how they successfully fit in. Knowing the preparation they need for specific careers, members set realistic goals and pursue them. Students involved in career exploration plan their high school courses carefully to gain the skills they will need. Members participating in career exploration as middle-schoolers enroll in higher level math courses in high school and have higher self-esteem.

For additional resources and information 4-H and career exploration contact vour local Nebraska Extension Office or go online to 4h.unl.edu

Dealing with anything from Acne to Zika

I enjoy visiting with my colleagues who are medical specialists. We dive in and explore the depths of a particular condition.

However, there is something to say about the breadth of knowledge that a family medicine physician is expected to have. Your family doctor can run through the alphabet of conditions from acne to the zika A 2004 study in the Annals of

The Prairie Doc By Jill Kruse, D.O.

Family Medicine found that a family medicine physician managed an average of 3.05 problems per clinic visit. For patients over 65 years of age, that number went up to 3.88 problems and patients with diabetes had an average of 4.60 problems addressed at each visit. A specialist physician will generally focus on one problem at each visit.

However, patients are not made up of individual problems. The body functions as a unit and issues in one area can affect another unrelated organ system. We know that chronic pain can lead to depression and vice versa. Stooped posture due to compression fractures from osteoporosis can lead to lung issues as the ribs cannot open up as fully as they normally do. We continue to learn more on how the micro biome of the bacteria in the body affects things from a person's weight to immune system function. This is why it is so important to have a primary care physician and to make sure they have access to your complete medical history. With a comprehensive view of your records, symptoms that might otherwise seem unrelated can be assessed and may assist with diagnosis. Talk to your doctor to determine if all your medical information and testing results are consolidated into one record, especially if you have doctors who work in different health care systems.

The primary care physician also serves as a guide between the patient and the specialist, offering valuable medical detail to the specialist and providing clarification to the patient.

Recently I had a patient who timidly started their question with the preface, "I'm not sure if I should ask you this, but...." I quickly reassured them that in primary care, any question is fair game. If it is something that I can answer, I will. If I do not have the answer, I can do some research, consult with a colleague, or refer you on to someone who does have that answer for you. So, no matter your condition from acne and amblyopia to zika virus and zoster, your family doctor should have you covered. Go ahead, ask anything from A to Z!

Jesus gave his life so we might live

This past Sunday we had Youth Sunday at our church, and three of our high school students delivered the message and one of them talked about how hard it has been for him as a Senior this year to have all the "lasts" of a Senior year.

He spoke of how at the end of the football season he cried after the last game, and how that might have seemed weird to people in the stands. He then went on to explain that the reason it hit him so hard is because he was so invested. Unlike the people in the stands, he had poured countless hours, and effort, and sweat and tears into this that others hadn't. It was so hard, because he had invested so much, it cost him so much, and to see it be over wrecked him.

He was preaching on Jesus standing over the city, and weeping over the people, and how that might have seemed weird to some of us that it would affect him so deeply, but maybe that's because we don't have the same investment in people who don't know Jesus, that Jesus did. Maybe we aren't "in the game" with Jesus so it doesn't make sense

This week we will remember, and celebrate the death, and resurrection of Jesus as we celebrate Easter. We will be reminded of the level of investment that Jesus has in all of us. Jesus gave everything whom men hide their faces[f] he He had, His life, so that you and I was despised, and we esteemed him might live. My hope this week is to not. simply remind all of us of what it cost Jesus so we could have life and and carried our sorrows; yet we eshopefully through that to remind us teemed him stricken, smitten by and maybe convict us (as I was this Sunday) of our need to be invested in others, so that they might know Jesus as well.

I can think of no better way to do that this week then to simply have us read Isaiah 53

"For he grew up before him like a young plant, and like a root out ery one—to his own way; and with the transgressors; yet he bore of dry ground; he had no form or the Lord has laid on him the iniqmajesty that we should look at him, uity of us all. and no beauty that we should desire

And his disciples went forth, and came into the city, and found as he had said unto them: and they made ready the passover. And in the evening he cometh with the twelve. And as they sat and did eat, Jesus said, Verily I say unto you, One of you which eateth with me shall betray me. - Mark 14:16-18

And as they did eat, Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it, and gave to them, and said, Take, eat: this is my body. And he took the cup, and when he had given thanks, he gave it to them: and they all drank of it. And he said unto them, This is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many. Verily I say unto you, I will drink no more of the fruit of the vine, until that day that I drink it new in the kingdom of God. - Mark 14:22-25

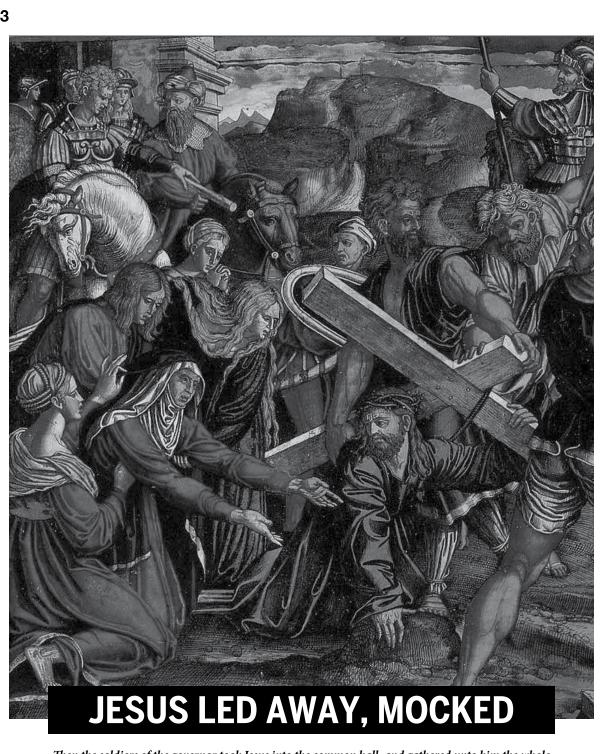

And while he yet spake, lo, Judas, one of the twelve, came, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priests and elders of the people. Now he that betrayed him gave them a sign, saying, Whomsoever I shall kiss, that same is he: hold him fast. And forthwith he came to Jesus, and said, Hail, master; and kissed him. - Matthew 26:47-49

And when they had bound him, they led him away, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate the governor. And the governor said, Why, what evil hath he done? But they cried out the more, saying, Let him be crucified. When Pilate saw that he could prevail nothing, but that rather a tumult was made, he took water, and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just person: see ye to it. Then answered all the people, and said, His blood be on us, and on our children. Then released he Barabbas unto them: and when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered him to be crucified. - Matthew 27:2, 23-26

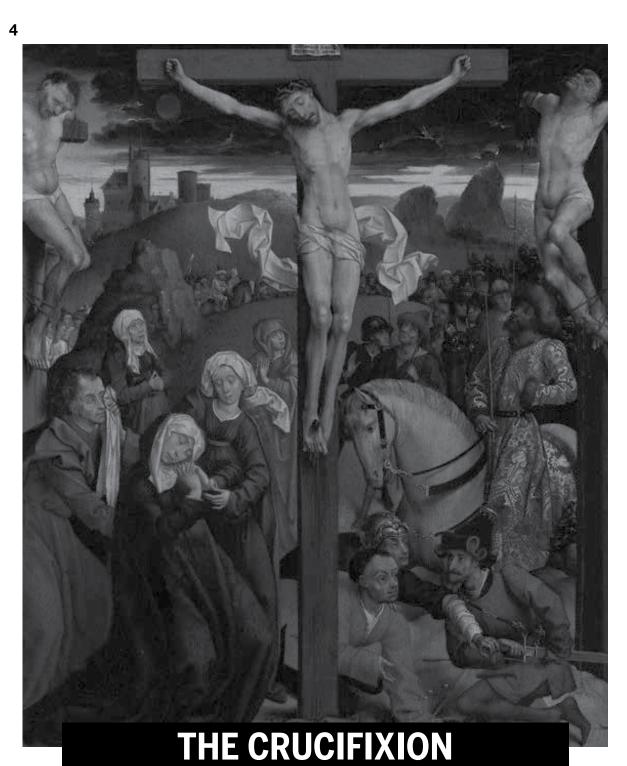

Family 1st Dental of Wayne

402-375-2889 | 401 Main Street Dr. Mitchell Knudsen

Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the common hall, and gathered unto him the whole band of soldiers. And they stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe. And when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand: and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, saying, Hail, King of the Jews! And they spit upon him, and took the reed, and smote him on the head. And after that they had mocked him, they took the robe off from him, and put his own raiment on him, and led him away to crucify him. - Matthew 27:27-31

And as they led him away, they laid hold upon one Simon, a Cyrenian, coming out of the country, and on him they laid the cross, that he might bear it after Jesus. And there followed him a great company of people, and of women, which also bewailed and lamented him. - Luke 23:26-27

And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him, and the malefactors, one on the right hand, and the other on the left. Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do. And they parted his raiment, and cast lots. - Luke 23:33-34

And it was about the sixth hour, and there was a darkness over all the earth until the ninth hour. And the sun was darkened, and the veil of the temple was rent in the midst. And when Jesus had cried with a loud voice, he said, Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit: and having said thus, he gave up the ghost. Now when the centurion saw what was done, he glorified God, saying, Certainly this was a righteous man. - Luke 23:44-47

And very early in the morning the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun. And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre? And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great. And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted. And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him. But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, as he said unto you. - Mark 16:2-7

Happy Easter!

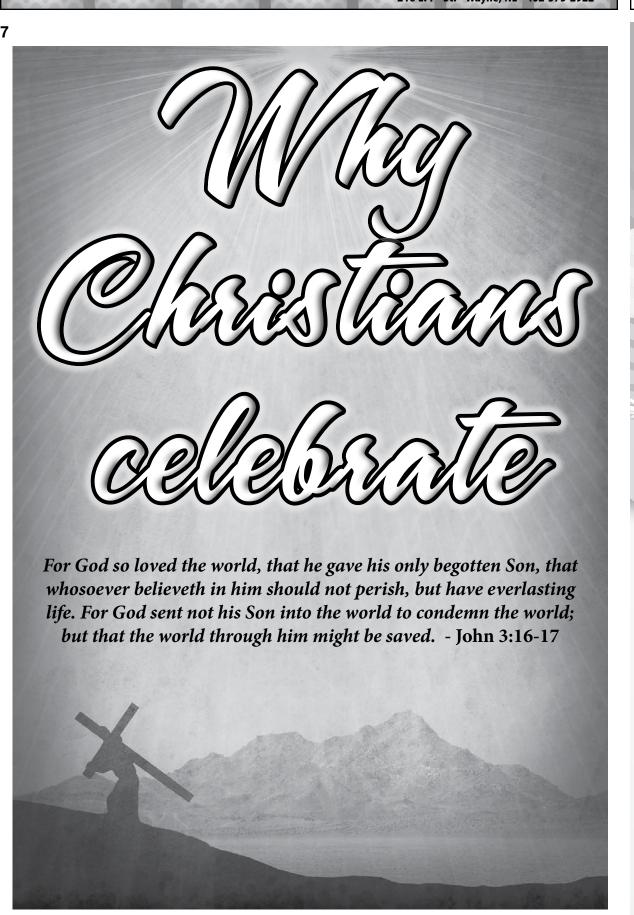

So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God. And they went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following. Amen. - Mark 16:19-20
