City Council members conducted a budget work session during Tuesday's meeting, working on the 2022-2023 fiscal vear budget.

Public hearings, budget work session on council agenda

By Clara Osten, clara@wayneherald.com

Four public hearings were on the agenda when the Wayne City Council met in regular session on Tuesday.

The first of these was in regard to a request to amend the city code for minimum off-street parking and loading requirements.

City Planner Joel Hansen shared information on the history of off-street parking requirements in the various zoning districts. He said that several years ago numbers were adjusted to make it easier to determine how many parking spots were required in R-4 (multi-family) districts.

Lee Brogie spoke to the council and said she felt that all structures should be treated the same in all districts.

Following public hearing council members voted unanimously, and waived the three readings, of an ordinance to amend the city code to require 1.25 parking spaces per sleeping room in the R-4 Districts in Wavne.

with blight/substandard conditions, the lake project, which was not part of the original plan and the increase of traffic in the area

Brooke Sturm, who lives in the area adjacent to the proposed project, said "we want affordable housing and this is not affordable. Also, traffic will be ridiculous in this area.

Council members did approve the resolution approving the plan as contained in the Redevelopment Contract.

A third hearing at Tuesday's meeting involved a request to rezone a parcel of property owned by Nick and Jessica Hochstein from A-1 Agricultural to A-2 Agricultural Residential.

Joel Hansen told the council that the property, which contains 10.02 acres, needs to be rezoned so it can be subdivided into smaller lots

Following the public hearing, council members voted to approve the ordinance agreement currently in place between the city and Utility Service Partners Private Label, Inc., doing business as Service Line Warranties of America.

The city has had an agreement with the business, which provides insurance for water lines from the street to the owner's property, for three years. Moving forward, information about the services will be online only and Wayne water customers will not be receiving information in the mail.

Mayor Cale Giese reminded council members there will be a Stool to Cool Task Force Open House on Tuesday, July 26. It will be held from 5:30 to 7 p.m. at the Wayne Community Activity Center.

City Administrator Wes Blecke told the council that a draft concept of what the area will look like will be presented. The public will be able to provide feedback before the design comes to council for approval.

Council members also held a budget work session on Tuesday. Finance Director Beth Porter gave a general overview of the budget and explained how much she anticipated being in each department's budget by the end of the fiscal year, which is Sept. 30.

Farmers, ranchers should think outside the checkbook for charitable giving

Before charitable farmers and ranchers open their checkbooks this year, the Wayne Area Legacy Fund encourages thinking beyond cash, and opting to instead donate gifts of grain or livestock.

Grain futures are higher than they've been since 2013, and giving a portion of your harvest is a great way to share the bounty with the causes closest to your heart. By contributing commodities like corn or cattle, farmers and ranchers can save significantly on taxes while strengthening the mission of their local community fund.

Dan and Sarah Miller made a five-year pledge of gifts of grain to the Shickley Community Foundation Fund.

"Giving bushels of corn instead of dollars allows us to make a larger gift to our community fund because we can still deduct all our production costs on our income taxes. It's a really smart way to give back," Dan said

Instead of selling the ag commodity, the producer transfers ownership of the livestock or grain directly to Nebraska Community Foundation for the benefit of the Wayne Legacy Fund. The producer can then claim all their production costs as deductible expenses for income tax purposes.

When a producer transfers legal ownership to a charity before it is sold, the producer will not have taxable income from a sale, thus minimizing taxes. Tax savings may be realized on federal income tax, state income tax and self-employment tax, depending on the producer's specific circumstances.

It is important to first check with your professional advisor to determine whether a contribution of grain or livestock is appropriate for your tax situation. It is also important that you notify Nebraska Community Foundation in advance of making your gift of commodities as there are specific (but simple) procedures that must be followed.

Gift of Grain and Livestock forms are available through members of the Fund info@nebcommfound.org. Nebraska Community Foundation

Nebraska Community Foundation unleashes abundant local assets, inspires charitable giving and connects ambitious people to build stronger communities and a Greater Nebraska.

Headquartered in Lincoln, the Foundation serves communities, donors and organizations by providing financial management, strategic development, education and training to a statewide network of 1,500 volunteers serving over 270 communities.

In the last five years, 45,915 contributions have been made to NCF and its affiliated funds. Since 1994, NCF has reinvested $423 million in Nebraska's people and places. For information, visit NebraskaHometown.org.

Wayne Area Legacy Foundation

Wayne Area Legacy Foundation harnesses the power of giving to make the Wayne Area a great place for all ages to live, work and play for generations to come.

"We invite you to be a part of the legacy of promoting progress in our area by giving to the unrestricted endowment. Similar to a community savings account unrestricted endowments are an important tool to keep hometowns across Nebraska growing thriving and improving future generations. A portion of the income earned by the endowment is granted annually to fund projects and programs to benefit the community, the principal remains intact and grows every year," said Chairman Bill Dickey.

The second public hearing involved the approval of the Redevelopment Plan for the R. Perry Construction, Inc. Project.

City Finance Director Beth Porter gave background information on the TIF process and noted that the issue has been before the Community Redevelopment Authority (CRA) and Planning Commission and will go back to the CRA again to be put in a contract and bonds issued.

BJ Woehler told the council he had objections to the TIF application, noting that R. Perry had used the wrong application, city staff had confused the Planning Commission and the contract has no plan for developing a lake in the area. He said the purchase agreement had expired and was therefore invalid.

Lee Brogie listed three concerns she had with the plan. These include how it deals re-zoning the property and waived the three readings. They also approved a resolution establishing Hochstein Estates Subdivision.

Four ordinances dealing with the annexation of real estate into the city received three reading approval.

These have been brought before the council at each of the last two meetings and no changes or updates were made since that time

Council members approved a Certificate of Payment No. 2 in the amount of $72,103.00 to Robert Woehler & Sons Construction, Inc. for work on the Chicago Street Project. Work is progressing, although there have been some delays in receiving materials.

In other action, council members approved the mayoral appointments of Mark Sorensen, Jason Schulz and Jessie Piper to the Planning Commission.

Council members discussed a marketing

Department heads and Wayne Area Economic Development presented narratives on anticipated budget needs for the coming fiscal year.

City Administrator Blecke said the budget would include a 4% increase in salaries for city personnel.

Discussion was held on the need to make improvements at the Wayne Community Activity Center and several of the city parks

In addition, council members are working to lower the tax levy. The exact amount will not be determined until the city's valuation numbers are released in August.

The Wayne City Council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, Aug. 2 at 5:30 p.m. meetings are at 5:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month. Come see the action live at City Hall or watch/listen to Council have to agree on specifications (loon Zoom!

Budget Workshop

The Mayor and City Council held their budget workshop during the last regular Council meeting.

The majority of the discussion centered around the Parks and Recreation budget along with capital improvements for the department using sales tax funds. CAC maintenance, along with pool heater upgrades, were priorities.

The Council also talked about lagoon developments including adding additional baseball/softball fields to the area. The remaining workshop focused on the fiscal health of the City and how now is a good time to consider cutting the tax levy modestly.

If the certified valuation increases more than 3%, the excess amount will likely be used to further cut the levy. This won't be known until after Aug. 20 when the County certifies the valuation for next year.

With no other questions being asked about specific departments, the second budget session won't likely happen on Aug. 2. The budget will continue to be worked on through August and a hearing will be held in early September for public input.

The budget will officially be approved in September.

Update from Stool to Cool Taskforce

The Stool to Cool Taskforce (ST-CTF) has been working hard with the engineer Olsson to come up with a draft concept of the old lagoon area. They are to a point where they would like community input. The STCTF will hold an open house style meeting on Tuesday, July 26 from 5:30 to 7 p.m. at the Wayne Community Activity Center.

This open house will give the public a chance to see the concept worked up by the task force, staff and engineer/landscape architects and to give feedback to the group. The Council would likely approve a design in August/September and have the engineer continue with site development drawings. If you cannot attend the meeting and still want to provide input, please contact City Hall.

Haskell Ag Lab's Family Field Day to feature animals, weather, beer, and blood

The summer is passing quickly. It started off kind of slow and cool, but once it got going, there was no stopping it, and boy has it been toasty.

The staff at the Haskell Ag Lab near Concord is now working to prepare for the annual Haskell Ag Lab Family Field Day on Wednesday, Aug. 3.

Some of the new events and activities scheduled for this year include:

•A visit from the area's own Drs. Ben and Erin from Heartland Docs, DVM;

·The Nebraska State Climatologist sharing predictions of weather for the rest of the growing season;

·An exhibit about growing and using your own hops, and

•The first ever blood drive.

Anyone who isn't aware of the Heartland Docs, DVM TV show on Nat Geo Wild, is in for a treat. Drs. Ben and Erin have become nationally famous and, being from Hartington, they're practically at home at the Haskell Ag Lab. Attendees will get to meet them and ask questions about the show and about life as a veterinarian in rural Nebraska

Fortune telling might not be what Al Dutcher is known for, but for farmers, the weather tends to be pretty telling of what our fortune might be. While the old adage "wait 5 minutes, the weather in Nebraska will change" might be true, Al's forecast for Nebraska has been very accurate this summer – even when it deviates from other forecasters or isn't what we want to hear. He will share what he expects the weather to do as we look forward to harvest season.

Lots of us enjoy a good brew now and then, but have you ever made your own beer? Maybe you've considered it, but didn't know where to start because you knew nothing about hops? Find the hops booth at the field day where Ryan with 6th Meridian Hops will be sharing his knowledge about growing hops, choosing varieties, and using them in the brewing process. Do you know anyone who has ever needed blood? I bet you do; I know I can think of several individuals. Get ready to roll up your sleeves for the Haskell Ag Lab's first ever Blood Drive. This year, the LifeServe Bloodmobile will be on-site during the Field Day to collect blood donations. According to the Blood Center, "9 out of 10 people that live to the age of 70 will use blood during their lifetime".

Organizers of the Field Day decided that while they had people together for the Field Day, why not encourage a little community service by hosting a blood drive? So, stay hydrated and join several staff members to fill the bus with much needed blood

Everyone who visits the registration desk at the Field Day will receive $10 in tickets for use at the on-site food trucks.

This event is free and open to everyone of all ages. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. at the farm site with booths and activities scheduled from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Find out more at go.unl. edu/halfieldday2022

Telling the Story of Chief Standing Bear

By Governor Pete Ricketts

One of America's greatest civil rights heroes is from Nebraska. Yet nationally, almost nobody knows about him. As Nebraskans, we're changing that by telling Chief Standing Bear's story.

In the 1800s, Chief Standing Bear's tribe-the Ponca-peacefully hunted and farmed on land in northeast Nebraska along the Niobrara River. In 1868, the federal government signed a treaty with the Sioux tribe, mistakenly granting them much of the Ponca's territory. This led to conflict between the two tribes over the land.

In 1876, the federal government tried to convince Ponca leaders to Each Memorial Day, residents of they decided it would not be a suitable home for the Ponca tribe.

The federal government chose to have placed a historical marker a move the Poncas anyway, deploying U.S. Army troops to force their relocation to Indian Territory in the spring of 1877. The journeyknown as the Ponca Trail of Tearswas arduous. Many Poncas suffered from illness as they traveled south along muddy paths soaked by heavy spring rains. Signs of the hardship they endured are still visible today. In Neligh, a marble headstone marks the gravesite of White Buffalo Girl, one of the children who perished on the journey. Oklahoma). Within two years of arriving in Indian Territory, Chief Standing Bear's teenage son-Bear Shieldbecame gravely ill. His dying request to his father was to be buried in the Poncas' homeland in Nebraska. The federal government had ordered the Ponca to remain in Indian Territory, but Chief Standing Bear was determined to fulfill his son's final wish. In January 1879, he led a small group back to northeast Nebraska. They trekked 500 miles on foot through the bitter cold to carry Bear Shield's body home.

In March 1879, federal soldiers arrested Chief Standing Bear and other Poncas for leaving Indian Territory without official permission, imprisoning them at Fort Standing Bear. Omaha. U.S. Army General George Crook was tasked with detaining the Poncas. He felt they were being treated unfairly and sought the help of local journalist Thomas Henry Tibbles, an editor with the Omaha Daily Herald. Tibbles wrote an editorial on behalf of the Poncas and recruited two Omaha attorneys-John L. Webster and A.J. Poppleton—to take their case. They agreed to represent Standing Bear pro bono in a lawsuit against the federal government for wrongful detainment.

UNMC students participate in Rural Fellows Program

cern for rural America. In Nebraska, 34 counties have no hospitals don't even have clinics. The 2019 floods and COVID-19 pandemic have highlighted where Nebraska struggles health-wise. However, this summer, the University of Nebraska Medical Center and the University of Nebraska–Lincoln's Rural Fellows program are teaming up to combat this issue.

"There's always been a need for healthcare in rural environments," said Helen Fagan, program coordinator for the Rural Fellows. "But I feel like COVID sped it up and made the need even more pressing. Our hope is our Student Fellows from UNMC will help meet that shortage."

"It's exciting to give our students the opportunity to be physically relocated through the Rural Fellows program," said Laura Vinson, the service learning programs coordinator at UNMC. "The College of Public Health is grounded in public health practice, and this experience will provide students the opportunity to build their practical skills and enhance their ability to partner with the community to address the public health needs that impact them every day." While healthcare traditionally refers to individuals' physical wellbeing, public health works on a community-wide scale. Food accessibility, hike and bike trails, and mental health services are just a few facets of public health. At UNMC all Master of Public Health students participate in an Applied Practice Experience (APEX), where they work with communities and produce products that will improve general overall health. Vinson said the philosophy behind APEX aligns perfectly with the Rural Fellows experience. "This public health practice experience is an opportunity for students to really immerse themselves into public health work," she said. "A traditional internship is tipped

"It's kind of a win-win situation," said Fagan. "It helps address some of the rural health shortages, and it opens opportunities to students ties, specifically immigrants and who may be interested in public queer youth," said Kimme. "There's health but haven't thought about it through a rural health lens."

After three years of working as a physician in her home country, Mabiala-Maye decided to stop working with individual patients and focus on making medical decisions that could help entire rural communities. That is the focus of her work on childcare accessibility.

"The issue in Valentine is every said Mabiala-Maye, "the families, "Health isn't just physical," said most of the time, cannot stay because they don't have high-quality childcare. So that's why they want to build a community childcare center."

Pulver's project stems from the ARC's role as a community center and Chelsea Herian's, ARC's board chair, desire for it to meet more than just recreational needs. But Pulver's plans go beyond childhood education. At the recommendation of Alliance's mayor Mike Dafney, Pulver is putting together continuity plans for local companies as well.

'Basically it's a type of emergency preparedness plan for businesses," said Pulver, "and it's primarily focused on reducing any disruptions to operations and mitigating financial impacts."

For Pulver, disaster preparedness is a community endeavor. "I call it social capital," he said, "which is basically the ability for everyone in town to know each other and rely on each other. It's a big positive in the rural aspect of disaster resiliency."

Comprised of stainless steel and glass, the piece has acted as an eyecatching addition to the popular route in town.

The Contemporary Sculptor found his passion for creating art in the jungle of Vietnam. In the jungle, he began carving sculptures and reading books on welding.

After returning stateside, he continued to work carving wood, metal forging and welding.

Fluent is currently featured in galleries across the nation, with works ranging from figurative dancers taking leaps to multi-media steel and glass installations.

With passion and curiosity, the sculptor continues to explore new concepts, designs and materials.

He also has found high involvement in art clubs and mentoring other artists. Some of these groups include the Northeast Nebraska Woodcarvers, Norfolk Arts Center Member, Fluent Artworks, ABANA

Additionally, positioned near Johnnie Byrd Brewing Company at 121 N Pearl Street, "Faces" by Skip Willits of Camanche, Iowa, was formed out of recycled steel. The welding technique Willits uses to create most of his work was taught to him at age ten by his father who worked in a welding shop. He learned all he knows from his father, from the characteristics of materials such as steel, cast iron and aluminum to the various welding techniques; arc, TIG, MIG, torch. etc.

In 1983, he produced and installed his first major public sculpture.

In the years since, he has continued to create large and small art pieces for the world to enjoy.

Annually, he participates in numerous exhibitions and produces commissioned work across the Unit-were dashed quickly — but not their hopes for a state title.

The Post 43 Juniors are one of three teams still left at press time Wednesday in the American Legion Class B Juniors state tournament, bouncing back from an opening-day loss to win three games in a row and put themselves in a position to possibly win the state title with two more wins on Wednesday.

After suffering a 9-0 shutout to Plattsmouth in Saturday's first round, the Wayne Juniors bounced back to beat Alliance 5-1 on Sunday, disposed of host Wahoo 7-4 on Our defense is one of the things

In Saturday's opener, Wayne's bats were silenced by Plattsmouth ace Gabe Villamonte, who limited the Post 43 Juniors to three harmless hits while his teammates bashed out 18 hits against a Wayne team that had yet to taste defeat this season.

"Playing some of the teams we've played in our area, they're good teams but some of these metro-area teams have a lot of pitching and do fourth, Wayne put the game out of a lot of hitting and we didn't do any of that today," he said. "We didn't pitch, we didn't hit, we didn't field.

Plattsmouth got two runs in the more in the third and fourth and put up one more in the fifth to put the game out of reach, sending Wayne to its first loss after starting the year 24-0.

Gavin Redden, Devin Anderson and Aiden Liston all had hits for Wayne in the losing effort.

On Sunday, Wayne played small ball to extreme effect, scoring four runs without the benefit of a hit as they eliminated Alliance with a 5-1 victory.

Gavin Redden scattered eight hits and struck out five to keep Wayne alive, and got plenty of help from his offense, which did a fantastic job taking advantage of situations with their bunting capabilities.

"If we can get a guy to third base with less than two outs, we'll bunt all day long and the boys love doing it," Gamble said. "it's a way that we've scored a lot of runs."

Wayne scored the first two runs of the game in the first with the help of sacrifice bunts by Anderson and Liston. Jase Dean came home on a wild pitch in the third, and Anderson stroked an RBI single before coming home on a suicide squeeze by Liston to earn the win.

It was a good response to the team's first loss of the year, Gamble noted.

"The kids showed up today and really wanted to play, so this was a nice win for us today," Gamble said.

Playing the host team on Monday, Wayne was able to stay alive after spotting the hosts two firstinning runs in the top of the inning.

After that, it was all Wayne. After getting a run in the second, Wayne used a two-out rally to put up three runs in the third to take the lead for good. Liston singled home Ryan Karsky and Kaleb Moormeier followed with a single. Liston and Moormeier were replaced for courtesy runners Will Leseberg and Calvin Ankeny, and both scored when a hot shot by Kaden Keller got past the Wahoo infield, scoring both runners to make it 4-2.

After both teams tallied in the reach with two more runs as Zach McManigal and Jase Dean scored on a double by Redden.

Aiden Liston was solid on the mound, throwing 6 2/3 innings before Moormeier shut the door with the save.

era

Wayne punched their ticket to the final day of the tournament with a dominating effort over Sutton, bashing out 14 hits and using a six-run fourth inning to take control of the game.

After giving up a run in the top of the first, Wayne scored two on an RBI double by Liston and a suicide squeeze by Moormeier. Sutton put up two in the second frame, but Wayne answered with three on a two-RBI double by Anderson and an RBI double by Liston.

Five consecutive hits to open the fourth inning helped Wayne put up a six-spot to make it 11-4. Hits by Ryan Karsky, Anderson, Liston, Moormeier and Keller got the rally going, and Dean also added an RBI single in the inning.

Wayne ended the game on the eight-run rule in the fifth with four more runs after Sutton had scored three to get within 11-7. Redden's two-out single scored Keller and McManigal with the final runs of the game to send Wayne to a rematch with Plattsmouth.

Heikes, who was roughed up in Saturday's first game, came back to pitch a solid effort, working around 11 hits and striking out three while walking five.

"Wyatt was running out of pitches and we wanted to save Kaleb and a couple other guys for tomorrow, so I was getting nervous," Gamble said

Lamp Lounge at Sholes is demolished by fire

The Lamp Lounge, one of two business places remaining in Sholes, was destroyed by a fire late Friday night, with the cause of the fire unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Nelson, owners, told The Herald they had closed at about 10:45 and had gone to Belden. "We later received a call that our business place was on fire."

Don Bauer, owner of Bauer elevator at Sholes, said he saw the blaze and turned in the alarm at 11:45. Fire departments from Belden, Carroll and Randolph answered the call, but the building was too far gone to save anything but surrounding buildings. The popular tavern steak house had been operated by the Nelsens since February of 1965. He said the loss was partially covered by insurance.

"We don't know yet what we are going to do," Nelson said. "But the first job will be a big cleanup job."

County wide crop damage is estimated at $10 million

Damage ranging from as little as five percent to 100 percent was reported by local and federal officials as the result of the hail an wind storm which came through the area Monday morning.

Over 100,000 acres in Wayne County were devastated by the hail.

Reports of heavy damage continued to flood insurance and government offices on Tuesday.

Local insurance agents report adjusters will begin their job sometime next week.

Most of the damage reported is the result of golf ball size hail that hit a 22 miles long strip in Wayne County.

Damage has been estimated at $10 million in market costs for the crops alone.

Several other counties in the area also report heavy damage to crops and property.

Drug dealer's stash helps law

Nearly $30,000 in seized cash and the proceeds from a semi-tractor rig seized from a convicted drug trafficker has been turned over to the Northeast Nebraska Drug Enforcement Program (NEDEP) to fund future drug law enforcement work in this area. Heralding the success of the cooperative effort between local and state law enforcement agencies in the area, Dakota County Attorney Curt Hohenstein said the drug cash seizure means taxpayers in the region do not have to pay for the cost of the enforcement.

State Patrol Sgt. Gerald Sieck stopped a truck driver for speeding in March after observing him leaving Wakefield. While he was citing the trucker for speeding, he said he smelled marijuana and asked the driver if he could search his empty truck. A small amount of drug and over $22,000 in cash was discovered in the search.

The student doctor; a complement to patient care

By Kelly Evans-Hullinger, M.D.

As a clinical professor at my state's medical school, I frequently have medical students seeing patients with me in clinic. While the majority of patients are happy to allow student involvement, some decline.

This makes me wonder what misconceptions lead patients to be averse to trainees participating at their clinic visits or hospital bedsides. In my experience, the presence of learners has a positive influence on our work in the clinic and hospital.

Medical education is a complex, highly intensive program that requires years of education and practice. Most medical students are college graduates who performed well in their undergraduate studies and went above and beyond their peers in volunteering, extracurricular activities, and other achievements. After college, some go directly to medical school, and some have variable years of other experiences. Traditionally the first two years of medical school take place in the classroom, learning about anatomy, physiology, disease processes, microbiology, and pharmacology. The third and fourth years are spent almost entirely in the clinical setting, seeing patients, and learning how to apply their hard-earned knowledge. After medical school, new doctors go on to their residencies to receive further training in their chosen specialty; and after that, some continue to fellowship. This postgraduate training is rigorous. After at least three but sometimes many more years, those physicians will be ready to practice independently

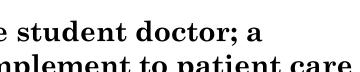

"You've learned to cooperate with

"You've learned how to lose with-ever can."

By Anonymous

Hopefully, this story will serve in their specialty.

Recently, a student and I saw a patient with leg pain and swelling. After the student's evaluation, we discussed in the patient's presence what features of this patient's pain concerned me for an urgent condition, how we should proceed with diagnostics, and why. The patient was able to observe how much thought went into our assessment, and hopefully the patient appreciated serving as teacher.

When I as an attending physician have a student or resident in my clinic, I am at my best. Students are caring and thorough with our patients. Teaching often requires me to talk about a new diagnosis or treatment in greater detail, and the patient reaps the benefit of hearing that discussion. It is not uncommon for a student to ask me a question to which I don't know the answer, and ultimately both of us learn something new. I would encourage patients, when they encounter trainees in their medical care, to view these compassionate and hardworking people as I do: a true complement to patient care. All physicians are life-long learners and are exceedingly grateful for our patients, who are our greatest teachers. ### Retired School Personnel have program

The Wayne Area Retired School Personnel group met on July 5 for their annual picnic.

This year's picnic took place at the Wayne Senior Center, and the meal was a brunch. Eight members and one guest were present.

Before the picnic, Charles Maier, a member, gave a patriotic program entitled "America's Freedom to 1865. then! Now!" Many dates and facts were given about the formation of our country. Charles recited from memory Paul Revere's Ride by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow appropriately placed among the dates and facts in his presentation. He also sang a song that was once sung by schoolchildren, starting almost 100 years ago. Many members remember this song and joined in.

The next meeting for this group will be Sept. 6 at the Wayne Senior Center at 9:30 a.m. New members and visitors are always welcome to attend the meetings.

Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid holds meeting on July 15

Grace Lutheran Ladies Aid met July 13 with 15 members and Pastor Buchhorn present.

Pastor Buchhorn led a Bible Study from the Quarterly entitled "Hope Abounds". From this lesson we were reminded to let our hopes, not our hurts, shape our future.

President Mary Lou Erxleben led the group in speaking the LWMI Pledge. Christian Growth Chairman Rhonda Sebade read a Mustard Seed devotion based on the shortest Bible verse, "Jesus Wept". We must follow Jesus' example by showing compassion for others.

Roll call was taken and minutes were read and approved.

Correspondence included news letters from Lutheran Bible Translators, Alaska Mission for Christ, and a thank you was read from St. Louis Concordia Seminary for a donation to their food pantry. Notes from the NE North LWML Board were shared. Two mission grants have been paid. A sizable donation from the estate of Carol and Dwaine Rethwisch estate was acknowledged.

The treasurer's report was given and filed for audit. President Erxleben led us in a devotion for the Mission Grant entitled "Deaconesses Trained to Reach Out in Love and Share Christ". Deaconesses are professional church workers trained to share the Gospel of Jesus Christ through works of mercy, spiritual care, and teaching the Christian faith.

Committee reports: Betty Wittig continues to promote the greeting card ministry. Ruth Victor announced the next quilt tying session will be July 28. Grace Kanitz continues to collect Best Choice UPC labels. Verna Mae Baier will visit with Lee Larson about ordering greeting cards, especially Christmas cards. There was no new information about making fabric kits for Lutheran World Relief.

The LWML District Convention will be in Columbus July 22 and 23. Information was shared about each day's agenda for those wishing to attend only one day. Rhonda Sebade showed a quilt she has made and will donate for the "Purple Auction" at the convention.

The birthday song was sung for Kathleen Johs and Fauneil Bennett. The meeting closed with the Lord's prayer.

Reminiscing while reading old columns

I think it's hot here; then, I read in today's Omaha paper, it's going to be 104 in the UK, and railroad ties are buckling!! And again, there will be deaths related to hyperthermia. Most buildings there do not have air conditioning.

I mentioned to a neighbor last night as I got into my Escape and turned on the air, "I remember the first car we bought that had it; I thought I was in Utopia!"

Sometimes, in the evenings, when I don't have reading material, I get out some of the albums that hold old columns. At one time, my Mom was doing the cutting and inserting; we had not yet got in the habit of dating them. So, I might be talking about Easter in one; Christmas in the next! When I took over again, and put them in chronological order, they are easier to read.

But one thing it has done for me is make me realize how short our attention spans are. There were a couple football debacles under Dr. Tom I had totally forgotten about: one even involved our current

Now, we have to search to find what is going on there. And when we find it, it's not good news.

This morning, though, I had an announcement from our church body that grants have been given to churches in Romania, Latvia, Germany, Slovakia, and the Czech republic to free up rooms to house refugees, schools for the children, and spiritual support as needed. Also, Orphan Grain Train is gathering supplies and money for another shipment.

In an article I found online, a woman in Poland is quoted as saying they have done their best to welcome their Ukrainian neighbors they are not fighting here."

I also spoke often about the state ally. I think it was because the Big Lately, that hasn't happened, and further, no one we are concerned about is playing. And, let's face it, Nebraska has not been very successful. The paper says Trev Alberts has a big job, and I believe it.

One long time sports writer has left, and has not announced future plans. In the meantime, his spot is being filled with a young woman who started life in Funk, Nebraska, reading the Holdrege paper.

But she says that even then, she aspired to the shoes of Sipple, Shatel, or McKeown. Now, she has her chance. She has practiced on the New Orleans Saints. It will be interesting to hear a woman's slant.

But, in the meantime, continue to pray for peace, and search out the latest regarding Ukraine. We must not forget them! Russia, and her ally, China, would love to dominate us all!

Wet Hay Meadow Options by Brad Schick

Depending on where you are in the state, your meadows may be wet or bone dry and the grass is short. Many have already harvested their meadows while others are just getting started.

parts of the state remain too wet to hay while most have had a good these options may work better evwindow to put it up for the first time in two or three years. If the cool-season grasses are short this year because of the challenging spring, they still may be high quality. As the summer progresses and the plants become more mature, the quality of the standing hay continues to decrease.

http://www.grassland.unl.edu in water until winter. Dry cows can do well during the winter grazing mature meadows and may only require some protein supplementation to maintain body condition.

What if the hay can get put up but it's put up late resulting in low quality hay? Regrowth after an early August cutting was measured in September and the regrowth contained 16.5% crude protein. This is a great grazing option for weaned calves or even dry cows if stocked correctly.

Harvesting Summer Annual Forages

By Jerry Volesky

It can be a little tricky to put up good quality hay from summer annual grasses like sorghum-sudan hybrids, pearl millet, and forage In the Sandhills, hay cut on Aug1 sorghums. Here are some tips to are unbearably slow to dry, and the lower stems could contain potentially toxic nitrates.

There usually is a wide range of spring and early summer planting dates for these annuals but cutting early before plants become excessively tall is important. When cut at about 4 feet in height, stems are smaller, they're eaten more readily, and the hay contains more protein and energy. Also, there is less plant volume. So, with smaller stems and fewer of them, the hay will dry quicker. Although you will have less tonnage when cutting early, you are creating more days for regrowth and a good second cutting.

Regardless of when you harvest though, cut it high, leaving eight to ten inches of stubble. Tall stubble pays off three ways – it helps plants begin regrowth quicker, it holds hay off the ground so air can help dry underneath, and it keeps many nitrates out in the field stubble rather than harvesting them all in your hay.

And finally, always crimp the hay. Even when stems are small, the waxy coating on the stems cause slow drying. But if you break but can vary by year. Grazing in are of good quality and that hay is open these stems by crimping, water will be able to escape and evapo-

Agricultural Budget Calculator program hands-on workshop planned in Norfolk

The University of Nebraska Lincoln's Center for Agricultural Profitability has scheduled training workshops for July and August for its new online Agricultural Budget Calculator program.

A workshop in Norfolk has been scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 2, at the Madison County Extension Office, 1305 S 13th St., Norfolk, from 1:30 - 3:30 p.m.

Other workshop locations scheduled for this summer include:

•Tuesday, Aug. 16: Ag Center (fairgrounds), 1308 Second Street, Holdrege, 5:30-7 p.m.

•Thursday, Aug. 18: Lancaster County Extension Office, 444 Cherrycreek Road Suite A, Lincoln, 10 a.m.-noon.

McClure, who works closely with the ABC tool and has followed its development, will facilitate the workshop. During part one of the workshop, participants will learn how to use the ABC program to create and/or update crop budgets for their farms or fields on their owned and/or rented ground and create their own cost of production and anticipated return reports.

Japanese beetles becoming more prevalent

By Kim Bearnes, Extension Educator

Japanese beetle damage on a variety of plants has been my primary question of late. Affected leaves are skeletonized meaning green tissue is removed but not leaf veins, making leaves appear lacy.

While most insects are selective about what they eat, Japanese beetles feed on over 300 species of plants. Some of their favorites are roses, lindens, grapes, beans, and sweet corn.

Adults are seven-sixteenth inch long, metallic green beetles with copper colored wing covers. Six tufts of white hair along each side of their abdomen are a distinguishing feature. Beetles live about 30 to 45 days.

The larvae is a C-shaped, creamy white grub. High populations of grubs in lawns can cause damage. They feed on roots causing turf to turn brown and roll or lift up like a carpet or new piece of sod. Most preventive grub control products applied in June for our common annual grub will control Japanese beetle grubs. However, controlling the grubs will not prevent beetles flying in and causing damage.

Adult beetles chew on leaves, flowers, and fruit. They are gregarious and feed in groups, starting at the tops of plants and working their way down. Leaves are skeletonized. Flowers are finely shredded as if blasted with sand and fruits, especially if overripe, are hollowed out. Japanese beetles overwinter as grubs. They feed for a short period in spring and then turn into adults. Beetles emerge in June and July to feed, mate and lay eggs. Beetle activity is most intense for 4 to 5 weeks beginning in late June. Grub damage occurs late July into Sep-

While beetle numbers can be high and damage severe, trees and shrubs recover. Annual plants like vegetables and flowers can be killed or yields reduced. Feeding on fruits will reduce quality and yield.

Controlling Japanese beetles is challenging. On established trees and large shrubs, it may be best to do nothing. Coverage with insecticide sprays is difficult and repeated applications are needed with many beneficial insects also killed.

On newly planted trees and shrubs as well as roses, flowers and vegetables, beetles can be knocked off into a bucket of soapy water. While time consuming, early morning or about 7 pm is a good time to do this as beetles are sluggish.

If insecticides are applied to smaller plants, products containing pyrethroids such as cyflurthrin or bifenthrin provides 2 to 3 weeks control. Sevin has a shorter control period of 1 to 2 weeks. The organic insecticides Neem and Pyola deter beetles for 3 to 4 days. Be sure to read and follow label directions.

Do NOT purchase inexpensive traps for Japanese beetles. These attract more to your yard and garden than they kill. And again, do not try to kill the grubs in an effort to reduce beetles since new beetles flv in.

Japanese beetles are a fairly new pest to Nebraska but are here to stay. When selecting plants, avoid their favorites. Along with lindens, roses and grapes, these include Norway and Japanese maple, horse chestnut, American elm, cherry, plum, and crabapple.

Some trees and shrubs not preferred by Japanese beetle are red oak, tuliptree, Magnolia, red maple, pine, Hydrangea, Japanese Yew, lilac, Juniper, Forsythia and coralberry. Perennials they tend to avoid are Columbine, Coreopsis, Dianthus, coralbell, lily and Veronica. Annual flowers not preferred are Ageratum, snapdragon, cockscomb, Begonia and Nasturtium.

Virtual on-line workshops are also scheduled. Visit cap.unl.edu/abc/ training to see the full slate of upcoming scheduled workshops and for the registration link.

The Agricultural Budget Calculator (ABC) is a free enterprisebudgeting and decision-making tool that is designed to assist agricultural producers in determining their cost of production and projected cash and economic returns for various farm or ranch enterprises.

"We're continuing to develop the Ag Budget Calculator program. Producers can enter and track hands-on demonstrations of combining enterprise budgets using the "whole farm" component of the program and more on using other features, including breakeven, crop comparison and risk analysis.

Workshop attendees are encouraged to bring their own laptop or mobile device to work on their own budgets. Mobile lab computers will be available as needed for the inperson workshops.

The workshops are free to attend, but registration is required at least two days prior to the workshop date, at https://cap.unl.edu/ abc or by calling Stacey Bonham at 402.472.1742.
