ASCS news

Melvin Wilson, chairman of the Wayne County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service county committee, said pre-measurement and other land measurement services are available to assure producers that they are in compliance with the 1989 acreage reduction programs.

At the request of the producer and at a nominal fee, ASCS will stake and measure any type of acreage or portions thereof before crop planting time. To be certain that program requirements are met, producers must plant within the stakes that are placed when the land is pre-measured, and report their crop acreages to ASCS after planting.

"Sign-up for this year's farm programs is currently in progress at our office," Wilson said. The programs require participants to reduce their 1989 wheat, corn, sorghum and barley acres by 10 percent; oats and extra long staple cotton by 5 percent; and upland cotton and rice acres by 25 percent.

"To be eligible for price support loans, target prices and other 1989 farm program benefits, producers are required to certify actual planted acreages," said Wilson.

Cronauer tells experiences about Vietnam

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing Editor

American troops facing the struggles of combat and excessive heat during the undeclared Vietnam war came to know the importance of searching out humor in an heated environment surrounded by death and fear.

Adrian Cronauer, the subject of the hit movie "Good Morning, Vietnam" starring Robin Williams, was a disc jockey who filled the air waves with a sprinkling of humor during his one-year tour of duty at the Armed Forces Radio Station in Saigon.

Cronauer, now studying to get a law degree and enter the field of communications-law, lectured at Wayne State College Thursday evening at Ramsey Theatre. He talked about the movie, his personal experiences in Vietnam and the return to the United States, and about the operations of the Armed Forces Radio Station.

The secret to making a movie, he said, is to have a friend who has an agent to get the idea into the right hands.

DURING THE ERA of MASH and WKRP, two popular television sitcoms, Cronauer and a friend brought forward an idea about a Vietnam comedy of some sort. "We never got anywhere with the situation comedy," Cronauer said.

There was consideration of re-doing the script for a television movie of the week. That never materialized. But later, the movie industry bought an option on the script. And after five revisions of the script the movie "Good Morning, Vietnam" became a reality.

The movie was directed by Barry Levinson, the same director of the hit movie "Rain Man". Levinson didn't force actor Robin Williams to stick to the script, which Cronauer said was the right thing to do.

"It was never intended to be a biography. It was entertainment," Cronauer mentioned.

WILLIAMS, he said, is a unique individual. "He is always on. You walk up to him and he starts doing a routine for you," he added.

ADRIAN CRONAUER shows a scene from the movie "Good Morning, Vietnam."

Approximately 45 percent of the movie, he said, was for real.

"Yes, Adrian Cronauer was a disc jockey working for an armed forces radio station in Greece before going to Vietnam. Yes, there was a problem with news censorship. Yes, the show was started with 'Good Morning, Vietnam'. Yes, he did teach English during off-duty time," said Cronauer in comparing the movie to actual life.

Cronauer began his work in the communications field at the age of 12, playing piano for a variety show called "Happy's Party" in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. While in high school he worked at an educational television station in Pittsburgh, working with Fred Rogers on a children's show.

Later he worked at WEAN Radio in Washington, D.C. and in 1962 joined the Air Force. His first assignment was at a U.S. air force base and then he went on to a tour of duty in Greece. He then had a choice of going to Korea or Vietnam for his next assignment. At the time, he didn't think Vietnam would be such a bad idea.

"Three or four weeks later, after my assignment was accepted, the Viet Cong blew up a radio station in Saigon," said Cronauer.

HIS FIRST impression of Vietnam came immediately upon arrival. "As we opened the door of the airplane, a tremendous heat came at us. It was hot!" Cronauer said.

Cronauer explained how the Armed Forces Radio Station reached out to the troops in Vietnam.

"A vast majority of our audience was in the late teen's and early 20's. Few had ever been outside of the United States. Many of them had not been outside of their own state and some had not even ventured as far as their own communities," Cronauer said. "The armed forces had taken them halfway around the world in an environment that was totally alien to them."

"Our mission was to provide an antidote for the cultural shock, to provide as much as possible as to what they were hearing back in the States," he said.

To this, the radio station in Saigon ran commercial spots of public service announcements, did a lot of features and promoted itself, and did fake or bogus contests on the air.

"There was no music censorship. But there was news censorship," Cronauer said. He talked about a bombing incident on a boat restaurant in Saigon. He was near the site of the bombing and saw the horror of death and injury.

WHEN HE tried to announce the story on the air, he was told by higher officials there was no confirmation that the incident happened; that no information was available to see if anyone was hurt or that injuries may have only been superficial. "The final reason they gave was 'suppose we're wrong,'" Cronauer said.

Legitimate reasons for censoring news was when stories were provided about troop movement or even at times the weather forecasts. "The Viet Cong using our own weather broadcasts to plan their own operations. They knew there would be no air cover on cloudy days," Cronauer mentioned.

"If I would have done half of what Robin Williams did in the movie [broadcasting censored items] they would have court-martialed me and I still would be in Leavenworth."

Since Vietnam was a gorilla war, the danger was constant at any location. "There was always that fear in the back of your mind," Cronauer said.

They were always armed at the radio station.

NOT SINCE the movie came out did Cronauer find out how much of a factor the radio station was to the troops. "One man came up to me and said thanks for helping him get through 'Nam.'"

Cronauer said all who served in Vietnam came back with scars—some visible and some invisible.

Most, upon returning, didn't want to talk about Vietnam until several years later, when they came to grips with the situation.

"Some of the scars were not inflicted in Vietnam; but by our own citizens when they came back home. We didn't expect our own to slap us in the face and spit on us," he said.

Vietnam veterans had to greet each other with "welcome home" because nobody else would say it to them. "And that is a damn, filthy, rotten, dirty, crying shame," he said.

Since Cronauer returned from his tour in Vietnam, he served as a news anchor for a television station, was a management consultant, managed a radio station, established an advertising agency, did some free-lance commercial broadcasting, taught broadcasting, got a master's degree in media studies and in September of 1986, began studying for a law degree.

THERE ARE plans in the works, he said, for a movie sequel to "Good Morning, Vietnam" called "Good Morning, Chicago."

And will there ever be another Vietnam-type conflict?

Cronauer doesn't anticipate another Vietnam. "But if there is another, then I hope that we go in intending to win — or we don't go in at all."

Schnitzler breaks Nebraska college scoring mark

Special to the Wayne Herald

Wayne State's Linda Schnitzler earned a place in Nebraska women's basketball history Friday night when she became the all-time women's collegiate scoring leader.

Her 36 points against Pittsburg State gave her 2,158 career points, surpassing the 2,131 Maurice Ivy scored during her playing days at the University of Nebraska.

"The most amazing thing about the record, in my mind, is that Linda is such a complete player. She's outstanding in so many areas and is such an unselfish player," said Liz O'Brien, Wayne State head basketball coach.

"Often she'll pass up a lot of good shots to get the ball to a teammate who has an even better shot," she said.

Schnitzler had previously set three Wayne State scoring marks. The first to fall was Connie Kunzman's women's scoring record of 1,890 points. That fell on Jan. 28 when the senior guard scored 25 points against Ft. Hays State.

The next record to fall, was Wayne State's all-time scoring mark of 1,942 held by Grady Hansen. Schnitzler broke that mark on the road against Pittsburg State on Feb. 4.

The final mark she Wayne State mark she holds is the 2,000 point club. She is the lone basketball player in Wayne State athletic history to reach that mark.

"I THINK the nice thing about Linda breaking the mark is that she's the type of person any coach would want to see achieve success," said former women's coach Lenny Klaver.

"She's a good student, a hard worker and just a super person," said Klaver.

Klaver recruited Schnitzler to Wayne State and reflected on the changes he's seen the last four years.

"Linda knew she wanted to play college basketball when she was being recruited. We were building our program at the time and she knew she would have the opportunity to make a difference right away," he said.

"But she didn't settle for that. She worked hard every year to improve the aspects of her game that needed work. As a result, she became a better defensive player and a better shooter. It's nice to see a player who works hard reap the benefits," said Klaver.

Schnitzler came to Wayne State with lofty high school credentials, having earned all-state honors and playing on two state championship teams for her father at Battle Creek.

She immediately gave notice she was going to have an impact on the Wayne State Lady Wildcat basketball program, leading the team in scoring during her freshman year.

THREE YEARS later she's among the nation's top 10 scorers in the NAIA and leads the NCAA Division II in scoring at 25 points a game.

"I didn't really come here to set any records," said Schnitzler. "I just knew I wanted to play basketball. The first time I really did any thinking about the scoring record was this summer and then someone figured out that I would have to average about 25 points a game."

"At first I thought there was no way I could do it. But I just worked hard and tried to improve and thought I could do my best," Schnitzler said.

"The record is a very significant thing for Linda and for Wayne State College," said Wayne State Athletic Director Pete Chapman. "It's significant in that history was made."

"Her accomplishments are right there in black and white and after her career is over, she has every right to be extremely proud of it."

"Wayne State College may never again see an athlete of her caliber. She's truly one of those rare athletes and I'm very proud we as an institution were able to help her reach her goals," Chapman said.

With at least two games remaining in the 1988-89 season, Schnitzler now holds eight school records and is listed in the top three of three others.

"Week in and week out I figure out her totals and it never really hit me how extraordinary her accomplishments were until all-American nominations were completed," said Jean Berger, sports information director at Wayne State.

"When you look at what she does game-by-game all season long and compare that to what the national leaders are doing — the scoring mark becomes even more remarkable," said Berger.

"Linda is scoring 25 points a game when she's being double-teamed and shooting from 15-18 feet out. In a way, it almost seems harder to get the points the way she does."

"I know someday her teammates will realize what an honor it was to play basketball with her. I know I'll always remember her," Berger said.

On accident related charges

Winside man found guilty, faces sentencing in March

A Winside man, involved in a one-vehicle accident in January that resulted in the death of a passenger who was riding in the vehicle, was found guilty in county court on a count of motor vehicle homicide and a count of operating a motor vehicle to avoid arrest.

Jeff Thies, age 22, appeared for arraignment before County Judge Stephen P. Finn last Thursday at the Wayne County Courthouse. Finn found Thies guilty of both counts. Thies was represented at the arraignment by Attorney Ron Albin of Norfolk. He pleaded "no contest" to the count of motor vehicle homicide and pleaded guilty to the count of operating a motor vehicle to avoid arrest.

A pre-sentencing investigation was ordered, to be conducted by the District Two Probation Office. The date for sentencing has been set for Thursday, March 23.

Steve Bentley of Norfolk was killed on Jan. 22 after he was thrown from a pickup driven by Thies. The pickup was being pursued by a Wayne County deputy sheriff at the time of the accident.

The driver of the vehicle—lost control on a country road curve 1 3/4 miles west of Winside. Bentley and another passenger, Dan Sholes of Norfolk, were thrown from the vehicle when it rolled into the ditch.

Theatre event scheduled

It will include seminars specifically designed for community theatre participants; a business meeting for organization members, and the main event — productions from several community theatres competing for the title of the state's best.

The winning production from Festival '89 will go on to the regional competition in Springfield, Missouri.

Anyone interested in community theatre around the state is invited to attend and any Nebraska community theatre can enter a production in the festival.

Cost for the festival is $55, which includes two-year dues to the association of community theatres plus admission to two workshops and all the productions.

Any individual or theatre interested in attending the festival is asked to contact publicity chairman Kevin Colbert at 402/864-7111 for further information.

All area women are invited to attend the service on Friday, March 3. Registration will begin at 1:30 p.m., followed with the service at 2.

This year's service, entitled "Jesus, Teach Us to Pray," was written by seven Christian women in Burma and then translated into hundreds of languages and dialects.

A "Life in Burma" also will be given.

WORLD DAY OF Prayer is an annual ecumenical worship event sponsored by Church Women United, the ecumenical movement that brings Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox women together into one Christian community of prayer, advocacy and service.

Services are held throughout the world to bring Christian women together to work for peace and unity.

This year's service brings to consciousness the struggles of the people of Burma. It also invites a deeper understanding of the Lord's Prayer, stressing the power of intercessory prayer and challenging those who pray to listen and respond to those in need.

WORLD DAY OF Prayer offerings make possible, in part, the mission of Church Women United including the Intercontinental Grants for Mission program that funds national and international self-development and teaching projects for women, as well as community services and disaster relief at home and abroad.

Wedding of the Year

Puttin' up with Pete

by Kevin Peterson

Now let's switch gears to the Wayne wrestling program and their mentor John Murtaugh. By the way, before we get started we need to congratulate John and his wife Mary on their newest arrival in the family, born early enough of course for John to attend the state wrestling meet.

Back to business. There is no way anyone can say enough to justify what Murtaugh has meant to the Wayne wrestling program. He has turned it around and Wayne is quickly becoming one of the most respected teams around.

After not qualifying anyone for state in 1987, Wayne responded last season by qualifying four. The mark of a good team is how they always are looking to improve. This season the Blue Devils earned runner-up honors to Elkhorn in the district wrestling meet. Elkhorn you may recall, ran away with the state wrestling title this year in Class B.

Since this column is supposedly dedicated to the qualifiers of state I should stick to my guns. However, as Murtaugh pointed out all year long about his Blue Devils, "This is a total team effort." Grapplers like Eric Cole, Chris Janke, Greg DeNaeyer, Matt Bruggeman, Shane Geiger and Trevor Wehrer were always contributing to the Blue Devil point totals, but all fell short in their bids to attend state.

I've got to admit that sometimes it doesn't seem fair that districts seem like they have the strongest teams together. For instance, Wayne traveled to Elkhorn's district this year like always. O'Neill on the other hand traveled to another district.

Everyone knows that Wayne's team was better than O'Neill this season. After all, they proved that by demolishing them 48-15 during the season. At any rate, O'Neill ended up winning their district and qualifying seven grapplers for state. Several of those grapplers were defeated by Wayne wrestlers who didn't qualify for state.

For instance, it just so happens that Wayne's 119 lb. Chris Janke is one of my favorite wrestlers to watch. Janke defeated O'Neill's 119 lb. Brent Ertz several times throughout the year, yet Ertz, (because he was in an easier district), qualified for state and Janke didn't. Justice? I hardly think so!

Now to the state tournament. I felt that the Blue Devils did a great job of representing Wayne. Hey, when five of your wrestlers lose to the eventual state champion, you know you're on the right track.

Of course at 103 lbs., Mike DeNaeyer lost to the state champ in Steve Frank of Valentine. DeNaeyer wrestled a fine match in the finals, but lost 6-5 as he just missed on his reversal attempt with a few seconds remaining. At 140 lbs., Chris Corbit lost his first round match to Pat Thornbrugh of Crete, who eventually went on to capture state and an unblemished record on the season.

Jason Cole lost his 160 lb. semi-final match to Randy Cullers of Ord. Cullers was thought by many to be one of the strongest wrestlers in the whole state, went on to defeat Central City's Cy Whitebull for the state title. Jason Ehrhardt lost his first round match to Lexington's Mike Wengert. Wengert then went on to win the state championship in the 171 lb. division.

Finally, Chris Lutt at 189 lbs., lost his quarterfinal match to Brian Duran of Nebraska City. Duran went undefeated last season at 189 lbs., and went on to win this year's state championship with another undefeated season at 30-0. The combined record of the five guys who defeated Wayne wrestlers and went on to win state titles in their respective weight classes was 152-4.

Tom Etter lost his first round match to Jason McNair of Imperial, but Etter wrestled well throughout the season and was one of Wayne's most consistent point getters.

Incidentally, Chris Lutt suffered a groin injury in one of his wrestle backs and according to Murtaugh wrestled with a lot of pain in his match for fifth and sixth place. "It was one of the guttiest performances I've ever seen," Murtaugh said. Lutt of course went on to defeat Holdrege's Troy Melroy by a 3-0 count. Melroy went into the state tournament with a 27-0 record.

Jason Cole may have had the biggest success story of any Wayne wrestler this season. Cole has done a lot to the wrestling program at Wayne according to Murtaugh. "Jason had arthroscopic knee surgery on December 23 and it took a lot of courage and determination for him to make a comeback and go all the way to state," Murtaugh said.

But that is the epitomy of Wayne wrestling. Murtaugh has instilled a winning spirit in the wrestlers to where they believe they can succeed with hard work and sweat. I must also mention that Murtaugh gets some great assistance from Lonnie Ehrhardt and Aaron Schuett. The wrestling knowledge of both these gentlemen helps Murtaugh a great deal and both deserve a lot of credit as well for Wayne's turn-around.

With the spirit that these coaches instill in their young wrestlers, Wayne may be a contender every year and soon they may be winning championships the old fashioned way.....by earning them!

Wayne girls upend top seed

The Wayne girls basketball team showed its mental toughness against Columbus Scotus Wednesday night, which enabled them to defeat the top seeded team in the B-5 district tournament held at Northeast Community College in Norfolk, 41-39.

Scotus jumped out to a 9-5 lead on the Blue Devils and increased their lead to five by intermission on the wings of 9-8 advantage in the second quarter, 18-13.

Whatever pep talk Uhing gave at half must have worked because the Blue Devils looked like a new team when the second half started. "I thought we did a much better job of blocking out on the boards in the second half," Uhing said. "Scotus got eight offensive boards in the first half and we cut that number in half in the second half."

Dana Nelson had all of Wayne's points in the first quarter but Teresa Ellis picked up some of the slack in the second period enabling Wayne to stay within striking distance.

Wayne out-scored Scotus 11-6 in the third quarter to knot the game at 24 with eight minutes remaining. The fourth quarter is when Wayne's Dana Nelson took control.

She netted 10 of Wayne's 17 fourth quarter points leading the Blue Devils to a berth in the district finals. She connected on 18 points for the contest including three 3-pointers.

The controversial part of the game came with seven seconds remaining in regulation. Scotus had the ball and one of the players missed her shot trailing by four points. All of a sudden the clock stopped while Scotus got their own rebound. The Scotus player kept playing and hit the 15-foot jumper to close the gap to three.

Finally the referee blew the whistle to stop play. After much deliberation they put five seconds on the clock and Wayne took the ball out of bounds. Dana Nelson threw it into Teresa Ellis who in turn threw it back to Dana who ran out the clock.

As mentioned earlier, Nelson finished with 18 point while ellis netted 10. Kristy Hansen had a fine outing with eight points and Heidi Reeg netted three but was a rebounding machine for Wayne.

Devils end season

The Lady Blue Devils of Wayne ended their basketball season Thursday night in the finals of the B-5 district basketball tournament held at Northeast Community College in Norfolk, to Columbus Lakeview, 48-35.

For Wayne it was a Jekyll and Hyde showing. The Blue Devils may have played the best first half of basketball all season. Unfortunately, they couldn't put four of those quarters together and wound up losing to the Vikings of Columbus Lakeview, the second seeded team in the tournament.

"It was just a case where our shots just wouldn't fall," coach Marlene Uhing said. "We had plenty of shots in the second half but we just couldn't connect."

"This was the first time in Blue Devil history that a Wayne girls team has made it to the finals of districts in basketball," Uhing said. "It was a very physical game which played right into the hands of Lakeview who relies on physical strength with all of their height.

Lakeview outscored the Blue Devils 16-2 in the third quarter and 18-9 in the fourth quarter to account for the final margin of victory. In actuality, Wayne was never in the game during the second half.

Heidi Reeg played another fine game for Wayne. After hauling down 14 rebounds against Scotus, she rebounded against Lakeview for 15 caroms including eight offensive boards to help Wayne to a rebounding advantage over a much taller Lakeview squad, 36-30.

Reeg led the Blue Devils in scoring, with 12 points. Teresa Ellis netted seven, (all in the second quarter) and Nelson poured in six, (also all in the second period.) Kristy Hansen netted five points while Holly Paige and Tonya Erleben rounded out the attack with three and two points.

DANA NELSON fires up a short jumper during Wayne's win over Columbus Scotus.

Winside's upset bid falls short

Randy Geier's Winside Wildcats played a near perfect game Thursday night against Coleridge in the sub-district finals held in Wakefield. The only problem is Coleridge didn't play to badly either as they witnessed Tim Jacobsen's desperation 3-point shot at the buzzer fall harmlessly to the floor, which secured a slim 59-57 Coleridge victory and earned them the right to play Wynot for a state berth on Monday night.

Coleridge hit a shot with four seconds left in regulation. Winside called timeout to set up a play, but they had to go the whole distance of the court to get their shot off in just four seconds. "We got a pik set up for Tim," Geier said. "But in actuality it was a desperation 3-point attempt and it drew iron."

Although it was heart breaking loss for the Wildcats as it ended the Tim Jacobsen era, Geier found consolation in the fact that they played a good ball game. "It would have been hard to take if we played a game like we did against Beemer and lost by just a few points," Geier said. "I felt good about the way the kids played." Winside's record was right at .500 on the year, 10-10.

Coleridge came out gunning from the on-set hitting ten of their first eleven shots from the field and nine of ten in the first period. "We really felt good about only being down four points after the first quarter," Geier said. "Coleridge hit all but one of their shots in the first quarter and we were only behind 19-15."

The second quarter belonged to Winside as the Wildcats scored 20 points in the period compared to Coleridge's 12, and at halftime the score was in Winside's favor at 35-31.

Coleridge managed to edge Winside by four points in the third quarter aided by Winside's 2 1/2 minute surge in the period where they didn't score. "We were up 42-37 in the third quarter before we hit our little slump," Geier said. "By the end of the quarter Coleridge had caught up and we were knotted going into the final quarter." Both teams literally traded field goals in the final eight minutes with Coleridge gaining the edge with the field goal in the final seconds.

Tim Jacobsen scored 19 points in his final outing as a Winside Wildcat. Randy Prince also chipped in 19 in a game Geier said he played very well in. Steve Heinemann, Darren Wacker and Gary Mundil also played their final games as Wildcats, scoring nine, eight and two points respectively.

"Looking back on the game we out-rebounded them 31-27 and we shot 48 percent from the field and 72 percent from the free throw line on 13 of 18 shooting," Geier said. "You can see that we were right in the game the whole way."

Tim Jacobsen led all rebounders with 11 caroms to his credit. Steve Heinemann and Darren Wacker also hauled down five rebounds apiece while Randy Prince managed six bounds. Gary Mundil led the team in assists, dishing out four.

Winside's only negative stat came on giving the ball away just three more times than Coleridge, in a very clean handled game with a 12-9 turnover margin.

Mike Schnoor led Coleridge with 15 points while two others also managed to hit double figures including John Heithold's 14 and Tony Gray's 12. "Coleridge has only lost four games this season," Geier said. "We are the only Class D school to beat them. Ponca, Randolph and Laurel are the other three schools to defeat them and they are all Class C schools."

Geier also noted that he was extremely pleased with the crowd support his Wildcats received by the Winside faithful. "We had a great crowd throughout sub-districts and all year for that matter," Geier said. "I want to thank all of them publicly for their support."

As you already know, the 1989 version of the Nebraska State Wrestling Tournament is history. What remains is the memories that this year's annual event captured, including the efforts of our own area schools, Wayne and Winside. Let's begin by delving into the Winside wrestling system.

Behind every successful wrestling program lies a success story in the coach. Winside's mentor Paul Sok is no exception. Sok has continually kept the town of Winside on the map with his coaching abilities on the mat. Although Winside's program looked as though it would be down at the beginning of the year with no seniors on the team, Sok made do with what he had.

Of course all he had was Chad Carlson, a fifth place finisher in state last season, and Max Kant, state runner-up of a year ago at 135lbs., to Sargent's Donny Seifried. Winside's younger wrestlers practiced hard all season and their efforts showed when four grapplers qualified for the state tournament.

Jason Krueger, a 171 lb. freshman entered the state tournament with a 17-17 record and 189 lb. sophomore Brian Thompson roamed into the capital city with a 20-7 mark. Carlson and Kant of course found their way back to Lincoln as sophomore and junior respectively. Carlson entered the tournament with a 27-1 mark and a number one state ranking. Kant meanwhile, finished the regular season with a mark of 26-2 and also a number one ranking in the Omaha World Herald ratings.

Carlson basically breezed to his first round win with a 13-1 decisioning of Darin Trampe of Amherst. Kant meanwhile, nearly found himself watching the rest of the state tournament from the bleachers.

Kant faced Sargent's Joe McDaniel and let me tell you, knowing how good of a wrestler Max is, I seriously thought he was in trouble. McDaniel got Kant down early with a reversal and although Max wasn't in serious jeopardy at that point, his next move nearly cost him the match.

Kant got caught by the Sargent wrestler and before you knew it, he was on his back and the referee was looking to pound the mat with his pin signal. Kant struggled but managed to slide out of bounds and McDaniel looked up to see a 7-2 advantage staring him in the face.

Kant managed to slip a look at Sok and he asked, "What's wrong?" Sok just managed to look him right in the eye and said, "You have to start wrestling." And that is exactly what he did. Kant overtook McDaniel in the third period with a 10-7 decision. The best wrestler did win the match, but Kant knew right then that it was not going to be a cake walk in the 135 lb. category.

The semi's was another story. Carlson was upset by Adam Hall of Hemingford, 4-2. Kant had another match, somewhat like his first match. Jim Wiese of Mullen had Max down 3-1 late in the match, but with four seconds remaining in regulation Max recorded a reversal to knot the score at three, and send the match into overtime.

In overtime Max went on to defeat Wiese by an 8-6 margin, and earn a return berth in the finals. Carlson went on to earn fourth place honors even though he was defeated for third place by Humboldt's Shane Keeton, the same Keeton he had defeated in the quarterfinals.

Kant really didn't have much trouble in his finals match against Josh Arstingstall of Osh Kosh. Kant virtually toyed with Arstingstall enroute to a 10-2 victory.

"I was really impressed with the way Max wrestled in the finals," Sok said. "That was his best wrestling in Lincoln in two years. He wrestled a very fluid match." On the other hand, Sok felt that Carlson was a little outmanned in the semi-finals. "I think it was just a lack of strength," Sok said. "He simply got out-gunned on his takedowns."

Sok will have the pleasure of watching these two wrestlers again next season and for Chad, the next two seasons. "I think Max kind of got a monkey off his back this year," Sok said. "I think next year he will be able to open up more on the mat and be more relaxed."

Wakefield advances

Wakefield survived a fourth quarter scare by Emerson-Hubbard Thursday night to win in double overtime, 52-49, in the sub-district finals held in Ponca. Wakefield will now face Walthill at Wayne High School on Monday night at 7:30 p.m., with the winner earning a berth in the annual state basketball tournament to be held in Lincoln.

"I think our kids played the hardest they have all season," coach Paul Eaton said. "We played some great defense against Emerson all game long. In fact, after the third quarter they only had 25 points."

Emerson jumped out to a 12-9 lead after one quarter of play but Wakefield rebounded in the second quarter, out-scoring Emerson 14-4 to take a seven point lead into intermission at 23-17. Wakefield increased their lead to 10 in the third quarter before Emerson's Corey Fuchser took control in the fourth quarter.

Fuchser scored 14 fourth quarter points and Emerson out-scored Wakefield 16-6 during the final eight minutes to send the game into overtime. In the first overtime both teams virtually traded points with two buckets each. The positive thing for Wakefield was when Fuchser fouled out after the first overtime.

With the game tied at 47 heading into the second three minute overtime, Wakefield managed to hold Emerson to two points while scoring five of their own to clinch the victory. Fuchser did end the contest as the game's leading scorer with 29 points. In Wakefield's last meeting with Emerson, Fuchser unleashed his arsenal for 36 tallies.

"Fuchser is just a great athlete," Eaton said. "He just took matters into his own hands in the fourth quarter hitting three 3-pointers and scoring 14 of Emerson's 16 points."

Andy McQuistan led the Trojans in scoring with 17 points. Mark Johnson was also in double figures with 12 while Tony Krusemark netted nine and Matt Tappe added eight. Scott Lund and Chris Loofe rounded out the attack with four and two points each.

"We really didn't shoot that well," Eaton said. "We hit 40 percent of our shots from the field but we only hit 50 percent of our free throws." Eaton noted that Tony Krusemark had a very productive sub-district. "Tony scored nine points against Emerson and had 17 against Allen on Tuesday night," Eaton said. "He's really been playing hard."

Wakefield, 16-7, got some more good news following the game. Stuart Clark, who has been absent for a while with a broken ankle, will suit up for Monday's game with Walthill.

In Tuesday's game with Allen, Wakefield breezed to a 63-46 victory. Tony Krusemark and Andy McQuistan had 17 points each while Mark Johnson netted 12. Scott Lund and Matt Tappe also had fine outings with eight and seven respectively.

Opinion Back

A popular feature finding its way back into the pages of The Wayne Herald is the Opinion or editorial section

As frequently as possible in Monday's newspaper Managing Editor Chuck Hackenmiller will offer his insights (ideas, suggestions) concerning a situation of widespread local interest. His popular column — usually more personal in nature than the editorial — also will appear periodically in this section.

Letters-to-the-editor from readers also will be published in this section. By staff members of the newspaper offering their opinions in writing, we hope readers, too, will respond with how they feel about a particular issue. Names of letterwriters will continue to be published — as will be the names of Wayne Herald staff members who write commentaries. No names will be withheld.

A fourth element of the Opinion section will include information submitted by various government entities. Like letters-to-the-editor, there will be no charge to city governments, school districts and county government for using this space. We hope this free publicity will encourage subdivisions to elaborate on previous newspaper coverage or discuss a topic not being reported publicly.

Public dialogue on issues better serves everyone involved. If important discussion is restricted to private coffee clutches or closed door meetings, an issue tends to become distorted by those not involved in the particular discussion. Such a scenario does not serve the public.

But when ideas are shared, more feedback is gained and a quicker solution is found.

Your opinions are solicited for the good of the order.

Viewpoint

Pleasant relief

It is a comfort to see that the city's water rates for residential water users in Wayne will be on the decline. Each resident who uses water should see an approximate 20 percent reduction in net rates, regardless of the gallon table of usage they would fall under in accordance with the city's water usage brackets.

Unfortunately, though, is that commercial users of water cannot also experience some sort of break in what they pay for water. Perhaps that will come later.

Separating the water rates for winter and summer months is a positive approach.

And the establishment of a water rate schedule for those who irrigate and do heavy lawn watering should help in bringing some of the green back on to the residential landscapes. We hope this plan will be worthy of city council approval in the near future.

Water rates were increased initially for two basic reasons — one to offset what had been lost by the water system in past years by not raising water rates gradually; and the remaining increase in revenue going towards offsetting the cost of developing the new water supply field and water storage.

Because of this, the increase made Wayne's water rates one of the highest when compared to communities of similar population size. It still is high.

The city fiscal agent feels comfortable with this rate reduction, knowing that the added rate increase was initially necessary to apply to the $1.63 million construction project cost and that the balance of the construction cost was to be paid for by revenue bonds issued by the city of Wayne.

Eventually these bonds will be retired or paid off through the revenues collected from the water system. And city officials have written to the public, when the water rate increase was first proposed, that when the bonds have been paid off the rates will be adjusted to reflect the needs of the system at that time.

They should be reduced to the level required to operate the system on a break-even basis.

This is definitely something to look forward to.

Television violence grows

By Donald V. Zeiss
Wayne High Principal

PRIME TIME FOR VIOLENCE
The most popular hour for family TV viewing—from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.—is filled with the most violence.

That is the finding of a recent study at the University of Pennsylvania, which looked at the content of prime-time television shows.

What's worse, kids tend to remember the physical action on TV—particularly the violent action—but not the explanation of the action.

Thus youngsters in the early grades fail to understand most of the TV scenes recounting inner feelings, emotions and motives. But their play becomes more aggressive after watching violent programs.

In fact, "the greater the level of exposure to television violence, the more the children were willing to use violence, to suggest it as a solution to conflict and to perceive it as effective," Michigan State University researchers have found.

And children under age eight are especially vulnerable to what they see on television, according to University of Illinois pediatrics professor Leonard Eron.

"Up to that age, their amount of daily viewing continually increases and their belief in television peaks about then," Eron explains.

He says the government should adopt regulations to reduce the portrayal of violence and sex on TV.

MEANWHILE, parents may wish to impose their own limits on the TV viewing habits of their children.

One mother recently imposed a no-television rule for weekdays. She also set a good example by obeying her own rule.

So far, Judy Gaylin reports, the results have been good. Her children find they have a lot of extra time to play and do homework, and to read (which they now love).

How did Gaylin do it? She steered the kids to other activities, from baking cookies together, to painting, to visiting friends. And she started nightly "read aloud" sessions.

Her advice to other parents who might wish to follow the same path was printed in Parents magazine (September 1987):

"Do it sooner rather than later," because "the older the child, the fewer the resources he may have developed for filling his time..." Thus, parents of older kids may need to work harder to think up activities to keep their children busy.

Gaylin admits, however, she is "not that crazy" as to try to keep her two-year-old from watching "Sesame Street" or "Mister Rogers."

'Hacken' Away

by Chuck Hackenmiller

No slowing down for these guys

I said I would never play league basketball again.

That was about two years ago, when I was in the Wayne "B" City Recreation Basketball League category and the competition was fierce. This league took in those under 35 years old — younger men who weren't about to admit that they had lost their youth and wanted to prove their capabilities to the younger generation.

I had no gripes with that. Competition can be good to the soul. But there were some people who had no rhyme or reason to be fiddling around with the talents and skills of these competitive individuals. I was one who "played my age."

The "B" leaguers played on Tuesday night — which is certainly a terrible night for an editor who strives to cover governmental board meetings that same evening. I am still befuddled as to the reasons why everyone seems to choose Tuesday as their governmental meeting night. But that might make another column issue sometime in the future.

So a combination of talent absence and time woes greatly contributed to my decision in discontinuing playing league basketball.

Until this year, I joined the "C" recreation league for those that are 35 years or older. This league is on Wednesday night, when activities are at a minimum, so I felt comfortable with the time element.

But I was quickly brought back to reality. Even those over 40 years old can play and shoot basketball like people in their 20's could ever do.

This is definitely not the senior citizens circuit league, like some people have mentioned in passing. These crazy people like to fast break, shoot from the three point line and dive after basketballs as if there is no tomorrow.

Just watching them can tire a person out. And because of my bleak physical condition, I watch from the sidelines a lot!

And sometimes they can get so wrapped up in a game that they get called for technicals. It happens.

Who of the brave are among the 10 people racing up and down the basketball court on Wednesday nights?

Picture County Attorney Bob Ens yelling "I object your honor" to a referee as he is whistled for a reaching foul; Wayne County Public Power Manager Sam Schroeder "electrifying" the crowd; Dentist Wayne Wessel "drilling" home a field goal; Bank Official Pat Gross "banking" in a break-away layup; Wayne High and Wayne Elementary Principals Don Zeiss and Dave Lutt playing a "disciplined" offense; Insurance Agents Bill Woehler and Marty Summerfield serving as "premium" players.

Or Seed Dealers John Dorcey and Gene Casey "planting their roots" and making bucket after bucket from the three point line; Fireman Ron Wriedt "burning the nets" from outside; Carpenter Don Sherman "sawing away" at a lead; Sportsman Darrell Doescher "camping" under the rim for a rebound; Hair Stylist Ted Ellis "buzzing" around his defender; and Business Instructor Jack Indieke "accounting" for every trip to the free throw line.

So it isn't a typical league when these "C" leaguers put forth their best efforts on the basketball courts.

But the group sure is fun to watch. And fun to be a part of, too.

Broadcast of legislative hearing

A live satellite hook-up linking Lincoln, Omaha and Sidney will allow Nebraska residents to testify before a special Legislative Committee comprised of most of the chairs of the Unicameral's Standing and Select Committees when "Capitol View Special Edition" airs Wednesday, March 1, at 8 p.m. on the statewide Nebraska ETV network.

The two-hour program—moderated by Nebraska ETV producer/reporter Hubert Brown—will focus on how Nebraska can achieve property tax relief and the numerous ramifications this could have on Nebraska schools and local governments. The speaker of the Legislature, Bill Barrett of Lexington, will conduct the hearing itself.

This is a pilot project resulting from a recommendation made in the Nebraska Legislature's New Horizon's for Nebraska study. The recommendation suggests using telecommunications technology to offer citizens living in Greater Nebraska a direct means to participate in public hearings held in the State Capitol. Senator Barrett is the chair of the New Horizon's project.

From St. Luke's Burn Center

Rescue squad receives burn supplies

The Wayne Rescue Squad recently received a "ready-to-use" burn package kit from St. Luke's Regional Medical Center's Burn Trauma Unit which will enable emergency workers to provide on-site care to burn victims.

The kits include the basic equipment to prepare a burn victim for immediate transfer to St. Luke's Burn Trauma Unit, including:

- A thermal drape to keep the patient warm during transport;
- Burn diagrams to enable the emergency workers to determine the exact percentage of the victim's burn;
- A patient information assessment chart so emergency medical technicians can record the victim's vital signs and transmit them to the hospital by radio;

- Plastic oral airways to help maintain the victim's airway, if needed;

- A reference on how to treat cold injuries and how to care for frostbite;

- Bandage scissors to help with removal of clothing.

"Most of the area rescue squads are run by local volunteers and we don't feel they should have to foot the costs for these extra supplies should a burn accident occur in their town," said Nancy McGuire, a registered nurse in St. Luke's Burn Trauma Unit.

Supplies used during a burn accident will be refilled when the patient is brought in to St. Luke's Burn-Trauma Unit.
