Well done

A first round of the National Geography Bee took place at School District 57 south of Wayne on Jan. 12 and 13.

Mark Meyer, the winner of the District 57 Bee, will advance to the next level of competition, a written examination. He is the son of Terry and Doris Meyer.

All school winners have the potential to win the national championship and its first prize, a $25,000 college scholarship, at the finals May 18-19 in Washington, D.C.

The National Geographic Society is sponsoring this school-level geography Bee for students in the fourth through eighth grades at thousands of schools across the United States and four territories.

Honorees

Warren Sahs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sahs, and Jerry Sweihart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sweihart, also of Carroll, will be honored Feb. 7 for 40 years of service at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. A luncheon will take place on the Lincoln campus.

Professor Sahs is Supt. Agronomist at the Ag Research and Development Center at Mead and Lincoln. Prof. Sweihart is a civil engineer at the Lincoln university.

Both were same year graduates of Carroll High School.

"Having two students graduate the same year and performing 40 years together at the same university is quite an honor," said reporter Mrs. Erna Sahs.

Cultural arts

The Dixon County Home Extension Clubs are sponsoring the 1989 Cultural Arts Contest featuring entries in three categories:

Sculpture — four classes (wood, clay, metal and other); Fiber arts — five classes (knitting, crocheting, macrame, weaving and other); Ceramics — two classes (formed by mold, formed by hand).

All entries should be the work of the exhibitor and should have been made since June, 1986.

Both Extension Club members and non-club members may enter the county contest. However, only Extension Club members will be eligible to be selected for the State Cultural Arts Contest held in June.

Each entry must be presented on an official entry form, due in the Dixon County Extension Office by 5 p.m. on Monday, April 3. Exhibits are due in the Extension Office by 10 a.m. on Monday, April 24. Judging will begin at 11 a.m. that day and prizes will be awarded to top exhibits in each category.

Anyone interested in entering the contest may call the Dixon County Extension Office (584-2234) to request contest details and an official entry form. Plans were made by the Cultural Arts Committee.

Diller delights Wayne sell-out crowd

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

Comedienne Phyllis Diller, appearing before at least 2,000 people at Rice Auditorium on the Wayne State College Campus Thursday evening, certainly possesses a knack of uplifting spirits with her hilarious comedy routines.

She does all this despite a demanding whirlwind performance schedule that requires constant travel from coast to coast. She loves to fly, although joking occasionally about those long distances between airport terminals as she hops from plane to plane.

Still, people who have talked with Diller during her Wayne visit have found her to be more of a "down-to-earth" 71-year-old individual who takes the time to listen.

She is conscientious about environmental, political and social issues, according to Jim Day, director of the Wayne State College Black and Gold Series and professor of Fine Arts at Wayne State College.

Day and other Wayne State College officials greeted Diller after her 2:30 arrival Thursday afternoon at the Sioux City airport. The area media was given an opportunity to ask Diller questions during a brief press conference at the airport.

THE STAR began the press conference by commenting on the midwest scenery from the airways. "I've never seen such beautiful fields. They look like they have a nice tweed design," she said.

She couldn't recall if or when she last performed in Nebraska. "When you ride three airplanes each day and pass through five states — I can remember only if it was a disaster. So it must have been wonderful here," she said.

She answered a question about what type of comedy material she will be presenting Thursday evening to the Wayne State audience. "If most are middle age or older, I talk a lot about health. I usually gear my performance to the audience's age," she said.

DILLER SAID she is motivated at "trying to get people off their duff" with her routine. "At my age, I have to," she said.

And she takes each day, or performance, in stride. "There is no way to go except to put one foot ahead of the other," Diller said.

Presentation of comedy had changed over the past years, she said. Some things get said that would earlier have been censored. "The flood gates are open. They can do, or say, anything on cable these days," she mentioned.

And Diller promoted her next televised appearance — a guest spot on the Smothers Brothers new show slated for Saturday, Feb. 4.

Roseanne Barr, star of the television comedy series "Roseanne" is one of Diller's favorite young comedienne.

Some of Diller's material is derived from what she reads in the papers. "I'm more at home telling jokes with women's angles," she said.

Day mentioned to Diller about her musical talents. "For 20 years I really studied music," she said. "My next goal [after no longer concentrating on music] was to have nine children. But I stopped at five," she said.

"The next goal was to feed them all," she said.

"Sending one kid to college today would be up in the six figure range," she remarked.

"I don't know what we're going to do with these price increases. Once you could mail letters anywhere with two cents. Now, it's up to 25 cents," she added.

Diller's father, an insurance person, paid her two cents for every letter that he didn't have to mail. "I learned early how hard it is to make a buck," she said. She mentioned that her parents were well organized and always had a sense of humor.

HAS SUCCESS been a detriment to Diller? Judging how she greets the public and listens, it hasn't. Some people, she said, have never learned about the niceties and amenities. Barbara Streisand is like this, she added.

"I'm always thinking about writing a book," said Diller, when asked if she planned on writing more. She is thoroughly enjoying what she does now. Despite what she admits is a busy schedule, she has more "open time."

"After three of my own sit-coms and working 17 hours a day, I had no life at all," she said. "It was dark when you went in and it was dark when you went out [of the studio]. It was exhausting work," Diller said.

"You have no idea about the amount of work that goes into that half hour [of sit-com] that you look at. It's the most grueling work I've ever done. The only thing worse than it is coal mining," she said.

"Now, I have a social life. And I have time — for the first time in my life," she remarked.

AFTER THE press conference, Diller was escorted by limousine to Wayne. One of her first stops in Wayne was at the Dairy Queen. She hadn't eaten all day and developed a hearty appetite, according to sources.

She appeared on stage at Rice Auditorium around 8 p.m. Her first 40 minutes of performance featured a monologue as she cracked rapid one-liners about Fang (her mythical husband of 50 years): "He's so lazy. When he was laying on the sofa I laid next to him to see what he would look like standing up."

And her mother-in-law: "She was so heavy they threw salad dressing on the front lawn and told her to go and graze."

About herself: "When I was born, I was so ugly that the doctor slapped everyone but me."

Those were just a few of them. While she rambled on, the audience scattered applause throughout her routine.

AFTER THE monologue, Diller addressed the audience on a more serious level. She told them about the importance of "thinking positive."

PHYLIS DILLER, who performed Thursday evening at Rice Auditorium, took time off from her busy schedule to talk with the media at a press conference in Sioux City.

Goal setting is also important. "Don't let negativity affect them [the goals]," she said. "And it is also important to count your blessings," she added.

Diller spent Thursday night in Wayne, staying at the presidential apartment on the Wayne State College campus.

She was expected to leave the Sioux City airport early Friday morning. However, there was a delay and she had a wait. So she invited Day to talk with her while they waited.

Day said there is a "really a serious side (as well as funny side) to Phyllis Diller."

"We talked about a variety of subjects, such as the new President and his wife and Russian relations. She is very concerned about the environment and pollution," Day said.

"She is easy to talk to, and very congenial too," he added.

They stopped for some donuts and coffee at a Sioux City bakery. The help at the bakery conveniently provided extra napkins to Diller and asked her to autograph them. "She did so without hesitating," Day said.

During their talk, Diller said the Wayne State performance was the fourth site where she had used jokes about the new first lady, Mrs. Bush. She wasn't pleased with the laughter response. "It shows that the first lady is very popular at this point in time. I have a feeling she is not going to be 'fair game' — not for this term anyway," she told Day.

At noon, Diller's whirlwind of activity in the Wayne area had ended. She was off to another destination — a convention in Los Angeles.

Not since the Vienna Choir Boys has a Black and Gold Series been completely sold out.

This will likely be a Black and Gold Series performance that will be remembered for years to come.

What you need to know about your credit history

Your credit history is the single most important factor that a creditor considers when you apply for a loan. Have you ever wondered what is in your file? An individual's credit history file contains information about the person's past and previous credit use. This includes how much is owed to whom and how it is paid. Present and previous employment, residence address, and public record information such as marital status are also recorded.

Many married women have no credit history of their own. Reports have been made to the credit history on file in their husband's name. Often women recently divorced or widowed will find they have no credit rating and may be unable to open a credit account in their name.

YOUR PERSONAL CREDIT file is compiled by a local credit reporting agency, or credit bureau that collects information about you from the public record and from member creditors.

Access to your file is restricted to people or businesses with a legitimate reason for viewing your file. And in most cases, receiving information from a credit file will cost a fee.

You may receive a printout of your credit file by contacting the credit bureau directly. A creditor cannot allow you to see the printout of your file. You can ask a creditor which credit bureau is used so you will know which agency to contact. You may then request a copy of your file for a fee.

People are generally surprised by what is in the file. For example, student loans in good standing are not reported. Not all creditors report information to a credit reporting agency. American Express does not supply payment information. But being one day late with a payment to VISA or Mastercard may be in your file.

ONCE YOU RECEIVE a copy of your file, check the accuracy of the information. If an error is found contact the credit bureau. The burden of proof for information accuracy is on the credit reporting agency and the creditor.

Incorrect information must be removed but some disputes are not simple. If the creditor refuses to remove the inaccuracies, you may file your own 100-word statement of explanation. Try to work out any errors with the creditor involved before adding the statement to your file. Fewer than one percent of consumers have to go as far as adding a statement.

Checking your credit history can be an eye-opening experience. Contact your local credit bureau listed in the yellow pages of your phone book for more information.

According to enrollment reports

4-H numbers on the rise

By Sharon Miller
UNL Dept. of Ag Communications

More than one fourth of Nebraska's youth, ages 9 through 19, participated in Nebraska's 4-H programs last year, according to a 1988 enrollment report from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Cooperative Extension Service.

The number of 4-H members in Nebraska has steadily increased since 1976, said William Caldwell, UNL assistant extension director, 4-H youth development. Enrollment increased by 4,654 or nearly 7 percent in 1988 to 71,985 individuals.

The statistics, based on 1988 4-H membership figures and Nebraska Board of Education-school census reports, show that 28.1 percent of Nebraska's 255,938 young people—ages 9 through 19—were involved in 4-H programs.

This increase in 4-H members can be attributed somewhat to the 4-H leaders' increasing willingness to meet the needs of youth, especially teenagers, Caldwell said.

"We have been working on increasing teen enrollment and since 1980 we've expanded the teens' role in decision making."

Prior to the change, 4-H leaders planned and conducted events. Teens now take a more active role in planning and conducting activities, Caldwell said.

MINORITY involvement also has been increasing with 5,429 minority youths, ages 9 through 19, participating in 4-H programs. This figure represented 7.5 percent of total 4-H membership, Caldwell said.

"We've been encouraging several counties to target minorities," Caldwell said. "We've been saying to those communities to expand and make a concentrated effort for participation from minorities because they can offer a cultural difference which enriches the 4-H program."

Four-H leaders also have been closing the gap between the number of female and male participants. Historically there have been about twice as many girls than boys. In 1988, 46 percent of the state's 4-H'ers were boys and 54 percent were girls, Caldwell said.

Urban areas have more 4-H members than farm or rural areas. Of the total number, 27.7 percent lived on farms, 24 percent lived in towns under 10,000 population, 13.4 percent lived in towns between 10,000 and 50,000 population and 34.9 percent lived in cities over 50,000.

"As people have been moving from rural areas to cities our programs have been making a shift," Caldwell said.

SOME PROGRAMS such as the dog or small pet projects, were designed for urban 4-H'ers. As these programs developed, rural 4-H'ers also enrolled and adapted them to meet their needs, Caldwell said.

Programs with the highest enrollment will continue to increase. "The biggest challenge is in finding enough available volunteer staff but I don't think the 4-H youth enrollment will decrease," Caldwell said. "The program is continuing to improve and is reaching a larger percent of the youth."

Counties with youth enrollment larger than 2,000 are: Douglas, 20,513; Lancaster, 6,835; Adams, 3,626; and Sarpy, 2,551. Enrollment of youth in different regions include: Southeast, 42,328; South Central, 12,898; West Central, 7,217; Northeast, 5,931; and Panhandle, 3,611.

Caldwell said he thinks 4-H enrollment will continue to increase. "The biggest challenge is in finding enough available volunteer staff but I don't think the 4-H youth enrollment will decrease," Caldwell said. "The program is continuing to improve and is reaching a larger percent of the youth."

WAYNE STATE COLLEGE

Northeast Nebraska Update

When Dr. Donald J. Mash became president of Wayne State College last summer, he began asking questions about Wayne State's role in Northeast Nebraska.

Eight months later, after visiting with many area leaders, he's determined that the entire region will benefit if Wayne State becomes a center and catalyst for community and economic development in our primary service area — northeast Nebraska. He also believes the College must become more involved with other activity in northeast Nebraska.

This column is one new method of reaching out to northeast Nebraska. It's our way of providing citizens with information about Wayne State College. Information that will allow the region to become more involved in the College.

Each month, we'll tell readers about services, activities, and programs at Wayne State College. For example you'll read about our center for cultural outreach, micro-computer assistance center, cooperative education programs, computer aided drafting training center, business consulting services, and regional library services — just to name a few of the benefits available to all of northeast Nebraska.

New Column Will Highlight Regional Services Wayne State College Provides...

We're also hoping this column will encourage you to contact the Wayne State office of college relations if you have ideas, suggestions, or concerns about the College. You may reach us at the number address listed at the end of this column.

"Poor Grades Don't Mean Give Up!"

Final exams are over, grades are in, and report cards are out. Are you unhappy with what you see? Is your son or daughter settling for less? If so, look into it.

Grades carry meaning. They represent all of the tests, quizzes, in-class assignments, notebook checks, and discussion that occurred in the preceding term. Use these grades as signals to check on the progress of your son or daughter's education. With report card in hand, sit down with him or her to review it. Don't interrogate—communicate.

Address these points:

1. How was each grade reached? Most faculty give students an outline of how they will be graded, and what is expected of them. Ask about this.

2. Account for the poor grades. Which specific areas brought down the grade? tests, quizzes, homework, absences, etc. Was there a distraction out of school? Is the school contributing to the problem? Have you communicated this?

3. Notice patterns. Failing grades means something is wrong. Are all of the failing or low grades connected in any way? Have similar courses in the past been a problem? If you suspect a pattern, call the school or the Director of Pupil Services—PL 94-142. Your son/daughter is entitled to a review under this law.

4. Don't settle for less. While there is no certain formula for success, there is one for failure...giving in and believing it. Instead, find something positive, check your focus. You may be locked into a negative perspective. Change glasses.

If you have questions regarding grades; what they mean, how they were assigned—call for an appointment. A personal conference is one way to gain the insight to get going again.

Chases

There are three things law enforcement officers fear for every day in his life while on duty as a law officer: (1) having to pull his weapon from his holster while in the line of duty, (2) being involved in high speed vehicle pursuits and (3) not knowing if he will be alive at the end of his shift to return home to his loved ones.

Pursuits create a very high-risk situation involving persons with the potential of being lethal weapons on wheels. Police officers have training in techniques of pursuit driving and defensive driving during pursuits. POLICE OFFICERS do not initiate vehicle pursuits, LAW VIOLATORS initiate pursuits.

People attempt to outrun police vehicles because they have broken a law they don't want to be apprehended for. The motoring public must realize that when they try to outrun the law, not only are they endangering their own lives, the lives of their passengers, other motorists, but also the life of the police officer pursuing them.

Is that traffic infraction that you violated worth risking life, limb and property for by trying to outrun the law?

Next time you think you might want to run from that person behind you with the red lights on, FORGET IT, in most cases you won't outrun the police officer and you can't outrun his radio signal as he is calling other city, county or state police officers to assist him. PULL OVER when being stopped by a law officer. If you have a ticket coming, accept the fact that you broke the law and got caught doing it.

David Nicholson

Answer to chases

About 10 years ago I was involved in a couple of instances in which I "outran" the law enforcement officer. Both times I lost them very shortly and I didn't slow down just because they were out of sight. I was scared and nervous and people with me encouraged me to keep going. I could have had a serious accident with just the thought of his radio chasing me.

What happened by Winside is really sad but there's also the possibility, a different judgement by the officer would have only changed the "Headlines" in the newspapers.

I don't know what the answer to high-speed chases is? Yes a young man has lost his life. But how do you begin to count the lives being saved every day because of officers, such as this, out there Keeping Law and Order as best as possible. Without them it would be utter chaos. And all too often at the expense of the innocent bystander.

To the people involved and their families, you have my deepest sympathy. And to the officer involved, you have my support.

Wakefield downs Laurel despite skeleton crew

By Kevin Peterson
Sports Editor

Friday night's contest between the Laurel Bears and Wakefield Trojans in Wakefield started off like a fourth of July fireworks display as both teams raced up and down the court.

Laurel ended up leading after the first quarter by three points at 20-17. However, the Bears would only score 28 more points through the remainder of the game as it soon turned into a defensive battle. Wakefield went on to post its 12th victory of the season against five losses, 59-48.

The score was tied at intermission at 27 each, and Laurel coach Mark Hrabik felt pretty good considering his main weapon hadn't even scored yet.

"We went into halftime tied up and John Schutte didn't have a point," Hrabik said. "Unfortunately for us, he never did get untracked, hitting only one field goal on the night and two free throws for four points."

Obviously, the defense of Stuart Clark was phenomenal. Clark did a magnificent job of fronting Schutte and not allowing the lob pass into the middle.

Schutte on the other hand, did a good job of playing defense against Clark, allowing Wakefield's center only six points.

This game offensively belonged to one man — Andy McQuistan. McQuistan hit his first six shots of the game and went on to score 23 points. But the damage McQuistan did, was not only in the scoring category. He came up with a season high of 21 rebounds which led Wakefield to a 45-29 rebound advantage on the night.

Chris Loofoe and Matt Tappe offset McQuistan's scoring rampage with 12 and 11 points respectively. Scott Lund and Anthony Brown rounded out the scoring attack for Wakefield with five and two points each.

Troy Twohig was the big play man for Laurel, scoring 16 points. In fact, Twohig was the only Laurel player in double figures. Matt Jonas and Doug Manz each had nine points while Todd Erwin finished with eight. Matt Felber rounded out the attack with a field goal to his credit.

John Schutte was Laurel's top rebounder with 12 caroms. Both teams finished the game with relatively few turnovers with Wakefield losing it eight times and Laurel, 11.

What made the victory even sweeter for the Trojans was the fact that they only suited up 13 guys for both the junior varsity and varsity games.

"We had a tough week in practice," coach Paul Eaton said. "One day we only had nine of 25 players who were able to practice because of illness and Thursday we only had 13 guys in practice."

"We feel real fortunate to win because we feel that Laurel has a real nice team," Eaton said. "Our kids played hard and even though some were still recovering from colds and sickness, they played real well."

"I wasn't displeased with our kids effort," Laurel coach Hrabik said. "I really thought we put forth a positive effort and just came up short."

Winside Juniors preparing

All parents of Winside's junior wrestlers must be present at the first Junior Wrestling Practice, Tuesday, Feb. 28 to sign release forms before the boys can go on the mats.

There will also be a meeting to discuss tournaments. A tentative date of March 11 has been set for the Winside Tournament.

All boys Kindergarten through eighth grade are eligible to participate. Practice will be held each Tuesday and Thursday evening from 6:30-8:00 at the high school starting Tuesday, Feb. 28.

The season will run until April. Leon Koch has taken a temporary leave of absence. Dean Mann, vice president, will complete his term.

Wayne ups record to 8-5 with victory

The Wayne Blue Devils pushed their unbeaten string to five Friday night with a 54-45 victory over Rival West Point.

Wayne, now 8-5 on the year, got a brilliant performance from Rob Sweetland, who scored 19 points with a diamond and one defense surrounding him.

The Blue Devils however, did not play one of their more spectacular games, but it was still a win. "We didn't play very well at all," coach Bob Uhing said. "We were flat in practice all week and we played flat tonight."

The positive thing that Uhing noted was the fact that the guys played through the rough spots. "Willy Gross didn't shoot that well in the first half but he came out and played pretty well in the second half," Uhing said. Gross finished with 15 points and was one of three players in double figures along with Sweetland's 19.

Neil Carnes was the third member to score in double figures with 10 points. Carnes played very well according to Uhing. "Neil came in and hit some big buckets," Uhing said.

Wayne had to battle a little fatigue during the game because of illness suffered throughout the week. "I thought we held our composure throughout the game to the point where we didn't let anything get out of hand," Uhing said.

Wayne's free throw shooting may well have made the difference in the game. The Blue Devils connected on 15 of 18 from the line. The irony of the whole situation is that only two players attempted all 18 of Wayne's free throw attempts.

Rob Sweetland was seven for eight from the line in the fourth quarter alone and finished with an eight of ten performance while Will Gross hit all six of his free throw attempts in the final quarter and was seven of eight on the night.

Doug Larsen, (6) and Jarrod Wood, (4), rounded out the scoring attack for Wayne. In the rebounding category Wayne held a 32-16 advantage. Rob Sweetland led the team in rebounding as well as scoring with nine caroms to his credit. Jarrod Wood finished with six rebounds.

Wayne suffered 18 turnovers in the game while West Point gave it up 16 times.

There were two games preceding the varsity game with Wayne's freshman and junior varsity teams playing as well. The freshman lost in overtime despite Kyle Dahl's 19 points.

The junior varsity however, won by a 60-53 count. Four Blue Devils were in double figures with Brian Lentz leading the way with 15. Craig Dyer followed with 14 while Craig Sharpe poured in 11. Chad Metzler was the fourth member of the elite double digit crew with 10 points.

NEIL CARNES skies over a West Point defender during Wayne's Friday night contest in Wayne. The Blue Devils led the whole game and won their fifth straight contest by a 54-45 count. Neil Carnes did an excellent job of coming off the bench and providing an offensive spark.

Winside teams defeat Hartington

It was a successful night of basketball Thursday night in Winside as both the girls and boys' teams came away with convincing wins over visiting Hartington.

Kristy Miller scored 20 points to lead the Wildcats to a 41-30 victory in the first game, in a contest which girls coach Paul Giesselmann said was the best defensive effort his team has put forth this year.

Winside took a 12-10 lead after one quarter of play and stretched that lead to seven by intermission at 26-19.

"I told the girls before the game started that I really wanted them to give me a great defensive effort the first five minutes of the game so we could set the tempo to our style," Giesselmann said. "They came out and played very intense defense and we accomplished what we set out to do."

Offensively the Lady Wildcats didn't really produce one of their best games, scoring only 41 points. In fact in the third quarter alone, Winside only mustered five points. The positive side of the story is that Hartington only scored four. "In the last four minutes of the third quarter no body scored," Giesselmann said.

Christina Bloomfield was the second high scorer for Winside with nine points. Lisa Janke (6), Jenni Topp (4) and Shawn Janke, (2), rounded out the Wildcat scoring attack.

Winside outrebounded Hartington by a 44-36 count. Kristy Miller and Jenni Topp came away with nine each to lead the team while Christina Bloomfield hauled down eight.

Tinia Hartmann led the team in assists with four. Winside did suffer 20 turnovers on the night which is more than Giesselmann would like to see, but if the results are the same as they were against Hartington, he'll take it.

In the second contest, the Wildcat boys made it a clean sweep of the visitors with a 78-68 victory. Winside raced to a 43-28 advantage at intermission before being outscored in the second half 40-35.

Tim Jacobsen led the winners with 38 points, but the story does not stop there. Hartington player Chad Seim drained 11 3-pointers enroute to a 42 point performance.

"He was hitting from everywhere," coach Randy Geier said of Hartington's Seim. "I thought our kids did a good job of maintaining their composure after Hartington began mounting a comeback."

Both teams scored 17 points in the third quarter before Hartington began shooting the long range field goals every time down the floor to try and make up the deficit of 15 points.

"At one time they had the lead down to eight points," Geier said. "But we started hitting our free throws in the final quarter. In fact in the fourth quarter alone we hit nine of ten free throw attempts."

The Wildcats had three players in double figures led by Jacobsen's 38. Randy Prince scored 19 and Steve Heinemann added 13 in a winning effort.

Darren Wacker, (5), Gary Mundil, (2) and Mark Brugger, (1) rounded out the Wildcat scoring attack. Winside outrebounded the visitors by 14 with 54 caroms to their credit.

Jacobsen also led the team in rebounding with 17 rebounds. Randy Prince followed with 10 caroms and Darren Wacker came away with nine. Winside suffered 13 turnovers while Hartington lost the ball just nine times.

The boys moved their record to 5-6 on the year and the girls improved to 5-7. Winside's boys will be at home this Monday when they host Osmond in first round action of the Lewis & Clark Conference Tournament.

DARREN WACKER flies through the air in an attempt to save the ball for Winside during the Wildcats 10 point victory over Hartington. Incidentally, Hartington's Chad Seim established a state record in hitting 3-point field goals with 11. Seim finished with 42 points.

Wayne defeats Cedar Catholic

The Lady Blue Devils captured their 10th victory of the season Thursday night with a visiting victory over Hartington Cedar Catholic by a 66-48 count.

Wayne led 29-26 at intermission and stretched the lead to seven by the third quarter's end, and then broke it open in the fourth quarter with a 19-8 scoring advantage.

"The game really wasn't decided until late in the fourth quarter," coach Marlene Uhing said. "We played four good quarters of basketball and that's what we have to do all the time if we're going to keep winning."

Wayne incidently, won its fifth consecutive game with its 18 point victory. Cedar Catholic tried to make it interesting with Roni Kollars scoring 22 points in the game, 14 in the first half.

Dana Nelson led a group of three Wayne players in double figures with 15 points. Heidi Reeg poured in 14 and Teresa Ellis added 12 to lead in Wayne's win.

The Blue Devils had a well balanced attack on the evening as Kristy Hansen, (8), Robin Luft, (7), Holly Paige, (6) and Tonya Exleben, (4) rounded out the scoring attack.

Heidi Reeg led the Blue Devils in rebounding as she hauled down eight caroms. Robin Luft recorded six rebounds to offset Reeg. Wayne as a team, was outrebounded 31-28.

The turnover category may have told the story as Wayne suffered only 10 mishaps while the host team lost the ball 22 times.

"We kept changing our presses," Uhing said. "Cedar really did a good job of handling our press until the fourth quarter."

Uhing said that her squad was really patient in the second half on choosing their shots, which enabled them to score some easy buckets.

"Cedar played a triangle and two defense and in the first half I thought we were hurrying our shots," Uhing said. "We were much more patient in the second half and we got some easy buckets in the paint."

Heidi Reeg had six points at half but started driving to the paint more in the second half. Dana Nelson did a good job of controlling the games tempo in the final quarter which enabled Wayne to increase their seven point lead.

"I though Holly and Teresa also played pretty good games," Uhing said. "It was truly a team effort by everyone with everybody getting involved."

Wayne will play O'Neill this Thursday in the first round of the Northeast Nebraska Conference Tournament to be held in South Sioux.

An inaugural address from Nebraska Timeline

Times may have been rough in Nebraska's territorial days, but settlers tried to find humor in adversity. Then as now, politics were sometimes a laughing matter. In 1857, an informal group called the "Squatter Legislature" or "The Third House" parodied territorial government.

Three days after Territorial Governor M. W. Izard delivered his January 5 inaugural address, the "Squatters" convened to hear their leader's version of "the state of the territory."

This group, composed of territorial officers, representatives, former representatives, and Omaha residents, had elected J. Sterling Morton as their "Squatter Governor." "The Third House" joined with Morton in a good laugh about conditions in the new territory.

MORTON PARODIED NOT only the substance of Izard's address, but also lampooned the florid oratorical style of the day. Governor Izard began his remarks by attributing all kinds of economic benefits to the election of President Buchanan, a Democrat.

The squatter governor Morton, himself a Democrat, opined that "The commercial effects of Democratic triumphs is always indicated by a rise in the price of corn whiskey, plug tobacco, flannel shirts, brogan boots, and Bibles."

The real Governor complained of inadequate territorial finances. Morton moaned, "I have often found myself cramped and disabled pecuniarily, by a negation of funds in the treasury. At times, even, to such an extent has it been depleted, that I have for days and days refrained from smoking segars, and also from the use of all beverages ranging higher than five cents per glass. I do not refer to my self-denial egotistically, but solemnly and mournfully, sorrowing at the drinks which I found not when I was athirst."

IZARD ANNOUNCED the necessity of establishing a public school system; Morton recommended the establishment of "a memorial to Governor Slade of Vermont, for an immediate shipment to Nebraska of fifteen hundred school ma'ams, not under sixteen, nor over twenty years of age. Such a measure would not only greatly improve, but by proper culture, greatly increase the rising generation."

Izard praised the progress made on the second territorial capitol building in Omaha; Morton observed, "The Capitol building, during the past year, has progressed upward at an average speed of an inch per day, and at a cost of $87.15 per inch."

Izard commented on the fine condition of the Territorial Library. Morton noted the "excellent state of preservation of the books, owing probably to the fact that they are seldom read."

Governor Izard recommended the establishment of the territorial penitentiary; Morton seconded that motion, and reminded the assembled multitude that, "Such a step, gentlemen, may secure some of you a home in your declining years."

Greetings from the '30's

Here's a message from the brand new year, courtesy the Sarpy County Agriculturalist, January, 1930: "This is A.D. 1930 Broadcasting. Hello everybody out there, Happy New Year. I may be mighty young, but I have a bunch of good ideas I'd like to put across to you folks, right now, when the time is ripe."

"During the short time I've been here, I've checked pretty carefully the record of A.D. 1929, and honestly folks, I had to blush; in fact, my face got as pink as my new born toes. Why, it doesn't seem possible that such a worthless record could be left by anyone."

"Now I'm not much on the 'preachy' stuff, but honestly, aren't you ashamed of the A.D. 1929 record? Look at it! Wasted moments, which mounted into hours, days, and weeks of sheer idleness. Mis-spent efforts, which with a little prudent planning could have been diverted into channels of success. Golden opportunities slipped through careless fingers — opportunities which may never come again. Broken friendships, which by the mere use of a little whole-hearted charity, or a kind word of forgiveness at the right moment, could have stayed Simon-pure. Oh! A hundred things of mischance, and every one of them avoidable."

"Well, let us forget the failures of A.D. 1929 and see if the record of A.D. 1930 can be made to show up better when my successor takes over the 'mike' in '31. Shall we make resolutions? Certainly we shall and will make resolutions — bigger and better ones. There is an old German song which recites, 'Resolutions, yes we make them, not to keep them, but to break them,' but that is only a song and does not recite the fact."

"We make resolutions to keep them and believe me, this year we are going to keep the biggest one of all and here it is: 'I resolve to keep all of the resolutions which I have already made, faithfully and well.'"

"Now my dear folks, if you will just cooperate with me in keeping this record straight, I will certainly appreciate it. I want to stand before the 'mike' on December 31st, 1930, and challenge my successor to equal the record I have made when I was announcing the doings of men under the name and title of 'A.D. 1930.'"
