Personal Injury Suit Amounts to $150,000

Personal injury suits totaling over $150,000 were filed against Max Schneider of Winside in Wayne County district court Thursday.

Filing the suits were James C. Lupp of Norfolk, for $75,000, and Paul Merchant of Norfolk, for $75,500.

The suits are the result of an accident on Highway 36 a mile southwest of Winside in March. The two Norfolk residents were in one car, Schneider in the other when they collided.

Wednesday, District Judge George Ditttrick ruled in favor of Cimbrico American Superior Soil Service in a suit it had filed against Winside resident Harold Pittze. The judgment was $2,356.71 plus interest and court costs.

Summer Jobs Aren't Drab For Work-Study Youths

By Jane Owens

Few college students have summer jobs requiring them to ride bicycles, learn names of weeds, show films, give demonstrations and help with antiquing classes.

These are just some of the activities Eileen Muller and Dennis Kahl, work-study students at the Northeast Station near Concord, are involved in.

Eileen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Muller of Concord, is a junior at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln, majoring in home economics education. Under the college's work-study program she is helping Northeast Station home economists with 4-H activities, home ec workshops and county fairs.

So far this summer Eileen helped teach an antiquing workshop, was a 4-H camp counselor at Ponca and conducted a bicycle safety class in Concord.

In addition, she has taught

4-H'ers to demonstrate and judge and will attend judging days in five counties—Wayne, Dixon, Dakota, Cedar and Thurston.

Eileen has been a 4-H member for 10 years and a volunteer leader in the NU-L 4-H Club for two years.

Her career plans include teaching. See NOT DRAB, page 7

2,000 Fair Books Distributed in Area

About 2,000 copies of the 1971 Wayne County Fair Book are available at businesses and firms throughout the county.

The books, which were distributed last week, include premium lists, schedule of activities during the three-day fair and rules and regulations for exhibitors. Also included are advertisements from a large number of businesses in the area.

One error is contained in the list of fair events. There will be no admission charged after 8:30 p.m. on the last day of the fair. The book, incorrectly says admission is free until then.

Local, Area People Get UN-L Degree

People from Wayne and Laurel were among more than 400 students presented degrees at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln commencement ceremonies Wednesday night.

Receiving degrees were Jeffrey Kintberg of Laurel, master's degree in music; Richard Hejren of Wayne, bachelor of science degree in business administration; and David Rees of Wayne, bachelor of science degree in education.

Ceremonies were held in Pershing Auditorium with President Joseph Soehnik presiding.

Got A Yen to Dance? Head for Old Settlers

The 71st annual Old Settlers Reunion, slated for Wednesday and Thursday in Winside, will offer music to fit everyone's taste.

Performing during the two-day festivities will be the Wayne-Carroll High School Band, the Junior and Senior Norfolk Drum and Bugle Corps, the Hillbilly Dillies, Harlan Brugger of Winside, the Hungry Five of Wayne, Emerson Hubbard Stage Band, Bill Legate and his country and western band, Nashville recording star Leona Williams and The Smoke Ring.

However, music is only a small part of the entertainment being offered at the celebration. Both children's parades and a grand parade are planned, using as the central theme, "America, the Great."

Cash prizes will be given to nine children and in each of four divisions in the grand parade.

Wednesday night, designated as youth night, children will participate in a knur water fight, horseshoe pitching contest, penny scramble, tug-of-war contests, boiled egg eating contest and bicycle races.

Fathers and sons and mothers and daughters are eligible to enter the three-legged race, if children are 12 years old or less.

Winside boosters, who made a promotion trip to surrounding communities on Thursday, also offer a horseshoe pitching contest for adults, an audience participation show and a girls' softball tournament between Hoskins, Winside, Wayne and Carroll.

In addition, exhibits and carnival rides on the village streets will provide fun and excitement Wednesday evening and all day Thursday.

Dixon Farmer Recognized for Conserving Land

Marvin Hartman of Dixon was recently cited by the Dixon County Soil and Conservation District for his conservation work.

The recognition is part of the Sloux City annual program for conservation and takes into consideration the amount of conservation applied to a farm in one year.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartman live one mile northwest of Dixon and operate 480 acres. They have two children, Clayton, 13, and Lori, 11.

The Hartmans have been on the farm for 15 years and both have been school teachers in the Dixon area.

Active in community affairs and currently leaders of Dad's Helpers 4-H Club, they attend the United Methodist Church in Dixon, where Marvin is Sunday school superintendent.

The farm operations are a combination of grain and livestock, both cattle and swine. During the contest period the following conservation work was done: terraces, 2 miles; grass waterways, 1 1/2 acres; contour farming, 10 acres.

The Hartmans will represent Dixon County at a banquet to be held at the Sloux City Auditorium in November.

Allen, Wayne People Fly to D.C.

Dean's List Includes Son of Local Couple

The Dean's List for high scholarship in the spring quarter at Iowa State University contains the names of 1,349 students, including that of a Wayne couple's son.

On the list is William Lisaka, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Lisaka. He is studying veterinary medicine.

To gain a place on the list, a student must attain a grade-point average of 3.5 or more (4.0 equals A) while carrying at least 15 credit hours.

Eileen Muller and Dennis Kahl were caught taking a break from one of their recent summer tasks as work-study youths, holding a bike safety clinic.

To Market Special Cattle

Cattle feeders in northeast Nebraska will be marketing some very special cattle Saturday, July 31.

These are finished cattle selected by 20 progressive feeders more than two months ago for an intensive feeding performance and carcass quality study.

Rate of gain figures are being collected on these cattle, which will be graded live by USDA Market Service experts and by feeders for quality grade and yield grade. Finally, they will be individually slaughtered and studied "in the beef" for the kind and amount of meat they produced.

The event is jointly sponsored by the Northeast Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association, the University of Nebraska Extension Service and Iowa Beef Processors Company.

Area Shoppers Have $50 Extra Incentive Come Thursday Night

Shoppers planning on being in Wayne this coming Thursday night have an extra incentive to make sure they are here at 8 o'clock.

The cash prize which will be given away that evening is $50 higher than it was last week—$150 instead of $100. The prize is boosted because the person whose name was called last week, Mrs. Elsie Miller of Wayne, was not in one of the Cash Night stores to collect her prize.

Only requirement for area residents to be eligible to win the prize—offered weekly by a host of stores in town—is that they register at least once in one of those stores. No purchases are required.

'Farmer-Feeder' Coming Monday

A week from now will be publication of the second annual "Farmer-Feeder Section," an effort by The Wayne Herald to put the spotlight on the No. 1 industry in this part of the state.

150 Teens Out of Jobs

Due to a mix-up between the Pioneer Seed Corn Co. and the Norfolk Employment Service, 150 teenagers from the Wayne area are out of summer jobs.

The seed company failed to notify the Norfolk office when enough teens had signed up for detasseling work in company fields around Homer. Because they had not been notified, the employment office went ahead and signed up additional workers from Wayne.

Several teenagers from Allen, Wakefield and surrounding towns began work in the fields last week.

Ken Carlson of Wayne, who was to act as supervisor for the group out of Wayne, said that the seed company apologized to the Norfolk office for the mix-up.

Local Banks Up Ante in Glass Drive

Contestants in the glass drive being sponsored by The Wayne Herald have even more reason now to try their hardest to collect as much glass as they can before the Aug. 2nd deadline.

Why? Because two community-minded firms in Wayne—First National Bank and State National Bank—have agreed to match the $25 cash prize put up by the newspaper for first place in the race.

The banks' money will be split so $15 can be awarded the person or group collecting the second biggest amount of glass. Ten dollars will go to the one collecting the third biggest amount.

The drive passed the one ton mark last week and was well on its way to two ton by Friday. Collected by late Friday: 2,882 pounds.

Groups or individuals in the contest have two more weeks to pick up glass and bring it to the newspaper for weighing. Glass will be brought to the newspaper until closing time on Aug. 2nd.

Well out in front in the race was a Wayne group, the Senior Citizens Center, with 858 pounds of glass collected. In second place was a Wakefield group, the Sunday School at Salem Lutheran Church, with 860 pounds collected.

Standings in the race can change quickly, since contestants often wait until they have a pickup full of glass before bringing it in for weighing.

Those in the contest should make sure they clean the glass and remove all paper and metal before having it weighed. Any kind or color of glass can be collected for the contest.

The drive was started by the newspaper as a public service focusing attention of the public on the problems of pollution in and around Wayne. Glass collected in the drive will be combined with that collected during the monthly Environmental Action Committee glass drives. In time, all the glass will be shipped by railroad car to a plant where it can be melted down and used again.

Anybody with glass at their homes or businesses who would like to donate it to one of the contestants should call the newspaper at 375-2600. They should give their name and address and who they want to have pick up the glass.

Following are the contestants See GLASS DRIVE, page 4

Up Where the Birds Soar

The many-faceted job of putting Wayne State's new FM radio station, KWSC, on the air moved another step up Wednesday with installation of a 56-foot antenna mast atop the Fine Arts Center. Chuck Ahlbers did the steeply-angled chores as he pulled up and mounted the eight-foot sections, assisted by Howard Hoyt of the Wayne State faculty and student Bob Rosenbaum. Swanson Television of Wayne had the antenna mast custom. Still to be mounted is the antenna which will beam KWSC signals over northeast Nebraska. As the most powerful college FM station in Nebraska, its programs will reach about 40 miles, perhaps farther, Hoyt said.

Sheds Removed Quickly

One of those criticized for leaving their fireworks stand up too long after the Fourth of July, the Wayne County taxpayers wasted little time in correcting the situation.

The service organization—after considerable amount of work—loaded the shed and moved it off its Seventh Street location Thursday. The other two sheds which had been setting on Seventh early last week were removed during the week.

All three sheds and the signs along the street were becoming something of an eyesore, not much different than political campaign posters which have a reputation for hanging around long after the campaign is over.

We're glad the sheds were moved as quickly as they were when attention was brought to them. We hope next year they don't cause a similar problem.

Support Your Local Council

The city council of Wayne will probably approve at its next meeting a budget which will call for a slight raise in the mill levy. As now proposed, the budget would result in an estimated increase of less than one mill—from the present 23 mills to 23.88.

But the slight increase in the mill levy isn't as interesting as one aspect of the budget, the one calling for a two-fold increase in the mill levy for the hospital. The proposed budget lists two mills for the hospital, double the present levy for that purpose.

It's interesting because it shows that the council is not shirking or avoiding the hospital problem which now exists in Wayne. Something needs to be done to improve the hospital situation, the budget committee reasoned, and increasing the hospital mill levy is one way the city can do its part to see that it is improved.

The chairman of the committee which prepared the proposed budget told the council that this should show people in and around Wayne that the city is deeply concerned about improving the hospital facilities. At the same time as the jump in the hospital levy would put everybody on notice that the city still feels something should be done about the facilities, the chairman said, it would recognize that the people in Wayne would probably benefit more from improved facilities and should therefore pay a little more for them.

We agree with the committee's reasoning. The council would probably be taking a positive step by approving a budget containing an increase in the hospital levy. As was explained to the council by its attorney, any fund or assets built up through that levy could be turned over to a new hospital—city, county or district—if one is built.

To put it bluntly, the council's approval of this budget next week would be one of the few positive steps taken by anybody in the area to improve the present inadequate hospital facilities.

One doctor is already making plans to move from Wayne, a decision made after the recent hullabaloo over a proposed district hospital. He said that the hospital situation in the area, although not the determining factor, was considered when he was deciding whether to move from Wayne.

A couple other doctors in Wayne are approaching the age when many people strongly consider retiring. Residents in the area can't expect them to carry the load they once did.

And, judging from a letter sent by a young man just finishing up his medical internship, Wayne can't expect young doctors to come into the area unless adequate hospital facilities are available.

If the council approves the budget with the increase in the hospital levy, they deserve your support. They already have ours.—NLH.

Let's Get Tough

A couple items probably deserve special emphasis here. The items: minibikes and rabies shots.

A new state law requires that minibikes meet certain specifications before they can be licensed to drive on streets or highways. The law requires that they have more than five horsepower and stand at least 30 inches from the ground to the seat. If not, they can't be licensed and therefore can be operated only on private property.

The new law should be kept in mind by anybody considering buying a minibike to drive on the streets for enjoyment. If they don't keep it in mind they may find themselves owning something which can't be taken off their lawn.

State law also requires that dogs be given rabies shots once every two years.

According to city officials, not very many people in Wayne are worried about that law because less than half of the owners of dogs have had them vaccinated.

The city has threatened to crack down on those dog owners who seem to think that they don't have to abide by a law which has at its heart the protection of the public. The officials may be able to do this by compiling a list of dog owners and checking that against the list of owners who have had their dogs vaccinated.

We hope the city does get tough on the recalcitrant dog owners. And if there are people driving minibikes which don't meet state regulations, we hope city, county and state law enforcement officials see that they go directly to court.—NLH.

Fender's Christiansen Construction Co. was awarded the $61,000 contract to build a new sewer treatment plant at Coleridge.

Construction of the new plant is expected to get underway early in August. Completion date is March 1 of next year.

Federal and state funds will pay for 75 per cent of the facility, village funds for the rest.

The Pierce school board recently approved a budget which will require a mill levy one-quarter mill higher than the present levy.

The school system currently operates on a levy of 48 mills. If the district's valuation remains the same, the levy will have to be increased to 48.25 to support the school.

The kidney transplant performed on Dick Copple recently has been called a great success.

According to the doctors who transplanted the kidney from Dick's brother, the close tissue match permitted the doctors to omit giving Copple a Dakota City native, any anti-rejection drugs, something unusual for any transplant operation.

Young Copple is expected to be released from the Rochester, Minn., hospital within a month.

A drive to raise funds to help pay for the operation and other expenses has raised just over $10,000, a third of the way to the $30,000 goal.

Herkimer

"The trouble with letting well enough alone is in knowing when anything is well enough."

Have you ever been so busy that you didn't know whether you were coming or going? That is rather a serious situation since most of us are always busy coming or going some place.

Maybe your day has been like that of an agitated young man who ran frantically down the ferry slip, leaped across a strip of water and landed with a crash on the deck of the boat. "Well," he gasped, as he picked himself up, "I made it!"

"What's your hurry?" asked a deck hand. "This boat's coming in."

Ever have a day like that? Of all the places a person may be going, going home is the best. Going home. There aren't any other two words in the English language that are apt to cause the heart to skip more with excitement. Going home. Whether it is going home in the evening after a hard day of work, going home for the first time after going off to college, going home with a surprise gift for a member of the family, going home from the hospital or going home after a trip, there just isn't anything like heading home, right?

To stay home all of the time is no fun and can just about drive a person up the nut tree, but after being away from home, it is great to return in most circumstances.

Maybe you are still in your teens and you suddenly find yourself in a large city going to college. Sure, you want to go to college, after all that is what you had your heart set on for ages, but now that you're at school and alone—everyone around you is a stranger—you begin to think how nice it would be to be back home even if it was just for awhile. You bury your head in an unfamiliar pillow and try to go to sleep. Seeling dad and mom drive off campus leaving you behind provided emotion you didn't quite realize you had.

Sure, you're going to be OK, but you catch yourself wondering what the family is doing . . . back home. Then there is that pranking dog of yours that you had to leave behind and you know he'll miss your coming in the back door tonight. The lump in your throat takes awhile to go away. Then you remember that in just two weeks—doggone if they are going to be long ones probably—you'll be going home!

Then there is the young lad who suddenly finds himself wearing military clothes in unfamiliar surroundings in an Army barracks. Sure there are other people around you in similar circumstances, but you can sure be lonesome even in the midst of a sea of faces. You lie awake in your bunk turning your thoughts over and over on a mental rolisreel trying to catch up with yourself. Where did all the high school days suddenly go? Who are you? Why are you here? Where are you going? Why did you think it would be so great to get away from home?

Ah! Mail call! Mail from home! The letter from home says you are missed and that you are thought of every day. Your mom adds a P.S. and says that your dog Spot misses you too.

Momentarily you can see your mother's face as you read the lines she has so carefully and lovingly written. You can see your kid brother's mischievous freckled face and hear Spot bark, home!

Soon basic training is over and you're on your way—going home. Lulled by the flight of the glint jet as it wings its way across the many miles that have separated you from arms you love, you think about how it is going to feel to see your family's faces at the airport, and how great it is going to be to get behind the wheel of the family car again. But especially you count on setting foot on the old home place again.

You pull into the yard and everything is just as you had remembered it, but how far, far away it had all seemed when you were sweating out those rigorous 20-mile hikes and crawling under simulated rifle fire. As the family heads toward the house and the old gate swings shut you record the sound on your mental tape recorder because it is sounds like that—the sounds of home, the sound of the screen door, the sound of your dad taking the tractor out to the field, the sound of the windmill—that mean a lot when you're lonely. Those sounds can take you home again when you know you can't go, although you would trade most anything in the world to see the place again.

Those two words—going home—have a common denominator in just about every human being who ever lived. Every home is different, of course, but it is a great place to be when there is love holding the family together.

Even the Tasadays love their home but it is likely never to be the same again. Did you read about or hear about the Tasadays—a lost tribe of people recently found in the Philippines—who have never known until recently the taste of salt, sugar, rice or corn? Their language has no word for the sea. Their heaven is no higher than the tree tops. What little clothing they wear is made of orchid leaves.

Civilized man found the Tasadays in June living in a forest in the Philippines. Stone is their basic tool, bamboo their most important commodity and palm-leaf their most common food.

Rather strange isn't it, that while some of the earth's inhabitants have sailed across space to land on the moon, others have not yet tasted salt or sugar. Hardly seems possible.

Can you imagine giving the Tasaday people a ride in a modern jet airplane or taking them to a movie? Every home here? Think for a minute just how many things you would have to try to explain if you had a member of the Tasaday people as a guest in your home. All the automatic equipment would likely either cause them considerable fright or make them to believe you had harassed some strange spirits to work for you.

Anyway, they undoubtedly like their own home and might have a surprise or two for one of us too.

J. W. was driving along the highway recently and noticed some people fishing. As the miles of highway passed beneath the car we got to thinking about the English language and how we often put an "ing" on some words, but how ridiculous it sounds on others.

For instance, if you try to catch a fish, you're fishing, but if you try to catch a horse with a lariat, are you horsting? If you ride in a boat, are you boating, but if you ride in a car, are you caring?

If you ride on water skis, you're sking, and riding on a sled, you're sleding, but if you are riding a pony, are you ponying? If you work on your garden, you're gardening, but if you work with coars are you coarsing?

We put "ing" on more and even, but who ever heard of tomorrowing or yesterdaying? If we laugh we are laughing, but if we play music, are we musicing? If you have a motor, you may go motoring, but although you have an engine, do you ever go enginuing?

English is a beautiful language and it has a few mysteries. Most of us find that the real mystery is how to speak perfect English.

You can forget your grammar, let your hair down too if you want; and have a good time at the annual Old Settlers Picnic Wednesday night and all day Thursday.

Sure you're busy, but you'll enjoy seeing your friends and neighbors for awhile. Besides, everybody who works hard should take some time off and have a good time.

Committeemen have worked hard to plan a big celebration at WWSide again this year, so you all come. See you there.

Dear Editor:
Thanks for Wayne community for the opportunity for me to stay here this year, and go to American school, and study the different customs in the way those people live in, and in the way they act. It was a great opportunity for me to talk to different groups and clubs, in different ages, discussing with them the way my people in my home town live, and how they feel about us. Showing them different scenes from my country, that they really appreciated that very much, so I noticed they love my pictures from my country. I keep now many many things and experiences from Wayne community special, and from the U. S. general. It will be a good memories I will never forget in all my life. I appreciated every thing anybody done here for me, and bye to all of you.

In a 7 p.m. ceremony June 27 at Salem Lutheran Church, Fountanelle, Ruth Paepfer was given in marriage by her brother, Robert Paepfer of Nickerson to Richard Brown of Wayne. Parents of the couple are Mrs. Henry Paepfer, Nickerson, and the late Henry Paepfer, and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brown, Wayne.

Pastor Otto Spehr officiated at the candlelight ceremony. Mrs. Jack Lewis and Julie Rasmussen, both of Omaha, lighted candles.

The bride's gown, an empire fashion of daisy appliqued nylon organza, featured long, full sleeves and full length train caught to the back neckline. Her veil of imported illusion fell from an organza rose and she carried a cascade of yellow sweetheart roses and white daisies.

They wore identical, silk yellow polka dot pant gowns of silk jersey, fashioned with a lumper effect over the nylon sheer bodices. They carried clusters of white and yellow daisies and baby breath.

The game was scheduled for 8 o'clock Sunday night.

Allen Pee Wees Drop Two Contests

Emerson dropped Allen's Pee Wees Wednesday night, 9-2. Playing a scoreless game until the third inning, Emerson erupted for six runs and coasted the rest of the way. Allen scored one run in each of the 5th and 6th while the hosts added three more in the fourth. Ponca's high-flying Pee Wees added Allen to their list of vic-timings on two hits and one error by Allen, but Von Minden shut the door the remainder of the way, allowing but one more hit and issuing three free passes while striking out nine. His mates played fine defensive ball to aid his cause. Allen scored two runs in the third on a walk and doubles by Pete Snyder and Tim Hill. Three more crossed the plate in the fifth when two Emerson players collided going for a fly ball with

Midgets, Legion Trip Wakefield

Wayne's Midgets and Legion swept a pair of contests with Wakefield Friday night—5-3 by the Midgets and 7-1 by the Legion. Mike Ginn's no-hit pitching and Wayne's 10-hit barrage off Gary Trost and Pat Starzl makes up the heart of the story of the Legion's win, a win which keeps the local club in front of the Ralph Bishop League pack with a 6-1 mark.

Wakefield scored its lone run off Ginn in the third on a walk, a stolen base and a passed ball—all with two out. The walk was one of three Ginn allowed during the action, played at Wayne. He struck out 14, including all three in the seventh frame.

Wayne's Mike Creighton, Jim Kany and Ginn rapped out a pair of singles each. Also singling were John Meyer, Rod Cook, Charlie Weible and Don Mau. The locals, now 10-4 for the season, broke open the game in the third when four runs crossed home on a walk and five straight singles.

Bressler scored Wakefield's only run in the fifth. The Midget's victory over Wakefield moved the locals into a tie with Wakefield for first place in Ralph Bishop competition. Both clubs are 7-1 in loop action.

Wayne moved into a 4-2 lead in the bases loaded.

Allen edged winless Ponca Thursday night, scoring all the runs in the third inning on three walks, three errors, a flyer choice and a triple by winning pitcher Paul Snyder and a follow-up double by Pete Snyder. The locals were unable to score thereafter as Ponca's Choate held them check the remainder of the game.

Allen was scheduled to play at Newcastle Sunday.

4 Laurel Players Represent Team In All-Star Tilt

Laurel's contribution to Sunday night's Tri-County League all-star game at Wauson included, from left, Gene Elliott, Tom Erwin, Terry Lutt and Brock Brannen. The four joined five players from Wayne and selections from teams at Coleridge, Randolph and Wauson to make up the east all-star club. Selections from teams at Orchard, Bloomfield, Verdigris and Pierce made up the other team. The game was played at 8:00 Sunday night.

Farmers Enjoying Lush Growth of Grass

One of the lushest growths of grass in memory is giving Wayne area farmers plenty to smile about.

The timely rains received by this part of the state have been the major reason for the unusually tall crops of forage, according to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln College of Agriculture.

Wally Moline, extension forage crops specialist at the college, said that in visits around the state he has found that farmers and ranchers believe this to be one of the most successful grass seasons ever.

He said that Knox County Agent Oscar Thomas gave a graphic and accurate description of the lush growth. Thomas said that usually at this time of the year you can see a gopher running through the grass at half a mile. This year, he noted, you can't find the cows at half a block.

He had reason to be so descriptive. Bromegrass in one Knox County field was headed out at 78 inches tall.

Although moisture has been a significant factor in the exceptional grass growth, Moline cited an increased use of fertilizer for grasslands as being most important in helping bring about what may be the most successful year in grassland production.

Five years ago, Moline said, fertilization of grassland wasn't a common practice, "but today, everyone seems to be doing a better job with grasslands."

He noted that farmers and ranchers have taken an increased interest in using various types of fertilizer on their grasslands and fertilizer distributors have been more helpful in advising the producers of the best type of fertilizer to use.

The NUT crops specialist said that environmental conditions have been favorable for a good growth of grass, but that increased concern by everyone to improve forage production has had a most significant impact.

Tax Benefits Available

President Richard Nixon's declaration that parts of Nebraska are a disaster area as a result of the floods which occurred in June makes special tax benefits available to disaster victims.

Residents of the following counties may benefit under provisions of the Internal Revenue Code as described below: Wayne, Dixon, Cedar, Knox, Madison, Pierce, Stanton, Thurston and Dakota.

Richard Vibal, district director for Internal Revenue for Nebraska, advised taxpayers suffering losses in the floods to preserve and retain records and information establishing the amount of their losses.

Non-business casualty loss deductions are limited to the amount over $100 for each casualty. IRS Publication 547, "Tax Information on Disasters, Casualty Losses, and Thefts," describes procedures for claiming casualty losses. Elkhorn River Irrigation Subject of Meet

The irrigation project for the western part of the Elkhorn River Basin will be the main subject of conservation during Elkhorn Watershed Association board of directors meeting at Klab 81 near Humphrey tonight (Monday). The meeting will start at 7 o'clock and is open to the public. The evening's program on the irrigation project will start at 8:30. The project, named the Highland Irrigation Unit, proposes to irrigate 55,000 acres in the western part of the basin when completed.

Reconnaissance studies have indicated that for every 1,000 acres irrigated through this project, it would mean an additional $1 million in revenue to the economy of the area.

John Mayne, area engineer for the Bureau of Reclamation, will present the major portion of the program covering the Highland Irrigation Unit. Maps will be provided for the public and an effort will be made to answer questions raised at the meeting.

The board encourages attendance at the meeting as we feel it will be most informative.

Other agencies such as the Corps of Engineers, Soil Conservation Service and Nebraska Soil & Water Conservation Commission will be represented at the meeting so questions covering the total resource development of the Elkhorn River Basin may be asked and answered.

The past two summers, Dennis has worked on the Northeast Station's experimental farm under the work-study plan. However, this summer he is involved in extension work under Roy Stohler, Dixon County agent and area youth specialist.

He has helped with crops camps, been a counselor at the 4-H camp held in Ponca, conducted a bicycle safety class in Concord, helped with nutrition day camps and prepared the Dixon County livestock judging team for the state fair.

A senior at Lincoln, Dennis is majoring in agriculture education, animal science and agricultural economics. He has been active in 4-H for 10 years and is a member of the school's 4-H Club.

After graduation, he plans to go into extension work or teach vocational agriculture.

The school system at Allen received notification recently that it has been continued on the state list of accredited schools for the coming year.

Following lunch, parent discussions continued and students split into small discussion groups led by WSC students. Topics ranged from dorm life to dating, with student hosts offering the freshmen first-hand advice.

Developing good study habits from the start was stressed by hosts and faculty members. A student should spend about two hours preparing for each class and "not get so involved with social clubs that he neglects his studies."

Hosts told the freshmen about student government, special programs offered, freshmen initiation, curfew, health services and cafeteria food.

In addition, they offered advice that only students could give. For example: "If you're going to cram for a test, you've got to start five hours beforehand."

'If You Have to Cram for a Test, Start Early'

"Do fraternities have their own houses?" "Where can I do my laundry?" "Which dorm is best to live in?" "What about curfew?" These are just some of the questions asked by new students during Wayne State College's fifth freshman orientation Thursday.

College administrators talked to the 57 visitors and their parents about major fields and class requirements after they were welcomed by Jim Hummel, WSC director of admissions.

Students took a test to show English proficiency while parents discussed college life with WSC student hosts and faculty members. The parents were advised what things to send with students next fall and just what to expect from their son or daughter.

Said Dr. Donald Merriman, dean of students: "The critical period starts from the day students get here until the first six weeks are over."

SBA Loan Activity

Up Across Nebraska

Lending activity in Nebraska through the Small Business Administration hit an all-time high in the fiscal year just ended, according to District Director Rick Budd.

He said the Nebraska office approved a record number 434 loans for more than $20 million, exceeding by far last year's 212 loans totaling $11 million.

Activity in regular business loans was up 67 per cent in Nebraska over the previous fiscal year. Loans for community building projects more than doubled the previous year's volume, providing 190 jobs.

Budd attributes this substantial increase in virtually all of SBA's lending programs to the new 8 mp 1116 procedures attracting bank participation.

More and more banks are realizing the advantage of the services available through the SBA in serving their small business borrowers, he said. Over 90 per cent of the loans have bank participation, according to Budd.

AMELIORATE?

Ameliorate. Got you confused, huh? O.K., the word means improve. Still confused? Don't worry, a lot of people are. After all, home improvement can be a pretty confusing thing, and a pretty frustrating one too — unless you're an expert.

Wall, Carhart's are home improvement experts. But since a lot of people lacking in experience are calling themselves experts, that gets to be pretty confusing too.

Let's get it straight then. Carhart's are home improvement experts because they do everything on any remodeling job — from putting up a new storm door, to building a new room — and everything in between, like garages, kitchen remodeling and bathroom, remodeling — everything and anything.

Everything? That's lost it's meaning too. With Carhart's, though, it still means that we start with a free estimate, our designers work with you and your tastes, we use quality materials that you get for less because we're our own supplier, our craftsmen are highly skilled, we give you one contract (even when the job includes plumbing, electrical installations, or concrete pouring) and finally, we give you one guarantee — on the whole job.

You want to see proof — good! You're our kind of person. Stop in at 105 Main Street, see our showroom and talk to our personnel — it wasn't easy, but we've taken the confusion out of ameliorate.

Lumberjack Not Happy with Job

It is a job the Wayne State grounds crew does not like these days — the job of cutting down many fine old American elm trees that have graced the campus for half a century. They are victims of Dutch elm disease. Paul Oliver, director of the grounds staff, said about 170 of the 230 or so campus elms appear to be diseased to some degree now and eventually will come down. Perhaps all will die. Fortunately, the college has hundreds of big trees of other species. Among them are several types of willows now growing in the Willow Bowl to replace the established willows which are nearing their normal life span. Probably nobody is sadder over the elm demise than Ed Kluge, pictured as he wields a chain saw.
