WSC summer enrollment rises

Summer enrollment at Wayne State College increased 12.2 percent this year, according to Dr. Donald W. Whisenhunt, provost and vice president for academic affairs.

Whisenhunt says college officials also expect to see a significant increase in fall enrollment when figures are released later this month.

"We believe this is a reflection of the renewed confidence northeast Nebraska has in Wayne State College," Whisenhunt said. "It's an indication that our region is responding to our commitment to serve northeast Nebraska."

The greatest increase in enrollment occurred in Wayne State's Extended Campus locations, where numbers were up 18 percent to 671 students compared to 550 in 1988.

The college's primary off-campus locations are in South Sioux City and Norfolk. Other locations are scattered throughout northeast Nebraska.

Overall, summer enrollment increased from 2,131 students in 1988 to 2,428 students this summer.

Well Child Clinic planned in Wayne

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

Providence Medical Center in Wayne will be hosting a Well Child Clinic program once a month for a full year, starting in September.

The program is sponsored by the Goldenrod Hills Community Action Agency who received a grant in July to start the clinic in Wayne. This clinic, to be located in the Student Health room at the hospital, will feature childhood immunization programs similar to what is being done monthly in Wisner and Laurel. These immunizations are available to all children in Nebraska, up to age 19, in Wayne, Dixon and Cedar Counties.

In addition the clinic will also provide complete physicals for children who fall under the low income guidelines.

Gene Dunklau of Wayne, who is coordinating the clinic program for Goldenrod Hills, said the clinic will operate once a month from September of this year to the end of August, 1990. It will take place the third Thursday of the month in the afternoon from 1:30 to 3:30.

Parents within the three-county area are encouraged to bring just their own children to the Well Child Clinic, if possible, so that the numbers can be better controlled.

Dunklau said the immunization clinics in Laurel and Wisner will continue to operate.

SHE SAID the matching grant amount provided for the clinic program in Wayne was $12,317.08. The state Department of Health through its discretionary funds will provide $7,520 of that amount. The remaining amount will be matched by approximately $1,733 in cash donations and the rest through the in-kind services provided by area health officials and agencies participating in the clinic program.

The grant provides funding for two doctors and other medical staff to work at the clinic site, for lab work and testing and for the use of staff members to do the screening during the day of the clinic.

As the program is set up now, two nurses from Laurel (Susan Kvols and Janeen Berg) who work with the immunization clinic in Laurel will also assist in the Wayne program. Mary Rohde, ESU school nurse, will also assist in the clinic. The Wayne County Women of Today will assist in the handling of the paperwork and the Wayne State College home economics department will become involved with the control of the children who visit the clinic.

Home Health Care from Wayne and the surrounding area will provide the home visit follow-ups to families that have children who were given the complete physical and were referred to other physicians or specialists for further testing.

Drs. Ben Martin and Dave Felber, both of Wayne, offered assistance in obtaining the grant and working with the program

Participant in Nacel program

French resident finds busy time while visiting Wayne

By Chuck Hackenmiller
Managing editor

Fourteen year old Julien Rossignol has been experiencing one of the most active months he's ever had in America.

Matter of fact, the month of August is the only time that he has ever been to America.

Rossignol is currently a participant in the Nacel Summer Hosting Program — a program that offers American families the opportunity to share their home with a high school student from Europe for a one-month stay in the summer.

From Aug. 4 to Aug. 31 he has been a guest at the Kathy Berry home in Wayne. Berry has been hosting students through the Nacel program from 1982 to 1984. She sponsored Rossignol this year because his age is close to her son's (John) age. They have become good friends.

"We've been eating out a lot and going places," John said.

Both of Rossignol's parents are in the medical field. His mother is a cardiologist in pediatrics and his father is also a cardiologist at the hospital in Grenoble. He has an older brother who is 18 and another brother that is seven years old.

Rossignol said he is "quite impressed with the United States."

"People are more friendlier here," he added.

One thing he wouldn't take back with him to France. "I don't like the hot and muggy weather."

However, he said nothing was totally unexpected or had caught him completely off guard. "It was basically the same as what I thought it would be," he mentioned.

Teens in France have the fast food restaurants and movies and dance places, just as in America. "But you eat a lot more hamburger here in the United States than we do in France. The French people like to eat cheese," he said.

Since arriving from France, Rossignol has seen Gavins Point Dam, the state park at Ponca, the Ida Grove Air Show, the Wayne County Fair and he will be seeing the Black Hills, Mount Rushmore, Ft. Robinson, the Macy Pow-Wow and the upcoming Wayne State College Wildcats football scrimmage in Norfolk. The host family will be throwing a dance for him at the Armory, too.

His hobbies include outdoor sports such as skiing, wind surfing and tennis. He has been playing tennis since the age of six and he has the trophies to prove his tennis playing abilities.

In France he has won 13 tournaments. And in America, he has won at least one.

This past weekend, Rossignol

Cleanability of upholstery fabrics

There are some common problems when having upholstered pieces of covers cleaned. Providing information from labels to professional cleaners can assist them in selecting the method of cleaning.

Some upholstery fabrics are coated with latex or a similar material on the backside. The coating adds body, and stabilizes the weave, however, dry cleaning solvents may dissolve some of these coatings.

Professionals should test coatings before using any cleaning method. The body and feel of the fabric will change, yarns may shift and edges may ravel if the coating is dissolved, and shrinkage may occur.

The professional cleaner should know the fiber content of the fabric in addition to the cleanability of the coating. The professional attempts to determine the fiber, construction and color fastness of the dyes used before cleaning any upholstered item or covers.

Common fibers used for furniture covers are man-made cellulose such as rayon or acetate, natural fibers such as wool and cotton, synthetics such as olefin, modacrylic, polyester and other synthetic fibers. Some fibers cannot withstand cleaning without resulting in problems.

Haitian cotton upholstery fabrics present several problems for dry cleaners. It is made from 100 percent cotton. Bits of cotton seeds, stems and other plant parts are present in the yarn if the fibers are not thoroughly processed, resulting in brown specks.

Haitian cotton is susceptible to cellulose browning. Even plain tap water accidentally spilled onto the fabric may produce discoloration. Problems of discoloration can normally be handled by using a variety of dry cleaning solvents, making the fabric even more difficult to clean.

Fibers such as olefin, acetate, modacrylic, polyester, synthetics and blends of synthetic and natural fibers may need special attention in cleaning. Provide information about the fiber, weave and any color bleeding to the professional cleaner.

The cleaner typically inspects the fabric for shallow or frayed seams, and pretests the backing material for solubility even if the label indicates it is safe to dry clean. Some materials begin to deteriorate as they are put into use in the home. Gases in the air, sunlight and abrasion or flexing during use can cause deterioration.

Inspect the fabric before it is cleaned to notice deterioration or areas that appear weak or damaged. These areas may appear even more damaged after cleaning. Before cleaning, ask about deterioration and possible further damage.

Unless fabrics are preshrunk in manufacturing, shrinkage may take place in cleaning. The amount of shrinkage depends on the construction of the fabric, type of fibers and stabilization process used in manufacturing. Upholstery fabrics also shrink as a result of humidity or cleaning techniques. Very few manufacturers guarantee upholstery fabrics against shrinkage.

Country Leanings

By Chuck Hackenmiller

One Day At A Time

When all around walls crash and fall,
Nobody listens to your plead or call.
Nothing is going like it should or as you thought it would.
You're down to the very last dime?
Remember...take one day at a time.

For the next day could be so varied,
You'll laugh off those worries you carried.
Those moods of sorrow will be cleared.
You'll wonder what it was you feared.
Letting go of the past is no crime when you abide by one day at a time.

Looking too far ahead can be wrong.
Patience thins when waiting so long.
You search for future signs not there.
Anxiety is more than you can bear.
To reach goals, you'll find the climb easier by taking one step at a time.

As confusion hits or ways seem strange,
you grow tired from fighting the change.
Modern time seems to pass on by and you've lost the motivation to try.
Realize forever you will be in your prime when counting just one day at a time.

So what if the road you must travel is not paved but filled with gravel.
Who cares if the race is lost, not won because you took time to have fun.
It goes better, whatever reason or rhyme when taking life just one day at a time.

Business Notes

Peoples Natural Gas has earned first-place awards in both National Safety Council safety contests.

More than 3,000 companies in 21 industries competed. Peoples, which is a division of UtiliCorp United (NYSE:UCU), received the top award from a field of 19 gas production and distribution companies in the occupational safety/health category. The company's 1988 lost-time accident rate was 86.9 percent below the industry average.

Peoples also won top honors for fleet safety. The company's 1988 vehicle accident rate, which was 60 percent below the industry average, was the best among 21 competing gas industry division firms.

"Safety is top priority at Peoples," said James Markham, local manager. "Safe operation helps keep natural-gas rates down.

"Much more important is the fact that we are providing reliable gas service without endangering either our employees or our customers. Our safety record within the industry is an indicator of our success."

Peoples has been in the top four in the National Safety Council's occupational safety category for nearly 20 years and among the top three in fleet safety for 10 years. In addition, the company had the lowest reportable injuries and lost work days among 43 competing utilities in the Midwest Gas Association's 1988 Accident Prevention Contest.

PEACE GOLDEN FELLOWSHIP

Mr. and Mrs. George Wittler were hosts when the Peace Golden Fellowship met at the church on Wednesday. Willis Reichert, president, conducted the meeting and read an article, "Cultivating Friends."

Mrs. George Wittler read the report of the previous meeting and gave the treasurer's report. Cheer cards were sent.

Church greeters for September will be Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Andersen. For entertainment, Mrs. Wittler read an article, "The Dirty 30s" and conducted a game.

The next meeting will be at the church on Sept. 20 with Mrs. Rose Puls as hostess.

Mrs. Mary Jochens, accompanied by Mrs. Grace Acklie of Norfolk, went to Scottsbluff Aug. 10 where they were guests in the Mr. and Mrs. Gene Acklie home. On Friday they attended the wedding of Mark Dvorak and Angela Ernest at Dalton. They returned home on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kudera of Greeley, Colo. came Aug. 11 to visit their daughter and family, the Harold Brudigams and other area relatives. They returned home Tuesday.

HEADQUARTERS FOREIGN Technology Division Vice Commander Colonel Larry L. Benson presented the Meritorious Service Medal to Major Denesia (at right).

Denesia awarded Meritorious Service Medal

Thomas E. Denesia, a 1969 Wayne High School graduate, was recently awarded the Meritorious Service Medal for his service in the United States Air Force Reserves.

He is currently employed in a civilian capacity as an operations research analyst for Strategic Air Command at Offutt Air Force Base in Nebraska.

In addition to these civilian duties, he has been employed as a military analyst by the Headquarters, Foreign Technology Division in the U.S. Air Force Reserve. It was these duties, as a reserve Major, where he earned the Meritorious Service Medal.

The citation for his award reads as follows:

"Major Thomas E. Denesia distinguished himself in the performance of outstanding service to the United States as a Scientific Analyst and Electronic Warfare Systems Analyst while assigned as an Individual Mobilization Augmentee to the Foreign Technology Division, Air Force Systems Command, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio and while attached to the Intelligence Reserve Detachment 4, Directorate, Intelligence Reserve Forces, Air Force Intelligence Agency, Fort Belvoir, Virginia, from March 2, 1984 to May 1, 1988.

"During this period, Major Denesia's highly innovative and unprecedented technical studies and documentation in the field of Soviet radio-electronic combat; electronic warfare; and command, control, and communications doctrine and capabilities provided vital contributions to the specialized mission of the Foreign Technology Division and to operational units throughout the entire Air Force.

"His initiative and unique expertise filled a critical gap in the intelligence community's knowledge of the integrated combat operations of the Soviet forces. As a result, he is recognized as a leading expert in this most important research area."

For Your Information

Question: A. Why is it that the instructors at Wayne State College are allowed to "skip" classes as often as they will and without so much as a note to the students that there won't be a class that day? The policy for the teachers at Wayne High School is that a teacher must find a substitute and pay for it out of their own pocket.

Answer:

A. Instructors at Wayne State College have a strong sense of responsibility for their students. They are not allowed to "skip" classes except for special circumstances.

In order to be on the cutting edge of their fields, they are encouraged to attend professional meetings. On other rare occasions, they may miss a class or two. Like other people, there are times when illness requires an absence.

Regardless of the reason for rare absence, all professors are required to notify their Division Heads in advance (except for unexpected illness) and receive their permission to be absent from class. Arrangements are then made for substitutes or for alternate class activities.

Unless professors are absent due to unexpected illness, they are required to notify their students in advance when they will be away and what the alternate activity will be or that a substitute will be present.

Some serious pulling

ONE OF MANY events at this year's Dixon County Fair was the tractor pull that drew contestants from throughout the northeast Nebraska area. This was the antique tractor pull version that went on Tuesday afternoon in front of the fairground grandstands. Above, Todd Nelson gives it his best shot. Along with the numerous other fair activity, there was also plenty of 4-H livestock and small animal judging, along with the judging of foods, photography, crafts and many more items. Check the Wayne Herald's Thursday edition for area 4-H ribbon placings and photos of top champions.

Signs of the times

PLACING A WINSIDE Centennial sign on the corner of Highway 35 and the Winside entrance were Don Nelson (left) and VerNeal Marotz. Three more signs will be put on Highways 98, 275 and 15 advertising Winside's celebration July 20-22, 1990. The signs were painted by members of the Winside Student Council and Darci Frahm. Funds for the signs were received from a grant from the Nebraska Department of Economic Development.

Child

once it is started.

DUNKLAU SAID that in the childhood immunization clinics in Wisner and Laurel alone, there are approximately 1,200 active cases. "In May we had 32 kids from this area and April, 39 kids who attended the Wisner and Laurel immunization clinics and could have benefitted from having a clinic in Wayne," Dunklau said.

She said the objective is to have at least 400 duplicated immunizations (for polio and DTP) and 280 unduplicated immunizations, such as MMR (mumps, measles and rubella) and HBVP (meningitis), to be performed during the first year of the Wayne Well Child Clinic.

A donation of $4 is asked for each child provided the immunization.

Approximately 120 children (unduplicated immunizations) per year is anticipated for the Well Child "complete physicals" part of the clinic program. Income guidelines for this program are $213 "weekly" for family size of 1; $286 for two; $358 for three; $431 for four; $504 for five; $576 for six; $649 for seven; $721 for eight; and for each additional family member, add $73.

Dunklau said about 97 percent of all students in this three county area now enter the schools with the immunizations specified by the Department of Health. The immunization clinics sponsored by Goldenrod Hills is a factor in reaching those high numbers, she said.

THOSE WHO currently attend the immunization clinics in either Laurel or Wakefield and would like to attend the Wayne clinic should contact Goldenrod Hills in Wisner at 529-3513 to have their immunization records transferred.

Encouraging the immunization, through immunization clinics and Well Child programs is one way that children can be assured of getting the necessary vaccines and health check-ups.

Dates and more details of the first Wayne Well Child Clinic will appear in later in The Wayne Herald, or contact Goldenrod Hills for further information.

French

participated in the Wayne Open Tennis Tournament and came away with the first place trophy in the 18 and Under age division. "It was good competition," he said.

The months of July and August are all that Rossignol has for summer vacation from school. He has three years of high school level remaining. His favorite subjects, he said, are math and physics. Right now he has no long term goals about what career he would be pursuing.

If an American teen came to France for one month, Rossignol would show him or her a good time by giving a tour of Paris, or scheduling a visit in the nearby mountains and ski resorts.

Rossignol said he would like to come back again to the United States, perhaps for a longer length of time. But until that time, he is taking it all in — one day at a time — as the month of August continues to roll on.

Pests zero in on Nebraska corn crop

At least four insect pests are causing varying amounts of damage to corn plants in some sections of the state, complicating matters for producers in selecting the correct control method, University of Nebraska-Lincoln entomologists said.

European corn borer moths, western bean cutworms, grasshoppers, spider mites and Banks grass mites have been detected in various locations, the insect specialists said.

"It is not uncommon for more than one pest species to be present in a corn field at the same time, but if one of these happens to be spider mites, it is especially important that the appropriate insecticide or miticide is used," emphasizes entomology specialist Steve Danielson.

Spider mites are present in many fields and should be monitored closely, Danielson said. An early sign of damage is small, whitish or yellowish stippling on lower leaves caused by mite feeding. Later, webbing may be found on the undersides of leaves, Danielson said, and with high mite populations, lower leaves are killed.

Extension agents or agricultural consultants can help determine if treatment is warranted and what insecticides to use, Danielson said. "Pesticide treatments rarely are profitable after corn has reached the hard dent stage, he added.

Before attempting to control mites, producers need to determine whether twospotted spider mites or Banks grass mites are present, since the species differ greatly in their susceptibility to insecticides, Danielson noted.

Preacher's lot not easy in early days

Preachers didn't have an easy lot in Nebraska's early days. A goodly portion of our citizens were what we now call "the unchurched" — at best they were apathetic to the aims of organized religion. Building a congregation was sometimes as difficult as building a church. One Missouri man of the cloth attracted members by meeting them on their own terms, and their own turf. His actions were suggested as a model to Nebraska ministers.

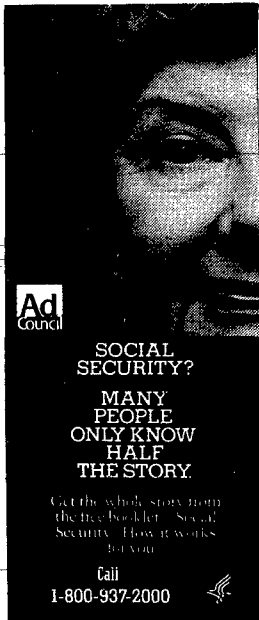

"Reverend Lytle ... was a preacher that took charge of the Methodist Church at Carrollton when it was at low ebb and before he left the pastorate there for another charge he had the largest congregation of any church in town. He is a great mixer, and would stop on the streets and talk to the boys like he was one of them. Everybody learned to love and respect him.

"One day he stopped on the corner and spoke to a crowd of young men who never attended any church. he said, 'Boys, I want you to come to church tomorrow.' 'All right,' spoke up the ring leader, 'if you'll go over to the saloon yonder and take a drink with us we will pledge you right here and now to come out to church tomorrow and listen to you preach. We think you are a good fellow and we want you to drink with us. Will you go?'

"Why of course I'll go," and Rev. Lytle followed the crowd into the saloon, to the amazement of some of the bystanders who likewise followed the crowd into the saloon to see what was up. The leader asked the preacher what he would have. Rev. Lytle told the boys that he would make his order last.

"All the boys called for whiskey, and every eye turned to the minister, as he said, with one hand on the bar, 'Give me a drink of cold water, one of God's greatest and best gifts to man.' He drank the water and left.

"The boys remained to talk it over. True to their word, they attended church the next day, and became loyal followers of the preacher who took a drink." — Nebraska City News
