At the business session of the board of directors, it was voted that they donate $10 to aid the Woman's club in printing a booster bulletin of Wayne to be distributed at the state Federation of Woman's clubs convention to be held here April 20-22.

It was pointed out by the speaker that the depression has made a larger inroad in the business of eastern cities than it has in the midwest. Atlantic City is known as the playground city of America and as a result of the depression business conditions are very bad.

Dr. Anderson pointed out that a report of a special committee, studying the question of graduate credit in teachers colleges,

CITY POLLS OPEN 8 TO 8, STRAW VOTE SHOWS VOC. AGR. AS HOT CONTEST

THE WAYNE WAY

It is not the Wayne way to whine and whimper. If it isn't wise, it isn't the Wayne way.

The Wayne way admits of no room for pride and prejudice in the deciding of a major community question. Family feuds, and personal animosities have no place in the Wayne way of resolving honest differences. Jealousies and bickerings are ruled out at election time. Any other way would not be worthy of Wayne.

In Wayne, truth must not be suffered to be crucified. The Wayne of our pioneer fathers calls for recreation with the rising of every sun. It is not the Wayne way to drift. Wayne breathes the current, is upstream bent. Wayne without progress would not be Wayne.

It is characteristic of Wayne to weigh values. First things must ever be first in Wayne.

Wayne has standards and ideals, yet Wayne is practical, can "cut the cloth to fit the pattern." Example: The installation of vocational agriculture in the Wayne high school. Here is a much needed vital service to rural youth. It would be fine to start off vocational agriculture in a large and well-appointed building of brick and stone, a building that would "harmonize" with the stately thirty-year old building which houses the Wayne city schools.

Rev. Dunning Preaches On The King Of Salvation

(Editor's Note. This is the third in a series of sermons by Wayne ministers to be published by the News. The week's sermon was delivered Sunday by Mr. Guy B. Dunning, pastor of the Christian church.)

THE KING OF SALVATION
Our text is found in the ninth chapter of Zechariah, ninth verse, in which Jesus is prophesied as King of Jerusalem and as having salvation. A fulfillment of the prophecy is recorded in the twenty-first chapter of Matthew of which the fifth verse calls special attention to the event of that day as a fulfillment of the promise of the prophet.

The word salvation is closely related to the word salvage. To salvage is to save something from the wreckage. This is the condition in which man is. He is wrecked. No man can save alive his own soul. It would seem to be easier for life to be continued than for it to begin in the first place but however that might be, the fact remains that every man dies. Death stills the greatest genius.

The seed of disobedience sown in Eden still brings ultimate ruin to man's greatest achievements. Some years ago it was found that wood worms had all but ruined one of the finest Stradivarius violins. Though it escape war, earthquake, fire or wind, yet eventually the finest architecture crumbles into dust. Twenty-five years make an almost complete change in some communities even to its inhabitants. The most splendid building of old, Solomon's temple, was destroyed five hundred years before Jesus came to this earth.

In the third round of a bout with Bud Hilger, Columbus, Blakeman either fell or was knocked from a corner of the ring and struck the back of his head on the edge of the platform, according to other Norfolk fighters on the card.

His brother, Bob Blakeman, was the youth's second. He tried to catch his brother as he fell, but missed. However, he kept

The Wayne News conducted a straw vote by telephone and personally through interviews Monday with hope of throwing some light on the probable outcome of the vocational agriculture questionnaire which voters of Wayne have had submitted to them by the school board at today's election.

A total of 191 persons were contacted. Ninety-eight indicated they would vote in favor of vocational agriculture, 43 indicated they would vote against it while 44 were undecided how they would vote.

The business men were 8 to 1 in favor as 64 said they would vote for it and eight said they would vote against it; three were doubtful. In the residential district 34 indicated they would vote in favor, 35 said they would vote against it while 44 said they had not yet come to a definite decision as to how they would vote.

The result of the total 191 straw votes in Wayne showed 98 in favor, 43 opposed and 44 undecided.

The News believes the sampling of 191 opinions gives a fair reflection of public sentiment as the paper went to press.

Of 33 farmers interviewed 30 out of the 33 said they would like to see a favorable vote.

him from falling off the platform. Keith got to his feet and started for his dressing room, but dropped after a few feet. He was rushed to a hospital immediately where he died later.

The Wayne Way (continued from pl)

However, this is not time to plunge and to splurge; albeit by the same token, the present is no time to neglect vital educational services. Wayne's educational institutions provide vocational opportunities in two fields: Commercial and teaching. Both of these callings belong primarily to women. Notwithstanding this fact, fate has decreed that there shall be more boys than girls in the Wayne high school of 1938. If a survey were made of the vocations the 112 boys in the Wayne high school are interested in, the results would show a wide range of choice. A few boys would want to prepare for this and that trade and profession. That is natural and all very well. One occupation, however, would emerge—in fact does emerge—far in the lead of all the others. Its name: Agriculture. For a farming community, that too is natural and is as it should be. Cross-section surveys of the boys in vocational guidance and other classes reveal that more than 30% of all the boys in the Wayne high school expect to be farmers. (The figure for the whole state is 27%.)

What a privilege it should be for any community to provide a vocational type of education to such a sizable group of potential community builders. What would it mean in cold dollars, in economic wealth, to Wayne and Wayne county to have 10 to 15 young high school graduates of the vocational agriculture course take up the business of farming in this locality year after year!

For twenty years the government has been willing to share the cost of vocational agriculture with local school districts. Like any good thing, however, there is some cost attaching.

Vocational Agriculture for Wayne means the renting or construction of a suitable shop and classrooms. Serviceability and suitability should govern in this matter. The type of architecture and materials are secondary considerations. But this much may certainly be said: Housing is needed for an important educational service and this is no time for the people of Wayne to vaunt their pride and demand an expensive type of building or nothing. The spirit of education, of service makes only modest requests. Its one aim to furnish an answer to a need, and for doing that there is no time like the present. Boys are boys only once. For many of them, educationally, the high school years are the "now or never" years. Their vocational opportunities wait on the will of Wayne.

Lest We Forget—We Have With Us 11,000,000 Unemployed

It won't be long until Congress is confronted with the responsibility of making provisions for the care of jobless workers during the fiscal year beginning July 1 next, and lines are forming for a battle over President Roosevelt's tentative proposal of a billion-dollar appropriation.

That is $750,000,000 less than was appropriated for the present fiscal year, and many governmental officials and welfare workers are protesting its inadequacy.

On January 1, 1938 one in each four persons in the United States was dependent on relief, according to a report published last week by the Social Security Board. At that time about 5,600,000 different households were receiving public aid. At the usual average of 3.5 persons to a household, that means there were nearly 30,000,000 individuals on relief.

There are many aspects of the picture which will come before Congress when the time comes for the consideration of the next appropriation.

Today, in this country many of our strongest social institutions are spending much of their time, energy and influence combating the war scare. Not enough attention is being directed toward the other public enemy—unemployment. Every one is entitled to the expression of the relative importance of these two menaces, but in our own judgment, unemployment in many ways is just as bad as war.

Millions of our citizens have been wrecked spiritually and physically by the depression and it will require generations to rebuild the morale and health of the Nation.

The Senate Committee on Unemployment and Relief has heard many witnesses describe the human wreckage caused by the depression, but nothing as shocking as the testimony give a couple of weeks ago by Surgeon General Thomas Parran. He declared that bodies, minds and spirits of men, women and children are being "irreparably" ruined, and that America will pay a terrible price for many generations. "I speak not as an economist, but, as a doctor" he said "when I urge that useful employment be provided for all who are willing and able to work. Whatever the cost, I urge the vital necessity of providing for our destitute citizens a livelihood earned by individual effort. I emphasize useful work; no other type fills the mental needs." It would seem to us that the primary task of this country, the important task which should supercede party lines and every petty argument—is that task of finding a job for America's 11 million unemployed!

And We Still Have Thousands of Employers Who Receive Less Than Many of Their Salaried Employees

Talking to the owner of what most everyone considers a large thriving firm over in Sioux City, he said, "for five years now I have received less money from my own business than I have paid in salaries to several of my employees individually. I have been compelled to do this in order to keep my doors open." The experience of this man is doubtless the experience of thousands of others. Keeping up a payroll in many businesses had replaced the goal of expansion. Yet there are thousands of employees who will never understand this! The heroic efforts of individuals battling through adversity is not confined to the missionary on yonder field of darkness, ignorance and superstition. Almost priestly is the role played by many businessmen and industrial leaders in this country today. Striving against almost unsurmountable adversity, thousands of employers have taken a militant stand to hold together organized efforts and in many instances without complaint or the slightest indication that things were tough. We say, hats off to the sturdy characters of the old time Yankee spirit!

Citizen Gannett Is Against the Reorganization Bill
 Mr. Frank E. Gannett is the owner of a prosperous chain of newspapers. Just now his activities are being directed less to his normal business than to telling the country what a terrible thing the New Deal is and how President Roosevelt is not only striving for dictatorial powers but also is destroying the business of the country.

According to its corporate report, recently made, the Gannett Company, Inc., made a net profit in 1937 of $1,123,085. This was after surtax, and amounted to something like $100,000 more than the net proceeds of the year before. They are pretty good newspapers, even though they are unable to find anything in President Roosevelt's policies or processes that is not subversive, dangerous and potentially disastrous. Mr. Gannett's figures, however, do not jibe very well with the steady output, of propaganda of the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government, of which he is president, as well as being president of the Gannett Newspapers.

Just now Mr. Gannett is terribly exercised because the Senate Committee investigating lobbying in connection with the Government Reorganization bill has subpoenaed Dr. Edward A. Rumely, secretary of the Gannett committee, to produce its books and records at the hearing. According to Mr. Gannett, this committee is at work "to destroy one of the most vital liberties of the American people—the sanctity of their homes, the freedom of their thought, and the privacy of their papers."

Before this blast, Dr. Rumely had testified that the committee had raised something over $200,000 and had expended $50,000 in its campaign. Nobody except the Gannett Association knows all the ramifications, of course, and it may be that Dr. Rumely is technically correct, but somebody spent many times $50,000 along the very lines that the National Committee to Uphold Constitutional Government is following. The mails have been choked with this material.

Indeed, the huge expenditures of the Liberty League last year would not appear to have been a great deal, if any, more than has been expended by its successors in the same endeavor. Mr. Gannett has said that none of his contributions, so far as he knew, came from the Liberty League. However, president Frederick H. Stinchfield, president of the American Bar Association, and a few others who appeared on the Liberty League stationery, are equally conspicuous on the membership list of the outfit which now refuses to let the Senate investigators have a look at its books.

There would not appear to be any particular smearing involved in asking an organization lobbying against a measure pending in Congress to produce the written record of its activities, so perhaps what Mr. Gannett had in mind as a smear was the cross-examination of Dr. Rumely dealing with his conviction and sentence and short jail service on a trading-with-the-enemy charge twenty years ago. That had some relation to the purchase of a New York newspaper, allegedly on behalf of Germany.

The Reorganization bill is aimed at the correction of a lot of faults that have developed in the processes of the Executive departments. Every recent President, regardless of party, has made the effort to get rid of the over-lapping and duplication, to reassign activities incongruous of one department to another where they logically belong, and generally to modernize the whole set-up. The enemies of the measure—and the enemies of the President—insist that the plan he offered extend his powers unduly. Well, the President is the man entrusted with running the Executive end of the Government. Whatever powers the bill pending contains, as this is written, can be changed by any Congress. There will be an election a few months hence of a new Congress with complete authority to remodel, revamp or reconstruct the whole business, if anything untoward should develop. There is no more politics in the question than in the weather, but here comes a political group with the single purpose of embarrassing the Democratic President, spending huge sums to defeat the bill, and shrieking into the political universe that if the alteration in the governmental machinery goes into effect, tomorrow will see a Stalin, Mussolini or Hitler dragging the nation from the White House.

It is the same loud cry and the same old crew, working at the same old business. When stocks were up, the members of this outfit protested that the rise was not in any way the effect of the Roosevelt policies; when stocks recede, they clamor that it is all his fault. Every citizen in this country has the God-given right to find fault with Government; to object to any measure pending in Congress. He has the privilege to spend, in his endeavors, his own money, or money given him by others. That is all right.

But what privilege has such a partizan to refuse to show how he got the money, where he got the money, or in what direction he disbursed it? The Senate Committee wants to find out what interests are behind the efforts to influence the acts of the National Legislature. So it is following the precedents of every investigating committee since the beginning of the Republic, and requiring the production of the books.

The Tea-pot Domers, and the corruptionists of that date put up the same cry of persecution and "smearing." If the Gannett Committee has been on the level; if it has nothing to hide, and if its acts reflect no discredit upon it, what on earth has it to fear from showing its records?

making picture romance of home-

"If I could only see exactly how she mixes and handles her piecrust."

That comment has been heard from beginners and from more experienced cooks at many cooking schools. Craning necks and anxious eyes, trained on the stage from the sides and back of the demonstration hall, have failed to catch all of the important steps in pastry-making and other culinary arts. Only the early birds in the very front row have had a close-up of the stage in the past, and even they could not peer directly into the mixing bowl.

Now the wizardry of the camera has solved the problem, making it possible for every person in the Gay Theater to share each fascinating stage of the planning, measuring, blending, and baking in practical up-to-the-minute kitchens. Keeping pace with the baking, roasting and frying, a series of salads and frozen delicacies will parade in and out of the adaptable electric refrigerator, which will reveal its host of possibilities for simplifying labor and marketing, and contributing to good health and good food.

How to take the gloom out of laundry day? How to save time, energy and temper in meal preparation? How to be attractive in spite of the daily rush? How to make the piecrust that men love to eat? How to give first-aid to fallen cakes?

It won't be necessary to ask the questions, for expert home specialists have anticipated these very problems. They know what bothers many an experienced housekeeper, because it is their job to know and to counsel helpfully.

Fun, novelty and entertainment are joined throughout the feature picture, for it is always fair weather when neighborly cooks get together. Home-making has a universal appeal, and every woman is eager to learn the newest news of her craft.

Cooking, romance, modern kitchens and clever actors and actresses do not tell the complete story of this 1938 model cooking school. The picture is a whole laboratory of modern ideas and wise counsel, touching the latest developments in home equipment and accessories, including laundry methods, ways to prepare leftovers, beauty secrets, hints on saving time and labor, and fresh suggestions on how to entertain graciously, as well as how to be thrifty.

It won't be necessary to carry pad and pencil and try to scribble measurements in the darkened theater, because free recipe sheets with complete formulas for many of the delicious dishes prepared in this Motion Picture Cooking School will be distributed daily.

Surprises in store for readers of the Wayne News will not be limited to free entertainment, and instruction, since there will be daily gifts, many of which will bring pleasure and renewed appreciation of "school days" long after the final graduation on the closing day.

Many firms and local merchants are co-operating with The Wayne News in staging this event.

The parade of home-makers April 12, 13, and 14 in the Gay Theatre.

WORDS WITHOUT MUSIC

By LOUIS REID

STATE and city boosters are ever busy in publicizing their commercial, industrial, and, frequently, scenic advantages. Were they to devote as much attention to turning out a first class song they would have more success in spreading the glories of their communities.

A tune that can be warbled and whistled can carry its message to the crossroads of the country with greater force and rapidly than all the inspired statements ever rolled out of a mimeograph.

The citizenry has been Carolinacousious for years because of the epidemic of Carolina songs, "Carolina Moon" and "Cryin' for the Carolines," we recall in particular, swept across the nation with the rush of a tidal wave. Of course, Carolina has an advantage over other commonwealths. Its name is one of the most musical in the Union.

However, even a name is not the vital factor, it would seem, in conveying the virtues of a State, Kentucky, "hard to pronounce and even harder to sing, is blessed with one of the most enduring of melodies.

Songwriters also have done well by Virginia, New Hampshire, Michigan and California. And didn't the ditties, "O-hio" and "I-I-s-s-s-s-i-p-p-i," first made popular by Frances White, carry the appeal of those States to the far corners of the Republic?

Hymning the Cities More attention was drawn to Buffalo by "Put Me Off at Buffalo" and "Shuffle Off to Buffalo" than by all the herculean labors of the city's chamber of commerce. The cowboy song, "San Antonio" did more to glorify the Texas city than anything since the Battle of the Alamo. The "St. Louis Blues" and "Meet Me in St. Louis, Louis" brought incalculable publicity value to the Missouri metropolis. Nothing has ever made known the charms of Florida's Winter Mecca, as forcibly as "Moon Over Miami."

The thrifty tribute to San Francisco, "Hello, Frisco," which in a Claire sang in a now forgotten "Polka," is still found in the repertoires of the dance bands. "The Sidewalks of New York" is known from one end of America to the other. The number, "California, Here I Come," may not have put William G. McAdoo over in the Democratic National Convention of 1924, but there is no question it has put California over with mass America.

Several years ago the New Haven Railroad set out to create good will by means of a song called "On the New York, New Haven and Hartford." A tuneful ditty, it became one of the most popular songs of its day. It accomplished its purpose softly and decisively. People, thinking of the New Haven, always thought of the song. Yet, chambers of commerce, with their "Boost Centerville" publicity, persistently fail to draw a lesson from the songwriters. They still confine the major part of their ballyhoo to the printed text and neglect a melodic appeal to the eardrums.

W. F. GATES SAID: "Many compositions played in a proper tempo require the production of over a thousand tones per minute."

Tribute to Charleston, S. C., is the latest city to get the light. On Feb. 14, in its historic old Dock Street Theatre, now entirely rehabilitated, it is presenting the world premier of a Suite, by the noted composer Lily Strickland, one of over a hundred women members of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, dedicated to the city and depicting in its various movements such famed and beloved landmarks as the Battery, the Old House in Trad Street, the Slave Market, the Magnolia Gardens and the Bells of St. Michael's. A special all string orchestra of fifty pieces will perform the work.

Lily Strickland, the files of ASCAP show, continues to be one of the most popular year in and year out of feminine melody-makers. Her best known song is, of course, "Lindy Lou," but not far behind in public esteem are "Dreamin' in Time," a song of the bayous; "Ma L'il Bateau" and "My Love's a Fisherman," which she wrote during a long sojourn in India. Next number from her pen is of a religious nature, bears the title "Song of David"

Sigmund Romberg is ambitious, it is said, to write a grand opera. We would like to see him try it. Certainly, he has proved he can write a brilliant aria, a rousing chorus.

Mike Riley, who helped to turn out the song craze, "The Music Goes Round and Round," has now a roundly called "Ooooo-Oh Boom!" "Whistle While You Work," from "Snow White," is getting a radio airing... Another tune with a zany title, "Dippy Doodle," is sweeping the country. There's a good golly title... Despite their gleaming white teeth, dance band leaders never seem to attract the advertising eyes of tooth paste manufacturers... Strange, no use has ever been made of such provocative song titles as "Tug Boat on the Hudson" and "In Any Language, it's Love" until Bullock and Spina and Gordon and Revel, respectively, laid claim to them.

First American Comic Opera... The first American comic opera is not generally known. It was "The Begum," a work by Reginald De Koven and produced in Philadelphia in 1887 with a cast—there were casts in those days!—comprising DeWolf Hopper, Jefferson De Angelis, Digby Bell, Harry McDonough and Mathilde Cottrelly. De Koven's estate draws royalties from ASCAP by virtue of the late composer's membership in the Society.

It was largely upon the quality of this work that De Koven formed his association with the noted company known as the Bostonians. This organization presented this comic opera "Don Quixote." For this group he wrote his famous "Robin Hood," which has been called the "National American Opera," though, of course, its theme had no identification with America. This description was based entirely upon the fact that the work, composed by an American, held the stage for thirty-seven uninterrupted years. It took De Koven three months to write it and its original production cost, it is said, only $150.

Seventy Years a Musician

By Daniel I. McNamara

WALTER DAMROSCH, A.S.C.A.P., dean of American musicians, climbed as a tiny child upon the piano stool of his parents' home in Breslau, Silesia, more than seventy years ago, to embark upon an unparalleled musical career. Today at seventy-six, symbol of American musical culture the world over, the tall distinguished-looking, vigorous and alert Damrosch bridges a gap between the classicists of the last century and the modernists of today. His proudest boast is, "I am an American musician."

Walter Damrosch's earliest memories of his father, later the famous American conductor Leopold Damrosch, are of his being host to the elite of European musicians. The Damrosch home was a rendezvous of artists. Here were entertained Wagner, Liszt, von Bulow, Clara Schumann, Joachim, Auer and Rubinstein. Wagner was godfather for another Damrosch boy, his namesake, who died in early childhood.

The elder Damrosch brought his family to America when Walter was nine and soon became a leading figure in the New York musical scene. Walter's education was extended by trips to cultural centers of the Old World, during which he renewed his childhood acquaintances with Wagner and Liszt. He was twenty-three when his father was fatally stricken while conducting a series of Wagnerian operas at the Metropolitan, and the young man took over his baton, promptly to become recognized as the leading exponent of Wagnerian opera in the New World.

Conductor at the Metropolitan, impresario of his own German opera company, conductor of the New York Oratorio Society and of the New York Symphony Orchestra, composer, author, lecturer and educator, he has been a leader of American music for more than five decades. He has been honored with doctorates by New York University, Princeton, Columbia, Brown, Pennsylvania, University of New York State and Washington and Jefferson College.

He is president of the National Institute of Arts and Letters and a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

His radio broadcasts on music appreciation have been received with growing acclaim for ten years. Now, with a weekly audience of more than seven million, these lectures are generally regarded as his crowning educational achievement.

One of his four grand operas, "The Man Without a Country," first performed May 12, 1936, was selected for reproduction by the Metropolitan as a feature of its 1937-1938 season.

A vigorous exponent of Americanism in music, Damrosch has conducted premieres of many American compositions. He is a member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

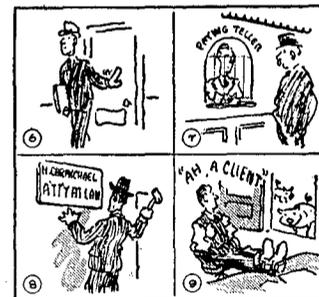

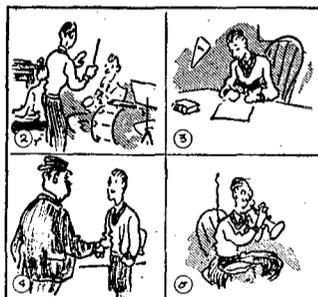

Recently, upon being felicitated on completion of an important musical task in the midst of many duties, he remarked with characteristic energy, "So much more remains to be done that I long for at least one hundred more years of life."

BIRTH OF A SONG

"STAR DUST" By Hoagy Carmichael and Mitchell Parish

From ASCAP Files By Joseph R. Fleisler and Paul Carruth

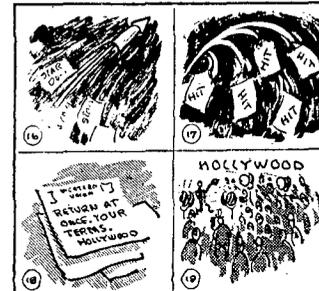

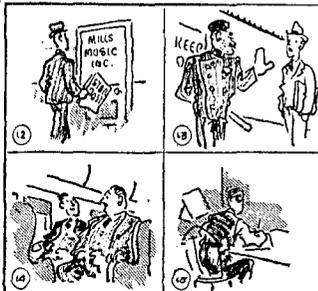

In Bloomington, Indiana, where he was born, Hoagy Carmichael picked up piano from his rag-time playing mother. His father was a one step clog dancer and electrician.

Hoagy had the Indiana University band between studying law and writing songs. Paul Whiteman liked his "Washboard Blues" and recorded it.

Music publishers called Carmichael, but he turned to banking, then to his chosen profession, law.

His chosen, but unprofitable profession gave him lots of time toinker with tunes, and Hoagy's brief case was full of music when he left Florida.

The Hoosier schoolboy returned to Indianapolis to continue his career, but if law was on his brain, swing was in his heart.

Hoagy wrote "Star Dust" and other songs during this period. He tried to crash Hollywood with no success, came east and settled down in the music world.

Two years later, and "Star Dust" cometed into first place as the hit torch song of this generation. Now Hollywood DEMANDED him.

Hoagy's many fine songs have won him high rank in the American Society of Composers, Authors & Publishers, which licenses the performing rights of his music.

Dr. Anderson's Speech Before Kiwanis (Continued from Page 1)

showed clearly that the tendency is in favor of giving work for the masters degree. Forty-six per cent of all state teachers colleges are now giving work in the graduate field. He also stated that Nebraska plans to enlarge its program in the state teacher colleges to include graduate credit in order that high school teachers holding certificates qualifying them to teach in the secondary schools may meet the requirements for renewal of those certificates by taking work in the state teachers colleges.

One of the speakers at this convention pointed out that the two most important points at issue in the drawing of students to a teachers college are found in the type of educational program offered and the type of community in which the teachers college is located. Parents consider both these points in picking out a college for their children.

In giving impressions gained at the meeting of the American Association of School Administrators, President Anderson remarked that the chief points of discussion in many of the addresses had to do with the following subjects: The war situation, the present recession which threatens to become a depression, federal aid to education, the need of education for the continuation of democracy, private versus public education, and propaganda.

Dr. Anderson said that Dr. Charles Judd, dean of the school of education of Chicago University, gave as the significant points in his address, "Major Trends in Education," the following: Reorganization of the present school system which will include six years of elementary and eight years of secondary education; in other words, secondary education will include work now commonly taught from the seventh grade to include the first two years of college.

His second point had to do with the reorganization of the curriculum, and his third point had to do with the question of socializing the offering.

The speaker closed his address by giving an account of a visit to the United States congress in Washington, D. C. with a fitting tribute to Helen Keller, who was a speaker at the convention.

Coil of Rope and Shaft of Light Save Ex-Flier from Death in Arctic

"All this had scarcely run through my mind," Inkster said, "when the anchor chain let go. In another minute the barge was under way. There was nothing I could do to stop it or save myself. It was unlikely I could swim to shore, and if I did, I'd soon freeze to death.

"I remembered that a few days previous a trapper had been camping up-river. There was a chance he was still there. So, as we came near the place, I began to shout. In a minute or so I heard dog barking, then came a halloo from the man.

"As we got opposite the camp, I began making casts with a small cable. The barge was moving fast by this time, with every cast presenting my chances, but finally the line reached the bank. I grabbed my flashlight and played it on the spot. As soon as the trapper had the line, he took a turn around a large tree and we finally got the barge eased in toward the bank.

"A hundred yards beyond, was a bend that would have swung the barge out into mid-stream, and any hope of rescue would have been lost. After all, what saved the day was the night—was the flashlight I had been using it every night on the barge, but fortunately the batteries were fresh when I put them in and they stood up. I have had many narrow escapes, but this was the closest."

Inkster was one of the youngest officers in the Royal Air Force during the war.

"In my opinion, it will be a good thing for farmers who specialize in raising and feeding live stock to insure an adequate supply of feed at a reasonable price by having an extra crib of corn stored on their farms. While last year's weather was unusually favorable for corn production, no one can with certainty tell whether or not this year's weather will be equally favorable, and with this abundant supply on hand we should not take this chance.

"It seems to me that the live stock industry should be insured against violent swings in production caused by equally violent swings in the volume of corn and feed grain production by building up an adequate reserve supply to take care of shortages that might arise from poor weather.

"It is my sincere wish that corn farmers fulfill their obligation to consumers by storing on their farms an abundant supply of feed crops as an insurance to their customers in the towns and cities that any future crop shortage caused by adverse weather conditions will not be reflected in unreasonably high prices for live stock and live stock products."

UNITED FRONT OF SIN AND ATHEISTIC COMMUNISM

CHICAGO—"Christian people, today constitute the greatest bulwark against communism," declared Dr. Will H. Houghton, President of the Moody Bible Institute, before a recent gathering of 4,000 in this city, "because communism is helpless against the teachings of Jesus Christ. Schools such as the Moody Bible Institute are obstacles through which communism cannot penetrate. More than 900 young men and women are now enrolled in the Day School. Each is studying to fit himself or herself for active Christian service and will enter fields of service on completion of their period of training prepared to effectively use the one antidote to communism—the Bible."

The wedge pictured above is a recently graduated class of the Moody Bible Institute. They are set for the defense of the Gospel. God will bless and use this company," continued Dr. Houghton, "in this confused and baffled world. There have been times when the forces of evil have combined to oppose the on-march of God's truth, but God has given victory, and again and again the wall of opposition has been broken down."

For the benefit of pastors, missionaries, evangelists, Christian workers and teachers of secular schools the Institute will conduct a Summer School from June 21 to July 22. Regular Institute subjects will be taught, and attractive electives in Sunday School Work, Young People's Problems and Gospel Music will be available. Tuition is free.

The Summer School Faculty will be made up of the regular Institute teachers, supplemented by special lecturers. Full information will be sent upon request of the Moody Bible Institute, 153 Institute Place, Chicago.

1,500 Farmers To Attend Feeders' Day

Despite the fact that Feeders' Day at the Nebraska College of Agriculture is one month away, plans are already underway for entertaining the largest crowd in the history of that event. The gathering is scheduled for Friday, April 29.

Usually about 1,500 farm people, including some from Wayne County, attend the meeting. The 1938 session will concentrate attention chiefly upon comprehensive sorghum feeding tests conducted at the college with sheep, hogs and cattle.

Dean H. Umberger of Kansas state college is definitely billed to be one of the headline speakers. Coming from a state where grain sorghums are grown extensively and fed to livestock, Dean Umberger will relate some of the experiences of Kansas farmers in these respects. A forceful speaker, his appearance on the program is expected to attract many people.

News Briefs

In looking through our exchanges for news briefs or north-east Nebraska towns we read that Mrs. Jake Harmer, who has spent the winter in California, and was returning to her home in Belden suffered shock and painful injuries when the car in which she was riding collided with another car and overturned in a ditch at the intersection of highways 20 and 9 north of Allen. With the largest attendance of any year it has been in progress, the fourth annual Dixon county spelling bee was held Friday afternoon in the Allen high school auditorium with several hundred persons attending—Vera Merchant, telephone operator of Elgin, recently had two poems, "Vera" and "Blind" published in Western Poetry magazine.

Miss Elsie Hoy received painful burns about her face and arms in trying to save household possessions when the Hoy farm, some south of West Point burned to the ground Saturday. The fire was caused by a wickless asbestos ring oil stove. Petitions are being circulated asking the county board to designate that part of old highway No. 20 between Dixon and Waterbury be made a county road. In competition with 154 boys and girls from 22 counties, the 4-H livestock judging team representing Cuming county, carried away top honors in the judging contest held at Columbus Monday.

Urging the establishment of an alcohol processing plant in this section, with a view of Dodge county as the location, a pledge of full cooperation and support was incorporated in a resolution passed by the Dodge County Farmers Union in its quarterly meeting held Monday. Mrs. John G. Moore of Norfolk left this week-end to show Duke von Trapp in St. Louis Saturday and Sunday during the Mississippi Valley Kennel club show.

Chapter One

CAREER WOMAN

"Harry Borden, Inc., the smartly dressed receptionist announced into the phone. "Just a moment and I'll connect you with Miss Claymore's secretary."

She had turned from the switchboard toward the man waiting at her desk.

"Would you?" he began.

The board claimed her attention again. "Harry Borden, Inc. is busy. Will you wait please?"

She swung around to face the man and made mental note of the fact that he was tall, genial and very handsome.

"Is Miss Claymore in?" he questioned, his eyes smiling.

"Who shall I say it is, please?" "Just say it's her husband," he grinned.

"Oh, I'm sorry—I'm new here," she plugged the board. "Miss Claymore?" Mr. Claymore is here," she stopped in confusion. "Go right in, Mr. Conway," she murmured. "Miss Claymore's secretary—that is, Mrs. Conway's secretary—Conway laughed. "Don't let it bother you," he teased and walked to the door marked "Miss Claymore."

There was no one in the office. He took off his hat and coat and threw them carelessly on a chair, and sprawled on the window seat. The inner office door burst open and a wild-eyed man posed dramatically on the threshold, flanked by a beautiful young woman and an impeccably garbed man.

"They're crucifying me," he shrieked. "Crucifying me!"

The girl took his arm soothingly. "Please, dear, sit down and get a drink for you."

"Sit down!" he cried. "Do you know what's happening at rehearsal this minute? William Clay is reading the love scene from my second act!" He turned to the other man. "Did you hear that, Borden? William Clay! Reading my love scene!"

Borden. "William Clay has a big picture name. Everybody remembers him!"

"Yes—and they remember his horse, too," Blascomb exploded. "And anyway—whose agent are you—mine or the manager's?"

"Chester," soothed the girl. "Why don't you go back to rehearsal and just listen to him."

"Sure," hissed Blascomb. "Listen to William Clay, then go out my throat."

"All you have to do is listen to him once. They'll say you're unreasonable if you don't do that much. And if you can't really see him in the part, well wangle him out somehow," she promised. "Look at me, Chester," she pleaded.

Blascomb raised reluctant eyes to hers and wisely melted under her sweetly sympathetic gaze.

"You know how much I love that play of yours, Chester," she said softly. "You know I'm not going to see it ruined. Please run along to the rehearsal, darling."

He stared at her for a moment and then nodded, completely conquered by her. With a vague gesture of farewell he ambled out of the office. As the door closed behind him, Borden breathed with relief. "Lynn," he said wryly, "couldn't we get just one client that wasn't a genius?"

She laughed and turned to her desk, seeing her husband for the first time.

"David Conway grinned toward her companion.

"Hello, Harry," he greeted. "How are you?"

"Fine, fine," said the other. He paused as if wanting to make conversation but not knowing how. "Say, Lynn," he said finally. "Look—if I don't get a wire from those dopes on the coast in the next hour, let them the deal's off. See you later, Conway," he added, and left.

She sat up, her gaze now set on the window seat next to her husband. With a sigh of weariness, she leaned her head against his shoulder.

"You should come here at this time often," she murmured. "Comes six o'clock and I need a shoulder."

"Tired?" he asked, his cheek against hers.

"Damn!" She burrowed her face in his neck. "Well, not so very tired, now," she smiled.

"Are you too tired to stay on your feet tonight?"

She raised her head to look into his face. "Why would I want to do that?"

"What you need," he admonished, "is to go right home, take a hot bath, have your dinner in bed—and then—off to sleep."

She sat up indignantly. "Oh—What are you going to do after I've gone to sleep?"

"Well," he said with mock seriousness. "I have to live my own life."

"Not tonight you don't have to," she replied. She kissed him softly on the cheek and felt his arm tighten about her. "Of course," she said, "if you get restless and can't sleep you can get up and go out later—if you still want to live your own life."

"He smiled down at the top of her head. "Lynn—"

The phone rang, but the two sitting there seemed not to hear it. It rang again, this time more insistently.

"Oh, no, no," she exclaimed. She jumped up and hurried to her desk. "Hello?"

David came up close behind her and held her in his arms.

"Oh, hello, Mrs. Follansbee," she smiled. "Yes, I read your net last night. It's simply delightful—even above your standard."

David caressed her arms and she snuggled against him as she continued her conversation.

"What's that? Yes—I loved all the characters."

He bent his head and kissed the back of her neck.

"Ooooooh!" Her voice broke in a startled exclamation and she leaped from her husband's embrace. "Yes, I'm still here, Mrs. Follansbee. She seemed to collect herself, throwing David a beautiful look. "It was nothing," she continued. "Just my—that is—can I meet you tomorrow?—Well—Thank you, Good-bye."

She banged down the receiver. "David," she cried. "Do you think that's a nice thing to do when I'm talking to Gertrude Follansbee, the grand old lady of American letters?"

He grinned back happily.

"You seem very full of feathers tonight, my young friend," she remarked, standing off to watch him teeter back and forth, a jubilant smile on his face. "David!" she cried suddenly. "You've heard from the shipbuilders!"

"Is Miss Claymore in?" he questioned.

He nodded, pleased as punch with himself and the world. "They read my report on how I think they should reorganize their shipyards," he replied, "and now I'm Brower Brother's white-haired boy! And darling—they want me to take charge of their New Bedford shipyards."

"Oh," she breathed, "how wonderful. Why that's just what you've been working for. What will we do to celebrate?"

"Let's go home," he answered. "I can get a kick out of just talking about it."

"Well—" she paused—"Harry asked us to join him and Claudia Weston after theatre." She looked up uncertainly—"but I don't care about it. This is going to be your night."

"No," he smiled, "that sounds all right."

"You'll like meeting Claudia," she promised quickly. "It's supposed to be quite an experience. Oh, David, I'm so happy for you."

"Do you know what I did yesterday when I was up in New Bedford," he said as she crossed the room to a mirror. "Somebody told me about an old colonial house that used to belong to a whaling captain. So I went and looked at it. You'll love it, Lynn."

"You mean for a summer place?" she questioned.

"Summer place, nothing," he replied, reaching for his hat and coat. "They build for all year round in New Bedford."

She turned sharply from the mirror, her eyes vaguely frightened. "But—David—"

The phone again rang. She went to answer it. "Hello, what? Yes, I'll be right over." She looked at David, her hands outstretched, helplessly. "That's dandy," she remarked. "Chester Blascomb just punched William Clay in the nose. Right in the middle of rehearsal!"

"Is that very serious?" David asked lightly.

"He didn't even wait to hear him finish the scene," she explained. "I'm sorry, darling, but I'll have to go over to the theatre—You go long home—I'll have a couple of war at the theatre—and I'll be home as soon as I can."

He looked at her for a moment. "Alright," he answered quietly.

Something in his tone made her unhappy. David, she whispered, and crossing to him quickly, she raised her lips to his. "I'm so happy for you darling. I just want to kiss you—just something to last till I get home."

He answered her kiss ardently, then, turned to the door and left. She stood there for a moment, her face lined with an uneasy frown. With a quick shrug of the shoulders she threw off her mood and reached for the phone once again. "I'm at the theatre, if anyone needs me," she announced. With a final glance in the mirror, she hurried out of the office.

Will David really demand that Lynn give up her career and follow him to New Bedford? Don't miss tomorrow's exciting chapter.

Sixty Farm Families In Wayne County Plan Home Budgets

Mrs. Grant Emphasizes Good Gardening Practices

Home planning budgets will be made this year in Wayne county for approximately 60 farm families, Mrs. Elizabeth Grant, home management supervisor for the Farm Security Administration, announced this week. Mrs. Elizabeth Grant has for her territory Pierce, Cedar, Knox, Dixon, Dakota and Wayne counties.

Working with the local rural rehabilitation supervisors of this department of agriculture agency, home management supervisors direct their efforts toward helping borrowers plan and budget their living costs, maintain a live-at-home program, and improve their homes generally.

"The home plan and farm plan are like the two sides of a coin," Mrs. Grant said. "They are both essential and cannot be regarded separately. The farm plan will fail unless it is supplemented by good home management, and the security of the home cannot be maintained without a sound farm plan."

Producing gardens sufficient to provide the family with an adequate and well-balanced diet is one of the home management projects that is being emphasized. "We are starting now to plan our gardens," she said. "The emphasis on dry weather crops and varieties should save needless work, failure and expense."

The garden calendar of FSA borrowers in this county for the next few weeks is given below:

1. Remove weeds-get rid of disease by burning trash.
2. Plow or spade as soon as frost permits.
3. Work out an irrigation system if at all possible.
4. Plan garden. A plan on paper should be made, with provisions for early garden stuff. Last year many farm women were able to can produce from their early gardens before the remainder was killed by drouth.
5. Give garden a good soaking before planting.
6. Buy seed early, taking care to get it from a reliable source.

Plant 7,600 Clarke-McNary Trees

Wayne county people making application for Clarke-McNary seedlings and transplants through the Forest Bureau of this county are planting the trees.

Shipped from Fremont and the Nebraska National Forest at Halsey, the trees are better than any shipped in recent years. All of the stock if of a good size and given good care make excellent growth during 1938. Most of the trees are being planted for farmstead windbreak purposes. A total of 7,600 Clarke-McNary seedlings were ordered by Wayne County people.

Enroll in 1938 PFL Program

In an attempt to "balance the budget" as far as feed supplies and live stock are concerned, Wayne county farmers are urged to enroll in the state-wide 1938 Pasture-forage-Live Stock Program.

One of the major projects of Agricultural Extension work in Wayne County this year, the Pasture-Forage-Live Stock program seeks to help individual producers plan out their farming operations for the year. The co-operator figures how much feed he will need during the coming year to carry his live stock through the summer and winter. He then plans on how he may raise that feed during the crop year of 1938.

Explain New Dairy-Livestock Amendment

Even though the 1938 farm program act provides for some restrictions on the use of feed crops on acres taken out of corn, wheat, oats, barley and other crops, it is not likely that these restrictions will apply to any Nebraska farm in 1938.

The amendment will affect Nebraska farms only if the number of dairy cattle within a county, increases to 10 per cent above the normal number of such cattle in the county. The dairy cattle population here is considerably below normal now.

If in any county, the dairy cattle should increase to 10 per cent above normal, the 1938 program might restrict the use of pastures and forage feeds for dairy production on the particular farms where big increases have been made in the number of dairy cattle.

With good growing conditions in 1938, Nebraska farmers may be able to store a reserve supply of feed and in a few years they may wish to have some restrictions placed on the use of land taken out of grain crops. This was true in 1934 when the corn-hog and wheat program first began. Nebraska farmers at that time almost universally agreed that they were getting good payments for their land and should not expect any additional returns from it. The need for emergency feed crops after the drouth years, however, makes it desirable for farmers to plant their non-depleting acres to small grain pasture, sudan pasture or hay, cane fodder, legumes, and grasses for live stock feed.

Several FSA Headquarters Are Changed

L. H. Rock Is Appointed Manager of South Sioux City Farmstead

A number of changes in supervisors and headquarter offices of field employees of the Farm Security Administration were announced last week by L. A. White, Nebraska State Director.

Under the new arrangement Ed. Johannessen will succeed L. H. Rock as district supervisor of District One with headquarters at Bridgeport. He will have charge of Farm Security work in Arthur, Banner, Box Butte, Cheyenne, Dawes, Deuel, Garden, Grant, Keith, Kimball, Morrill, Perkins, Scotts Bluff, Sheridan and Sioux counties.

"Mr. Johannessen has made a fine record as county supervisor of Clay county and is thoroughly familiar with all phases of our program," White said of the new supervisor. "He has just spent a week in the regional and state offices training for his new responsibilities."

The new district man has been working with the Farm Security Administration since the beginning of the program in July, 1935. He was reared on a farm near Minden. He is being replaced at Clay Center by Arthur E. Von Bergen, formerly assistant supervisor at Aurora.

In making the announcement of the change to field offices Mr. White said that Mr. Rock had been assigned to a difficult and important job as county supervisor of Dixon and Dakota counties and will also serve as manager of the South Sioux City Farmstead project. He will headquarter at Ponca.

Rock has also been with the Farm Security Administration since the inception of the program in July, 1935. Prior to his work with FSA he taught vocational agriculture in Crawford and Callaway.

Announce Wayne County's Share in Crop Allotments Set Up for Nebraska's 1938 Program

Corn Allotments Will Amount to 102,278 Acres in County

Acreage allotments for the 1938 farm program established for Wayne county are 163,241 acres of depleting acres and 102,278 acres of corn. These figures represent the county's share of the allotments set up for Nebraska.

The county total figures will be broken down to total depleting acreage allotments and corn acreage allotments for each individual farm in this county. The county agricultural conservation committee will follow the instructions of the North Central Region office in establishing the farm allotments.

Distinction Is Made Between Sorghums

Dual Purpose, Forage Types Differences Outlined

The distinction between grain and sweet sorghums for compliance with the 1938 federal farm program was clarified this week by the Wayne County Agricultural Conservation Committee.

Sweet (forage) sorghums are among the crops which will need no acreage adjustment during 1938. Sorghums harvested for grain, seed or silage are in the group of crops which will earn benefit payments through acreage adjustment.

Certain varieties are distinct forage types, including Black and Red Amber, Early Sumac, Atlas, Leoti, and similar tall growing, heavy forage sorghums. Other varieties are distinctly grain sorghums, such as Feterita, all the Milo, most of the Kalo and about half the Kafir varieties.

Dual-purpose types which ordinarily are equally useful either for forage or for grain were chiefly responsible for some early confusion between sorghums classed with crops for which acreage adjustment is necessary to participate in the program and other sorghums for which no adjustment is expected. This uncertainty is clarified by this week's statement.

Dual-purpose types include Chuyenne, Grohoma, Hegari, Western Blackhull, Pink Kafir and similar medium grain and forage varieties.

The decision to base the distinction upon use rather than on varieties results also from these additional facts. (1) It is almost impossible to determine the variety by looking at the seed; (2) Much seed on the market is not of a pure strain; (3) Home grown seed may or may not be for District 111 will be moved from Kearney to North Platte, White added. Harold L. Bierman is District Supervisor and Leona M. Geiger is District Home Supervisor.

District IV recently changed headquarters from Lincoln to York. Glenn Williams and Lillian M. Sorensen are the officials in charge of that district.

M. G. P. Nisson, who has been serving as supervisor of Holt county is now in charge of Antelope county with headquarters at Neligh while Gerald S. Graybiel, formerly at Neligh, has taken charge of Holt county with headquarters at O'Neill.

son on it, and the past and present productivity were considered in establishing the soil management score of each individual field and the farm as a whole. Level land without much erosion has been given a higher score than rolling land on which there is some erosion.

When the customary acreage of corn crops has been relatively high on a farm, and when the soil management score is higher than average, the farm will receive a corn acreage allotment which is above the average for the county. When the customary acreage of corn has been relatively low and the soil management score is below the county average, the farm will receive a corn acreage allotment which is below the average in the county.

It will not be possible for the county committee to establish all of the allotments within the next few days but every effort will be made to arrive at the correct figure between now and corn planting time. In the meantime, the farmer who is interested in the 1938 program may use the county average as a guide, and plan his crops according to the comparison of his individual farm with other farms in the county.

The county total soil-depleting acreage allotment means that on the average farm in Wayne county, the soil depleting acreage allotment will be 70 acres for each 100 acres of cropland on the farm. The county total corn allotment means that on the average farm in this county, the corn allotment will be 45 acres for 100 acres of cropland on the farm. Allotments will vary on individual farms according to the conditions mentioned above.

Prepared By HOME SERVICE DEPARTMENT WAYNE NEWS-BETTY CROCKER

FOR A LUNCHEON IN LENT

"It's like a 'come true'!" That's what one anxious hostess told me when I offered her this recipe for Clam Souffle with Mushroom Sauce. It was just everything she'd hoped for in a main dish for her luncheon—but never really expected to find. For it was dainty and delicious and different. The ideal dish for a Lenten luncheon when some of the guests might not be eating meat. Here is the recipe:

- 1 1/2 cups minced clams (two 7 oz. cans)
- 1 1/2 cups soft bread crumbs
- 1 cup liquor from clams
- 1/2 cup milk
- 4 eggs
- 2 tbsp. melted butter
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/2 tsp. pepper
- 1/2 tsp. onion juice
- 2 tsp. minced parsley
- 1 tsp. lemon juice

Soak clams and bread crumbs in clam liquor and milk while preparing other ingredients. Beat egg yolks well and add to clam mixture with the melted butter, salt, pepper, onion juice, parsley and lemon juice. Carefully fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a buttered bread loaf pan which has been lined with paper and steam bake. (That is, set the pan of clam souffle in another pan filled with water in the oven, and bake that way.) Turn out onto a platter and serve hot with Mushroom Sauce. Use a regular bread loaf pan 2 1/2 inches deep, and 4 1/2 x 8 1/2 inches across the bottom. Bake for 35 minutes in a moderate oven, 350° F. This makes 6 servings.

Mushroom Sauce

- 1/2 lb. fresh mushrooms or 1 small can of mushrooms (3/4 cup)
- 1/4 cup butter
- 1/4 cup all-purpose flour
- 2 cups milk
- Salt and pepper

Wash fresh mushrooms, remove stems and caps and peel. Caps do not need to be peeled. Cut stems and caps in pieces. If canned mushrooms are used, drain well and slice thin. Cook gently in butter for 20 minutes. Blend in flour and stir in milk. Cook over hot water in a double boiler until the mixture thickens, then season carefully. This will make 6 servings. If you would like to make a larger amount in a ring mould—just double the recipe.

Shoe string potatoes, or potato chips with buttered peas would complete the main course for your luncheon—with hot rolls and a green salad. Dainty Strawberry Tarts would be a delightful climax to this Lenten luncheon.

Question: I tried to make an angel food cake recently and followed your directions exactly—but the egg whites simply would not whip up the way you described in the recipe. I had nice fresh eggs laid that very day too. What was wrong?

Answer: Strange as it may seem, there is such a thing as having eggs that are too fresh. We've found that eggs at least two or three days old are better for meringues and cakes. The whites will whip up much better.

Question: Can you settle an argument for me, Betty Crocker? Where should the vegetable dish be placed? My friend says it should be at the left of the plate—but I think it should be at the right. It's awkward to reach away across the plate to get a spoonful of peas.

Answer: Strictly speaking the vegetable dish has no place on the modern table. Vegetables are supposed to be prepared in such a way that they will not be runny. And they are served on the same plate with the meat and potatoes. However, as many of us would be loathe to give up such delicacies as stewed tomatoes or fresh peas in milk—and they do need separate dishes. In this case—since there is no real rule—the right would be most convenient. But if you are serving tea or coffee—you can see how much more awkward it would be to have the vegetable dish and the coffee cup both on the right—and you'd hardly want to put the cup on the left of the plate. Your water glass or goblet must be on the right too.

If you worry about what to serve, if you dread to start the next meal, just drop a card to Betty Crocker in care of your newspaper, and ask for this week's menus. Complete menus for the week will be sent to you at no cost. Please enclose 3 cent stamp to cover return postage.

Regardless of how good a start God gives him, mankind always reverts to degeneracy. It is the unbroken testimony found in the history of nations, peoples and movements. No matter how splendid the beginning, the seed of destruction somehow enters and ultimate ruin is the harvest.

How disappointing to plant a tree in hope and have it revert to a degenerate plant! Yet that is God's experience with man, repeated over and over. In Jeremiah 2:21, God makes mention of this condition in these words: Yet I had planted thee a noble vine, wholly a right seed; how then art thou turned into the degenerate plant of a strange vine unto me?

It is noteworthy that the gospel does not save all who hear it. Many more than 3,000 people heard on the day of Pentecost but only 3,000 accepted. Thus in its first impact and the result, it is seen to be a salvager indeed; saving a part out of the wreckage. Saving only that which will allow itself to be saved. Jesus is the King of those salvaged. He is the Salvager but only for those who accept Him as such and render the obedience that this King requires.

Rules For School Essay Contest Given

Dr. J. T. Anderson Is District Education Chairman

"Wings Across America" is the subject of a nationwide school essay contest announced today by Dr. J. T. Anderson, district education chairman who has just received the rules and regulations governing this contest from Paul R. Younts, executive chairman. The essays are to be based on the progress, dependability and future possibilities of this method of modern communication.

The county chairman of this county is sending the principal of each high school in this county a supply of the rules and regulations governing this contest which will, without doubt, create more interest in aviation than has ever been known in the nation as every high school pupil in America has an even chance to win one of more than a hundred valuable prizes, including some 50 airplane trips to Washington, Hollywood, or Miami.

Who Are Eligible to Enter

Dr. Anderson states that every high school pupil or those having high school curricula in Wayne are not only eligible to enter this contest but urged to do so. The prizes are certainly worth trying for. Here are the prizes: There will be two prizes for some bright boy or girl in every state of the union. The first state prize to be an airplane trip from the winners' nearest airport to Washington and return. The second state prize will be a trophy to be presented by the Nebraska Air Mail week campaign committee.

The essays of pupils winning a trip to Washington and return will be entered in a national contest in which the winner will be given an airplane trip with expenses paid for five days from Washington to Hollywood for those living east of the Mississippi river (or to Miami if the winner lives west of the Mississippi river). The second national prize will be a trophy, while the third national prize will be a plaque to be presented by the National Air Mail week committee.

Dr. Anderson states that the basis for judging essays will be on originality of ideas 50 per cent, continuity and construction 25 per cent, spelling and punctuation and neatness 25 per cent. All essays are to be certified by the school principal as to the eligibility of the contestant. Essays must be postmarked not later than midnight, May 1, 1938, and addressed "State Chairman of National Air Mail Week Contest," in care of your local postmaster. All essays winning either in the states or national contests will become the property of the committee for use in promoting the growth of aviation.

Dr. Anderson is very anxious that every school pupil eligible in this county should enter this contest. For further particulars or a copy of the air mail week essay contest rules and regulations, see either your school principal or postmaster at once for the contest will close at midnight, May 1. It is believed that every ambitious boy or girl eligible in this county will enter this unique contest.

Wayne County Has 70 Standard Clients FSA Reports

Carefully prepared farm and home management plans, together with rehabilitation loans of the Farm Security Administration are beginning to pay dividends in Wayne county, according to Ray L. Verzal, field representative, who headquarters at Wayne. There are 70 standard clients in this county.

"Experience of the past two years reveals marked improvement in nearly every case where the borrowing farmer has followed out the plan made at the time of the loan," Verzal said.

Tracing the steps taken in working out a standard plan, Verzal pointed out that the farmer's character and ability, liabilities and assets, farming methods, family needs and the farm itself were all considered in its development. In addition, debt adjustment service is often necessary.

"As a result," said Verzal, "when the plan is finally completed the borrowing farmer is practically starting out anew with every possible chance for success. He is given the advice of agricultural experts as to the kind of farming methods best suited to his particular unit. He is given the friendly assistance of his neighbors who serve without pay on the debt adjustment committee and services of the home management supervisor are available to help the housewife in planning the home budget."

The rehabilitation loan coupled with a carefully prepared farm and home plan is enabling many farmers in Wayne county to stay on the farm who otherwise might have had to give up farming operations for lack of credit. Only farmers who can obtain credit nowhere else are eligible for an FSA loan, according to Verzal.
