

Three Important Meetings Scheduled

Three public meetings of importance to Wayne area residents will be held tonight and Tuesday night.

Monday night the school board of District 17 will meet at 8 p.m. to consider the proposed budget for the 1968-69 school year. Public notice of this meeting was published June 27, complying with a new state law requiring a printed notice of such meetings.

The school board meets in the new high school, usually in the home economics room. Also meeting tonight will be the planning commission, at 7 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce offices. Only routine matters are expected to come before the board tonight.

Tuesday night, among other business, the city council will hold a hearing on a proposed ordinance change requested by Suburban Builders, Omaha, to reduce yard footage and height requirements for multiple dwelling units.

Seek Sewer System

Village board members at Carroll are exploring ways and means to add sanitary sewers to the town's utilities.

The town now has only storm sewers. Methods of financing and sanitary sewer plans for small towns are being sought.

LINED UP FOR JUDGING. About 23 horses entered in the quarter horse open at the halter competition during the horse show put on by Wayne's Saddle Club. The show was held at the Wayne County fairgrounds July 4th.

Judge Says 'Quality High' At Wayne's Horse Show

"One of the toughest horse shows I have judged in some time," was Ben Miller's comment about the Wayne Saddle Club's Horse Show held Thursday at the Wayne County Fairgrounds.

Miller, the judge from Sioux City, also said the show was as tough as some registered shows he has judged. He noted that the quality of the horses was high. Officials of the saddle club were pleased with the turnout for the July 4th competition. The show was the biggest one in both entries and spectators since about four years ago.

Over 250 people turned out for the show. There were 175 entries from almost 30 saddle clubs. Clubs taking part in the competition came from as far away as Columbus, Sloan, Ia., and Odessa, Tex.

Following are the results in the halter and performance classes. Names are listed in the order they placed in the competition.

- 1968 Foals—
 - Gary Kant, Hoskins; Ron Vahe, Pilger; Elder Schultz, Wisner; Roger Vahe, Pilger.
- 1967 Foals—
 - Garry Krantz, Sioux City; Gloria Balzer, Howells; Bill Goedeken, Columbus; Douglas Anderson, Winside.
- 1966 Foals—
 - Gary Werner, Meadow Grove; Bev Beeson, Wayne; Jim Ellenwood, Fremont; Herb Riecken, Fremont.
- Shetland Pony Class—

operators. Following the free barbecue in the evening the Ink Spots will entertain and furnish dance music.

Saturday's program includes the Joey Chittwood Thrill Show and 4-H Saddle club competition.

New Income Tax Rates

New income tax withholding rates for wage earners will go into effect with wages paid on or after July 14, according to the district director of internal revenue at Omaha.

All employers should have received their new withholding tables by that date, showing the new rate of deduction.

The new rates are the result of the surtax bill recently signed by President Johnson and become effective 15 days after the signing.

Attend Convention

Mr. and Mrs. Kent Hall attended the fifty-third annual convention of Kiwanis International at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, June 30-July 3, as representatives of the Wayne chapter of Kiwanis.

A total of 20,000 Kiwanians and their families attended the affair, representing 5,600 clubs. Work accomplished at the convention includes the election of international officers, awards to clubs and districts for over-all excellence of program and planning the organization's community service program for the coming year.

Beef Field Day Tuesday at NE Station

Can good or poor use of roughage make a small cattle feeder competitive with big feed yards or leave him "in the red" on the profit ledger? Can 750 pound steers be fattened to choice grade in 90 days?

Both answers to these questions are "yes" as far as experiments at the Northeast

Station are concerned. Doubling farmers have a chance to hear what the experimenters have to say at the Northeast Station Beef Field Day Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Large differences in return for roughage fed in different ways will be pointed out during the field day. One recent experiment showed very low value for corn silage in amounts greater than five pounds daily when fed to cattle getting a full feed of corn.

A similar test last year indicated low value for alfalfa hay when fed above one and one-half or two pounds daily to fattening cattle.

Twelve lots of fat experimental cattle will be on display. Some of them had corn in addition to silage during a winter growing period and some had only silage and a supplement for growing.

Last year calves grown in these ways ended up during the fattening period and went to market at equal weights and grades. In other words, roughage was most valuable for young growing cattle when fed with only a limited amount of grain. Cattlemen will see for themselves if the same is true this year.

Walter Woods of the University of Nebraska will discuss best roughage use and the place of urea in beef cattle rations. Paul Guyer, state extension beef man, will illustrate and explain judging proper market finish for greatest profit.

Many cattlemen will say "no" when asked if 750 pound steers can be fattened to choice grade in 90 days, but Northeast Station experimenters are betting they can do the job.

At the field day they will show cattle which have been in finishing test just 90 days. Of the 12 lots on test, four lots were wintered as calves on only corn silage and a protein-mineral-vitamin supplement. These cattle averaged 750 pounds going into the fattening test.

Last year in a fattening experiment calves which had been grown on this ration out-gained others which had extra corn during the winter. They all weighed and graded alike when marketed after 111 days full grain feed.

The cattle are to be marketed even sooner this year. Walt Tolman, station cattleman, is confident about the experiment. Just last week he marketed an experiment which graded mostly choice and prime at slaughter after 119 days on full grain feed following a stage and supplement growing period.

"We have had excellent results in fattening cattle grown on only silage and supplement or others grown on alfalfa and one-half to one pound of grain per hundred pounds weight," Tolman said. "We are reporting experiments designed to find how to get the most from roughage," he explained. "We think a growing period for calves fed roughage and only a limited amount of grain followed by a fattening period on grain and only a limited amount of roughage may be the answer," he added.

The final results of these tests should help prove the idea right or wrong. The field day will open at 7:30 p.m. at the Northeast Station cattle lot east of Concord. Cattle will be reviewed during the first part of the activities. Also on tap are a brief speaking program and a question and answer period.

One-Car Accident

A one-car accident early Friday morning caused only minor injuries to the driver, but severe damage to the car.

Randy A. Robins, 16, Wayne, said he fell asleep and drove his car into a roadside ditch about one and three-quarter miles west of the drive-in theatre at about 1 a.m. Robins said he was alone in the car.

Eastbound, his car went off the north side of the road, tipped against a fence on the Ray Agler farm, then rolled back upright. Deputy Sheriff S. C. Thompson said he believed the car to be a total loss with damage to the left side and top of the vehicle.

Although the accident was about 1 a.m., Thompson said, the sheriff's office was not notified until about 2:30 a.m.

Winside School Accredited

Winside schools recently received notification of continuance of accreditation in a letter from the state department of education.

The letter, dated June 24, said the state board of education had acted on the Winside school accreditation at its June 7 meeting.

Although the state department's letter stated "it is with real satisfaction that we inform you that your school has been continued on the list of accredited schools for the ensuing year, July 1, 1968 to June 30, 1969," it made no mention of any deficiencies which had been corrected nor did it explain why the Winside school was among those recently listed as being on notice.

In a letter from Winside schools to the state department dated April 18, 1968, Winside superintendent James N. Christensen pointed out nine deviations noted by the state department which had been corrected by the school administration.

In his letter, Supt. Christensen said, "I have noted below the deviations you noted (letter of Dec. 6, 1967) on visiting the Winside Schools during November of 1967. Below each deviation I have noted our efforts to correct these items. We hope that our efforts have corrected most of our problems and that Winside will not be in any danger of losing its accreditation."

Following are the deviations noted in Christensen's letter and the action taken to correct the state department's complaints.

"Less than one and one-half time administrative and supervisory personnel provided. Winside has hired a full time superintendent and a one-half time principal for the 1968-69 school year."

"Four classes exceed the enrollment of thirty-five students per class."

"We received a verbal OK on this for this year because we accepted a late, wheelchair, non-resident student which put us over 35 students in the freshman class. The necessary classes will be split next year."

"No guidance counselor provided. The Winside schools have signed a contract with a fully qualified teacher to correct this deviation, Mrs. Violet Damon who has a master's degree in guidance.

"Less than 30 hours of course work offered in laboratory science in grades 10 through 12."

"I recommend that biology, physics and a terminal science class be the minimum offering for next year. You may check against the fall report to see that this correction has been made."

The letter continues to point out the school will have an art course in the coming year, a vertical file has been purchased for the library, titles for the school library are now up to state requirements and listed recommendations for relieving crowded elementary classrooms.

The school board now is seeking an additional elementary teacher to relieve elementary classroom congestion. The school has another room for the class, Christensen said, but lacks a teacher.

Winside school officials were unable to explain how the school was put on a notice list when its deficiencies had been corrected and the state department notified in April.

Rescues Swimmer

A former resident of Wayne, Mick Gray, recently was credited with rescuing a 12-year-old boy from a farm pond near Syracuse where the youth was swimming alone.

Gray, who worked for Northwestern Bell Telephone Company in Wayne, now is employed as a conservation officer by the Nebraska Game and Park Commission.

Knowing his son Mike and a playmate were planning to visit a farm pond in the vicinity, Gray started to make a routine check of the area. When he saw his son approaching the pond area on a bicycle, Gray went on ahead to check the pond.

There he found the other youth in the water and obviously in trouble. When the boy shouted for help Gray dove into the water and towed the boy to shore where he soon recovered sufficiently to be taken home.

Get Drouth Aid

Dixon, Cedar and Pierce counties Friday were approved to release diverted acres for hay and grazing as a drouth relief measure until Aug. 31.

HOT ROUND. This 75 mm projectile found recently during excavation for the bridge at the south end of Wayne was pronounced an undetonated high explosive round by members of a Fort Riley, Kan. bomb disposal unit. The round, shown here in the hands of Officer Melvin Lamb, could have been detonated by pressure or a blow on the detonating device shown by arrow, the soldiers said.

Fairgrounds Gets New Gate

Wayne County Fair patrons this year will be using a new entrance, Fair Secretary Al Baha said Friday.

Construction work now is underway to make an entrance on the west side of the fairgrounds and close the south gate.

The north gate, at the end of Third Street, will be used for exhibitors only. All other patrons will be using the west entrance, Baha said.

Access to the new entrance will be from the county road a mile west of Wayne. The road currently is being graded and coatings of gravel will be applied soon.

Reasons for the new entrance is to provide easier entrance and exit from the grounds without causing congestion on the city streets.

The new gate will permit two lanes of entrance and one lane of exit when patrons are incoming, and two lanes of exit and one lane of entrance when patrons are leaving the grounds.

The new gate also will allow easier access to the parking areas. These new parking areas will be outlined and orderly placement of the cars will be utilized to allow more cars to park inside the grounds.

Dates of this year's fair are Aug. 8-9-10. Features of the first day, Thursday, include a tractor pull and a teenage band, The Red Dogs.

Friday a Powder Puff pulling contest for midget tractors is scheduled, with women as tractor

DIXON STREETS were sealed and graveled last week. Work began on the 16 streets last Monday and was finished before the week was through. Cost of the project was about $2500. Ed Daugherty, Dixon, heads home after crossing one of the new streets.

Tuesday Cultivating Bee

Friends and neighbors brought in tractors and cultivators Tuesday to work crops for Erwin Hensche and Elmer Holst at their place six miles south and one east of Wayne.

The men cultivated 140 acres of corn and 20 acres of soybeans while their wives prepared lunch.

Misses Prize

John Beckman would have been $150 richer Friday night had he attended Wayne's Cash Night drawing.

His name was drawn as the Cash Night winner, but he was not present to claim the prize. This week's drawing, scheduled for 8 p.m. Thursday, will be for $200.

GOOD FOOD. Carl Frevert, right, and Walter Reeg look over dessert.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The editorial department of a weekly newspaper is an important department. Normally it is one person's opinion of topics that concern most of the readers.

You may not agree with an editorial — but if you read the editorial and give serious thought to the subject discussed you have gained. You, as a reader, have given careful thought to an important problem and the writer is proud to have called your attention to an important subject that you may have overlooked.

Where's the Mail?

News wire services last week carried a small story about a World War II soldier who wrote his wife a postcard April 29, 1944 which was not delivered until 24 years later.

Conjecture on the whereabouts of the card in the intervening years can bring out some interesting thoughts.

Certainly most married female readers will jump to the all-too-hasty conclusion that the writer has just been carrying it in his pocket all this time. We can't go along with that theory, however, for we feel sure he would have changed his shirt at least once in this time and on finding the card would have decided to throw the card away.

A few disgruntled postal patrons will firmly believe that the card has just been passing from post office to post office, looking for a home, but we can't believe that one either. First, the card would not stand up under all the handling and would long since have become limp as worn-out muslin. Secondly, the card, in 24 years, would certainly have hit the right post office and would have been delivered.

Finance company employees, who have heard the wretched of excuses about undelivered mail, will speculate the card wasn't ever written until the day before it was delivered, but we'll shoot that idea full of holes with the reminder that post cards in those days were two-centers and one delivered today would come to the patron with three cents due.

We believe the best possible solution is that the card has been waiting all these years in an army post office waiting for the writer to add the zip code.—WWR.

Thoughts on Gun Control

Despite the President's all-out campaign to enlist the aid of heroes, famous personages, television personalities and plain public-minded citizens to stir up public sentiment in favor of his strict gun control bill, the tide of battle at the moment seems to be going against the stricter laws.

Many of the President's emissaries are doing nothing more than saying "We need stricter gun control laws to keep weapons out of the hands of criminals, potential criminals, children, drunkards, addicts and morons." They say nothing about how the law will be implemented, how a citizen who meets all the requirements for gun ownership can be guaranteed he will be able to legally purchase and use a firearm.

Politicians, of course, are shocked by recent crimes involving firearms and want to see the killing stopped—as all of us do. However, they are unable to tell the public how such laws will be implemented, how much registration will cost, how a sportsman can be assured that he can walk into a store in another state and be able to buy ammunition for his rifle or shotgun and a hundred and one other questions.

More and more the trend is to stay away from hurried and hysterical gun control legislation... and we think this is a commendable attitude.

Often gun registration advocates make a comparison between auto registration and gun registration, saying there is no objection to registering and licensing cars and trucks and their operators.

They are right, there is no objection to motor vehicle registration. The vehicles are registered as a revenue-producing act, not as a control, as gun registration is intended to be. Auto license fees help pay for roads and traffic control. Operators are licensed to prove they are qualified to operate the vehicle.

But gun legislation is being written—by the admission of its proponents, to restrict the sale and use of firearms. Taxes on sale of arms and ammunition go to support public areas for hunting and fishing, but certainly no registration fees are intended for this use.

Any person with the money to pay for it can go to a car dealer and buy a motor vehicle, whether he lives in or out of state, whether he is 18, 25 or 90.

Gun control legislation would limit the age, residence and habits of gun purchasers. The potential purchaser of guns or ammunition, no matter how well he can meet the requirements of the law, has no assurance that the persons who administer the law will issue him a permit to buy or own a gun.

A case in point happened in 1966-67 in Philadelphia, where strict gun control laws are in effect.

A successful businessman, well into middle age, applied for a permit to own a pistol for home protection because his house was in a high crime rate area and many offenses were being committed against women, homes and the elderly.

The bureau in charge of issuing the permits had no grounds on which to deny the permit, but gave no reason for so doing. The businessman eventually hired a lawyer (because he was financially well-to-do) and took the case to court. After many delays, postponements and other devices calculated to prolong the action, the bureau finally conceded that the man could have the permit for 1968...but that it would no longer be valid, for the date was already 1967! And they refused to

Out of Old Nebraska

1856—Booming Omaha
Frantic speculation in town properties was one aspect of the boom which preceded the financial panic of 1857 in Nebraska Territory.

Excerpts from letters of A. F. Salisbury in the Archives of the Nebraska State Historical Society indicate the nature of this "boom" in the infant city of Omaha.

On April 13, 1856, Salisbury wrote from Omaha:

"Friend Marvine, Dear Sir: Enclosed you will find your deed for two lots which I think will suit you. Property is going up very fast. From present appearance, there will be from one hundred-fifty to two hundred buildings put up here this season and there is no doubt but this will be the largest place west of Chicago. I have been here two weeks and I think there has (been) three hundred lots changed hands. Everybody here are wide awake and our town is full of strangers and most all of them are buying property. The best lots are now selling for eight hundred dollars which were sold last season for one hundred-twenty five dollars. This is but a fair sample the way things are a moving here.

"A person can make more money here on five thousand dollars than he can on seventy-five thousand in Delaware Co. I wish we had a few of our old Delaware friends here. If you or any of your friends want any lots, I will buy them for you. There can be no possibility of their not being worth twice the amount in less than one year. If you would come out here and see this country, it would make you sick of old Delaware."

A second letter, of May 20, 1856, indicated that the speculation in property continued unabated.

"C. Marvine, Dear Sir: Yours of the Third came to hand last evening requesting a warranty deed and a plat of the City. Enclosed you will find it as requested... Property is increasing in value very rapidly, our population is double now to what it was on the first of March... There will be over two hundred dwelling houses, besides stores, hotels, and shops put up this season. That will do Jobs demand it. Employers insist on it. So you'd better plan on having what it really takes to get the kind of job you want.

Today, there's no fooling about schooling. You honestly need a good education to get a good job... a good paying job... a job with a good future.

So, if you're in school now... stay there! Learn all you can for as long as you can. If you're out of school, there are plenty of ways to get valuable training outside the classroom. for a town a little more than a year old... If you come here with your capital, you could make all the money you would want in five years. The fact is that people can afford to pay large interest when they can double the money every year on the rise of property... If you do not say that this is the finest site for a city if you ever come here, and I shall expect you, I will pay your expenses out and back... Please let me hear from you on this...

Can you imagine living in a one-room, dirt floor hut made of grass? Yesterday I saw a family of at least 12 living in a very small hut with a litter of new pigs. They were wearing the only clothes they own and preparing their meal in woven baskets and clay pots. No one could ever realize or truly appreciate what we have in our country until they've seen the way these people live. The draft card burners and draft dodgers are only cheating themselves out of becoming better, more thankful people. I know when my tour is up and I'm home again, I'll think twice about drinking a cold coke or tracking mud across a clean floor. In a way, I'm glad I'm here because I'm learning to appreciate the way we live and life itself.

Thank you again for the SWAY gift.

Letters to the Editor

Editor's Note: The following letter was received from Sergeant Stacy Swinney, Sgt. Swinney's name was drawn during the SWAY drawing May 13).

I would like to thank all the people of Wayne for the SWAY gift I received when I was home. My leave was most enjoyable but like all leaves, too short.

Now I am in the Quang Tri area of Vietnam, about ten miles south of the Demilitarized Zone. I am assigned to the 1st Cavalry Division (Airborne) Infantry and since I've been here, we've been conducting mostly "search and destroy" operations.

I've had a chance to see how the people live in a war-torn country and now I realize we don't know how lucky we are.

Editor's Note: Lt. Col. William G. Podoll's name was drawn during the SWAY drawing June 10).

I see in the paper where my husband was selected as one of the SWAY winners. I'm enclosing a picture you can use. (Please see the Service Station).

He wrote me saying he'd be sending you a letter and information. We do appreciate all the interest you have given the military boys in the area.

I also want to clear up this one thing, Col. Podoll is from Winsted instead of Stanton. His mother lives in Stanton, but he never has and we claim Winsted. He will be returning to the States in September. He has no

Six Cows Killed

Last Friday during the storm six fine milch cows belonging to Kasper Korn, who resides northwest of the city, were all killed by lightning at one time. They were standing in the center of the pasture and it seems exceedingly strange that everyone of them were killed at the same time. The cattle were partly insured, and Mr. Korn will receive $150 insurance.

Entire Town For Sale

Superintendent Meagley of the Santee Agency, Nebraska, will enjoy the rather novel sensation of selling an entire town, that of Verdel, on Aug. 10. It appears that when the Elkhorn Railroad was extended no suitable townsite could be found except upon the Glick Indian allotment. Without taking any special steps in the matter a town was started and within the last nine months has grown to a village of some 200 people.

Survey At Dakota City

The surveying party which is locating the lines for the Interurban electric railway which R. A. Talbot says will be built from South Sioux City to Homer, has completed the survey through Dakota City. The line enters the city on the north at Fourteenth Street, thence goes south seven blocks to Broadway, and thence west on Broadway to the west line of the town.

Engineer Wakefield said he would not carry the survey any farther at this time as he has some important work to do.

He was picked up unconscious and examination showed that a piece of the skull over an inch in diameter had been crushed down upon the brain. He was operated

News of The Week

As near as we can learn the ball game at Wayne on the Fourth was a clinch for the aggregation composed of players from all over northeast Nebraska and styling themselves the Wayne Normal team. It would seem from the start that the umpire (who by the way was the manager of the Wayne team) was profuse in his opinions in favor of what they called the home team. As near as can be learned right and justice did not enter into the deal and his rank decisions lost the game to the Wayne team. Score 3 to 9—Bancroft Blade.

JUST BACK FROM THREE YEARS IN AFRICA. The Dan Malloys, recently returned from three years of teaching in Ethiopia, pose with some of the objects they brought back with them. Mrs. Malloy holds a silver coffee cross used by priests in Ethiopia. Danny has a coffee urn used by natives to brew coffee and Dan shows one of the two records made of the school choir he led.

A Long Trip from Addis to Wakefield

Danny Malloy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Malloy, often talks about "going home to Addis." Addis is Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, and that is where the Malloys have spent the past three years. Danny was only one and one half years old when he and his parents went to Ethiopia in August, 1965, so he has no recollection of America. Addis Ababa is his home.

Wakefield High School, is the former Mary Beth Longe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Longe of Wakefield. The Malloys returned from three years of teaching in Ethiopia recently and spent some time with her parents on their farm about six miles south of Wakefield.

What would impel a married couple only recently graduated from college to leave the States and spend three years in Africa?

"The challenge of building a music department from scratch," Dan Malloy said was one of the reasons for accepting a job as the head of the music department at the Good Shepherd School in Addis Ababa.

He received his BME in 1963 from Gustavus Adolphus College in St. Peter, Minn. His wife graduated with a BA degree from the same college in 1961.

After graduating from high school, Dan Malloy spent a year in Tanzania with his parents. His father was a house parent and a builder. His father is presently working with the American Lutheran Mission in Ethiopia. He apparently succeeded in "building a music department from scratch," for two records have been made of the Good Shepherd Concert Choir, one in 1967 and one in 1968. The records were made by Recorded Publication Company of Camden, N. J. Only 150 copies were made of each record since they had no way to distribute them in the U.S.

Being the full-time music instructor at the Good Shepherd School was quite a job. The school has a total enrollment of about 250 students. About 110 of these are boarders who live at the school because their parents live too far away for them to commute. The others are day students, children whose parents work in or near Addis Ababa for such things as Shell Oil Company or the United Nations.

Although most of the students are Americans, there are many nationalities represented at the school. Last year there were students from 19 different nations.

The Good Shepherd School was started in 1960 as a missionary by the combined efforts of Lutherans, Presbyterians, Baptists and Methodists. It now attracts not only children of missionaries who may live hundreds of miles away, but also children of parents working for governments or private companies.

Mrs. Malloy said she was hesitant about coming back to Nebraska after being used to the climate and weather in Addis Ababa. Year around the weather in Addis is similar to the weather this area has been having for the past week or so.

Ethiopia, a country several times the size of Nebraska, varies greatly in both climate and landscape. Dan Malloy said that the land can vary from the desert conditions in the south to the very rugged mountainous areas of the north.

While in Africa the Malloys traveled to Tanzania and Kenya and did extensive traveling in Ethiopia.

The Malloys brought back several items from Africa. One of these is a coffee cross, a cross carried about the country by priests of the Ethiopian Orthodox Church, the official church of Ethiopia.

Many of the crosses are hand made out of silver and some are carved from wood. Some of the wood crosses which are several centuries old may bring up to $1,000 when sold.

The cross is very symbolic, the three points representing the Trinity, the shaft holding the cross representing the spear which killed Christ and so on.

Another item they brought back with them was a painting done by Ethiopians. Small paintings along with script help tell a story. The interesting thing about the painting is that none of the people are painted with their eyes looking straight ahead. Dan Malloy said that when the Ethiopians have their pictures taken they will not look at the camera. He was not sure of the reason for this, but it has something to do with their fear of their souls leaving their bodies if they are painted or photographed this way.

They also brought back a decorated jar which the Ethiopians use to brew their coffee.

Coffee originated in Ethiopia, in a province called Kaffa. But the Ethiopians drink their coffee much stronger than people in other countries do.

Most of the people outside of the larger cities grow their own coffee beans, roast them and make their own coffee.

The Malloys said that there are many alums in Addis Ababa, a city about the size of Omaha, but the people who live on the small farms in the country usually have neat huts or farmhouses to live in.

The Malloys have made no definite plans to return to Africa in the future.

Dan Malloy is going to enter the University of Iowa at Iowa City this fall and do graduate work in music and study musical composition.

Five tractors from the Wayne community participated in the tractor pull at Coleridge Thursday, with two of them placing in the money. 1st place in the 6,500 class was Gerald Green, while John Sandahl placed third in the 10,000-pound class. Try, Try Again

The little bug that often compounds an error when a correction is made crept into a story regarding the Winside Lucky Bucks cash drawing for the June 22 drawing. In charge of the drawing for that week was Jay Morse, operator of Jay's Plumbing and Heating. However, he was incorrectly identified as Howard Morris. An attempt to correct that error resulted in another. This time the winner was listed as Jay Morse. Now...another attempt. In charge of the drawing the night Mrs. Jim Conick was winner of the Lucky Bucks check was Jay Morse, owner of Jay's Plumbing and Heating shop in Winside. Whew!

Badgers build long "porches" onto their dwellings. These bow-legged, pigeon-toed plains dwellers often dig 30-foot tunnels leading to their grass-lined underground chambers.

Area Girl Could Be Queen-of-the-River

Interested girls are urged to contact Mayor Koplin before the deadline so he can let officials in Sioux City know that Wayne will participate in the contest.

2nd Annual Hog Show Set August 12

The Northeast Swine Association has set Monday, Aug. 12, for the second annual Market Hog Show. The event will again be held in the Laurel Livestock Auction Market in Laurel. The show is open to commercial producers and active 4-H and FFA members from Cedar, Dakota, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne counties. Each family or firm will be limited to two pens of three, consisting of barrows or gilts. FFA and 4-H members are limited to one pen of three. Show time will be 10 a.m. and will include a judging contest for audience participation. Ham and bacon awards, furnished by the Laurel Chamber of Commerce will be given to the winners. The show hogs will be judged on the hoof and then sent to Hormel for slaughter. The hogs will then be judged in the carcass and placed on a ham and loin per cent. Nearly $200 in premium money and trophies will be awarded. Purpose of the show is for producers and consumers to develop an appreciation of desirable meat-type hogs. Carcass information will be made available on all hogs so that producers may use the information in making breeding decisions. Entry cards and regulations are available from county agents in the five county area, association directors and the Northeast Station at Concord. Co-sponsors include the Laurel Livestock Auction Company, Hormel and Company and the University of Nebraska Extension Service.

SS Q & A

Q. My doctor does not take an assignment to collect medicare, so can I go ahead and file for it and pay his bill after I get what medicare pays?
A. You can do this under the recent amendments to the Social Security Act. Medicare will pay you 80 percent of your doctor's reasonable charges above the $50 deductible. You will need to send in an itemized bill with your claim.
Q-I am working and paying social security on the maximum amount taxable. My husband also works and pays social security on the maximum amount. I have been told that when I file I will receive benefits on my husband's account. Is this true?
A-No. If the amount that you would receive on your own account is equal to or greater than the amount you would be entitled to on your husband's account, you would only receive benefits on your own account. Otherwise, you would be receiving an amount greater than you are permitted to receive under present laws.
