Wayne Boys Take Part in Farmer's Fair

Arnold Peterson, Don Baird, LeRoy Walker, Assist in Uni. Event

Three Wayne county students at the University of Nebraska college of agriculture are taking an active part in the 20th annual Farmers Fair to be held on the agricultural college campus in Lincoln this coming Saturday.

The following students are participating: Arnold Peterson, Don Baird and LeRoy Walker.

The fair, offered each year to people throughout the state by the students, will offer the real "old-time" fair atmosphere to the large number of visitors expected.

There will be a midway with entertainment for young and old, exhibits that will stress agricultural improvements and ideas, an "Equestrian Circus" that will have everything from blue ribbon horse show winners to wild calf catching by Nebraska football players, boxing and wrestling, and "Campus Capers," the student's own show.

Starting the big day will be a parade through downtown Lincoln at 10 in the morning, featuring floats representing college departments and groups, the university's prize winning live stock, and late models in farm machinery.

Presentation of the Goddess of Agriculture, an outstanding senior girl, will be the first event of the afternoon, and following will be a style show in which home economics students will model fashions for women visitors.

Another feature of the fair will be "Men's Day," all senior girls throughout the state being invited to spend the day on the campus as guests of the home economics department.

Rev. Bader's Sermon
"A Man's Life," Brings Many Men to Church

It wasn't "Poppy Day," but "Men's Day," when better men, good men, older young men and young men crowded the Methodist church Sunday and listened attentively while Rev. C. G. Bader enlightened them on how they could be better men.

As announced the pastor preached on the theme "A Man's Life". If the Methodist men came to hear a sermon on the ups and downs of a man's life they were disillusioned, because the Methodist minister used his half hour without one word of sympathy being extolled to the trials in a man's life. It was not that the minister was in an admonishing mood to seize upon the opportunity to reprimand, but rather to persuade his men to believe in the Christian way of living as the only means of releasing their talents to greater service. Picturing the Christian life as adventurous and requiring the highest type of courage, lives of illustrious men were used to illustrate points and offered as examples or patterns within the reach of all men.

In his church announcements last week Rev. Bader added, "We hope to see how all our menfolk look in our church service at the same time." It was a splendid turn out, not a 100 per cent but maybe a 90 and 9½ some were astray, at work, sick, out of the city, out looking over the crops. The pastor made an effort to gather in the stray ones by giving some of his laymen names to call upon during the week and it just about achieved the purpose.

Placement Bureau Is Ahead of Last Year's Record

Six recent placements have brought the present total ahead of last year's record as announced today by Wayne State Teachers college authorities.

Miss Margaret Jones who receives her A.B. degree this May will teach the kindergarten grade in the Scribner schools. Miss Mildred Bessire who earned her two-year teachers certificate this May will be the sixth grade teacher in the Whiting, Ia., schools. Miss Lois Schjolberg will teach in the primary department of the Sloan, Ia., schools. She received her certificate in May.

Joe Larson who was granted his A.B. degree in 1936 has been elected coach and industrial arts instructor in the Sergeant Bluff, Ia., schools. Miss Helen Tassemeyer will teach the fourth grade in the same system and Miss Marjorie Baker will be the sixth grade instructor. They will receive their two-year teacher certificate in May.

Organize Junior Epworth League

The Wayne chapter of the Junior Epworth league was organized Sunday evening at the First Methodist church, with twenty-one charter members. The following officers were elected by ballot:

Betty Gildersleeve, president; Robert Parke, general vice president; Gordon Bressler, first vice president; Delmar Davis, second vice president; Mary Ann Poledna, third vice president; Doris Juan Rockwell, fourth vice president; Thomas Johnson, Jr., secretary; Margaret Ann Costerisen, treasurer. Counsellors were Mrs. Fred Gries, Mrs. Homer Smothers, Miss Genevieve Craig.

The next meeting will be held next Sunday at 6:30 P.M.

S.T.C. Athlete Sets Record, Colorado Meet

Wayne State Teachers college participated in the Colorado Relays Saturday at Boulder with a field of athletes representing the following schools: Colorado University, Wyoming University, Idaho School of Mines, Denver U. Hastings, Greeley State, Colorado College and Chadron.

Bradford set a new record when he tossed the javelin 191 ft. 10 in; he won the broad jump with a leap of 23 feet. Retzlaff placed third in the high hurdles when the amazing record was lowered to 14.4. Bradford, Retzlaff, Matley and Simpson placed in the 880 relay which established a new record of 1:28. Kelly, Harris, Matley and Simpson placed second in the two mile relay. Coach Hickman's small squad turned in as fine a showing as they have previously done at the Colorado Relays.

Laying Of Men's Hall Corner Stone Impressive

These are the first pictures to be published of the corner stone laying of the new men's hall on the Wayne State Teachers college campus which took place Thursday afternoon. In the upper left hand picture is shown the placing of the copper box in the cavity of the cornerstone. The Bible, some masonic publications, current copies of Wayne News, Wayne Herald, Winside Tribune, Carroll News and Current College publications were placed in the casket. Luther M. Savage of Omaha as acting grand marshall is placing the box inside the stone. L. B. McClure as acting grand treasurer is assisting him. In the lower left picture is shown the

Hickman, Morris, Hosts at Track Carnivals

Dr. Stuart Gives Chalk Talk Monday

Dr. Ross Stuart of Wayne State Teachers college entertained the Kiwanis club at its noon meeting Monday with a chalk talk on the subject, "Smiles." Forty members and one guest were present.

After exhibiting charts of the human skull and the system of facial muscles, Dr. Stuart made a series of sketches of "Oscar," a well-fed and amply upholstered specimen of "home sapiens" (often appropriately abbreviated "home sap") illustrating, to an accompaniment of humorous comment, the facial effects of

"Boy Aids in AK Drive" and Lester Lutt Is the Boy Who Is Helping

Omaha World Herald—To give fresh impetus to the drive in its closing days, Lester Lutt, 14, Wayne county, visited Omaha Sunday to be featured on an Omaha radio program, "The Romance of Ak-Sar-Ben." It just isn't anything but romance when the boy who went to Omaha and won the grand champion honors two years straight returns to help win an important drive for Ak-Sar-Ben.

Many of Lester's friends in the Baby Beef show business were turned in to hear him in "The Romance of Ak-Sar-Ben."

When interviewed yesterday Lester said, "I wasn't a bit nervous when I was broadcasting probably because I was so glad to help Ak-Sar-Ben in its important drive. I can't tell you how important Ak-Sar-Ben is to 4-H work in the state and to all farmers in Nebraska."

Local Troops Records Are Sent to State Office

Records of the local boy scout achievements during the year were sent to the state headquarters Saturday for approval in preparation for the annual Boys Scout court of honor to be held here Thursday evening at the College Training school. Claude Wiegers, field executive, will be here to assist the local scout masters.

Several boy scouts from nearby troops are expected to join the local boys at their court of honor Thursday.

As soon as the reports are returned from the state office, the names of the scouts who receive awards and badges will be released.

Sioux City Junior C of C and NSC Hosts to Students

Sioux City Groups Entertain Wayne High Saturday

Thirty-six commercial students of Wayne High school and their instructor, Miss Mildred Barrett, will be guests of the Sioux City Junior chamber of commerce and National School of Commerce at a field trip Saturday. To qualify, these students were required to pass certain speed tests and meet certain scholastic requirements.

Signs Formal Orders

Judge Adolph Werke, newly appointed district judge, was here Thursday and signed a few formal orders.

Mrs. Jacobs Assumes Charge of Social Department

Beginning with this issue, Mrs. Ross Jacobs has charge of the social and local department of The Wayne News. This will relieve Miss Florence Vlach of these responsibilities to permit her to center her attention upon other departments of the paper.

All local and social items will be gladly received by Mrs. Jacobs and should be telephoned directly to her. Her phone number is 334.

96 Students Will Graduate From College

Commencement Week Speakers Are Announced

Ninety-six seniors are candidates for a four-year degree from Wayne State Teachers college as announced today by the registrar's office. Commencement exercises will be held May 26 at which time January and May candidates will be granted their sheepskins. August candidates will take part in the exercises but can not receive their degrees at this time.

In addition to graduates from the four-year course, ninety-five students will complete their two-year course this year. Candidates for certificate on completion of a one-year course total 92.

Sixty-four seniors will be granted a Bachelor of Arts in Education degree. Two students are candidates for Degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts in Education. Candidates for degree of Bachelor of Science in education total 14 students.

Dr. Joseph Serena of Norman, Okla., has been named as the commencement speaker. His subject will be on "A Teacher's Influence." Dr. W. Earle Smith of San Francisco, Cal., will deliver the sermon at the baccalaureate service Sunday, May 23, choosing as his theme "Laying the Keel of the Great Ship." The college high school will hold their baccalaureate services in conjunction with the college.

Attends Funeral at Mapleton, Ia.

Don Beckenhauer returned from Mapleton, Ia., last Tuesday where he attended the funeral of 12-year-old Robert Clubine who was killed in an accident. The lad was a brother of Mrs. Don Beckenhauer who recently passed away.

WAYNE'S PRETTIEST

Miss Patty Dawson of Haverhill, Ia., was voted as most beautiful co-ed by the Wayne State Teachers college study body. It was revealed at the annual spring prom recently. Miss Dawson is a freshman and is majoring in dramatics. Picture printed by courtesy of the World-Herald.

Gov. Cochran Is Speaker of Day, Masons Officiate

The Wayne State Teachers college campus was strengthened Thursday afternoon when Wayne residents, students, grand officers of the Masonic lodge and delegates from neighboring lodges gathered around the new men's hall now being constructed to witness the cornerstone laying in charge of Grandmaster W. A. Robertson of Plattsmouth. Gov. R. L. Cochran was speaker of the day.

The grand lodge formed in procession in the lobby of the administration building on the campus. They were preceded by the worthy matrons and past worthy matrons of the Order of Eastern Star and followed by members of the Wayne lodge and visiting lodges. The procession proceeded to the platform where the cornerstone was to be laid to music played by the Wayne State Teachers college band under the direction of Prof. John R. Kieth.

Dr. J. T. Anderson, president of Wayne State Teachers college publicly requested the Grandmaster W. A. Robertson to lay the cornerstone of the men's hall in accordance with the masonic customs and usage. The grandmaster responded to the request.

The response was followed with a scripture reading and prayer by acting grand chaplain the Rev.

Ray of Wakefield. Then the acting grand treasurer, L. B. McClure presented the copper box to the grandmaster. A list of its contents were read by acting grand secretary O. R. Bowen. The box was deposited in the cavity of the cornerstone. The principal architect, Gordon Chattock delivered the working tools as follows: The trowel to the grandmaster, the square to the acting deputy grand master, George A. Kirk of Lincoln, the level to the acting grand senior warden, Archie M. Smith of Pender, and the plumb to the acting grand junior warden, Mr. Evers of Plattsmouth.

Grandmaster Robertson spread the cement after which the stone was lowered in degrees of one-third. After lowering it the last time the stone was tried by the acting deputy grandmaster with the square. Then it was tried by the acting grand senior warden with the level. Lastly it was tried by the acting grand junior warden with the plumb. The grandmaster then announced that it was truly laid.

The stone was consecrated. Corn was scattered over the stone by the acting deputy grandmaster, the acting grand senior warden poured wine, and acting grand junior warden poured oil upon the stone. Each is an emblem of plenty, wine a symbol of joy and gladness, and oil an emblem of peace.

Fifteen Wayne State college girls then decorated the stone with garlands of flowers. The girls included Mary Ella Pile, Mildred Dohren, Phyllis Hough, Leola Larson, Marie Larrabee, Norma Fuesler, Mildred Yenter, Lela Boe, Helen Vath, Lois Siebert, Helena Colbert, Betty Towns, Marjorie Divoky, Dorothy Smith, and Delores Haney.

The working tools were returned to the principal architect. The stone was declared laid and so proclaimed by acting grand master Luther M. Savage.

Grandmaster Robertson then introduced Gov. R. L. Cochran who delivered the oration of the day. In his brief remarks he pointed out the fact that the new men's hall was being built through the cooperation of the state normal board and state board of educational lands and funds. Through their cooperation, the building was being economically financed and the building itself is not costing the tax payers of Nebraska a single cent.

Following his address, the benediction was pronounced by acting grand chaplain the Rev. W. B. Ray. The procession again formed and returned to the administration building.

Following the ceremony, a campus inspection took place. Students served as guides conducting the visitors through the building.

A large representation from each of the 15 neighboring lodges was in attendance. Among the nearly 200 masons present was Mr. Viehle of Norfolk who has the distinction of having his name on all but one of the seven cornerstones laid on the college campus. As grandmaster, Mr. Viehle laid the cornerstone of the gymnasium building. His name appears on the other five stones as member of the state board of education. Mr. Viehle who is 84 years old has been a mason for 63 years.

President's Huge "Pump Priming" Program Gets OK and KO from Friend and Foe

Sufficient time has now elapsed to get a bird's eye view of the President's "pump priming" program as measured by general opinion the world over.

A prominent British statesman recently made the statement that the President's move at this time would prevent a major economic catastrophe for at least a year and perhaps indefinitely. Depending upon several factors entering into the picture: The reaction of big business; the uses that government monies would be put to being the two most important.

He said if the new expenditures were allowed to be used merely to pay debts they would result in more bank deposits whereas if they actually went into the channels of new purchasing the result would be more jobs, more business for every one.

If big business will venture forth with the same courage the President possesses and spend huge sums withdrawn recently, the Briton foresees improved conditions not only here in the States but a revival in economic conditions the world over.

Much of the justification of the President's "pump priming" and likewise its condemnation will emanate from both camps of the two major parties and when sufficient time has elapsed the true results will probably be found somewhere between the two claims. That the democratic publicity chairman Charles Michelson is prepared to carry on the positive battle is evidenced by the following press release.

Like the average citizen we do not feel competent to judge the immediate or far reaching effect of the huge spending program but like most everyone we would like to see something done to improve business.

Already the consistent opponents of the Roosevelt administration have begun their clamor against the enactment of the relief and business revival program which was the subject of the President's recent message to Congress. Mr. Snell, the extremely minor leader in the House, of course sees in it a usurpation of Congressional functions and an advance to dictatorship.

If Franklin D. Roosevelt promulgated the Ten Commandments, Mr. Snell would be quick to point out that the proclamation was a subtly disguised effort of the Chief Executive to assume authority to regulate the morals of the American people and that if Congress endorsed the proposal it would mean the absolute destruction of the American form of government and the setting up of a Fascist system in this country.

My favorite columnist, Mr. Frank Kent, is, of course, early on the job. He admits gloomily that "the prevailing opinion at the moment is that the program will go through." But he insists that if it does, it will not be because Congress approves of the measure, which has for its purpose re-starting the wheels of industry and commerce, the slowing down of which resulted in the recession that knocked down the stock market and increased unemployment, but rather because that the Congressmen on the eve of an election are not brave enough to vote against anything which involves the spending of money in their respective districts.

Mr. Mark Sullivan almost beat Mr. Kent to this particular foray on the Roosevelt policy. He mournfully denies that the spurt of activity promised by the program "will give the country's economic engine enough impetus so it will acquire a velocity sufficient to keep it going on its own power."

If Not This Plan, Then What?

It is to be observed that none of these economists and statesmen suggests a better plan, or any substitute plan, for bringing about re-employment, providing for the destitute, or getting business back to healthy activity. They deplore the situation, set the blame for it on the President and, consistent as ever, they insist that anything that the President proposes must be wrong. It does not matter much whether what he does is aimed at accomplishing more efficiency in government, or desensitization of a billion dollars' worth of gold in the inactive fund. Of course I have not plumbed the profundity of these experts' knowledge on the gold question, which has been the subject of debate among the fiscal authorities of the earth for some hundreds of years, and which this humble layman must admit is too intricate and technical for him to understand in all its applications.

There is a story concerning a non-technical person's presence in the midst of a grave and abstruse discussion of the merits of the conundrum. Finally, the money pundits asked the one neutral to express his view, and the answer ran something along this line: "You have, I admit, clarified the question to the extent that I now believe that one of three theories is tenable, though I have not yet been able to make up my mind which one of the three is the valid explanation. Either you people are incoherent and cannot convey your meaning to me, or I am dumb and cannot follow the ramifications of your arguments, and if neither of these things is true, it seems to me that you know no more about it than I do, and I know nothing."

This fable does not imply that there is not such a thing as monetary science, but it does convey that the question is so highly involved that the average non-technical writer is as capable of analyzing it as that the fat lady at the circus may be supposed to understand the Einstein theory of relativity.

To return to the topic of the so-called "pump-priming" as the method of ameliorating the business slump.

After reciting the effects the government believes it can produce with the new recovery program, Mr. Mark Sullivan says that "we can't help remembering that is the same thing they said five years ago when they began their first pump-priming."

When Business Has the Mumps

Suppose a child had the mumps, and the doctor fixed him up, and that five years later the same child had another attack of the mumps. How sensible would it be to say that the doctor should not use the same method he used before to effect a cure? I realize that in using this simile, I lay myself liable to somebody telling me that mumps is not a recurrent disease. Not being a columnist who knows everything, I am not prepared to debate that question.

Five or six years ago this country was in the throes of a terrific economic disaster. Hungry people had to be fed, re-employment was a desperate necessity, and business, screaming in its agony of almost complete collapse, had to be braced up. So a lot of money was spent, and some millions of people were put back to work, the entries on innumerable ledgers were changed from red to black, and profits and dividends and solvent banks became the ordinary incidents of our economic life. Anybody listening to those who would like to succeed the Roosevelt administration with another Hoover-esque period might believe that the billions dispersed by the government were thrown into the sea. They shut their eyes to the vast stretches of highways constructed throughout the country, to the public buildings that have been erected, to fifty thousand new schools, to the improvement of the forests and their protections against great fires, to all of the work of the CCC camps, and the profit not only in material betterments but in the salvation of a million or two of boys from the perils and misery of being jobless, and to a thousand city and state improvements in the creation of which these funds had a great part.

These things, and the circumstances that we came through a desperate period without violence and with American institutions intact, give the real picture of what the money-spending is. If the program now before Congress is even half as successful, the country can throw up its hat and cheer, despite the melancholy forebodings of those who take the position that whatever the Democratic administration attempts is unmixed evil.

Over in Albany, New York, a convention made up of the States most distinguished sons and daughters are working out a new constitution for the Imperial state. Represented in the group are Republicans, Democrats and the American Labor Party, with the Republicans predominating.

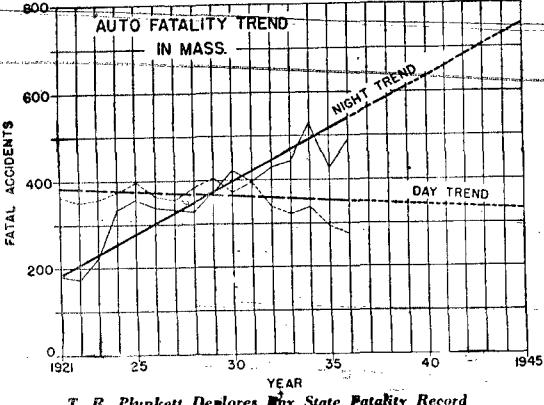

For years the state of New York has lead the nation in much of the modern social legislation. Back in the days when Al Smith was governor, New York passed many measures considered by conservative people detrimental. Since that time additions have been made from time to time until today the constitution comes in for modernization. The interesting part of it is the fact that the Republicans want it.

Down in the penitentiary of Huntsville, Texas, they have electrocuted so many criminals that the generator on the apparatus wore out, and thus prevented one scheduled murder by the Commonwealth. Repairs were promised so the state could get back into the killing business for the sake of justice. I suspect every one who participates in the hundreds of government murders in this country annually all expect to meet their victims in heaven.

"I get the blues when it rains"—is out. There is room for someone to set to music "rain smiles." Being neither poetic or musical we will make the suggestion and let it go at that. Except to point out the obvious, without the rain clouds the "harvest moon" would sound like a funeral march.

Rain will have brought the season's moisture to and above normal in this section of the country as we go into the corn planting month of May and folks are wearing a smile as wide as the river Platte.

Mass. Senator Recommends Highway Lighting for Safety

T. R. Plunkett Deplores State Fatality Record
Adequate highway lighting as a method of curbing night traffic fatalities is recommended by State Senator T. R. Plunkett. The deplorable accident record and particularly the abnormal night accident experience on Bay State highways were the primary reasons for an investigation initiated by the Joint Legislative Committee on Highways and Motor Vehicles of which he is a member.

Night Fatalities Increasing
During the early stage of their investigation, Senator Plunkett said, a trend chart revealed that since 1921 night fatalities have been increasing at an alarming rate while the rate of day fatalities have been actually decreasing. Further, it was found that from 1933 through 1936 over 60% of all fatal accidents occurred at night when the volume of traffic is only one-quarter that in the daytime. Almost half of the night fatalities occurred in rural areas and very nearly all of those on heavy-traffic State routes.

Adequate Visibility Needed
A study of various reports, the Senator stated, disclosed that poor visibility is blamed for abnormal night accidents by many of the nation's leading traffic experts. He said that headlights must be developed and improved to handle anyone has any doubts as to the effectiveness of modern highway lighting. Senator Plunkett contends that they need only to inspect, as did his Committee, a modern installation and compare the conditions with those existing on unlighted roads.

Recommends Legislation

"As a result of our complete investigation," said the Senator, "the Joint Legislative Committee on Highways and Motor Vehicles determined to recommend legislation which would give the Department of Public Works enough money to install safety lighting on a limited mileage of heavy traffic State highways of proven night hazards."

"Massachusetts must do something to stem the rapid increase in night fatalities. The motorist is paying plenty for the protection afforded by highway improvement and, personally, I do not believe that there is a motorist in the Commonwealth who will have any objection to the night-time improvement on State routes, provided the action is not carried on indiscriminately."

The Board of County Commissioners reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Nebraska Irrigation Projects of Interest To Wayne Farmers

(By Douglas G. Wright)

Lincoln, Neb.—The farmers of Nebraska, looking forward to the day when the supply of water will be available to them for irrigation, have made numerous inquiries to this office concerning the proper method of applying this moisture to their soil.

In some communities plans have been made for holding demonstration meetings during which specialists from the University of Nebraska, together with the farm agents of their counties, have cooperated in giving practical lessons in proper irrigation. These demonstrations are being enthusiastically attended.

However, there have been some communities which have not yet reached the point where it has been possible for them to hold demonstrations, but whose farms may have irrigation from Public Works administration irrigation districts by the end of the year. In some cases, these communities are made up of farmers who have already planted their crops. Perhaps a review of the subject now may serve them many a disappointment later when they start running water over this land.

Irrigation, even though it has been dreamed about for years in Nebraska, is something entirely new to this area and will of necessity require a complete change of farming methods as well as farming culture. Anybody will appreciate the fact that irrigation and the proper application of water to the lands, requires a great deal of knowledge and a great deal of earnest study by the farmers themselves to permit its successful economic use.

During inspection trips, it has been evident that there is a considerable misconception of what constitutes a lateral system to serve farm lands. While it is the duty of the irrigation districts to make water available to prospective water users at a point on their system of canals reasonably convenient to the land of the water user, it is the farmers' responsibility to construct small ditches and the necessary farm structures to carry water to the various parts of his land in such a way as to irrigate the different types of crops that are planted on the different parcels of his land.

It can readily be seen that it is necessary as the farmer rotates his crops to make minor revisions and changes in his farm laterals. Row crops in irrigated areas are generally laid out so that the rows themselves are on such a grade that the water may be turned in from the farm lateral at one end of the row and allowed to run down the entire length of the row, after which the small cut in the dike of the farm lateral for that row is closed manually and the water is turned into the net row.

The general procedure is to place a small movable canvas dam across the farm lateral making as many cuts in the lateral as its capacity will permit. When the several rows have been irrigated, the procedure is carried on across the field. In the case of small grain crops planted with a drill, careful note of the direction of the drill marks will enable the water to be delivered down these marks in almost the same way that water is delivered down a crop row. In the case of alfalfa and other forage crops, the foliage will lend sufficient resistance to the water to cause it to spread and these crops can be irrigated very easily by a simple flooding method provided spreader laterals are located at intervals of from 50 to 150 yards down the alfalfa field and the water allowed to run down from one to another spreader lateral.

In laying out crops for irrigation, the most common error is that the fall down the rows or across the land is so great that the water running down the rows or the spreaders erodes the soil. A little study by the farmers of this section with advice from the districts should enable the farmers to irrigate any of the land lying in the portions of Nebraska which will soon enjoy the fruits of Platte and Loup waters.

Continuing a discussion of the problems confronting the Public Works administration in administering its assistance to Nebraska's five principal power and irrigation districts, representatives of PWA will hold another dialogue over WAAW, Omaha, at 6:45 P. M., Central Standard time, tomorrow night.

The broadcast was originally scheduled to be held between K. Sewell Wingfield, chief project engineer for the Nebraska PWA, power and irrigation projects and his administrative assistant Gerald Miller. Because Mr. Wingfield was called to Washington early in the week, he has asked Earl F. Ketcham, supervising engineer inspector, to represent him.

The broadcast will be principally concerned with explaining the connection between power and irrigation and why power is necessary in the plan to make the price of irrigation within the reach of every farmer in the neighborhood of an irrigation district.

Winner-Loser Contest Idea Ruled Out by Festival

School Event Will Be Held at College Auditorium

The trend of eliminating the "winner-loser" spirit in much of the extra-curricular work in the schools of the nation has been followed in the Wayne county rural school music festival which will be held at the college auditorium this coming Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Prof. H. H. Hanscom of Wayne State Teachers college and Miss Pearl E. Sewell, county superintendent of schools, are in charge of arrangements. Mrs. Ray of Fremont will be critic.

It was pointed out that this event is in no sense a contest, but is rather, a festival, where all schools who desire may take part just for the fun of it — just for the pleasure derived from participating in a musical performance.

There will be chorus numbers, rhythm bands, harmonica bands, solo numbers, and duets. There will be no admission charges and everyone who is interested is cordially invited to attend.

Secret Marriage Revealed of Former Wayne Boy

Tire Industry Launches Safe Driving Drive

New York—The automobile industry of the nation has taken up the fight for safer highways and better business.

Estimated that there are 59 million tires in use on motor cars in the United States which should be replaced this year with more than a half-billion dollars' worth of safe, new tires, the tire division of the Rubber Manufacturers' association announced a mighty cooperative program to reduce highway accidents and to stimulate business.

The program will be climaxized by observance of National Tire Safety Week, during the week of May 14-21, with tire makers, distributors and dealers all supporting it.

Please to car owners and drivers to protect themselves, their families, and others on the road with them by replacing their old, smooth tires, will be presented to the motoring public.

"Industry figures indicate that 59 million tires now in use are smooth or will become smooth during 1938," said A. L. Viles, president of the Rubber Manufacturers' association. "Many of these are unsafe. Unless these dangerous tires are replaced, millions of motorists will be taking needless chances. They will be risking their lives for just a few extra miles."

"This is why tire manufacturers banded together to institute National Tire Safety Week. They wanted to show motorists everywhere the utter foolishness of trying to obtain those few extra miles. And they wanted to stimulate business by encouraging sales which would total more than a half-million dollars, if all old, smooth tires were replaced."

Weedy Pastures Should Be Corrected

Pastures in eastern Nebraska are greening up but much of the green is not grass but weed. Wild bromes, wild barley, pepper grasses and dandelions are showing up.

Wild grasses are commonly mistaken for valuable grasses. Since they come on early and make a thick covering on the ground, they look good at this time of year. However, these weedy grasses are of little value. They are fall annuals, germinating in the fall and maturing early in the spring. Some grazing can be secured now but by the first of June, they are usually headed and dried up.

Even more serious are the pepper grasses, grazing of which results in tainting of milk. Much of

THE COLUMBIA, largest of the rivers on the Pacific Coast of the United States, finds its actual source in the great icefield covering the crest of this peak in Jasper National Park, Alberta. The mountain, known as Snow Dome, lies within a few hundred yards of the new motor road between Jasper Park Lodge and the Columbia Icefield, biggest glacial area south of the Arctic Circle in North America. Snow Dome, one of the many huge peaks in the Columbia Icefield Region, is the hydrographic apex of the Canadian Rockies and in addition to being the source of the Columbia River it is also the source of the Athabasca whose waters flow to the Arctic Ocean and of the Saskatchewan which reaches the Atlantic Ocean. A corner of the new motor highway is seen.

Contour Corn Planting Increasingly Popular

Contouring Holds Soil Moisture, Increases Yield

With corn planting time nearing, the possibility of planting the crop on the contour was suggested this week. Probably more corn will be planted on the contour in Wayne county this year than ever before.

Agricultural Agent Moller pointed to some things which can be expected from contouring. Heavy rains are less apt to wash out the seed on slopes and bury it with silt in low places when corn is contoured than when it is listed up and down hill.

Contour farming is one of the best known practices to keep raindrops where they fall and thus reduce washing of soil on slopes. It is possible to impound 3 surface inches of water on a 5 per cent slope by contour lister furrows.

E. H. Doll, assistant extension conservationist at the college of agriculture points out also that contour farming is one of the most efficient means of saving soil and water per unit of expense. Recent experiments show that with contouring less fuel is used and consequently less wear on machinery can be expected.

In southeastern Nebraska in 1937, the average yield of 10 fields planted on the contour was 32.4 bushels per acre while planted up and down hill, the yield was 23.5 bushels per acre on the same fields. These yields were recorded by Doll in Cass, Otoe, Nemaha and Richardson counties.

Over a 4-year period on a loessial soil (Clarinda, Ia.) with an average rainfall of 26 inches the average yield of corn on the contour was 23 bushels and 13 bushels up and down an 8 per cent slope. The rows listed up and down hill lost 60 times as much water in the 4 years as on the contour. The up and down hill corn lost 16 times as much soil as the contoured.

Yellow Corn Best Poultry Feed

Yellow corn is apparently a better poultry feed than white milo, recent tests at the Nebraska college of agriculture indicate. Prof. F. E. Mussel, chairman of the poultry husbandry department, has announced results of an eight-week feeding experiment with White Leghorns.

Chickens receiving the standard 8-S% mash—recommended by the college, which contains yellow corn, showed nearly 10 per cent better growth than those fed the same mash with sorghum substituted for the corn.

Prof. Mussel believes the higher growth rate may be due to larger amounts of vitamin A in the yellow corn than in the white milo. He thinks, too, that the vitamin may be more abundant in other colored or pigmented types of grain sorghum. To investigate this principle, he will begin a new series of feeding experiments within a few days using pigmented sorghums. This time, he will compare early kalo and sooner milo (with yellow pigment) and black amber can (with brown to black pigment), and atlas sorgo (which is white or unpigmented).

Prof. Mussel is studying mineral requirements of growing turkeys with particular attention to manganese. This is being done in cooperation with Dr. C. W. Ackerson and Dr. M. J. Blish, Experiment Station chemists.

Give Sorghum Planting Dates

Recommend Cultural Practices in Grain, Forage Purposes

With all Wayne county farmers interested in the statewide Pasture-Forage-Livestock program and intending thusly to seed a larger than normal acreage of sorghums, their attention is called this week to recommended cultural practices which will give them the best opportunity of successfully growing the "camel" crops.

Agricultural Agent Moller referred to recommendations of the Nebraska college of agriculture as to planting rates. If sorghums are planted for grain or seed, the stand should not be too thick. Otherwise, the "drouth insurance" feature of the crop is largely minimized.

For grain purposes, sorghums should be planted in rows and tended much the same as corn. Rates of planting vary with viability of seed, variety and location within the state. Kafirs should be planted somewhat thicker than milos. The later utilizes moisture in the soil for considerable distances from the plant and hence should be spaced from 12 to 18 inches within the row. Kafirs should be spaced on an average from 4 to 8 inches within rows.

When seed of 90 per cent germination or better is used, the rate of planting for kafirs, including the kalos, should be from 3 to 5 pounds per acre in eastern Nebraska and from 2 to 3 pounds in western Nebraska. For the milos, corresponding rates are 3 to 4 pounds per acre in eastern Nebraska and 2 to 3 pounds per acre in western Nebraska. Because of the larger size, the number of seeds in a pound of milo is about three-quarters the number in a pound of kafir.

For forage purposes, sorghums in rows are planted at rates varying from 4 to 8 pounds per acre in eastern Nebraska and 3 to 5 pounds per acre in western Nebraska. The rate is reduced when the crop is to be used for seed purposes.

Special sorghum plates should be used in doing the planting. Blank plates may be used for this purpose, holes being drilled as needed to get the proper rate of planting. The holes should be reamed out at the bottom to prevent the seed from sticking in the hole once it has started through the plate. Holes approximately three-sixteenths inch in diameter are used for the kafir type of seed and about one-quarter inch in diameter for the milos and most forage sorghums.

Corn Test to Be Planted in Country

Eight major corn variety and hybrid tests will be planted soon in Nebraska. They are to be seeded in Richardson, Cass, Saline, Dodge, Wayne, Madison, Knox and Polk counties.

Fifty-five hybrids and open-pollinated varieties will be planted in each test. All hybrids now being sold in Nebraska will be tested. Next fall farmers will have an opportunity to examine the plots and determine for themselves the relative value of each hybrid and variety.

These tests are conducted each year by the department of agronomy at the Nebraska college of agriculture in cooperation with county agricultural agents and individual farmers. In each test, every hybrid or variety will be planted in six different places in the field in order to overcome errors which might creep into the yield figures because of soil variation within the field.

Supplementing these eight major tests will be a county test in Sherman precinct.

It's a Pleasure

To be in a business so closely identified with the business of farming, particularly at this time of the year. There is a noticeable expression of optimism which reflects a farmer's faith in his ability to build new wealth from the soil. Regardless of the reverses of yester-years a new enterprising spirit prevails and is noticeable among our farm patrons.

This optimism and enterprising spirit inspires us to do our best to serve our increasing number of farm patrons in the processing of their farm commodities such as cream, eggs and poultry. In so doing, together, we help each other to build and increase the prosperity of the whole community.

SPRING TIME IS PICNIC TIME

These are the days when it's well to keep on hand the "makings" for a picnic—in case we find ourselves unable to resist the lure of a golden day. The pleasantest outings are usually those where we suddenly decide to pack up what we can find in the pantry and take ourselves to the mountains or a lake or woods. There's a relaxation in eating outdoors in the spring that we can't get any other way. The lunch we take need not be elaborate—sandwiches—thermos jug of coffee—fruit and some cookies.

So see that you have a good supply of paper napkins and waxed paper—get the thermos jug down from the attic so it will be in readiness and see that there are sandwich materials on hand. Fill your cookie jars with the kind of cookies that go well with picnics. That means plump brown cookies filled with luscious raisins and spice. Or tender little pastry-like cookies with a sweet raisin filling. Here is a recipe for this kind of a raisin-filled picnic cookie that keeps well and tastes delicious with hot fragrant picnic coffee.

Raisin Filled Cookies

½ cup shortening (half butter for flavor)	½ tsp. soda
1½ cups brown sugar	1 tsp. baking powder
1 egg	½ cup sour milk
8½ cups all-purpose flour	1 tsp. vanilla
¾ tsp. salt	Raisin Filling

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually, and cream well. Blend in well beaten egg. Sift flour once before measuring. Sift flour, salt, soda and baking powder together and add to creamed mixture alternately with sour milk. Blend in vanilla. Place dough in refrigerator to chill (about 45 minutes). Roll out about ¼ inch thick on cloth-covered board (using flour rubbed into cloth to keep dough from sticking). Cut in rounds, hearts, diamonds, squares, or any desired shapes. (There should be 2 pieces alike for each cookie.) Place pieces to be used as bottoms of cookies on heavy ungreased cookie sheet. Place a generous tsp. of cooled raisin filling on each one. Place pieces to be used as tops over the filling. Press edges firmly together. Bake 10 to 12 minutes in a moderately hot oven, 400° F. Number of Cookies: About 40 (2½ inches in diameter).

Raisin Filling

1 cup raisins, ground	2 tbsp. all-purpose flour
1 cup hot water	1 cup sugar
Mix all ingredients together in saucepan about 10 minutes.

And here is a recipe for an old time favorite that always went to Sunday School and Fourth of July picnics. Do you remember the Fig Newtons? They were little oblongs with a sweet fig filling. Here is the recipe:

Fig Newtons

Mix dough as for Raisin Filled Cookies. Roll out rectangular strip about 4 inches wide and 12 inches long, filling all along one edge of strip (not quite covering ½ of it—only about 1½ inches wide). Fold over remainder of strip of dough to cover filling then fold it under edge of strip at bottom. (This makes a flat roll about 2 inches wide.) With a sharp knife, cut into bars about 2½ inches long. Bake as directed for Raisin Filled Cookies.

Fig Filling

Same as Raisin Filling—except substitute ground figs for raisins, and use only ½ cup sugar and 1 tbsp. lemon juice with grated rind of 1 lemon, 2 tbsp. flour, and 1 cup hot water.

Betty Crocker Advises

Question: How can I keep picnic sandwiches from drying out? Answer: Pile your sandwiches and wrap them in a damp towel if you are taking them a great distance where it will be a long time before they are to be eaten, or if you are making them several hours before starting for the picnic. However, for the usual picnic you'll find that your sandwiches will keep fresh if you wrap each in waxed paper as soon as it is made. Sandwiches look more attractive when each is wrapped neatly in a separate piece of waxed paper. Avoid wet fillings, of course.

Question: My children like peanut butter, but it always seems to me that peanut butter sandwiches are terribly dry. Is there anything I can mix with peanut butter that will make it seem less dry and taste all right?

Answer: To make a moist easy-spreading peanut butter filling for your children's sandwiches take 1 cup peanut butter, 1 cup hot water and ½ tsp. salt. Dissolve the salt in the hot water and add slowly to the peanut butter to make a thin paste. Adding the hot water and salt overcomes the stickiness of the peanut butter and makes it much more satisfactory. These amounts will make enough filling for 12 peanut butter sandwiches.

If you worry about what to serve, if you dread to start the next meal, just drop a card to Betty Crocker in care of your newspaper, and ask for this week's menus. Complete menus for the week will be sent to you at no cost. Please enclose 3 cent stamp to cover return postage.

Air-Conditioned COOLERATOR COSTS $100 LESS!

A modern air-conditioned Coolerator keeps foods fresher . . . prevents rapid drying out . . . gives you plenty of ice cubes in only 5 minutes. Yet it actually costs as much as $100 less than you'd expect to pay. Prove these statements in your own home by trying Coolerator free for 10 days. Select any model — see for yourself the big advantage of Coolerator's patented air conditioning chamber.
