

College Enrollment Shows Large Increase

Heavy Matriculation Necessitate Division of Classes

An increase of approximately 100 students at the beginning of the summer term of Wayne State Teachers college is shown as compared to last year's enrollment, school authorities announced today. The total enrollment is 1,045 students.

Of the total enrollment, 791 regular college students matriculated Monday. In the college training school and rural school, the enrollment totals 168 pupils. Twelve special students have entered Wayne State at the beginning of the term. The correspondence students have increased this year to 75 students.

Several factors contributed to the increased enrollment. A shortage of teachers throughout the country has attracted many to the teaching profession. A sizeable percentage of students are enrolled for the first time this summer. The new certification law is slightly responsible for the increased student body. Prospects of a good crop and a cool summer also are factors.

Heavy enrollments in several education courses has necessitated sectioning of classes. Introduction to Education has been divided into three sections. Prof. A. F. Gulliver, Prof. K. N. Parke, and Dean Martha Smith-Smith are instructors.

The course in geography of Nebraska has been sectioned into three classes. Dr. Fred P. G. Dale, Prof. A. F. Gulliver, and Prof. M. C. Bloss as teachers. Prof. W. Hickman teaches both sections of Health and Hygiene course. Miss Jessie Boyce and Miss E. Marie Hove will teach Methods of Teaching arithmetic which was divided into two sections.

In lower elementary observation and methods, enrollment was heavy. Dean H. H. Hahn and Prof. Bloss instruct the two divisions. Prof. Raymond Cherry will teach the sectioned classes in home craft. Prof. H. H. Hamson and Prof. Russel Anderson will teach Fundamentals of Music. Fundamentals of Speech was sectioned into two classes with Mrs. R. R. Smith and Miss Lenore Ramsey as instructors.

Wayne county is represented in Grand Island this week at the state-wide meeting of the Nebraska Home Demonstration Council. Going from here to the three-day sessions which got underway Wednesday afternoon were Mrs. Lawrence Ring of Wakefield and Mrs. R. H. Thompson of Winside.

Farm women band together in groups to meet six times during the year to study improved home-making practices. There were 254 women enrolled in the work from Wayne county this past year in 17 clubs.

Speakers Discuss Organization of Local Councils

More than 130 Wayne residents interested in organizing local safety council convened Friday evening to hear H. S. Byrne of Omaha speak upon the necessity of safety organization. H. E. Sinner presided.

The Nebraska Safety Council is undertaking to get a large organization through membership in the council. Through the cooperation of this council, local organizations will be formed so that the safety program can function efficiently.

The speaker pointed out that the safety council through the cooperation of the safety patrol has reduced the percentage of accidents for 1938 for the first five months period 26 per cent as compared to the similar period last year.

Corporal Fouts of Norfolk, representative of the safety patrol, explained the duties of the safety patrol and pointed out how it was cooperating with the program of the Nebraska Safety Council. He urged all Wayne citizens to cooperate with the Safety Council program.

Dr. Walter Emery and H. E. Ley showed two safety pictures on "How to Avoid Accidents in Traffic and in the Home."

Mystery Veils Safe Return of Jack Dempsey

The pastebored statue of Jack Dempsey which was kidnapped by pranksters a few weeks ago was returned late Monday evening to the Stratton Hotel lobby. Above is the picture of genial "Jack" taken with Allen Boock and Mr. Pomer salesman. The pastebored statue was returned by Carl Nicolaisen. In some mysterious way, a friend of the kidnapers turned over the life-size likeness of "Jack" to Carl.

The Wayne News received the following letter from Jack Dempsey Monday. (Appears in a copy of the News with the kidnapped story found its way into the hands of the ex-heavyweight Boxing Champion of the World.) "Please accept my sincere thanks and appreciation for all the nice publicity you have been giving me. I want you to know that I appreciate the publicity on my behalf and think it is more than kind of you.

Under separate cover, I am sending you an autographed photograph.

With kindest personal regards, I am,

Your pal,

WPA Workers Get Private Jobs

Increased Demand for Labor Expected in Coming Months

With weather and crop conditions indicating a probable marked demand for labor during the coming months, State Administrator D. F. Felton of the Works Progress administration has instructed all supervising employes to aid in every possible way the immediate supplying of workers to private employers.

"There are more than a sufficient number of workers to fill jobs with the possible exception of a few skills," Mr. Felton said. "My desire is to make the worker available to the employer. This cannot be done by haphazard street solicitation of idle men by employers seeking workers.

The approved method is for the employer to make his request at the offices of the Nebraska State Employment Service or the National Reemployment service, where every WPA worker is registered.

"I want to cut every possible bit of red tape and save all possible inconvenience to prospective employers. For that reason, I have instructed WPA supervisory personnel to extend every possible assistance. Where no employment service office is immediately available, WPA supervisors will cooperate in obtaining workers for private employment. Employers can contact their county commissioners to learn the proper WPA supervisor in the county if they are not already informed."

Mr. Felton stated that workers have been informed they must accept private employment where reasonable working conditions, and the prevailing wage for their skills are offered. Refusal to accept such employment will result in the worker being dropped from the WPA for the duration of the job offered.

"Should the demand for labor make it necessary, WPA projects will be completely closed down to provide labor for private employers," Mr. Felton said. "There

Distribution Will Be Made to Needy Thru State Relief Agencies

The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation will buy upward of 125,000 barrels of surplus wheat flour under a purchase program authorized for the remainder of this fiscal year, the Agricultural Adjustment administration announced today. Distribution of the flour purchased will be made to needy people through state relief agencies.

About 575,000 bushels of wheat will be required for the manufacture of the total quantity of flour authorized for purchase under the program.

Purchase of the entire quantity authorized would divert a substantial supply of surplus wheat from normal trade channels and increase consumption of flour by distribution to needy people unable to buy flour in adequate quantities. AAA officials point out.

Purchases will be made from millers in all sections of the United States where distribution needs make it feasible. Delivery of the flour to the corporation is to be made during each of the four weeks beginning June 4, 11, 18 and 25.

Under a recent program, the corporation purchased about 10,000 barrels of flour, at the request of Illinois and Ohio state authorities, to meet emergency relief needs. Distribution of the flour was made, through state agencies, to relief clients in Chicago, Cleveland and Toledo and in other sections of both states.

Wisconsin Educator Visits State for First Time

I am experiencing my first visit to Nebraska. I have been here only a few days, but feel that I have been here much longer. A cordial and friendly "hello" has greeted me, a stranger, time and time again as I walked about town observing your fine city. I sincerely appreciate these cheery salutations. They have made me, a son of Wisconsin, feel perfectly at ease and at home here in Nebraska.

Being a school teacher, I of course have enjoyed the opportunity to visit the campus of your Teachers College. We have several Teacher Colleges in Wisconsin, most of which are smaller in size of campus and enrollment than the one here at Wayne. The campus of your institution is indeed beautiful with its shaded walks, splendidly arranged buildings, and fine flower beds and shrubbery. I know the sons and daughters of Nebraska are inspired to do splendid work in an institution which is so particular with the setting in which its halls are located. Teachers, if their pupils are to be happy and well adjusted individuals, must themselves be happy and well adjusted. I know of no better way to develop happy, contented, and wholesome-minded teachers, than to give them the opportunity to work and grow in the arts of teaching in an environment which is rich in beauty and well-planned order. I am sure that the schools, with which the graduates of this College become associated, will reflect the order, good planning, and inspiration represented in their Alma Mater.

During the past twenty years Wisconsin has experimented considerably in matters concerning schools and education. First came our teacher retirement program. Five percent of each teacher's salary is paid into a State Retirement Fund each month. This amount is invested and earns interest which is credited to the individual teacher. When the teacher stops teaching, the amount of money paid into the Retirement Fund plus interest is returned to the teacher. The state builds up another fund for each teacher which is called the Annuity Fund. The individual teacher Annuity Fund is equal to the amount paid into the Teacher Retirement Fund by each individual teacher. The Annuity Fund is made available to the individual teacher when the teacher has reached the age of fifty and has stopped teaching. A Wisconsin teacher needs to teach only one year to have an annuity fund and not twenty-five years as many out-of-Wisconsin people seem to think.

The second educational program started in Wisconsin has to do with the equalizing of educational opportunity by giving state aid to poorer school districts. The state allots $250.00 to each school district for each elementary school teacher employed by the district. The county gives a similar amount for each elementary school teacher. In addition to these amounts which are given to all districts, rich or poor, another amount is given by the state to each district. This amount is equal to the difference between the money raised for elementary school purposes in a given school district and the amount that would be raised if the taxable valuation was equal to $250,000. This second amount paid by the state is known as the equalization payment. The whole program is based on the idea of taxing the wealth where it is to educate the child where he is. In general, the northern districts receive large equalization payments and many of the southern districts receive little or no payments. There is no program, to speak of at the present time, to give state aid to high schools.

This past year a Teacher Tenure Law has gone into operation. Any teacher who teaches in a given school successfully for five years can not be removed from that position without specific and justifiable cause. The cause must be submitted at a public hearing.

I have spent enough time on the question of education. I want to write a few lines now on the subject of typography. For some reason or other I have always had the idea that Nebraska was as level as Indiana. I have been very pleasantly surprised to find this part of your state, at least, to be rolling. I was reared near the Mississippi Valley and have always loved the hills. The hills of home have always been an inspiration to me. To me they are protectors. I have spoken to a few persons from this section of the country and I have been told that the wide open country is more desirable because one's horizon is narrowed too much by hills. On the other hand I personally feel happy with great hills about me. How strange is the effect of the typography upon one's personal feelings.

A great many of the farms in Wisconsin range from forty to one hundred acres in size. In your state you talk about the size of fields in those terms. A field of corn or small grain in Wisconsin that ranges from ten to twenty acres in size is considered a good sized field. Your fields of corn and small grain range in size from forty or fifty acres on up and have been indeed a rare sight for me.

Nearly everyone is familiar with the fact that Wisconsin specializes in dairying. The country cheese factory and creamery are common sights at the cross roads up and down our state. Many people also know that the potato is a major product in Wisconsin. Nearly everyone with whom I have spoken while on my visit here expresses surprise when I say that tobacco is also an important crop in the southern part of my state. A great many of our farmers are busy right now in planting their tobacco fields. In the counties of Vernon, Dane, Crawford, Monroe, LaCrosse and a few others more than forty thousand acres will be planted to tobacco this year. If the yield is good an acre of tobacco will bring earnings ranging from $200.00 to $300.00. An average crop will weigh approximately 1,200 to 1,500 pounds per acre. Last year the highest price paid per pound was 28 cents. The success of this crop depends largely upon the weather. I have seen crops that would run 2,000 pounds to the acre destroyed by hail in ten minutes a day or two before harvest time.

I have enjoyed my stay in Nebraska and hope to come again. Your friendliness will not soon be forgotten.

Note: Mr. E. G. Kromrey, a brother-in-law of Mr. Burris has been spending a first visit to Nebraska and Wayne. We thought our readers would be pleased to read his comments on Nebraska and Wayne and something about his native State Wisconsin. Mr. Kromrey is a Superintendent of schools at Middleton, a few miles northwest of Madison.

After All Have Republicans Much to Be Happy About As a Result of the Iowa Primary?

It is interesting to note press comments of jubilant republicans over the results of the democratic primary in Iowa. The fact that the Iowa democrats chose Gillette who hadn't been able to see eye to eye with the president on all matters rather than Wearin who had agreed with the president on key legislation has been given every interpretation by republicans except perhaps a sign that Hoover will be elected president in 1940.

When this hilarity subsides and posters come to their right senses, the fact that the democrats polled 10,000 more last week than they did in the 1934 primary and further that the republicans polled 23,000 less may suggest something for them to think about. With the choice of Iowa voters having to be made between the progressive liberal democrat Gillette and the conservative reactionary republican Dickinson the senatorial election this fall in Iowa won't be much of a horse race.

Nearly always, the preference of Iowa voters for a liberal senator has predominated. It is within the sad memory of many stalwart republicans in the Hawkeye state that once upon a time one of their own: flock became so opposed to administration policies that he was read out of the party. This same Brookhart returned to the senate to replace Cummings, who was himself once a liberal. It was such a shocking blow that Iowa standpatters have never gotten over it. They just cannot believe that most Iowans want a liberal senator to represent them irrespective of party.

It is only natural that Dickinson, or any other ultra conservative would poll a huge vote in Iowa. Conservatism reflects the interests of big business in Iowa, just as well as in the East. Iowa's industrial income exceeds her agricultural income but by the time of the November election the votes of the smaller businessman and the bulk of the farmers are usually allied with the liberal candidate.

In my opinion the fall of '38 will be no exception. The rural press in Iowa is decidedly opposed to Dickinson. I know of scores of Iowa country editors who helped Gillette's cause in the past who no doubt will support him again under the circumstances.

It isn't that Iowa republicans have no outstanding liberals; they have plenty of them, but the old machine still controls, perhaps unfortunately for the welfare of the republican cause. These men have been ignored until their efforts have accounted for the growing prestige of liberal democrats in the one time solid republican state.

WORDS WITHOUT MUSIC

By LOUIS REID
(Music Features & Photo Syndicate)

A CONCERT pianist, to get away from the beaten track, try out a novel detour, offered the other day "Old Black Joe" as a Polish dance; "Turkey in the Straw" as a Hungarian dance by Brahms; "Home, Sweet Home" as an Arabian dance by Tchaikovsky; "Old Folks at Home" as a waltz by Chopin; "Yankoo Doodle" as both a march and a waltz by Liszt and Liszt would have done it. "America" as a waltz by Beethoven and Tin Pan Alley would have written it and "The Star Spangled Banner" in the manner of Mozart... Detours can be tedious.

Louis Reid

Whatever became of Emma F. Tolson? She was the girl to whom the song "Sweet Adeline" was dedicated. Her name appeared at the top of every copy of the song.

Harry Armstrong, composer of the ballad recalls that as a young girl who in 1907, the year of the song's publication, was selling music in a New York department store. She had been successful in boosting his first song hit, "The Story of the Violets Told." Armstrong was grateful. "Why don't you write a song to me?" she asked. So when "Sweet Adeline" was ready it bore the inscription: "To Emma F. Tolson."

Some musicians who live up to their torrid names in the tones they offer are Joe Venuti, fiddler; Paul Napoleon, trumpeter; Miff Mole, trombonist; Toots Mondello, Paul Ricot, Cab Calloway, saxophonists.

Benny Goodman, apparently, isn't satisfied to be the dictator of swing. He has turned songwriter, too. With the help of Edgar Sampson and Mitchel Parish he has penned a tune called "Don't Be That Way." Another swing sabbid, Louis Prima, has also written a song—"Where Have We Met Before?"—and quite a nifty it is.

There's no time in Germany for any "Hey-Hei-Nazi-Nazi" and a "Hi-De-Ho." A Berlin daily had this to say the other day: "As Germans, the most musical people on earth, we insist we no longer have pleasure in the furiously sax squeals, clarinet blaste, trumpet shrills. Jazz is finished."

But Paul Whiteman goes right on shaking his knees, Benny Goodman goes right on tapping his toes.

It is doubtful Frank Crumit would have given up a career in electrical engineering had he not in his idle moments furnished up the old ballad, "The Gay Cabellero." Two million records were sold of the thing, and Crumit's stage life began... It is the Spaniard Andres Segovia who has convinced American ears that the guitar can be utilized for tunes other than those of the campus and the coral strands of Hawaii... There has never been a butlers' chorus—not even in England... Recently there was a film called "Gold Is Where You Find It." Songwriters Warren and Dubin, glancing at the title, substituted "love" for "gold," and lo! that's how ballads are born... Modern American music is only 24 years old... Raymond Scott, the songwriter, is a brother of Mark Warnow, the band-leader.

The patron saints of the more ambitious popular orchestras continue to be Victor Herbert, Sir Arthur Sullivan and Franz Lehár. These three composers are always on tap, always ready and reliable when a program needs life pumped into it. Over and over you hear them. Yet, they never grow stale—well hardly ever. Herbert and Lehár bulk a little larger on the scene, if only because they, respectively, wrote the luscious tunes, "Kiss Me Again" and "Merry Widow Waltz." These pieces are warbled by every singer above the rank of burleycue, are played by every band above the hoe-down hillbilly grade.

Correct Pin Feathery Chickens Thru Selection

Ugly pin feathery appearance of many heavy breed cockerels when around frying size may be corrected through selection. Instead of selling or butchering these birds, they can be marked so some may be kept for breeders the next season. The reason is that slow feathering has been found to be an inherited characteristic.

J. R. Redditt, extension poultryman at the college of agriculture, says poultry feeds containing a higher percentage of fiber have proved helpful in developing normal feather growth in market birds. Instead of attempting to hold fiber content of mash down to five per cent, it is suggested that it go as high as eight or nine per cent.

An excellent way to supply ample quantities of digestible fiber is through the use of about 10 per cent good grade alfalfa in the mash mixture. At the Nebraska experiment station, broilers did better on ground whole oats than on hulled oats. Improved feather growth, as well as increased weight, was observed when a fair percentage of bran was included in the mash.

Wayne Farmers May Attend Field Day

Plans now are complete for holding the annual crops and soils field day at the Nebraska college of agriculture this Wednesday. Some Wayne county farmers may attend.

The morning program will be devoted to discussions regarding pertinent crop problems. Dr. F. D. Keim, chairman of the agronomy department, will preside. Among the topics to be discussed are: Harvesting of grain sorghums, bindweed eradication districts, weed and grass identification, winter oats and hybrid corn. The afternoon will be spent at measure and also as a container for the solution since it destroys metal containers. An old granite or enameled pan may be used for dissolving the copper sulphate and diluting the solution up to 1 gallon. A fresh solution must be made for each drenching. One gallon of the solution prepared on the farm will cost about 2 cents.

Cautions Against Wheat Speculation

Borrowers who have mortgaged their grain to the Farm Security administration to secure rehabilitation loans are planning to sell as soon after harvest as practicable in line with orderly marketing practices, stated Ray L. Verzal, county rehabilitation supervisor. Such borrowers are cautioned against indefinite storing of wheat for speculative purposes.

Wayne, Pierce Counties Grant Load Is Out

The grant load of the Farm Security administration is being cut down as rapidly as possible, said Ray L. Verzal, rehabilitation supervisor for Wayne and Pierce counties. He reported a statement from Cal A. Ward, regional FSA director, that needs for farm grants should materially decrease during the summer, and that many farmers who have depended on grants will look to their incomes, cream checks, and other income to supply their living. Many former grant clients are now standard borrowers, he stated.

ELI CULBERTSON SAYS FIFTH SUIT BRIDGE WILL LAST WITH MAJOR CHANGES

THE King and Queen of England bought one of the new five suit decks of playing cards, a small cable dispatch appeared in the American newspapers a fortnight later and an international bridge controversy was launched.

Will five suit bridge last? "Yes" and "No," says Eli Culbertson, long an authority on bridge. The man who made "big business" of the game explains his answer in a signed article in June Good Housekeeping.

It will be the "kitty" or the "widow" card that will open up so many fascinating new angles to the modern bridge player, Culbertson contends.

"The most serious students and lovers of contract bridge, after a brief examination of five suit bridge, have rejected it as an inferior product," he says. "At first I was inclined to be of the same opinion."

"Five suit bridge," the noted player predicts, "begun as a stunt to promote the fifth suit, with an unobtrusive widow thrown in as left Friday for Ladora, Ia., where they will visit friends and relatives. They will also visit at Ames, Ia., before returning home."

Bridgeman Culbertson an afterthought, will very probably end up as a national game featuring the widow, but with the fifth suit completely lost.

keeping story, points out that the five card suit is the biggest news in the 400 year old history of the card game.

But the same 400 years, Culbertson insists, has proven to generations of card manufacturers that the pastboard world is jealous and intolerant of any changes, however slight, in the makeup of the familiar decks.

The veteran player reveals that he has been experimenting for years with a system of "widow contract" bridge but he refuses to state when he will place it in play. "When the time is ripe," he says. He explains the intricate scoring of the new game in his article, and demonstrating the fantastic possibilities of the widow card in bridge, sets up a hand conceived by his partner, Mrs. Josephine Culbertson.

"No," Mr. Culbertson says, the new game will not easily displace the scientific four game suit. "Good players," he says, "are the privileged class of bridge. They will not easily give up for a new strange game their profitable accomplishments acquired after so much effort."

Conduct Canning Demonstration Here

Mrs. Maxwell Will Hold Canning School Here June 25

Mrs. Rosina K. Maxwell of the Indiana extension service will conduct a canning demonstration in Wayne Saturday, June 25 to be held at the city auditorium at 2:30 o'clock. On Friday, June 24, she will conduct a similar demonstration at the Brunada theater at Winside at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Maxwell's knowledge of the principles of food preservation, plus her skill in judging the quality of home canned products is so widely recognized that she is engaged annually by the Indiana state fair board to judge the girls' club work.

Mrs. Maxwell will demonstrate the canning of vegetables and may also include a demonstration of the canning of fruits. The farm bureau urges that all farm women and 4-H girls be in attendance.

Mrs. Maxwell, an alumnus of the University of Illinois, taught home economics two years and then became assistant state club leader in Indiana. She left the extension service to be married.

This work takes her all of the way from the kitchens of the poorest farm folks to the platforms of the large utility companies. She is happy and successful in her work because she understands and likes people. People like her because she has the ability and takes the trouble to adapt her subject matter and method of presentation to the needs, experiences, and average intelligence of her audience.

Applications Increase for Cooperative Loans

The value of adequate records of income and expenditures has been demonstrated beyond question among standard borrowers of the Farm Security Administration, declared county FSA supervisor Ray L. Verzal of Wayne. This work is largely under the direction of the home supervisors, he said, and much of the work of keeping records is done by the women of the farm homes.

FRANCES MEYER
 FREMONT, Neb.—Chosen by the faculty as the senior girl best exemplifying the ideals of Midland college, Frances Meyer, winner, was enthroned as the "Spirit of Midland" at the institution's Golden Jubilee pageant May 31. Miss Meyer was graduated with magna cum laude honors June 1. During her four years at Midland, she had been president of three organizations—Y. W. C. A., Dorm Coeds and Chi Mu, honorary society for students excelling in forensics—and an active member in the Midland Players and Women's Athletic Association.

the betterment of the group provides a service which probably could not be provided if the borrower would have to obtain this for his own use. A number of loans have been made for the purchasing of cooperative sires and for the purchasing of cooperative equipment which takes into consideration the purchase of harvest equipment, binders, corn shellers, press drills, field insilage cutters, and various other machines which can be purchased through a loan from the FSA so as to give this needed-service to the community. The one who purchases this equipment does custom work and the repayments on this particular loan will be derived from income received from custom work. This phase of the program is very worthy of consideration and for further details in regard to this program please consult the county rehabilitation supervisor in your local county.

Surplus Farm Income Apply on FSA Debt

Farm income over and above family needs must be applied to repayments due on Farm Security Administration loans, said county FSA supervisor, Ray L. Verzal. He added that the FSA will make necessary releases of government mortgaged property, including wheat, for facilities and equipment needed for further rehabilitation.

Dr. and Mrs. Walter Benthack and Robert, Alice and Elaine left Wednesday for San Francisco, Calif., where Dr. Benthack will attend the national medical association conference. Dr. C. M. Coe of Wakefield will be in charge of Dr. Benthack's practice during his absence.

Emphasis Placed on Cooperative FSA Farm Loan Program

Group Purchasing, Debt Adjusting Plan Are Stressed

The loan program of the Farm Security Administration has been rapidly advancing and changing so as to better meet the needs of those who cannot obtain equipment. Most of the loans which have been made were to standard rehabilitation borrowers but another phase of the program which has not been developed very strongly is the debt adjustment program and the cooperative program. The debt adjustment program is a voluntary adjustment of the debts within the ability of the debtor to pay and is worked out satisfactorily to all concerned. The cooperative section of the program provides for the cooperative purchase of livestock or equipment which can be used to

War on Hoppers Pushed on All Fronts

Distribute Third Bait Shipments in County This Week

War on the hopper is thinning the pest ranks in Wayne county as farmers are spreading the third shipment of hopper poison on their fields this week. The early grasshopper eradication campaign permits farmers to spread the bait along fence rows while the hoppers are small and concentrated in small patches thus killing the pests before they spread over the fields. Farmers cooperating in the early campaign find it is simpler to control the hoppers in the earlier stages.

The schedule for the third distribution is as follows:

Brenna Precinct—At the voting place on Tuesday, June 14, from 8 to 12 a. m.

Logan Precinct—at the Sale Pavilion on Thursday, June 6, 8 to 12 a. m.

Wilbur Precinct—At the John Lorenzen farm on Thursday, June 16, from 1 to 5 p. m.

Plum Creek Precinct—At school district No. 34, on Wednesday, June 15, from 1 to 5 p. m.

Strahan and Hunter Precincts—At the Theobald Lumber Co., on Tuesday, June 14, from 1 to 5 p. m.

Leslie Precinct—At the Kai school on Wednesday, June 15, from 8 to 12 a. m.

SCS Charts Soil Erosion Damage

To chart soil erosion conditions and obtain basic information on better land use, the Soil Conservation Service has completed surveys of more than 175 million acres of farm and grazing land. On an additional 150 million acres, survey work is in progress.

Besides the character and extent of erosion damage, the surveys show soil types, topographic features, and prevailing methods of land use. They are conducted on Soil Conservation Service demonstration areas, in work areas of CCC camps assigned to the service, in certain other watersheds, and within the boundaries of soil conservation districts organized by farmers under recent state laws.

Part of the work, covering approximately 85 million acres consists of detailed surveys that will help provide a basis for erosion-control operations. The remainder of the work consists primarily of broad, reconnaissance surveys that will be used principally for program planning and land-use recommendations.

Aerial photography plays an important part in both reconnaissance and detailed surveying, according to H. H. Bennett, chief of the service. Aerial photographs are used to show general physical outlines. Soil, slope, and land-use details are later filled in on these photographs by ground survey crews. Subsequently, the information is transferred to base maps.

In addition to its conservation work, the Soil Conservation Service is engaged in studying a number of watersheds for flood-control information. This work is carried on cooperatively with the Forest Service and the Bureau of Agricultural Economics under authority of the Omnibus Flood Control Act of 1936.

Hints to Gardeners

By Gordon Morrison
Vegetable Breeder
Ferry Seed Institute

Making the Garden Pay

MOST vegetable gardens are grown to provide fresher, more nourishing food for the family, and to conserve on food bills.

The vegetables raised will be determined to a certain extent by the amount of space available. Expert advice shows that a garden about 50 x 50' will provide a family of five with a good assortment and quantity of fresh vegetables during the summer.

Perhaps the most important vegetables, from point of view of food value and space required, are: Beans, carrots, beets, lettuce, radish, tomatoes, onions, peas and spinach. An abundance of all these can be grown in a 50 x 50 garden. And there will be room for a row or two of flowers. Calendula, sinola and nasturtium are perhaps the most satisfactory.

Good-sized, money saving yields of these vegetables can be grown in a garden but half that size. In many cases, economize on space and add to garden yield by following these suggestions: Plant two crops of spinach, one in early spring, the other in late summer. Plant Chinese cabbage, carrots, beets and peppers in late summer in space earlier occupied by beans, lettuce, radishes, onions and peas.

Plant lettuce, radish and beet rows on both sides of tomato rows. When tomatoes need the space, those earlier crops can be pulled and used.

While sweet corn takes up considerable space, many may wish to include it. If so, conserve space by planting radish and lettuce between rows of slower-growing corn. Or grow pole beans (cornfield beans) to climb on the corn stalks.

Where a space greater than 50 x 50 is available, such crops as winter squash, cucumbers, Swiss chard, watermelon and cantaloupe may be included.

SUMMER HOSPITALITY

The buffet supper solves many a summer entertaining problem. Especially for those with large verandas or terraces or velvety lawns where easy chairs and shady trees beckon one to relax and let the rest of the world go by.

It seems a shame to leave these pleasant outdoor living rooms even to eat. So the summer hostess plans a meal that can be enjoyed out-of-doors. The guests may be asked to go into the dining room to fill their plates at a bountifully set buffet table. But the food can be enjoyed outside—at one long table—or at convenient little tables.

Here is a distinctive and festive menu for a buffet supper or luncheon of this kind:

- Sea Food Surprise
Garnished with
Lettuce Curle, Red Tomato Slices, Sprigs of Watercress
Ripe Olives, Sections of Lemon
Crisp Hot Potato Chips Fresh Buttered Peas
Hot Buttered Rolls Jelly
Fresh Berries and Cream Chocolate Sponge Cake
- Coffee

The place of resistance of this supper is a gorgeous looking gelatin mold that seems to hold a whole fish. But when we look more closely we discover that our "fish" is made up of a number of different kinds of shell fish and other fish cunningly put together. You see the name Sea Food Surprise is well bestowed upon this "fish."

Sea Food Surprise

1 tsp. granulated gelatin	1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 cup cold water	4 tsp. lemon juice
1 bouillon cube	1 can sardines
1 cup boiling water	1 can shrimps (No. 1 size)
2 tsp. sugar	1 can crabmeat (7 oz. size)

Soak gelatin 5 minutes in cold water. Pour boiling water over bouillon cube. Stir until cube is dissolved. Pour bouillon over soaked gelatin. Sift cocoa until dissolved. Add sugar, salt and lemon juice and mix well. While gelatin mixture is cooling, grease a fish mold lightly and arrange whole sardines down the back. Use small green seedless grapes for the eyes. Pour 1/2 cup of the gelatin mixture (slightly set) into the mold. Allow to harden. Arrange carefully cleaned whole shrimps around the sides of the mold and flaked crabmeat in the center. Pour the rest of the partially set gelatin mixture over this and chill until stiff. When ready to serve, dip mold quickly into warm water and unmold on a bed of lettuce. Use a 3 cup capacity mold.

Chocolate Sponge Cake is fluffy and delicious without being too rich. It's the perfect accompaniment for berries and ice cream. Here is the recipe:

|---------------------------------------|--------------------------|
| 6 eggs | 6 tbsp. cold water |
| 1 1/2 cups sugar | 1 tsp. vanilla |
| 6 tbsp. cocoa | 1 1/2 tsp. baking powder |
| 1 cup cake flour or all-purpose flour | 3/4 tsp. salt |
- Beat egg yolks until very thick and lemon colored (about 3 minutes). Sift cocoa and sugar together. Beat in cocoa and sugar mixture gradually. Sift flour once before measuring. Blend flour and water alternately into the egg yolk mixture. Blend in lemon rind and flavoring. Beat egg whites until frothy, add baking powder and salt, and beat until egg whites are stiff enough to hold a point. Gently fold into egg yolk mixture. Pour into dry, ungreased tube center pan. Bake in a deep tube center pan, 9 inches in diameter, for 1 hour in a slow moderate oven, 325° F.
- Note: When cake is baked, invert pan until cake is entirely cold. To loosen the cake from the pan, plunge a straight knife or spatula up and down around edge of pan and around the center tube. Remove from pan by shaking the inverted pan sharply—holding the fingers underneath to catch the cake as it falls from the pan.
- If you worry about what to serve, if you dread to start the next meal, just drop a card to Betty Crocker in care of your newspaper, and ask for this week's menus. Complete menus for the week will be sent to you at no cost. Please enclose 3 cent stamp to cover return postage.

New Alfalfa Hybrids Interests Farmers

Farmers to Hear Latest Seeding Methods at Field Day

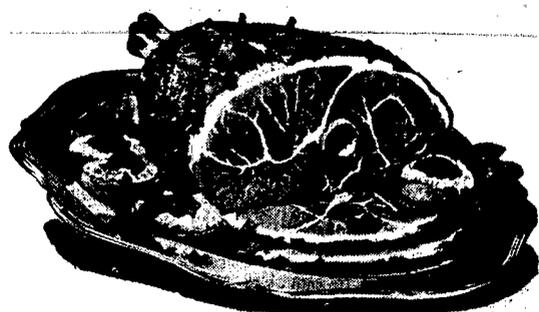

With increased interest being shown already in fall seeding of grasses and legumes, Wayne county farmers attending Crops Field day at the Nebraska college of agriculture Wednesday will have an opportunity to get the latest information about seeding. Of particular interest will be the alfalfa plots to be viewed during the afternoon.

Dr. H. M. Tysdal will lead the discussion regarding alfalfa. Visitors will be able to see the new alfalfa hybrids. Some of these last year yielded 25 per cent more than Grimm which is one of the highest yielding alfalfa varieties in Nebraska.

The pasture or grazing types of alfalfa—including creeping alfalfa—will also be seen growing. Some of these grow upright while others grow prostrate or creeping along the surface of the ground. They have been developed through crosses made from different types of alfalfa collected from various parts of the world.

Regular varietal comparisons will be inspected also. Thirty-five different strains are now in the plots. Killing out in the plots was extremely heavy this past winter and farmers will be able to see which varieties came through. Hardistan and Turkestan seem to have survived in the best shape.

When all the other members of the family are outdoors enjoying a holiday is mother in the kitchen cooking? She needn't be if she makes use of a recent new ham development. Instead, she'll cook her ham the day before while she's getting dinner, and thus have the meat dish all ready, not only for the picnics or for the dinner at home on the holiday, but for the remainder of the week-end meals as well.

The new Cudahy's Puritan Tender is cured by an exclusive new process which leaves it so juicy tender that it bakes in one-third less time and no parboiling. That means no hours over steaming kettles, no dragging a big, slippery ham from its hot water bath to the roaster. Instead, all you do is slip this ham into a roaster just as it comes from your dealer, tuck brown wrapping paper around it, heat your oven to about 350 degrees and bake it just seventeen minutes to the pound. For families who like decorated hams, remove the ham from the oven an hour before it's done, take off the skin, score the fat, sift brown sugar over, decorate with pineapple slices or orange sections and return to the oven. If you want to serve the ham hot, this decoration and glazing can be done a few minutes before you serve the ham. For picnic use the ham should be completely prepared the day before.

Even with a large family, you'll get three and probably four good meals if you buy the whole ham. There'll be a platter of ham slices the day after, which can be served cold or brushed with melted butter and broiled quickly together with tomato slices. Cudahy's Puritan Tender Ham is so tender that the meat in the butt and shank, as well, is tender enough to dice perfectly and make delicious creamed dishes or croquettes. Or it can be minced and used to stuff peppers or make au gratin dishes or sandwiches.

Think of the convenience of buying one piece of meat that takes care of all your meat needs over the week-end—meat which is delicious and flavorful so that you needn't worry how it will turn out—meat that can be cooked all at one time so that you will have a chance for a real rest over the week-end holiday.

We recommend this easy way whether you're having a hot dinner at home or a porch dinner or a camping or picnic dinner away from home. It will simplify your entire week-end.

Fewer Milk Cows, But Average Production Up

The total quantity of milk produced on farms in the United States last year is estimated by the bureau of agricultural economics at slightly more than 103 billion pounds. Production was about the same as in 1936, nearly 2 per cent greater than in either 1934 or 1935, but about one and one-half billion pounds short of the record milk production of 1933.

The average number of milk cows on farms in the United States during 1937 is estimated to have been 23,710,000 head. This was about 1 per cent fewer than in 1936 and about 6 per cent below the peak number in 1934. Milk production per cow in 1937 averaged 4,353 pounds, which was about 1 per cent higher than in 1936 and the highest since 1931.

Spring Favorable for Lamb Production

The spring of 1938 has been unusually favorable for lamb production and this has resulted in a larger number of lambs being raised than has been true in recent years, Arthur George, extension economist at the Nebraska college of agriculture, said this week in reviewing the sheep and lamb situation.

Pricing of lambs depend upon not only the supply but also upon the consumer demand for meats, he says. Consumer demand is greater or less as industrial activity is greater or less. With lower industrial activity, it is expected that lamb prices during the summer months will probably decline at least as much as normal and possibly more. Since, however, lamb prices are relatively low at the present, the reduction during the months ahead may not be as great as is normally the case.

With the larger early lamb crop, it is expected that summer marketings from them will be larger than a year ago but the number of yearling lambs which will be marketed from Texas will probably be smaller than a year earlier. The late lamb crop will likewise probably be larger than in 1937 because the ewes have come through winter and spring in excellent condition.

Give Recipe for Rhubarb Fluff

One pound rhubarb, one cup sugar, one tablespoon gelatine, one tablespoon cold water, one cup whipping cream, whipped.

Cut rhubarb in very small pieces. Cover with sugar and simmer until rhubarb falls apart. Remove from heat; add gelatine which has been softened in the water, and stir until completely dissolved. Chill until mixture begins to congeal; then fold in the whipped cream. Turn into mold and place in refrigerator. When molded turn out on serving plate and garnish with whole fresh strawberries. Makes six servings.

Stress Importance of Farm Records

The Farm Security Administration in this state reports a large number of applications for cooperative or community type of loans for the group purchase of harvesting equipment, said Ray L. Verzal, county FSA supervisor for Wayne and Pierce counties. These loans proved their value last season and the demand this year is considerably increased over that of last year.

Erosion Control Diminishes Gullies

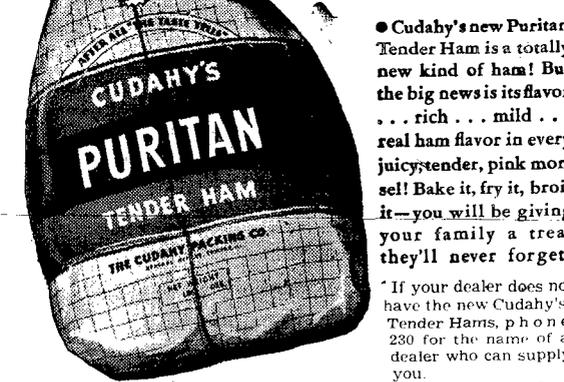

Gullies that are growing smaller instead of larger are to be found on many Nebraska farms this spring. Soil Conservation Service workers pointed out this week. Such gullies are especially noticeable on farms where complete programs of erosion control have been instituted.

To division ditches and fences goes credit for the major role of making gullies grow smaller instead of larger. Gullies that have division ditches above them keep water out of them and those that have fences around them to protect soil holding vegetation are being rapidly stabilized.

Farmers who have been using division ditches and fences to control gullies report that practices need not be excessively expensive. Once division ditches are constructed and fences built there is little, if any, added cost to stabilizing the gullies.

AFTER ALL "THE TASTE TELLS"

Estimate Ice Cream Sales Increase 25 Per Cent

Statistics recently released by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States department of agriculture, relative to the production of ice cream are intensely interesting to the milk producers of the country; 2,875,000,000 pounds of milk were utilized in the manufacture of ice cream in 1936.

These figures apply only to ice cream made in factories reporting, and it is estimated that at least 5 per cent more ice cream is made in plants not included in the above government statistics.

This means that over 4,000,000,000 pounds of milk were used in the production of ice cream in 1936!

While no statistics are available for 1937, it is estimated that the business increased at least 25 per cent over 1936 and that about 5,000,000,000 pounds of milk were used in the manufacture of ice cream last year.

Thus the ice cream industry furnished a market for milk without which there would have been a surplus of devastating proportions.

These are facts that are interesting to all milk producers regardless of their market and they should make all of us appreciate the interdependence of all branches of the dairy industry.

Develops Stock Enterprises

One outstanding result of supervised credit extended by the Farm Security Administration has been the development of strong live stock and feed enterprises on hundred of farms in this state, said Ray L. Verzal, FSA supervisor for Wayne and Pierce counties. A number of such enterprises have been built up and strengthened in this county, he said.

Eat More ICE CREAM

John Percival Opens Summer Lyceum Course at College

Swarthmore, Pa., will also appear on the summer course.

John Percival, whose rich, resonant, bass-baritone voice has delighted audiences throughout the country, hails from Boston, Mass. First attracting attention as the winner of his city's Atwater Kent Radio contest, he soon sang his way into the elect circles of the East and thence from coast to coast through his many radio hours.

In the short span of ten years, this young American artist has added his name to the list of exceptional musicians via concert, oratorio, opera and radio. He has been heard throughout New England in recital and as soloist with the leading symphony orchestras; soloist in the great oratorios in the large music centers of the East, including performances of "Elijah" at the Riverside Church in New York and in Verdi's "Requiem" at the Montreal Music Festival this season; selected by Wilfred Pelletier to sing the leading baritone role in Deems Taylor's new opera, "Ramunicho," at its first private performance in New York.

This past year, Mr. Percival has been soloist on the Chesterfield, "Air Brakes," Philip Morris, Firestone and City Service Radio programs. For the tenth anniversary program of station WEEI, Boston, Mr. Percival was one of the featured artists in a broadcast conducted over 144 stations and specially transmitted by short wave to the Byrd Expedition in "Little America."

Former Carroll Boy Writes Letter to Uncle

L. A. Washburn recently received a letter from his nephew, Lowell Shirts who is associated with the government radio service in Alaska and is stationed at Canyon Island. Shirts is a former Wayne county boy and had made his home at Carroll.

The letter is as follows:

Dear Ira and all:

A few boats running now and a chance to get mail off more often so will have this written in case some one stops.

The mine has a new boat on the river now just getting started hauling concentrates to mouth of river have made one round trip. The boat is not so large but has power and pushes heavily loaded barges ahead of it. It was built in Seattle during the winter at a cost of $30,000. The captain stopped in here the other day and cooked himself a meal on my stove because I was busy. He said he would be glad to take mail out for me.

May 3 was the big day for PAA in Seattle for Atlantic run, mail to Fairbanks. I think program went over CGS chain in the states. Wonder if you heard it.

The new ships being built for PAA in Seattle for Atlantic run, weigh 43 tons. Seems like a lot of weight to get off ground.

Is pretty much like spring here. Have robins around and leaves are coming on trees and grass is nice and green here on the hills.

The river is coming up fast now and has cleared ice but lots of snags coming down.

The first ten days this month have been real nice but today it is raining and low ceiling and barometer down very low to about the center of rain storm. But rain is welcome as water barrel was about empty and we count on rain water for everything.

The trapping season in this section will be closed so whoever is here next winter won't have much company. Peacock plans to return to the States this fall. This summer he cut wood for the station here and plans to get some work with the movie company that is at Joyces camp about 15 miles down river.

Have seen a few salmon running but not really started yet. Bill brought up net and put it in but all we got was sticks and a tangled net so far. Will be about a week or so and then you can catch them as fast as you can take them out of the net.

The bears are out but so far none on island. Peacock wants to get some cubs for the movie company who will pay for them if he can capture them.

Gleason, the head of communications in Alaska for PAA told me a couple nights ago that he would be down to see me in a couple weeks so imagine will get trip to town then as he will probably come out by seaplane even might be such a thing as I may work at Juneau station this summer but won't know till I see him. Peacock made one trip in and brought me some fresh meat and vegetables and fruit also had two chickens so put on a real feed the night they got back from town.

Today they are up at miners, about three miles from here and plan to do a little prospecting but this rain probably holding them in. Rains are usually warm here and if you dress for it you can stay out in it okay.

There is a rumor of highway being built from Seattle up through British Columbia to Whitehorse Yukon territory and thence to Fairbanks but that is about 200 miles north of here.

Suppose you have received copy of Alaska sportsman, had it sent to you for a year, you can call it your belated Christmas gift. But if you come to Alaska better bring yourself a cook as girls are scarce articles up here.

The big ice pool is over, the ice in Nenana river going out few days ago and several winners of 15 thousand each.

According to news, war clouds are looming blacker all the time but am kind of getting a thrill seeing the Chinks giving the Japs their money's worth.

Well about all can think of for now and time for Fairbanks schedule so her's hoping some of this rain hits old N. D. Lots of luck, Lowell

Miss Verna Pearson who came here from North Dakota recently left for Portland, Ore., where she has a position as a nurse. She is a former Carroll girl.

HE GOT THE JOB

Appointees to consular service are expected to be able to speak the languages of the countries to which they are respectively accredited. When a certain chap was considered for a consular post in China, he was asked:

"Are you aware that appointment of a consul is hardly ever recommended unless he speaks the language of the country to which he desires to go? Now, I suppose you speak Chinese?"

The candidate grinned broadly. "If," he said, "you will ask me a question in Chinese I shall be happy to answer it."

The appointment was given him without further comment.—Prairie Farmer.

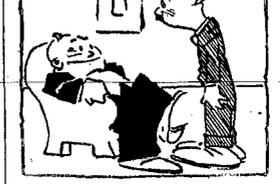

No Harm Done. Coming unexpectedly into the room one day, Mrs. Lee found her five-year-old daughter, Milly, giving her new doll a haircut.

"Milly!" exclaimed Mrs. Lee, "why did you cut your doll's lovely hair? Now you've ruined it."

"Oh, no, I haven't mother," replied Milly. "Its hair will grow long again in a few weeks."—Indianapolis News.

No Ensel Mark. "Dad," said the boy, "I'm going to become an artist. You have no objections, have you?"

"None at all, my boy," returned the father, "just so you don't draw on me."

Son—What makes you think the road I'm traveling is easy? Father—Isn't it down hill?

Success at Last. "Great Scott!" said Mr. Newlywed, seeing broken crockery all over the floor. "Whatever has happened?"

Mrs. Newlywed explained: "This cookery book says that an old cup without a handle will do for measuring—and it's taken me 11 tries to get a handle off without breaking the cup."—Vancouver Sun.

Just an Exhibit. "Congratulations, Mr. Jones," said a friend. "I understand your oldest son is a model boy." Mr. Jones looked a bit sour. "Yes," he acknowledged, "but he's not a working model."

Not His Fault. Two London cabmen were glaring at each other. "Aw, what's the matter with you?" demanded one. "Nothin's the matter with me." "You gave me a nasty look," persisted the first. "Well," responded the other, "now you mention it, you certainly have a nasty look; but I didn't give it to you."

Simple Cure. Mr. Smith—Your wife used to be so nervous. Now she seems quite cured. Mr. Brown—Yes, and it was so easy. The doctor simply told her it was a sign of age.
