Meeting identifies prominent local health issues

By Aubreanna Miller, For the Herald

On June 30 the Northeast Nebraska Rural Health Network conducted a meeting at the Wayne Fire Hall to identify and discuss the central health issues in the surrounding communities.

This meeting served as just one part of a long process to solve the problems that have had disastrous effects on this area.

The organizations that form the network include Pender Community Hospital, Providence Medical Center, University of Nebraska Medical Center, Winnebago Health Department and the Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department, which serves the counties of Cedar, Dixon, Thurston and

The group formed in 2017 out of the need for an assessment and improvement plan.

According to Julie Rother, Health Director of the Northeast Nebraska Public Health Department, the various institutions saw the benefits of continuing a partnership, leading to the drafting of bylaws and memorandums of agreement to continue the necessary and life-changing work. "We realized that [we can] really maximize our resources if we're not out duplicating the same kinds of activities but can learn from each other," Rother said. "The vision we came up with is by working together, we create a healthier community.

How To "Grow" a City

The only way to physically "grow" your community/corporate city limits by area is by annexation. Communities can grow population by building and filling additional housing units inside existing limits, but that is not sustainable long term, and it doesn't add square miles to your boundaries.

Annexation is a power granted to cities by the state through its statutes. I mention this now as the City four additional properties in the east part of the community to the City limits (Great Dane Trailers, Heritage Homes, State of Nebraska DOT offices/yard, and Cornerstone Storage); Council must do this by ordinance.

Ordinances passed by the City Council must be read three sepa-

Nebraska's Natural Resources Districts celebrate 50 years of conservation

Once dismissed as 'The Great American Desert,' Nebraska is now known for its agricultural bounty and natural wonders. Throughout 2022, Nebraska's Natural Resources Districts (NRDs) are celebrating 50 years, commemorating breakthroughs, and achievements in con-

"The NRDs have faced many changes in the last 50 years, affecting the ways we protect our natural resources for the future," said Mike Sousek, general manager for the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District (LENRD), which covers all or parts of 15-countes in northeast

The LENRD is hosting an Open House on Wednesday, July 13 at their office in Norfolk to celebrate their 50th Anniversary. The day will begin with coffee at 10 a.m. with the Norfolk Area Chamber of Commerce. The public is invited to stop by anytime between 10 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. for refreshments, giveaways, groundwater demonstrations, and more. At 7:30 p.m. the NRD will host the final "Stars, Strolls, & S'mores" event of the season at the Elkhorn Valley Museum and Verges Park.

After the devastation of the Dust Bowl, special purpose districts were developed across the nation to solve local soil and water-related problems. But the overlapping of authorities and responsibilities created some confusion, which sparked Nebraska legislators to form a new plan for their state.

In 1969, Senator Maurice Kremer introduced legislative bill 1357 to combine Nebraska's 154 special purpose entities into 24 NRDs by July 1972. The 24 district boundaries were based on the river basins. allowing for better management

In 1969, the 80th Unicameral created the Natural Resources Districts (NRDs) with the passage of legislative bill 1357. From left, Chester Ellis, President of Nebraska Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts; Sen. Maurice Kremer, Chairman of the Nebraska Legislature's Agriculture and Recreation Committee; Gov. Norbert Tiemann; Warren Patefield, Immediate Past President of Nebraska Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts; Milton Fricke, Director of the National Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts; and Warren Fairchild, Executive Secretary of the Nebraska Soil and Water Conservation Commission. practices to be applied to similar flood control projects, implement topography. In 1989, The Middle Missouri Tributaries NRD and the Papio NRD merged to become the Papio-Missouri River NRD resulting in today's 23 NRDs.

While all NRDs share 12 main responsibilities, each district sets its own priorities and develops programs that best serve and protect their local area. They are led by a locally elected Board of Directors, uniquely positioned right in their own communities. Sousek said, "Funding for district projects and programs comes from leveraging collected property tax dollars to obtain grants, which account for nearly 50% of expenditures. In most cases, your local NRD typically uses 1-2 percent of all property taxes collected in the district."

Across the state, NRDs construct soil conservation programs, offer technical and financial assistance to landowners for natural resources management as well as forestry and recreational development. When necessary, they enact regulations to protect our resources.

Since being created in 1972, NRDs have experienced tremendous growth in the responsibilities given to them by state statute, especially in protecting groundwater. Despite being the #1 irrigated state in the nation, Nebraska's statewide groundwater levels have been sustained at levels less than a foot below the pre-irrigation development in the 1950s. In some areas, groundwater levels are even higher. Many states are facing massive groundwater declines with almost depleted aquifers. Sousek said, "Nebraska's NRDs work with irrigators to monitor water use, establish groundwater recharge projects, and implement water-wise programs."

Groundwater quality is another responsibility of the NRDs. In northeast Nebraska, the LENRD builds partnerships with various agencies and organizations to address water quality issues, including the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service, the Nebraska Department of Natural Resources, other state and federal agencies, municipalities, counties, and private organizations. "Nitrate levels are increasing across the state. We are working together to identify measures used to preserve quality groundwater for the future," said Sousek. Visit our website www.nitrateinwater.org for more informa-

The LENRD's major accomplishments over the past 50 years include multi-purpose structures across the district.

One of those is the Willow Creek State Recreation Area (SRA) just southwest of Pierce. This flood control dam protects landowners downstream on Willow Creek, to just north of Norfolk. The dam held back over 18,000 acre-feet of water during the historic flood of 2019, totaling over 5.86 billion gallons, preventing monumental damages further downstream. The area is owned by the LENRD but is managed by the Nebraska Game & Parks Commission as a state recre-

System is another project administered by the LENRD. This system is the largest of its kind in the state, providing quality water to approximately 1,200 customers in portions of Burt, Dodge, and Washington counties, including the villages of Herman, Uehling, and Winslow. The system has three wells and three towers with over 600,000 gallons of water storage and 800 miles of pipeline to rural customers. The office for the system is in Oakland. The advisory committee is currently looking to expand the system to provide quality water for other areas in need.

The Wau-Col Regional Water System is another large project owned by the LENRD. This system provides quality water to the villages of Belden, Magnet, and McLean. Water is purchased from Coleridge and sent to Belden, and water is purchased from Wausa and sent to 16 rural customers as well as Magnet and McLean. The name "Wau-Col" is derived from Wausa-Coleridge. The travels across three county lines -Knox, Cedar, and Pierce Counties. The $3.1 million project was made possible by a grant from the U.S. Department of Agriculture – Rural Development and area sponsors including the LENRD and the Lewis & Clark NRD. The project was dedicated on Aug. 11, 2012, at the tower site in Wausa.

In the past 50 years, the LENRD has distributed over 4 million trees across its boundaries through the Conservation Tree Program. Community Forestry and Urban Development programs also assist communities with tree planting and recreational projects.

Today, Nebraska's unique system of locally controlled, watershed-based conservation is widely admired throughout the nation. In recent years, at least 11 states have inquired about applying a similar system for natural resourc-

The Providence Medical Center (PMC) Foundation recently presented a check for $84,976.47 to the Providence Medical Center Radiology Department to go toward the purchase of a new MRI.

The new piece of equipment will provide a better patient experience hand over the official check to and new technology that will deliver higher quality imaging.

PMC is anxiously awaiting the opening of their brand new Radiology and Outpatient Specialty Services wing.

"It was such a great feeling to our radiology department. These funds were raised from our 2021 Jewel Gala. I would like to thank everyone who attended the Gala for their donations and support to make this possible." Rachel Miller, Foundation Director, said.

About 50 people attended the meeting, each offering their own crucial and unique perspective.

The facilitators of the event, including John Beraneck from Sioux Falls, began by having each table discuss notable patterns that lead to poor health outcomes. Beraneck continued to emphasize the goal of just naming the problems, not fixing them.

The intention was to avoid falling down a path of specifics that might prove insignificant in the long run. To gain a comprehensive view of the problems affecting everyone, the meeting focused on big picture

Between each session, participants moved around the room to encourage conversations and spark ideas with new people.

At the corner of North Pearl and West 2nd Streets, a sculpture of a boy, aptly named "Hard Hat Junior," squints into the sun. Created by Lee Leuning and Sherri Treeby of Aberdeen South Dakota, the bronze sculpture features a young man with fine details.

Sherri serves as a lead judge for the South Dakota High School Activities Association's State High School Art Competition.

She hosts free art clinics for children and for adults several times a year at Sioux Falls and Lake Richmond Studios, providing her vast knowledge over many media and art materials.

Twice, she was selected as 'Sculptor of the Year" by American Mothers, Inc.

Lee works on developing wildlife habitat through native prairie grass and wildflowers, shrubbery and trees on the four acre Lake Richmond studio grounds.

He is a 4-time Tennessee Wildlife Officer of the Year for Region 3.

Lee and Sherri reserve a portion of their time away from commissioned artwork to produce two original bronze sculptures of a Norman Rockwell type realism to enter into community year-long sculpture walk venues.

They excel in humorous, and insightful sculptures that have a hidden story, so that when the viewer figures it out, they feel good about themselves.

Their ability to connect with the common man and make viewing sculpture as fun has led to their people fruits and vegetables for food, fiber for textiles, and medicines for health. We manipulate plants to get what we need, and we aid their survival by saving seed and propagating plants. It begs the question, though, are we manipulating plants or are they manipulating us? Poison ivy (Toxicodendron ryd-bergii) is a great example of a plant that defends itself. Urushiol, the highly viscous oil found in poison ivy, causes contact dermatitis. It gives people a rash, in some cases a quite severe one. Anything with fur is oblivious to the effects of poison ivy, but pets can get it on their fur and transfer urushiol to humans. Deer will eat leaves and birds will eat the fruits of poison ivy with no ill effects. Never burn any part of poison ivy because the smoke can carry the toxin to lungs. Rhubarb (Rheum x cultorum) are plants that giveth and taketh away. The stalks are not high in sugar but impart a pleasant tartness to pies, cobblers, and crisps. The leaves, however, contain poisonous oxalic acid. Humans should steer clear of eating the leaves.

All parts of pokeweed, Phytolacca americana, are poisonous, with the roots having the highest concentration of saponic glycosides and the berries having the least. It is often mistaken for chokecherry (Prunus virginiana) which is edible. Birds eat the seeds of pokeberry with no poisonous effect, but humans and livestock have died from ingesting all or parts of pokeweed. Indigenous cultures have passed down from one generation to the next very specific methods for safely preparing pokeweed stems and leaves for eating-but no one should attempt this without a thorough understanding of how to do it. Rue (Ruta graveolens) is a perennial herb historically used for medicinal purposes. Though native to southern Europe, it has escaped cultivation here in the U.S. and can be found along roads and in ditches. In addition to its toxicity when ingested, rue also is phototoxic. Sunlight, in combination with the presence of sap from rue, on the skin. The saying "to rue the day" came from the negative effects the plant causes.

Not all plant defenses have impacts on humans. Trees communicate with one another through the production of pheromones. This helps to spread the message when an invasive insect is on the hunt for leaves. Healthy nearby trees have receptors that take in the odorous message and produce more defensive compounds, making the trees less tasty and reducing edibility for the invading insect.

Walnut trees secrete a herbicide juglone, into the soil to discourage neighboring plants from developing in the walnut's root zone.

Then there are thorns (think cacti), prickly hairs (like stinging nettles), and a host of other defenses. The list goes on. Some plants play nice, some don't.

Ben Ivener loves horse shows. But that doesn't make his any different than the 350 people who attended the Wayne saddle Club Horse Show. Except that he was probably the oldest competitor there.

The 72--year-old Hinton, Iowa native, along with his favorite horse, Tomea, showed the audience and participants what horsemanship was all about.

"I've been riding horses ever since I was a little kid, Ivener said, wearing his straw cowboy hat and a pair of sunglasses. Ivener and his horse took first place at the 10th annual event at Wayne in the Rocking Chair Class and came back in the next event, pole bending, also to take first.

A total of 93 riders entered the show, coming from South Dakota, Iowa and around Nebraska.

Winside students take biology trip

Twelve students from Instructor Paul Sok's Advanced Biology Class spent five days in the Black Hills and western Nebraska.

Those students include Julie Longnecker, Stacey Rabe, Stephanie Topp, Becky Krause, Shane Jaeger, Mike Hawkins, Travis Koll, Josh Harmer and Chris Hansen.

The group left from Winside High School at 5 a.m. on June 17. The first major stop for the day was at an original sod home settlement north of the Badlands. The house was originally build by a couple from Pierce in the late 1800's. The students then hiked and drove through the badlands National Monument. The second major stop for the day was at the Blackhills School of Mines in Rapid City, South Dakota, where they toured the Geology museum.

This is the eighth year Mr. Sok has sponsored a trip to the Black Hills. "The students are especially thankful to the Gardner Foundation of Wakefield and the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District for grants which covered half the expenses," Mr. Sok said.

Nebraska Secretary of State returns from trade mission

Upinion

Nebraska Secretary of State Bob Evnen recently returned from a one-week trade mission to Bulgaria. This was a follow-up to a 2019 trade mission which focused on dry edible beans.

Dry beans are a staple of the Bulgarian diet but Bulgarians only raise about 10 percent of what they consume. Relationships were built in 2019 to promote the sale of Nebraska dry beans. A 25 percent retaliatory European Union tariff on agricultural commodities, however, made Nebraska dry bean price uncompetitive. This year the E.U. removed its retaliatory tariff.

On the trade mission, a representative of the Nebraska dry bean industry met with several Bulgarian importers and processors. The importers and processors expressed an immediate readiness to establish commercial relationships for the importation of Nebraska dry beans.

The trade mission this year was expanded. Also represented was Nebraska's center pivot irrigation technology industry. As a result of the trade mission, a Nebraska irrigation technology engineer will follow up with the largest agricultural land operator in Bulgaria, who has about 100,000 hectares in agricultural production (about sion. Dr. Chris Calkins, Professor Emeritus of Agricultural Science from the University of Nebraska, participated in the trade mission. Dr. Calkins talked with two groups about what makes Nebraska beef superior, and he gave a cutting demonstration to the HRC Culinary Academy in Sofia, Bulgaria.

Secretary of State Evnen met with all of these groups and with a number of other current and former elected officials of Bulgaria. "We made maximum use of our time in Bulgaria," Evnen said.

"We were warmly welcomed and we made great progress in all three areas - dry beans, beef from Nebraska and irrigation technology. We will continue to follow up to partner with Bulgaria for the mutual benefit of Bulgarians and Nebraskans," he concluded.

Major funding for the trade mission was provided by a grant from the United States Department of Agriculture Emerging Markets Program. The grant was awarded in 2019 and was used for both the 2019 and 2022 trade missions. Grant funds remain for a planned reverse trade mission later this year, when it is hoped that Bulgarian representatives will travel to Nebraska.

The trade mission was organized by Cindi Allen, Nebraska Deputy Secretary of State for International Trade.

How about a little tolerance for a change?

Commentary by J.L. Schmidt Statehouse Correspondent Nebraska Press Association

News Item: A Subway sandwich customer allegedly shot two employees after he reportedly became angry over too much mayonnaise on his sandwich, police said. One employee died and the other is in critical condition.

As my son and daughter-in-law often say to their 6-year-old, "use your words."

Could I get a different sandwich? Could you scrape some mayo off this, please? Could I get a refund?

That's communication, defined by the Oxford English Dictionary as "the transmission of information, ideas, or knowledge, whether verbally or mechanically, through a medium such as music, writing, or e-mail." Have we lost that ability to communicate? That's both speaking and hearing in my book.

Sure, the sandwich shooting was in Atlanta, Georgia. That's a big city nearly 1,000 miles from here. But that doesn't mean senseless violence can't happen here. In the last month, there have been three young people (ages 17-24) shot at a high school parking lot just 10 blocks from my house. Nobody's dead, but lives have been changed by the two separate incidents.

We're not talking anymore. We're yelling and chanting and shaking fists and waving protest signs. We're still dredging up the past, like the January 6 events in Washington, DC, more than 18 months ago. The only break we got from that rehash by the national media has been three controversial U.S. Supreme Court opinions on guns, abortion, and prayer.

Many states are scrambling to enact laws to address the abortion issue which the high court says now is clearly a matter of state's rights. It's yet unclear whether the Nebraska Legislature will call a special session to do so since a socalled trigger bill (to ban abortion once the high court has ruled) failed during the regular session. It appears unlikely that the group

In in 2021, which it has used to sucstate's roads.

> Eighty-five years later, that organization still stands-now known as the Nebraska State Patrol (NSP). Their mission to help keep our communities and citizens safe hasn't wavered. But they continue to adapt the ways they carry out that mission to meet the needs of Nebraskans. As we celebrate 85 years of the NSP, let's recognize all they do for our state. They keep us safe on the roads, protect us from crime, stop online predators, and take dangerous drugs off our Many Nebraskans are familiar with the work the NSP does to keep our roads safe. In Nebraska, severe weather can come on suddenly. Blizzards, thunderstorms, and extreme winds create treacherous driving conditions with little warning. Every season of the year, our Troopers perform life-saving rescues of stranded motorists. NSP made 163 rescues during the historic floods of March 2019. Later that year, in July, NSP made over 100 additional rescues as rapidly rising floodwaters inundated Gibbon, Kearney, and Wood River.

State Troopers also secure our roadways by responding to traffic accidents. They help clear crash their findings help prevent future crashes.

In August 2021, the NSP launched an innovative drone program to improve how it manages crash sites and performs accident investigations. The drones capture aerial footage and take measurements from the sky, quickly gathering data needed for the investigation. By using the drones, NSP has reduced the time to investigate an accident from 2 1/2 hours to just 45 minutes. This makes for a safer, more efficient response. Every minute saved at a crash site is a minute that motorists aren't detouring around a crash and our first responders aren't at risk standing on the roadside.

A warrant had been issued for the driver's arrest. Troopers located the vehicle near Grand Island and attempted a traffic stop. The driver crossed the median and tried to head back east on I-80. Troopers quickly made a tactical vehicle intervention to stop the fleeing pickup. An NSP SWAT team took the suspect into custody without incident, locating several firearms in the cab of the truck. They also rescued the kidnapped female passenger who reported that she had been handcuffed by the driver during the journey from Indiana to Nebraska.

> In June, the State Patrol assisted Indiana law enforcement on another case to intercept a human trafficker passing through Nebraska. Indiana police notified NSP to be on the lookout for a missing 13-year old girl in a Ford F-150. Troopers located the vehicle near Kearney and made a traffic stop. They found the young girl hiding in the pickup and arrested the 20-year old driver. He was later charged with numerous crimes, including sexual trafficking of a child.

As more illegal activity moves online, NSP has also ramped up its efforts to fight cybercrime. In June 2019, the agency launched a Technical Crimes Division (TCD). It protects Nebraska's state and business infrastructure, conducts child exploitation investigations, and provides forensic assistance to ing to crimes in progress. Just last month, NSP arrested a man from Roca for child enticement. He had used social media in an attempt to arrange a sexual encounter with a girl he believed was only 14 years old. In reality, the man had been in correspondence with an undercover NSP investigator. When he showed up expecting to meet her, he was arrested by  ${\it NSP}$  investigators.

Drug interdiction is another main focus of the State Patrol. The NSF works tirelessly to keep drugs off our streets and out of our communities. This is more important than ever as illicit drugs stream into America across our broken southern border. In 2021, the NSP seized about 2 1/2 times the amount of fentanvl as it did in 2020. The amount of cocaine seized by NSP more than tripled from 2020 to 2021.

Nebraska has the second-lowest drug overdose mortality rate in the country according to the CDC. WalletHub ranks Nebraska as having the 4th-lowest "Drug Use and Addiction" in America. NSF deserves credit for contributing to these strong rankings through its vigilant drug interdiction.

On behalf of all Nebraskans, thank you to the NSP for the 85 years of service to keep our communities safe. Their mission has been successful because of the thousands of men and women who have answered the call to serve. I invite Nebraskans to consider a career with our state's premier law enforcement agency. Applications for NSP Basic Recruit Camp 67 open on July 7th and will remain open for about three months. Prospective candidates can visit NebraskaTroopers.com to learn more about the application process. the benefits of working for the NSP and the job opportunities available.

Incorporating physical activity and selecting healthier food items on a daily basis takes true commitment, but not really that much extra time. It's not too late to commit to making healthier choices, and you can start today by making small changes. For example, have a piece of fruit, low-fat yogurt or string cheese, bagged vegetables, or whole-grains crackers as a midmorning or afternoon snack. If these items are not available to you during the day, add them to your grocery list so you will have them on hand at home. Plan time to be physically ac-

Forget about the "all or nothing" rule. If you cannot squeeze 30 continuous minutes of physical activity into your day, do three short 10-minute intervals to total 30 minutes.

Honor your commitment to yourself by identifying the reason(s) for wanting to change a particular behavior. Set personal goals by acknowledging what you want. Make a plan to divide the overall goal into smaller specific goals. List practical steps to achieving those goals and monitor your progress along the way. Be patient as you make gradual lifestyle changes, as you may slip off course once in a while. Re-evaluate your plan(s) and make changes as necessary. Reward yourself for your accomplishments. After all, this is a lifetime commitment, one day at a time, so you might as well start enjoying a lifetime of rewards.

A Word

In Faith

Associate Pastor, Grace Lutheran Church

The Fourth of July is a time of remembrance, of celebration, of familv. It's a time that means so much to so many people. And I wish you all a safe and Happy 4th!

But as I am a history buff, I was starting to think about this holiday and the original meaning of it in light of these words from Psalm 33:12, "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, the people He has chosen as His own inheritance."

The Fourth of July above all is about freedom. Freedom from an oppressive government. And freedom to rule ourselves. We may all be able to say that we are patriotic to one degree or another. We may all love flying the American Flag, saying the Pledge of Allegiance, and singing hymns and songs like America (My Country, Tis of Thee). It's when we compare ourselves to the men who signed the Declaration of Independence, that we can compare how patriotic we truly are. The reality is most of the time we don't hold a candle in comparison to their burning passion for this country. Even the most patriotic of us all would have to say that, because I was reminded of what these brave men went through again just the other day by a great

I was reminded that Thomas Nelson Jr. at the battle of Yorktown, urged General George Washington to press on the attack. To fight for complete freedom no matter the cost since a foreign general occupied it. I was reminded that Thomas McKean served in the First Continental Congress without pay while hiding his family for fear that the enemy might capture them. I was also reminded that out of the Fifty-Six original signers of the Declaration of Independence a total of five were captured and tortured by the British as traitors before they died. Twelve had their homes burned, two lost their sons in battle, and another had two sons captured. Nine fought and died from wounds or hardships of the Revolutionary War, and several lost their immense wealth to die in complete poverty. To say they gave their all for their dream of being free would be an understatement.

For us to set aside one day of remembrance of these men and their laurel's when it comes to our politifamilies hardly seems satisfactory. cal freedoms, we can't be the frozen to remember where we have come either. Not when it means so much from, and the tremendous sacrifices that have gotten us to this point.

But sadly, for most of us, July 4th was just another three-day weekend. It was just another time to shoot of fireworks, eat pie, and go on a camping trip. Perhaps a quick prayer was said, or you did tip your hat to all those we have lost in any war. But I find we, as Americans, can and are drifting further and further away from the principles on which our nation was founded. This drift teaches us one thing. It teaches us that we should never and can never truly relax in the protection and preservation of our freedom.

Our nation, it seems, is on the verge constantly of losing its founding principles. I believe we have gotten good at being divided. Divided on all sorts of things. Especially on the question of whether we are a good nation at all. But in spite of through, it is telling that this is still a place people from all around the world are risking all they have just And that same struggle doesn't just happen in the political realm of Democrats and Republicans. It happens in our spiritual lives too! It happens with our Christian heritage and our Christian beliefs. And just as we need to protect and be diligent in preserving our American freedom. We need to protect and be even more diligent in preserving our freedom in God's love. But that protection and preservation does not mean we take up arms, storm the bastille, or seek revenge. It means that we seek to live lives that are bold in witness and strong in grace and mercy. It means we strive to follow Christ's command to love one another to the bitter end. It means we learn from His words, His life, and yes even His death. But it also means that we understand and cherish why He did those things in the first place.

You see no matter what type of freedom you are talking about... freedom from oppression, freedom from tyranny, or especially freedom from sin... freedom is never free. There is always a cost. A cost that someone has to pay. But in Christ that cost does not fall on you or me. It falls on Him. It is paid in full by the blood that is shed from His broken body upon a cross. A cross that stood over two thousand years ago. But a cross that still brings a tidal wave of freeing love into all of our hearts. The beauty is that this faith now becomes a free gift. A gift that is given to us without cost or a swipe of a credit card.

But just as we can't rest on our to so many! And yet more and more people are becoming indifferent to Christianity.

Our Christian way of life is on the decline even here in Nebraska, and here in Wayne. And if it continues to decline, it will someday reach a tipping point. A point where Christianity will once again be outlawed. Be silenced. Be condemned for being too old fashioned. Too outdated, too passé. But even though it might happen here, it doesn't mean this will spell the end of the Christian Church. The world won't win. The devil won't win. Our own sinful flesh can't win. Jesus promised Peter in Matthew 16:17-19 that "upon the rock (of faith in Him) He would build His church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Not matter how hard they try. No matter what schemes, plans, or attacks they all the trouble that we are living bring. God's church will stand for-

But there is only one way for us to be included in that number. We to come inside. To live right here in must believe. We must participate. We must come back to His house. We need what is offered here in His church. His body and His blood. His baptismal river. We need freedom. The freedom He sacrificed everything to win. And the freedom He assumed again. Assumed when He walked triumphantly out of the grave! It is here, and it will always be here. In His word and in His

> But we have to join around His word to be reminded of it. To be lifted up by it. To be forgiven through it. And we also need to join together for the sake of our country.

> Begin to listen again and slow to speak. Quick to understand and slow to condemn. Quick to rejoice and slow to blame. Because each of us needs one another. We need the entire family God wants us to be. But we need to be able to point out truth in love knowing that Jesus Christ is the only way to salvation as He is and will forever be "The Way, the Truth, and the Life. No one comes to the Father except' through Him! (John 14:6)

St. Paul's Ladies Aid conducts July meeting

St. Paul's Ladies Aid & LWML met July 2 with Pastor Blanken present. Pastor Blanken had Bible Study on Luke 15 - The parable of the lost sheep. The hymn "As rebels Lord who foolishly have wondered" was sung. The Bible Study closed in prayer.

The business meeting was conducted by Vice President Janice Mundil and began with everyone reciting the LWML pledge.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were approved as read.

The LWML District Convention was discussed. There are three offerings at the convention (1) LWML mites (2) Scholarship fund and missionaries and (3) The Orphan Grain Train. It was decided upon to give a monetary gift to all three offerings.

Reports were given on the Dean Janke funeral and the Winside Old Settlers Pie and Ice cream social.

The Aid will be looking for a new seminary student to support. A correspondence from our past seminary student Jordan Schut was read regarding his ordination and installation into the office of the Holy Ministry. No shut-in report was given for last month. During July Sally Pichler will be visiting.

Birthday song was sung for Janice Mundil. The next meeting will be Saturday, Aug. 13 at 1:30 p.m.

The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer

Fireworks and cheerleading stories shared

The fireworks are still going off, and it's after 10 p.m. Last night, I heard a loud one at 1 a.m.!! That is too late! A three day weekend is also too long for the Fourth! But no one asked me, and next year, it will be on Monday. Right?

(News flash! It helps to take out hearing aides!)

We had a great supper here; Allan cooked a brisket, and there was watermelon and a red, white, and blue salad, and red velvet cake. The best part: I did not prepare a thing! I was reminiscing about the Fourths we observed on Apex Farm. We usually had one or two families who also had kids come for a pot luck and shared fireworks. In later years, we attended the show at Skyview Lake. But for the Big Farmer and me, the most memorable was at the Luethje farm at Roca, in about 1990 or thereabouts.

Their youngest, Jennifer, was married on this day, so the party served a dual purpose; it was their annual Fourth of July observance, and a wedding reception. Someone had traveled to Yankton and pur-guessed it; the van! Oh, my, was organized pep clubs in those days,

I thought at first it was planned, but then I saw someone running towards the van with a garden hose. Someone else called the local volunteer firemen, and the bride was seen running towards the pasture because she suddenly did not know where the groom was!

Well, none of us who were there will ever forget it; no one was hurt, and it was just a really great pyroway, but sometimes, things just happen.

That couple now has a couple grandkids, and I met a daughter at the recent Waco alumni function. She was wearing a very familiar pep club sweater; it had been her aunt's, who was a grade ahead of me. It made me wonder where mine was!

My parents moved to York when After we had eaten, and heard I was in nursing school, and my

But believe me, when they lead the cheers, and twirled those round satin skirts, it was a beautiful sight! And, they came below the knees!! We were modest, if nothing else. technical show! Not planned that And somehow, I've come to the end of this epistle; from Independence Day to girls and their cheers of sixty years ago.

> Which reminds me; as we observe fifty years since Title IX, we reflect on women's sports. Our conference had them, and we were supported by the fans every bit as well as the guys. So, we didn't know just what the fuss was about. But reading about it has been enlightening. Just as the noisemakers out my window are also enlightening, and noisy! Hope your celebration was fine!!

Nebraska Extension Board -Wayne County meeting planned

The Nebraska Extension Board in Wayne County will meet on Tuesday, July 12, 2022 at the Wayne County Courthouse. The 6:15 p.m. meeting is open to the public. An agenda is available at the Extension Office, 510 N. Pearl Street, Suite C in Wayne for public inspection during normal business hours.

Benefits of ag industry discussed

Why Are We In Ag? By Brad Schick

This Independence Day makes me reflect on agriculture and why we do it. There is no arguing that we currently make good money in agriculture, but it goes beyond that. We find comfort and joy in the first breath of a newborn calf, the tender shoot of a resilient corn plant, and the smell of freshly cut alfalfa.

Some say it takes us back to simpler times. Some say seeing the creation of life every year is our connection to the creation of life thousands of years ago. In agriculture, we are stewards and caretakers of the resources we have been blessed with for just a short time while on this earth. Even so, we want to have some say and some influence on our lives. We want to control our outcomes and not have someone mandating or restricting the decisions that affect our cattle. crops, and family even while understanding that we really have little control over our lives.

When the British said we had no say over taxation, among other things, we took that power back and created the greatest country on earth. Our forefathers had faith that we would be prosperous by doing what was right and trusted their sacrifice was worthwhile. It wasn't easy and maintaining the freedoms we have still isn't easy.

This Independence Day, I ask you to reflect on why you are in ag. Is it the challenge? Is it the independence? Is it the income? Is it the joy of seeing the creation of life every year? Regardless, I know that I'm a proud American. In agriculture, we shouldn't demand to be thanked or deserve to be thanked, but we can be proud and humble of what we do

Forages Following Wheat By Jerry Volesky

Wheat harvest is right around the corner and that leads us to be thinking about some forage opportunities after harvest is complete. There is plenty of growing season left this year and there are several forage possibilities.

If the cropland is not irrigated, receiving some rains after wheat harvest is, of course, going to be necessary to grow that forage crop.

For example, with good moisture an early maturing corn is one possibility for silage if you plant it thick. A better dryland choice might be a high grain producing forage sorghum if chinch bugs and other insects are not a problem. Sunflowers grazing to match current conditions can be a surprisingly good choice for is key. Are you shifting your mana short-season silage. They survive light frost and yield well under many conditions.

If hay is preferred, plant sorghum-sudan hybrids, teff, or pearl or foxtail millet. A hay crop exceeding two to three tons per acre can be grown easily if planted soon after wheat harvest. Another hay or silage alternative is solid-seeded soybeans. A couple tons of good forage can be grown from taller, full season varieties planted after wheat.

Oats planted in late July to early August is another option. Yields over two tons are common when moisture is good, fertility is high, and your hard freeze comes a little Definitely consider turnips, as well as oats, for fall pasture planted into wheat stubble in late July or early August. With a few timely rains in August and September, both oats and turnips produce much high-quality feed in a short time. And, they are relatively inexpensive to plant.

Don't automatically let your wheat ground sit idle the rest of the year, especially if you could use

Grazing With The Weather By Ben Beckman

Precipitation and temperature play major roles in pasture productivity and knowing how to adjust agement to meet recent weather?

Stocking and grazing management are not static things. When production is limited, especially during a drought period, stretching forage resources is a high priority. By this point in the year, our pastures have produced the vast majority of forage that we will get. Using temporary electric fence to cross fence can increase utilization, slowing down a grazing rotation and stretching forage considerably.

This is especially true when plants become dormant due to lack of precipitation or heat. Typically, utilization seeks to balance animal demand and plant health, but taking more of a dormant plant without damaging the crown has little impact on overall plant health.

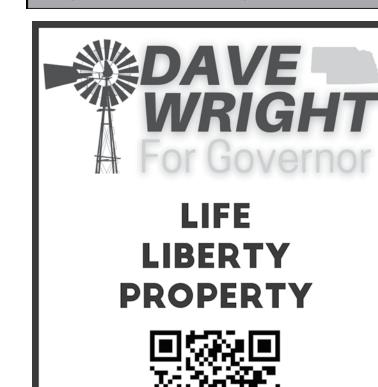

On the flip side, grass that is getting tall and lanky, ahead of a grazing rotation, could benefit from flash grazing. Moving animals on and off quick can help keep plants from getting over mature. Keep up this fast pace while growth is rapid. Once growth slows, then the rotation can slow down as well.

Speeding up grazing when things are wet and slowing down during dry times is a great strategy to use as we adjust to the weather Mother Nature throws our way. Doing so can help you find the perfect balance for your pasture and animal

NDA to award grants for meat processor assistance

Nebraska livestock producers and meat processors continue to work diligently to strengthen the nation's food supply.

The Nebraska Department of Agriculture (NDA) will award approximately $9.8 million in Independent Processor Assistance Program Grants to support projects designed to improve and/or expand Nebraska's meat processing capabilities. The money was designated for this program through Governor Ricketts' recommendation to utilize a portion of Nebraska's American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) funds. NDA began accepting grant applications on July 5. Applications are available at https://nda.nebraska. gov/promotion/meat_processors and must be received by the Aug. 12, 2022 deadline.

"Nebraska is a leader in meat production and processing which is a vital part of our nation's food supply," said NDA Director Steve Wellman. "Our livestock producers and meat processors have already faced many unique challenges created by the pandemic, and yet they continue to find solutions to keep the food chain operating. These grants will help Nebraska meat processors implement projects that will benefit meat processing today and strengthen the industry for tomorrow."

The Independent Processor Assistance Program Grants are available to new or existing meat processors to facilitate improvements, enhancements, or expansions that will increase harvest capacity and/or product throughput. Eligible processors must operate as either a USDA-FSIS facility or a federally regulated custom-exempt slaughter and processing facility, while also complying with federal regulations. To be eligible, existing operations must be domiciled in the State of Nebraska and be registered in good standing with the Secretary of State to conduct business in Nebraska. Additionally, the processing facility's existing sales revenue must be less than $2.5 million, and it must employ fewer than 25 people.

Application information and frequently asked questions about the grants are available on NDA's website at nda.nebraska.gov. Individual grants could be awarded up to $80,000 for eligible expenses incurred after August 28, 2021. Recipients may not receive the entire amount of funds they request. Grants will be distributed in a series of rounds until funding is depleted. Previous recipients of grant funding will be eligible to apply in subsequent rounds, but preference will be given to applications not previously awarded funding. Completed applications may be submitted via email to breanna.wirth@nebraska.gov or mailed to Nebraska Department of Agriculture, P.O. Box 94947, Lincoln, Neb. 68509. For additional questions, contact Breanna Wirth, NDA Legislative Coordinator, at 402-890-1509 or by the email listed above.
