

LOOKED EXACTLY LIKE HIM.

And yet, when he was found, it was not the man who was wanted. It was a young man, about 18 years of age, who looked exactly like him.

"You better quit your fooling and get home and peel those potatoes you started at," said the man.

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"The oldest butler," said the man. "I've been working for the last six years."

"You're a man," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

Explain This, Bostonians.

The paper read by Mr. Edward S. Niles before the Christian Endeavor society in Boston, on the 15th inst., is a proportion of church-going people in the total population of three of the large cities in interesting. It reveals a surprisingly favorable condition of affairs for Chicago, in comparison with New York and Boston.

"What if we go to the bad place?" "No-o-o!" cried the teacher with a little shriek.

"The night of the earthquake," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

The Boston Case of Heaven.

"Now, my dear little man," said Miss Dinsmore, "you must sit real still and listen to me."

"What if we go to the bad place?" "No-o-o!" cried the teacher with a little shriek.

"The night of the earthquake," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

Loo O'Hara can hardly be considered handsome or elegant, but they were fit for the rugged conditions of the frontier.

"The orientals do not know much, but they do know their own best."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

Swearing the Markets Like an Avenger

The market is a place where the law is a mere suggestion, and the only rule is that of the strongest.

"The orientals do not know much, but they do know their own best."

"I'm not a boy," said the man. "I'm a man, and I'm not your brother."

Speaker Carlisle has been nominated for a seventh term in congress. The ticket nominated by the democratic convention Saturday is composed of good men, who will gracefully bear up under defeat.

The republican state central committee sought in fairness to pay the company expenses of the democratic candidate for congress in this district, and he speaks in every county. It's the cheapest plan to make republican votes we know of.

The New York Sun, bestows the title of "rainbow chaser" on chairman Brier, of the democratic national committee because he has been traveling through the northwest to see whether or the democrats have a chance to carry any of the northwestern states.

It is understood that Dr. Bear, who was nominated for state senator a short time ago by the democrats, declines to run, and another convention will be necessary. We have been told that he will endeavor to have the convention endorse H. B. Miller, of the county, the union labor candidate, but we do not regard such action as very probable.

When the republican senatorial convention meets, Wayne county will present the name of J. R. Manning, and ask his nomination, not because he is from Wayne county, but because it is believed that neither a better nor a stronger candidate can be found in the district. There is no doubt that in the present condition of things in the district that, other things being equal a farmer will be much stronger at the polls than a business or professional man, for reasons it is not necessary to enumerate. We doubt if there can be found in the district a candidate who possesses more of the elements of strength at the polls this year than Mr Manning. We can assure the other counties in the district that he is worthy of their support and would make a candidate for whom the party would need make no apologies and who can be easily elected.

STRANGE DELUSIONS.

Instances of Monomanias in Persons Who Are Otherwise Perfectly Sane.

Among the instances of singular monomanias which I have discovered is that of an important officer of the State of New York. He has been written the New York correspondent of the Pittsburgh Post. His special delusion is that the other members of the family are insane and are plotting to injure him, and that they ought to be put in a asylum. He is a rich and celebrated lawyer, and conducts cases with marked adroitness and success; his briefs and arguments show an unusual vigor and coolness of thought. Nobody knows of his mental conditions outside of his own family and a few intimate friends, to whom they have said confidentially, "If any of us would disappear suddenly, look for us in an asylum."

Another most curious case is that of a wealthy banker in New York city who fancies that he is a ripe cherry that the birds are eager to pick. He has a terror of all fruit-eating birds, and seldom walks or appears anywhere in the open air. He marks his trips to and from his bank in a carriage, and keeps the doors and windows always shut tight, lest a sparrow should get in and swallow him. He knows very well that the preposterous belief would be absurd, and that it would ruin him if he were generally known that he harbored it, so he conceals the consciousness of his fearful phobia from his business associates and conceals himself with keeping carefully out of the way of birds.

An interesting society lady of Troy fancies that a big Newfoundland dog always accompanies her, walks when she walks, and stays when she stays. She never openly remarks that it is not there," she says, "but I always see it, and that is what troubles me. When I go to bed it always lies down upon my feet."

There is a lady who has been a patient for the last twelve years in the insane school of New York city, and is still so employed, who imagines herself a wheelbarrow. "I know I am not a wheelbarrow, of course," she says to her physician, Dr. Hammond, "but that certainly makes no difference with the appearance and my sensations. When in school I am always a wheelbarrow, and my feet are the handles and my head is the wheel, and I seem to be trundling myself down the side and through the hall. It is ridiculous and painful and mortifying, but though I know it is the result of a nervous disease, I can not shake off the hallucination."

W. C. Duff, a journalist and successful business man, gives me the following opinion: "Hallucinations are evidently closely akin to dreams. I can fill any one of my sensitive full of delusions in a minute; can make him think he is Westcott or Gray or Victoria; a peddler, an opera singer, a teacher of languages, a rooster or a telegraph pole, and can banish the delusion in two seconds. Now, it seems to me that this hallucination is exactly of the same kind as hallucinations of lunatics, or the dreams of those who sleep. The only difference being that the sleeper holds the key of dreamland and the operator holds the key of the real world, and through the hall. It is the permanent trace called monomania the key is lost. I have wondered if it might not be possible to recover the lost key—to often wake the insane from their dream as some hysterical and the monomania are wakened."

WAKEFIELD REPUBLICAN.

The Wayne and Ponca bands met at Norfolk, but no election was made to the various challenges provided for can to Norfolk for the championship and various imaginary sums. Now the papers of the two towns are telling their might, have been, if the other follows but some of the courts and stamps to contest. Chestnut.

About fifty cars of corn have been shipped from Wakefield during the week. Had it not been for the cholera this would all have been shipped out in the form of pork, doubling the value of the product and adding to one tenth the cost of transportation.

This is the time of year when everybody has corn cobs to burn. With coal sliding upward at the rate of twenty-five cents per ton each month it is desired that the time may come when the broad prairies of Nebraska will furnish cobs to supply the entire fuel demanded.

Coon Creek.

Everything is lively in our vicinity ones mo.

Mr. Vincent is making a clean sweep threshing on Coon Creek this fall; when is going 8 to 10 and out 17 to 25, this is the first failure for Coon Creek for many a year.

P. C. Nelson is building a tie residence on his farm. It looks as though P. C. would be setting up the cigars in the near future.

On Sunday school in the Pleasant Hill school house has been having a very large attendance. Rev. Wm. Gost will preach Sunday at half past three. Everyone is invited to attend.

Nelse Nelson has the largest barn in our vicinity.

Some talk of having a festival in the pleasant hill school house for the benefit of our preacher Mr. Gost hoping to see some of our leading brethren take hold of it and make a pleasant time for all.

Phillip Sullivan bought 3 car loads of feeders this week which will make him five car loads of cattle to feed this winter.

C. S. F. Thompson bought 100 head of steers of Christ-Jensen last week.

I wonder if Coon Creek has got any road supervisor, if it has he should fix up the bridges, and if we haven't it would be well to have one appointed, before a team is ruined or some one gets his neck broken.

In two more weeks corn in our vicinity will be out of the way of frost.

Wes. Ragner's school will close Friday, at which time she will give picnic to her scholars in Thompson's Grove. Everyone is invited to attend.

Omaha police last week raided a gambling establishment, expelling a number of gamblers and confiscating the money of the house.

The exhibits at the state fair this year are the most extensive ever seen in the west.

A smooth-looking thief, giving the name of D. W. King, broke into a home and stole $100 in cash and jewelry.

Miss Walker, an old resident of Tama, died on Wednesday last. She was 85 years of age.

Walker was one of the oldest settlers in that section, having moved there in 1807.

The funeral services for the late Mrs. Walker were held at the residence of her daughter.

The second annual fair of Greeley county was well attended during the week ending last week.

A locomotive belonging to Owen Winlow of Beaver City, ran away the other day, breaking its legs.

The corner stone of the new temperance hall of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Fremont was laid last week.

Four thousand dollars is yet being collected for the Young Men's Christian Association building at Omaha.

It is said that G. W. Kiffin, a Serrv county farmer, sold his stock and furniture at a sacrifice to accept the offer of a hernie job made by a slick individual who came to him in a motor car.

The display of nursery stock at the state fair, says the Lincoln Journal, far exceeds anything that has been seen in this country.

This is especially gratifying as the line is one in which the people of this state take great interest.

Death is announced at Kearney of J. B. Green, an old citizen of that city. He was 71 years of age.

Mr. Green was attacked by a wild pig in the city park at South Omaha last week and badly gored near the groin before assistance could reach him.

A NOTED MAN DEAD.

Mr. Proctor, the Scientist, Becomes a Victim of Yellow Fever.

Dr. Proctor, the noted astronomer, died of yellow fever in Willard Park's private hospital in this city at 74 to-night.

He had been in the hospital since Tuesday night and his condition had been steadily improving.

The health authorities were reluctant to admit the true character of his ailment.

The professor's death, however, at 74 is not unusual for one of his age.

Dr. Proctor resided in this city on Monday night and had just returned from a trip to Florida.

NATIONAL POLITICS.

Mr. Harrison's Letter Accepting the Republican Presidential Nomination.

The following is General Harrison's letter accepting the republican presidential nomination.

To the Hon. M. M. Eyles and others, Gentlemen:—When your committee visited me on the 4th of July last, I was deeply gratified by the honor of your nomination for the presidency of the United States by the republican national convention.

I am in a manner of congratulation that the deliberations of the Chicago convention upon the questions that now attract the interest of our people are so clear and unambiguous.
