The Wayne public is pleased with Professor Bowen's services and would regret to have him leave.

PROBATE NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

In the county court of Wayne county, Nebraska.

In the matter of the estate of Mary A. Rafferty, deceased.

Notice is hereby given that the creditors of the said deceased will meet the executor of said estate before me, county judge of Wayne county, Nebraska, at the county courtroom in said county, on the 28th day of December, 1914, and on the 28th day of June, 1915, at 10 o'clock a. m. each day, for the purpose of presenting their claims for examination, adjustment and allowance. Six months are allowed for creditors to present their claims and one year for the executor to settle said estate, from the 28th day of Deember, 1914. This notice will be published in the Wayne Herald for four weeks successively prior to the 28th day of December, 1914.

Witness my hand and seal of said court, this 30th day of November, D. 1914.

JAMES BRITTON, County Judge.

Mrs. McClain's Experience With Croup.

"When my boy Ray was small he was subject to croup, and I was always alarmed at such times. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy proved far better than any other for this trouble. It always relieved him quickly. I am never without it in the house. I for I know it is a positive cure for croup," writes Mrs. W. R. McClain, Blacksburg, Pa. For sale by all dealers.—Ad.

Sick Headache.

Sick headache is nearly always caused by disorders of the stomach. Correct them, and the periodic attacks of sick headache will disappear. Mrs. John Bishop of Rossville, O., writes: "About a year ago, I was troubled with indigestion and had sick headache that lasted for two or three days at a time. I doctored and tried a number of remedies, but nothing helped me until a friend advised me to take Chamberlain's Tablets. This medicine relieved me in a short time." For sale by all dealers.—Ad.

WESTERN WEATHER

The great mid-west gets into print in letters of a crimson tint, where're a cyclone journeys, thence and tears the pickets from a fence. The ring-tailed twisters of the air cause nothing but amazement there; they chase a farmer now and then or lift a porker from its pen, but seldom do they cause a wail, or leave much wreckage in their trail. And when a winter blizzard comes, and o'er the western prairie hum, and cause a cyclone promptly grows; a gust of snow, with icy breath, becomes a blizzard, charged, with death, to blowing their rubles with grace; and once they were going your idio pace. Their clamorings reach you, their sighs and the groans; do they nothing teach you, Charles Absalom Jones?

IN DREAMS.

In dreams I know the noble fires that filled the bars of long ago; in dreams I smile celestial byres, and hear the deathless music flow; but when I wake and take my pen, or try to strike undying tunes, I find the same old luck again. I cannot sing for moldy prunes. In dreams with seraphim I swing through all the boundless reach of sky, and hear the choir triumph over the songs men know not till they die; but when I waken and go outdoors I meet no bright angelic maid; I see a bunch of female boys engaged in militant parade. In dreams I float peacefully on my rind, and hear the tempests rave, or lie beneath the nodding trees that on some tropic island wave; but when I wake I find they lie west of Columbus circle and south of the airport 'brealis'. Nebraska is a milk-eyed, placid, blue-stocking'd old maid, who never had a throbb of emotion stronger than a platonic yearning for a tully cat. Nebraska's feet never are found tanguing up and down the primrose path of alliance with any idea more diverting than a geometrical theorem. Nebraska never has produced a public man except Bryan, and she never has given him a sustaining majority when he needed it. Nebraska is so prim that a cyclone never twisted her off her feet and kiss'd where she stood. Nebraska never surged with a hot wind nor howled with a blizzard. Nebraska is so blamed virtuous that her emotions are ingrown and her morals callous. The idea that she would produce a gay, frolicsome, picturesque, festive and intrepid genius like Funston is positively grotesque. Why not speak of Norway as the home of Dante, of Berlin as the home of Napoleon, of Manioba as hungry writers on their beats, pursuing news for outside sheets. But when your attention is called to western weather, in the fall? Who can describe the golden days, the smiling skies, the purple haze, the gentle winds that softly fan the forehead of the dreaming man? If there's a hard, inspired ground, what editor would print the stuff?

LIKE A SOLDIER.

Let me like a soldier fall, with a bullet in my gall, with the colors in my hand—such a passing would be grand, and a line or two I'd catch in some general's dispatch. I might live in safe and snug while my mother scraped along, toiling in her winter years, saturating things with tears, mourning for her martial son, who was shot up with a gun. Let me like a soldier fall, where the the wind has northward switched since yesterday; it brings a goodly load of snow on my rind, and does everything in sight. In dreams I leave this sordid strand, where men are valued for their wads, and live a while in Fable Land, and eat ambrosia with the gods; but when at last I cease to snore and rise to eat my morning-bread, a string of men are at the door, with forty-seven kinds of duns.

FRAIL HUMANITY.

Alas, we are but sorry creatures, human beings, one and all; we do our best, we are not quitters, but our results seem heastly small. You know how earnestly we swatted, all through the stifling summer days, and many a peck of flies we potted, and reveled in your well earned praise. With patient zeal and pur-

Now comes Mr. Newbranch, with his pen dipped in vinegar and vitriol, and thuswise takes the hide off of White:

"These envy, as the poet remarked, withers at another's joy, and hates that excellence it cannot reach." So was it ever with Kansas.

"Nebraska raises corn and alfalfa and wheat and pork and beef, and Kansas raises hell. Nebraska piles up wealth and Kansas piles up sand dunes. Nebraska is so righteous she can trust herself to freedom, and Kansas so wicked that she must reherse in gyves and chains—and then cries out, 'See how good I am!' Kansas tries all things, and Ne-

Let me nobly sink to rest with a banner on thy breast, while my father, old and blue, does the work I ought to do, drooping for his bread, but being able to hang around some dead. Let me like a soldier fall, all ripped up by bomb and ball, let me to Valhalla go, with my face toward the foe, so my fame for aye may ring, and the minstrels ever sing of the mighty swab that made me the hero of the world, while my widow at the tub washes for her humble grub and my hungry pose sober we carried on our endless quest, from early June until October we slew the flies and took no rest. With hardly time to eat our dinner, we soaked the flies from sun to sun; but were their legions any thinner for all the swatting we had done? Perhaps some highbrow poetical statistician might prove there were a million less than when, with high and pure ambition we started out—but that's a guess. Worn out by weary months of slaughter, we rest at last, our muscles lame; and then Dame Nature takes her sweeter and more destructive than can be found anywhere else on earth. braska picks up those that are good and holds on to them. Kansas keeps the rest. Nebraska is philosophic and happy, Kansas a fretful, impatient insomniac. Kansas vainly seeks surcease in fads and follies and chimeras. Nebraska finds it in the simple virtues our mother taught reinforced by all the good things that a rational use of honestly acquired wealth can procure. Nebraska is courteous and unobtrusive. Kansas a shrieking self-advertiser, boasting even of her blizzards and hot winds as colder and hotter and more destructive than can be found anywhere else on earth. WASTED MONEY.

You're free with your money, Charles Absalom Jones; you think it is funny to blow in the bones. Your wealth you are blowing with insolent ease, as though it were the stuff of gooseberry trees. But now, ere you squander your last blooming red, consider and ponder—oh, Charles, look ahead! The swit years are spinning away to their boarue, soon you'll be beginning lost youthtime, to mourn,

HERALD EXCHANGE CLEANINGS OF WEEK

Nebraska and Kansas.— Freemont Herald: About as interesting a literary trouncing as man ever got was when old "Bill" White, as he is affectionately known by the excellencies and blessings, and Kansas outranks Nebraska in her ability as a ballyhoo artist. Kansas like ~~wass~~ ~~sneels~~ Nebraska in the production of sockless statesmen whose ideas are as contempt as their whiskers, and of writers who are the delight of all those who read with the aid of an index finger.

"But when it comes to the production of that which is of enduring worth, from bank balances to artists and geniuses, Nebraska has Kansas crowd" we infer to C. W. Horn and the Panhandle. Kansas may boast her Simpson, her Funston, her Marx, Ellen Lease, her Carrie Nations, and her William Allen Whites. Nebraska has only to mention, off-hand Bryan; the world's most popular statesman and most hopeful promoter of peace; the Borglums, the greatest living sculptors; Stanley the world's greatest explorer; Bessey, the greatest living botanist, and Rosewater, the dearest living republican. Where is Kansas then with her latter-day legends all of fame? If anything were left of her it would be necessary only to push forward Capt. Vic Halligan's crew, the world's greatest football team, and you'll find that the dollar is harder to nail, and then you will holler, but 'twill not avail. Old men by the bushel are starving today, and, Charles, the whole push'll bear out what I say. Had they but a fragment of wealth, they would long to learn what a jag meant, in days long ago, they now might be resting in comfort and ease, a-smiling and jesting, serene as you please. The old men are straying through alley and street; the old men are a-praying for something to eat; they throng in the city, starved, weary and lame; oh, cheer, what a pity, oh, Charles, what a shame! And once they were newspaper boys of Kansas, was taken in hand by Harvey Newbranch, of the World-Herald. The New York Times, in speaking of the promotion of General Funston, for-merly of Kansas, remarked that his advancement would give satisfaction not only in "Nebraska, Funston's state, but all over the Union." That made Bill hot, and he indited a few lines as follows: "And for such as this Kansas has fought her way to the stars! Nebraska—colorless, eventless, uninteresting Nebraska—that an intelligent editorial writer should confuse Kansas with Nebraska, merely because Appendicitis Extraordinary.

Hartington Herald: The impression seems to be gaining ground that there must be some special cause for the prevalence of appendicitis in this locality. It is undoubtedly a fact that the number of cases of the disease in this vicinity is extraordinary and that the percentage of operations performed by the Hartington and its environs is greater than that of any other locality unless it be the equally unfortunate town of Cole-ridge, where appendicitis is frightfully frequent. In South Dakota, where the writer used to live, he does not recall a single case of appendicitis during a five years' residence, and newspaper reports do not indicate the ravages of the disease in other places to compare with what they are here. Hospital statistics prove the contention that more people are operated on for appendicitis in this locality than in any other known to the institutions and the inquiry naturally arises whether or not there is some special cause for this condition. Out of six persons gathered together casually sample of the remarkable prevalence in a room in Hartington recently. Of the disease, is there some particular of them had their appendix removed, and this is just a fair is it?

Miss Bess Plunleigh, Jim Ballard, and Scott Snerbahn went to Wakefield Wednesday to furnish music for a club dance Wednesday evening.

Miss Helen Blair arrives the last of the week from Hastings, where she is teaching—to spend the holiday vacation with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Blair.

We will have a fine supply of "home killed" ducks, chickens, and turkeys for Christmas. Order now. Central Meat Market, F. R. Dean, proprietor. D17lad Krout, dill pickles, mince meat, celery, pickled pigs' feet, tripe; also a fine line of fresh and smoked fish at the Central Meat Market. Phones 66 and 67. D17lad

Mrs. Charles Shultheis and Arthur Shultheis returned last week from a month's visit with relatives at Three Rivers, Mich., and at Chicago and Des Moines.

Have you tried oysters and celery at the Central Meat Market? If not, order some in your next order and be convinced. We have the largest and best flavored oysters and celery in town. D10lad

William Andersen has built another ice house to accommodate an increased harvest. Last summer he had to ship in six cars of ice to supply the demand. He will endeavor to have enough for next year.

Dr. A. Naffziger, formerly of Wayne, came up from Omaha Tuesday for a few days' sojourn.

P. H. Kohl left Wednesday afternoon for Farmer City, Ill., where he was called on business. From there he goes to Bryn Mawr, Pa., to meet his daughter, Miss Marjorie, who will be at Wayne for the holiday vacation.

A couple of formidable "blood-hounds" which had been taken to Bloomfield to ferret out the source of a crime, were put on the east-bound train at this place Monday, having failed to reveal the knowledge desired.

The Kohl Land and Investment company made two deals Tuesday—the sale of the 200 acres belonging to the Claus Kay estate, south of La Porte, to Hans Hammer at $150 an acre, or $30,000, and the sale of 160 acres belonging to Frank Derieg, three miles southeast of Wayne, to John Kay for $150 an acre.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Lamberson returned Saturday from Fremont where they were called by the fatal illness of the former's father, James P. Lamberson, who died at his home in that city on Tuesday night of last week. Funeral services were held at the late residence Friday morning, with interment in the cemetery at Hooper. The deceased came to Nebraska in 1873 and located on a farm near Hooper. He was a charter member of the A. F. & M. Lodge at Hooper, and had many warm friends.

Miss Marjorie Kohl, who is attending Baldwin college at Bryn Mawr, Pa., has lately received gratifying recognition on merit in that institution in the "Christmas Carol," presented by the school, she took the part of Scrooge, and she was selected one of four to represent characters of "The Lion and the Mouse," out of eighty-seven students who were considered. One Sunday recently Miss Kohl visited Washington, and attending that church where the president is accustomed to worship, had the pleasure of sitting near the chief executive during the service and was able to study the man at short range.

The Little Christmas Tree

By Susan Coolidge

The Christmas day was coming; the Christians eve drew near.
The fir trees they were talking low at midnight, cold and clear, And this is what the fir tree said, all in the pale moonlight,
"Now, which of us shall chosen be to carry the holy night?"

The tall trees and the goodly trees relaxed each a lily leaf, In glad and secret confidence, though not a word they said, But one the baby of the band, could not restrain a sigh,
"You all will be approved," he said,
"But, oh, what chance have I?"

THE CHRISTMAS ANGEL AND SANTA CLAUS
"I am so small, so very small, no one will mark or care for me.
How thick and green my needles are,
how true my branches grow, Few toys and candies could I hold, but heart and will are free.
And in my heart of hearts I know I am a Christmas tree!"

The Christmas angel hovered near; he caught the grieving word, And, laughing low, he hurried forth, with glove and pin stirred.
He sought and found St. Nicholas, the dear old Christmas saint, And in his fatherly, kind ear released the fir tree's plaint.

Saints are all powerful, we know, so it befell that day That, ax on shoulder, to the grove a woodman took his way, One baby girl he had at home, and he went forth to find A little tree as small as she, just suited to his mind.

Oh, glad and proud the baby fir, amid his brethren tall,
To be thus chosen and singled out by the first among them all!
He stretched his fragrant branches; his little heart beat fast; He was a real Christmas tree—he had his wish at last.

One large and shining apple, with checkers rusty gold; Six tapers and a tiny doll were all that he could hold.
The baby laughed, the baby crowed, to see the tapers bright; The forest baby felt the joy and shared in the delight.

And when at last the tapers died and the baby slept
The little fir, in silent night, a patient vigil kept.
Though scorched and brown its needles were, it had no heart to grieve,
"I have not lived in vain," he said,
"Thank God for Christmas eve!"

The First Christmas Card.
The honor of the Christmas card is ascribed frequently to the late W. C.
Dobson, an English printer. In December, 1844, a date earlier than that given by any other claim, he was anxious to send some money home Christmas greeting than that of a letter to a distant friend, and the idea occurred to him to make a little sketch symbolizing the spirit of the occasion.
The sketch depicted in its center a family party gathered around the Christmas dinner table raising glasses to the birth of Christ. The card was underneath were the words "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to you," while on each side was a small or sketch representing an act of benevolence. Mr. Dobson's card so pleased its recipient that the following year he designed another card, of which he sent illustrated copies to a large circle of friends. Other artists followed his example, and the circle widened out. Christmas cards grew wider and wider until an enterprising printer saw there was money in the business, and within a few years from the birth the Christmas card was to be sent in hundreds of shop windows.

LET THIS BE YOUR CHRISTMAS.

They off, a few remembrances from relatives and friends and a good dinner—is that all that Christmas means to you? Surely you are going to make it an occasion for more than usual rejoicing this year, a real old-fashioned Christmas.
Surely you are going to be more liberal in spirit than ever before and scatter merriment on all sides. Have you been a little selfish have you devoted too much time to coloring yourself that you have forgotten other folks?

Those you have forgotten are good folks, aren't they, the best folks in the world? And you are just going to show them how appreciative you are. You don't think this way of turning down old Christmas into an occasion for trading and exchanging gifts.
You are going to see all the friends you care on that day, to shake hands with as many; pat them on the back and tell them how glad you are to be with them. And to those you cannot see you are going to write cheery, warm hearted letters and tell them you want to hear from them often. Isn't that how you feel about the greatest of all birthdays?

FAMOUS TREE THAT BLOOMS ON CHRISTMAS.

A very interesting group of Christmas superstitions clusters about plants and animal life. Tradition tells us after Joseph of Arimathea had begged the body of our crucified Saviour and had laid it in his own newly hewn tomb he left Palestine forever and in hand he traveled many weary months and finally reached Glastonbury, in England. Here he planted his staff, and in the course of time it sent out leaves and buds. On the glad Christmas morning the buds burst into a mass of exquisite bloom. Since that day of long ago the Glastonbury thorn never fails to be covered with delicate white flowers on Christmas morning.
By the following day they have all disappeared.

A cutting of the Glastonbury thorn was taken to Buckinghamshire, where it became as famous as the parent plant itself. Thousands of people from near and far were wont to go to see the blossoming of the thorn on Christmas-morning. When about the middle of the sixteenth century England adopted the Gregorian calendar, which brought Christmas eleven days earlier than under the older style of reckoning time, the custom of people going disappointed. To their simple minds they had actually been deprived of eleven days of their mortal life, and marched through the streets carrying placards bearing the inscription,
"Give Us Back Our Eleven Days!" That they had been wronged became convicting when the Buckingham-shire thorn failed to blossom on the new date, and when the people actually refused to attend church on the 26th of December the following year. In England were forced to celebrate divine worship on both the old and the new dates.

In many times special delicacies were supposed to preside over the harvests, and the people sought in every possible manner to propitiate these powerful gods. In out of the way parts of Europe the trees are still formally invited to the Christmas feast. "Asking acceptance for granted, the remains of the Christmas dinner are spread about the roots of the fruit trees. This ceremony is supposed to insure plentiful harvests the following autumn. In other places the trees were in older times heated with clubs to make them more productive.

TWO CHRISTMAS COOKIES

In all good, old-fashioned German households, the housewife is very busy for days before her Christmas cakes. Does it seem to you rather early? Well, indeed, it is high time that the Yuletide goodies were being packed in the huge earthenware creeks to stand in the cool storeroom to "mellow." They mature with age, just like the fruit cake. Here are a few delicious cookies that are served at festival coffeees during the holiday season:

CHOCOLATE KISSES.

One pound ground almonds, one pound pulverized sugar, one-half pound sweet chocolate (ground), stiffly beaten whites of eight eggs, one-half cup of lemon.

Beat the sugar into the beaten whites for ten minutes. Add the lemon juice, chocolate and almonds. Drop with a spoon on buttered tin and bake in very cool oven until crisp to the touch.

HAZELNUT COOKIES.

One-half pound ground-hazelnuts, one-half pound ground almonds, one pound pulverized sugar, whites of five eggs.

Beat the whites stiff. Add almonds and hazelnuts. Stir in one-half cupful of the mixture to be spread on the top of the cookies. Just before rolling roll out the mixture one-quarter inch thick, cut into pretty shapes and bake in oven until the pale fawn color appears.

Hello! Hello!

Yes, This is Santa Claus

Where am I? Oh, at the Wayne Variety Store—the Christmas headquarters of the town. Be sure to come here and see me.

Sure! Just wait till I get my pencil. Now what is it you want?— A Doll, Why, Mr. Nuss has some fine ones that I made myself in my shop at the North Pole. You can have them any way you want them—dressed or undressed, small or large. Be sure to ask for that 50c character doll he has. I took special care in making this doll. It is unbreakable, and I made it so, because I know that some of you little girls are a little careless in handling your toys and playthings.

Doll Furniture, Books, Toys—Sure. All those things are here, too. They are all wonderfully pretty.

Now that is a good little girl to think of her little brother also. But don't worry, Mr. Nuss has a lot of things for him, too. Just bring him along when you come, so he can see all the nice things I have laid out at

The Variety Store

And be sure to tell your mother and father, your big brother and sister, Grandma and all your other relatives to call me up at the Variety Store. I have something for all of them here.—Don't forget to tell your mother that she will find a fine assortment of Chinaware here when she comes. Cups and Saucers, Plates, Bowls, Vases, Berry Sets, Dresser Sets, Sugars and Creamers, Trays, Hair Receivers, and many other articles. You know all ladies like a nice piece of Chinaware, and she certainly will find it here.

Now, if you are in the contest for that big doll, or your brother for that automobile, be sure and have all your tickets, fully or partly punched, at the Variety Store by Thursday night, December 24, when the contest will close. So you you say you worked hard for that doll? Well that is good, I hope you will get it.

What is it? Candy! Why, of course, you will find candy at the Variety store—one of the best and biggest lines of candy in town.—Just tell your mother to get her Christmas Candy here. It is pure and fresh and will certainly taste good to you on Christmas morning.

All right, don't forget to tell her, and be sure to come and see me here.

Good Bye

Omaha Examiner: It used to be thought that country villages were dead and forlorn places, particularly in winter. But if you were to survey a lot of rural exchanges at this time of year you would conclude that the modern country town is apt to be full of social life. It is often hard for organizations to get free nights for entertainments, when they won't conflict with other functions.

The rural entertainment may not be a very thrilling function, judged from the viewpoint of metropolitan life. But at least it is the home product of the people.
When you occupy a seat at some great city theatre, your evening is a passive one. You have gained no experience of personal activity. You have merely sat back and seen someone else do things.

When you get up an entertainment for a rural stage, you act, think, and originate for yourself.
The experience sharpens your faculties and brightens your wits. Wherefore, if you want to find really bright people, you will do quite well to go to the country for them.

Wanted War Horses

They must stand 15 1-2 to 16 hands high, must weigh 1150 to 1400 pounds, must be sound and fair of flesh—no gray except dark. Will also buy some old mares from 10 to 20 years old. These mares must be good size and in good condition. Will buy them with slight blemishes. Have them in Wayne, Saturday, December 19, at Goemann's feed barn.

Useful and Practical Christmas Gifts

This year, more than ever before, it behooves us to be practical in our giving. Right here, is where we can help, as our entire stock has been selected along those lines, and right now, when you most need warm clothing, most of the "ready-to-wear lines" have been cut to absolute cost, owing to the mild and open fall. We offer unusual inducements for Christmas Shopping. Do it early.

Coats at Cost

Somewhat earlier this year, we are closing out Ladies' Misses' and Children's coats at cost. No reserves, every garment goes. Some very beautiful silk plush garments, full satin lined. All this year's styles are included. All profit has been "cut out." Money back is all we expect. Every garment marked in plain figures. Get yours before assortment is broken.

Handkerchiefs

We have always been noted for our display of high class handkerchiefs. These are selected personally from the largest stock in the world, before the season opens, securing first selection, which was most important this year, as these goods are all imported. The hand embroidery on finest linen is done in Ireland, in cottage homes; also by the Swiss peasants in their mountain homes. The designs and workmanship are beautiful, and the prices within the reach of all—25c and 35c, and up. Also any amount of nice cambric handkerchiefs at 5, 10, and 15 cents, convenient to send; can be mailed with a letter.

Gent's Initial Handkerchiefs, 15c and 25c Each House Slippers for Men, Women and Children

For the first time, we have a complete stock of the famous "Comfy" line of felt slippers, advertised all over the United States and unsurpassed for comfort and style. Children's, 50 cents to $1; ladies, $1.25, $1.50, and $1.75; gents, $1.25 to $1.75. They come in attractive colors, and each packed in Christmas carton, a most appropriate gift.

Sizes can be exchanged after Christmas.

Ladies' Kid and Fabric Gloves

These are very scarce, being import goods. We were very fortunate in having a good stock of our usual satisfactory brands, also wool mittens and golf gloves.

Gent's Neckwear

Made especially for this season. Each put up in a special holiday box, beautiful assortment of silk. Your choice of several hundred patterns, 50 cents each. The best line you will see.

Furs in Sets or Separate Muffs

Ladies' or Misses', every piece guaranteed as represented, reasonable in price and all new, you take no chance in buying furs here. Nothing more appreciated by the ladies than furs for Christmas.

Silk Hosiery

Is always acceptable by old or young. We have fiber silk hose for children at 25 cents; for ladies at 35 and 50 cents; for men, 25 cents. All silk at 50 cents, $1.00, and $1.50 in separate cartons if desired.

Wide Fancy Ribbons

For fancy work or hair ribbons. We were fortunate in securing two lots at a big reduction, and can now offer one assortment at 25 cents per yard, and one at 35 cents per yard, best values ever seen.

The Little Paris Shop of Merite Jewelry

Has been restocked with all the latest novelties in Sterling silver and gold-filled brooches, beauty pins, bar pins, ear drops, cuff buttons, tie pins, bracelets, pendants, and hat pins. The line is fully guaranteed by the maker, and price established by him is marked on a detachable coupon on the back of card. You are sure to get the right article at the right price, or your money back; range from 25c up, and you will be surprised at the value.

Ladies' Dress Shoes

In Patent Leather, Serge Top are the latest. We have a complete stock, $4.

We wish you a Merry Christmas

THRIFTY HOTEL GUESTS.

The Mania For Stealing Little Souvenirs of Their Visits.

We often hear complaints from tourists about larcenous and petty thefts committed on the part of those whose duty it is to cater to the traveling public. But there is another side to the story. For instance, the existance of pieces of historic or scenic interest, frequently visited by travelers are obliged to maintain constant watch against the vandalism of souvenir hunters.

What satisfaction can be found in mutilating and demolishing things of interest and value to procure a souvenir or in propitiating them, well known hotels such property as knives, forks, pepper and salt shakers, napkins, towels and bath mats? The manager of a prominent hotel in New York even reports the disappearance of pillows from the bedrooms.

The value of this stolen property easily amounts to a very large sum. It has been the underlying cause for the appearance of such items as the following on menus: "Chicken en cascade in individual souveners" or "There are numerous little souveners, such as silver plated trays, teaspoons, etc., for sale by various hotels to satisfy collectors.

Box all things that disappear from hotels are taken with deliberate intention. The manager of one of the most fashionable hotels in New York has said, "There is not always a profusion, but it is taken away unobtrusively—as wrappers for shoes and other articles when packing, and medals, keys, unobtrusively tucked away in their coat pockets after using them, and these are dropped at the next hotel visited."

This wholesale purloining of hotel articles has led to the formation of a linen exchange. Many of the leading managers now have stock taken of all the foreign linen in their hotels, and a register entered in their accounts to list its rightful owners, who then return linens not belonging to them.—Leslie's.

COMEDY IN BATTLE.

Serio-Comic Incidents of the Zulu War in South Africa.

The following story is told of an incident that occurred during the Zulu war in South Africa, when an overwhelming force of natives was opposed to a little band of English marines. From the Zulu host stepped forth a warrior laden with an ancient firearm, accoutrements mounted on a tripod to the open, while the marines looked on, admiring his pluck and wondering much what he proposed to do. At last one having the nerve suggested that their photographs were about to be taken, and by common consent no shots were fired.

The fool will now close unobtrusely on the folds of the handkerchief.

An important Point.

A city girl was taking a course in an agricultural college. After a lecture on "How to increase the Milk-Flow" she rose for a question.

"How long" she thoughtfully inquired "must one wait a few weeks before she will give whipped cream?"—Judge.

Professional Habit.

"That policeman is too conscientious to be a gardener."

"What do you mean?"

"How long" she thoughtfully inquired "must one wait a few weeks before she will give whipped cream?"—Judge.

Reasonable Enough.

"What's your objection to the farm miter?"

"The land appears to be sunken."

"But that's owing to the heavy crops."—Washington Herald.

A Substitute For Bread.

An amusing anecdote is told of Lord Cardigan, a British general who fought in the Crimean war when a coalition of England, France, Turkey and Sardinia fought Russia. Cardigan was a choleric old general, whose bursts of temper were a constant dread of all his subordinates in the army.

It once happened, says Novellen-Scholz, that provisions for the troops ran very short. In fact, the army almost faced a famine. One morning when the general appeared for breakfast the cook came before him and said in a troubled tone, "Pardon me, your lordship, I have set the table in the dining tent, as usual, but there isn't any bread!"

"No bread?" roared the general. "Why didn't you buy some?"

"There isn't any to be had. The stores are all run out," replied the cook.

"Well, don't stand there like a blooming idiot! Why under the sun don't you get me some toast?"

The Spy and the King.

The following story is told of Louis XVIII., king of France, and Fouché, who had been at one time Napoleon's minister of police: After the Bourbon restoration the king asked Fouché whether he had set spies over him during the empire. Fouché admitted that he had, but was the spy? the king asked, and he was informed that it had been the Comte de Blacas. "How much did he get?" continued the king. "Two hundred thousand francs a year, your majesty," said Louis. "He was honest, then, after all," said the king.
