TEACHERS OF WAYNE COUNTY IN SESSION
INTERESTING PROGRAM GIVEN

Dorothy Gibson Wins in Spelling Contest—Prof. I. H. Welch is the Chief Speaker.

The Wayne County Teachers' association held a very profitable meeting at the court house Saturday, February 28, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. The program for the forenoon session was entirely the work of women of the association; the first section, the discussion of the reading circle book, chapter three, "Fair Play in the School Room," being ably handled by Mrs. Angie Fish of Detroit. In making this part of the program helpful and inspiring, Miss Fish was assisted by the Misses Ethel Woods, Edith Dunn, Nellie Jablin, Florence Kingsbury, and Laura Jahnke.

The next section, chapter four, "Teaching Children to Think," was presented by Miss Louise Wedel assisted by Mrs. Maria Wolf, and the Misses Marguerite Forbes, Abigail Wendt, Mary Young and Gertrude Hayes. Many valuable ideas pertinent to the subject were brought out which will, no doubt, result in good to the schools of the county.

The last number on the program for the forenoon was an address on "School Room Decoration," by Miss Jean Killeen of the State Normal. Miss Killeen made an earnest plea for beautiful surroundings for children in the school room, giving as her definition of beauty, "Proper adjustment of things." She urged that neatness, cleanliness, and orderly arrangement should prevail; that school rooms should be finished in natural wood, and wall decorations of color tone suited to the lighting of the room; and that bright glowing colors, existing in their effect, should be avoided, so that the prevailing atmosphere of the room might be quieting and restful. These conditions, aided by a few well-chosen pictures properly hung, would create proper ideals of beauty. She concluded her address with the declaration that an ideal school room will possess order, harmony, symmetry, and order in all things.

The afternoon session was opened with music by the seventh grade of the Wayne public schools under the direction of Mrs. Louise Murfree. This followed two very interesting papers—"Characteristics of the Child," by Miss Clara Burson, Carroll, and "The Mother's Day," by Mrs. V. A. Senter, Wayne. "The School Officers," to have been discussed by O. W. Milkien, was, in his absence, presented by Mr. Arthur. The central idea considered from the three viewpoints was cooperation.

The discussion of these papers was followed by a very able and inspiring address by Professor I. H. Britton of the State Normal. Mr. Britton has the strong feeling that the best of things, and he even excelled himself on this occasion. Among other things he said: "We need teachers today who choose the profession as a life work, not as a stepping stone; who put life into the work of the school room; who understand child life and can give will enter into it; who are devoted to their work; and who will identify themselves with the life of the communities in which they teach."

The address was followed by music by the sixth grade of the Wayne schools. Then came the spelling contest, which had been in preparation for several months. There were present fourteen contestants from the several precincts of the county. Miss Dorothy Gibson of district No. 28 won over all other contestants and was presented with a badge of honor. Lloyd Rohrbek of Winslow was second place.

At the conclusion of the spelling contest the association adjourned. The president, Mr. Gomer Jones of Carroll, and the county superintendent, Mrs. Elsie Little, deserve much credit for the success of the meeting.

remain his health and it is the dearest wish of every friend that he may be restored.

An avalanche of mumps has descended on the Grant school at Norfolk, fifty pupils of the institution being absent on account of the disease. The Norfolk News says when a teacher discovers a child suffering from mumps or any other contagious disease, she should home all members of the same family.

Dakota City Eagle: Word was received Wednesday that Antoin Wilko, an old and well known resident of Emerson precinct, had been found dead in the street. He was one of the early settlers of Dakota county and up until his retirement from farm life several years ago, was one of our most active citizens—He was a member of the I. O. O. F. order, and died at his home in Norfolk, after a number of years, later transferring his membership to Emerson.

Judge A. A. Welch was lately called to preside at sessions of district court at Pender and Hartington and his way of dispatching business is greatly favored by the country. The Hartington News introduces a recital of court proceedings with this complimentary paragraph: "Judge Welch finished up his term of court here on Wednesday evening case on the docket has been disposed of by the time each session has existed for years. As it took over a week he came back and put in more time till it was completed. Many cases got onto the docket and are allowed to drag along as a bluff." His letter to the court at all moments," said he. He is rather more severe in ideas of decorum than Judge Graves and in reply to a familiarity from an attorney informed him, "Another remark like that and I shall order you ejected from the court room." The theory was not taken again."

In our grandparent's time, picture taking meant long sittings—in uncomfortable chairs with attitudes with success always more or less in doubt.

There was excuse in the old days for not having pictures taken at frequent intervals.

But today, clever photographers, in comfortable studios, with fast plates and fast lenses at their command, make the experience a pleasure.

And you owe this satisfaction to yourself and to your friends.

We do kodak finishing.

So many laughable incidents are laughable.

George E. Lundberg who grew to manhood in Wayne where many people remember him, writes from Grants Pass, Oregon, to the Lyons Star, and in the course of his communication has this to say of his family and new home: "We are all about as well as usual. The children have both had the measles this winter and Dorothy is just getting over the whooping cough. Mrs. Lundberg is about her normal self and seems to like Southern Oregon better than the North. The children are now in July and feel quite as if we belonged here. We have some roses blooming in our yard right now and at noon I noticed a few purple blossoms. These have never stopped blooming all winter. We had snow on the mountains but some in the valley and today is as fine and sunny and warm as any day you will have next April. To paraphrase a familiar quotation, this is a land in which every prospect pleases except the business prospect. Business is sure dull these democratic times."

Nebraska Farmer: Fruit growing is a side issue with the average farmer in northeastern Nebraska, and consequently it is easily overdone. A small orchard of well selected fruit trees is very desirable, but as neither easy nor profitable to put in more fruit trees than you can properly care for. The time has come when orchards must be sprayed if we expect the best, or even good results, especially from our apple trees. They should also be systematically pruned; that is, they should have the necessary pruning every year. This is a job that is generally put off from one year to another until the trees must be butchered in order to get them in shape, which is rarely possible. If pruning is done every year, the tree will get into the habit of producing a certain amount of wood and fruit each year and there is little occasion for severe pruning. If trees are properly trimmed when small, there will be no necessity for removing large branches when they are grown. Winter pruning should be delayed until after cold weather has passed. Pruning in December and January is often disastrous, for the wounds are apt to crack from the cold, thus furnishing a domicile for various diseases. Severe winter pruning tends to encourage the growth of water sprouts.

Cigarette smoking saps vitality and hampers the brain: the small of cigarette fumes is as concealing as the smoke of a Chinese opium pipe; cigarette stunts, carelessly tossed aside, may cause a costly conflagration. Thus usually the first question propounded to a man seeking employment is this: "Do you smoke cigarettes?"

Preliminary paving, we would suggest that the declivities and scivities associated with the cement walks in the business district be wiped out by leveling the same to repairs. The haulers of northeast Nebraska will be here April 22. They are critical observers and are sensitive to defects. And if they step into holes in walks, the faulty condition will be so jolted into their memories that they will be apt to pay complimentary tributes for years at least. The aftermath would be most unfortunate.

Several counties in the state have employed farm demonstrators, and there is talk that one might probably be employed in Wayne county. The purpose, as the Herald understands it, is to develop more scientific methods in farming, and thus increase production. There is no better agricultural section than Wayne county, and such could no doubt be done here through the efforts of a demonstrator to bring larger returns. The advisability of a farm demonstrator might well be considered by the local Commercial club committee.

The experience of the newly elected mayor of Seattle shows a good deal of fickleness on the part of voters, and a good deal of acrobatic political skill on the part of himself. The report states that he was elected mayor in 1910, recalled in 1911, just after the women of Washington had been enfranchised, and was defeated in 1912, and now elected by a majority between 5,000 and 10,000. He was elected on a platform favoring strict enforcement of the law. He is said to have formerly run on a platform favoring loose regulation. He reformer, perhaps for convenience, and now a reformer and hoisted to the glory.

The position of the Merritt revolutionary leader that the murder of a British subject should be taken up through the diplomatic channels of his country rather than through those of the United States is interesting. It would seem to be none of this government's business if a Mexican outrage is perpetrated on a foreign country, but if England or some other European nation should land on Mexican soil with an army and proceed to administer the local treatment, a chorus of cries would at once ascend from the throats of Mexican barbarians all stripes, pleading for protection. Mexicans would then shout for the application of the Monroe doctrine.

The Pioneer Journal's comment on the appointment of an auditor to the position of postmaster at Hoskins, following a civil service examination, must have been constructed by some of its parishioners as opposition to Congressman Stephens' primary plan, and the paper maintains with a good deal of excitement that it is in favor of the congressman's position which it believes eliminates the spoils system and guarantees greater efficiency. But editors who have been turned down one after another in primary contests will not agree that there are less competent than those who were chosen. The exceptional case of an auditor's victory at Hoskins would seem to have resulted from a test in which efficiency was the determining influence.

HUGE FREE WILL OFFERING.
(Bixby in Lincoln Journal.)
The free will offering to Billy Sunday for his work in Pittsburgh, as reported by the Gazette Times, totaled $37,210.43. It would require the labor of the average skilled workman forty years to earn that amount. If he happened to have a goodly flock dependent upon him he would have to jay rent all that time, and would scarcely have saved enough to pay his funeral expenses. Yet the man who claims to be a follower of Him who had no when to lay his head is thus honorably rewarded for eight weeks of "work for the Master." In Pennsylvania, spiritual benefits were not measured by market values. Now it seems that the individual "scallard" to the work of evangelists is entitled to cash benefits commensurate with visible results. Brands from the burning at so much per brand, Pittsburgh is a wealthy city. It is the home of a considerable number of millionaires and an army on the borderlines of destitution. Somewhere in the good hole is the admonition "Feed my lambs," but the Pittsburghers seem more inclined to lavish all the benefits upon the shepherd. Commercializing Christianity contradicts the very essence of the gospel of Christ.

The Scrap Book

Both Carried Away.

In "This is Remember" Frederick Townsend Martin, writing of Mrs. Peter Lucille Ronalds, says that in his younger days she was cocooned in Parisian style and was called "Brown" because of her exquisite soprano voice. In London one evening an American woman was carried away with this voice that she left her seat and clasped about the neck of Mrs. Ronalds not only her arms, but also her "valuable necklace," saying: "Pray, pray accept this as a tribute to your glorious voice!" The next day the giver of the necklace reappeared and without ceremony crossed to Mrs. Ronalds that she had made a mistake in donating the necklace, because she had been "carried away" by the sound of Mrs. Ronalds' voice.

"What a pity," answered Mrs. Ronalds, "for the necklace has been carried away too. It's now in my safe at the bank!"

Wayfaring.
Surely we should be sure to say: And choose a path leading from the light— Where our own shadows veil the ground from sight, Conceiving dreams into which we stray, Yet on the instant when our fears retrace The upward road, from darks where they have lain, The light illumines every step again, And every being in the ascent we face— Aids Dunbar in Nauticus.

Where He Drew The Line.
Of Bije Wilson was the sole proprietor of a balky horse. The fact was pretty well known throughout the neighborhood, and Bije couldn't have disposed of that horse even to David Haurich, who bought a house that could "stand without hitching."

One day a neighbor drove up behind Bije, who was sitting in a narrow outbuilding, and there was no room to pass. The neighbor accepted the Bije's horse would philosophically. Every now and then Bije's horse would turn his head, and as promptly Bije would say a public statement that the box bed of his side-bar buggy was loaded with popples.

"What, ye see," Bije answered, "I don't mind a horse's head now and then, but I'm durned if he can turn around 'n' grin at me about it!"

He Was No Hog.
In the old days of hand composition a printer known from New York to San Francisco as "Pilgrim" Hazlett wandered into a Pennsylvania town and asked the editor of the weekly for a "pig."

"Well," said the editor, "I can put you to work, but I'm afraid I can't pay much money."

"Make me an offer," said the Pilgrim. "All right, I can give you two weeks a day at my house, you can sleep here in the office on this lounge, and I'll take care of your laundry. Then if you need tobacco get it across the street at the grocery. They run an account with us. And up at the brewery you can get a cup of beer whenever you like. Besides, I'll pay you $4 a week. Is that satisfactory?"

"Good," said the Pilgrim, accepting the offer to get it straight in his mind, "if I get all that what do I want with the $4?"

Of a Wild Nature.
Just outside the entrance to the yard at the Naval academy is an apartment house where some young officers live, and baby carriages are a not infrequent sight in this vicinity.

Not long ago the commander of that yard had a notice posted on one side of the gate forbidding automobiles to enter because they frightened the horses. Shortly afterwards the following unofficial notice appeared on the other side of the gate:

"The cars here are not permittees not allowed in this yard. They scare the bachelors."—New York Post.

One Was Enough.
Robert Bridges, the new poet laureate, is a fastidious critic and seems little to admire in the verse of Alfred Noyes.

Noyes once brought to Mr. Bridges two very long odes that he proposed to submit to the English Review.

"I'll read them both aloud," the young man said, "and afterward you will tell me which is, in your opinion, the better. It will be accepted by the English Review."

Poor Mr. Bridges sighed and settled himself in his chair, and Noyes, in his loud, harsh voice, read the first ode. It was very long, and at its conclusion Mr. Bridges leaned to his feet and said loudly:

"You're just young tricks, I can advise you. Read the other ode to the Review."

FURY BROKE LOOSE

COUNTY CORRESPONDENCE

Tourists in Milan thought it meant Wholesale Amusement. "There is something most refreshing to the colder northern races in the ex- citable and volatile Italian," said George Minton recently. "We had a delightful exhibition of the quality when we now reached Milan. We en- joyed a cafe celebrated as much for its wine as for its food. It was an excellent buffet and had merely for- gotten when our attention was at- tracted by a nearby table where two diners were engaged in what was evi- dently a very serious discussion.

"Presently the rules grew tending and more passionate and the two men looked positively violent as they half rose from their seats and glared at each other ferociously across the table. We became uneasy, however. Venetian, athletes and such Italian ap- pearances are all picturesque enough in- stead of open, but we did not care to have our dinner punctuated with de- grees of enrage.

"In the meantime all the other din- ers who stopped eating were now watch- ing with interest toward the scene of altercation. Gradually they abandoned their diners altogether and came over to take sides with the disputant. Even the waiters forsok their posts and attached themselves to one side or the other. "Surely," we thought anx- iously, "this dinner will involve the honor of the whole nation."

"By this time the din was fearful, several more degrees of excited were shouting at each other across the table, brandishing furious fists in each other's faces—most looking like blood- shed and murder. Our soup cooled un- tasted before us; all appetit had van- ished. We clung to our chairs, too ter- ror stricken to rise for our lives, even though we felt a desperate con- viction that a massacre was at hand and our minutes were numbered.

"Having one of the crowd pounded on the table vigorously and yelled some noise which sounded like a pack of fire crackers exploding. There was an instant silence, and then the whole lot of them, waiters and all, bolted out of the front door.

"We breathed an immeasurable relief. It seems the scene of slaughter was transferred, and our skins were safe. Just then our waiter reluctantly returned, though he made it plain that he did not wish to be a deced-bone.

"Was it a feud, a vendetta? We asked, and cut the police stop them before they kill each other?"

"And the waiter replied in his own peculiar brand of English. It he could not tell us, he said, he would be the shortest man to be hanged, and so half they go 'way and half they go the other to make it proper."—Argonist.

True Success is Unselfish. It is indeed one of the highest re- wards of success—if one understands what success actually is in the way of putting others on the same road.—H. W. Mabie.

A Great Catcher. Big Ed Gross was once the star catcher of the National league and par- ticularly the best hitting catcher that ever lived.

Ed was a great catcher, a wonderful thrower and a grand hitter, but he was not a great man. He was not catching foul flies. He tried for everything in sight, ran circles around the ball and sometimes appeared it, but he never felt at ease when one of those tall twisting fouls went up.

He was catching in Providence one day when a Philadelphia batter poked up a fly that looked 500 feet high. There was a wind blowing, and the ball

IT BOUNDED UP INTO THE AIR, ball began to twist around in circles, with Ed doing a merry-go-round under it. Finally, seeing that it was escap- ing, he made a desperate effort to turn quickly and fell flat on his back.

Instinctively he threw up his feet and banded to protect his face. The ball struck the top of his head, then it rebounded up into the air, and as it fell again Ed reached out and caught it. And next morning the Providence peo- ple had the news to eat as did it on purpose.—Chicago Tribune.

She Suggested a Reason. A noted Sunday school worker living in Kansas was once asked to talk to the children of a Sunday school on the subject of "The Ten Commandments." She was in the cause and wears a bit of blue ribbon as a badge of her prin- ciples. Rising before the school, she pointed to his bit of blue ribbon and said, "Now, can any of you children tell me a reason why I am not to be drunkard?" There was no reply for a moment. Then a child in the rear of the room piped up, "Cause she's a prohibition woman."

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Halladay, and children, and Miss Grace Lyons, and Edson Summers visited Sunday with the J. L. Kelley family.

Dean Hanson, Chas. Buetow and Will Hanson returned Wednesday night from Chicago where Mr. Hanson marketed six outfits of fat cattle.

Mrs. Robert Wilson and three chil- dren, who spent last week at the Mark Simpson home, departed Friday for Oakland, Iowa, where they will live the coming year. Mr. Wilson preceded them several days.

Chas. Olson, who has lived for several years on the C. Chase farm, left the first of the week for his new home in Minnesota where he owns a farm. Albert Nygren and bride, formerly Miss Elizabeth Olson, left on the C. Chase farm. Here's a welcome to our new neighbors.

Mr. Hanson and family are moving today to their new home just east of Concord. We are sorry to lose this family, but we hope to see them again glad that they are going no farther than Concord. Will Otte and family will move to the place vacated by Mr. Hanson.

Dry Zensal Moist Zensal Two perfect remedies for Eczema. Clean sweet ointments, not to stain the clothing, have no odor, and are so soothing and cooling. After one or two applications, the skin begins to clear, and you are on the road to recovery. Ask Feber's Pharmacy about it.

ATCHISON GLOBE SIGHTS. Every man knocks against something. Which sounds the best, fits, spasms or convulsions? A smart man can prove almost anything by the bible. It is so easy to make patriotic statements while being interviewed. Although the cost of living is high, we can still get a good salary for a low price. An Atchison man declares he is always afraid of a man who wears a spouty vest. A great deal of space is wasted exposing some great evils which don't exist. A man who has a home father is called the same name a bank account would be. An old sport says the wrestling game is waning; so many prefer the tango. Consider the oyster, my son which leads a quiet care-free life, and finishes the day as he starts.

JUST AS GOOD You never heard that in our store. We don't say it. We do all have to, because we carry only the best and always have a full line in stock. We give you just what you ask for, and at the lowest price, too. We don't believe in substituting; Advco Goods cannot be substituted; Advco means always the best. The dealer who offers you something "just as good" a substitute is selling at an extra profit as your expense. We give you what you want, when you want it. Our aim is to be prompt, courteous and honest. We are careful in our grocery buying that you don't have to be careful in your "Trust us." Mr. Consumer: There is nothing in our store to which we give more attention than the buying and selling of fancy Table Butter; try us, we can take care of your better orders. Figures and facts, quality and price, a saving of 25 per cent on Groceries Saturday. Maple Syrup and Buckwheat Flour no luxury at all if you buy from us. $100 Reward, $100 The reader of this paper will be pleased to know that a certain kind of deadly disease has been discovered which has been known as "Cattle Plague" or "Cattle Cholera".

THE MOTHERS' FAVORITE. A cough medicine for children should be "sensible." It should be pleasant to take. It should be effective. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is all of this and to the mother's favorite cough when. For sale by all dealers.

THE EARLY DAYS IN TWO COUNTIES.

From the Wayne Herald, March 8, 1888: His Larson died March 7, 1888, at his home on Coon-creek. Local market: Cows, 20 cents; wheat, 35 cents; corn, 10 cents. Married, February 28, 1888, John G. Foster to Miss Anna Sims. George Hehl sells the Wakefield Republican and moves to Spokane, Wash.

From the Wayne Herald, March 7, 1895: Died, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Guthridge.

Born, March 3, 1895, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. H. Milder. W. E. Howard and A. L. Tucker were elected elders of the Presbyterian church.

Rev. W. W. Theobald and J. W. Burkholder were invited to assist in organizing a Baptist church there. Local market: Wheat, 40 cents; oats, 25 cents; corn, 38 cents; hogs, $3.80; cattle, $3.25; eggs, 10 cents; butter, 12 cents.

H. B. Boyd traded his Wayne hotel property to E. M. Moody of West Point, for two farms located eight miles south of Stanton. Judge Martin issued licenses to wed Monday to Charles Thun and Anna Helena Jacobson, of Wayne county and John Rogstad and Jessie Helm, of Dixon county. He also joined in marriage Charles Magnusen and Lizzie Trugman, both of Knox county.

From the Wayne Herald, March 10, 1904: O. D. Franks sold his saloon in Wayne to A. D. Stodder of Central Bluffs.

Henry Stumpf had an auction sale and moved to the Big Bend country in the state of Washington.

Died, near Laurel, March 8, 1904, Mrs. Anderson Clark, nee Grace Bowling, formerly of the Wayne vicinity.

Died, March 7, 1904, Albert E. Regina at his home five miles east and one mile north of Wayne.

Married, March 9, 1904, Mr. Geo. Gabler to Miss Elizabeth Hart, both of Windsor.

From Ponca Journal, March 7, 1884: The economy of St. Joseph is already ready to operate as soon as the weather permits. Mr. Mubson, who will take charge of the economy during the season, has had several years experience in the business in New York and Iowa. "Sous" City Journal: "In Dixon county man was found on the ice near the Covington side on Thursday nearly dead from exposure. He had tried to carry two heavy a load of sour mash. It was taken to a store in Covington by the men who found him and thawed out."

The ice on the river at this place is beginning to get slack. One day last week Dr. Crough's team went through while crossing, but fortunately never over a bar and only went down a few feet, but were not out without trouble. John Austin crossed Tuesday with a load of flour, but he says there is not money enough in Iowa to bring him to do it again.

From Ponca Journal, March 4, 1880: The worst storm of the season took place on Saturday. It was next door to an old-fashioned blizzard. Not a great deal of snow fell here, but considerable in the northwestern part of the county.

Rev. Mr. Clark is now having a normal department to his school, which will contain two weeks, and is well attended. Mr. Clark is an experienced teacher, and deserves much praise for the fine academy he has established, and which, we are glad to hear, is becoming very popular with students and parents.

An Indian, armed with a bow and arrows, marched through town on Monday afternoon. It was not Sitting Bull, nor Old Man a trail of his horses, nor any of the famous warriors. It was a young man, an Englishman, named Mr. Bueck. He told his name but it could not be repeated with out breaking one's jaws, nor could it be printed without mashing the press. On Tuesday morning, a long legged boy named individual who had been endeavoring to smother out the wrinkles in his stomach by expanding the same with frequent flatulations to Bacchus, was observed slating the air and feeling his way along East street. As he advanced, a frightened dog ran before him waving legs and snoring. When he turned a corner, a white dog which was in pursuit of the first dog, was the howling and squealing.

uppor attracted dog umbley three, which immediately attacked the unfortunate dog under the sprawling individual aforesaid, and the scrambling of the belligerent dogs, tumbling the whole crowd off the sidewalk into the ditch, where struggling and clawing they remained until a good Samaritan came and kicked the dogs and drag got out him of the legs and arms, and laid him off to his little bed.

Uncle Walt The Poet Philosopher

The more cold coin a fellow collars, the hungrier he gets for dollars. When a man is young, he is short of troubles, he says. "Some fifty thousand ronebels will be a fortune quite com pusing when I have that I won't go nosing around in search of extra ronebels, but some old greatly moneyed losers. By that time I'll be old and wealthy, so I'll sit down and take it easy." But when he has that bunch of guiders, he says. "Oh, chee! the fortune builders would laugh to scorn my paltry savings-meekles. I bear their loud ravings! So I'll go forth and nail a million—I will, so help me Colonel Lillian!" Then through the clanging-masta he wanders, and all the slanging sub he squanders, and travels at a pace that's killing to get the humped and the shilling. And when he's old and frail and battered, his heart wren got, his system shattered, from toiling up them crooked track-age, he looks upon his hand-me package, and sighs: "It is a measly bundle, and my old bones I'll have to trundle until my meagre soul is loaded with other millions to it added! Then death comes up, the Doom that wrecks us, and sends him in the solar-jerks, and in his shroud morticians wind him, and all his swads are left behind him.

When paying bills I used to say: "Ogr statements do not care their pay!" The cost of living is so THAT OLD high, it fairly makes your COST ucle cry! If congress men and senators would carry on their politics were against the causes which combine to get our goats, both years and mind, the man might have a chance to thrive, and in their hearts that they're alive! And people all agreed with me, and said they really couldn't see why statements do not care a crown by cutting rougher prices down. But since I've thought the matter over, and to the high producer I fear that I am to blame the life is an expensive show. I blow my money every day as though I'd loads to throw away; I buy the most expensive things; from barber's wreats to mupkin fins; I setlong stop to count the cost, and to the high producer I fear that's the way we've all inclined; a rare thing is the frugal mind; each year we burn more shining sheds, than in their lifetime spent our duds.

At early morn one's sleep seems lost, and man would get all kinds of rest, if he could only sleep.

MORNING but at the first faint NOISES peep of day the world wakes up and gets too gay, and looks are all in vain. In town the milk man comes along and makes a racket with his gong, while drowsy folk, who were not out without trouble, through the streets, and news boys strike the morning sheets, and noise is everywhere. And so the man who would sleep just hands out curses large and deep, and sighs: "I'll leave the town; I'll seek the quiet country, where men, when tired and heavy-eyed, can hold some slumber dows." So to some booby all his needs, convinced 'twill answer all his needs, and with a farmer, brads, and in the morn, when dawn is gray, he hears the boot and grunt and bay of all the barnyard hordes. The cows are bawling pining, the frisky mules rear up and yell, the porkers voice their who's; the goats, the geese hiss, the geese get busy and disturb the peace, 'th' bughouse roosters crow. And in the dawning, cold and blue, the clock occurs in the town and Greek, in Gaelic and low Dutch; he sweats in dead and living tongue, it doesn't help him much.

"Delays" said Dad, "are dangerous, and apt to work much harm." Two is the days when DELAY is grangerous, we lived up on the farm. So we were always harrying to get things done oftsoons, the plowing and the currying, the hewring of grass. We did our work here whoopingly, and gained the silver buck, while other farmers droopingly complained of all luck. When storms came down a thundering we did not care a darn; they never came upon us, when we were in a hurry, a whirling wind and bed, we viewed the blizzard things, trees, our wood and in the shed. The elements might clammy spread snow throughout the land, they could not catch our family with our some cool on hand. The lessons of the belligerent dogs have served me all my days, and I can tell you truthfully that "Up and Do It" pays. Delays are sorely ruinous; let's do things on the jump, or Fate will soon be showing us toward the blizzard dump.

A man bolts office for a while, and broods and dies in fumes, such to save our butwarks from ruin. OFFICE and then upon a fateful HOLDING day he finds he is also ran—the office job has dumped the man. And does he then grip up his limbs, and say: "I'll go and chase the rains as in the sunny days gone by, ere I began to bleed and die!" Ah, no! He's done with the soil; you will not see him till the soil, or worry down old Dobbin's legs or scratch around to find the eggs. He will not plant the corn in May, and the fragrant, juicy hay, or paint the fence or prune the trees, or herd the humble bumble bees. The office germ is in his brain, and all your pleadings are in vain. He has no use for sweat or tears, but he'll camp upon the Parlor's trail, where all the diary has been throng, and beg from handouts from the strong. He'd rather have some dinky job awarded by the statesman mob than ornament his native town by bidding some position down. He'll learn a lot of things, and you lose your grip on things worth while, to useful work you close your eyes, when once you've learned to bleed and die.

Old Ebenezer Jimpson Jinks takes pride in saying what he thinks. "I do not mind my words," PLAIN SPEECH says he, "but speak my mind out, and free—and if I do not like a gent, I make it plainly evident; I air my views to the lead band, and people know just where I stand." It takes a foolish pride in his talk, does Ebenezer Jimpson Jinks, in being rude and rough of speech, but few regard him as a peech. He keeps his neighbors hot and sore and they denounce him as a bore. "We'd pay the freight," they often say, "if he would only move to the city, and live in the city street; they hate to bear old Jinks repeat "his honest views" on this that, which views are spoken through his hat. When he steps up to join a crowd, you'd think a cold and clammy shroud had fallen on that head, and that he'd all dropped dead again when there's no Jinks to give the blues expounding "his straightforward views." It would have a great of friends you hear in mind that friendship ends, and cordial feeling links behind, when you begin to speak your mind.

LESS CLOTHING, MORE FOOD. Fremont Tribune: Scientists have discovered themselves, gathering proof of women's attire, and they have advanced every theory that could be framed by any possible combination of words. They have spotted the young women for appearing in very thin apparel in the winter time, and have told them they were ravishing diseases. The young women, however, have continued to wear what they pleased. They have gone out in the blizzard with peek-a-too shirt waists and gowns cut low in the neck. They have worn goose stockings and low shoes, and still the mortality has been no greater than when the girls used to bundle themselves around the neck with $400-worth of furs and wear five or six red flannel petticoats.

Now comes Dr. Alonzo E. Taylor, professor of chemistry in the medical school of the University of Pennsylvania with an argument that will knock the thick clothing fat into a cocked hat if the husbands and fathers have anything to say matter. Dr. Taylor says it doesn't matter how thin the women's clothing may be. Nature takes care of the case and keeps her warm. When she wears this clothing, she suits more food. She must have 10 per cent more food to offset the lack of protection afforded by styles which reduce the petticoat and demand flimsy clothing.

The cost of living is high enough now, and women simply must wear their full complement of clothing. Adding 10 per cent to the cost of feeding a young woman is a decided gain. Her father's resources, and there are sometimes several daughters in the family. If the women continue to wear thinner and thinner clothing and fewer articles of attire, the cost of feeding them is going to soar away above the means of the fathers. The time has come to call a halt, and the men of this country should get to

IF YOU WANT A BEAUTIFUL HOME

Be at the Auction Sale of the Two Houses and Lots OF ALEX HOLTZ on Saturday, March 28th AT 2:30 P. M.

Both the houses are brick. One of them is an eight-room house, beautifully finished, with closets for each of the bedrooms. It is located on a splendid lot 90 by 150 feet. The other is one of the very prettiest two-room cottages in the city of Wayne, has a lot 60 by 150. You can't go wrong in purchasing either of these beautiful properties, and I am not expecting to get any fancy prices for them. I am going to sell them to you on the above named date. These properties are just one block north and two block east of the German Store. Terms will be liberal. E. & D. H. CUNNINGHAM, AUCTIONEERS.

An Evening Visit Over the Telephone

Before Bell Telephone lines stretched up and down the roads, and humming wires bound together the city and the country, the farm was an isolated and lonesome place. Yesterday, distance, bad roads and stormy days prevented neighborly visits and trips to distant communities. Today, the farmer has a Bell telephone, or a rural phone connected to the Bell System, and he visits where and when he pleases.

The perfume was delicate and pleasant to the smell.

This sword is actually a part of the sword that was buried in a wood shaft, which gave forth no flame.

Mr. Valle actually owned a sword of great value.

Mr. Valle said that there are hundreds of mechanical tricks of the Japanese artisans.

I have in my home a crystal ball in a diamond.

He told me of an incident attended by a man for the prince who employed him.

There was one swordmaker who had the trick of making a dagger with the water.

The secret lay in the temperature of the water.

The old man prepared his bath in a private lot.

The secret lay in the temperature of the water.

The old man wheeled and struck out with his sword.

One of the old swordmakers had the peculiar knack of making swords which, of themselves, continually "talked" trouble.

One of my friends bought this sword.

WORK THAT TELLS Plenty of It Has Been Done Right Here in Wayne.

To thoroughly know the virtues of a medicine you must investigate its merits. Doan's Kidney Pills stand this test, and plenty of proof exists right here in Wayne. People who testified yesterday in relief from backache, kidney and urinary disorders, now give confirmed testimony—declare the results have lasted longer. How can a Wayne sufferer longest doubt the evidence?

Mrs. D. S. McVicker, Wayne, Neb., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills a few years ago when I was suffering from dull pain across the small of my back and a bearing-down feeling in my joints. This remedy cured me and at that time I publicly told of my experience. I am glad to confirm my former statement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

THE FORTY YEAR TEST. An article must have exceptional merit to survive for a period of forty years. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was first offered to the public in 1873. From a small beginning it has grown in favor and popularity until it has attained a world wide reputation. You will find nothing better for a cough or cold. Try it and you will understand why it is a favorite after a period of forty years. It not only gives relief, but it is sold by all dealers.

A DARING PATRIOT Feats of a Little Known Hero of Revolutionary Times. JACK JOWETT'S BRAVE RACE. It Saved Jefferson and the Virginia Assembly From Capture by Tarleton's Dragons and Gave General Washington Valuable Information. Most of the Revolutionary heroes have been immortalized in song or story, but there is one whose fame has never spread, as it should, beyond the region of his birth. His name was Jack Jowett. In the little city of Charlottesville, Va., there is a tablet on the wall that stands out from the folds of his old tavern. But that simple bronze is the only memorial of his name and deeds.

In Revolutionary days young Jack Jowett kept the Swan Tavern in Charlottesville. He was a patriot at a time when patriotism was dangerous, for Cornwallis was in possession of the water Virginia, and Tarleton and his cavalry were sweeping back and forth over the inland counties.

In June, 1781, the Virginia assembly abandoned Richmond, which Cornwallis followed and came to sit in Charlottesville. Among its members were such men as Patrick Henry, Richard Henry Lee and Benjamin Harrison, and the governor was no other than Thomas Jefferson. One bright morning when the state assembly was in session Jack mounted his neighborhood mare and rode out to look over his farm outside the town.

As he rode along he caught through the trees a glimpse of a British uniform flashing down a cross-bow. He put his horse over the low stone wall and confronted the rider. It was one of Tarleton's.

With a big pistol pointed at his head, the Englishman thought it wise to obey Jack's command to turn in at the gate of a nearby house and change clothing with him. Under threat of death the soldier divulged the fact that Cornwallis was in the vicinity. Jowett at once slipped away in search of the enemy. The day passed without result, and Jack stopped at an inn to rest.

In the night he heard the tramp of horses and looking out of his window he saw the men of the British soldiers led by Tarleton himself. The troopers entered the tavern and sat down to drink and talk, quite unconscious that the enemy was on the alert watching to intercept every word.

From their conversation Jowett learned that Tarleton commanded an advance party of the best fighting troops of the British soldiers. They were to march to the rest of the troop. Then they planned to dash on to Charlottesville and capture the Virginia assembly.

Jack Jowett set out at once in the cool of the dawn. He was chased by some troopers who trotted in from the pike that crossed his path, but his horse was a better horse than theirs. The wind he raced through lanes, over low stone fences, up the side of the hill to Jeannett Mountain, the home of Governor Jefferson. He warned Jefferson of the approach of the British, and then, with a fresh horse, he dashed down the steep mountain into Charlottesville. Rushing into the hall where the assembly was in session, he called to the members to flee. For Tarleton's dragons would soon be at the heels. In a few moments the hall was empty, and the members were on their way across the mountains to Staunton, where they would be safe from pursuit.

Jack rode on to his tavern, but found there a wounded officer of the Continental army—General Stevens. He dressed the sick man in a suit of his own clothes, carried him downstairs and put him on the fresh horse, with bags of corn in front and behind—the very picture of an old farmer going to the mill. Side by side Jowett and Stevens rode out of town, which by 10 o'clock was in the possession of Tarleton's men. Pausing as he reached the top of a hill, Jack saw his own tavern in flames.

The British, who had reason to suspect the young man in a uniform, set out in chase of him, but Jack's horse was again too speedy for them, and he got away across a Washington, with the news that Cornwallis was no longer acting in support of Tarleton—a big bit of information that was of great value to the commander of the Continental army.

To Jack Jowett's quick wit and daring, the author of the Declaration of Independence and many another hardy and brave patriot owed their liberty and perhaps their escape from a traitor's clasp. He was the warrior—Foster's Companion.

A Marshall's Retort. It is on record that the Prince of Orange, filled with rage because he had been beaten at Fleurus, Louze, Breda, and Mervin, alighting to the Marshal of Luxembourg.

"Get it—be that I shall never beat that blackback?" "How does he know that I am a blackback?" said the French marshal. "I never saw my back; I always saw his."

Misgivings. "I want to go to my gladder's only be gladder me a piece?" "And I would like to go to my gladder's, but he'll give me a wether."—Belmore American.
