Orange Rust Infection Slight in This Vicinity

Wheat Acreage In County Small, Other Grain Crops Unharmed

Since Wayne county is not primarily a wheat growing county, farmers are not so concerned about the reports of orange leaf rust in other sections of the state. Farmers in the county with wheat acreages report only a slight infestation. Of the total 284,000 crop land acreage only 1,200 acres are planted to wheat.

That orange leaf rust is doing appreciable damage to late winter wheat in some sections of eastern Nebraska was indicated in a re port made public today at the Agriculture. Some primary blackrust infection has been found in scattered areas but has resulted in no damage as yet.

Conditions last fall were none too favorable for wheat planting Some wheat was replanted, particularly around the edges of the fields and this has been damaged severely by orange rust. In other instances, planting was delayed awaiting more favorable moisture conditions. Farmers in some areas delayed planting to avoid grasshopper damage while in some sections the wheat did not germinate normally due to the lack of moisture at planting time.

Many fields in eastern Nebraska now seriously affected by the orange rust have a "yellow sweet clover" appearance in full bloom Leaves are being attacked by the rust and as a consequence are dying on many of the plants.

Early headed fields, though are so far advanced that there is probably almost enough substance in the stem to fill the kernels, Dr. Kiesselbach said in an- M. swer to scores of inquiries now Wilbur, Wednesday., June 29 coming to the college of agricul- John Lorenzen farm, 1-5 P. M.

ture. He indicated that farmers the kernels to develop in a fairly the late heading wheat, fewer heads with somewhat sterility and more shrunken grain is expected.

The same situation regarding orange leaf rust is found on wheat at the college of agriculture agronomy farm as in other eastern Nebraska counties. The varieties differ materially as to earliness of heading.

"We would expect well-headed varieties to make average vields barring other unforseen obstacles," said Dr. Kiesselbach. "One University of Nebraska college of thing, though, there is not enough water in the ground as yet to make the crop as the soil is not wet down very deep,'

Talking with Dr. John P. Hantla, pastor of Wall Street Mission the other day, he said, Economics have always been a problem in the admintration of his large social settlement institution over at Sioux City, While Rev. Hantla was in the hospital recently a note came due. His board of directors is composed of a number of Sloux Cityans outstanding in the commercial life of the community. In order to solve the financial problem, the board outlined a tailment plan which would necessitate the elimination of some of the personnel of the institution. About the time recommenda tions of his board were to go into effect friend John was out of the hospital. Familiar with this problem and cognizant with the working of the businessman's mind Rev. Hantla suggested to his directors that there might be another solution. Subsequently as has been the minister's custom during his quarter of a century in building an institution the matter was prayed over in one of their staff meetings. In a day or so $1,000, the amount needed for the note was given to the institution by a benevalent lady.

Perhaps some of our readers raised under the influence of a Christian home can remember when problems of lesser importance was solved in a similar manner.

Today most of us are so self confident and independent that we turn to friendships less and less and almost overlook the Supreme Being in the solution of our problems.

It would cost an advertiser about $16.00 more to secure the same space in this newspaper which was sold to the county last week for publication of the Commissioners Proceedings. But that's nothing, this plant printed some envelopes for the county and were allowed 39 cents less than the envelopes cost. Our labor apparently was not considered. Now if we can figure out a way to get the city to furnish our electricity for less than its costs to produce it we may be able to hold our own. But you know a fellow can't kick we all want expenses of our various government agencies cut. And they can't cut salaries or mileage because that's personal. So in the future when you do something for any branch of government and they allow you less than the material cost you, why think nothing of it because we are all brothers when it comes to cutting costs of government.

We don't know just how these things will be handled when the various branches of government takes over everything, however, there is one thing you can depend upon, whether its county, state or national—Republican or Democrats, the plan will be the same.

In contrast to the sordid Miami kidnapping and murder of lit In contrast to the sordid Miami kidnapping and murder of lit-lle "Skeegle" Cash a Wayne businessman hurrying home to dinner the other day, stepped on the barefoot toe of a youngster about the age of little "Skeegle". The youngster playing on the sidewalk ran to his mother. The businessman followed the boy up on the porch his feeling hurt perhaps more than the little boy's toe. He did not leave until an understanding and forgiving smile shown through the tear dimmed eyes of the youngster. The distance be-tween this Wayne act and the one persentated at Migmi is much tween this Wayne act and the one perpetuated at Miami is much greater than the distance which separates the two cities

It isn't only criminals who prey against youth. Youth is prey to many injustices; victims of war insanity, victims of circum-stances which turn them into paths of crives, includes of unemploy-ment, etc. Makingustments of society does more than step on the toes of youth in many instances their health, happiness and very life is snatched from them.

Oh it's true the whole world has helped search for "Skeegie and that is plaudible but how much better if the whole world would interest itself in correcting every maladjustment which even so much as pinches the toe of youth.

Talking with a superintendent of schools from out of the state he said it was characteristic of school boards to try and hold annual expenses a few hundred dollars under the budget. He said if this plan was carried out it wouldn't be long until there would be no school expenses and consequently no schools.

Now that congress has passed a law of 25 cent minimum an hour for common labor it should inact one to make day and night

The right technique in making and preserves reduces cooking time to the minimum to retain the color and much of the flavor characteristic of the fresh fruit, say the Bureau's expert jelly makers. They also point out that juice which has been canned and stored up—up to about months—will make jelly of good texture, if it is inconvenient to carry the jelly-making process through at the time the fruit is ripe. The color and flavor of the jelly may not be quite as perfect as that of jelly from fresh juice.

Overloaded City Market

Produce markets in many cities stream of fruit and vegetables moving from growers to the urban dinner tables. Many markets are inefficient and wasteful because they are overloaded.

This is one of the conditions which William C. Crow, of the tureau of agricultural economics, found to be common in his study of the terminal markets in 40 large cities of the United States. This investigation is an effort to reveal some of the conditions behind the fact that producers of the purpose of purchasing addi. fruits and vegetables get, on the tional livestock. In a number of cities, market conditions have become so unfavorable that in the past few years produce has tended to move around the market directly to outlying towns and chain store warehouses, thus reducing the volume handled by the markets in these cities.
