Purchase of property, project updates on agenda

The purchase of three parcels of land by the City of Wayne were on the agenda when the Wayne City Council met in regular session on Tuesday.

These purchases were discussed at length in closed session by the council.

They include 513 Main Street the Ameritas Life Insurance Corporation Building), 517 Logan Street (Ameritas Life Insurance Corporation Parking Lot) and property currently owned by First Methodist Church of Wayne north of the Ameritas Building on Main Street.

Following the executive session, council voted to allow city staff to move forward with negotiations on these properties.

An update on discussions with the Wayne Community Schools on the future of Wayne Community Activity property was shared.

Mayor Cale Giese told the council he has been in contact with Wayne Schools' Superintendent Dr. Mark Lenihan and the school plans to continue to do its due diligence in regard to the property.

Council member Brent Pick, who is a member of the school's facility committee, told the council the committee is in favor of the location west of the Activity Center for a Pre-K through second grade facility that would be all one level.

Additional information will be available after a facilities committee meeting planned for Nov. 10.

Information was provided to the council on the R. Perry project in the southeast portion of Wayne.

City Administrator Wes Blecke told the council that "lots of dirt is being moved and topsoil is being moved to the lagoon area, to be used there. At least one pad (for the apartments) will be put in yet this fall. Applications for the apartments will be taken in March with a move-in date by next August."

The R. Perry firm is also working on several projects in connection with the lake to be constructed.

Jason Karsky, representing the Stool to Cool Committee, told the council the group has recently conducted a 60% design meeting. He shared a number of drawings in regard to the project and talked about several changes that are being made to make a roadway safer.

He said that the plan is to have a 90% design meeting in December, go out for bids in January of 2023 and start construction in spring of 2023.

Council member Chris Woehler said the group needed to be sure that a temporary road is in place due to "all the traffic that is down there in the spring."

Council members approved as pay application of $28,447.00 to OCC Builders for work done on the Freedom Park Trailhead Project.

An update was given on the work that has been completed. It was noted that materials have been slow in coming in for the work that needs to be completed.

In other action, the council voted to set the date for a mini-retreat. It will be held Tuesday, Nov. 29 at 5:30 p.m. at the Wayne Fire Hall.

In an update on the Bradley J. Woehler and Bradley F. Roberts vs. City of Wayne litigation matter, City Attorney Amy Miller told the council that case has been dismissed. Both the City of Wayne and R. Perry have signed papers indicating they will not counter-sue.

The Wayne City Council will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, Nov. 15 at 5:30 p.m. in council chambers.

Halloween fun

Summer-like temperatures greeted trick-or-treaters this year and the opportunity to collect candy in a central location made it even better. Short agenda greets commissioners

By Clara Osten, clara@wayneherald.com

Tuesday's meeting of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners lasted just over a half hour with commissioners receiving a number of updates and approving a resolution.

County Treasurer Tammy Paustian presented a number of distress warrants for several properties with unpaid taxes. This includes a number of trailer homes.

Paustian said the numbers of these properties is comparable to other years. She said 99.16% of taxes have been collected this year.

Wayne County Emergency Manager Nic Kemnitz updated the commissioners on recent activity, including providing assistance during a wildfire near Wisner on Oct. 23.

Kemnitz said he was asked to provide assistance just before 5 p.m. When severe weather threatened Wayne County at approximately 6 p.m., he returned to Wayne for a period of time until the storm moved out of Wayne County.

He returned to Wisner to assist with the wildfire and arrived at the Command Post at approximately 7:30 p.m. He then assisted Cuming County Emergency Manager Jeff McGill and remained in the area until 3:45 a.m. on the morning of Oct. 24.

Kemnitz told the commissioners that the fire started on the south side of the Elkhorn River, south of Wisner and firefighters from 14 departments worked to keep the south wind from pushing it north across the river.

"During the event, I helped with a lot of coordination with the number of departments that were there," he said.

Kemnitz also presented a quote for the purchase of a software update for a radio that was purchased in 2015. The cost for the upgrade is just over $1,100 and the purchase made through the State of Nebraska. It will be paid with funds from Kemnitz's budget.

Road Superintendent Mark Casey presented a map of the county to each of the commissioners, highlighting bridges in the county that may be eligible for County Bridge Match Program (CBMP) funding. Casey asked the commissioners to look over the list and make a decision at the next meeting on which of these bridges the county would be applying for grant funding.

Casey said the Quitclaim Deed and property transfer has been received for the Union Pacific property at Winside. He said he is working on an agreement for the purchase of a small piece of property in the same area that the county has actually been using for a number of years.

Commissioners approved Resolution 22-20, which is the Year-End Certification of the County Superintendent.

Commissioner Dean Burbach presented an update from the Safety Committee. He noted that the AEDs are all in and tornado shelters have been set up in Districts 2 and 3.

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners will next meet in regular session on Tuesday, Nov. 15 at 9 a.m. at the Wayne County Courthouse.

City Council meetings

Regular Wayne City Council meetings are at 5:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of each month in City Hall at Third and Pearl Streets. Come on by and let us know how we are doing. We won't even charge you for compliments! CDBG Award

The City of Wayne has received a $433,000 grant from the State of Nebraska to enhance the trail system and drainage issues from the main gates of Greenwood Cemetery west to Bomgaars. This trail/sidewalk has been discussed for years by the City Council. This past summer the Council decided to apply to the State for some funds to complete this project. The opinion of cost by the engineer was $875,000, so only about 40% of this grant covers the estimated cost. The rest of the funds would likely come from sales tax revenue. The City will need to work in conjunction with the cemetery board to make this project a success as some of its property may be needed to adhere to ADA guidelines. I am sure the two entities can reach an agreement with a win-win solution. By the time this project gets designed and bid out for work, construction wouldn't happen until late 2023 at the very soonest and in all reality probably wouldn't get built until spring/summer 2024. Perry Construction and ahead on the 144-unit apartment complex on East 4th Street. With the weather likely changing soon, it is still unknown how many foundations they will get in the ground by winter. The goal is to have one pad for sure and possibly two poured yet this fall. Perry plans to begin to start leasing as soon as March with an open date for one of the 36-unit buildings available in August 2023. The clubhouse and pool will likely be completed before this August date. The Prairie Park grading plan is nearly completed by Olsson. Once that plan is final, Olsson will bid this project for a hopeful construction in spring 2023. This construction will set the grading on the park including elevations for the roads and recreation fields. The plan also will call for the building pad for a new Parks and Recreation building/office to be located off of Fairgrounds Ave. The Stool To Cool Task Force will continue to work with the engineer on costs. One item being considered is paving curbs for the parking lot areas. While this is very expensive to do, it does help with keeping whatever aggregate the City uses inside those lots, creating less staff maintenance time. Stay tuned for another update in December.

Council Retreat

The City Council will hold its next retreat on Tuesday, Nov. 29 at 5:30 p.m. at the Firehall. While the agenda will not be set until the week prior to the retreat, some possible items include water supply. electrical system future, and community housing needs. Retreats are public meetings open to all, just like any Council meeting!

Wayne State and Little Priest Tribal College to hold signing ceremony

Little Priest Tribal College (LPTC) will hold a joint press conference to sign new partnership agreements at 11:30 a.m. Monday, Nov. 7, in the Elkhorn Room of the Student Center at WSC. Media are invited to attend the event.

WSC and LPTC will be entering into articulation agreements for programs in biology, chemistry and elementary education. "We have a remarkable history of cooperation and collaboration with Little Priest Tribal College," Dr. Marysz Rames, president of Wayne State, said. "These agreements open the door to new pathways for students with a passion for science and education, two areas that benefit from innovative partnerships that draw on the strengths of our institutions."

"Little Priest Tribal College is thrilled to continue our partnership with Wayne State College with the three new articulation agreements," Manoj Patil, president of Little Priest Tribal College, said. For Mayor of Wayne

We have a great city staff of dedicated employees that care about our community. They are truly vital to our community yes; we need to replace the aging water and sewer lines below our streets. I will work to improve all that and find a way to get an indoor pool. Dispatch needs to stay local so locals can help locals and keep jobs in Wayne. The Wayne PD needs our full support to protect our community and have better options to deal with humanitarian issues. The problem resolution team was a good start, but I have found it was using a heavy hand and turns neighbor against neighbor; we must find a better way!

Lastly, Housing is the current crisis that this government seems to think they need to solve by manipulating the market when it was them that caused it. Their constant changing of rules and support or lack thereof for developers and builders has gotten us here and picking winners and losers is not their job. We need to come up with clear consistent polices that allow all of them to do what they do best and let's get back to making Wayne Work!

I have enjoyed listening/talking to many of you during this campaign and look forward to continuing hearing your vision for Wayne's future, It's our community let's do this together!

Trojan netters can't overcome slow start in district final

For The Herald

STROMSBURG — A slow start proved to be too much for the Wakefield volleyball team to overcome.

A 10-2 start by Cross County put the momentum squarely on the Cougars' side of the court Saturday afternoon, and Wakefield couldn't quite swing it back in their direction as they dropped a 25-10, 25-23, 25-18 decision in the C2-3 district finals at Cross County High School.

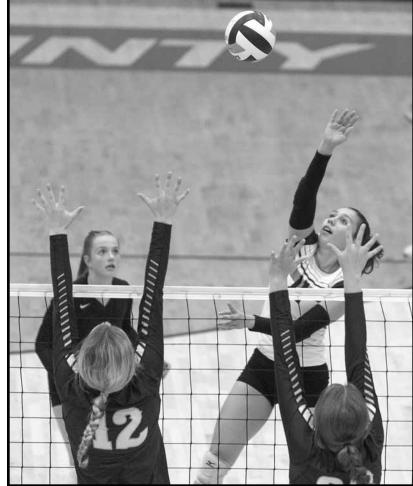

Wakefield had trouble handling Cross County's serving in the early going, as the Cougars recorded three of their five service aces in the opening frame and put the Trojans back on their heels.

"That first set was very rough," coach Brittaney Eisenmann said after the game. "After that set, we talked about getting our passes to our setter. We did a better job of that in the second and third sets and were able to put the ball down, but we just didn't handle the ball well in the early going."

Cross County's quick-set attack had Wakefield's defense guessing for much of the opening set. Back-to-back terminations by Bren Lemburg and Lilly Peterson and a Wakefield error made it 21-6 and helped the Cougars cruise to the first-set win.

Wakefield came out early in the second set and seemed to have things going their way. An ace serve by Alex Arenas and a kill by Daveigh Munter-McAfee gave the Trojans their first lead of the day at 4-3, and the teams traded leads for much of the set after that.

A dump by Jordan Metzler made it 15-13 and Wakefield maintained the advantage until the Cougars came up with a three-point run on kills by Lemburg and an ace by > Munter-McAfee hit .304 with 11 kills on 23 swings and four errors and shared kill honors with Arenas, who hit .156. Brown added three kills, Metzler had two and Katie Borg had one. Metzler had 21 assists and Borg and Makenna Decker both had one. Brown, Arenas and Metzler each had ace serves. Defensively, Borg had 11 digs, Arenas had 10, Munter-McAfee recorded eight, Metzler had five and Brown and Decker each had three, with Decker recording a block.

Although the Trojans didn't make it to state, Eisenmann said the team has a lot to be proud of, including an 11-game winning streak and conference and district runner-up

'We have a lot to be proud of with what we accomplished this year," she said. "We've had a lot of growth the last three years and went on that streak at the end and everybody was really working together. We were determined to get to state, but even getting this far is a really big accomplishment.'

The Wayne State volleyball team finished the home portion of its 2022 schedule with three wins, finishing the first undefeated home schedule in team history.

Discovering more about the benefits of insects

Araceli Gomez Villegas has observed that the rallying cry "Save the insects!" draws far less enthusiasm than one like "Save the pandas!" She hopes her work in entomology can help change that.

"The perception I get from other people is that insects are gross and not likeable, so I kind of like the idea of working in a field and with an animal that is a little bit of the underdog, not seen in the best light at times, and trying to make more well known the benefits that they bring and that they can be cuddly, too, in a different way," she says.

She came from San Diego to Nebraska to study pollinators in West Central Nebraska as part of the National Science Foundation's National Research Traineeship. Her master's project has six field sites, each with a Conservation Reserve Program grassland and, adjacent to it, a crop field. Five of the crop fields grow corn and one grows soybeans.

Gomez Villegas is looking at the types of pollinators that live in the adjacent CRP grasslands and how they might affect yield in the crop fields. She is focusing on native bees, counting them and identifying each species, but also counting butterflies and syrphid flies.

Native bees differ from the honeybees brought to North America by European settlers in that they generally live alone instead of in hives and don't produce honey. Without a hive or honey to protect, most do not sting. They come in a variety of colors and markings, and some species are endangered or threatened. Gomez Villegas's project is part of a Department of Energy project looking at switching from corn biofuel production to perennial grass biofuel production. She is using the CRP grasslands as a proxy to pe-

Usually, the sites had a road separating the grassland and the crop field, and the first transect lines ran parallel to the road, measuring 10 meters from it on both sides, and the second transect lines measured another 100 meters into the grassland and crop field from the first. The students

Their hypothesis was that they would see more pollinators at the edge of a crop field than at the center of it, as a sort of spillover of pollinators from the adjacent CRP grassland, Gomez Villegas says. However, the season was very dry, and they counted few insects with the transect method.

The students also monthly placed nine sticky cards on three poles, a yellow, a blue and a white card on each pole, to catch insects and see the species attracted to each color. Gomez Villegas would collect the cards after three days and take them back to freeze them and then remove the insects to identify species and counts in each. She is still processing these cards $% \left(1\right) =\left(1\right) \left(1\right) \left($ and learning to identify the different species of native bees. There are about 4,000 native bees in the United States, so she says she has much to learn but most of the bees on her cards appear to be sweat

In the second part of her project, Gomez Villegas planted sunflowers in the fields for one week in July and August. During each week, she went out three times to observe pollinators and also kept a camera on a flower to observe it. Next, she will process the video and count the sunflower seeds and weigh them, to gauge how much pollination occurred and whether that correlated to a higher yield.

Her preliminary results from the sunflower observations suggest that the soybean field had the most insects visiting flowers, even compared with the grasslands. The CRP grassland adjacent to the soybean field had tall grass without many flowers, but the soybean plants were in bloom, full of flow-

"It makes sense because you have this field," she says. "They get irrigated, and so you do have very consistent floral resources."

She plans to repeat her experiments next summer to better understand whether CRP sites can help sustain insect populations. "Hopefully, something that we can be able to answer with this type of research is are there enough floral resources at the site to be able to sustain insect populations, or if there aren't, how can we change that?" she says.

CRP programs vary, and growers could maybe use seed mixes with more flowers to better sustain pollinators, she says.

Another hope that Gomez Villegas says she holds for her and Stowe's research is that they can show growers that pollinators increase crop yield and predators can lower the need for pesticides.

"I like the idea that my research will help conserve and protect insects in general and have more people thinking about them as beneficial and wanting to protect maybe not just the insects but also habitat and then have this research assist with that conversation," she says.

Collage of topics covered this week

So, this week will be a collage of things; I'm going to write them down as they happen instead of waiting to the last minute and trying to recall things that did.

For starters, there was a 59 cent cup of coffee! An old friend arrived on the spur of the moment on Monday and we went to Nebraska City the next day for tree color and apples. Since it would be an hour's drive, I only allowed myself one cup of the caffeinated stuff before we left. So, I felt the need of a second cup and we went to Burger King because their restrooms are in the front! (A helpful thing, sometimes.) The coffee pots were on the counter, along with to-go cups and the charge was 59 cents! I can't remember when a cup of coffee was less than a dollar!

Actually, thinking about this, I remembered the coffee is free in a cafe in Waverly, when ordered with breakfast. And their breakfasts are also inexpensive. Waco High's alums from '55 and '56 get together there once in a while. It's good be-

And, speaking of feed, I read an article about Jose Andres, founder of World Central Kitchen, last night. This guy is a renowned chef who decided twelve years ago there has to be a way to provide food for the survivors of earthquakes, floods, tornadoes, and even war! Corporate donors have stepped up, but two-thirds of donations come from individuals, from philanthropists to kids with lemonade stands.

I'm going to promote nominating him for president! He saw a need, and took care of it; that's becoming a rare aptitude!

Otherwise, my week has been as usual; boring! The only other thing I did was go to the dental college. to four months. On my last visit friend wondered what was going to silver, and something called commouth x-ray

So, a week later, I had that, by a student, but she did a good job. I learned this student is a nurse who has decided dentistry would provide a better schedule for raising a family; I told her that was not a good plan; we need more nurses, not more dentists..

Anyway, sure enough, they found an old filling "pulling away" and I had yet another appointment to have that ground out and new put in. A younger student was assigned to assist and when I asked him where he was from, he said, Norfolk! It turned out he was a friend and classmate of my grandson, Myles. I know we are all inter connected, but out of a room FULL of students, how did someone from Norfolk get assigned to me? I caught up on his siblings and just chuckled to myself; Nebraska is a very small state! At least, when it comes to us moving around. Oh, and the dental college is a deal; you get the work for half the price, but it takes twice as long;

fall's insect invasion By Kathleen Cue, Nebraska Extension

Horticulture Educator

As nights cool, it's not unusual to see an increase in the number of insects and spiders (collectively known as arthropods) inside the

On average, homes have 200+ species of arthropods living there. Keep in mind this isn't a total of 200 insects and spiders, but instead of 200 species, with multiples of each not being at all unusual.

There are reasons why arthropods make their way indoors. Some, like crickets and millipedes, are seeking warmth, with heated homes offering a reprieve from cool temperatures. Other arthropods are predators, like ground beetles and spiders, following the prey in-

What can be done to minimize the number of arthropods found indoors? First and foremost, seal all entry points. The smallest crack or opening is an easy access point for insects, wolf spiders, millipedes, centipedes, and leaf-footed bugs. Close openings with a siliconebased caulk as this shrinks less than latex types do. Next, look at the lighting over the front, side, back, and garage doors. Use yellow-colored lights or warm LED bulbs to discourage insects congregating around outdoor lights and allowing easy access every time a door

Adopt a cleaning strategy to discourage hiding places and food sources. Clear away fallen leaves around the foundation and indoors frequently sweep to remove bits of food found on floors. A final strategy is to use boxed sticky traps (found in hardware stores) inside the home to catch these occasional invaders and monitor what's found inside the home.

The Asian lady beetle, dermestid beetles, and boxelder bugs like to overwinter beneath a structure's siding. These insects are not readily found indoors until spring, when warmer weather induces activity that results in them moving through wall voids to the inside of the home. These insects are best cleaned up with the aid of a vacuum cleaner. If an insecticide is used it should be applied in September with a perimeter spray outside of the home to discourage access to the home's siding.

Remember that most of the arthropods we find indoors come from outside. Considered nuisance pests most of these arthropods cause no harm to structures or people.

Soybean Residue For Forage By Ben Beckman

Forage this fall is tight and crop residues offer a cost-effective opportunity for cows to graze or for baling and feeding later. We've looked at corn and sorghum residues previously, so let's take some time to assess the quality of soybean resi-

Soybeans themselves are very high in protein and fat. At about 40% Crude Protein and 20% fat the beans themselves can be a good feed source when fed in moderation. The high fat content can cause issues with rumen function, especially in young calves, so before letting animals out to graze a bean field, clean up any piles of spilled grain.

hand, have a much different feed composition. Empty bean pods and stems contain only 4 to 6% CP and the TDN is only 35 to 45%. Soybean leaves are slightly higher in protein at 12%, but the leaves break down quickly and are usually no longer available for consumption once harvest has been completed.

With these qualities, soybean residues are unable support the nutritional requirements of a dry cow even if there is some grain left in the field. There is still opportunity to graze soybean residue in conjunction with a supplemented highquality feed. Not only does this provides rest to pastures, but can help stretch feed resources while still ensuring the cow is properly fed.

Baled soybean residue can be used as a roughage source in rations if needed. Just like grazing, baled soybean residue does not meet cow requirements, with even Soybean residue may not be the quality we often think. While it can be used to rest pasture and stretch feed resources, residue alone will not meet even a dry cow's nutrient requirements. Supplementation will be needed if you decide to utilize your soybean residue.

Fall Grazing Of Alfalfa By Jerry Volesky

With pastures running short this year because of drought, there has been interest grazing alfalfa in the fall. In some cases, the alfalfa may not have been big enough to warrant haying or maybe you have an alfalfa field that is adjacent to some cornstalks. A side benefit is that grazing alfalfa in late fall or winter can reduce alfalfa weevil infestations by removing stems and plant parts that serve as a wintering site or a spring laying site for weevil

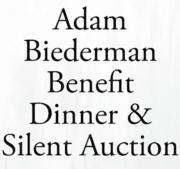

Even though it is early-November, alfalfa is still quite green, de-peratures in the twenties. There may be some wilting and yellowing, especially on the top, but most leaves still are attached to the plant

The real question often being asked is "Can I be sure my cows won't bloat if they graze my alfalfa?". To be quite honest, you never can be 100 percent certain that alfalfa won't cause bloat. Bloat occurs in ruminant livestock when gas produced during fermentation becomes trapped inside the rumen.

Bloat risk is much lower a week after a hard freeze that causes wilting. But always use good management methods to reduce the risk further. Have cows full before turning out to alfalfa. Wait until midday, after frost or dew is gone, before turning out. Provide other dry, palatable feeds or even bloat retardants. And keep a close eye on them for the first couple days.

Alfalfa can be grazed safely. Just

USDA launches loan assistance tool to enhance equity and customer service

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) launched a new online tool to help farmers and ranchers better navigate the farm loan application process. This uniform application process will help to ensure all farm loan applicants receive equal support and have a consistent customer experience with USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) regardless of their individual circumstances.

"USDA recognizes more must be done to ensure all customers have equal access to our programs and services," said FSA Administrator Zach Ducheneaux. "The Loan Assistance Tool is another example of USDA taking accountability and ensuring we update our existing systems, processes, and policies to make them equitable for all customers. The tool will help loan applicants better understand the application process and gather the needed documents before the process even begins.'

USDA experiences a high rate of incomplete or withdrawn applications, particularly among underserved customers, due in part to a challenging and lengthy paper-based application process. The Loan Assistance Tool is available 24/7 and gives customers an online step-by-step guide that supplements the support they receive when working in person with a US-DA employee, providing materials that may help an applicant prepare their loan application in one tool.

Farmers can access the Loan Assistance Tool by visiting farmers.gov/farm-loan-assistance-tool and clicking the 'Get Started' button. From here they can follow the prompts to complete the Eligibility Self-Assessment and start the farm loan journey. The tool is built to run on any modern browser like Chrome, Edge, Firefox, or the Safari browser, and is fully functional on mobile devices. It does not work in Internet Explorer.

The Loan Assistance Tool is the first of multiple farm loan process improvements that will be available to USDA customers on farmers.gov in the future. Other improvements and tools that are anticipated to launch in 2023 include:

·A streamlined and simplified direct loan application, reduced from 29 pages to 13 pages. ·An interactive online direct loan application that gives customers a paperless and electronic signature option, along with the ability to attach supporting documents such as tax returns.

·An online direct loan repayment feature that relieves borrowers from the necessity of calling, mailing, or visiting a local Service Center to pay a loan installment. USDA provides access to credit to approximately 115,000 producers who cannot obtain sufficient commercial credit through direct and guaranteed farm loans. To learn more about FSA farm loan programs, visit farmers.gov/loans.

Local youth selling board game

Board games have been popular for years. Now, residents of the Wayne area have a new board game available with a local twist. The Wayne, Nebraska edition of Hometown USA Family Board Game is now available for purchase in Wayne.

In 1990 and 1991, Jeff and Jackie Olsen came up with the idea of developing a board game to promote wholesome values and help local church youth groups and other non-profit organizations raise money.

Through the next several years, the Olsen family shared different ideas for the game. In 2001 and 2002, after much hard work, decision-making, creative thoughts and prayer, Hometown USA Family Fun Board Game became a reality and was ready to market.

First Choice Enterprises, Inc., owned by the Olsen family, now brings this promotion to communities across the nation.

The Clampetts hit Kansas City

By MIKE RENNING mikesportshome@yahoo.com

The Darling Wife goes on several crips every year with her friends.

She knows better than to invite me, because I don't want to go sit on a beach somewhere. I have gone hiking with her on a couple of trips, but I'd rather go to a game of some nature somewhere - which I did.

And oh, my did we take a trip, not the Darling Wife, mind you, but the people I knew would want to go to a football game.

I called our son Max, who is a huge Kansas City Chiefs fan and asked if he would want to go to the Monday Night game with the now Las Vegas Raiders near my birthday (which was Oct. 12 - my birthday for those of you who didn't send me a Snickers bar) and he said

I bought four tickets thinking other friends or family would go along - and they did just that.

Maxwell, my brother David and my brother-in-law Mike headed to Kansas City on Monday morning, Oct. 10 according to my affidavit.

They left at 4 a.m. and I met them in Omaha. They had troubles before they got to Omaha as my brother forgot his wallet and they locked the keys in Max's pickup in Clearwater.

Mike (Ferguson) is a judge at a lot of rodeos around the state and... he knows about as many people as I do around the state.

A guy he knew stopped to say "hello" and Max came out of the restroom and said the keys were locked in the pickup.

Buddy had the equipment to unlock the vehicle and send that trio (Maxwell, brother David and Mike Ferguson) along their way.

In true Nebraska fashion, Mike's

It was just the tip of the iceberg for these country people heading to the big city. We arrived in Kansas City a little after noon and were naturally hun-

We stayed downtown so we decided to go look for food on foot - didn't want to pay to park two or three times in a day. Went to a nice sports bar/restaurant in some section of Kansas City Max knew and sat at a table.

Nice little waitress came up and asked if we knew what we wanted

I told her we didn't have any

She proceeded to show me a little square on our table we were supposed to take a picture of and that was the menu.

I handed her my phone and asked her to "hook me up with food."

Well, the menu was there when she pushed whatever buttons on my phone that were necessary and proceeded to show the rest of the 'Clampetts" at the table the same information and we ordered food.

We left the sports bar/restaurant and left a pretty nice tip on the table - in cash.

We were sitting in the outdoor/ indoor section of the sports bar/ restaurant and this "goofy" looking guy with a book-bag attached to his back entered the establishment.

The son of someone walked by our table and swiped the money on

That really pis...made me mad. We restored the tip and after searching the area we couldn't find that "goofy looking son...guy".

Ok, so then we went to the game, eventually. I just know, we may have been the "Clampetts" but, oh my, we had a blast being the 'Clampetts" together.

We spent a lot of cash on Uber, we were taken advantage of by several people we encountered, but we had a blast - we all had more money than sense.

Good heavens, I fell into a "canleft the place.

I know, I know, there are no "canyons" near Arrowhead Stadium or whatever corporate name the place is called now, but it was at least a ditch...and I fell into it.

Broke my glasses, cut my eye and ended up with more bumps and bruises than we could all count,

The "Clampetts" may have hit Kansas City, but we hit the place together - man did we have a blast.

It was the trip I envisioned. And, by the way, the Chiefs won, which made Maxwell extremely happy, the rest of us were just glad to survive and be around for the trip home.

Did I mention we had a blast? 'Canyon and all"?

Broken glasses and all, we really had a blast. I hope we go back soon.

Probably not this season as the Darling Wife and I's insurance only pays for one set of glasses in a 12-month period...and I know I mentioned we had a blast.

Clerk of the Legislature Pat O'Donnell retiring

Commentary by J.L. Schmidt Statehouse Correspondent

Nebraska Press Association

The longest serving clerk of the Nebraska Legislature said he was first alerted of coming changes to the nonpartisan nature of things about five years ago.

Patrick J. O'Donnell has been clerk for 44 years. He has been appointed to that post every two years and serves at the pleasure of the Executive Board. He's retiring at the end of the year, meaning the 2023 Unicameral will tab his successor. He will be sorely missed, not only for his institutional memory but also for his knowledge of the rules and regs that keep things running smoothly.

Clerk doesn't begin to cover what O'Donnell brought to the session each year. Manager would better fit the daily task of making sure the elected Speaker of the Legislature or the reigning Lieutenant Governor followed the agenda and kept things on track. His legal advice to the two individuals came from a law degree, years of experience and a thorough knowledge of legislative rules and the state constitution.

He was, as one pundit observed, "the canary in the coal mine."

A canary in a coal mine is an advanced warning of danger. The metaphor originates from the times when miners used to carry caged canaries while at work (1911-1986); if there was any methane or carbon monoxide in the mine, the canary would die before the levels of the gas reached those hazardous to humans.

Fortunately, O'Donnell isn't dead, but he's leaving the cage.

When the 2017 Legislature convened with a predetermined and very partisan list of committhings were changing. Republicans orchestrated and captured every chairmanship except two. The current move afoot to require record voting on Committee chairmanships (they've been secret ballots since the Unicameral began) is just

Leading the way to cleaner, more affordable, American-made fuel

By Gov. Pete Ricketts

There's no reason why the U.S. should be reliant on authoritarian regimes like Iran, Russia, and Venezuela to supply the fuel we need. We have more than enough resources to restore our energy independence and bring fuel prices In Nebraska, we're doing our part to grow biofuels production right here in America's Heartland.

Embracing ethanol offers several benefits to consumers and commu-

For starters, it saves drivers money at the pump. At a time when American families are strapped for cash due to rising inflation, ethanol offers savings. A study released on Oct.13, 2022, by ABF Economics estimated that "expanding E15 use to the nation's entire motor gasoline supply" would save an average American household $168 per year. Nationwide, it would reduce annual consumer spending on motor fuel by $20.6 billion.

Filling up with ethanol also leads to a cleaner environment. According to the USDA, ethanol reduces greenhouse gas emissions by 43 percent compared to gasoline. Additional studies have shown that, when compared to E10, E15 further reduces emissions of particulate matter by 18%, carbon monoxide by 17%, and NOx by 3%. This effect is even more pronounced when higher ethanol blends are considered. Converting just 10 percent of the U.S. on-road fleet to E30 would result in a reduction of at emissions annually.

And ethanol strengthens Nebraska agriculture by providing opportunities for our farm families. Ethanol production generates demand for locally grown corn and increases the price farmers are paid for their harvest. Roughly 40% of corn grown in Nebraska is used to make ethanol. In July 2022, a joint study by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) and the Nebraska Ethanol Board reported that farmers in the immediate about 21.3 cents more per bushel for their corn. It's not just our farm families who benefit from ethanol. The commodity also creates greatpaying jobs in our rural communities. The UNL/Nebraska Ethanol Board study estimated that the ethanol industry directly supports 1,460 jobs in Nebraska and indirectly supports over 3,000 more. These jobs have annual average earnings of $70,800.

We're conducting cutting-edge research to demonstrate the benefits of higher ethanol blends. In June 2019, the State of Nebraska began a study on the use of locally sourced E30 biofuel in conventional vehicles. State teammates outfitted 50 State-owned vehicles with onboard tracking systems to capture data on vehicle performance. They monitored those vehicles for an entire year. Data was submitted to engineers at UNL for analysis. In February 2021, UNL's Engineering Department released a report with its analysis of the data. It clearly showed that E30, a blend of gasoline and 30% ethanol, is safe and efficient to use in regular vehicles and created no maintenance issues.

This October, we received EPA approval for an expanded study of the benefits of E30. It will include up to 825 State vehicles. Scaling up our use of E30 in the State's vehicle fleet will underscore what we've already proven—E30 can be used in regular vehicles without reducing performance. Under current EPA guidelines, only flex-fuel vehicles

E15. With our second phase study, use as feedstock. we'll be in an even stronger position to advocate regulatory change to make E30 accessible to everyone.

We've also passed legislation to help our ethanol facilities make in Hastings. The facility is schedthe most of new technologies. Last year, I signed LB 650 into law to establish a legal and regulatory framework to store carbon dioxide underground in Nebraska.

Companies like Carbon America, Navigator CO2, Summit Carbon Solutions, and Tallgrass Energy have embarked on major projects that will allow Nebraska ethanol facilities to securely capture, transfer, and store carbon emissions. Last month, for example, Carbon America announced a partnership with Bridgeport Ethanol to capture and store 95% of the plant's annual donates to emissions—roughly 175,000 tons of CO2 per year. As Nebraska produces cleaner-burning fuels using carbon sequestration, we're helping conventional vehicles achieve a carbon footprint similar to, if not cleaner than, the footprint from manufacturing and charging electric vehicles.

As we invest in research and use technologies to grow ethanol in Nebraska, we're actively promoting the benefits of biofuels around the world. In 2021, Nebraska exported over $375 million of ethanol. That's up more than 50% from 2014. We're looking to build on this growth.

In August, we highlighted the benefits of ethanol during our trade mission to the United Kingdom. Last year, the UK upped its ethanol blending requirement for all gasoline from 5% to 10%, generating demand for biofuels. Ethanol offers a great solution for consumers in the UK concerned about rising fuel costs and looking to reduce their carbon footprint. We will continue to highlight the advantages of ethanol to Nebraska's key international trade partners.

As the United States looks for cleaner, more sustainable sources of energy, renewable diesel also offers a great opportunity to use Nebraska products to create clean fuels. Over the past few years, communities in Nebraska have successfully attracted processors producing or treating the feedstocks used to make renewable diesel. In March 2021, Marathon started operations at a facility in Beatrice to pretreat 3,000 barrels per day of feedstock chairs available for use on state for its renewable diesel plant in park landscapes across the state. This week, Heartwell Renewables (a partnership between Love's and Cargill) is breaking ground on a renewable diesel production facility uled to open in the summer of 2024 and will use rendered beef fat to produce 80 million gallons of renewable diesel each year. It's bringing 50 jobs to Hastings.

If you'd like to learn more about the steps we're taking to promote biofuels in Nebraska and beyond please email pete.ricketts@nebraska.gov or call 402-471-2244.

Legion wheelchair program at state parks

The Nebraska American Legion recently donated $16,055 to the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission for the purchase of an allterrain wheelchair for state park visitors.

Game and Parks currently has two of the tracked wheelchairs at Ponca State Park. The chairs provide people the freedom of mobility to hunt, fish, view nature and enjoy the outdoors in all types of terrain. "This track chair is going to give disabled veterans the kind of mobility and independence they need to go out and enjoy the outdoors," said Dave Salak, the state adjutant for the Nebraska American Legion, who presented the check to Game and Parks in a recent ceremony. I could hear the eerie call of the covote (before my dogs joined in and drowned it out) and raccoons chattering at each other in the trees. I'm sure there were other things out there that were too soft for me to hear, but it got me thinking about what happens in nature as the seasons change.

Women play vital role in men's health A hug when I come home after ingly, having sons or daughters a long day. A smile that melts my heart. A song and a dance that are spontaneous and carefree. Those are some of the blessings that come to mind when I think about my Daughters can be a blessing in so many ways, as can sons of course. However, when it comes to taking care of families, women often play a vital role. Whether it is a young mom with her baby, a concerned wife encouraging her husband to go to the doctor, or a loving daughter preparing her elderly father another meal, women are important for men's health.

Certainly, men are important for the health and well being of children, spouses, and parents as well. However, women naturally tend to be caregivers and stewards of a family's health. Studies have shown that having a daughter increases their father's life expectancy, while sons do not statistically contribute both decrease the life expectancy of their mothers, presumably due to the stress on the body.)

Thus, if one wants to promote men's health and awareness, one must reach the women!

This November, you may see a few more mustaches than usual, for the annual "No-shave November" sometimes called "Movember" for the "M" from "mustache", and intended to raise awareness of men's health issues such as prostate cancer, testicular cancer, and suicide.

Oftentimes the key to detecting and treating cancer is to catch it early. A preventative physical exam with a primary care provider can allow time to identify a person's health risk factors and decide on a strategy for screening and detecting disease. This wellness visit should also promote healthy efforts at diet and exercise that may prevent some diseases altogether.

And who is it that often encourages men to get their preventative physical and see the doctor? It's the mothers, wives, and daughters!

For this "Movember," I want to give a "thank you" to the women and anyone taking care of the men in their life. Thank you for encouraging them to get their health checked out and seeking help for mental illness. Thank you for being caregivers. Thank you for being a blessing and saving lives.

In addition, this year, the Nebraska Democratic and Libertarian parties have opened their primary elections per §32-912(2) to allow nonpartisan voters to vote in any race where their party is nominating a candidate for partisan office.

No such registered nonpartisan voter shall receive more than one such described partisan ballot.

Women play vital role in men's health

A hug when I come home after a long day. A smile that melts my heart. A song and a dance that are spontaneous and carefree. Those are some of the blessings that come to mind when I think about my daughter.

Daughters can be a blessing in so many ways, as can sons of course. However, when it comes to taking care of families, women often play a vital role. Whether it is a young mom with her baby, a concerned wife encouraging her husband to go to the doctor, or a loving daughter preparing her elderly father another meal, women are important for men's health.

Certainly, men are important for the health and well being of children, spouses, and parents as well. However, women naturally tend to be caregivers and stewards of a family's health. Studies have shown that having a daughter increases their father's life expectancy, while sons do not statistically contribute to paternal longevity. (Interestingly, having sons or daughters both decrease the life expectancy of their mothers, presumably due to the stress on the body.)

Thus, if one wants to promote men's health and awareness, one must reach the women!

This November, you may see a few more mustaches than usual, for the annual "No-shave November" sometimes called "Movember" for the "M" from "mustache", and intended to raise awareness of men's health issues such as prostate cancer, testicular cancer, and suicide.

Oftentimes the key to detecting and treating cancer is to catch it early. A preventative physical exam with a primary care provider can allow time to identify a person's health risk factors and decide on a strategy for screening and detecting disease. This wellness visit should also promote healthy efforts at diet and exercise that may prevent some diseases altogether.

And who is it that often encourages men to get their preventative physical and see the doctor? It's the mothers, wives, and daughters!

For this "Movember," I want to give a "thank you" to the women and anyone taking care of the men in their life. Thank you for encouraging them to get their health checked out and seeking help for mental illness. Thank you for being caregivers. Thank you for being a blessing and saving lives.
