DARTH VADER at "Star Wars" fame, thought he was invading the earth but instead found he was invaded by a mob of excited youngsters when he invaded Wayne Thursday evening. He was kept busy signing autographs as he visited the Wayne business section.

During Visit Thursday

Darth Vader Speechless By Clamor of Children

Darth Vader of "Star Wars" fame, visited Wayne Thursday evening and was second only to Santa Claus in popularity of kids of all ages.

The mute, heavy-breathing Vader was in Wayne to help judge paintings by school-age children in three divisions. The tempera paintings depicted scenes from "Star Wars."

They were painted on the display windows of participating merchants.

Darth Vader had little time to help with the judging, although he seemed to approve of the pieces of art. He was kept busy signing autographs and posing for photographs.

Helping him with the judging were Ted Blenderman, Jackie Ditman and Carlos Frye. Gary Van Meter, Chamber executive who helped set up the visit by the spaceman, said the judges were impartial in that if any of the paintings were by any of their relatives, the judge would disqualify himself for that particular painting.

The winners of the contest and the windows on which their paintings appeared are:

Elementary—Sandy Blenderman, Gerald's Decorating, 1st; Joel Pederson, Diamond Center, 2nd; Brett Fuetberth, Property Exchange, 3rd. Honorable Mention, Tim Griess, Rexall Drug; Scott Fuetberth, Property Exchange; Matt Hillier, Wayne

Book Store; Jennifer and Julie Wessel, Dental Clinic; Jody Dittman, Jeff's Cafe; Jason Schultz, Doeschler's.

For Years of Service

Honor Wakefield Weatherman

Paul L. Burman, Wakefield, a volunteer weather observer for the National Weather Service, has been selected to receive the John Campanius Holm award.

The names of 29 winners selected nationwide to receive this annual award were announced today.

John Campanius Holm awards, created in 1959 by the National Weather Service, are made annually to honor volunteer observers for outstanding accomplishments in the field of meteorological observations. The award is named for a Lutheran minister who is the first person known to have taken systematic weather observations in the American colonies. The Reverend John Campanius made records of the climate, without the use of instruments, in 1644 and 1645, near the present site of Wilmington, Delaware. These observations were published in Sweden by his grandson, Thomas Campanius Holm, in 1702.

Burman is a dedicated and conscientious observer who has taken pride in producing timely and accurate temperature, precipitation, and rainfall data for Wakefield since 1960. He has shown a keen interest in meteorology and has retained and continues to maintain weather records that date back to 1894.

The National Weather Service has nearly 12,000 volunteer observers who make and record daily weather observations in all parts of the United States. The valuable information they gather is processed and published by the Environmental Data Service, another major component of NOAA, and becomes a valuable part of the Nation's weather history.

Ideal Working Conditions

City's Work Projects on 'Target'

Weather conditions, availability of materials and other factors have kept the major summer work projects in Wayne on "target," according to City

Administrator Fred Brink. Brink said there are six major construction projects scheduled for this summer and fall and they are all progressing according to schedule. The projects total a little more than $500,000 and include the transfer station which is presently undergoing a "shake-down" to get the bugs worked out before opening it to the public. Brink said if things go according to plan, the station will be made available for public use by the first of September.

The biggest money project is a sanitary sewer line running from the new Tara Ridge addition to the city's settling lagoon. The 15-inch line will run approximately 6,000 feet, Brink said.

Receives Top Contest Award

Annila Fritschen, Concord, was named top demonstrator at the Dixon County 4-H Demonstration Contest held at the Northeast Station on Monday, Aug. 14.

Annila received a purple ribbon and will receive the championship demonstration trophy. Her demonstration was entitled, "Metric-A Mess or a Must."

Also receiving a purple ribbon was Shelly Luedtke, Concord, for her demonstration entitled, "In Search for the Basic Seven Food Groups." Receiving a blue ribbon was Julie Stoher, Concord, for her demonstration entitled, "Lable Fable." Annita, Shelly and Julie will represent Dixon County at the State Fair Demonstration Contest.

Other demonstrators and the names of their demonstrations are as follows: Blue: Kathi Stoher, Concord — "When It Rains It Pours;" Wayne Wesley, Concord — "Basic Rules of Gun Safety and Gun Care;" Colette Kraemer, Allen — "A Wonder Food;" and Jeanne Warner, Allen — "Switch to Milk."

Colette Kraemer and Jeanne Warner tied for high demonstration in Dairy Foods. Colette will receive the Dairy Foods Plaque and Jeanne will receive the Dairy Foods Trophy.

Anna Borg, 1976 Dixon County Top Demonstrator and 1978 Dixon County Top Speaker, was narrator of the Demonstration Contest.

AN EMPLOYEE of the Midwest Bridge and Construction company, Norfolk, backfills a left station which is a part of the new sanitary sewer system being constructed this summer. The system is one of several projects underway in Wayne this summer.

The cost of the new line is $183,662 with Midwest Bridge and Construction of Norfolk doing the work.

A storm sewer is under construction from south of the railroad right-of-way to Logan creek. Midwest Bridge also has this contract with the cost totaling $178,627. The sewer will have concrete pipe ranging from 7 feet in diameter to smaller sizes running approximately 2,000 feet.

The city also approved three street improvements districts which will be "staked out" next week by Gill Construction company, Jackson, and will be completed this fall, according to Brink.

The district include the Tara Ridge Addition, the windon street railroad crossing and Grainland Road from Blaine to Maple street. The work includes curb, gutter and paving at a package price of $119,000.

Gill Construction has been in Wayne the past couple of weeks, repairing deficiencies in side walks constructed during the downtown improvement project.

OBSERVATIONS

Keeping it simple

We hope the bureaucrats heard the president's message Thursday. He more or less told it "like it is" in language easily understood with few double meanings.

Actually, his speech is a prime example of the type of things he wants from federal departments and bureaus... to speak and write comprehensible English.

The significance of this order, if carried out, cannot be overestimated. Citizens have become accustomed to "legal language" in drafting important federal laws and regulations. They sit back and wait for some "expert" to interpret them in lay language. Sometimes, something is lost in the translation.

This gobbledegook is expensive. When the so-called experts are hired, they must go to the courts for legal interpretations for the interpretation. This regulatory drag adds to an estimated $65 billion a year.

Lawyers argue — with some justification — that there is an established precision legal terminology which is lacking in formal English. But there at least two ways around this problem. One is to push the informal language through initial court tests until it can be established that something means what it says. The other is use a dual system of contracts, etc., in which a plain-English text is accompanied by a text in compliance with all prevailing legal technicalities.

This gobbledegook has been with us since "day one." As defined, the word means any talk or writing that is long, pompous, vague and involved, usually with Latinate words and much professional jargon.

It is a language of the bureaucrats, who write regulations in curious, mixed up sentences that meander on without making any sense. Not even to the bureaucrats.

Abstractions replace concrete nouns. Pseudotechnical terms are never spelled out in simple words.

A bureaucrat would never write or say, "put out the lights." Instead, he would order that the "illumination be terminated."

That's gobbledegook.

And despite the president's good intentions, gobbledegook will sustain. After the president's order which in essence means short words, short sentences, short paragraphs, has been passed down the channels of Department of Transportation in the following memo:

"Regulation means a statement of general or particular applicability and future effect for publication in the 'Federal Register' and designed to implement, interpret or prescribe law or policy or describing the organization, procedure, or practice requirements of initiating office or the Department, except that such statement implements a financial assistance program. It need not be published in the 'Federal Register' to come under this definition."

Now that's gobbledegook!

Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost. — Thomas Jefferson, Letter, 1786.

The problem of a communication gap isn't confined to journalists. The following sentences about allotments are alleged to have been taken from actual letters on file at the San Antonio Veterans administration.

"Please send me my elopement, as I have a four month old baby and his is my only support, and I need all I can get every day, to buy food and keep in close."

"Please send my wife's form to fill out."

"I have already wrote to the president and if I don't hear from you, I will write to Uncle Sam and tell him about both of you."

"Please send me a letter and tell me if my husband has made application for a wife and baby."

"I can't get any pay. I has six children, can you tell my why this is."

"I am forwarding you my marriage certificate and my 2 children, one is a mistake as you can plainly see."

"I am annoyed to find out that you branded my child illiterate, it is a dirty lie as I married his father a week before he was born."

"In answer to your letter, I gave birth to a boy weighing 101 pounds I hope this is satisfactory."

"In accordance to your instructions, I have given birth to twins in the enclosed letter."

"Please find for certain, if my husband is dead, as the man am I living with won't eat or do nothing until he finds out for sure."

"Unless I get my allotment soon I will have to lead an immortal life."

"You changed my little boy to a girl. Does this make any difference?"

"I am glad to says that my husband who was reported missing is now dead."

And that, with a fervent hope the allotment check is in the mail, is that!

Dear Editor: These boys wouldn't have such qualities were it not for you. Be proud of them. Know you've given them the greatest gift of all — LOVE combined with discipline and guidance to enable them to become fine young men.

FANS: You were great. I heard so many good comments. No one gave up. Positive remarks get much greater results.

HANK: Words can't totally express what you've done for our boys, but actions do help. What those boys portrayed on and off the field is a tribute to you, Hank, and what you've taught them. Oh yes, there were tears — not really tears of defeat—but evidence of a job done to the best of their ability. We know that to you and to us they rank at the very top. I know your concern for each boy and the special problems he may have. Thanks for giving so much.

Mention must be made of the fine coverage by Randy Hascall for The Wayne Herald. He won the respect of all, but especially that of the boys. — One Who Was There.

The tide turns

seen, but it's definitely down for the count.

That event may mark a major turning point in modern American history. A decline of the political dominance of Washington by organized labor; a dominance that began with the New Deal of Franklin Roosevelt and great steadily through the succeeding years.

It is a measure of the unions' still-impressive influence, however, that a filibuster was required to stop the bill even though national public opinion polls registered strong majority disapproval of changing the laws to give union organizers more power.

The union's reasons for wanting such changes are easy to understand. Union membership is declining. In 1976 (the most recent year for which the figures are available) the unions lost 52 percent of the secret ballot representation elections conducted by the National Labor Relation Board. Worse yet, from the union perspective, they are also losing a majority of the decertification elections — that's when the workers vote to throw out a union they already have.

In hopes of reversing these trends, the union leaders and their political allies cooked up some modifications of the National Labor Relations Act which would:

1. Leave management less time and opportunity to present its side of the story to workers being pressured to joining a union.
2. Make it more difficult for managers and workers to resist the union's organizing effort.
3. Intimidate managers into caving in to union demands.

Small business and the largely unionized South were prime targets.

For public relations reasons, the unions needed a 19th Century-style "villain" to work against, so they made one out of a southern textile manufacturer, the J.P. Stevens Company of North Carolina. With some cooperation from elements of the press, various do-gooder groups, and one particular judge, they succeeded in making Stevens look bad, despite the fact that the union involved was cited for twice as many violations of the labor law as the company.

(It is an indication of how far toward the union labor law is already stated that one of the "violations" committed by Stevens is this, as reported in Fortune magazine: "A supervisor asked two employees walking through a plant drumming up attendance at a speech by a union organizer, 'Can I help you?' and was held to have made a 'gratuitous, condescending, and unjustified remark,'" which was considered a "coercive act" and therefore illegal.)

But on this occasion, labor's time-proven tactics didn't work. The business community — especially the small business people — will no longer roll over and play dead in the face of a union onslaught. And the workers, too, are beginning to ask embarrassing questions of the organizers: "What's in it for me? How much will the dues cost? What good will the union do me if my job gets priced out of existence?"

It was a monumental struggle, and if it can't be considered over yet. But in Washington, "clear it with George Meany" is not heard so much anymore.

Government Seeks to Improve Food Labels

Nebraskans are being urged to comment on food labeling as part of a federal government review to make food labels more useful to consumers.

According to Janet Wilson, Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources Extension consumer education specialist, consumer opinions will be given first priority in a series of public hearings on the subject to be held across the country beginning this month.

The first hearing will be held at the Century III Theater in Wichita, Kan. on Aug. 22-23. U.S. Department of Agriculture, Federal Trade Commission and Food and Drug Administration officials are all expected to be present.

Wilson said public participation in food labeling decisions is important because of high public interest in nutrition information on food and because of current confusion about the meaning of information on labels.

For example, says Wilson, open dating now is being used by several food processors, however the date given on a label may mean several things.

Dates given may indicate the last day the product is likely to be at peak quality, the last day the product is safe for use or the last day that allows for sufficient home storage and use time.

Government officials also are interested in hearing consumer opinions on how ingredients in food should be labeled, which foods should be required to carry nutrition labels, which foods should be allowed to be fortified with vitamins and minerals and how foods should be named.

Nebraskans who want more information on the food labeling issues and how to comment should contact their county Extension home economist. Written comments will be accepted through the fall.

BLOCKING PRACTICE occupies the players' time at one of their twice daily practices.

Cline Says Blue Devil Football Should Be As Good As Last Year

"We should be as good as we were last year, possibly better," Coach Stew Cline said in reference to his Wayne Blue Devil varsity football team, at practice Thursday afternoon.

Wayne High has 14 returning lettermen from last year's 4-1 squad. "We have 28 kids out, which seems like a small number but they're enthusiastic. The guys who don't like to run don't bother to come out for football," Cline said.

The Blue Devils lost quite a few seniors from last year's team but according to Cline, the returnees are used to the system and have depth.

"We have good size and our players are hard workers. That and the fact that they are used to our system after playing under it for one year would help," Cline stated.

Looking ahead to the season schedule, Cline labeled South Sioux City and Blair as super tough. South Sioux is a Class A school and Blair is a large Class B school.

"Other than those two schools, Emerson which has to be the pre-season conference favorite, will be tough. Pierce, which is picked as the number one Class C team and perennial power, Takamah will both be hard to beat so you can see we have a rough schedule," Cline forecasted.

The second year coach said that Tom Ginn's arm which was injured during baseball season, is okay and he will probably start as quarterback. If not quarterback, Ginn will start at some other position in the wing T formation. Returning lettermen from last year's conference co-champion Blue Devil team are seniors—Dennis Carroll, Roger Daniels, Brad Emry, Tom Ginn, Bob Kenny, Al Nissen, Jay Stollenberg and Don Straight; juniors—Jeff Dion, Randy Dunklau, Doug Hummel, Rick Johnson, Dan Mitchell and Tim Thomas.

Assistant coaches are Ron Carnes and Don Koenig.

Wayne Tradition & Experience Brighten Volleyball Outlook

Wayne Coach Mavis Dalton is optimistic about the upcoming volleyball season and she has a right to be. Four starters return from last year's 13-4 squad, in addition to five other lettermen.

"Last year's reserve team was undefeated and this year they're moving in and taking over. They're a very coachable, good group to work with," Coach Dalton said.

Leading this year's team of 48 girls will be Peg Pinkelman. Last year she was named all conference, all tournament in the conference and honorable mention on the Norfolk all-area team.

Coach Dalton said that she will go with a 4-2 offense (four spikers, two setters). "Tradition carries you a long ways and I don't think Wayne has ever had a losing season," she added.

"We've had a few practices now and the sore muscles are starting to feel better. I'm optimistic we'll have a good season," she stated.

The toughest opponents for the Blue Devils this year will probably be Wisner, Lakeview, South Sioux City and Norfolk, Coach Dalton predicted.

Joining Peg Pinkelman will be returning starters Lisa Barclay, Sandy Jacobmeier and Lora Lessmann, all seniors. The other senior on the team is LaVonna Sharpe, who a returning letterman.

Returning junior letter winners are Jelene Benne, Julia Dorsey and Stacy Jacobmeier. Darrel Heier is assistant coach. The team will open its season at the Bearer Invitational Thursday, Aug. 31.

Four Tennis Teams Move To Tourney Semi-finals

Doug Poehlman and Randy Pederson won a tiebreaker 5-0 to win the third set of their doubles match with Doug Rose and Kevin Johnson 7-6 and advance into the semifinals of the Wayne Tennis Club Doubles Tournament.

Poehlman and Pederson won the first set 7-6 on a 5-4 tiebreaker, lost the second set 6-2 and won the third set to win the closest match of the tournament thus far.

In other first round action, Tom Roberts and Jo Johar teamed up to nip Curt Downey and Doug Goodyear 7-6 with a 5-3 tiebreaker in the first set and 6-3 in the second set. Dan Rose and Keith Zimmer shelled Nick Zimmer and Tom Eynon 6-1, 6-0, and the team of Dewey Smith and Russ Swiger topped Doug Thompson and John Witkowski 6-1, 6-0.

The winners will meet in semi-final matches later this week.

Daehnke Drive Earns Jug Title

Mick Daehnke of the 4th Jug drove a deep fly ball into the right-center field fence to score the game winning run from first base and win the men's 10-pitch softball tournament.

Daehnke's hit occurred with two outs in the bottom of the eighth inning of the championship game against Waldbaum's Wednesday night in the Wakefield

The 4th Jug held a three run lead going into the seventh inning when Waldbaum's rallied to tie the game, and send it into an extra inning.

The 4th Jug slipped through the double-elimination tournament unmarred, beating Valley Squire, T.J.'s and regular season champions, Waldbaum's twice. Complete tournament results are on the back page.

The Sunshine Bottom Band makes its home in Wayne. The five member group pours out a multitude of popular music styles.

As the band's harmonica player, Birdleg plays the most soulful harmonica in the area, and his humor keeps the band's pace up between songs.

Kid Power

The Kid Power 4-H Club met the evening of July 31 for a picnic party at the Otto Wandlock home with Mary as hostess.

Leaders, Mrs. Ed Gnirk and Mrs. Robert Gnirk, were present.

Achievement night was held with articles being displayed that were made during the year.

The results of their fair projects were discussed.

The next meeting will be held at the Ed Gnirk home with the date to be announced at a later date.

er, "Birdleg" said, "We specialize in variety." It's true, the band can play tightly in country, rock, blues, and other forms. Tightness is one of the best ways to describe the band. Unflinching rhythms laid down by drummer, Jim Holmstedt, and his bassist wife, Jo, keep the band together without standing out.

Birdleg plays the most soulful harmonica in the area, and his humor keeps the band's pace up between songs.

Dave Lee plays a vintage Telecaster with an elegant simplicity. His licks are simple, but absolutely to the point of the tune being played.

Multiple keyboardist, Rick Jacobsen, is my favorite instrumentalist of the band. He listens carefully to what is going on, and always seems to know when the proper place to add a fill, swell the volume of the organ, and generally keep things interesting.

Jacobsen is also a fledgling saxophone player, but one wouldn't know it to hear him, for he plays with a good amount of feeling, and with near-perfect intonation.

The band is now in its third rendition. There has been a "Sunshine Bottom Band" for about two years, but Mrs. Holmstedt said, "This is the first time the band has ever gotten off the ground."

The present edition of the band made their debut performance at the 4th Jug in Wayne. They feel their best audience is in this area, and they have done several benefits for their friends here.

While playing in town, they are known for bringing friends on the bandstand to sing along, or to do a little guitar picking. Lee explains that they like to bring people up on stage with them, "because that's basically how this band got started, we were just a pick-up band in the Jug."

From a pick-up band five months ago, to a tight musical brotherhood, the band has been slowly picking up a loyal following, and they've found more work all the time. "We don't have a manager," said Birdleg. "We just all go out and push for ourselves."

The band is good, but they're not perfect...yet. They pride themselves on their dynamics (volume control) but their transitions from loud to soft need to be smoothed out a bit.

The band suffers balance problems, voices are hard to hear, and often a howling harmonica solo is drowned out by the energetic playing of the rest of the group. Also, the band plays no original material, but Jacobsen assured me that that would change soon. "We all write songs," he said, "but we've just been too busy to arrange them for the band."

Despite these small imperfections, the band has a great deal of crowd pleasing appeal. In the last set recently an energetic Jug crowd on its feet, dancing, clapping and hollering for more. When a band has that much charisma, some things can be overlooked, and most likely worked out in time.

4th Jug owner, and perhaps the band's biggest fan, Ken Jorgensen put it this way, "I've got a lot to say for this band, and I've really bent over backwards to support them. The town of Wayne can bend over to support unpopular sidekicks, but if they won't support something that people of our generation can get into, they won't support anything. I think that this band is the greatest!"

With fans like that behind you, you can't go wrong.

Lightning Hits Carroll Home

Lightning last Monday evening damaged a farm home four miles north and one and a half west of Carroll.

Richard Pierce, who had recently moved into the home, reported that the lightning burned out the television set and fuse box and damaged some wiring, including wiring leading to a submersible pump.

The farm is owned by Arnold Junck of Carroll.

Pierce, who is formerly from Racine, Minn., was alone in the house at the time. His wife plans to join him in about two weeks.

RESOURCES CONSERVATION ACT

Natural Resources Districts and Soil Conservation Service personnel held 31 public meetings in Nebraska on Thursday, July 20, 1978. These meetings were held to obtain input in deciding which environmental issues are of major concern to the public and should be part of federal conservation programs.

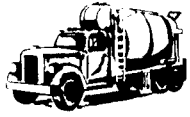

Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Services held meetings at Leigh Community School and Northeast Technical Community College in Norfolk. A total of 72 people registered at the Norfolk meeting and 50 people attended the Leigh meeting.

Carl Fox, District Conservation in Madison County began the Norfolk meeting by showing slides and transparencies which explained the purpose of the meetings and the act itself. Participants then watched a program on educational television produced by the Nebraska Association of Resources Districts which illustrated several current environmental issues and instructed people on how to fill out questionnaires that were provided. The questionnaire asked if each environmental issue is a major or minor concern in the local area. After the program, questionnaires were turned in and a discussion was held to give local officials an idea of what the major concerns of the public are. Some of the topics discussed were the economics of conservation practices, stream erosion and terraces.

The Leigh meeting was conducted by Jim Gonsior, District Conservationist from Coffey County. The meeting was under the same format as the Norfolk meeting.

Some items checked as major concerns were loss of windbreaks, sediment in water, water quality, viability of the family farm, land use, energy use, irrigation and groundwater supplies.

The appraisal of public input must be completed at the state level and sent to Washington D.C. by November 1978. By January 1980, the President must send the appraisal to Congress and it will then be used to formulate new policies and programs for the use and preservation of natural resources. This process will then be updated in five years.

GROUNDWATER QUALITY PROTECTION PLAN

Nebraska Department of Environmental Control will hold a public meeting at 8:00 p.m. August 23, 1978 at the Norfolk, Holiday Inn. The Department of Environmental Control has the responsibility of completing a Groundwater Quality Protection Plan and this meeting will be part of the planning process. The plan would set standards for groundwater quality and set forth methods of implementation and enforcement of these standards. For the present, it is being recommended that the interim Primary Drinking Water Standards be the criteria. As more data becomes available about present groundwater quality, the criteria can be updated. The report will also cover implementation of regulations for point and non-point sources of pollution, maps and supporting information.

IRRIGATION

Irrigators should be aware of the stage of development of corn, in order to schedule the last irrigation of the season.

Soil moisture levels should be maintained above 50 percent of available moisture during pollination and kernel development. However, during the dent stage, the need for further irrigation ends. This can be determined by a black layer which forms at the cob-end of the kernels. Water after this stage will not increase yields and thus is wasted expense. The crop will still take moisture from the soil profile but it doesn't contribute to yield. This leaves room in the soil profile to soak up any precipitation which occurs before planting time next spring. Taking advantages of that precipitation means more savings on pumping costs and less runoff or leaching.
