Dr. Pickett Addresses Kiwanis Club

Former Wayne Man Speaks on Chiropody at Luncheon

Dr. N. J. Pickett of Norfolk, son of C. L. Pickett, was the Kiwanis club speaker Monday noon. After a humorous introduction he announced that he would discuss certain phases of the profession of chiropody.

Briefly sketching its history, he said that the first degree granted in chiropody was taken by a young German at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, about 400 years after the first degree in general medicine. At that time the treatment consisted mainly in correcting abnormalities of gait.

The first full volume devoted to the normal development and care of the hands and feet was published in 1802. The first society of chiropodists was organized in 1865. The first state law regulating the practice of chiropody was passed by New York state in 1893. Forty-seven of the forty-eight states now have such laws.

The first school for chiropodists in the United States was the Chiropody Institute, founded in New York City in 1897. In 1903 Temple University, and in 1907

Lesson in Safety Fatal for Stubby, Black and White Dog

Life was stormy for little Bobby Bathke last week. Tragedy entered his life when his much loved pet, Stubby, a little black and white rat terrier, was run over and killed by an automobile. And then Corky, another rat terrier, was given to Bobby the next day. But the Bathke home was strange to Corky and so he jaunted off that afternoon in search of his old home. This certainly would have been a double misfortune for Bobby, but Corky was found and returned the next afternoon. By now, Corky and Bobby are fast friends and Corky has no intention of straying from home—not as yet. When he gets older, he might want to see the world but he will always know his way home.

Mickey, Boston terrier, knows now the danger of the automobile as he hobbles about on three legs nursing a broken right hind leg received when struck by a car Wednesday. Mickey is a game little dog and looks at you as if to say, "It's a tough break, but I can take it." He is the special pet of Barbara Strahan.

The Elias Tamburitza Serenaders, in a program of Jugoslavian music, will come to the Wayne State Teachers college this coming Wednesday evening. The tamburitza, a descendant of the medieval lute, resembles a guitar in shape, and is played with a pick. The music of the tamburitza sounds very much like that of the Russian balalaika. A tamburitza group was featured on the third district program of the State Teachers association last fall, and was well received by the audience. The first number played on the Norfolk program was a march by Mr. Elias, father of the young people who come to the college. Who was one of the most famous Croatian tamburitza players and composers of his day.

Movie Cooking School Scheduled April 12, 13, 14

This newspaper has just been successful in securing the new motion picture cooking school, "Star in My Kitchen," which will be presented at the Gay theater on April 12, 13, and 14.

Mark the days on your calendar because every woman—and man—in the community is hereby extended a cordial invitation to see, absolutely free, this fascinating picture which weaves helpful, intelligent lessons on cooking and home-making into a humorous and romantic plot.

The motion picture cooking school is a brand new idea. First conceived last year, it has met with acclaim from women throughout the country, who like the happy combination of sparkling entertainment and close-up cooking instruction. Seats in the back row are as good as those in the front row—the motion picture permits everyone to hear and see every trick in frosting a cake, making a pie, or cooking bananas.

"Star in My Kitchen" was produced in Hollywood, and the audience will recognize many of the rising young actors and actresses who take part in it. Women young and old will appreciate the humaneness of the romantic story, in which home problems are approached from an entirely new angle.

The motion picture cooking school has graduated beyond the demonstration course. A variety of household equipment assembled in clear view of the audience. All of the practical equipment is seen in active use, and because "seeing is believing," the audience will soon learn that pies and cakes and salads can make them "stars in their kitchens."

Experienced housekeepers will thrill to the adventures of the young Dedee Abot, who suddenly finds herself with a large home to manage and several mouths to feed—as well as a handsome young movie actor to impress.

What happens when she tries to make a fluffy lemon meringue pie or a marshmallow chocolate cake? What happens when the "man of the hour" drops in for dinner?

To unravel the mystery in advance would be to rob this clever tale of its novel approach. However, the audience is due to share in a rollicking good story and to learn much about home-making at the same time.

Every listener will find a harvest of practical ideas among the suggestions for more efficient home-making, covering such daily

Three hundred more contestants are expected this year as compared to last year's total of 2,006 high school music students. It is expected to be the largest district event of its kind staged here in many years and probably one of the largest in the state. Fifty-two schools have entered contestants in the several music events.

1,500 Crows are Killed Near Wayne

Northeast Nebraska hunters ganged up on the crows Sunday evening when they ambushed them into a grove of trees by the means of two airplanes and other contrivances of modern warfare and slew them by the hundreds.

Eighty hunters met at the W. H. Echtenkamp farm six miles north of Wayne Sunday at 11 o'clock to take part in the crow shoot in which 1,500 birds were killed. It is estimated that each hunter used an average of 100 rounds of ammunition making a total of 8,000 rounds.

The two airplanes circling around the large grove of trees circled the crows within the trees as the birds instinctively fear the "man-made bird." At first, the hunters killed four or five birds with one shot. Later it took four or five hunters to kill one bird as the crows were quickly shot down, leaving fewer targets.

The committee in charge of the crow shoot included W. O. Monette, deputy conservation officer of South Sioux City, Dr. Ebers, Lyle Swift, and Ben Mitchell, all of Allen.

Calvary is Theme Of Rev. W.F. Most Sunday's Sermon

Grace be unto you and peace from God the Father and our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

Matthew 16:25: "Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.

Churches of every name and sign during this Lenten season are turning their minds and imaginations to the green hill outside of the city walls where our Lord was crucified. Each one of us is trying to think through once more the real significance of Calvary. Of course, there are depths in the cross too profound for our plummet lines to fathom but nevertheless, if we approach the cross thoughtfully, it will mean more to us than ever before.

The cross is not only a call to an adventure in spiritual understanding but it is a call to us to live differently. If the cross is to mean what it may to us, we must frankly face the question at hand: "What are we going to do in the year 1938 because Christ died?"

In the first place, have we surrendered our lives and our hearts to the love revealed by the crucified Saviour?

should be that which is voiced in the great hymn, "When I survey the wondrous cross." "Where the whole realm of nature mine, That were present far too small; Love so amazing, so divine, Demands my soul, my life, my all."

In the second place, every true follower of Christ ought to find in the cross a new motive power for carrying on His work.

Dr. Weigle of Yale says that the greatest question in religious education is the question of motivation. Speaking of the cross, Paul says, "He died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves but unto Him who died for them and rose again."

Some people are Christians and workers of the Church because they like to be busy. Some wish to make a record and that is the motive for driving them forward. Some are hurt if they do not have a position in the limelight most of the time. All of this spirit, whatever particular form it may take, is contrary to the inspiring motive of the cross, which we as Christians ought to feel.

George Tyrrell, when he speaks of his conflict with ecclesiastical tyranny and ignorance, writes: "Again and again, I have been tempted to give up the struggle but always the figure of that strange man hanging on the cross sends me back to my task"

Did you ever hear the story of the shipwrecked Irishman who drifted too the shore of an island inhabited by cannibals? The Irishman peered into the faces of the native blackmen and exclaimed: "Have you got a government in this country?" and before they could heave a grunt he said, "I'm agin it."

We have Fascists and Communists among our people. We have New Dealers, Old Dealers, and Middle-of-the-Roaders. We have Single Taxers, Socialists, High and Low Tariffers, and all the grades between.

The one point on which these multitudinous faiths agree is that all the others are dead wrong.

But the funniest political sect of the lot is that group of critics whose single tenet is that President Roosevelt cannot, by any chance, be right about anything. To illustrate the type let us take Columnist Frank Kent. He is not chosen because he is the most important of those who read into every act of the chief executive malice, imbecility or simple error, but because he is the most consistent. His fellow columnists: voluntary or subsidized by environment or clientele - do occasionally admit that by some slip or accident the president stumbles into the path of intelligence and rectitude—but not Mr. Kent. He maintains, in effect, that even when he says his prayers the president has his fingers crossed.

It would be interesting to get a picture of the sort of president the critics of the present administration think we ought to have. If one of Mr. Roosevelt's recommendations to congress is adopted it is, according to them, a usurpation of legislative powers and congress is an invidious rubber stamp, taking orders from the White House. If such a recommendation is defeated in congress, it means that the president's influence has vanished and that a conscientious and courageous parliamentary body has told him where he gets off.

Wrong in Any Case

If he vetoes a bill, like the soldiers' bonus, and congress passes it over his veto, it is hardly suggested that the veto was only a face-saving device and had the president really extended himself and brought pressure on congress, the veto would have been sustained. Men would like him to be a dictator when and if he dictates their way, and they insist it is congress' duty to suppress him if it is the other way about.

Our government after 150 years finds itself cumbered with a thousand growths that overlap and complicate its functions. The president suggests a reorganization, or rearrangement, of bureaus and departments, such as every big business finds necessary as conditions change. Every recent president has called attention to the cumbersome and confusion in our governmental structure and made an effort to correct these faults. There are difficulties, due to the tenacity of individual departments and the insistence of important agencies in and out of congress, that their constituents in office be not disturbed, but the necessity of modernizing the government has never been disputed.

What is the result? The critics charge President Roosevelt with striving for greater powers; with a selfish and subversive desire to destroy safeguards and break down time-honored habits. All he is trying to do is to make a clumsy machine work more smoothly and efficiently. That the president of the United States is weighted with the responsibility of appointments and commissions. He alone is in a position to know the flaws in every branch of the government. He has submitted a plan to congress, which congress will pass, reject or modify. If the plan develops weaknesses, perils or injustices, this or any subsequent congress can repeal it or change it.

Is It Faith in Democracy Which Encourages England?

Hitler's Pan-German scheme seems to be going along nicely very much as if the dictator had the cooperation of the rest of the world. Of course, Britain and France may intervene some place along the line but it seems for the present England's conservative government is willing that Hitler shall have his way so long as the roar of the Lion is sufficient to keep the steel helmets from her doors. Apparently England is thinking ahead. Peace for the next five, ten, or fifteen years and with a united Germany to help, Soviet Russia would not be such a menace. England continues to negotiate with the German and Italian dictators seemingly with a feeling that their presence will not last as long as the memory of freedom once enjoyed by the people who now endure dictatorships.

History sometimes is known to repeat itself. Its pages point to the fact that democracy is more enduring than autocracy; that once human beings taste real liberty they are never quite satisfied with despotism. Dictators Hitler and Mussolini may gain the applause of their subjected people when they shout their promises but eventually their hatred of democracy will prove their undoing.

If ultimately, democracies would replace the Italian and German dictatorships, England's present conservatism and negotiations would surely go down on another page of successful British diplomacy.

Loss From Frenchweed Taint Heavy Last Year

The dairy industry of Nebraska suffered a very great loss last year by a weed which makes milk, cream, butter, and other dairy products unfit for use. This weed commonly known as Penncress or Frenchweed when eaten by milk cows, imparts a bitter, garlicky flavor and odor to milk and cream.

According to R. C. Kinch, weed and seed specialist of the state department of agriculture and inspection, Penncress will very soon be making its appearance, so dairymen and producers should be on the lookout for it whenever it shows up. The weed is most commonly found in weedy pastures and along fence rows and ravines, and may be easily killed by pulling or a close mowing.

The bitter, garlicky flavor and odor are found in all dairy products that have been made from weedy milk and cream and can not be removed by any known process. Weedy milk and cream make very inferior products and will probably be discounted a good deal on the produce market.

In the meantime with shipping time for the Clarke-McNary seedlings and transplants but a few weeks away, Wayne county farmers desiring the trees are urged to make application for the same immediately. Thus far producers in this county have asked for 5,800 trees.

Farmers Ask for 5,800 Clarke-McNary Trees

With tree planting encouraged under the 1938 farm program, interest in 1938 planting this week in Wayne county was expected to increase. As a result more applications for Clarke-McNary seedlings through the Farm-Bureau office are expected to be made soon.

Under the farm program in 1938, an acre of trees properly planted-maintained and protected will earn $7.50 toward the soil-building allowance set up. Cultivation and replacing losses in previously planted trees will earn $3 per acre.

Under the range program, each acre of trees properly planted, cultivated and protected this year earns $10 of the range allowance. This $10 payment should cover all of the cash expense required in establishing an acre of trees.

Roosevelt's Adm. Story Appearing In World Herald

The history of the New Deal by the man who made it was released for Nebraska readers beginning Wednesday, March 23 when the first installment of President Roosevelt's own story appeared in the World-Herald.

In 30 articles, the series will mark the first newspaper advance publication of the writings of the president since his first inauguration. President Roosevelt's release of these manuscripts while still in office is unprecedented. All 30 articles were taken from the president's forthcoming books, "The Public Papers and Addresses of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Gathered from the president's official papers and private writings, the series will give the story of the men behind the president's desk as told in the president's own words. Mr. Roosevelt relates what his administration has worked to accomplish and without comment, the World-Herald reprints the entire story.

Beginning with his preinaugural "peek behind the door" into the troubles of the president as presented to him by his predecessor, former-President Hoover, Mr. Roosevelt tells of events leading up to the shelving of the gold standard, the bank holiday, and many other history-making incidents. The entire series of articles presents a crystal clear picture of the forces which today shape the lives of 120 million persons.

Taken from a set of five books which were also authorized by the president for publication, these 30 World-Herald articles are terse comments on the most important and far reaching presidential actions. Not one sentence of the president's own story has been printed before, nor will appear anywhere but in the newspaper again, until the entire set of history books is finished and printed as history.

The Story of Phil and His Little Girl

(From the Longmont Times-Call)
Ever so often there is written an editorial contribution which, in newspaper parlance, "goes the rounds." Nearly all editorial columns for miles and miles around reprints it and later it may be submitted to a contest committee at the school of journalism and win prizes. There is a fairly well standardized form for such writings—they must be long, they must center around a repetitious array of words, and they must have a kernel of sob stuff.

the folly of education as she waved 'goodby' and started off to the halls of learning.
"Tonight we talked about the school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her the girl with the yellow curls and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She told me about her teacher who has eyes in the back of her head—and about the trees in the school yard—and about the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus.

"We talked about a lot of things—tremendously vital unimportant things—and then we studied spelling, reading, and arithmetic—and then to bed. She's back there now—back in the nursery sound asleep with Princess Elizabeth (that's a doll) cuddled in her right arm. You guys wouldn't hurt her would you? You see, I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut—or her head gets bumped, I can fix that—but when she starts to school—when she walks across the street—then she's in your hands.

"She's a nice kid—she can run like a deer and darts about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time—I have to work to pay for her clothes and education. So please help me to look out for her. Please drive slowly past the schools and intersections—and please remember that children run from behind parked cars.

"Dear Driver: Today my daughter, who is 7 years old, started to school. She had on black shoes and wore blue gloves. Her cocker spaniel whose name is Scott sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in little girl.

"Please don't run over my little girl."

Rehabilitation Loans Stabilizes 7,348 Farms

Low-Income Farmers Hold Farms Through FSA Credit

Commenting on a recent survey of accomplishments by 7,348 low-income Nebraska farm families since they secured rehabilitation loans from the Farm Security Administration, L. A. White, state director for that agency, said the borrowers show "encouraging progress" toward farm security.

Mr. White pointed out various phases of rehabilitation activity and said ownership of milk cows had increased by 5,118 of the families since participation in the program. There are 1,413 families now owning milk cows who had none before apply for FSA loans.

Further Trend to Livestock

Continuing, Mr. White said borrowers' farms have increased from an average size of 204.1 to 284.2 acres. Home consumed feed and forage acres increased from an average of 12.80 to 23.93. The state director pointed out that this reflects a trend to more livestock in line with general policies advocated by the extension service, and state rehabilitation farm plans accompanying the loans stress the necessity of rounding out farm operations with livestock enterprises.

The borrowers have increased their work animals from 17,661 to 27,947, and this extra horsepower is a big factor in farm recovery, White said.

Farmers Improve Conditions

Numbers of hogs and hens have been considerably increased as a result of loans. Accompanying farm plans, the report shows. Families now have a great deal more meat, milk products and eggs on their tables, and more fruits and vegetables preserved than they had before working out budgeted home management plans.

Land tenure status is materially improved for the participating farmers, with 4,610 families reporting such improvements as moving to better farms, advancing from farm laborers to tenants, obtaining longer or renewable leases and changing from verbal to written leases.

Over 2,500 children have increased their school attendance because of the program and a large number of farm families are now participating in farm co-

operatives

The total amount loans to the 7,348 families was $6,966,963 and the families include 34,284 people. Most of the loans have been made for five years, at 5 per cent interest. Repayments, White said, are satisfactory in spite of the fact that the past few years have been extremely unfavorable from a crop viewpoint.

Suggest Methods to Thaw Frozen Meat

Freezing may be nature's oldest method of preserving products—but it is man's newest.

Meats are frozen and put into lockers for home use. The pieces are wrapped in moisture-proof parchment paper before freezing to prevent some drying out. The packages are separated so the meat freezes rapidly. Flavor and condition are improved by quick freezing. A satisfactory temperature for freezing and storage of meats is 0 degrees F.

Food nutritionists of the agricultural college of extension service say that when meat has been frozen it must be kept cold to prevent spoilage. The fibers have been broken down, they point out, and the moist surface is likely to mold, thus causing the meat to spoil more easily after it has been frozen. Frozen meat should be used as soon as possible after thawing.

Several methods of thawing the meat are suggested. It may be in the household refrigerator, thawing at room temperature, or the meat may be placed in a pan to cook allowing time for it to thaw and then to cook. Otherwise the meat may appear done but be raw and cold in the center. There is practically no difference in the flavor of meat thawed at different temperatures or in the flavor of unthawed meat and the unfrozen meat.

Curtis Sorghum Field Event Today

All Nebraska farmers have been invited to attend the third district sorghum-livestock field day at the Nebraska School of Agriculture at Curtis today.

There they will be able to inspect lots of hogs fed grain sorghums and corn and hear about the latest experimental data on feed comparisons.

There are five lots of hogs in the Curtis demonstration. Corn is compared to locally produced early karo. In addition there will be a demonstration of sorghums for cattle feeding. Guy N. Baker of the school will explain the test results.

The Curtis meeting follows similar gatherings held in recent months at Gibbon and Franklin. The morning hours will be spent inspecting the hogs. A free lunch will be served at noon. Prof. Howard J. Gramlich of the Nebraska college of agriculture is to be one of the leading speakers. Others will include H. K. Douthitt, W. C. Mackey, Guy N. Baker, J. V. Srb, W. W. Donick, Walter Tolman, and M. L. Baker.

Close Mowing, Plowing Eradicate Pennygrass

Pennygrass, the weed which caused a great loss to the dairy industry last year, should be eradicated in 1938. It imparts a weedy or garlicky flavor and odor to milk, cream, butter, and other dairy products.

The weed can be destroyed by close mowing, clipping or plowing. Pastures should be mowed very close when the plants first begin to form seed which is generally from the first to the middle of April. The plants will practically disappear in a few years if they are prevented from seeding.

Pennygrass is sometimes known as Frenchweed, fanweed or stinkweed. It may be found growing in weedy pastures, fence corners, and woodlots and along fence rows, ditches and ravines. It is an annual or winter annual.

Greater Yield Is Obtained by Blank Listing

Sorghum Interest Higher With Tie-In With PFL Contest

With Wayne county farmers beginning to think about planting forage and grain sorghums late this spring, Agricultural Agent Walter Moller this week called their attention to practices which may help overcome difficulty of securing a maximum stands. Poor seed, cold soil, planting too deep, washing away of seed, or burying the seed by soil during heavy rains were mentioned as being causes of poor stands.

There has been a greatly increased interest in sorghums here in recent years. This year this is tied in directly with the state wide pasture-forage-livestock program. Farmers cooperating are interested as a result in the approved cultural practices.

When kafir, milo and sorgo seed is planted in rows for cultivation, it is often difficult to get the most desirable stands. Some of the difficulties can be overcome by careful seedbed preparation and methods of planting. Most sorghums are planted in lister furrows. If the soil is not worked before planting, it is cold in the bottom of the lister furrow. This results in poor seed germination because sorghums are naturally a warm climate crop.

Agricultural Agent Moller referred the recent statement to D. L. Cross, extension agronomist at the college of agriculture. He says blank listing early in the season is the best way to make the soil warm up quickly. If the land is blank listed in April and cultivated two or three times before planting, the soil will not only be warm in the bottom of the furrow but weeds will be under control and moisture conserved, says Gross.

Planting then should be delayed until about June. The old furrows should be nosed out and the seed planted in these. In nosing out the furrow for planting, it is important to make a wide shallow furrow and to pack the ridges immediately after planting. This reduces the chances of seed being buried by soil that might wash down from the ridges. Sorghum crops planted thusly usually make good stands, they get away to a quick start and weed control is much less difficult throughout the season.

Ship Clarke-McNary Trees Soon

Wayne county farmers making application for Clarke-McNary seedlings through the Farm Bureau office should be receiving their trees soon, according to word just received here from the Nebraska College of Agriculture.

Clayton W. Watkins, extension forester who supervises the project, informed Agricultural Agent Walter L. Moller that shipment of broadleaf trees was to start from Fremont the first of this week. Evergreen stock will be shipped from Halsey probably this week. Wayne county farmers have thus far made application for 6,000 Clarke-McNary trees.

In notifying farmers that the trees will arrive shortly, Watkins urged them to take all possible precautions in getting a good survival of the seedlings. The soil should be prepared thoroughly before the trees arrive and the seedlings planted as soon as possible after they are received. A few days of cold weather after planting will not injure the small trees.

Another recommendation is that of placing shingles on the southwest side of evergreens immediately after planting as a protection against heat and drying winds this summer. The trees should be cultivated enough to keep out all weeds and grass.

Less Payment for Under Acreage

That food consumers of the United States have definite protection in the 1938 farm program as far as wheat and corn are concerned was indicated this week in education meetings on the plan in Wayne county.

A farmer who plants less than 80 per cent of either his wheat or corn acreage allotment of 1938 gets less payment than the farmer who plants between 80 per cent and 100 per cent of his allotment.

For example, it has been cited, if the corn acreage allotment for a farm is 100 acres and the normal yield is 30 bushels, the full corn payment would be 100x30x10 cents per bushel, or $300. If the farmer with such a corn allotment planted only 60 acres of corn, his corn payment would be only 60x125%x30 bushels x 10 cents, or $225.

The same kind of a rule applies to wheat payments. Since acreage allotments represent 80 to 85 per cent of the customary acreages grown on the typical farm, not many farmers are going to reduce acreage of wheat or corn to 80 per cent of their allotments. Planting the crop, rather than harvesting, is given credit in this part of the 1938 program.

Contour-Tilled Soil Increases Yield

Growing 17 bushels of corn on a contour-tilled field in 1937 when yields on nearby fields were less than half this amount has convinced A. J. Cope, Pawnee county, that contour farming pays in crops as well as in erosion control.

This year all cultivated land on Cope's 120-acre farm will be planted on the contour. This method of planting, in addition to insuring protection to soil and conserving water from spring rains for use in summer droughts, helps to insure good stands, Cope believes. On contour-tilled fields, he reports that he has no difficulty with seeds washing out on the slopes and being buried so deeply on the level areas that they cannot germinate.

3,268 Debt Cases Are Adjusted By Aid Of FSA

Many Farmers Able to Get Credit Elsewhere After Agreement

Excessive debts of 3,268 Nebraska farmers have been adjusted by mutual agreement of debtors and creditors, according to a report from state headquarters of the Farm Security Administration at Lincoln. The settlements were made over the past two and one-half years.

"Only 1,884 of these were borrowers from the Farm Security Administration," said State Director L. A. White. "The other 1,384 were farmers who are not clients. FSA loans, of course, are only available to farm families who have no other credit resources and many times it works out that when a farmer's debt structure has been sufficiently reduced, he can secure credit elsewhere and does not become a borrower from this agency."

The adjustments showed an original indebtedness of $11,923,884 reduced 31 per cent to $2,150,942. As a result of the settlements taxes have been paid in the amount of $192,838.

"Releasing frozen assets and putting the farmer in a position where he can pay part of his indebtedness has prevented many foreclosures in this state," White continued. "Creditors and debtors alike approve this way of working out settlements that are beneficial to both."

The February report shows that during that month alone 101 settlements were made in Nebraska for a total reduction of $4,622, resulting in tax payments of $2,031.

Farm debt adjustment work is carried on by local committees assisted by the county Farm Security supervisor.

Complete ACP Precinct Meets

Precinct educational meetings on the 1938 agricultural conservation program have been completed with a very good attendance at all these meetings. Large attendance at the educational meetings indicates the increased interest in the farm program and an increased sign-up is expected.

Corn goals for the individual farms will be set up and given to the farmer before corn planting time. A second series of meetings will be held about May 1.

New Ham Recipes

Ham prepared properly is a nutritious, substantial food for every season of the year. But, now with the introduction of Puritan Tender Ham, this time-honored food has become a delicacy as well as a staple.

Puritan tender ham is sweet, juicy, flavorful and meltingly tender, and is an economical dish as well because it is prepared for the table with one-third less cooking time and shrink than the ordinary ham.

Here are two favorite Puritan tender ham recipes that came to us recommended very highly and proved to be as good as advance notices stated.

Ham Balls and Eggs in Mustard Sauce

- 1 1/2 cups ground baked ham
- 1/2 cup grated raw potato
- Dash black pepper
- 1 egg beaten
- 2 teaspoons finely chopped parsley
- 1 tablespoon ham fat or lard
- 3 hard cooked eggs
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard

Combine first five ingredients and mix well. Shape mixture in balls, allowing one heaping tablespoon to each ball. Brown in the ham fat. Melt the butter in a saucepan, blend in the flour, and add milk, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Stir in mustard, then add the hot ham balls and the hard cooked eggs, cut in halves lengthwise. Place over boiling water and heat 10 to 15 minutes before serving. Serves four or five.

Ham Pinwheels with Mushroom Sauce

- 2 cups family flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup lard
- 2 1/2 cup milk
- 1 1/2 cups chopped baked ham
- 1 cup grated American cheese
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 cup sliced, peeled mushrooms
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups milk
- Salt to suit taste

Sift flour, measure, and resift into mixing bowl with baking powder and salt. Cut in the lard, add milk and stir vigorously until dough thickens. Turn onto floured board, knead about 10 times, and roll out about one-fourth inch thick. Spread with half the butter and then with the ham and cheese which have been mixed together. Roll like a jelly roll and slice about one inch thick. Place on buttered baking pan and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 15 to 18 minutes, or until nicely browned. Meanwhile melt remaining butter in a skillet, add the mushrooms and saute until tender. Blend in flour, add milk, and cook with constant stirring until the sauce boils and thickens. Add salt to suit taste, and serve hot over hot pinwheels. Serves eight to 10.

The Jamieson Hospital and Clinic Wayne, Nebraska

So far as we are able to see it, the only thing wrong with the theory of Osteopathy is that it was introduced both as a theory and as a practical method of treatment of disease, at least a half century before the scientific minds of the world were able to accept it.

The theory of Osteopathy presupposes that the human body is capable of creating its own defenses against disease, and the duty of the physician is to aid nature along natural and physiological lines to combat disease. A great host of pioneering investigators have since preached this theory. Upon this foundation is built most that is good in modern disease control.

Osteopathy has never claimed to be a drugless school of practice and has consistently, though ever conservatively, made use of all that is good in the field of drug therapy.

Likewise, surgery has, from the beginning, been an important part of its theory and practice. There has never been a college of Osteopathy that has not taught surgery. In fact the correction of faulty body structure, either with or without surgery, is a basic form of procedure in our practice and an osteopathic surgeon, due to his training in structural relationships, as well as to his highly developed tactile sense, should excel in surgical technique. The expectant mother and the young child particularly profit by the methods employed by Osteopathic practitioners.

Prophylactic treatment against epidemic and infectious diseases is one of our favorite methods of maintaining health.

Postural and structural problems in adolescent children can be corrected only by the application of principles that are primarily Osteopathic and that we have used for three quarters of a century before any other school of practice had even "discovered" them.

Our principles have been proven by time, they have been accepted by important men in the field of science, and they are being increasingly approved by a growing host of patients throughout the whole country.

"As Easter Dawns" to Be Given at Redeemer's Church Sunday

"As Easter Dawns," a religious drama, will be presented by the Luther League of Our Redeemer's Lutheran church at the church parlors Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. The play is under the direction of Mrs. W. F. Most, assisted by Miss Ruby Heineman. The play is a modern story showing the curse of lack of true Christian spirit among the members of the church congregation. The church is about to close its doors because the members are trying to run it on a material basis and allowing personal feelings and internal strife to ruin it when the play opens. The faith and integrity of a few old staunch members succeed in correcting these ills.

Those taking part in the play include John Heinemann, Kenneth Dunklau, Erna Meyer, Mildred Ringer, Dolores Frevert, Minnie Denkinger, LeRoy Sund, Leonard Martens, and Beverly Canfield.

The candlebearers include Winifred Soehner, Dorothy Liedtke, Esther and Irene Thomsen, Betty Sund, Lila Westerhouse, Margaret Baker, and Marcella Brudigan.

The ladies choir will assist. Choir members include Mrs. Howard Kahler, Marjorie Lerner, Helen Vath, Marion Vath, Erna Meyer, Minnie Denkinger, and Marcella Frevert.

SECRETARY TO ALL

Rupert Hughes—the novelist says:

"Presidents, monarchs, magistrates, and other busy people have their reading done for them by secretaries who select and clip what will prove most important and interesting.

"The general reader must rely on such a service or go unformed. The vital thing is that the selection be made by one who has the gift for guessing what ought to be condensed. In the Reader's Digest the public has such a secretary, and an ideal one."

I read the Reader's Digest myself regularly, and I unhesitatingly recommend it to every reader of this paper. It is an ideal "literary" secretary.—The Editor.—Adv.

Crop Acreage Is Estimated By Bureau

Six Per Cent Decrease In Planted Acreage Is Expected

The crop reporting board of the United States department of agriculture makes the following report on the indicated acreage to be planted in 1938 of certain crops based upon reports from farmers in all parts of the country to the department on or about March 1 regarding their acreage intentions for the 1938 season. This report does not allow for the effects of the agricultural conservation program, except in so far as some individual farmers may have taken it into consideration when reporting their plans. The purpose of this report is to assist growers in making such further changes in their acreage plans as may appear desirable. The acreage actually planted in 1938 may turn out to be larger or smaller than the indicated acreages here shown by reason of weather conditions, price changes, labor supply, financial conditions, the agricultural conservation program and the effects of the intentions report itself on farmers' actions.

For Nebraska, if planting intentions are carried out, a total of 13,042,000 acres, exclusive of winter wheat and rye, will be planted this year as compared with 13,847,000 acres planted in 1937, or 6 per cent less. Compared to the 1937 planted acreage, a decrease of 5 per cent is indicated for corn, a decrease of 6 per cent for oats, a 2 per cent increase for barley and a 15 per cent increase for potatoes. The acreage of grain sorghums is considerably larger than the acreage planted in 1936 and 1937 but about 18 per cent less than the acreage planted in 1935. The acreage of spring wheat is only about half as much as the record sown last year.

The decrease in spring wheat is attributed to less need for replacing abandoned winter wheat fields with spring wheat in western areas and poor spring wheat yields in recent years. Indicated decreases in corn and oats is a result of the unusually large seedings of winter wheat and rye last fall as well as a reaction to poor yields on these crops in the areas of the state that were hit hardest by drouth last year. Barley acreage is maintaining itself at a relatively high level because of some tendency to shift spring-feed grain acreage to barley in counties where drouth and grasshopper damage was most severe last year. The indicated acreage for potatoes is higher than the smaller than average acreage last year due to the fact that moisture conditions in the western dry land areas are more favorable and the price of seed potatoes relatively lower than a year ago. Soil moisture conditions, although not especially favorable throughout the entire state, are much better than this time last year. Except for a few local areas, top soil moisture supply is generally adequate to start new crop growth.

"THE FIRST HUNDRED YEARS"

"Go right in, Mr. Claymore-er-Conway."

To David Conway (Robert Montgomery) there never was a girl like his wife, Lynn (Virginia Bruce). And David includes Helen of Troy, Cleopatra, the Queen of Sheba and a couple of goddesses on the list: When a man feels that way about his wife after five years of marriage, the lady's got something! Lynn returns the compliment. Her David tops. Her only trouble is she's much too busy to find the time to stop and realize it.

"Lynn! Tell California the deal's off."

Lynn, professionally speaking, is the great Miss Claymore—the Inc. of Harry Borden, Inc., Actors' and Writers' Agents. Her curly blonde head, set so prettily on her lovely white shoulders, holds the shrewdest brain in show business; and her boss, Harry Borden (Marion Williams) knows it! She works for him under a newly signed contract at a fabulous salary. Money in the Conway household is a one-sided affair, being all in Lynn's pocket.

"David! I'm so happy for you."

David, a struggling ship's architect, bears up with Lynn's control of the Conway exchequer only because he's sure he'll get his break some day. And he's right! A New Bedford shipbuilding concern offers him a contract at fifteen thousand a year! David is jubilant. So is Lynn, until she discovers that they must live in New Bedford. Leaving New York spells the end of her career and she can't accept that possibility.

"Has it been fun, keeping me, Lynn?"

David is first amazed, then furious at her attitude. "Did you imagine I'd continue letting you pay the bills forever?" he demands. "I have my career to think of," she answers and suggests that he live in New Bedford, she in New York, with week end visits to tide them over. "I want to live with you, not visit you," he shouts. Suddenly, these two, who have known only happiness, find themselves a million miles apart. Read the next chapter.

Band Trees In Canker Worm Control

Losses of foliage by thousands of elm, hackberry, apple, and other trees last May by the spring canker worm may be repeated again this year, it has been reported to the Wayne county Farm Bureau from the Nebraska college of agriculture.

Male cankerworm moths are now flying in large numbers and the female moth is ascending trees to lay eggs which later will hatch into the measuring worms which do the damage.

Prof. M. H. Swenk, chairman of the entomology department at the agricultural college, says "banding" of trees to prevent the female moths from ascending is considered the most successful. This is usually done by the use of a preparation known as tree tanglefoot. It should be applied to a portion of the tree where the bark has been smoothed down somewhat with a drawknife, or on pieces of tar paper six to eight inches wide with the rough spaces under the paper bands filled with cotton to prevent the wingless females from ascending the trees under the bands to lay their eggs.

Thorough cultivation and spraying are some assistance in control work.

TEST, TEST AND TEST

AMERICAN industry, according to Consumers Information, surpasses that of any other country in its exact methods of testing products and assuring maximum performance before passing them on to the user. The company reports, for instance, that 25% of its labor and cost of production goes into testing. Above are shown tests of two of the 600 different operations which go into the manufacture of their vacuum cleaners. The young lady is balancing the fan, an intricate job in which she puts tiny drops of solder on the light side until the balance is perfect. ## We Prefer Local Cream---

To farmers who have cream to sell we wish to point out that as a local creamery we desire and need locally produced cream.

At all times we pay the highest market price for all dairy products. Bringing your cream directly to us saves you transportation costs of shipping your cream to other markets which pay no higher prices than we offer you.

When the local supply is limited it is necessary for us to ship in cream to meet the consumer demand. Not only does it mean inconvenience and delay for us but the freight costs we have to pay lowers the local market. We prefer local cream and prefer paying these freight costs to you in the form of higher market prices for your cream. In order to create a better local market, patronize a local creamery. It pays you dividends.

Genius is Versatile

By Daniel I. McNamara

Fritz Kreisler, A.S.C.A.P.

FRITZ KREISLER, master violinist, has achieved the pinnacle of musical fame in defiance of most of the traditions of his art. For months at a time, he never touches his beloved violins. Even on the day of a concert he does not practice. When he was fourteen, world-famed as a boy prodigy, he quit music and completely forgot his violin for ten years. Then he decided to return to music, and within eight weeks he made his debut in Berlin and electrified the music critics.

Annually, on completion of his concert tours throughout the world, he lays aside his priceless Guarnerius del Jesu, his Gagliani, his Stradivarius and his second Guarnerius and devotes himself to other interests, only to return each season with seemingly increased virtuosity. Other musicians marvel at his unorthodox methods, yet he justifies his habit as based upon a sound conception of his own capacities. He believes that for him half an hour of intense concentration is better than a week of the arduous labor of endless repetition.

Kreisler is not only a master musician—he is one of the outstanding intellectuals of the great artists. He enjoys conversational skill in the classic Greek and Latin languages and is thoroughly schooled in half a dozen modern tongues. When as a youth he dropped music, it was to pursue the study of medicine, his father's profession. He is keenly abreast of modern scientific progress and invention. His skill as a painter was developed under famous French masters. His return to music followed the interruption of his medical studies by the conventional compulsory military service of his native Austria, where he was born, in Vienna, February 2, 1875. He writes brilliantly, is the author of several books. When Kreisler, on becoming an American citizen in 1924, joined the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, one of the most startling of modern musical hoaxes was revealed. Kreisler had created many original compositions, for the lasting beauty of which he was rated among the leading of modern standard composers. But the machinery for copyright protection of members of the Society soon revealed that many other numbers, which had been included in Kreisler's programs and had been widely played by other musicians, were not really the work of composers supposedly of a former generation, but of the great Kreisler himself, modestly cloaking his identity under varying noms de plume. The critics have not forgiven him for what they regarded as a hoax; but the American public, which appreciates "Liebesfreud," "Caprice Viennois," "Schoen Rosmarin" and other Kreisler compositions, does not want name the master used.

Calvary Is Theme of Rev. W. E. Most's Sunday Sermon

If we as Christians, or more specific, we as teachers, pastors and leaders, are getting discouraged, if the results are not what we anticipate, then we, like George Tyrrell, should find in the cross a motive to keep us courageously at our task.

The message of Christ and Him crucified should really when speaking in the terms of an African convert, "condemn us to be a sinner."

The first word from the cross was, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do." How can members of a Church claim to be Christians and hold grudges and be bitter toward those inside and out of the same Church. As we hold up the cross before our eyes, we have the mightiest leverage possible to put an end to any divisive feelings of the Church or organization to which we belong.

There are members in every Church who are ungenerous and even stingy, they need to face the fact that they claim to be followers of one who gave himself to the uttermost.

The cross will also enable us to interpret trouble to our fellow sufferers. There are always such who have suffered financial losses, who have been disappointed in cherished plans, who have suffered personal illness or for some one in their homes, or those who have lost those who are dear to them. They are tempted to curse God and die, as Job was tempted. Now be honest with yourselves, have you not been tempted to think that God does not care, and you have said that you have done nothing to deserve such affliction? Then is the time for us to think that Christ suffered not because of any wrong that he had done but for the sake of winning men to God. We perhaps cannot answer your questions just why you suffer, but we can point you to the cross as evidence, that your suffering is no proof of a lack of God's love. Let us never look upon our sufferings and the cross as if that was the end. The cross is followed by the resurrection. Calvary was not a futile adventure. Love did not fail at the last and crucial moment. Jesus was not held by death. The resurrection does not simply mean that Jesus is alive, but even more that he is alive and is still our Friend and helper. We need that dynamic assurance today: "That Jesus is alive in power with and among his followers and is going on with his work in and through the Church."

When we ask what are we to do today on account of the cross, let us think that the law of the sacrificial was not ended on Calvary. It warns us that "he who saves his life shall lose it." This saying may jar our complacency and apparently contradict our boasted prudence. But how does that succession of the unselfish who bear fruit fare today? This is not a time for false optimism. Yet neither is it a time to yield to despair; for no other reason than the fact that: Every problem which confronts us defines a solution other than that based on mutual regard for the interest of our fellow men.

If we feel no longing to right wrongs, to contend against injustice and cruelty, to abolish non-social factors prolific of crime and vice, we are inviting ourselves a hell of loneliness, which mere lip professions cannot avert. If we shrink our place in the mighty battle for truth, equity and peace which is being waged openly or secretly among all ranks and conditions of world society, we must face the ordeal of those who refuse to die to the lower, in order that they shall live to the higher.

"Awake, then, thou that sleep-est and arise from the death of the selfish soul." That is the cry of heavenly wisdom to those who fail to do their duty and die unto the lower standard.

But I feel and am persuaded that those latent forces of a real Christ follower are at our disposal. Beneath our surface folly and selfishness, there is an infinitude of love, truth and justice awaiting the reviving breath of God's spirit among our men, women, and children! Amen.

Dr. Pickett Addresses Kiwanis Club

the University of Cleveland, added courses in chiropody. The largest school of chiropody is now the Illinois College of Chiropody at Chicago, founded in 1912 by Dr. Henry Du Vries of Chicago and Dr. Von Schille of Vienna. Schools in this field were at first largely correspondence schools, but have now attained the status of regular residence colleges. Entrance requirements differ in various states. In the better schools the requirements now include a college pre-medical course, four years residence work in a college of chiropody, and a hospital internship.

The present definition of chiropody is "that branch of medicine which treats the ailments of human hands and feet through medical, surgical and mechanical means."

One of the important mechanical factors in shoes. Only 20 per cent of the foot ills of humanity are found among men, due probably to their insistence on comfortable shoes. Of men's shoes, 20 per cent are made of kid skin, 70 per cent of calf, and 10 per cent of kangaroo.

How can men be assured of properly fit shoes? Eleven states now have laws requiring shoe-men to qualify through specific courses in the foot and shoe-fitting. Shoes vary greatly in value and price. Good shoes must not only be made of good leathers, but must be made under specified and time-consuming conditions. The uppers and soles must be wet when sewed together, then must be shaped over wooden lasts which cost $3 a pair, and from two to seven days being allowed for drying. Shoe machinery (97 per cent) is owned not by the shoe factory, but by a corporation which rents the machines to the factories, and which therefore exercises a considerable influence in establishing the price of shoes.

Dr. Pickett closed by extending an invitation to the Wayne club to an inter-club meeting at Norfolk to be held on a day during the week of April 25, the precise date to be announced later through the local secretary.
