

MOVEMENT TO BUILD BRIDGE OVER LOGAN COUNTY DADS MAKE OFFER

Propose to Erect Extra Desirable Structure if City Will Lend Helping Hand

The county commissioners invited members of the Commercial club to meet with them Monday afternoon to take cooperation in the building of a new bridge over Logan creek at the south entrance to the city. The meeting was held in the office of L. A. Kiplinger. The commissioners proposed that if the club would move the present bridge to a new location one mile east of the city at a cost of $400, the county would build a new bridge on the south boundary at a cost of $4,000. The matter was discussed at considerable length, and it was finally proposed that the county, city, and club share alike in paying for moving the old bridge. To this, the commissioners agreed. By engaging in road building last year, they had made the Commercial club look to build bridges. The proposition was discussed at the meeting of the city council Tuesday evening. A definite action was deferred.

It is felt that a road of good soil, and that the commissioners would like to build one that would adequately and permanently serve the large and increasing volume of traffic coming from that direction. It is felt that a road of good soil, and that the commissioners would like to build one that would adequately and permanently serve the large and increasing volume of traffic coming from that direction.

Preliminary to settling down to discussion of the proposed bridge improvement, A. R. Davis with A. Kiplinger as a willing accessory before the fact, passed a box of cigars. Those addicted to the habit took cigars, lighted them and, tucking back their chairs, began to enjoy puffing rings of smoke into the air. While Mr. Kiplinger was unloading an explanation of the business of the afternoon, the cigar between the teeth of Commissioner Geo. Farran exploded, making a noise like a thirteen-inch gun and throwing a particularly angry and searching flame in the direction of the faces of those whose palatates were so burned and ruined forever. After the smoke had cleared and it was found unnecessary to call out the fire department, it was interesting to note that all smokers had suddenly quit smoking and put away their cigars. The moment the explosion happened, the advisability of ditching their cigars instantly appealed to them. It seems each cigar was being charged with its own life.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Perrin left this morning for Gothenburg where they will enjoy a two weeks' visit with their daughter, Mrs. Blanche Lusk.

PLANS ANNUAL OLD SETTLERS' REUNION

A. J. Ferguson, president of the Old Settlers' Picnic Association, called a meeting of the executive committee Monday afternoon for the purpose of discussing plans for the forthcoming reunion and picnic, which will be held this year on Thursday, August 6. A good speaker will be present at the occasion and an excellent program will be arranged. Those in attendance last year expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the program, and it is the hope of the committee that this year's meeting will be a bigger and better than ever before. Remember the date and make plans to be in Wayne on August 6.

HEARING OF BARNETT CASE IS CONTINUED

The hearing of the case of the late Henry Barnett was continued Monday afternoon for the purpose of discussing plans for the forthcoming reunion and picnic, which will be held this year on Thursday, August 6. A good speaker will be present at the occasion and an excellent program will be arranged. Those in attendance last year expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the program, and it is the hope of the committee that this year's meeting will be a bigger and better than ever before. Remember the date and make plans to be in Wayne on August 6.

MARRIAGE LICENSE

A marriage license was issued out of the county judge's office Wednesday, June 10, to Otha Smith and Alice Clark, both of Norfolk.

BIGGEST RAIN OF THE SEASON LAST NIGHT

Last night's rainfall was the heaviest of the season in this section. It was general over the county. The measuring instrument at the State Normal recorded more than double the amount indicated during any other night during the year. The rainfall amounted to two and five-hundredths inches.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. H. S. Ringland delightfully entertained about twenty little girls at her home Wednesday afternoon in honor of her daughter Ruth's tenth birthday anniversary. Various games were played and contests enjoyed. The prize was a contest in which sacks of candy were the forfeits. Alice Fisher having secured the greatest number, was given the prize, a box of candy. In a doll-dressing contest, Edith Huse received the prize, a silver thimble. Misses Iretta Johnson and Dorothy Ellis assisted in serving delicious refreshments. The fortunes hidden in the cake added much to the merriment. The guests leaving many pretty and useful gifts as souvenirs of the occasion, departed for their homes feeling that they had had a royal good time, and wishing Miss Ruth many returns of the happy day.

TOUR OF EUROPE

Norfolk Daily News, June 10: Otto A. Voegt has been booked by the European Concert Direction for twenty-eight concerts on the continent as soloist on violin and piano. The concerts will be at Berlin, Leipzig, Dresden, Prague, Vienna, Munich, Stuttgart and Frankfurt, in Germany; Bale, Bern, Constance, Zurich and Lucerne in Switzerland; Milan, Venice, Genoa, Florence and Naples in Italy. Mr. Voegt will leave Norfolk at noon Wednesday and sail from New York on June 18. He will return via the Mediterranean from Naples during the first week of September. He has been asked to purchase a number of old violins and violoncellos for a New York importing-house. Miss Erna Voegt will have charge of the Voger conservatory during Mr. Voegt's absence.

NORFOLK COUPLE WED

Otha Smith and Miss Alice Clark, both of Norfolk, were married at the Baptist parsonage in Wayne Wednesday at 9 o'clock a. m. by H. H. Ringland, minister officiating. After a short honeymoon in South Dakota they will be at home in Norfolk.

LOCAL NEWS

Mr. J. Baroach went to Norfolk last evening to meet his wife on her way to Wayne from Geneva, Neb. They arrived here this morning. Mr. and Mrs. R. Perrin left this morning for Gothenburg where they will enjoy a two weeks' visit with their daughter, Mrs. Blanche Lusk.

Ed Teatke of Verdell, formerly of Wayne, is visiting friends here. She went to Wakefield this morning to spend the day with friends.

John S. Lewis of Burke, S. D., is guest at the home of Mrs. D. J. John Lewis Jr. in this city. After a brief visit here she will go to Nevada, Mo.

Misses Eva Weber and Bessie Collier of Randolph, passed through Wayne this morning en route to Cheyenne, Wyo., where they will spend the summer.

Mrs. William Gilderleeve, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Wilma, left yesterday afternoon for Percyville, Ia., to visit her daughter, Mrs. L. A. Young.

WAYNE STATE NORMAL SUMMER TERM OPENS

MANY TEACHERS ENROLL

Students From Five States Are In Attendance—New Registrations Every Day

The fourth annual summer session of the Wayne State Normal school opened June 8 and Monday and Tuesday were given over to the registration of students for the new term. The enrollment at the close of the first day was 228, and the number who reached Wayne on early trains Tuesday was sufficient to have more than three hundred present at the first chapel service. Registration will continue during the week, and it is too early in the term to give definite figures on enrollment, but the opening is highly pleasing to the management of the school and present indications are favorable for a large attendance and a most excellent summer session.

An examination of the registration books shows that a large percentage of those who have recently enrolled are teachers of northeast Nebraska, but the two Dakotas, Iowa,

Members of Ladies' Aid Society at meeting June 3, at A. A. Smith home, northwest of Wayne.

Michigan and Minnesota are also represented in the attendance. A number of high school students have come to Wayne for the summer, the purpose being to make up work or to earn credit points for graduation from their home schools. Many are desirous of being employed or to work for a higher grade of certificate. High school teachers who wish to specialize for departmental work are taking advantage of the vacation time in their own schools to take methods of teaching or to carry some special line of work during the summer. Of the present enrollment, at least one hundred were students during the regular school year. A number belong to the senior class of 1914, who will complete the work of the advanced course at the close of the summer session. Some of the juniors register in order to make graduation possible in 1915.

It is very pleasing to note in the attendance a number of experienced school men and women of the state whose influence is always helpful in the discipline and work of any institution. Five already hold professional life certificates and enter for the completion of a course because of the prestige that comes to the holder of a diploma from a state school.

College Hill is a busy place. Work begins at 7 o'clock in the morning and continues until 4:30 in the afternoon. The training school is holding half day sessions, with all grades represented save one and eight.

Misses Jewell, Stocking, Luett and Piger were granted a leave of absence during the summer, and their places are being filled by Superintendent E. S. Cowen of Albion, Superintendent O. R. Bowen of Wayne, Miss Elizabeth Egan of Omaha, and Miss Mamie Anthony of Greenview, Illinois.

I. O. O. F. MEMORIAL

Memorial services for the I. O. O. F. lodge were held at the hall last Sunday morning, at 8 o'clock. At the conclusion of the service, the order marched to the cemetery to decorate the graves of deceased members.

MRS. MARGARET WADE ILL

Mrs. Margaret Wade, mother of G. A. Wade of the Wayne Democrat, is very ill at her home in this city. All her children, four daughters and three sons, are here.

FIRE DOES DAMAGE TO GEO. BUSKIRK'S HOUSE

Wesley Chronicle: Fire was discovered last Sunday afternoon about six o'clock in a bedroom of the George Buskirk home northwest of Wayne in Wayne county. It had started in a wardrobe full of clothing, and all of which were destroyed. The smoke was so dense and suffocating that it was impossible for anyone to enter the room from the inside and Mr. Buskirk had to place a bucket against the house and throw water in through a window, which the other members of the family carried in buckets. Fortunately the fire was extinguished and the house saved, although there was quite a loss in clothing, rug and bedding in that room, and the water did considerable damage to the room below.

The origin of the fire is a perfect mystery. The family had all been away from home earlier in the day and had the fire started sometime sooner or gotten a better start the home, which is one of the best in that neighborhood would have been consumed. It was only by hard work and the absence of any wind that it was saved.

MIND SUFFERS AS A RESULT OF THE HEAT

FORMER WAYNE RESIDENT

Today's Omaha Bee states that Mrs. J. Tower, formerly of Wayne, and a sister of the late W. O. Gamble, suffered an unbalanced mind as a result of the heat at the Burlington depot in Omaha yesterday. She was taken in charge by the authorities, and relatives were notified. On learning of the unfortunate condition of the woman this morning, her nephew, F. E. Gamble, of Wayne, telephoned her son at Papillion, near Omaha, and he reported that he had been apprised of his mother's trouble, and had taken her home to property care for her. Gamble says Mrs. Tower lives in Texas, and thinks she was in Omaha on her way to Brooklyn to visit relatives.

ENSIGN YOUNG MAKES HIT WITH THE PUBLIC

E. B. Young has received a very flattering letter from Rev. Mr. Knowles of the Knowles & Cotterell evangelistic party, with whom his son Ensign is traveling as piano accompanist. Mr. Knowles also sent a copy of the Danville, Ill., Commercial News, from which the Herald clips the following:

Not all the attraction of this series of meetings is in the preaching. Indeed, one of the very decided features of the services is the piano sermons by Ensign E. Young. This young man, though but 18 years of age, shows remarkable proficiency. The beauty of expression in his playing and particularly in his own compositions, marks him as a coming man. The decided talent he possesses, with the proper character and amount of training should make of this kid a favorite of tabernacle crowds one of the piano sensations of the day.

PIONEERS' MEMORIAL DAY

Col. A. J. Ferguson has received the following from S. P. Saxe, secretary of the Nebraska Territorial Pioneers' association, calling his attention to an act passed by the legislature, which provides for the observance of "Pioneers' Memorial Day." The statute suggests the observance of the second Sunday in June of each year. Owing to the fact that several of the local churches had planned special services for June 14, a meeting was held to secure a union meeting of all the churches on that date. Hence, President Ferguson is planning for the observance of pioneers' memorial day in Wayne on Sunday, June 14. A union service will be held at 10:30 a. m. in the M. E. church and Dr. H. H. Millard of Norfolk has accepted an invitation to preach a special sermon on that day. Special music will also be provided. More definite announcements will be made next week.

GRADUATES AT LINCOLN

The Herald notes in a list of graduates from the state university, published in yesterday's State Journal, the following names of Wayne graduates: Master of Arts, William P. Forbes, Dances Griffith; Bachelor of Arts, James Wilbur Britton, Ralph Wadsworth Hahn; College of Law, Leslie Andrew Welch.

BIBLE STUDY CIRCLE

The Bible Study Circle met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Abbott, the lesson having been by Mrs. Charlotte M. White. There was a large attendance and music interspersed in the meeting. Next week will be with Mrs. C. M. Christensen.

IMPROVING BAKERY

W. E. Watkins, proprietor of the local bakery, returned Monday from a business trip to Omaha and Sioux City. While absent he bought some new electric fans and other equipment for his bakery.

FEED MILL CHANGES HANDS

W. C. Martin this week sold the Wayne Feed Mill to John L. Payne of this city. Mr. Payne took possession yesterday.

Fresh string beans, cantaloupes, pineapples, green peas, and tomatoes at the grocery of Foots & Porter.

CONDITION OF WAYNE COUNTY'S FINANCES

C. W. Reynolds, county clerk, reported to the county commissioners today that at their meeting next Monday they can pay off every cent of indebtedness, and still have on hand $7,200. There is no bonded indebtedness. The balance of the courthouse bonds which amounted to $35,000 in 1899, was paid a few months ago. Payment of the bonds was commenced in 1904, the year Mr. Reynolds became clerk, and he has had a hand in figuring out all the payments. The excellent financial condition of the county should be a source of high satisfaction to all.

TOWN OF SHOLES TO DO WITHOUT SALOONS

The case involving the granting of a saloon license at Sholes was announced Judge A. A. Welch in Wayne Saturday afternoon and the court decided in favor of the remonstrators. The village board of Sholes granted a license, and the remonstrators appealed to the district judge. The action of the board is set aside, and the town remains dry.

NORFOLK MAN KILLS WIFE IN FIT OF ANGER

Frank Judd, a railroad laboring man living at Norfolk, who madly jealous because his wife, in an all-night quarrel, had told him that she might get another man better than him, choked her to death. When he discovered that his wife was dead he called up the police and gave himself up, saying, "I did not mean to hurt her so badly." Two children, a boy aged 9 and a girl, are left motherless by the brutal crime.

FORMER DAKOTA CITY GIRL WINS LAWSUIT

Miss Georgia W. Jay, daughter of the late M. C. Jay, lawyer of Dakota City, won a verdict for $20,000 in a lawsuit against J. J. R. Jay, she lived at 105 Fourteenth street. Before coming to Sioux City Miss Jay resided in Dakota City, where she was born and reared. Her father, J. J. R. Jay, practiced law in Chicago about three years ago. Throughout her residence here she was employed by Walter Bros. newspaper. She went to Chicago about three years ago.

IS FOUND GUILTY OF VIOLATING MANN ACT

Harry B. Murphy, traveling man who made frequent visits to Wayne, was found guilty by a jury in the federal court at Sioux City last Thursday of violating the Mann "white slavery" act. The count in the indictment on which the jury found Murphy guilty, charged him with transporting Marjann Brownrigg, from Pender, Neb., to Sioux City for immoral purposes. The Sioux City jury of Friday, explains the evidence as follows: "The main witness against Murphy was Miss Brownrigg. According to her story, she was induced by Murphy to leave her home at Pender and to meet him aboard a Northwestern railroad train at Emerson, Neb., on his way to Sioux City. Arriving here, they went together to his room at the Chicago house, and stayed there one night and the next day. She asserted that, after drinking something which Murphy gave her from a bottle, she lost consciousness and has no recollection of what occurred in the room during the night. Murphy asserted the girl met him on the train by accident, not by prearrangement, and that she told him she was on her way to Sioux City as the first stage in a permanent absence from home. Embarrassed with her folks had led her to decide upon running away, Murphy said she told him. Indifference to the presence of the girl in the room with him overnight was declared by Murphy to have been his attitude. She went first to bed, he said. Half an hour later he went to bed also, but did not speak to her, did not touch her, and did not ascertain if she was asleep or awake. He testified: "He went to sleep as soon as his head touched the pillow, and did not awaken until 8 o'clock next morning, according to his story." A jury from Nebraska to Sioux City was made by Murphy and the girl the evening of December 6, 1912. Maximum Penalty Five Years. Diligent efforts of the defense to arrest judgment succeeded. Judge Edwards will pronounce sentence upon Murphy during the present term of court, it is expected. The maximum penalty under the indictment returned is five years in a federal prison. If the jury had not chosen the count which omitted reference to the age of the girl, the maximum penalty would be ten years.

SEVENTY GRADUATES FROM EIGHTH GRADE

ADDRESS BY DR. J. T. HOUSE

Diplomas Presented by J. H. Kemp—John Gemmell of Carroll Vicinity Wins First Rank.

The graduates of the eighth grade received their diplomas at the graduation exercises held at the Baptist church on Friday evening, June 5, 1914. The diplomas were presented by Mrs. J. H. Kemp, principal of the school.

MRS. ELSIE LITTELL.

teachers, a large audience of parents and friends of the graduates attended.

After the invocation by Dr. Alexander Corky and solo by Miss Ina Hughes, Dr. J. T. House delivered the address to the graduating class, taking for his subject, "Life and Work." At the close of the address J. H. Kemp, with a few well-chosen remarks, presented the diplomas to a class of seventy graduates, twenty-eight boys and forty-two girls. The student receiving first rank in this class was John Gemmell, 14-year-old son of Robt. Gemmell of the vicinity of Carroll.

At the close of the program the class assembled on the steps at the Baptist church and had their pictures taken. Following is the address delivered by Dr. House:

WORK AND LIFE

Perhaps it is a prevailing view among young people that work is but a means of life, that it is in any true and inspiring sense coming to us, if at all, outside our work. Work, they feel, is only a hard discipline by which one finds himself in position to live. To live they suppose is to eat, drink and be merry, or perhaps to travel, to become famous, to be famous. Work may indeed be a means of these things and so a means of life, but not by any means life itself. Work, they say, is suppression of the personality, slavish, to be avoided when possible, to be sullenly accepted when necessary.

Now I bring you a more inspiring message. Not only is work a means of life—it may become and for most of us in large measure it is life itself. The one absorbing interest for any normal person is his occupation. All human life is social, that is it is carried on in cooperation with others. It has no meaning except as it is related to the lives of others. Now, work, occupation, is the chief way by which we come into contact with others. Thus the bricklayer, through his trade, comes into a knowledge of what men thought out in the days of the Pharaohs in Egypt. He comes into contact daily and hourly with those with whom he must cooperate in his building and when he looks at the completed structure, the work of his hands, whether it be a mighty cathedral that shall stand for ages after he and all his co-laborers shall have returned to dust or only a rude hut that shall shelter a family from the storms of winter and the heat of summer, he knows that he has helped to build the civilization that makes life really human. So you see how even the humblest craftsman in the discharge of his daily tasks is in contact with the entire human race, past, present, and future.

Again, work gives men the sense of duty. The fundamental necessity of our nature is to act. To control environment, to meet every crisis is the condition of satisfactory activity. Occupation sets the problems, gives direction to the activity so that there need be no hesitation as to what the task is. There is no sadder sight than the man without a job. I once knew a young man who, when asked what he would like to be replied: "A rich man's son." No more miserable condition can be conceived than that of the rich man's son who uses his riches to avoid consistent endeavor to live a social, human life. Act he must.

SEVENTH GRADUATES FROM EIGHTH GRADE

It is a law of his being. But with each rising sun he knows not how he shall spend the day. He is the self-passing suggestion of the lighter the air, the freer the air, of every wind of whim, passion or appetite. The idle rich who merely spend the dividends made from business built by their ancestors and maintained by their heirs, the idleness of the useless in life, useless to themselves, useless to others, often, indeed, far worse than useless. They are an isolated class like the Tramps—live off of society and return for their support. They are ignorant of the great processes going on around them and are indeed to be pitied. The opposite happy state to this is that of the man with a task. The happy state is that of the man who builds habits, gives control of material things and of thoughts and emotions.

Let us look more closely upon this fact. How does one's occupation and condition of one's life determine his habits. Now, no one can live a strong and free life until he has made habit his ally. Unless he has an occupation I can scarcely assure myself that I shall arise in the morning and go to work with myself every hour as to what I shall do next. But when my task is set many things otherwise difficult become easy, almost automatic. I rise promptly, during the day I become interested in my work, my normal and healthful, I avoid unwholesome drinks and foods, because my labors call for something more nourishing. Many a young man would find stimulating and restful his work. Thus my occupation that conditions what I shall do for thousands of hours through many years, fixes my personal habits—habits fixed and controlled give me freedom to direct my conscious life with energy and reason.

Again, occupation determines what I shall think about, not only while I work; but often during the long hours when I am seemingly at rest. My work is so absorbing that I forget to eat, to sleep, to think. I take the wings of the morning till his task follows him, distracting the mind even in the midst of recreation and haunting the pillow when he lies down to sleep. My work determines what I shall think. What I think is what I am. Out of the heart are the issues of life. Keep busy, then.

Occupation determines our attitude toward our fellows. The moral regards others as possible purchasers, the lawyer as possible clients, the preacher as parishioners—and did you ever feel that the undertaker was measuring you for a coffin? Each of these professions has its professional ethics. It is seldom that one departs much from the standard set by his group. One lawyer is about as good a man as another, one merchant about as honest as his neighbor, one preacher thinks the same of his fellow preachers and utters his thoughts in much the same phrases.

Occupation does much to determine status. In any community you will find people of the same general line of occupation, being honest in the profession or being dishonest, belonging to the same church or sect, society, often voting with the same political party, holding same philosophy of life. So we speak of the professional class, the mercantile class, the professional class, the mercantile class, the capitalist class, and when we name the class, note how we use the name of the profession, and more further how it is used to feed the world.

Do you manufacture cloth?—It clothes the people on the other side the globe. Do you assist in transportation of goods and people from one spot to another whether as a telegraph operator, a mail carrier, a stevedore or a manager of railroads and steamship companies? You are assisting to keep alive civilization, to make life really human in every part of the earth. Do you study the secrets of nature? It is that the mastery thus obtained may help other generations to control nature and use her forces for the help of man. Do you write a poem, play a piano, or sing a song? You are contributing to the culture of the world. It is that your influence may be years to come comfort others in their struggle, nerve them to the conquest over difficulties, put a song in the hearts of generations yet unborn.

How important, then, is occupation, setting the habits for our lives, determining with whom we shall associate what we shall value most, and how we shall spend our time.

Had Socrates been other than a teacher, Luther something else than a preacher, Napoleon a farmer and not a soldier, how differently would have been the history of the world?

If it were occupation, so much both to the person and to society, how important is it that each choose wisely what part he is to take in the processes of life. At what point in one's whole life is he to exercise his power? By what reason, rational control over his energetic activity, than in the choice so momentous for himself and others? I have—but one life to live. I must succeed with my self appointed task, or I am a failure. Shall I not consider with the utmost care before I decide how I shall spend the thousands of hours that are to be devoted to my life work?

In an article in the American Journal of Education, following the address of Erville B. Woods of Dartmouth college, quotes Everett W. Lord of the National Child Labor committee as saying: "Boys find themselves in their vocation as the result of customary duty, propriety, or accident—or better—often through deliberate choice." Again he quotes the answers that Mr. Lord received to letters asking people why they entered various occupations. The answers were: "Because the other boys were doing." "Because I happened to get a job in that trade." "Because that was the principal line of work near my home."

Mr. Woods says: "Society is suffering . . . from the non-utilization of the capacities of the well endowed. . . . In their preferences for occupations boys are guided by whim, contagious admiration divorced from any real interest, and by a perceived compatibility between personal traits and the requirements of the tasks. In actual selection of occupation, not even whimsical preferences are allowed to result in very many cases."

From these causes there result an indefinitely great waste of abilities which remain in some cases undiscovered and in others misplaced. How tremendous the handicap to the young man who is not given a choice (hardly to be called choice) of life work! Unless he happily accident a wise choice is made of life is irreparable.

How, then, shall the young person set about the task of choosing his life work? He should first of all decide so far as possible what sorts of occupations are offered by the world. There are parasitic and there are anti-social businesses. The sweatshops in which the worker is employed at a low living wage to work under intolerable conditions of filth and foul air, where women and children wear out their lives at starvation wages are parasitic industries. That is why they are not to be chosen. They are to be avoided by means of charities and almshouses must pay the deficit. No honorable man will engage in such businesses.

The saloon is an anti-social business. It not only fails to pay its taxes. It adds to the woes of the race. It helps to fill our prisons and jails, adds to the sorrows of women and children and to the degradation of the world.

Respectful of a girl will refuse to be employed in any occupation that does not meet legitimate wants. I have heard men who were in disreputable occupations say: "It is a filthy business, I am going to quit." My class life is not simply a business proposition. Life is a proposition of values, of personality, of self-realization.

Again, the demand for laborers in a state should certainly count in making choice. The demand in an economic sense is important and is some times considered by the youth about to enter a vocation. Obviously the task of choosing up the standard of living involves knowledge of the economic demand in a given field of labor. One should not enter an over-crowded profession, he can render equal service, he can succeed, if he goes in where the demand is greater. The normal man is likely to marry and rear a family. Unless he has means acquired in other ways he cannot rightly enter a field where the demand is less than it should be. The demand does not suffice for the reasons that demands upon husband and father in the group in which he lives. Further, economic demand in a degree measures social need. That is, in a rough way, it is based on social need. The social service, for economic service is social service though not the whole of it. A lawyer without clients, a preacher without a church, a school teacher without a school, are social as well as economic pracsites. Hence it cannot be too strongly impressed upon young men that the economic demand in a given calling should be investigated and carefully considered before an invitation for accepting or rejecting it as a life work.

But there may be demands that are not economic of sufficient import to determine a young person in choosing a work well paid. Society's judgments of value are not intelligently rendered. The most useful calling may be ill-paid. While the laborer is, indeed, worthy of his hire, in this world he does not always get it. The man who would be a rish man who does not claim that the multimillionaires of this country have given more value to its people than Abraham Lincoln, George Washington or Thomas Jefferson may, than Jacob Kiss, Isaac Addams or Booker Washington.

We know, then, that one may give up economic reward, in part at least, in behalf of the higher self. One may be a scientist whose pay is small and win respect by his command of knowledge acquired and passed on to the generation, an experienced teacher and find rich experience in "lives made better by his presence," a nameless physician who blessed a smaller neighborhood, a citizen who planted trees and laid out parks for people to play in, or one who opposed graft and greed. While the rewards of money and fame may miss him, the only product of value, personality may be added to such an one. Hence one should ask, in choosing vocation, not merely will it pay in money, is there economic demand, but does society need in this task that pays less in money?

If the young person shall decide to forego the highest economic reward and accept the place that pays less in money but renders more in service, he is giving away to the highest interest in his life, accepting the highest call that comes to man, is enrolling himself among the great spirits of the earth. But he should be certain that the need is real, not fancied, that he pursues a reality, not a dream.

The time of choice of occupation is important. Psychology and biology both teach us the value of early choice in its effect of developing skill in any calling and skill is necessary to any satisfactory performance. Again, an early choice of a life work means the definite direction of attention into fruitful channels, the speeding-up of the energies and the greater concentration of humanity that life shall be made less sad and monotonous for all. Now, work that one likes becomes as absorbing as play, may be so, so to say, that it does not seem that it never ceases to interest. Wealthy men go on plugging their wealth long after the question of making a living is lost sight of, long after they might stop work, travel, study, dream away their lives, they won't do it. Why not? If work is of necessity irksome and play agreeable, why not give up work when one has become many times as rich as one needs to be? That work is not irksome if you like it. Big business is an absorbing game. It beats billiards, cards, pool, tennis, football, north pole expeditions, and even the life of the circus because it is the game. So may other business become absorbingly interesting. Browning tells of a man who spent his life in the study of grammar. To him the game was as intensely stirring as the foot race to Sir Thomas Lipton, the world series to Christie Matheson, the Harvard-Yale match to the players on either team. Now, any work that one likes to play and the only necessary condition to make one like a task is that it be such as calls for the exercise of his powers to the fullest extent. If it be business there must be in it that which tests for his business sagacity, an exact or true judgment of the value for the exercise of skill, an investigation, that which arouses all his originality. For all these conditions create interest and interest is life.

Some years ago a magazine sent a representative among working men in order to discover a man who worked for love of the work. The employers were inclined to be sceptical, saying that all the men worked for money. The writer was sent for a fool. Nevertheless, one of these employers finally decided that he knew such a man as was wanted. The search was complicated, not one, but many men were found who revealed such spirit toward work as might fairly be described as love of work for the work's sake. It was surprising, too, the humble occupations in which they were found. One was a motorman who described in glowing language his love for the motion of the car under his feet, the joy of guiding and controlling it. "Oh," said he, "I guess I'd rather run a motorcar than eat." Another such man was a driver who loved his team, loved to drive them in the midst of crowded streets without jar or mishap to the occupant of the vehicle.

"Choose an occupation for which you are fitted. We a difficult question and yet how important! The round peg in the square hole is a reality always in evidence." A recent writer who assists persons in choosing employment, says that some of the best of those who do not come to him do one thing about as well as another while of twenty-five per cent he says that special adaptation is necessary to avoid absolute failure. The possibility of doing good work is not in the man which one is interested in and fitness is an essential for securing interest. To do good work is essential to doing the most and best for others as well as for one's self.

How now shall the young person find the business for which he is best suited? A necessary preliminary is to get a knowledge of the real nature of the business. It must be the business itself, including all its details, that one chooses, not just to make the wise selection. It should not be some attendant circumstances alone that determines choice. Many a boy thinks he would like to be a doctor because he has seen some great attorney in a dramatic plea in some celebrated case. But such situations are not an every-day affair in the life of a lawyer and the preparation for such an occupation calls for a study of principles which one who chooses that one who is unwilling to make. Often, too, such life has called for the sacrifice of ideals far more precious than any success, however glittering and famous.

It would be well for each to serve a tentative apprenticeship in some occupation, to spend the summer vacation in voyages of discovery that shall take one into the printing office, the factory, the field, the railroad, and elsewhere, and the treasure thus discovered will be his own attitudes, your dormant likes and dislikes.

It is well also to seek the counsel of those who know you best—parents, friends, teachers, enemies, if you have any. But these are likely to over estimate or under estimate your powers. It is a serious matter indeed to find the right course. Better to set your feet into a wrong known" ocean is no more heroic figure than the earnest young person seeking a life calling. The final injunction must be this: Try hard to know yourself. Don't let imagination run away with you. Look at the facts fairly and humbly and then make a conscious choice. Even a mistaken choice so made has dignity, so to say, that it does not come from drifting into the useless and nameless mass whose lives count for nothing.

But some one will say and say truly that at the best work is not the best thing that man can make mistakes in choosing a life occupation and are later unable to recall the choice and start again, that industry is so organized that again and again mere production defeats the ends that things are made for men. What shall we say to this? Is life ever to be defeated by mere things? Shall it always be true that we may be shut out from the highest enjoyments by these arrangements of society whereby the hardest and most grinding toil must be done by those least able to do it and much toil must be performed for less than a living wage? This is a question that questions one to enter into today more than to that it is a challenge to our civilization. We have found that work may be made a happy condition of life, that for things are masters over the joy of existence. It is for us to highly resolve that it shall be such for all, that every child born under our banner and every alien who comes under its protection shall have the joy of work with less and less of its sufferings. This can be secured through education and training, through legal control of industry through stimulation of invention, through increase of the distribution of the fruits of toil. All these things are yet to be accomplished but that fact does not disprove that other fact that work is the condition of happiness, the condition of interest, the condition of a life lived. Success likely to come to any one who has the right attitude toward work and cannot come at all to him who fails to "get into the game" and do his share in our human task.

But again we say: it is the nature of work that it cannot always be exciting. There must be periods when it is monotonous, mere drudgery. As yet the world has found no royal road either to geometry or any other achievement, no sacrifice of one's immediate pleasure to the demands of the task in hand is as yet a law of life. A great thinker, Ruskin, has said that drudgery is always-mean and degrading. But is he right? Is not the hearty recognition of obligation to do one's share the spiritual principle that redeems even the monotonous daily task that we call drudgery from being a force that kills and sours the soul? To do my rightful share of the hard things that they may not fall with crushing weight upon the shoulders of the weak—is not that a motive to redeem every work from the category of mere drudgery? Is it not as heroic as to die upon the battle field? Does it not inspire the soul, making it divinely tall and fair, so that no task however hard is able to crush it? To determine to do my share that others may not suffer for my neglect deserves, if anything in this world, to be called Godlike. It is this that Emerson had in mind when he penned the lines:

So high is grandeur to our dust,
So near is God to man,
When duty whispers low, "Thou hast a task,"
The youth replies "I can."

The Nebraska Press association will meet at Epworth park, Lincoln, for a week beginning next Thursday. Besides the program of the convention the editorial staff and families will camp out and enjoy sylvan nooks, crystal streams and sharpened-and-satiated appetites.

THE WEEK WITH THE CHURCHES

First Baptist Church.
 (Rev. B. P. Richardson, Pastor).
 Sunday will be a day of special services for both morning and evening. In the morning we shall observe "Fanny Day." This will be something new, but we hope it will be helpful to all. We have planned a story sermon for the children, and a brief sermon for the older people. The attendance of the entire family group will be of special interest. We believe this day will be a good time to unite the interests of parents and children around the church service. "Let every parent that reads this, help make this service a family day." The family needs to be tied more closely to the church. The home needs the church and the church needs the home. Be sure to sit in family groups. There will be songs for the little folks and for the grown-up folks.

In the evening, we shall observe children's day. A specially prepared program, "The Foundation of Life" will be given by the children. The entire program will be full of life and interest and instruction. Miss Pearl Hughes is chairman of the program committee. The families connected with the school and church are especially invited.

The young people's lesson study will be led by the pastor. It will consist of studying the practical application of christian principle.

Remember our special prayer meetings during June. We believe these meetings can be made worth while. Won't you lend a helping hand?

Methodist Church.
 (Rev. C. L. Myers, Pastor).
 The Women's Missionary societies will meet at 2:30 at the parsonage. Election day. Why not be present?

Sunday school board will meet on June 15. We would like to have every one present.

The young people's church has twenty-nine earnest, enthusiastic, energetic, wide-awake members, and every one of them is willing to work.

Interest in the Epworth League is improving and the attendance increasing.

This quarterly conference at 8 o'clock Saturday night. Let all have their reports ready and every member present.

Rev. Hosman will preach Sunday morning and administer the sacrament at 10:30.

Children's day on June 21. All invited.

Buffalo convention July 1-5. Our Epworth League should be represented.

Presbyterian Church.
 (Rev. Alexander Corkey, Pastor).
 Rev. A. B. Marshall, D. D., president of the Omaha Theological seminary, will preach at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning and evening. Dr. Marshall is one of the best known preachers of the denomination in the middle west, and it is expected that this visit of his to Wayne will be of exceptional interest to the church.

The morning service begins at 10:30, and the evening service at 8 o'clock. The Sunday school follows the morning service beginning at 12 and the C. E. prayermeeting begins at 7.

During July and August of this year, the usual custom of having union evening services on the lawn of the court house will be followed. These services will be of unusual interest this summer as several out of town take part in the same. The churches uniting in these union services are the M. E. church, the Baptist, Presbyterian, English Lutheran and German Lutheran churches.

Dr. children's day exercises which were held last Sunday morning were greatly enjoyed by the church and Sunday school. A very large congregation gathered and the day was propitious. The decorations with the church on the day, and were elaborate and complete. The program was carried on as announced and all of those taking part acquitted themselves in a most excellent way. There were nine graduates from the primary school to the primary department as follows: A. B. Prudence, Lucile Bush, Helen Lucile Noakes, Laura Ethel Hansen, Lezetta Fay Bentow, Loreta Mae Buetow, Stanley Arthur McChesney, Bernadine Sherrill, and the Tucker Family. At the ordinance of infant baptism seven children were baptized. A special offering was made to the cause of Sunday school work in America.

The evening pastor gave his closing sermon for the summer (taking for his text and parting benediction the expressive words: "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Spirit be with you all.")

St. Paul's Lutheran Church.
 (Rev. F. E. Blessing, Pastor).
 Sunday school every Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Regular divine worship at 11 o'clock a. m., and 8 o'clock p. m.

The subject of the morning sermon will be: "The Progress of Divine Life in the Soul," Mark 4:26-29. The parable recorded in these verses occupies the same position as the parable of the tares recorded in the thirteenth chapter of Matt., but is not to be identified with it. It teaches us that divine life, like ordinary seed, requires time for its development, that its growth is unnoticed and but little dependent upon human interference, and that it will have a glorious consummation.

The evening sermon will be based upon Matt. 7:12, "Life, a Career of a Mission."

The Ladies' Aid society will meet at the home of Mrs. Victor Carlson on next Thursday afternoon.

Choir rehearsal every Tuesday evening at the church.

A cordial invitation is extended to all who wish to worship with us.

REPUBLICAN BANQUET.
 The republicans of this state are to have a big dollar dinner at the Rome hotel, in Omaha, Monday evening, June 22. Senator William S. Kenyon of Iowa, and Hon. Frank M. Currie of Broken Bow will be the speakers of the evening. Hon. A. C. Epperson of Clay Center will preside.

Senator Kenyon is so well and favorably known in a national way, that introductory remarks seem unnecessary. He is a thorough going republican of the progressive type, a fluent and forceful talker, and an acknowledged leader in national politics.

State Senator Currie has long been in the councils of his party, and is a man of whom the republicans of this state are justly proud.

Officers of county committees and regular clubs are urged to attend this meeting. The dinner is a state wide affair and it is hoped that every county in the state will be represented.

Requests for reservations should be sent in at the earliest possible date to Mr. Clinton Brown, Brundis Theatre building, Omaha.

The banquet is in charge of Amos Thomas, Edgar A. Baird, Clinton Brown and Henry E. Ostrom.

WAYNE COUPLE MARRIED.
 Herald-Republic, Salt Lake City.
 A very pretty wedding of Misses and Messrs. was that of Mrs. Hazel Weber of Wayne, Neb., and Frank Ford of Northridge, Payette, Idaho, which was solemnized at the home of Mrs. N. J. Sheckel, 563 E. Sixth South street, the Rev. William A. Betsworth officiating. June roses and strings were used for the decoration in the parlor and the dining room, the color scheme of red and white prevailing. A cluny cloth covered the table and a basket of red roses held with a large red satin bow mounted upon a mirror formed the centerpiece. The color scheme was carried out in the refreshments, which were served by Miss Goldie Brooks, assisted by Mrs. H. L. Pratt and Mrs. N. J. Sheckel.

INCIDENT FIRE.
 The fire department was called out Saturday by an alarm from the Carl Clasen home in the western part of the city. The origin of the fire is a mystery. Mrs. Clasen had a basket of summer clothes and piled them on a chair. A few moments later they were discovered in flames with no apparent cause. The fire was easily extinguished with only the loss of the clothes and slight damage to furniture, amounting in all, to about $35.

GET TO THE CAUSE

Wayne People Are Learning the Way.

There is but little peace or comfort for the man or woman with a bad back. The distress begins in early morning—keeps up throughout the day. It's hard to get out of bed, it's torture to stoop or straighten. Plasters and liniments may relieve, but cannot cure if the cause is inside—the kidneys. When suffering with Doan's Kidney Pills, the itching and proven kidney remedy, used in kidney troubles for over 50 years. Doan's Kidney Pills are recommended by thousands for just such cases. Proof of their effectiveness in the testimony of this Wayne resident—

Mrs. Henry Hansen, Wayne, Neb., says: "Three years ago I was annoyed by sudden pains in the small of my back, caused by exertion of the contraction of a cold. There was a steady, throbbing ache across my loins and I was so lame and sore that I could not get up after sitting. Headaches and dizzy spells annoyed me and the kidney secretions were in bad shape. Nothing brought me any permanent relief until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured me and there has never been the least return of the trouble."

Saturday, June 6, was commencement day for Wayne county's eighth graders, all of whom were assembled in Wayne. We understand that Ruby Reed, Helen Relmus, and Alice Main were the three who had the highest general average.

runs. The Winside ball fans were so enthused over the game that they called a meeting at the town hall Tuesday evening and organized a team for the season.

DEATH OF MRS. HARTMAN. Friday morning, Fred Hartman, a prosperous young farmer, residing one and a half miles south of Winside, returned to his home from Sioux City where his young wife had died in one of the hospitals.

Mrs. Hartman was accompanied by his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Liedtke, who live fourteen miles south and one mile east of Winside. The bereaved family were met at the depot here by friends and relatives, who were anxious to give all the assistance they could.

KICKED BY A HORSE. Friday, at noon, just as Roy Fisher, owner of the famous Hampshire herd, was leaving his barn, he was kicked in the pit of the stomach by one of his horses. Dr. Neely who was called at once, worked with him most of the afternoon, and is quoted as having said that if the kick had been an inch higher Mr. Fisher never would have known what happened. At the last report, Mr. Fisher was getting along as well as possible.

Erwin G. Barber, who is quoted as being the barber shop in the care of his assistant, William Olson, and is helping out at Roy's.

CLUBS NEW OFFICERS. Friday, June 5, the final business meeting of the season for the Women's club was held at the home of the president, Mrs. H. E. Siman. The officers for the following year are: Mrs. E. W. Cullen, president; Mrs. Lute Miller, vice president; Mrs. G. A. Mittelstadt, secretary; Mrs. J. O. Brown, treasurer; and Mrs. A. H. Carter, Mrs. J. G. Neely and Mrs. H. E. Siman, executive board.

After giving a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Siman, retiring president, for her efforts in behalf of the club—and listening to a short address by Mrs. Siman, and a brief but meaning speech from Mrs. Cullen, the meeting was closed.

OFFICERS INSTALLED. Monday night was the regular meeting night for the Eastern Star lodge of Winside, at which meeting the following officers were installed by Mrs. R. H. Morrow, installing officer:

Mrs. Walter Gaebler, Worthy Matron; Walter Gaebler, Worthy Matron; Mrs. A. Kieffer, Associate Matron; Mrs. D. M. Mittelstadt, secretary; G. A. Mittelstadt, treasurer; Mrs. H. E. Siman, organist; Mrs. K. D. Frost, chaplain; Mrs. A. J. Chapin, conductress; Miss Stella Senter, associating conductress; Mrs. G. A. Mittelstadt, Mrs. C. H. Miller, Miss Edith Carter, Mrs. George Sweigard, Miss Josie Cagter, points of Star. After the meeting the ladies served a delicious supper.

FIREMEN ACT PROMPTLY. Thursday evening, just after the excitement over the windstorm, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Morrow went over to their room at the Wheeler house, and decided to sit on the south porch to cool off, but had scarcely got located when Mrs. Morrow discovered a flame in the back of one of their store buildings. They rushed over to the store, but on the way, Mrs. Morrow told a traveling man to turn in the alarm. Not knowing where to go, he told someone on the street and while Mr. and Mrs. Morrow were walking through the store and back the firemen were on hand. In talking afterwards, the traveling man made the remark that fire was used to city life, and did not occur in the back of a team in town the size of Winside, but that he never saw such quick action anywhere. Fortunately, the fire was quickly put out without the fireboys' help, but it certainly is encouraging to the citizens to find that they have such an energetic team, ready to move at the first call, and that at an hour when many of the boys had already retired. This building was the scene of a fire in the early spring, and had the fire, Mrs. Morrow suffered considerable from water in the store, and this month they were in the flood. Mrs. Morrow called for help at once, and is now regretting her haste. Winside's firemen are in the thick of it now, right for a little headway gained by fire in such a building would certainly have been disastrous.

ANNUAL BANQUET. Wednesday, June 3, the Women's club gave their tenth annual banquet at the home of Mrs. H. E. Siman, president for the past two years. This is the thirtieth year that the Women's club has been in existence, and it is one of the very few towns of its size that can boast of a public library.

CARD PARTY. Thursday evening, June 3, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilson entertained a number of their friends at their country home east of Winside. Owing to the storm, which came up just as the people were ready to leave town, there was great excitement over the start, but the finish was a splendid success. All of those who were brave enough to go in spite of the wind were only too sorry when it was time to go home.

BASEBALL GAME. Sunday afternoon the Pilger baseball team played in Winside against a team of Winside home talent with a score of four to three in favor of Winside. There were four double plays, and three home runs by the Winsiders, and one for the Pilger team. Fritz Dimmel's steal home was one of the star events of the game, as that scored the winning run.
