NEWS OF NEBRASKA.

The Forces Will Go.—"The president's proclamation ordering the removal of forces from public lands will not affect the Nebraska cattle interests. Governor President has issued a similar order to the Union stock yards yesterday. "The order was entirely proper and no objection to its execution will be made by Nebraska cattle men. The Nebraska cattle raisers have never obstructed the settlement of lands in the western part of the state. Although many thousands of acres of public domain have probably been taken in the last few years, a large number have been granted out of the state from taking possession of lands upon which they had a right to them. The ranch men have been held responsible in whole or in part for the losses sustained by the state in their efforts to settle the land. The Brighton Ranch company's land, the most valuable in the state, has been held responsible for the losses in the Brighton company. One hundred percent of the company's stock has been taken in a personal difficulty and the employee of the company killed in the struggle, but it was held responsible for the losses sustained by the state because of the action of the set, the but had nothing to do with the creation of the difficulties. The order to remove the cattle from the state will not affect the cattle interests of this state. Other gentlemen interested in cattle raising expressed similar views.—(Omaha Republic)

Clairens His Secret.—A. W. Johnson is the son of a man who lives two and one-half miles northeast of town. Some time last spring he secreted a divorce from his wife, and in settlement gave her several notes instead of cash, that happened to be short with him at the time. Since she left the boy assumed the board of Johnson, Jr., had been staying with the family of Captain Cox, who resides in the eastern part town. Johnson was in the city yesterday, and had evaded all efforts to find him, but he was located for the purpose of paying his former better half some money. He says that he stopped because he had no money, and that his friend, started to go in, and met his wife in the yard. The old man told him to wait there to see the boy, and when he did, which he did. When she came out she was accompanied by Capt. Cox, who had been staying with the boy with club, knocked him down and beat him more unmercifully. After they had gone, the boy got up and crawled away to the office of Dr. Latte, where he again found his wife. She had been beaten right. He was literally bathed in blood from head to foot, and upon examination it was found that he had been beaten half out on the neck and face and as many ugly knots around the head, his skull had been fractured. His hands were broken, and at a late hour he left for home, but if he doesn't have a place to live he will be compelled the week ends he may consider himself fortunate indeed. When seen by the reporter he had a bandaged hand and a bandaged leg, whether he should have his assault arrested later or not. In short he didn't know much of anything.—Laramie Journal.

Murders Invert—Lincoln Dispatch to the Omaha Republican: One of the strangest cases of mistakes identity that has ever occurred in the annals of American jurisprudence is the case that on the night of July 20, a cow was stolen from a farmer named Lemire, living near Dunn post office, this county. The thief took the animal to J. V. Barnes, at Greenwood, and said it was his. Barnes agreed to pay him $500 for the cow, and the next morning he was making the round about Second street the other day. They were arrested by police in peculiar harness, which tied them when running. At the junction of Second and Louest streets one of the boys accidentally stumbled and others fell over him, and the boy came thundering on in full speed. The police, who were in hot pursuit, saw the full force of the wheels of the truck which struck him in the back, just above the hip. John Kropka was the most unfortunate, however, one wheel passing under his body and breaking two bones. One of the boys, however, was slightly injured, but the boy was still on his feet when the truck hit him, and the friends in his saloon enough to make.

The setting of contracts for making the ditch that is to drain the Dakota river, which is being dug, is now completed.

Republican County Convention.
The Republican electors of Wayne county are requested to send delegates from the several precincts, to meet in convention, at the Hotel Atlantic, in Wayne, Neb., on Saturday, Oct. 1st, at 10 a.m., for the purpose of selecting nomination candidates for County Clerk, County Treasurer, Register of Deeds, County Superintendent of Public Instruction, County Sheriff, County Surveyor, County Engineer, and one County Commissioner, and to perform such other business as may be presented to the convention.

The several precincts are entitled to representation as follows:

Brown	8	Logan	8
Deer Creek	1	Plum Creek	1
Gardett	1	Spring Branch	1
Hickory	2	Wayne	14
Leesie	1

It is recommended that the Republican electors of the several precincts meet to consider the question of sending delegates from their delegations on their behalf to the delegates express their choice for candidates for the respective offices, and that the delegates so elected be given power to support the particular candidate a majority of whom vote for a particular office. Should no person receive such a majority the vote of the delegates shall be taken again, and so on until a majority is given to the primaries.

It is further recommended that no person be admitted to the convention except who are here by persons residing in the precincts from which the delegates are given.

For order of Republican County Central Committee.

A. A. WATSON, Chairman.

Wayne, Neb., Aug. 18th, 1882.

U.

Pender has a bright new paper, The Paragraph, published by Rogers & Dyer.

The Burnett Blade is having a red hot picnic with the saloon men in that town.

The manager of a press company at Springfield, Mo., sent a circular to the editor of this paper, addressing him as "Col." That may be a fine card to play on Missouri newspapermen, but the average Nebraska editor don't take that sort of taffy.

Helen Hunt Jackson, one of the best known and most successful of America's female writers, died in California last week. Mrs. Jackson was best known as a very agreeable contributor to the leading magazines over the signature "H. H."

Father Martin, the venerable Boston City novelist has had a bad case of sour grapes on hand. He failed to get the appointment as agent to superintend the public and domestic relations of the Omahas and Winnebagos.

The Verity Bros. have bought and consolidated the papers at Valentine.

They propose to be Republicans in county contests, so as to corral the county patronage, but they also deem it their duty to support the administration so as to surround the land office notices.

The Pierce Call him off in the following fashion, and the remark is applicable to other counties besides Pierce.

The "ring must go," is but another form of saying: "We are out in the cold, and want you fellows to come out and make room for us fellows."

With this number the Herald-Tribune enters upon its eleventh year, enjoying a fair degree of health and prosperity. In the past ten years the paper has changed names, locality and editors quite often, but we hope during the next ten that it will be published at the same place and by the same persons as at present. We expect by that time that Wayne county will have a population of at least fifteen thousand people and that Wayne will be a thriving little city of not less than three thousand people.

The indications point to considerable immigration into this portion of the state during the coming year.

The fact that the corn fields were from O'Neill have been nearly all burned up for lack of rain this year will deter many immigrants from taking the risk of settlement there, and they will stop in the better country in the western portions of the state. This, coupled with the fact that there is no other area of equal extent in the United States that has raised as good crops of all kinds this year as Wayne and adjacent counties certainly augur well, and probably will secure a large immigration.

While lawyers are puzzling them-selves over the legality of the law providing for the election of county commissioners, the people of Wayne county to the Journal that now is a good time for the people to show themselves possessed of the true power of self-government. Everybody knows that the intent of the law makers was to provide registers only in counties having more than 15,000 inhabitants. It would be proper and commendable in the people to make no nomination except in such counties. There is no reason why in counties of less strength, and to refrain from the imitation of the spirit of the law would be a spectacle of some value. It would cost nothing, at least, and would be a trial of public sentiment and tend to fix if not to elevate the general conception of it.—Lincoln Journal.

Under the apportionment of delegates as made by the county central committee at the meeting last Saturday, Wayne precinct, which casts considerably over half of the Republican votes of the county, will have but a little over one third of the delegates in the convention. This was accomplished by the somewhat singular arrangement of giving each precinct one delegate at large and one for each twenty votes or any fraction of twenty. It was done, as the committee frankly admitted, to prevent Wayne precinct from controlling the convention, and we suppose the others precincts will not complain this year about the town running things. As a sample of the way the apportionment works, take Garfield and Wayne precincts. Garfield cast 6 Republican votes last year and is entitled to 2 delegates, Wayne cast 244, and gets 14 delegates. In other words, Wayne precinct cast more than forty times as many votes as Garfield and gets seven times as many delegates. A voter in Garfield precinct thus gets as much representation in the county convention as six in Wayne; and one in Leslie, the precinct next in number of votes to Wayne, gets four times the representation in proportion to voting strength. We do not mention these things to find fault with them but simply to show the other precincts that they have the biggest disk of polling this time.

The county Republican central committee met at the court house Saturday afternoon to fix the time of holding the county convention, and fix the basis of representation from the different precincts. All the precincts except two, Logan and Spring Creek, were represented. After some discussion it was decided to hold the convention on Monday, October 12th, and it was decided to recommend to the precinct committees that the primaries be held on the Saturday preceding.

The basis of representation fixed on was to give each precinct one delegate at large and one delegate for every twenty votes or fraction of twenty cast for the Republican electors at the election last November.

The number of delegates each precinct is entitled to may be seen by a reference to the call published in this issue.

It was also decided that at the primaries, besides voting for delegates, each voter should have an opportunity to express his choice for candidates for the various offices to be filled, and that the delegates should be instructed to cast the vote of the precinct for the person receiving the greatest number of votes.

E. L. Hatch went to Dixie county this morning to adjust the loss on his property caused by the fire destroyed by lightning a short time ago. The barn was the largest and best in Dixie county and was a total loss. The German had a policy of three thousand dollars on the barn and contents, and the fact that the company intrusted the adjustment to Mr. Hatch is a fine compliment to him, and a proof that the insurance manager Nye & Hatch have conducted their business for them. It also guarantees to Mr. Johnson a satisfactory adjustment of the loss.

Matilda Fletcher will lecture at the Presbyterian church this evening on "The Law of Happiness." She is one of the best and most popular lecturers in the field, and an attractive and eloquent speaker. It is not often that the people of Wayne have an opportunity of hearing a good lecture, and they should really appreciate her services.

This following is but one of a great many flattering notices given her by the press where she has lectured:

The large hall of Cooper Institute was full; when the aisles and doorways were crowded. The speaker has great eloquence and power. The audience took to her at once, interested her completely, and appreciated her every word.

She is a woman of great ability and knowledge, and looking at the pictures and see more than we went to the circus.
