Waste watch

Representatives of nearly all communities in Dixon County gathered to form a county radioactive waste watch committee.

Among the members are Ray Husk, Ponca Mayor (secretary); Russell Fleury, chairman of the Dixon County Board of Supervisors; Lowell Johnson, Wakefield City Administrator (chairman); Rob Bock, Allen Community Development Club; Russel Busch, Waterbury representative; Palmer Lund, Newcastle Community Club; Ozzy Assmussen, Ponca Commercial Club; Bill Blatchford, Village of Maskell; and Gary Troth, Village of Allen (vice-chairman); and Jim Albrecht (treasurer).

Purpose of the organization is to gather and disseminate information to Dixon County residents, monitor developments regarding the Central States Compact, and make recommendations when appropriate.

Smith status

Kevin Smith of Allen, who was seriously injured in a rodeo accident in Colorado last month, is still listed in stable but serious condition by hospital officials. He is the son of Dale and Maxine Smith.

Kevin, age 24, was trampled by a bull he was attempting to ride at the National Western Show and Rodeo in Denver Jan. 16.

He suffered a severe blow to the head which caused swelling of the brain. He is not considered in a coma as he responds to pain, but is in a semi-comatose state unable to communicate.

Once he no longer requires a respirator, the family hopes to bring Kevin to a Sioux City hospital.

A special fund has been established at the Security State Bank in Allen for Kevin and his family. Anyone wanting to make a contribution may do so by addressing it to the Kevin Smith Fund in care of the bank.

His hospital address is AMI St. Luke's Hospital, ICU, Denver, Colorado, 80203.

Square dance

The Leather and Lace Square Dance Club will hold a Valentine Dance, to take place Feb. 8 from 8:30 to 11:00 p.m. at Wayne State College's North Dining Room of the campus student center.

Weigh-in 4-H members throughout the county have selected the market steers and heifers they will be working with throughout the year. The official project start will begin with the market beef weigh-in on Saturday, Feb. 13 at the Wayne Veterinary Clinic.

Each market animal will be weighed and tagged with an official 4-H tag.

Ownership affidavits must be completed for each animal and will be available. Animals to be exhibited at Ak-Sar-Ben and Norfolk Meat Animal Exhibition must have nose-prints on file with those shows, and will be done at weigh-in day. Zeranol growth implants will be available for project animals at no charge if the member wishes to participate.

All market animals will be eligible for the rate of gain contest. Cattle will be weighed between 9 and 11 a.m.

Bereuter assists in relieving city costs

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Congressman Doug Bereuter has joined Wayne city council representatives in dealing with concerns of how to pay for corrections required on the city's wastewater treatment plant.

Representative Bereuter has asked the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) regional office in Kansas City, Kansas to provide financial assistance to the city of Wayne if its wastewater treatment facility is found out of compliance with discharge permit standards.

Last May, the city of Wayne was notified by the Nebraska Department of Environmental Control that the wastewater treatment plant was in violation of its discharge permit.

AT A CITY council meeting Tuesday, Jan. 26 the firm contracted to look into the reasons why the wastewater treatment plant operation was not in compliance, Olsson Associates of Lincoln, presented their diagnostic report. They presented corrective recommendations which would cost the city of Wayne at least $250,000 or more. The top three priority items, which would likely bring the city into compliance without significant problems, totaled in costs at least $90,000.

Those three priority items would be to control the flow at the city's lift stations; create a full-time position at the treatment plant to watch over the operations; and correct the lack of loading into the bacteria-filled bi-disks at the treatment plant.

Four more recommendations which the firm prioritized would enhance the wastewater treatment system, bringing the entire list of corrective changes to $250,000 plus in costs.

Herald inserts study

It's not a national best seller, but the Stanford Research Institute (SRI) report on Nebraska's economy is reaching a half million newspaper subscribers.

The report highlights Nebraska's hard-working and productive population; abundant natural resources; vital and growing service industries in health, finance, insurance, telecommunications and tourism; over-reliance on agriculture; loss of skilled and educated workers; and limited availability of venture capital.

The Wayne Herald is one of 87 publications that is distributing summaries of the study which was sponsored by the Nebraska Press Association (NPA). Funded by the Kiewit Foundation of Omaha, the SRI study suggests steps citizens and government officials might take to improve the state's future as it prepares to enter the next century.

BECAUSE OF the size of the insert, the SRI study in The Wayne Herald will be delivered to those who receive the newspaper by carrier.

Extra copies of the report will be available at The Wayne Herald office, free of charge, to those interested in the economic study. Those who wish to receive the study by mail should send $2 per copy with their request.

The 40-page tabloid will reach "more than 550,000 subscribers to 87 weekly and daily newspapers," according to G. A. (Shorty) Miles, president of the NPA. "I doubt if any state's newspapers have ever cooperated in such a manner and in such numbers," said Miles.

THE INTENT of the massive statewide distribution, he said, "is to let the average citizen of the state have access to a document that may change his or her way of life for the better." Citizen involvement is needed, Miles said, "to make things happen for mutual benefit of all Nebraskans."

Nine "town hall" meetings have been scheduled throughout Nebraska. The nearest town meeting for the Wayne area is scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 17, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Platte Community College in Columbus.

MORE MEETINGS will be scheduled if the public requests them, Miles said. More presentations about the SRI study may be arranged by contacting this newspaper.

The complete SRI report of more than 300 pages has been distributed to every public library in Nebraska, said Miles.

In controlling heavy erosion

Variety of conservation options available

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

No-till farming is a method which will likely gain in popularity in Wayne or Dixon County as the 1990 deadline nears for each landowner in the counties to bring highly erodible soil under control.

But Larry Wetterberg of the Wayne County Soil Conservation Service indicates contour stripcropping fulfills all the requirements — and more.

There are several planning options suited to limiting heavy erosion on Wayne County's soil type.

Landowners are required to come up with a soil conservation plan by 1990. If a plan is not developed by then, the landowners would not be eligible for all the feed grain programs, federal crop insurance, and Farmers Home Loans and other federal programs.

Among the option suited for soil in Wayne County, for instance, is rotation crops on cropland residue. "With any producer, we start with his current rotation. Once we establish that, then we try to work with some method of planting that crop in the residues," said Wetterberg.

FOR THIS option, Wetterberg speaks about no-till and making it work on the landowner's cropland.

"If it becomes apparent that he (the landowner) doesn't have the capabilities of farming in this method, then we'll move on to the option of stripcropping, which would be established on the contour," he said. Stripcropping methods entail farming up to 100 foot strips on the contour that would alternate between a row crop (such as corn) and then a strip of oats or alfalfa. "It would alternate downhill, to the hill's bottom," said Wetterberg. The strips would be rotated every three years.

A spin-off from stripcropping would be to establish contour buffers, which would be 80 to 100 foot row crop strips sandwiching 35 to 45 foot permanent grass strips alternating on the contour.

"In my mind, from everybody's standpoint, whether it be cost to the taxpayer or cost to the farmer and still getting the job of erosion control done — stripcropping is the best way to go," said Wetterberg.

"That's because you have legume (nitrogen provider) in your rotation which is going to mean less fertilizer costs," he said.

ADOPTING A rotation of corn/corn/oats/alfalfa in four years is another option. The alfalfa would be plowed into corn, corn planted no-till into corn stalks with 80 percent cover after planting; and then oats planted into corn stalks leaving 50 percent ground cover after planting.

"This is a great method because you are growing your own nitrogen," Wetterberg said.

"But most landowners don't use it. They don't plant that much alfalfa or oats because they do not have a use for those crops," he added.

One more option would be to construct parallel terraces on 150 foot spacing with grass waterways or tile outlets. Approximately 15 percent of the highly erodible land in Wayne County is being terraced. "But we would be doing a bad job if we said

Wayne State to host pianist Jeffrey Siegel

Hailed by The New York Times as "an artist who means every note he plays," the American pianist Jeffrey Siegel will perform at Wayne State College on Thursday, Feb. 18 at 8 p.m. in Ramsey Theatre located in the Val Peterson Fine Arts Building. The performance is part of the Wayne State College Black and Gold Series.

The well-known soloist has appeared with all the major American orchestras and conductors and also performs regularly in the leading musical capitals abroad such as London, Berlin, Milan, Tokyo and Buenos Aires, according to James Day, professor of music at Wayne State.

Tickets for the general public go on sale Monday, Feb. 8. Prices are $4 for adults and $2 for high school age or younger. Persons with Wayne State activity cards must also have tickets, which may be obtained at the Budget and Finance Office, Hahn Administration, Room 311.

Phone orders will be taken only during the general distribution period beginning Feb. 8. Tickets may be picked up at the Budget and Finance Office or mailed to the requestor who supplies a self-addressed stamped envelope.

The number to call is 402/375-2200 extension 220.

that terracing alone would do the job," said Wetterberg.

There is a cost-sharing clause with terrace conservation, ranging from 60 percent share in cost with the Natural Resource District to 75 percent from the federal government. Terracing can run up in costs to $200 an acre. Sixty percent cost-share would cost landowners from $40 to $60 an acre.

"With all the other options, there are no real costs associated with implementation," Wetterberg mentioned.

HE SAID NO-TILL costs could require the purchase of new planter or cultivator. "With stripcropping, we lay that out for the farmer and there is no charge for doing that," he said.

Approximately 30 percent of the landowners in Wayne County have tried no-till. Most of them started on soybean residue, planting corn, and Wetterberg said that about 80 percent had "good luck with it."

Yields on test plots in the county where no-till was compared with conventional farming were about equal, said Wetterberg. "But we saved $5 an acre in input costs on no-till versus conventional."

There are some who are skeptical about the idea of no-till planting in corn stalks and have questions about herbicide protection. "Most of the failures of no-till occur because of some part of the no-till program that was not the best thing to do," said Wetterberg.

SKEPTICISM among some landowners toward conserving highly erodible soil isn't limited to no-till. Landowners argue that valuable land is being taken out of production.

"However, they lose crop yields in areas that wash and areas that silt in, and that compensates for the area they lose in terracing," remarked Wetterberg.

Change, however, is one adjustment difficult to impress upon landowners.

"Lots of guys are satisfied with the way they are farming now. And when you get into financially hard times, you're less likely to change drastically any method of farming operation. You want to try and do what you do best," Wetterberg commented.

For instance, if stripcropping is incorporated, landowners are going to have to make a decision to have their corn base or soybean acres less than in the past. Are they going to continue to farm with row crops or are they going to change their rotation to one that has more oats and alfalfa?

One final option for conservation of highly erodible soil is apparently a popular one — the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP).

CRP is a federal government program initiated to take highly erodible land out of crop production. The program requires farmers to seed the erodible cropland to grass or to plant trees on the property. The landowners cannot graze livestock on the grassland, or harvest it, for 10 years.

There have been five sign-up periods for landowners to enter the CRP in Wayne County. The maximum amount of acres in Wayne County that could be bid into the CRP program is 25 percent of the total acres of cropland in the county, roughly 56,750 acres.

CURRENTLY, Wayne County has 25,363 acres enrolled in CRP, around 45 percent of what is allowed for bidding. Dixon County has 31,095 acres bid in the program (56 percent of allowance); and Cedar County, 18,136 acres (22 percent of allowance).

Statewide, nearly 19 percent of eligible CRP acres have been signed up. So Wayne and Dixon Counties are well above the state average and in the top 16 counties among CRP sign-up according to eligible acres.

Life Savers

It is the dead of night and fire ravages through the house halls. If you are asleep, chances are you will be overcome by smoke or even burned to death.

Unless you have a smoke detector, Nebraska Governor Kay Orr has signed a proclamation announcing Feb. 7 through Feb. 13 as Smoke Detector Week.

Of all the worthwhile proclamations that pass the Governor's desk, this one is more than worthy of recognition. Simply put — smoke detectors save lives and can help prevent extensive property damage.

Experience has shown that lives can be saved and property damages greatly reduced through smoke detectors.

Most deaths and injuries from fire occur in the home, making it essential that families undertake a program of preventive fire safety — planning escape routes in addition to the purchase of smoke detectors.

Smoke detectors are inexpensive. Some models of smoke detectors can be purchased for under $12, according to Wayne Volunteer Fire Department Chief Dale Preston.

"We would advocate that smoke detectors be installed in every home," Preston said.

As a 13 year member of the fireman force, he can attest to instances where smoke alarms have sounded and alerted families who in turn were able to contact the fire department and prevent extensive damage to the home.

Preston said the detectors can alert families of impending danger, with even the smallest amount of smoke. However, he recommends residential dwellings to have more than one detector. A back-up, just in case a battery is weakened, provides even greater security.

Each year, around 6,000 Americans perish to fire in their homes. Many of these lives could be spared if smoke detectors protected more homes.

Wouldn't it be great if all the residential dwellings in Wayne carried smoke detectors?

It's the cheapest premium one will ever pay for home protection insurance.

Another study

It seems foolish that the Wayne-Carroll school district, as well as other school districts across the state, must bear the cost of asbestos inspection — particularly when inspections were made twice in the 1980's and little or no asbestos was found.

Asbestos is potentially dangerous, we agree. And heavy concentrations of asbestos on pipes or tile which threaten that air should definitely be removed.

However, when a school district has been thoroughly inspected twice, wouldn't it be more practical to have the school district send copies of inspection reports to the Nebraska Department of Health for verification.

Fifteen cents a copy would be a lot cheaper to the school district than paying around eight cents per square foot of building space inspected.

Erosion

A sixth sign-up period was started on Monday, Feb. 1 and ends on Friday, Feb. 19.

"Most guys that sign up try to put whole quarters or at least one unit in. It may not be all of their farm. They might want to keep some back for farming," said Wetterberg.

Wetterberg said some landowners are getting into the 10-year CRP program so they can decide later just what type of soil conservation practices they will use to be in compliance with federal laws.

Wetterberg said those with questions on conservation practices should contact Charles Shapiro, Russ Moomaw, Dave Shelton and other sources at the Northeast Nebraska Research and Extension Center near Concord for more information.

"Another source of information often overlooked," said Wetterberg, "are your neighbors or friends who have tried the conservation practices."

In the next article, The Wayne Herald will look into what is lost by landowners if they fail to comply with the law requiring the establishment of a conservation plan by 1990 or beyond.

Paid for out-of-state service

Revision sought on non-resident tax

Capitol Views

by Sen. Gerald Conway

by non-Nebraska residents who perform services within the state.

The primary intent of the law was to recover income tax owed in situations such as occurred when the movies "Terms of Endearment" and "Amerika" were made in our state. In those instances, non-residents performed services subject to state income tax but the collection mechanism was insufficient to properly recover what was due the state.

However, last year's law was inaccurately drafted to require all Nebraska residents who contract with a non-resident for services to obtain employer identification numbers and fill out numerous forms. Additionally, it requires them to withhold income tax and remit it to the Department of Revenue. As the law is currently written, a Nebraskan is required to carry out all these requirements or face tax penalties. An example of this problem would be a Dakota County repairman who hires a Sioux City repairman to come to their home to service a TV; technically they are to come under this law.

The change I proposed in LB 1064 exempts Nebraska citizens from having to report and withhold income taxes if the amount paid for the out-of-state service is less than $5,000. A business is exempt from reporting if the amount paid is less than $600.

This amount follows the federal standards. When the Unicameral debated this law last year, the members never intended that the law be applied in minor instances contracted by individuals where small amounts of taxable income are involved. The burden of withholding and filling the required forms is simply too unfair a burden to require of people in comparison to the amounts of revenue the state would collect.

People sometimes believe too many bills are introduced in the legislature each year. There are a lot of bills introduced, but many of them address concerns that require only small modifications in existing law. Most often, those concerns are spotted by citizens who find problems in complying with the law and raise questions about the intent.

The legislative process is partly one of continually refining our laws to make them do what they are intended to do. You all participate in making that happen.

Budget appropriation bill addressed

One of the highlights of the President's State of the Union Address last week was his pledge to veto any last-minute, end-of-session Continuing Resolution. Those who watched the Address saw the three-foot stack of papers that constituted the Budget Reconciliation and Omnibus Continuing Appropriation Bills.

President Reagan said that he wants to see 13 individual appropriations bills on his desk—funding bills that have been fully considered by Congress in a timely fashion. That's the way it should be.

Last December I joined a number of my colleagues in sending a letter to the President urging that he never again sign such a Continuing Resolution at the end of a session. I'm pleased the President accepted our suggestion. This ultimatum will help force Congress to adhere to its budget schedule.

The Social Security Administration is concerned that many Americans have been receiving a substantial amount of misleading direct-mail advertising concerning Social Security. They have provided the following information.

A MESSAGE FROM THE SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

An increasing number of organizations are offering to provide, for fees ranging up to $40, a variety of services in connection with Social Security. The services being offered include obtaining a Social Security card; requesting an estimate of benefits or statement of earnings; and changing a name in Social Security's records. What most unsuspecting recipients of these and other mail solicitations may not know is that Social Security provides those and other services free of charge.

In addition to misleading people into spending money unnecessarily, these fee-for-service appeals also convey the impression that Social Security is unwilling or unable to provide these routine services. Nothing could be further from the truth. Since its creation in 1935, Social Security has maintained a reputation of excellent service to the public.

An even more cynical appeal attempts to lure elderly Americans into contributing funds by planting fear and doubt about Social Security's financial status. While it is true that Social Security faced serious financial problems in the 1970's, amendments enacted by Congress in 1983, and signed into law by the President, have put Social Security on a solid financial basis — now and well into the next century. So, appeals to "save" Social Security are nothing more than scare tactics, because the system does not need "saving."

Because the Social Security Administration (SSA) believes that the best guarantee against becoming a victim of deceptive advertising is being an educated consumer, it is conducting an ongoing public affairs campaign. Among the warnings SSA issues is that a common-sense approach should be taken in evaluating any mail solicitation.

Recipients of the mailings should immediately be suspicious of any promotions that seem "too good to be true" — such as those that promise undue financial return, or that give overly prominent display to narrow provisions of the law.

Finally, Social Security officials say people should refer any Social Security-related advertising that they believe to be deceptive to their local Better Business Bureau of their nearest Social Security office. And, by all means, they urge that, if you require service in connection with Social Security, you always check first with SSA by calling your local Social Security office listed in the phone book.

WAYNE'S WASTEWATER treatment facility began operation in May, 1985, with the Environmental Protection Agency providing a large percentage of the costs. Previously, the Environmental Protection Agency reviewed and approved the plans submitted by the engineering firm that designed the facility.

In his letter to the EPA regional administrator, Bereuter said: "Given the fact that the design of the facility was approved by EPA, the residents of Wayne feel that they should not have to bear the expense associated with any corrective actions resulting from design flaws."

HE EXPLAINED that the high plant improvement costs will be especially burdensome for local businesses and residents in a community that is just beginning to recover from the effects of the troubled agricultural economy.

"Expensive plant improvement costs would be a financial set-back for a community just now starting to recover from the adverse effects of the troubled agricultural economy.

Financial assistance from the EPA would certainly be of great assistance to the city of Wayne and would be appreciated," he wrote.

Wayne City Administrator Phil Kloster said the lending hand by Congressman Bereuter is "certainly appreciated."

"We're pleased that he has taken an interest in this matter," Kloster said.

Preventing color loss in clothing

Consumers are experiencing more color failure problems than ever before. What are the causes of color loss and what can be done to prevent it?

Dye bleeding and color change occurs because some traditionally used dyes have been removed from the market and replacement dyes aren't colorfast.

Excess dye can also remain on the surface of the fabric and can cause dye transfer either in water or solvent bath or by crocking and rubbing. Excess dye is usually used with deep, intense colors such as reds, blues, greens and browns.

Garments like blue jeans tend to bleed or run more than the color in other garments.

OTHER COLOR failure problems may be the result of inappropriate care procedures, or the reaction of dyes to chemicals used in laundry, in grooming and in other household activities.

To avoid some of these problems, pay particular attention to the color of the item and the information given on hang tags and care labels. Look for the term "colorfast." If the label says to "wash dark colors separately" you can expect dye will bleed in washing.

If you suspect the product has excess dye, wash or have it dry cleaned separately. Highly fugitive dyes have been known to contaminate whole wash or drycleaning loads.

IF YOU HAVE followed the recommended care procedures and still have problems, then return the garment to the store where it was purchased. Color change or loss may be very subtle at first so all pieces of a two or three-piece outfit should be washed or cleaned during each refurbishing.

Once color transfer has occurred it is very difficult and, in most cases, impossible to restore a garment. Here are some reasons for color loss:

- Some dyes bleed in drycleaning.
- Some dyes bleed in laundering.
- If dyes bleed when exposed to moisture, they are susceptible to rain, spilled water or drinks, and perspiration.
- Dyes will fade on exposure to light, especially sunlight.
- Common household substances such as lemon juice can cause bleaching of some dyes.
- Benzol peroxide, an ingredient in some acne medications and skin cleansers, can cause color loss or change.

Randolph defeats Laurel

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

Not many people gave Laurel much of a chance to defeat rated Randolph in the second round of the North East Nebraska Athletic Conference, (NENAC), Tournament Tuesday night.

The truth is, Laurel did come up on the short end. However, the game was much closer than you might expect.

Randolph's second quarter play is what boosted them to a 60-52 victory. Laurel Head Coach Mark Hrabik knew coming into the game that his club would give Randolph more than they wanted. "We definitely played them better this time than we did early in the season," Hrabik said.

For Laurel it was a rather strange twist of events. Basically, all season long the Bears have had relatively balanced scoring. However the past couple games, Scott Marquardt had fallen off the pace.

Tuesday night against Randolph, Marquardt picked a perfect game to break out of his slump. Unfortunately, the other Laurel players were unable to come up with their usual amount of points.

Incidentally, Marquardt lit up the scoreboard for 29 points, including six 3-point field goals. But players such as Doug Manz, Joedy Cunningham and Kyle Nixon were unable to come up with their averages, combining for seven points between the three.

The fifth starter of the group, John Schutte, finished with 12 points. Hrabik noted that Randolph played a very aggressive zone defense, causing the Laurel players to rush their shots.

"We got within six points with two or three minutes left in the game," Hrabik said. "Randolph missed the front end of several one and one attempts, but we couldn't close the gap any further."

Laurel will be in action this Saturday night when they play host to Bloomfield.

Wakefield eliminated

Paul Eaton's Wakefield Trojans were eliminated from the Lewis & Clark Conference Tournament Thursday night, as Wausa handed them a 72-66 setback.

"We got behind early," Eaton said. "But our kids fought back and we did take the lead in the fourth quarter."

Wakefield got down 23-14 at the end of the first quarter. Wausa star Ken Clausen who leads the conference in scoring, had a solid first quarter performance enroute to his 30 point performance for the night.

In the second quarter Wakefield outgunned Wausa 18-16, and according to Eaton, it should have been more. "Right towards the end of the quarter, we got a defensive rebound and we got called for traveling because two of our guys came down with the ball at the same time," Eaton said.

"Wausa scored and then after a missed shot by us, Clausen hit a long 3 pointer at the buzzer, so that's a five point swing."

As mentioned earlier, Wakefield did take the lead in the fourth quarter. In fact, with three minutes to go in the game and a two point lead, Wakefield had two chances to increase its lead but missed on both trips down the court.

Eaton noted the play of sophomore Andy McQuistan. "McQuistan came off the bench and scored 10 second quarter points for us," Eaton said.

The leading scorer for Wakefield was Stuart Clark with 17 points. The Wakefield scoring was well balanced as three Trojans, Mike Nelson, Scott Lund and McQuistan all finished with 12 points apiece.

Matt Tappe had six points coming off the bench, while Todd Kratke rounded out the Trojan scoring attack with five.

Freshman Boys 8-2

The freshman boys basketball game upped its record to 8-2 last Monday as they defeated visiting Plainview in the City Auditorium.

Head Coach Duane Blomenkamp was pleased with the team's effort, and was especially elated that everybody got to play a lot.

"I think the whole group played very well," Blomenkamp said. "We executed well and everyone got to play."

Besides the fact that the freshman Blue Devils routed Plainview, 55-26, Blomenkamp noted that his second team actually played about two or three minutes more than the starting team.

"Brian did a fine job of turning Plainview turnovers into easy baskets," Blomenkamp said. Lentz also turned in a fine performance on the boards, as he was credited for six caroms to go along with the 26 points, all in just one half of play.

Craig Sharpe added nine points, while Jeff Griesch, Kevin Heier and Martin Rump all recorded four points apiece.

Four players, Cory Thomson, Ryan Shaw, Matt Osterkamp and Steven Dinsmore all netted two points apiece.

The freshman will be in action this Thursday afternoon at 4:30, when they travel to Hartington, to play Cedar Catholics freshman team.

Wayne jumped out quickly to an 18-10 lead after the first quarter of play. However, it was the second quarter that erased any doubts of those questioning Wayne's ability to win the game.

The home team outscored the visitors 14-11 in the second quarter to take a comfortable 32-11 lead at intermission.

In the third quarter, Wayne stretched its lead to 30 at 47-17.

Brian Lentz played on a different level than the rest of the players, as he tossed in a game high 26 points for the winners.

Wayne boys avenge early loss, girls lose in OT

Wayne boys avenge early loss, girls lose in OT

Avenging defeat in the finals of the holiday tournament, Wayne defeated South Sioux City Friday night in the first round of the Northern Activities Conference Tournament in O'Neill.

Wayne, a 70-56 loser back in December, came up a 53-47 winner and set its immediate sights on a rematch with Hartington Cedar Catholic in the finals on Saturday night.

Wayne Head Coach Bob Uhing was proud of his team's all around effort in their first round game. "The kids did a super job the whole game," Uhing said. "I could tell before the game started that we were ready to play."

Wayne got down early to South Sioux 6-0. However, after a timeout, the Blue Devils went on an 11-4 run to lead 11-0.

Speaking of ready to play, Nick Engelson may have provided the key to the door that opened the Blue Devils gate to the finals.

Engelson scored 14 points, but more importantly, came up with 15 rebounds, four offensive caroms in the final quarter to aid in the Blue Devil victory.

Uhing noted that one of the keys to the game was tempo. "We knew coming into the game that we could not give up any transition baskets, and aside from a couple in the opening quarter, we didn't," Uhing commented.

The credit for the tempo being played on Wayne's level, was attributed to three players. The playmaker Jess Zeiss, Scott Hammer and Engelson.

The Wayne Blue Devil bench played an important role in the victory also. Players such as Willie Gross, Kevin Hausmann, Jed Reeg and Neil Carnes came in and relieved some of the starters when foul trouble became a factor and did a magnificent job of hitting the boards and keeping the tempo at a minimal pace.

Hammer was also a force on the boards hauling down 12 rebounds to help aid Wayne to a 47-25 advantage in rebounding.

When the two teams first squared off in Rice Auditorium in December, there were four South Sioux players that spelled doom for the Blue Devils.

Shane Slaughter, Troy Glasser, Jeremy Archer and Sean Baker all had good games the first time around. However, Friday night Slaughter was the only weapon South Sioux could muster as he netted 20 points.

The Blue Devil girls played South Sioux in the first game of the night and came up on the short end of a 65-62 overtime decision.

Head Coach Martene Uhing had to do without the services of senior Marini Bruggemann from mid-way through the second quarter on because of a sprained ankle.

The key to the game may have been the 27 whistles blown on the Blue Devils. Unfortunately, four of the Wayne players fouled out.

Knotted at 56 at the end of regulation, Wayne had to witness South Sioux score on nothing but free throws in the bonus period. In fact, South Sioux hit 9-13 in the overtime period alone.

Uhing noted another key area to the loss came in the third quarter when on five of the first seven possessions the Blue Devils had, they turned it over.

Dana Nelson led Wayne in scoring with 20 points. Nelson connected on three 3 pointers and had four steals and forced two other turnovers. Ellis turned in a fine performance of 18 points, including 7-10 from the charity stripe.

Tonya Erxleben had nine rebounds to lead Wayne, while Heidi Reeg was credited with eight caroms.

Search for volunteers

The activity department of the Wayne Care Centre is searching for a more complete and versatile volunteer system, similar to the "candy strippers" or the "grey-ladies."

"A full-fledged Volunteer Program," according to Administrator Gil Haase, "is so meaningful to the residents of the Care Centre and is actually needed to give the members of the community the opportunity to satisfy their needs to also be wanted." This program is in addition to the fine groups and individuals who bring goodies and perform for the residents.

Haase stated that the recent holidays were so jam-packed with many, many, wonderful visitors, clubs, groups, singers, etc. "Now it would be nice if each of these same groups would take a month during the year (January thru November), let the residents be their project for a given month and provide a much needed community service." "Our employees can only do so much," he added, "and our residents do so appreciate anything extra done for them and with them."

All you need is love! No experience is necessary. If you are looking for a way to add more meaning to your life or your group, please contact June Baier at the Care Centre. She'll be glad to discuss the Volunteer Program with you.

As we've said many times, "you'll get back twice as much as you're ever able to give."

Most residents enjoy visitors who like to chat, write letters, read to them or sometimes participate in a friendly game of cards, checkers or dominoes. Volunteers with special skills in gardening, woodworking, crafts, quilting and so on are also urged to share their experiences and talents.

Service Station

Airman Joseph B. Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert W. Ellis of Allen, has graduated from Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the six weeks of training the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs

BUSINESS FOCUS

THE IDS Financial Service office is located at 416 Main Street in Wayne.

GEORGE PHELPS AND ASSISTANT Judy Twiford work on one of the many Personal Financial Plans generated each year.

IDS Financial Services

Helping Wayne area residents reach their financial goals

IDS financial planner George Phelps came to Wayne in November of 1968. Besides having BS and MS college degrees, Phelps graduated in November 1979 from the College for Financial Planning in Denver, receiving the designation of Certified Financial Planner (CFP).

Since that time, Phelps says that many things have changed both in IDS Financial Services as a company and in the area of financial planning itself.

"Although new financial services have been added and others have been modified, the idea of helping people reach their goals through financial planning is still the main focus of IDS," Phelps added.

Headquartered in Minneapolis, Minn., the IDS group of companies makes available a full range of financial ser-VICES, including a wide array of mutual funds, a full line of protection products, savings certificates, annuities, unit investment trusts, brokerage services, limited partnerships, IRAs, Keogh plans, profit sharing plans, and other special investment programs.

Reflecting back on 1987, Phelps noted that "one of the key aspects was investment balance. You can achieve balance by having cash reserves to meet immediate needs; adequate protection to provide money in the event of an unforeseen emergency; fixed assets to provide additional income at predictable rates of growth; and equity assets to help you achieve an attractive rate of growth as you accumulate money for the future." By having a balanced financial plan, clients are less likely to be concerned about recent market changes that have occurred.

One of the recent misconceptions Phelps deals with is the 1986 Tax Reform Act and how it affects IRAs. Most of the confusion centers on tax deductibility. "The fact is, an estimated 70 to 80 percent of all households with IRAs will still be eligible to deduct all or part of their 1987 IRA contributions from their federal income tax returns," Phelps explained.

Phelps is planning seminars in both February and March to help clarify changes in the tax laws even more thoroughly. To inquire for more details, call the IDS office at 375-1848.

In the dark about public power?

Let us shed some light on the subject.

For a subject that many times seems complicated, electric power production in Nebraska had the simplest of beginnings.

Schemes to provide irrigation and power in the early 1900's budded and bloomed for a while — then withered and died much like the crops in the frequent droughts.

Q. What is an IRA Transfer?

A. An IRA transfer is a direct transfer of IRA money from one trustee/custodian/issuer to another. The IRA owner does not take possession of the monies and the transaction is not reported to the IRA. There is no limit on the number of direct IRA transfers a person can make.

Next week's question: What is an IRA Rollover?

A seminar entitled "Five Misconceptions That Cost You Money!" will be open to the public at no cost. This informative seminar will be presented on February 18th at 2:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. in the Community Room in the basement of the Columbus Federal Building, Wayne, Nebraska.
