Nitrate Levels 'High'

Results of analysis of several corn samples from throughout Northeast Nebraska reveal that some drought-damaged corn has nitrate concentrations above the level generally considered to be lethal for livestock, reports George Rehm, agronomist at the Northeast Station near Concord.

The majority of the samples analyzed at this time were collected before the recent rains, he noted, and the nitrate concentrations may or may not drop after the rains.

The agronomist offers the following tips for farmers in Northeast Nebraska who intend to feed drought-damaged corn.

—The important thing is to get the corn analyzed for nitrates if the nitrate level is known, corn that has a high level can be used by mixing with other feed materials to reduce nitrate concentration to a safe level.

—Farmers who want to feed the corn as green chop should take a sample of the chopped forage from the wagon. Until the nitrate level is known, the green chop should be mixed with other feed sources to reduce the risk of nitrate poisoning.

—Farmers who plan to make silage can either collect a sample at the time the corn is chopped or 10 days before they start feeding the silage. At the present time, the moisture content of the corn ranges from 75 to 80 per cent. This is still too wet to make good silage. The moisture content should be from 60 to 65 per cent for good silage.

—Farmers who plan to use the corn for silage should wait as long as possible before making silage. As the corn matures, there is a good possibility the nitrate concentration will decrease the hazard of nitrate poisoning. In addition, the feed value will increase as the corn matures and dry matter production will also increase.

Farmers who wish to have their corn analyzed for nitrates may take samples to the Northeast Station, said Rehm. Samples will be processed and sent to Lincoln for analysis, with results expected back in seven to 10 days.

When Mr. Winteringer, Northeast Nebraska's hot air balloon parachutist, made a widely publicized jump just north of Wakefield, Waynites jumped into their model T's and drove and drove and drove and got to see it, and drove, and drove and drove, and the most daring even got home in time for supper?

Immunization Required for Young Students

Students in the Wayne Carroll school system will begin fall classes on Aug. 28 and parents are being reminded by school officials that children entering school up to age 17 have to be immunized.

State law requires that Nebraska children up to age 12 be fully immunized against measles, rubella, diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis and polio before entering school. Parents should consult their private physician to see that their children are up to date on immunizations before school entrance this fall, school officials note.

Children should especially be protected against measles and rubella, the two diseases which occur most often in schools and cause needless suffering and expense. One immunization with a combination vaccine can prevent both diseases, according to the state department of health.

Annual Hog Show Sept. 16

The eighth annual Northeast Market Hog Show will be held Monday, Sept. 16, at the Laurel sale barn.

Again this year there will be a purebred and a crossbred division, but as in the past the purebreds and crossbreds will not compete against each other.

There is no entry fee required or pre-registration required, but all hogs are to be entered between 8 and 10 a.m. on show day.

Rodney Bonderson of Emerson, president of the Northeast Pork Producers, urges all producers in Wayne, Cedar, Dakota, Thurston and Dixon counties to take advantage of the show. He said that due to high feed costs and narrow margins it is more important than ever for a producer to learn about the live and carcass merit of his pigs. Bonderson also said that this is one of the few market hog shows without an entry fee which pays substantial premiums to the winners in the live and carcass show.

The show is sponsored by the Northeast Nebraska Pork Producers, Laurel Livestock Auction Company, Hormel & Company and the University of Nebraska Extension Service. Rules and regulations for the show may be picked up at county extension offices in the five county area or at the Northeast Station near Concord.

Steel Skeleton Taking Shape

UNDER CLOUDY SKIES, workmen last week began erecting the steel building on the east edge of Wayne which will be the new home of Logan Valley Implement. When completed later this year, the 185 by 125 foot structure will be one of the largest implement buildings in Northeast Nebraska if not a larger area. It is going up on the south side of Highway 35, just across from three construction projects underway on and next to the city's industrial site.

Salvation Army Buys Complete First Aid Kit

Wayne's volunteer fire department now has a complete first aid kit, something which chief Cliff Pinkelman says has "really been needed for a long time."

The kit, which cost just over $375, comes complete with almost everything necessary to treat injured persons before taking them to the hospital: stethoscope and blood pressure cuff, scissors, bandages of all shapes and sizes, smelling salts, suction kit and antitoxin. It even contains a plastic blanket 56 by 84 inches folded up into a box not much bigger than a deck of cards.

Pinkelman said the kit is much better equipped than the small ones the fire department has been carrying with it on calls in past years.

All contained in a plastic box about the size of a large fishing tackle box, the kit is just what the department has considered purchasing in the past but never got around to doing it, said Pinkelman.

Making the purchase possible was the recently organized local service unit of the Salvation Army. The local unit has been inactive for several years, said the new chairman, George Macklin, and funds from the annual Community Chest drive in Wayne have grown large enough to purchase the first aid kit.

Macklin also noted that the local service unit has been active in other ways, such as issuing money to a family in need of groceries and getting a drop box installed at 413 Main St.

The drop box, first one the Salvation Army has ever had in Wayne, can be used for people who want to get rid of newspapers, magazines and old clothing, he said. Material put into the box will be picked up twice a week, according to Macklin.

Local and area residents who have old furniture they would like to donate to the Salvation Army may do so by calling the Chamber of Commerce office in Wayne. A truck will pick up furniture in the community about once a month, Macklin noted.

Serving with Macklin on the local board are secretary John Redel, treasurer Jocell Bull, Howard Witt, Ken Carlson and Elsie Echtenkamp. The unit has been in existence for about the past month.

'Who's Who' Recognizes Winside Grad

Sharon Petersen of Carroll has been named to appear in the eighth annual edition of "Who's Who Among American High School Students," the largest student award publication in the nation.

Sharon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Petersen of Carroll, is a 1974 graduate of Winside High School where she was active in band, chorus and Spanish Club.

Miss Petersen's biography will be published in the book and she will compete for one of 10 scholarship awards of $500 to $1,000 funded by the publishers. She plans to attend Wayne State College this fall, majoring in medical technology.

Top Judges To State Fair

Four-H youths from Wayne, Hoskins, Carroll, Wakefield and Laurel have been named to the livestock and dairy judging teams which will represent Wayne County in the state fair.

Named to the livestock judging team were Steve Gramlich, Carroll; Dwight Anderson, Laurel; and Les Thomson and Craig Nelson, both of Wakefield.

The four youths were chosen for the team by totaling the points they received in the judging contest conducted recently by the Teen Supremes and the points they earned in the district livestock judging contest. See Judges, page 5.

Commissioners Okay Budget

Wayne County commissioners Friday approved a budget for the 1974-75 fiscal year which will require a levy of 10.54 mills, the same levy as during the past year.

Approval of the budget came following the commissioners' public hearing on the budget. No taxpayers or residents of the county attended the hearing.

The budget will be officially adopted by the commissioners at their next meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 20, according to clerk Norris Weible.

The approved budget was changed slightly from the advertised version which was published by the commissioners prior to the hearing.

The total budget will be $1,714,742, up $3,000 from the published total, he said. The increase, which doesn't change the $449,835 total which will be raised through local property taxes, was made after a request by the county sheriff to increase his budget for maintenance of the jail, according to Weible. The increase will be paid through fees charged other counties which keep prisoners in the Wayne County Jail, he added.

The 10.54 mill levy means a tax of $10.54 on each $1,000 of assessed property.

The budget total is up from the $1,603,409 budget for the fiscal year which ended June 30. A total of $422,771 was raised through local taxation to finance that budget.

Commissioners based the 1974-75 budget on an anticipated property valuation in the county of $42,929,335, up nearly $3 million from the $40,111,560 total used to determine the mill levy for the past year.

Focus of Series: You

"Elections should be won and lost on the relative merits of the candidates, not on the basis of who can afford the most elaborate and costly campaign."

So begins the first in a continuing series of articles titled "In the Public Interest" which will appear occasionally on the editorial page of The Wayne Herald. The first article is written by Charles Percy, Republican senator from Illinois.

The articles are being produced by IPI Press Service, a project of the Fund for Peace. Through the approximate 600 weekly newspapers they are being used in, the articles will reach some 4,000,000 readers.

IPI says their aim is to cover "the public service beat in Washington intensively. Our columns are important, brief, sophisticated, controversial — but never dull."

With the other columns carried on the editorial page — "You and Your Car," "Out of Old Nebraska" and "Capitol News" — and with the occasional guest comments, we hope to offer as much variety to readers of that page as possible. It is one of the most important pages in the newspaper, and we hope to keep it as interesting as possible.

Baking Contest Raises Nearly $500 for MOD

The March of Dimes cake bake and auction during the Wayne County Fair raised $498.50, according to Ted Bahr of Wayne, in charge of the all-male baking contest.

Bahr said a total of 30 cakes were sold Saturday night during the tractor pull at the county fair, with the one judged the best bringing the most money in the auction. That cake was baked by Darrell Heier and was purchased by State National Bank and Trust Co. for $50.

Part of the proceeds from the sale will be used to help pay for the infant warmer, purchased for the local hospital. The infant warmer has been in use at the hospital for the past several months. It is used right after See Contest, page 5.

3 Students To Receive Ak Awards

Students from Carroll, Allen and Wakefield are among 32 University of Nebraska-Lincoln students who have been awarded $250 Ak-Sar-Ben scholarships for the 1974-75 school year.

The students are senior Linda Baier of Carroll, junior Kathy Chapman McGhee of Allen and sophomore Carolyn Muller of Wakefield.

The scholarships are given annually to students by the Omaha-based service organization according to academic achievement and financial need.

Miss Baier, majoring in home economics education and extension, is a member of the NU 4-H organization and Outreaches 4-H song group. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Baier; she was See Awards, page 5.

OBSERVATIONS

The parents' responsibility

Parents of school age children should take a few moments to check back to make sure their children are adequately immunized against measles, rubella, diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis and polio.

Nebraska law makes it mandatory that all Nebraska school children up to age 12 be immunized against these diseases before school opens this fall. And the responsibility for seeing that immunization is done rests with the parents, not the school system.

Here is a general guideline for determining if a child entering school is fully immunized:

- Diphtheria-Tetanus-Pertussis: Series of three immunizations and a booster at school entrance, commonly called "baby shots."
- Oral Polio: Series of three or more immunizations and booster at school entrance.
- Measles-Rubella: One injection of each or a combination immunization is considered adequate. Vaccinations are now available in combined form. No booster required.

This is only a suggested guideline from the state department of health, and at all times the private physician's recommendations should be followed.

Since school will be starting in a few weeks, parents should make certain their children are fully immunized. If their children are not adequately protected, parents should get in touch with their private doctors to arrange for their children to receive the necessary immunizations.

Much sickness and grief can be avoided if parents will take these simple steps to help stop outbreaks of infectious diseases in the schools. The innocent children attending school will have much more pleasant memories of their early years in school if their parents will do so.

Reply is appreciated

We appreciate the Wayne Hospital Foundation's reply by letter to an editorial observation in this newspaper to the effect that the public should have been informed earlier about the need for the second access road to the new hospital under construction.

As the foundation's reply reveals, the need for an access road was made known to the foundation as early as October of 1972. The city council knew of the need at least by the first month of 1973 when it agreed to purchase right-of-way for a road along the east edge of the hospital site.

However, the need for "an access road" is different, we feel, than the need for a "second access road," which is apparently being required before the hospital will be permitted to open. We can certainly understand the need for two access roads to a hospital, but we have difficulty understanding why plans for such a road were not worked out satisfactorily enough earlier to avoid haggling over who is going to pay for the road only a few months before the hospital is completed.

We do not wish to get into an argument about why that was not done. It is too late to do that now, and besides, the newspaper may be just as much at fault as anybody for failing to recognize this aspect of the hospital construction as being worth more coverage.

We do wish to thank the foundation for taking the time and effort to reply to what they feel is a misunderstanding on the part of the newspaper. If the debacle in Washington proves anything, it proves that we need better and more complete communication between our elected and appointed government officials from the federal level down to the municipal level.

The effort by the hospital foundation to comment on the access road to the hospital is a good example of those officials attempting to keep the public informed. We hope it is not an isolated effort on the part of local officials but rather the beginning of a trend toward openness.

ALL THE STEPS have been taken locally to have Wayne County declared a disaster area because of this summer's drought, according to Lavern Ostendorf, county supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration.

The FHA has completed its report outlining drought damages and the county supervisors have sent a letter to Gov. J. J. Exon saying crops have been severely damaged by drought and requesting the county be declared a disaster area.

Exon already has proclaimed the state a disaster area, but it is necessary for each county to go through the steps Wayne County has taken in order for emergency disaster loans to be approved by the federal government.

The FHA report, completed at the end of July, says "All areas of Wayne County have been severely damaged by drought." All 200,000 acres of farmland in the county are drought damaged, with an anticipated 90 per cent reduction in the soybean, milo and dryland corn crops, 30 per cent reduction in irrigated corn crop and 40 per cent reduction in alfalfa cuttings, according to the report.

The report says all 900 farmers in the county have been hurt by the drought, and approximately 50 of them will need emergency low interest loans.

Says the report "Livestock herds will be reduced because of high prices. Meat production will be reduced because of shortage of feed. There is very little grazing left in pastures. Hay supplies will be short."

And "Pastures have completely dried up and are providing little or no feed. Second cutting alfalfa has been reduced to one half and the third crop is not growing at all."

Ostendorf said Thursday that he anticipates an announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz within two weeks declaring the state a disaster area. That's the final step toward opening the way for emergency credit for farmers, according to Ostendorf.

Gov. Exon has already directed the Department of Roads to put up the hay on its right-of-way to sell to farmers and ranchers because of the drought and accompanying shortage of hay.

However, custom balers who will cut, rake, bale and stack the hay are hard to find in some areas of the state, says the DOR. Custom balers who can do the work should get in touch with DOR maintenance engineer Art Dederman in Lincoln or one of the DOR district offices. They will receive a "very warm welcome," says Dederman.

EVER HEARD of the elephant that's buried in the Dean Pierson property on the southwest edge of Wayne?

According to one oldtimer, an elephant broke loose after a carnival stopped in Winside years ago, got into the creek bottom and started cavorting his way toward Wayne. Unable to get the stubborn creature out of the bottom, carnival workers had to kill him when he got close to Wayne because they were afraid he would stampede and kill somebody. The elephant was laid to rest in the Pierson property, or so says my informant. Hope he wasn't pulling my leg.

RURAL DELIVERY

By AL SMITH

by SEN CHARLES PERCY, Republican Senator, Illinois

Elections should be won and lost on the relative merits of the candidates and their stands, not on the basis of who can afford the most elaborate and costly campaign.

Not only must we place realistic, enforceable limits on campaign spending, but we must see that credible challengers somehow have a fairer chance to obtain sufficient campaign funds and be sure that they have a chance to get their message across, too.

No financial contributor should be in a position to extract special treatment from an officeholder, which means that we must place enforceable ceilings on campaign contributions and insure that all contributions and expenditures are matters of public record. I am reluctant to place an absolute prohibition on individual contributions, for I believe that widespread citizen participation in politics is a healthy and desirable thing. But Watergate is a harsh reminder of the perils of five and six figure political contributions. We ought to get rid of them once and for all and try the more reasonable maximum upper limit of three thousand dollars, at the most proposed in the Senate passed reform bill.

Additional safeguards are needed to prevent self-enrichment through the improper use of public office.

Frankly, I do not like the loss of privacy that goes hand in hand with mandatory financial disclosure by candidates and officeholders. As the Hearst case demonstrates, public knowledge of a family's financial status can sometimes directly affect its very safety. And I know my own family and myself constantly wonder whether when our own daughter was taken in the midst of a campaign — whether it was some activity, some press notice, something of the type relating to our own financial situation that might have triggered that break-in and attack at our own home. So that we have labored over this issue to know what is the right thing to do, taking into account all of the possible risks involved.

Nonetheless, the public trust has been so frequently and flagrantly abused that I am forced to conclude that some form of significant disclosure, especially by candidates for national office, is in the public interest.

'Need for access was known'

Wayne

Dear Editor:

In your column entitled "Observations," I note your comment as to the fact that the need for a second access road to the hospital should have been disclosed to the public earlier.

The board of directors of the Wayne Hospital Foundation has authorized me to advise you of the facts so that the community will know that the need for the access road has been public knowledge for a number of years. At the time Hill-Burton funds were made available, the Hospital Foundation was advised by letter dated October 26, 1972, that one of the conditions of the grant was that city streets would need to be extended to the site.

On January 31, 1973, the mayor of the city of Wayne advised the State Department of Health that on January 30, 1973, the city council had decided to exercise an option to purchase an 80-foot right-of-way from 10th Street north along the east edge of the Providence Medical Center site in order to provide an all-weather access to such site.

We, therefore, believe that your statement in the paper of August 3, 1974, was in error in suggesting that the public should have been informed of the need for this road sometime ago. Since this was an area project, which was supported by the rural areas surrounding Wayne, the areas of Winside, Laurel, Dixon and Concord, we thought it was advisable to inform the public of the actual facts of this matter and that the need for this access road is not a new issue, but one that has been public knowledge since at least January 31, 1973.

The board of directors of the Wayne Hospital Foundation appreciates the cooperation that has been received from the city of Wayne, the Missionary Beneficence Sisters and the surrounding area that will be served by this hospital.

We also point out that throughout this period, we have received excellent cooperation from The Wayne Herald and other media, and we are not intending to be critical of The Wayne Herald, but only wish to point out what we believe to be an error in your information.

—Kenneth M. Olds, Secretary Wayne Hospital Foundation.

The new car seat belts are an insult to our intelligence when it starts buzzing before you even make up your mind whether you are going any place or not. It's an interference in public choice when a mechanical device sneers at you when you have paid good, hard cash for a vehicle which you would like to call your own. And we understand next year's cars are going to be even more insulting. They won't even allow you to fool the sneer by buttoning them unbuttoning to turn off the safety buzzer. The switch key won't start the car until you are properly fastened and stay that way. Of course we can't argue against safety statistics, and maybe some of us are just kidding ourselves with the old thought that "It won't happen to me" because accidents do happen every day and the seat belts have saved a lot of lives. Some of our good friends are here today because they wore them, even before that sneering buzzer sounded off. But it's the idea of it all — this mechanical age and the intelligence insulting reminders."

Senior Citizens Mark Fifth Year Of Wayne Center

Sixty-two members and guests helped celebrate the fifth anniversary of the Wayne Senior Citizens Center Tuesday with a program from 2 to 4 p.m. at the center.

Jocell Bull, center director, gave the welcome and mayor Freeman Decker and city administrator Fred Brink were featured speakers. Decker extended birthday greetings to the group and emphasized to members that age is not a deterrent.

Brink spoke of the needs of the center, elaborating on the center's need for a larger building and the problem of transportation for senior citizens. He told members that Joe Gaida, executive director of the State Commission on Aging, will send a representative to Wayne for a public meeting to explain funds the commission has available to help communities purchase mini-buses. Brink told members he believes Wayne will have a mini-bus soon.

Also speaking on the transportation needs of Wayne senior citizens was councilwoman Mrs. Carolyn Filler. A question and answer period concerning remodeling Wayne's main street and re-routing of trucks followed, with Mrs. Filler leading the discussion.

A letter from Congressman Charles Thone was read by Jocell Bull. In addition to congratulating the center on its fifth anniversary, Thone stated that it is an inspiration to see Nebraska's traditionally strong senior citizens becoming involved in group activities and taking an active part in civic and cultural events throughout the state.

An old-fashioned sing-a-long was led by Mrs. Jocell Bull and accompanied by Alma Splitgerber. The anniversary song was sung for Charles and Grace Millie, who marked their 57th wedding anniversary. Saturday, and Tena Bargholz and Mrs. Bull were honored with the birthday song.

Mrs. Lillie Swinney received the door prize which was a thermal blanket. Other prizes were an indoor-outdoor throw run to Mrs. Ella Blecke, 88, the oldest member in attendance, and a bath mat to Virgil Chambers who traveled the farthest distance, 10 miles.

Members of the center's Bobbies and Bubblettes band played several numbers following the program.

Home-grown bouquets of mixed flowers were provided by Anton and Rena Pedersen and decorations were in the center's colors of blue and gold.

The blue and gold anniversary cake, decorated with the center's emblem, was cut and served by Nellie Brockman and Mary Miller. Emma Soules poured coffee and Lottie Longnecker served punch.

Serving on the anniversary committee were Gladys Petersen, Goldie Leonard, Emma Soules, Lottie Longnecker and Jocell Bull.

Helping set up tables and serving on the cleanup committee were Ed Johnson, Virgil Chambers, Mary Echtenkamp, Besse Peterman, Gladys Petersen and Mary E. Kieper

The bride's attendants each wore different colored dotted swiss dresses of yellow, pink, green and blue with Venice lace trim. They wore picture hats to match the color of their dress

Gruff-Voiced Al Bahe Is Home to Mold All-Stars

His gravelly voice rings through Wayne State College's Rice Auditorium. He paces the length of the court, from side to side, a criticism here, a suggestion there, now a moment to praise one of the 12 young men on the court with him.

Al Bahe, who says he is probably better remembered in Wayne as a baseball player in the old Pioneer Night League, is back in his home town this week to coach the North All Star basketball team.

Bahe was just finishing eighth grade when his family moved to Wayne from Ohio, a baseball hotbed at the time in southern Nebraska.

He was a three year regular in both football and basketball during high school, first at Wayne High then at Wayne Prep.

He went on to be a four year regular in both sports at Wayne State, earning all conference honors as a football halfback during his junior and senior campaigns. Baseball in the Pioneer loop was just something to do for the summer.

After that, he left Wayne to pursue a coaching career that has had him in Fremont for the last 17 years. He still makes regular visits to Wayne, though, since his mother, Amalia, lives here along with two cousins and two aunts.

Now he is back to coach for one week in the town that helped him finalize his commitment to athletics. He and assistant coach Jay Muma of Schuyler and their 12 North All Stars are preparing for Friday night's sixth annual Nebraska Coaches Association All Star game in Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium.

Bahe's gruff voice on the practice court actually paints a somewhat false picture of the man the Coaches Association has recognized for outstanding service to his profession.

"I don't keep any records" of honors, awards, wins or losses, he says. "And I don't believe in making lists of do's and don'ts for my kids."

He hands out as much praise as he does criticism to his players, because he says the game must be an educational experience.

"We're doing this for the betterment of the kids," he said. "It involves developing an attitude they can carry with them through life and you've got to help them develop it."

"I know athletics did a lot for me, and they just became a way of life with me. It's fun to play involved, but then I think it's got to be fun if you're going to accept the challenge of trying to coordinate the minds and the efforts and the talents of the kids playing for you."

I really believe that the kids want to learn and to improve themselves. They like to know if they're doing something good or bad, and you're not doing your job if you don't let them know."

Watching Bahe work or talking to them the dominant theme of his coaching philosophy seems to be the enjoyment he gets from the game and the enjoyment and educational value he tries to pass on to those who play for him.

Part of that enjoyment was undoubtedly ingrained in him during eight years in Wayne, and it has his way. The 12 All Stars who leave here with him Friday afternoon will have gained more than just a win or a loss come Friday night.

Schedule for Physicals Altered for Blue Devils

The schedule for physicals for Wayne High School athletes planning on going out for football and cross country has been changed because Wayne's Legion team won a trip to the state tournament, reports head grid coach Al Hansen.

Hansen said sophomores will take their physicals today (Monday), juniors will take their physicals on Tuesday and seniors will take their physicals on Wednesday. All physicals will be given at 8 a.m. at Benhack Clinic in Wayne, according to Hansen.

Youths wishing to take out insurance during the season should pick up application blanks at the clinic when they take their physicals, Hansen added.

Entering his ninth year as head football coach at Wayne High, Hansen expects about 60 athletes to turn out Monday, Aug. 19, the first day high schools can hold organized practices. Practice sessions without pads are slated for 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. that opening day at the practice field south of the elementary school, according to Hansen.

Assisting Hansen with coaching duties for the varsity squad this year will be Don Koenig and Ron Carnes.

Hansen, who guided his team to a 53-1 record last year, will face South Sioux City on Sept. 6, the opening game of the season. It will be the first time the Blue Devils have squared off against a Class A football team in the years Hansen has been at Wayne High.

Freshmen wishing to play football this year are to attend a meeting with coach Duane Blomenkamp on Tuesday at 4:30 at the high school. A date for physicals will be set at that time. Freshmen football hopefuls will begin practice on Monday, Aug. 26, according to Blomenkamp. Assisting him will be Byron Heier.

Kegling Meet Set

Plans for the coming men's bowling season will be made during the annual association meeting Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at Melodee Lanes in Wayne.

Just Waiting for Victors

THESE ARE the 27 trophies which will be awarded winners in the third annual Wayne County Jaycees tennis tournament scheduled for Friday through Saturday at the Wayne State tennis courts. Looking over the trophies is Tom Roberts of Wayne, manager of the tournament. Roberts said deadline for entering the tournament is today.

(Monday). Sixty-seven players from Wayne, Norfolk, Columbus and Lyons had entered as of Friday, considerably more than the 45 who competed a year ago. The tournament, which will file into Wayne's sports festival later this week, will feature competition in women's singles and doubles, mixed doubles and men's singles and doubles.

Sub-Par 34 Tops Action In League Play

Bob Reeg fired a two under par 34 on the front nine for the only sub par round recorded during Wednesday night golf league action at the Wayne Country Club.

His sub par round wasn't good enough, however, to keep his team from dropping out of first place in the Pro division in the next to last regularly scheduled round this season.

Taking over front place in that division was the team of W. E. Siemsgluz, Maury Vogel, Russ Zicht and Art Barr, who now have 41 points, one and a half more than the team of Reeg, Wayne Marsh, Chuck Surber and Roy Hurd.

Shal leading by a good margin in the Con division is the team of Darrel Fuetberth, Dale Gutshall, Leonard Nicol and Kent Hall. They have 47 1/2 points, five and a half more than the team of Loren Kamish, Al Voorhies, Cal Comstock and Ray Kelton. The league's playoff tournament, pitting the top four teams from each division, begins Aug. 21. The tournament runs for three Wednesdays.

Democrats Set District Meet-

The First Congressional District Organization of the state Democratic Party will hold a meeting in Norfolk at King's Ballroom at 8:30 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 18.

A special appearance at the meeting will be made by Walter Mondale, U. S. Senator from Minnesota, and former Nebraska governor Frank Morrison will be guest of honor at a noon luncheon.

District chairman Allen O'Donnell of Wayne said the meeting is being called to plan a unified effort in behalf of Democratic candidates this year.

"We have but three months remaining in which to exert all our energies in behalf of our Democratic candidates. We need to get the entire district together to assure a unified and concerted effort," he said. The district organization was established by the Democratic Party at the state convention held in July.

Sen. Mondale will be in Nebraska in behalf of Hess Dyas, democratic candidate for Congress.

At the district meeting attention will be focused on a voter registration drive, funding of a district campaign office and discussion of campaign issues.

"Particular attention will be devoted to the problems of Nebraska's farmers and to the economy as a whole," said O'Donnell. Farm leaders, economists and other experts will speak during the meeting.

Many college students are serving as volunteers in Veterans Administration hospitals to help young veterans injured in Vietnam. More are needed in all of VA's 168 hospitals.

Population of NEN Ringnecks Down One-Third

Nebraska's pheasant population appears to be about 15 per cent below that of last year, according to a survey conducted for the Game and Parks Commission by the state's rural mail carriers.

The greatest decline was noted in the northeast, where pheasant numbers were found to be down almost 32 per cent. Southeast Nebraska was down 20 per cent, and the southwest showed a drop of nearly 23 per cent.

The pheasant population was up about 27 per cent in the Sand Hills, about 18 per cent higher in the central part of the state and about the same in the Panhandle.

The mail carrier's data showed that the breeding population of adult ringnecks was down substantially, but that chick production per brood was up. This also was noted in surveys conducted by commission biologists and conservation officers.

Federal Funds Are Received For 'Project'

Wayne's Project Success, an innovative program to help students with language disabilities, has received its first payment from a federal grant which will be used to help schools in Nebraska adopt the learning techniques being used in the project.

Richard Mettler, project director, said the first payment amounted to $7,200 and was received Aug. 3. It is part of a total federal grant of $37,722 approved in June.

The grant will be used to hire additional staff members to help Winslow, Laurel, Harrington and Emerson Hubbard and possibly other schools in the state take advantage of the project, he said.

While the federal grant will be used to help other schools set up similar programs for language disability students, a state grant of $39,943 approved last month will be used to continue developing the language disability program in Wayne High School, said Mettler.

Money from that grant, the fourth year funding from the state, also will be used to assist teachers in the elementary and middle school in Wayne who already have received training in handling language disability students, he added, and will be used to help West Point and Petersburg establish similar programs in their school systems.

The grants are further recognition of the local project, which has received state and national commendation as an outstanding program for helping students who have difficulty learning through traditional teaching methods.

Lucky They're All Volunteers

HOW MANY workers -- all volunteers -- can you find on this picture? Unless we missed one or two, there should be 80, including the one giving the peace sign and the one waving at the photographer. What are they doing? They are all chowing down after cleaning up the Wayne County fairgrounds Tuesday afternoon a job done in a few hours which would have taken a smaller force much longer. Marty Willers of Wayne (see if you can find him) said each year he is surprised at the large number of volunteers which turn out to clean up after the fair. He said that many surrounding counties have to hire people to clean up after their fairs are all over. He and others on the work force especially complimented the future farmers and homemakers in the front, saying the fair will continue to be a strong one if they take part in such efforts as cleaning up the grounds after everybody else has gone home. "Without them, we wouldn't be able to have a fair," he said. Oh, it doesn't matter if you counted more than 80, since there were another dozen people out on the grounds working when the picture was taken. So that's close to 100 volunteers. Maybe Marty should cut out this picture and send it around to some of those other counties to prove to them that volunteers are there if you know how to get them to turn out.

TV Notebook

By Larry Turner
We suppose it's a sign of advancing age—but we can't help but enjoy those nostalgic TV shows that recapture noteworthy events and pleasant moments from past years. The old Gary Moore Show was probably not the first to use the idea but his "Wonderful Year" segment of each show really took the viewer back to earlier years with film clips and recordings, plus comedy skills about the foibles of those days.

More recently, Mel Torme built an entire half-hour show around memories and great old songs for "It Was a Very Good Year." We only hope that there'll be more such shows in the near future.

There'll be lots of good shows in the future and you'll enjoy them more on a great new solid-state color TV set with automatic fine tuning, so stop in soon and let us quote you our low, low prices with easy budget terms.
