WSC Collegiate Entrepreneurs' Organization brings home awards from conference

Wayne State College's Collegiate Entrepreneurs' Organization (CEO) chapter was awarded the "Best Cross Campus Innovation and Networking" second place award and was recognized as one of the top five CEO Global Chapters of the Year at the 39th annual Collegiate Entrepreneurs' Organization (CEO) Conference held Oct. 28-30 in Chicago. The conference features outstanding entrepreneurs and business leaders who share their expertise to infuse entrepreneurship into the fabric of colleges and

Nine WSC students (freshmen juniors) traveled to the conference to represent the Wayne State CEO chapter. CEO supports more than 16,500 emerging collegiate entrepreneurs annually across the globe. Through their global network of more than 250 college and university chapters, the organization's mission is to support and inspire the growth and development of students that seek to be entrepre-

Wayne State students who attended the conference included Aubrey Berg, a sophomore majoring in marketing and management from Bancroft; Abbie Gardner, a junior accounting major from Chadron; Caden S. Hansen, a freshman finance major from Bancroft; Ella Hostetler, a freshman majoring in management from Pleasant Dale, Aubree Howell, a junior marketing major from Omaha; Zoey Kreikemeier, a junior marketing major from West Point; Jaegher Ogden, a junior management major from Atkinson; Josie Zach, a freshman human resources major from Humphrey; and Bailee Zavala, a sophomore majoring in marketing from

Dr. Trish Kolterman, CEO faculty advisor, and Dr. Michael Keibler, Executive Director of Cooperative Education, attended the conference to engage in networking and walked away with best practices from other CEO chapters, presenters, and CEO leadership.

At the Chicago global conference, students networked with likeminded entrepreneurs, met and received mentorship from seasoned experts, and learned from watching global business competitions. On the WSC campus, the CEO chapter exposes Wayne State students to a viable path of "learning by doing" and encourages opportunities and pathways to become an entrepre-

"The CEO chapter has doubled its enrollment in the past year and created a real sense of belonging with students in the Growing Together Career Scholars program," Keibler said. "It is truly creating a more meaningful college experience for our students.'

Several of the WSC students who attended the conference shared their thoughts on the CEO chapter's success:

"The Collegiate Entrepreneurs' Organization (CEO) has provided my peers and me with endless opportunities. We have each grown in areas that are crucial for our future. CEO has been eye-opening because of the opportunities it has given me. I truly feel like I have accomplished and learned so much," said Aubrey Berg.

"Winning these awards brought a lot of morale to our group. It was encouraging as a new chapter to already be recognized for our achievements. It makes the Wayne State CEO Chapter more determined to win first place next year!" said Abbie Gardner.

"I am honored to be a part of such an amazing program here at Wayne State College. It was truly an incredible experience to attend the CEO Global Conference in Chicago and I am already looking forward to next year's event. I feel like we really bonded as a team and gathered a lot of valuable information that we can bring back to campus to improve our CEO chapter," said Caden S. Hansen.

"By joining CEO, I have been able to connect with upperclassmen who have the same passion for entrepreneurship as me. I am so grateful that I had the opportunity to attend the CEO Global Conference in Chicago. This conference gave me some of the tools I need to someday start my own business. The connections, the people, and the place made this one of the best trips!" said Ella Hostetler.

"CEO has impacted me a lot. I wouldn't have been able to network with other students and businesses from all over the country if it wasn't for this opportunity. I've made so many new friendships because of this program and have got to travel with them which is just an astonishing opportunity to have as a young professional," said Aubree

"CEO has impacted me significantly! I personally have a new look at becoming an entrepreneur. I am ecstatic to see the team receive 2nd in Cross Campus Innovation Award and make it to the Top 5 Global Chapters of the Year. We all worked hard to receive this award. We're excited about all of the new partnerships and can't wait for next year!" said Zoey Kreikemeier.

"The CEO Conference was a great opportunity for our chapter. We learned many things not only for our future but to grow our chapter as a whole. Being awarded 2nd place for the Cross Campus Innovation Award and being in the top 5 for the Global Chapter of the Year Award out of 250 plus organizations across the nation and other countries really shows that our hard work has paid off. We put Wayne on the map, and I am excited to see the progression of our chapter in years to come," said Jae-

"When I decided to join CEO this year, I wasn't entirely sure what I was getting myself into, but once I learned, I was so glad I became a member. Attending the Global Conference in Chicago was very beneficial to me in many ways. I became closer to the other members and made some lifelong friends while there. My mind was also opened to a new idea that I have been wanting to explore for a while now ... starting my own business. Getting to listen to the young entrepreneurs speak about how they had started their own businesses when they were my age, or even younger, really inspired me. On the trip, I made some memories that will last me a lifetime, while also exploring ideas with likeminded people. I am excited to see where CEO will take me in the next three years," said

This simple definition speaks to philanthropy's true potential to shape communities and their futures for the good because it encompasses all aspects of giving, includes all people in the process, and lets philanthropy become an accessible The money-only definition leaves part of civic life. Embracing this broader definition of philanthropy

Original Article by Tammy Day they will go beyond just helping members in creating vibrant, thriving your talents are physical and philanthropy is not just about the ing futures for their hometowns.

Philanthropy, defined as giving your time, talent, and treasure, opens the door to the world of giving and service and invites everyone to Giving. Because this new definition focuses on giving and the myrithat at the root of it all, philanthropy is about giving back.

Giving linked to more than just money broadens what is possible for communities by helping people see they have something to share, thus engaging more community members in the act of giving. Giving is often linked to feelings of gratitude, happiness, and connectedness to others, which can have a powerful effect on not only the recipient of those gifts but also the giver. When we give, we share a part of ourselves outside of our little world bubble and, in doing so, create powerful connections that have the potential to do good.

Time. Time can be given to help someone or something and to make a difference in communities and the lives of others. When we think of time, we often think of volunteering. Volunteers give their time and, while they do not receive money for their efforts, they may receive a variety of "gifts" in return. These gifts might be new relationships, a sense of accomplishment, a connection to the community and the other people in it, or new skills and abilities. Volunteers often express how much they love to give their time and that they receive so much in return, the phrase, "the more you give, the more you receive."

Many organizations and efforts in our communities would not happen without people sharing their time. Without volunteers, the community's nonprofits, churches, schools, neighborhood organizations, and other associations like them might not exist. Including time in a new approach to philanthropy highlights the value of participating in our common life together and contributing time to leave things just a little bit better than you found obvious like painting your neighbor's fence, serving food at the soup kitchen, or raking leaves for an elderly community member. Other talents are more intellectual, such as serving as the treasurer for your local parent-teacher organization, teaching Sunday school classes, or ad of gifts to share, it becomes clear reading to preschool students. And other talents are more of the heart like visiting nursing home residents, calling homebound church members, or mentoring students. Talent, in its many forms, is a gift you can share that fills unmet needs and wants in community life. Skills become powerful community assets when they serve the greater good. Giving your talent in this way fills a need in the community and contributes to a higher quality of life for community members.

Treasure. Treasure makes most people think of money. Giving money to projects and organizations is certainly a way to participate in philanthropy that has the power to do a lot of good. But this new, broader definition of philanthropy considers money as just one part of an equally balanced three-legged stool of gifts to be given. Here money is not the focus or sole purpose of philanthropy; it is just one more way to give back.

Using the word treasure, rather than the word money, also casts a wider net of possibility for communities. Treasure can refer to money but also to anything of high value or worth. Giving treasure could mean donating food to the food bank, taking clothes to the rescue mission, which is why we are familiar with or giving a used car to a charitable organization. Taking something of value and giving it to another is sharing your treasure.

The word treasure also implies that this gift is of great worth to the individual giving it. So what might be considered small amounts of money or goods are treated with the respect they deserve when we call them treasures. Although treasure will look different for everyone, everv bit of it can make a difference when added to the virtuous cycle of money, but about so much more, and can tap into a powerful force for community change. Redefining philanthropy helps generous Nebraskans participate more fully in their communities and in giving back in ways that can make a difference for generations to come.

first time spending multiple weeks at No. 1 in the AVCA coaches poll. A first time as host of the Central Regional.

Unfortunately, the Wildcats weren't able to survive a weekend that included five of the top 10 teams in the country, falling in the semifinals to St. Cloud State and seeing their magical 30-3 season come to an end.

"This team was special, no doubt about it," coach Scott Kneifl said after the WIldcats' four-set loss to St. Cloud State Saturday night. "We won our first outright conference title and hosted our first regional, won 30 games with the second highest (strength of schedule) in Div. II. Without a doubt, this is a special team, so this loss stings right now, but we're super proud of what they did this season.'

Having the home-court advantage made things a little different from the tournaments the team has been involved in this season in places like New York, Colorado and Minnesota, but the Wildcats found a way to keep a certain routine as they hosted the Central Regional for the first time.

"We try to keep it like a normal game day and do the things we normally do," setter Rachel Walker said. "Playing at home gave us a lot of confidence.' "We love playing anywhere and

> It took a little while to get going, as Harding held the early lead in the opening set. Trailing 7-5, Wayne State rallied with a nine-point run that included a pair of service aces by Havyn Heinz and two kills each from Beller and Cada to make it 14-7 and the Wildcats were able to cruise to the first-set win.

> Harding again held the early lead in the second set and built a 10-5 advantage before Wayne State got things going again. A kill by Brahmer broke a 15-15 tie and the Wildcats pulled away late to take the 2-0

> There would be no comeback needed in the final set. Wayne State broke an 8-8 tie with a 9-1 run, highlighted by kills from Cada, Brahmer Taylor Bunjer and Walker, who also had an ace serve in the rally. Walker found Beller on match point for the game-winner to send Wayne State to the semifinals and match the school's best single-season win total with its 30th.

> Brahmer and Cada had 12 and 11kills, respectively, to pace Wayne State. Walker recorded 30 assists. Cada had three aces and Heinz added two. The defense was led by senior Jessie Brandl with 17 digs, followed by Jordan McCormick with 13, Cada with 11 and Heinz with 10. Brahmer had four blocks while McCormick, Bunjer and Beller each had two.

> Saturday's semifinal with St. Cloud State was a non-stop battle between two top 10 teams that came down to the hot hand of St. Cloud sophomore Kenzie Foley, who racked up 30 kills and hit an astounding .431 percentage that proved to be too much for the Wild-

The first set of the four-set match was the longest of the tournament and saw both teams break serve at set point before the Huskies finally got the game winner.

St. Cloud fought off three set points before taking a 28-27 lead. Wayne State fought that set point off, but two errors gave the Huskies the opening set.

"That first set is important, but our kids didn't give up and competed through every point," Kneifl said. "Winning that first set could have changed the momentum."

St. Cloud carried that momentum into the second set, serving up four aces to take the 2-0 match advantage before the Wildcats rallied with a solid third set, as Brahmer and Cada both had four kills to keep ing down their left side," Kneifl said. "We lost the serve/pass battle at times and they played great. Even though things weren't going great, we fought and battled and competed hard together and it says a lot about what this team did this season.'

Cada led WSC with 18 kills followed by Beller with 17 and Brahmer with 15. Walker recorded 49 assists. Buntjer had eight blocks and Beller added seven. Brandl picked up 16 digs in her final match as a Wildcat.

Kneifl praised the work of his two seniors, Brandl and Elly Larson, both of whom were major contributors in the team's amazing season.

"Without a doubt, our seniors left it in a better place than when they got here," he said. "None of these kids had played in an NCAA tournament before and now we've hosted it, and moving forward we expect great things because of them."

Beller, a redshirt sophomore,

"We all embraced our roles really well and I feel we laid it all out on the floor ever game, and that's all we can do," she said. "It's amazing that we got to host regionals. A lot of us came in the same year, and it's crazy the talent we on our team."

Added Brandl, "Next year is going to be scary. I can't believe how many people we have on this team who want to win and the people coming in are going to be good. I'll be back to watch some games next year for sure."

Nine Wildcats were named to the All-NSIC team, with five receiving First Team honors and four more making the Second Team. Physical therapy is for everyone Physical therapists are experts in human movement who are trained to evaluate and treat all kinds of musculoskeletal issues. They are highly trained in prescribing and progressing exercise to help people move and feel better. Because everyone moves and everyone can benefit from exercise, physical therapists can help people through their entire lives.

Some people see a physical therapist shortly after birth. The most common reasons a baby would need to see physical therapy would be something like torticollis or cerebral palsy. Torticollis is a postural issue that causes babies to hold their heads tipped to one side. Cerebral palsy is a neurological disorder that causes difficulty with movement and coordination.

As children continue to grow, some have trouble hitting their motor milestones - like rolling, crawling, or walking. Physical therapists can use their expertise to help encourage development of motor skills and coordination to get these children back on track.

Sports injuries become more common in adolescents. Whether it's an ankle sprain, or an ACL surgery, a physical therapist can help. Some adolescents have issues from the rapid growth their bodies go through. Things like growth plate fractures, growing pains, Osgood-Schlatter's disease, and Sever's disease are all common in adolescence.

As adults, a lot of us will have back pain - studies say up to 80% of us. Physical therapy is one of the first treatments recommended for back pain. Physical therapists also see injured adults. It could be from weekend warrior type sports injuries, overuse, or from an accident at work. Some adults also start to show symptoms of diseases like multiple sclerosis, or myositis which also benefit from physical therapy.

Later in life, people tend to accumulate more health issues that impact their ability to move. Issues like arthritis, joint replacements, strokes, and heart attacks are all things a physical therapist can help with. Physical therapists also help people age better - keeping them moving with exercise programs that help reduce falls, or helping them make adaptations and modifications to keep them in their homes safely.

Movement is a constant in life. As movement experts, physical therapists can help people of any age. Some specialize in treating pediatric patients, and some specialize in treating geriatric patients, but all physical therapists have the expertise to help people

After much research of the Black homesteaders in Nebraska, Mr. Vossberg re-created the story of Hector Dixon, a runaway house slave in Maryland, and Julia Morrison, a plantation worker runaway slave from Mississippi. Once both were in the free state of Ohio, they met, married, and started a family while Hector worked in the coal mines. Following the Homestead Act, the family decided to homestead in Wheeler County, Nebras-

Veterans walking for veterans

As I was discussing the weather last week, as in COLD, and WINDY, I came across a news article that said the annual Things We Carry Ruck March between UNL student veterans and those of the University of Iowa had started at 6 AM on Wednesday, the 16th, at Memorial Stadium.

The group plans to be at the Freedom Rock in Menlo, Iowa, on Sunday, the 20th.. There, Hawkeye student vets will take over. They are carrying the game ball for the game on Black Friday.

Why a Ruck March, I wondered. I think I had actually heard or read of something like this before. This time, I followed up. By the late afternoon, there were photos online of the Eagle Fire and Rescue guys escorting the marchers through their town, in color! It was definitely Actually, the students are carrying twenty pounds, which is a great plenty, I'm sure. Why twenty? In memory of the TWENTY veterans who commit suicide EVERY DAY!! How can that be? And why is it happening? And what are we doing about it?

As I researched online, I did find some encouraging statistics; each year, it seems, these numbers go down, but only in small increments. Also, supposedly, the VA has had much time and money expended towards decreasing these deaths. Drought Management Response explained

Throughout the western United States drought and the overuse of water is causing rivers to dry up and reservoirs to run low. It's a stunning example of what can happen when water supplies are overburdened and unreplenished.

Here in Nebraska, our groundwater is a rare resource we are fortunate to have, but it's also severely stressed. Our groundwater is recharged solely by precipitation, and water levels are dropping fast due to these exceptionally dry years. According to the National weather service, Northeast Nebraska is on track to have the driest year since records have been kept starting in 1894, almost half the normal amount.

Groundwater resources are under increasing pressure as demand for water by municipalities and agriculture increase every year. Add in a prolonged lack of precipitation and you get a picture of the diminishing water supplies we are faced with. If this drought continues for an extended period, we could be facing the same fate as our western neighbors. It's clear that we need start preserving this precious re-

In order to preserve our groundwater for present and future generations and minimize the negative effects on everyone, the LENRD board of directors has the authority to protect our ground water by implementing certain restrictions during drought conditions. These actions are set in order to address existing and potential groundwater shortages due to drought conditions.

The Lower Elkhorn NRD will utilize the Drought Severity Classifications, which have been pre-determined by the National Drought Mitigation Center (NDMC), as the basis for remedial actions to protect groundwater supplies. The NDMC categories, descriptions and actions are:

•D0 Abnormally Dry — No action suggested

•D1 Moderate Drought — No ac-

•D2 Severe Drought — Public service announcements, encourage groundwater conservation measures, voluntary water-use restrictions requested, and such other controls as deemed appropriate by the LENRD.

•D3 Extreme Drought — Mandatory water-use restrictions, continue public service announcements, enhanced water level monitoring and such other controls as deemed appropriate by the LENRD.

•D4 Exceptional Drought Mandatory water-use restrictions. potential reduction in allocation for new wells or variances to expand water use (conditions of variance), continue public service announcements, enhanced water level monitoring and such other controls as deemed appropriate by the LENRD. As of Nov.1, the following mea-

this D-3 event:

Municipal/public water supply wells shall be subject to a limit of 250 gallons per day/capita for residential and irrigation wells shall be subject to a limit of 15 acre inches for each certified irrigated acre serviced by the well. In addition, the Lower Elkhorn NRD will forego consideration of requests for new uses of groundwater for irrigation to allow for the completion of previously approved projects and to monitor and assess impacts to groundwater supplies for all users.

These restrictions will be lifted when drought conditions in any portion of the Lower Elkhorn NRD is downgraded to a D2 designation on the U.S. Drought Monitor for a term of 14 consecutive days.

The LENRD appreciates your help and commitment to saving our groundwater. This resource is all of ours and together we can preserve it and our way of life for generations to come.

For more information contact the Lower Elkhorn NRD, 1508 Square Turn Blvd., Norfolk, Neb. 68701 or by phone at (402) 371-7313.

In addition to cropping info, the topics will cover important areas for pesticide applicators such as IPM, reading a label, resistance management and minimizing environmental concerns. You can join us for just the first three informational sessions or if you need to renew your private pesticide applicator license in 2023, please attend the whole program. Even though this training is being offered in 2022, you will not lose a year of certification on your license.

Please note that this training will only offer recertification of private pesticide licenses — those needing initial training will need to attend one of the other training courses offered in early 2023.

The cost for the program is $10 if you are only attending the first three sessions. If you are being recertified for your private pesticide applicators license, the cost will be $60. The additional $50 is the same as you would pay to be recertified at a traditional private pesticide applicator training.

Pre-registration online is appreciated but not required. For more information, contact your local Nebraska Extension office.

ward ways to mitigate rising global temperatures, much discussion has focused on carbon.

Researchers are studying the extent to which regenerative agricultural techniques, such as planting cover crops and adopting no-till management, can help trap carbon in the soil and keep it from escaping into the atmosphere.

And in the past few years, carbon markets have emerged, allowing farmers and ranchers that implement regenerative management practices to profit. But there is still much to learn about carbon in agricultural systems, practices intended to sequester it, and the emerging carbon market industry. To demystify carbon and the buzz around it, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources will host a Carbon Summit on Tuesday, Nov. 29.

The summit, which will take place from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the Nebraska East Union, 1705 Arbor Drive, is intended for anyone who wants to learn more about carbon and agriculture. The event builds on last year's Soil Health Summit, which blended presentations on the elements and function of healthy soils from leading

As state and federal leaders look to-soil scientists and producers with participant discussion about conservation strategies and producer best practices.

The Carbon Summit will follow a similar format, said Ron Yoder, Senior Associate Vice Chancellor for IANR.

"Carbon is a big issue right now, but there is still much we do not know," Yoder said. "The event is intended to be an overview that gives those who choose to attend the tools they need to make their own decisions about carbon management, carbon markets and other issues around carbon."

The event will begin with a panel discussion about carbon and its role in agricultural systems, including cropland, grazing lands livestock systems. Discussions on measuring carbon, carbon sequestration and carbon markets will follow. A keynote address will explore the role of agriculture in the larger carbon cycle. Throughout the event, participants will have the opportunity to take part in conversations on these and other issues.

The event is free and open to the public, though registration is required. For more information, including a complete schedule and registration link, visit https:// ianr.unl.edu/carbon-agriculture-summit.

Prostate Cancer: Know Your Options

By Daniel G Petereit, MD, FABS, FASTRO

Over my 30 year career as a cancer physician I have witnessed firsthand the tremendous progress in treating cancer patients.

There continues to be controversy in the screening and treatment of prostate cancer (PC) for which I am grateful to have the opportunity to share more information with you.

PC screening consists of obtaining a PSA and rectal exam, followed by a biopsy if indicated. In 2012, the United States Preventive Task Force (USPSTF) recommended against PC screening. Studies following their recommendations demonstrated a substantial decline in both PC screening and diagnosis of early stage PC, and a subsequent increase in the rates of more aggressive PC. In 2017 the USPSTF reversed their prior recommendation, listing PSA as a reasonable screening test in men ages 55-69.

For men with early stage PC, active surveillance is recommended that includes obtaining a PSA every 6 months and a repeat prostate biopsy 1-2 years later. For patients who require treatment, surgery and radiation are equivalent options. Many patients in the US and in SD only hear about these options from the urologist who performed the biopsy. There are advantages and disadvantages for both approaches.

Patients deserve to hear about both treatments before making a decision that impacts their life.

One of the most effective radiation options for earlier stages of PC is prostate brachytherapy (BT) or "seed implants" for appropriate patients. This is a one hour outpatient procedure that yields some of the highest cure rates. Multiple studies have demonstrated quality of life and patient satisfaction favors BT and is the most cost-effective treatment.

A significant area of controversy is the management of aggressive

PC as we are now seeing more of these patients due to the previous lack of screening. A misconception in the medical community is that these patients should all be surgically treated.

While surgery is an appropriate option, many patients still require 6 weeks of radiation to eliminate cancer left behind with higher rates of incontinence and impotency. Another proven treatment option is daily external beam radiation followed by BT that produces some of the highest cure rates. The recurrence rates are lowest with this approach compared to surgery.

Unfortunately, many patients in the US do not have access to prostate BT, especially in rural areas. The only radiation option for them is 8 weeks of daily radiation which can be a dilemma with the travel required. Prostate BT was previously performed at cancer centers in SD, but is now only available in Rapid City.

Selective prostate screening and treatment reduces PC death rates. Proper patient selection is critical when deciding on treatment. Thoroughly informed patients who consent to treatment are less likely to regret their medical decisions.

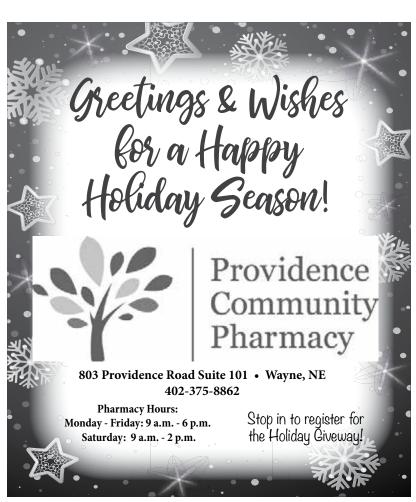

Patients deserve to know their options.

Educator 4-H & Youth ment. Depending on the task, volunteering can help you or a young person build self-confidence and improve one's physical health. This holiday season, look for places to volunteer like a food pantry, school, animal shelter, or a youth program like 4-H Youth Development. $Raise\ Funds-Raising\ money\ can$ build momentum around a cause in your community. It is important to support something that aligns with your values. Many organizations rely on the generosity of others to assist them in their work through financial contributions. These funds go toward needed items, services, and programs. Raising funds for others can teach children, youth, and you to appreciate what you have and understand that at any age you can share your resources with others.

Be an Advocate - By bringing awareness to a topic you are passionate about helps other people learn more about an issue which, in turn, can lead to additional support now and in the future. For example, you might want to raise awareness about issues of hunger and poverty in your community or highlight the need for safe places for children and youth to gather.

Express Gratitude - Gratitude is expressing a feeling of appreciation for something or someone that has added goodness to your life. It costs nothing and the advantages can be life-changing. The benefits

There are many reasons to be thankful

In Faith

Psalm 95:1-7 "Oh come, let us sing to the Lord; let us make a joyful noise to the rock of our salvation! Let us come into his presence with thanksgiving; let us make a joyful noise to him with songs of praise! For the Lord is a great God, and a great King above all gods. In his hand are the depths of the earth; the heights of the mountains are his also. The sea is his, for he made it, and his hands formed the dry land. Oh come, let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord, our Maker! For he is our God, and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand."

Thanksgiving is my favorite holiday of the year for a lot of reasons. I love food. I love eating a big meal than sitting down and watching football the rest of the day. I love celebrating the things that we are thankful for and focusing on grati-

But my favorite thing about Thanksgiving, is a tradition that our family has. Probably about 8 years ago or so we started a tradition that my two sons and I cook the whole meal. Every year we get online, and we pick out a bunch of different recipes that we will make cooking, although I do, but what for the dinner. We go to the grocery store and buy all the stuff we need (usually about 6 cases of but- spend two days doing something ter), then we spend two days in the to music, joking around, and enjoying every moment of preparing the meal for others to enjoy the next being around them.

Primary care doctor - looking out for all of you

By Debra Johnston, MD

Recently, while visiting from out of state, my father had a "health hiccup." As we navigated getting this problem investigated and addressed, he was very concerned that we keep his primary care doctor informed. As my dad has said repeatedly, "I give him more grief than any of my other doctors, but I also listen to him more than any of my other doctors. He's the only one looking out for all of me!"

Like many Americans, particularly older Americans, my dad has a whole host of specialists he sees on a regular basis. One of my friends recently teased, what do primary care providers do, anyway? It seems that there is a specialist for pretty much any problem you can imagine!

If I see a cardiologist, an electrophysiologist, a urologist, an endocrinologist, a gastroenterologist, a rheumatologist, a nephrologist and maybe even an oncologist, why do I need one more doctor, who doesn't seem to be handling anything?

Established readers of this column know that I, like Dr Holm before me, am a proponent of the annual wellness visit. It's a chance to step back and look at the big picture, to review screenings, immunizations, and health promotion recommendations. Many factors can influence these recommendations, beyond age and gender. Did you know that older men who have smoked should be screened for aortic aneurysms, and that diabetes in pregnancy increases diabetes risk going forward?

The origin of a symptom is not always straightforward. For example, abdominal pain can originate not just from the digestive system, but from many other systems, and from causes that might surprise you, such as blood or metabolic diseases and poisonings. Some people, women especially, get their gallbladders removed, only to discover that the problem was, in fact, their heart. A primary care doctor can help sort things out in a more efficient way.

A primary care doctor looks at the big picture, In fact, all of us answering questions tonight are primary care doctors. We commonly say we are specialties of breadth, not depth. My father says the specialist studies one 1000 page book on their topic, while the generalist studies the 10 page summary for 100 different topics. We may ask for assistance from our specialist colleagues for more unusual, treatment resistant, or advanced diseases, but every day we help patients manage their health problems. We coordinate care between specialists, and watch for signs that the treatment for one problem is worsening another. In fact, I would argue that the more specialists you have, the more important it becomes to have someone "looking out for all of you.

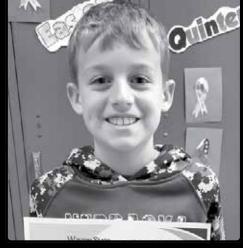

Everyone deserves a primary care provider!

400 attend Wayne's first Farmer-Businessman Feed

More than 400 Wayne businessmen and area farmers packed the Wayne State Student Center Saturday night to mark the first annual Farmer-Businessman Dinner.

The huge group feasted on a smorgasbord dinner sponsored by the Wayne businessmen to show their appreciation to farmers from throughout the area.

"We finally got the dinner on the road," Wayne Chamber of Commerce Manager Floyd Bracken said. "Wayne has been trying to get this type of appreciation dinner going and now we have it started."

During the two and a half-hour affair, "Captain Stubby," a special humorous speaker for the stag dinner, kept the crowd on the sides of their chairs laughing at this tales of being an Indiana farm boy.

Tom Fouts, better known as Captain Stubby, then turned to the serious side of his act in closing the banquet. He told the group:

"You don't need a bankful of cash to be thankful. Be thankful you have what you do . Don't envy your neighbors' fruits of their labors; your fortune rests solely with you."

16 years and going strong

On the door of Roberta Welte's apartment is a poster that reads "Super Mom lives here."

In each of the past 15 years, hundreds of students have referred to Roberta as "Mom." Mom Welte is in her 16th year as live-in resident director at Wayne State College.

No one in the Midwest has been in the business longer.

Her term at WSC is thought to be the longest tenure at a live-in position in the entire Upper Midwest Region of the Association of College and University Housing.

The association covers the eight state region of Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Michigan. Roberta was presented an award for their 15 years of service Nov. 4 at a housing officers conference in Omaha.

Schulz hanging up the street sweeper

After 37 years of checking the weather at 2 a.m. to see if any snow had fallen, Vern Schulz is planning to retire from his position of Superintendent of Public Works for the City of Wayne.

Health concerns combined with the demands of the job lead Schulz to retirement, effective Nov. 30. Schulz, who started working for the city on Sept. 1, 1965, said every day has been different, making a day-to-day job based on what's hap-

"When I started, the city had two old trucks to work with and one tractor and four employees," he said. "When we had a big snow storm, we had to dig Milo Meyer out so he could get equipment to clean the streets. At that time though, there was not the rush there is now. There was not as much traffic."

The Schulz's have several plans for retirement.

Vern will continue to work part-time and is presently driving the Wayne Shuttle when needed.

The couple plan to go camping, fishing and spend time with their grandchildren. Dee, Vern's wife, also has a number of projects she hopes to have her husband complete now that he does not have to get up at 3 a.m. to determine the plan for his day.
