

Outline Requirements For Wheat Loans

Many Points of Detailed Information Made Clear to Farmers

In order that farmers and elevator operators may be prepared to handle wheat under the loan provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, the Secretary of Agriculture and the Commodity Credit corporation released today the following statement regarding eligible producers, eligible wheat, and eligible storage.

The act provides that loans shall be made available to cooperators when the farm price on June 15 is less than 52 per cent of the parity price or when the July crop estimate indicates a production larger than a normal year's domestic consumption and exports. From the June crop report it appears that the crop will be large enough to bring the loan provisions of the act into operation. Details regarding the amount, terms and conditions of the proposed loans have not been fully developed, but producers who plan to apply for loans and handlers of loan wheat should make suitable preparations for the 1938 crop.

Loans will be made to any person, partnership, association, or corporation producing wheat or acquiring wheat under rental provisions in his capacity of landowner, landlord, or tenant, upon whose farm, in accordance with the provisions of the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program bulletin as amended, the total acreage of soil-depleting crops for 1938 has not exceeded 105 per cent of the total soil-depleting acreage allotment.

Wheat upon which loans will be made must be of acceptable quality as defined below. The wheat must be produced in 1938, the beneficial title to the wheat must be in the eligible producer, and the wheat must be placed in storage in a Federally licensed or approved warehouse or in eligible storage on a farm in certain specified areas where farm stored wheat can be kept in proper condition.

Loans, if made, will be made on wheat stored on farms in the following areas:

All counties in Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, N. Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, S. Dakota, Utah, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming; and in the following counties of the following states: (Omitted); pertaining to Oklahoma and Texas.)

Approved warehouses will be required to meet approximately the same standards as the Federally licensed warehouses, but will not be required to operate under the Federal Warehouse Act. This provision has been made because it is expected more

Kiwanis Clubs to Participate In Community Affairs

Kiwanians Planning on Non-Partisan Forums to Discuss Public Affairs

San Francisco, June 28.—"The day has long passed when service clubs can hold themselves aloof from consideration of public questions and participation in community, state and national affairs," Luther M. Feeger, of Richmond, Ind., chairman of a United States public affairs committee for Kiwanis International, told delegates attending the 22nd annual convention here today.

Heading a similar committee for Canada Robert J. Prittie, of Winnipeg, Man., warned that Canada and the U. S. must be aroused to action for protecting democratic institutions.

"We hear much talk of the freedom of the press, freedom in education and freedom in religion! We will be well advised, however to understand the implications of these terms. This freedom of expression is ours only to the extent we ourselves give proper effect to it," Mr. Prittie declared.

Both committees urged the fullest use of open forum meetings and with the aid of newspapers and the radio to disseminate information to combat destructive influences.

"The world is facing a period in which the privileges and rights of democracy are definitely threatened," Mr. Prittie said. "Newspapers are still the most potent agency in a democratic nation and fortunately the Fourth Estate is willing to give full use of its columns for Kiwanis expressions on public affairs."

Among problems in the U. S. proposed for open forum discussions are: Public relief as it affects the moral fibre of the recipient; juvenile delinquency; the mounting cost of government in relation to the national income; the relationship between the average school curriculum and modern vocational and cultural needs; consolidation of governmental units, and the effect of reciprocal trade treaties on local industries.

"Kiwanis clubs must conduct fair, free and untrammeled discussions on these subjects so citizens can act in the interests of good citizenship," Mr. Feeger said.

Other proposals for U. S. Kiwanis clubs approved today are the enactment of an alien registration law, observance of Constitution Week, conservation of natural resources, promotion of good-will existing between the U. S. and Canada and support of every movement consistent with national honor, tending to keep the United States at peace.

"We in Kiwanis are determined to acknowledge that we are our brother's keep and and therefore are interested in the welfare of the human race," F. Trafford Taylor, of St. Boniface, Man., president, declared as 1,976 clubs from the Atlantic to the Pacific met simultaneously in an expression of united fellowship. "We have a single purpose and a united service for our communities."

The entire convention and the large membership on the North American continent last night took a solemn common pledge

IS ONE OF THESE A NEW SHIRLEY TEMPLE?

Seeking another "Shirley Temple," Mr. Jack Warner, noted motion picture producer, started a search for the child whose picture appeared on the cover of the June issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine. They found the little girl in provincial England, where she lives with her parents.

Mauri Lehane, the blonde, five year old daughter of an obscure English school teacher, will not come to Hollywood. Her parents have decided she should stay in England.

When the stories of the search for the "cover girl" appeared, the Warner Bros. offices were deluged with photos for "Little Miss Thoroughbred."

Executives of the Warner Bros. Company were especially interested in little May Jessica Kursaheed, attractive Great Barrington, Massachusetts, girl.

New $40,000 WPA Pool to Be Dedicated Sunday

Nine years ago in April after a somewhat spirited campaign, the people voted by a three-fifths majority to appropriate the sum of $3,500 from a surplus of $14,000 in the general fund of the city to purchase a tract of land for a city park. This tract of land consisted of 45 acres in the low hills lying along the winding curves of a wooded section of Shell Creek adjacent on the north to Newman Grove. It was a tract splendidly adapted by topography, the most part covered by nature long years ago when Indians roamed over the country and made their camps along this beautiful stream.

The Newman Grove Post of the American Legion promoted the purchase, although some 13 years previous to this time an attempt to buy this tract for $2,000 the voters rejected the plan by only five votes.

After this land was purchased the American Legion appropriated $1,000 from their treasury for its improvement. With this money they built the first dam that sent the current of the stream direct on its way eastward and making a bayou which winds through a large portion of the park now a dry valley. This alleviated the flood conditions in times of high water.

The Business Men's Club donated $130 and individual business men donated tables and benches that are still in use for picnic occasions.

As a climax to the establishment of the Newman Grove park, a new $40,000 WPA swimming was dedicated. This pool is 45 feet wide and 105 feet long with an additional pool for small children that is 24 feet wide and Wakefield School Extends Voc. Edu.

The Wakefield public schools have broadened their vocational education program to include courses for the girls as well as the boys. Two classes of Foods and Fabrics by units have been added for freshmen and sophomore girls and a course in Home Management for junior and senior girls.

Mrs. Genevieve Fitch of Lincoln has been selected by the Board of Education to teach the vocational courses.

"The addition of the three-year Home Economic course will make the Wakefield school one of the most balanced programs of any school in this part of the state" according to the Wakefield Republican.

The state reimburses the district for 40% of the salary of the teacher where full time is devoted to the teaching of these courses. When summer employment is given the per cent is 66 2/3 plus 2/3 of any mileage involved in visiting the projects and the home of the girls who are in the courses.

The Wakefield school has for several years provided a full course in vocational agriculture for boys, many of whom have achieved marked success as a result of their practical training in the school.

Wayne County Farmers Slow in Signing for Electric Service

Prospects of securing the federal appropriation of $304,000 for R. E. A. in Wayne county are somewhat dubious in view of slowness with which sign-up requirements are being met.

Although necessary federal funds have already been appropriated and construction awaits only the completing of the sign up drive, federal moneys are limited and will go to those communities meeting requirements first. It is possible that some communities may be left out if they neglect to meet federal requirements immediately.

Local officials have been handicapped in securing the necessary names due to lack of funds to make a house to house canvass. To overcome this situation community meetings have been scheduled throughout the various precincts of the county for the convenience of the farmers. Although these meetings are held generally in the evening their attendance have been disappointing.

It has been pointed out that progress in other counties has been rapid and that it is important that Wayne county complete the sign up program as early as possible.

It is felt that farmers of this county desire Rural Electrification as much as the farmers of other Nebraska counties and that if they realize the importance of the time element in meeting requirements disappointment will be avoided.

The following letter from director E. C. Grubb to farmers in his constituency:

This is a personal letter from me, your member on the Board of Directors of the Wayne County Rural Public Power District. On Saturday, June 18, a meeting was held at the City Hall in Wayne for the purpose of signing Service Contracts for electric service. The turnout at this meeting was very poor, in fact there were only 14 who came in to sign up from Strahan Precinct. Now I know that there are still many more farmers in the precinct who want electric service. Even though you have signed a survey blank before you must also sign a Customer's Service Contract now. A contract is necessary from each farmer who intends to use current.

There will be no general farm to farm canvass to sign-up customers. In order to make a farm to farm canvass in Strahan Precinct it will require at least 200 contacts which, if figured in days' time, I would have to

Rosina K. Maxwell Gives Demonstration at City Auditorium

Women of Wayne county and surrounding territory were fortunate in having Mrs. Rosina K. Maxwell, Food Conservation specialist give a vegetable and fruit demonstration Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Maxwell is with the Ball Bros. Co., and incorporated with the Wayne County farm bureau.

Mrs. Maxwell explained advantages of home canning methods both the cold pack and hot pack methods also an explanation of terms and the actual steps in canning. She demonstrated processing equipment, which included water bath and processing cookers.

The following hints were given on home canning:

The essentials of good canning should be clearly understood, if one is to preserve food with ease and the maximum amount of success.

1—Food should be fully matured but not over-ripe. In over-ripe products there are many bacteria present which make sterilization difficult. If canned products are not completely sterilized spoilage occurs.

2—Food should be very fresh when canned. One gets the best flavors out of fresh products and here again, there are very few bacteria present in a fresh product and many in that food which has been allowed to stand for hours before canning.

One must have a good jar, free of chips, a good rubber and also a good lid in order to get the perfect seal required in canning.

4—One may preserve fruits and tomatoes by the open kettle canning method. Meat and all vegetables other than tomatoes must be canned by a jar cooked method if they are to keep well. Follow the instructions in the Nebraska State University Canning Bulletin or the Ball Blue Book.

The reason for much of our spoilage when canning peas, corn or lima beans comes because the products are so often preserved when they are over-ripe. If part of your picking is over ripe put in a separate pan and can by combining half tomatoes with the starchy vegetable. The acid of the tomatoes will keep down the bacterial development.

These starchy vegetables need room for swelling in the jar, therefore it is recommended one only fills the jars to within one inch of the top.

Be sure your pack has plenty of juice. You will preserve your natural flavors and color in this way.

It is important to put your starchy vegetables in pint jars in order that you get complete heat penetration more readily and so you can cool the canned product sooner.

Cold pack canning is out of date. One gets best results when canning non-acid vegetables and meats if they are heated through before packing in the jars.

Discard the blanching process and instead boil your vegetables for 10 minutes before you pack them into the jars for processing. The starchy vegetables are swelled during pre-cooking. The leafy vegetables are wilted during this 10 minutes steaming. Other vegetables are shrunken during the pre-cooking.

Careful doctors use the X-ray method for detecting tuberculosis.

When packed into the jars one is able to get a better pack. You obtain a sterilization clear to the center of the jar more readily and the foods therefore keep better.

Cooling of your canned meats and vegetables is important. Although you can not put your hot jars in a draft, it is best to space the jars, leaving at least one-half inch space around each jar in cooking. You will be able to eliminate some flat soups.

Ex-Iowan Makes Excursion Into Hawkeye State— Gets a Bird's Eye View of Conditions Where Tall Corn Also Grows

Several Wayne business men are out of town this week, some are on business trips others are on vacations. It will be interesting to visit with these people when they return and gather their impressions.

The first of this week the writer took a drive into Iowa attending a part of the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention at Cedar Rapids. Iowa and this part of Nebraska are no nearly alike that as far as scenery is concerned one would scarcely know in which state he was driving. Crops in the two states are on a par. One is impressed again and again with the tremendous importance of agriculture as he drives through these two marvelous states.

Because of last year's record corn crop in the Hawkeye state, large cribs of corn greet the eye and the new crop bears evidence of equalling or surpassing last year's production. If Iowa farmers are cooperating with the controlled production program it is not noticeable as far as corn acreage is concerned. In fact it appears that more corn is growing in Iowa this year than we have ever seen before. This is somewhat strange too, when one is told again and again that last year's crop is being held for higher prices. Apparently farmers have decided to take a chance again and only the future can tell what the influence on markets will be. There should be no complaint whatever the results are because farmers are running their own business. Never before in the history of farming in this country have farmers had such an opportunity to control their business as they have today. What they do with this opportunity and what results they obtain is entirely up to the farmers.

Business in the Hawkeye state just now is cooperating with the national drive to produce sales volume which will bolster jobs. In every Iowa paper and in every business window you see evidence of this cooperative movement. There is a lot of pride among Iowans generally in the ability of the state to conquer adversities. What Admiral Dewey said about torpedoes expresses the attitude of Iowa business men as far as political and economic fears are concerned.

Signs in Cedar Rapids read "The city where business was never bad." In Des Moines you read "Business is Good In Des Moines." In Sioux City you read "Say a Good Word for Sioux City; you make your living here." All of these slogans spring from organized business and they are not confined to large cities. Practically every smaller city of importance has its Chamber of Commerce alive to current happenings and doing their part to keep their communities apace with the state and the nation.

At Cedar Rapids where the service men's organization was in full swing all sorts of bands were parading. Outstanding among these musical organizations was Boone's girl bugle and drum corp of 60 pieces. In fact, this organization stole the show. It made us speculate on what is in store in the Cornhusker state when Wayne's Reed presents his girl band.

Stopping for a meal in Marshalltown we found the Spanish War Veterans and the Auxiliary in good order in a room but apparently just as young in pep these veterans and their wives were in charge of the city and everyone seemed to be happy.

Visited a friend, editor at State Center, a town of 1,000, and they were busy signing entertainment for their big free celebration which business gives to the trade territory every year. A thrill number had just withdrawn as they were to show at the Iowa State fair the next week. Last year this little town hired two Western League ball clubs namely Des Moines and Sioux City to come out in a farmer's pasture and entertain the community. Thousands of people look forward to this celebration each year. Stopping in Belle Plaine to chat with the editor of the Gazette we were told business men were just recovering from an entertainment given the local Chamber of Commerce by farmers of the trade territory. These farmers provided the whole show from dramatics and music to eats.

We spent a few minutes in Des Moines to call on a friend we worked with a few years ago on some research for the department of commerce. He is employed in the editorial department of the Register, a graduate of Harvard as is nearly every one in the intelligence departments on the Register. We found our friend's attention centered in his domestic life rather than on his august position. It seems he is about to become a father for the first time so his anxieties were understandable. Out in front of the Register building which is some 12 or more stories high is a huge sign reading 300,000 circulation. To secure one inch of advertising space business men gladly pay $7.50 to get on a Register page.

Now this account will probably interest no one except the person having been on a little trip, or expecting to take one. It's always a pleasure after a trip to buttonhole your friends and make them listen to your tale. Any one who reads this and says phooey, they will just have to say it to themselves because we didn't buttonhole them.

National Industries News Service

(By J. E. Jones)

Washington, D. C. June—Never in peace-time history have there been such tremendous appropriations for relief as those now being set aside to care for human needs.

There is no evidence that the spirit of America is crushed; and the government is proceeding upon the theory that its citizens will see this thing through.

This is "the good old Summertime" to those who are fortunate enough to maintain themselves and families. There are vacations ahead for them.

The tourist business ranks as the principle source of revenue for a large number of States—East, West, North and South.

After all, everybody will keep warm. Old Sol will help. Nobody is likely to starve. With the kind of initiative that brought our forefathers through in their fight with Indians, wild animals and the unfriendly wilderness, everyone should find some way to push forward.

There have been lots of depressions before, but like the rain they have stopped after awhile.

Mother Nature is promising abundant returns from her orchards and fields. Even the whistles may be blowing to call men back to the factories in a few months. This is the time for optimism. Why wear long faces?

INVESTMENT TRUSTS—

A number of individuals are under indictment in Washington, New York and other cities charged with fraudulent misappropriation of investment trust funds. In the boom days of 1929 a lot of men who thought themselves shrewd bought stocks in many companies. Their theory was that "some of them would go up while others do down."

That was considered a smart thing to do in 1929, but in 1938 a lot of fellows were playing the markets in the same way. As it turns out all those swell stocks went one way—in the wrong direction. The "good stocks" turned out to be as bad as any.

The United States Security Exchange Commission concludes that investment trust have furnished opportunities for looters and confidence men.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP—

There is more talk now than at any time in recent years about the possibilities of the government taking over the railroads. Railroad employees do not propose to accept cuts in wages.

Railroad investors are turning thumbs down on railroad bonds and securities. The government, instead of granting increases in rates to the railroads, offers to lend more money to the lines. But this hasn't worked out successfully and railroads have heavily over-borrowed and are now on their last legs.

Government ownership of public utilities gradually moves forward. The Tennessee Valley Authority invites the rest of the country to join its procession.

The telephone and telegraph lines are also prominently mentioned as in line for government ownership. Meantime the administration furnishes evidence that it intends to open both barrels upon all trusts and monopolies. These are just straws in the wind that shows the way the wind blows. You'll hear more about these matters in the coming election campaigns.

A CUSTOMER BOWLS OVER—

In a Brooklyn, N. Y., restaurant recently a customer ate his meal placidly, drank his coffee, then suddenly arose and shot the proprietor dead. He claimed that the coffee tasted like poison. Although the man was obviously deranged, and the proprietor unfortunately unable to appreciate the joke, the episode provided an opportunity for countless wits to observe that "the punishment fitted the crime." Even the staid New York Herald-Tribune, usually devoted to more important events, ran an editorial on the episode in which it was pointed out that "even some of the best eating places in New York serve coffee that would offend a famished cow-puncher at breakfast."

While it is agreed that shooting the proprietor is somewhat drastic punishment for a poor cup of coffee, most of us will agree that many restaurant owners come perilously near the edge of justification. The situation is such that throughout the country, particularly on the Washington avenues that house the embassies of our Latin-American neighbors, eyes are turned hopefully on the educational coffee campaign to be staged by six Latin-American republics.

First step in the campaign, it appears, will be Iced Coffee Week, to be staged during the week of June 27. Already a tremendous amount of educational material has been distributed, instructing housewives on the proper method of preparing this cooling summer beverage.

It is an important first step. If the housewife—and eventually that calloused individual, the coffee-careless restaurant owner—can be taught to make iced coffee that is not wishy-washy with melted ice, and that hasn't lost most of the delicate flavor nature put in the coffee bean, then perhaps eventually the standards of hot coffee, as served in the restaurant and in the home, can be raised to the place it should be. That accomplished, we can sit back and really pay attention to what is happening in Washington and throughout the nation.

If the effort fails, then—restaurant proprietors beware! That man in Brooklyn may turn out to be the beginning of a Trend!

PACKS OF LONE WOLVES—

From now on every politician may be expected to be "out for himself." The men on Capitol Hill in Washington have trimmed their sails into the wind—regardless of whether they are for or against the New Deal. Opportunists crowd all political packs. The Republicans are depending upon being "against the Administration." In this mad scramble for votes the public has its chance—the chance to find out who is the best man, and help him to win.

HOPE SPRINGS—

The new relief plan is intended to begin at once and to continue until about next March. If in the eight months the depression is beaten then it will not be necessary to continue relief except on a small scale.

Neither politicians, nor business men or financiers, dare to predict what shape our country will be in next Winter. "Hope" as of old, "springs eternal in the human breast. Man never is, but always to be blest."

MORE GOOD ROADS—

At the beginning of this session of Congress there was a good deal of uneasiness about attempts to cut down the appropriations for Federal-aid for highways. But the relief bill carried wholesale sums for that purpose—in fact to the tune of about a billion dollars in different bills.

WOMEN AND THEIR HOMES—

Many of the daughters of the leading public officials of the government have received their educational instruction and training in the private schools of Washington. Mrs. Jessie Moon Holton is supervising-principal of the leading educational institution of this kind in the Capital.

In top rank among the women of the press in Washington is Mrs. Helen Essary who writes a daily feature in the Washington Times. This clever woman has written a piece for her paper based upon the achievements of the Holton-Arms School and Junior College.

"Mrs. Holton spoke briskly. It's the way she has," writes Mrs. Essary, and in her entertaining way, reports:

"Tell me," challenged Mrs. Holton "is there anything more important in the world than home making? Some day, schools will have it in their curriculum. It's a big subject. It takes in domestic science, interior decorating, care of children and the most difficult study of all, getting on with other people. We teach you the sciences and arts and mathematics and athletics. We teach you courage and self-reliance. I doubt if there's a single field once thought the complete property of men, that women have not undertaken."

"Tell me"—Mrs. Holton leaned forward—"have you forgotten that in every kind of a job, and in every art, men excel women?—except homemaking! And that is the career most modern girls think least about."

"Mrs. Holton asked why Reno flourished so furiously, and she supplied the answer. 'Because women were forgetting about home-making.'"

"I want every girl who goes through my school to realize that a happy marriage is the greatest success she can achieve. And marriage means home."

"Then Mrs. Holton reminded her group that Professor Breasted had said in his 'History of Civilization' that the first words recorded thousands of years ago were on the subject of home."

"The audience was a little serious and introspective. Many of its members were young married women. All were alert and modern."

"Mrs. Holton is one of the most remarkable personalities in Washington," observes Writer-ess Essary and adds: "She has a thrilling influence on the lives of hundreds of girls. She is a vivid, clear-thinking, straight-backed person, who asks no quarter and makes no compromises with life."

TAXATION—

The new Federal tax bill furnishes considerable aid to large and small business men. The President stated in his radio address that he would make an issue of the matter and attempt to replace the provisions in the tax laws that had been changed.

It is perfectly plain that taxes will increase, because spending-money must come almost entirely from taxation. Therefore the expansion of government programs will call for heavier taxes in the years to come.

SMALL RESULTS—

Administration plans have been generally accepted in Washington because Congress apparently has nothing of its own to offer. Investigations and hearings on Capitol Hill will continue to dabble into varieties of subjects. The factions in the majority Democratic party have been almost as bitter toward one another as they are against the Republican minority. None of them have made as much as a dent in attacks upon the depression.

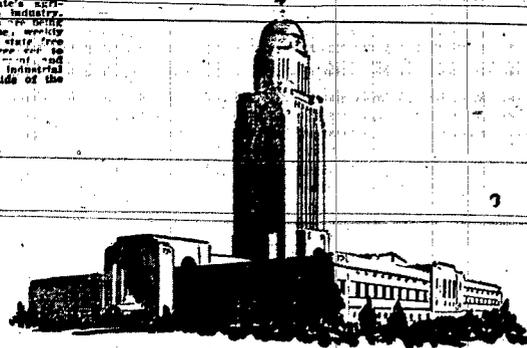

FREE SPEECH—

During the last Presidential election Norman Thomas was the guest of honor at a noonday luncheon attended by practically every newspaper man in Washington at their National Press Club—which is the largest newspaper club in the World. Every man present arose from his place at the luncheon tables as a mark of respect to the Socialist nominee for President, who had given an intelligent and interesting address in which he explained the principles which he represented as a candidate.

What a strange contrast to the performances in Newark, where eggs and tomatoes were thrown at a man licensed by the city government to make a speech.

If censorship can be regulated by throwing eggs and vegetables in New Jersey, a bunch of bureaucrats in Washington ought to be able to censor radio and the newspapers.

Built and Paid for

The world considers Nebraska's 10 million dollar capitol Bertram Goodhue's architectural masterpiece. To the people of Nebraska it is more than that. It is a symbol of the state's great principle of governmental economy. It was bought and paid for as built. If this capitol building had been bonded for 20 years at 5 per cent it might have cost the state 20 millions of dollars instead of 10! Nebraska SAVED the difference. ★ EVERYTHING that Nebraska buys or builds—roads, bridges, buildings, public services—is paid for IN CASH. NEBRASKA REFUSES TO MORTGAGE ITS FUTURE, PAYS NOTHING TO RANSOM ITS PAST. ★ Free from the handicap of burdensome taxes, agriculture, industry and labor prosper! ★ Write for facts about Nebraska's freedom for enterprise, its co-operative workers, its stable market, excellent transportation and extensive raw materials.

Nebraska Offers:
No Income Tax
No Sales Tax
No Other Extra Taxes
No Bonded Debt
More Money for Living

Nebraska's constitution prohibits state bonds. Moreover, 77 of 93 counties have no bonds. Municipal debts are low, and steadily declining.

State Unemployment Division Issues Report

Place Applicants in Positions Through Examination

The Advisory Committee on Personnel of the Nebraska Unemployment Compensation division issued its first semi-annual report through Charles G. Hellmers of Lincoln, committee chairman.

Dr. E. Glenn Callen of Nebraska Wesleyan university, Lincoln, was the supervisor of examinations for the committee.

The committee's report was made to V. B. Kinney, Commissioner of Labor, in compliance with official regulations for "Merit System and Personnel Administration," under which the Nebraska Unemployment Compensation division operates. R. T. Malone is director of the division.

The committee drew up a classification plan providing for 26 separate positions to be filled by persons on eligible lists established as a result of 23 different examinations. Almost 3,000 sets of descriptive material and announcements of examinations were distributed over the state to all interested groups to insure wide publicity for the merit program. Application blanks were sent to all individuals who requested information about the examinations.

December 29, 1937, was set as the closing date for filing applications. More than 6,000 applications were filed and of this number 4,743 were actually accepted by the advisory committee as fulfilling the established qualifications regarding education and experience of applicants. There were six series of examinations: Statistical, accounting, legal, field adviser, informational assistant and clerical. Applicants were permitted to file applications in not to exceed two distinct series and were admitted to all examinations in such series for which they possessed the required qualifications.

Thirty-eight hundred and seven written examinations were given on January 28 and 29, and February 5 at Lincoln, Omaha, Grand Island, North Platte and Scottsbluff. After checking the examination papers it was found that 1,788 successful examinations had been written. This was 46.9 per cent of the total number taking the written tests.

Oral examinations and special gradings for education and experience were given candidates for the higher positions, provided they made passing grades in the written tests. These oral examinations were given from March 4 to 12 inclusive by boards having expert knowledge in the fields covered by the oral examinations at Omaha, Lincoln and Grand Island.

When all examinations were completed, the results were graded and classified by the Supervisor of Examinations and his staff. Registers of eligible persons according to grades were established on April 1, 1938, with the approval of the Personnel Advisory committee. The registers included 1,781 applicants, but, due to the fact that a number of these applicants successfully passed more than one examination for different positions in not to exceed two series of examinations, there are approximately 1,200 different individuals on the register at the present time. The life of each register shall normally be one year beginning with the date of its establishment, but this period may be extended or reduced by the committee with the permission of the commissioner.

New employees are drawn from the eligible registers as they are needed in the development of Nebraska's Unemployment Compensation program. The fact that benefit payments to eligible workers will start January 1, 1939, means that the registers will be used to supply a number of additional temporary employees during the months immediately preceding the start of benefit payments. If and when the list of eligibles on any register becomes exhausted, the Personnel Advisory committee will announce dates for filing applications and for holding examinations to examine applicants for the positions to be filled. At present no plans for further examinations are underway.

The number on each register ranges from two applicants for the post of Chief of Research and Statistics to 472 persons on the Junior Clerk register.

Twenty-five of the original personnel of the Nebraska Unemployment Compensation division were retained after the examinations. They received probationary appointments of six months' duration, dated from April 1, 1938, according to merit system rules. Since April 1, twenty-four persons who were at the top of the registers for the 26 different classifications have been appointed. They too will be required to serve a six months' probation.

SHORT SHORT STORY

Complete in This Issue

Richard won her. The two others went their separate ways to foreign lands to forget Miranda in piling up the dollars. Their piles grew higher and higher, but they did not forget.

In the course of time, they received photos of a little niece who had Miranda's big brown eyes. Their checks made life easy for Richard, Miranda and the little girl. A few years later, uncle received photos of grand-nephew, Rolfe Rupert, who also had Miranda's eyes. Uncle's checks sent grand-nephew, grown to young manhood, through college.

The bachelor uncles, now old and broken in health, were living together in California, surrounded by all the comforts their wealth could buy. Rolfe Rupert, shortly before his marriage, was summoned thither to meet these relatives for the first time. Uncle Rupert, "on a cane," was hobbling around. Uncle Rolfe was in bed.

Said Uncle Rupert: "The bulk of our possessions will go to you; we are glad to do this for Miranda's grandniece."

"Miranda's eyes!" Uncle Rolfe murmured weakly, studying young Rolfe's face.

Uncle Rupert, apparently the stronger of the uncles, died soon after the young man's return home, and now young Rolfe was in full possession of a substantial legacy from him.

But, a few years later, Rolfe and Madeline could see clear through to the end of those "everlasting dollars."

"You must get a job, Rolfe," urged Madeline. Rolfe shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, Uncle Rolfe can't last much longer."

Suddenly, out of the West, Mr. Vincent Carr, advanced in years, but powerful in personality and possessions, sprang into the activities of the eastern city where the Clevertons lived.

One day he was standing before a decadent, colonial mansion he had bought to restore. Rolfe, money all gone, his first child recently arrived, approached him for a job, just plain job, anything.

"I have an excellent opening for you in South America," Mr. Carr surprised him one day. "It will be hard at first, but it will pay you royally in the end, if you do right by it."

Rolfe studied the ground in frowning thought. "What?" Mr. Carr shot at him. "Hoping your remaining uncle will die soon?"

Rolfe started nervously, blushed. "I—I—he—he—he suffers and wants to go, and I—"

"I know more about him than you do. Listen. He got wind of the fact that you had exceeded all decent speed laws in racing through his brother's money. 'Get me out of bed,' he commanded the best physician in the country. 'I want to spend my own hard-earned money myself, as it ought to be spent. I want the spoiling of my nephew to stop right here; I've spoiled relatives enough.' The man's will and the doctor's skill changed your uncle sick in bed to the Rolfe Vincent Carr before you now, fine and fit, and likely to make what he leaves behind look like 30 cents. As for you, Rolfe Rupert Cleverton, if you want to spend magnificently: first travel PERSPIRATION ROAD as I did. Go to South America, but DON'T keep sending me photos of my great-grandniece."

Rolfe controlled his feelings and accepted PERSPIRATION ROAD.

We Wonder Restaurant Patron (crossly)—Waiter, what are those black specks in my milk? Waiter—I dunno, suh—unlessen dey's some ob dem vitamins dey's talkin' so much about.—Safe Driver.

Victimized Minister (to prisoner)—Remember, my good man, that "stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage!" Prisoner—Well, then, the dirty coundrels have got me hypnotized!

Fatal Accident Drivers Rarely Punished in Court

In a report to congress on a study of fatal highway accidents, the Bureau of Public Roads notes that of 905 drivers involved, only 28 served time in jail and only 95 paid fines. More than 85 percent were not penalized by the courts in any way.

Records from four states accounted for 614 of these cases. Motor-vehicle departments in these states reported their action following the fatal accidents. Only 11.5 percent of the drivers escaped the forfeiture—for at least a short period—of their rights to drive, and the driving privileges of one-third were either suspended for 6 months or more, or revoked entirely.

This comparison was one part of the study of motor-vehicle traffic conditions which Congress asked the bureau to make. Although the report says that analysis of the case histories "creates a very definite impression that the penalties imposed by the courts are seldom in reasonable proportion to the offenses," it definitely does not find fault with

WAGE-HOUR BILL

The measure to regulate wages and hours failed three times in congress but finally came through on the fourth lap. The minimum wages and working hours per week are below standards in the North, and apparently not very objectionable in any other part of the country. The bill that was passed was admittedly a compromise. It will mess up business, as every group will have to arrange its own programs along lines similar to NRA days. Friends of the legislation seem to feel that they have made a beginning.

The Dust Bug Will Get You If You Don't Watch Out!

RESEARCH by the U. S. Public Health Service has shown that dust is a distinct menace to health. In addition to its effect on the respiratory organs, dust impairs the circulatory system, the nervous system, the digestive organs, and the kidneys and liver. The high mortality rate during and after dust storms, in the so-called "dust bowl" areas, bears out these findings. Ordinary road dust, responsible for many inflamed eyes and contaminated picnic lunches, is also definitely unhealthy to a greater extent than is generally realized. While science has not yet found a way to control storms in the "dust bowl," chemistry has produced a material known as calcium chloride which effectively and economically prevents dust on dirt and gravel roads. The chemical, acting as an artificial rain-maker by drawing moisture from the air, keeps the road damp and seems to offer the "ounce of prevention" needed to combat the disease, contamination and inconvenience resulting from road dust. Thousands of miles of roads are kept dustless through this medium and similar dust-control practice is steadily increasing on unpaved town and village streets.

When all examinations were completed, the results were graded and classified by the Supervisor of Examinations and his staff. Registers of eligible persons according to grades were established on April 1, 1938, with the approval of the Personnel Advisory committee. The registers included 1,781 applicants, but, due to the fact that a number of these applicants successfully passed more than one examination for different positions in not to exceed two series of examinations, there are approximately 1,200 different individuals on the register at the present time. The life of each register shall normally be one year beginning with the date of its establishment, but this period may be extended or reduced by the committee with the permission of the commissioner.

Mr. Sandall ACTS

CHARLES E. SANDALL

In Nebraska, as in other states, laws are sometimes violated by a few of the thousands licensed to sell beer.

Owners of breweries and of distributing plants—as well as practically all retailers—operate in the public interest and in strict conformity with law.

The few who violate their privileges cast a reflection upon thousands employed in this highly scientific industry and upon those with millions invested in the business.

To make our attitude known, and to assist public officials, we have placed the public conduct rules of the industry in the hands of one man, with supreme authority. That man is Charles E. Sandall of York, Nebraska, former United States District Attorney.

Immediately upon taking office Mr. Sandall went into action. The following editorial from the Omaha World-Herald is typical of the statements of approval received from over the entire state:

"The promptness with which action was taken in the Vernon Stankiewicz case is a commendation of the industry of Nebraska brewers and beer distributors in their undertaking to enforce a standard of law observance and decency in the beer busness. . . . The inference is perfectly plain that tavern keepers who fail to maintain orderly and decent places can hope for neither support nor sympathy from those who supply their stock."

As Nebraska citizens in an industry which is one of the state's largest taxpayers, we are highly pleased with the reception of our action. This reception is typified by such comments as the following:

"May we congratulate you on the success of the development of your organization and may we go on record as anxious to co-operate with your program."—North Platte Daily Telegraph.

"We are glad indeed to see the brewing industry take such a forward step in inaugurating the promotion plan as it has been outlined."—North Platte Daily Bulletin.

"The State knows Charles Sandall as a law-listed prosecutor of liquor law violators. We had come to associate him with the dyed-in-the-wool opponents of liquor in any form, but he clears that up with the statement that he was convinced during his term as federal district attorney that prohibition is impossible of enforcement."—Hastings Daily Tribune.

"The heavens and beer distributors of Nebraska have embarked upon a praiseworthy effort at self-education under the direction of Charles E. Sandall, one-time militant prosecutor of the prohibition era. . . . It is a movement within the industry which deserves commendation and will be watched with interest by the entire state."—Falls City Journal.

"I am in hearty accord with your plan. As long as we have beer in Nebraska, let's keep it just as clean as we can possibly do so. Not only the brewers and distributors, but the thinking public have a duty to perform in this regard."—J. H. Sweet, Editor, Nebraska News-Press.

"Your effort is indeed in the interests of good citizenship and is the most important news of its kind since repeal."—Francis H. McDermott, Vice-President, First National Bank of Omaha.

"Sandall probably is one of the best men for the post and we are willing to co-operate with any agency which apparently will improve the situation."—Rev. Herbert L. Ford, Nebraska Anti-Liquor League Superintendent.

We are happy to get expressions like this—more of them by every mail. We publicly renew our pledge to conduct our business in a highly acceptable way.

Carroll Resident Passes Away

This week, one of our highly esteemed citizens, Mr. Edward J. Davis was called to his eternal rest after suffering for some months. Everything that human hands could do for him was of no avail and he passed to the great beyond Monday afternoon, June 20, at his home in Carroll. Mr. Davis was born at Columbus City, Ia., Jan. 2, 1867 and was 71 years old at his passing. When 9 years old he moved with his parents to Red Oak, Ia., where he grew to manhood and engaged in farming. In August, 1891, he was married to Mary Williams and a week later came with his bride by covered wagon to a farm he purchased southwest of town where he lived until 1929 when Mr. and Mrs. Davis retired to town. Three daughters and on son came to bless this union. Mrs. Owen Owens and Mrs. Lawrence Jenkins who with the faithful wife survive to mourn the loss of a devoted husband and father. The son died in infancy. There are also 11 grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Alice Meyers of Buffalo Gap, S. D., and one brother, Enos Davis of Carroll.

When quite young Mr. Davis was interested in his church. He was an elder in Bethany Presbyterian church for many years and taught a Sunday school class up until the past winter. Since moving to town he helped in Sunday school and choir work in the Methodist church in town. Funeral services were conducted from the home at 1:30 Wednesday with the Rev. Marionettes at STC Tonight

The Tatterman Marionettes of Cleveland, Ohio, will present Shakespeare's rollicking comedy, "The Taming of the Shrew," at the State Teachers college, Wayne, tonight at 8 p. m.

The Tatterman Marionettes are the largest marionette organization in the world, and have selected to play at the New York world's fair next year. In the 15 years of their history, the various companies of Tatterman Marionettes have given 23,650 performances before nearly ten million spectators.

Tatterman puppeteers are college-trained, and speak their Shakespearean lines effectively and precisely. "The Taming of the Shrew" is a witty comedy of intrigue. Baptista, a rich old gentleman of Padua, has two daughters. The fair Katharina is cursed with a shrewish temper, which is partly due to envy of the good fortune of the mingling, artificial beauty, Bianca, her sister, whose demure, gentle ways make the men mad over her. Yet Kate, when tamed, proves to be the better wife. How the whimsical Petruchio of Verona tames her is the story of this play.

His method was to conquer her will "to kill her in her own humor." He comes very late to the wedding, clothed like a scarecrow, an old rusty sword by his side, and riding a sunken-backed spavined horse with rotten saddle and bridle. His wag-gish man Grumio is similarly accoutred. At the altar he gives the priest a terrible box on the ear, refuses to stay to the wedding dinner, and on the way to his country house acts like a madman. Arrived home, he storms at and beats the servants, allows Kate not a morsel of food for two days, preaches continence to her, throws the pillows around the chamber, and raises Cain a-nights generally so that she can get no sleep, denies her the bonnet and dress the tailor has brought, and so manages things as to seem to do all out of love to her and regard for her health, and without once losing his good-humor. In short he subdues her, breaks her will, and makes his supreme; so that at the end she makes a speech to the other wives about the duty of obedience that would make the "new woman" of our time smile in scorn.

RAILROAD MUDDLE
Most of the trouble with the railroads is a lack of business. The working forces have dropped off by hundreds of thousands in recent years.

The government has been playing banker to the railroads since the old railroad racket of watering its stocks played out.

Now the railroads want to raise their rates which the government cut to the bone on the theory that cheaper rates would create more business. The Interstate Commerce Commission scheme hasn't been a success.

The roads want to cut wages.

How To Stay Out Of The Kitchen In Summer

THE problem of dinner for the family through the hot summer months is always a serious one. Bertha Baldwin writes in the July issue of Good Housekeeping:

"But why tie oneself down to long-time roasts and complicated cooking when we want to spend less time in the kitchen?" she asks.

Miss Baldwin has outlined a group of typical "warm weather dinners" with the necessary recipes, in her articles. With the permission of the editor, we are reprinting three of the suggested dinners:

Dinner I
Fruit Cocktail, Cheese Canapes, Cold Sliced Tongue garnished with Bacon Prunes

Potato-Oleary Salad bordered with Tomato Quarters and Cucumber Slices

Crabapple Jelly Hot Biscuits
Chocolate Ice Cream
Pecan Wafers
Tea

Dinner II
Jellied Consomme Mordilliane
Crisp Crackers
Cold Sliced Ham

Baked Peaches with Mint Jelly
Vegetables au Gratin
Canned Shoestring Potatoes
Raspberry Shortcake
Tea

Dinner III
Tomato Bouillon Croustons
*Veal Slices in Mushroom Sauce
Fresh Asparagus or Broccoli
Brown Butter

Sautéed Carrots
Iceberg Lettuce with French Dressing
Rhubarb Tarts
Coffee

*Recipes in article.

And that won't go over, either. The roads want to borrow money more freely from the government, but I. E. C. blocks things again.

WAYNE NEWS—BETTY CROCKER

ANY BRIDE CAN MAKE A CHERRY PIE
I used to be expedient for the young man to discover how well a bride could cook before he wooed her. You remember the old song about how the friend asked solicitously if the girl could make a cherry pie.

"Can she make a cherry pie
Pilly boy, Billy Boy?
Can she make a cherry pie
Coarming Billy!"

And Billy assured him proudly—even boastfully,—saying:
"She can make a cherry pie
Quick as a cat can bat an eye."

Those were the days when learning to make a pie required lots of practice, resulting in many failures, before the perfect pie was achieved. That's why the young man were careful to find out whether the girl had passed through the uncertain period of learning to cook.

But the modern girl and her young man are more fortunate—for with modern products and recipes... even though the bride's cooking experience has been very slight... it is possible for her a achieve pies and cakes and biscuits that might well be the envy of those other brides even after years of apprenticeship in their mothers' kitchens. For example, here is a recipe for a cherry pie that should bring, even at the hands of a beginning cook, a tempting, delicious pie with crimson juice oozing up through the flaky, tender golden brown top crust.

Fresh Cherry Pie
1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup shortening
1 1/2 cups water (3 to 4 tsp.)
3 cups cherries

Sift flour once before measuring. Sift flour and salt together. Cut in shortening with 2 knives or a pastry blender—leaving some of the shortening in lumps the size of giant peas. Add ice water. (Sprinkle the water lightly—a little at a time—over the flour and shortening. At first, blend it in gently with a fork; then gather dough together lightly with the fingertips. As soon as you can make dough stay together, you have plenty of water in it.) Round up dough on cloth-covered board (using flour rubbed into cloth to keep dough from sticking). Divide dough in half, and roll out one-half to fit pie pan. Put into pan very loosely to avoid stretching. Let pan rest on table while cutting off extra pastry. Chill thoroughly. Roll out second half of dough for top crust of pie, leaving a little extra to extend beyond edge of pan. Fold in half—making several cuts through which steam may escape. If cold, place on waxed paper, and chill thoroughly. Fill under crust with cherries mixed with sugar, and flour. Dot with butter. Wet edge of under crust. Lay top crust gently on top of filling—folding the extra rim of pastry under edge of lower crust. Press the two edges together and build up fluted edge. Bake for 40 minutes... 10 minutes in a hot oven, 450 degrees, and then reduce to 350 degrees, moderate oven, to finish baking.

The cloth-covered mixing board is especially important for beginners who want to make a tender, flaky crust. Flour rubbed into a cloth cannot be absorbed by the dough as it can when it's sprinkled loosely over a bare board. You see, a beginner cannot manipulate her dough rapidly enough to keep it from absorbing an excess of flour with the result the pastry will be stiff and hard. Leaving some of the lard (or other shortening) in pieces the size of large peas helps to make the pastry flaky. And using barely enough ice water to keep the dough together helps make it tender. The pastry should be rolled with light quick strokes from the center out toward the edges. With these additional pointers I am sure any beginning cook will be happily surprised at her first cherry pie made by carefully and accurately following this recipe.

Question: How can I get fruit juice stains—such as from a berry pie—out of my linen table cloths and napkins?
Answer: The best way to get such stains out of linen is to treat them immediately after they occur by stretching the cloth or napkin over a bowl, and then pouring boiling water through the stain while you hold the kettle of boiling water about two or three feet above the cloth. If the stain still remains, try bleaching it by moistening it with lemon juice and placing it in the sun.

If you worry about what to serve, if you dread to start the next meal, just drop a card to Betty Crocker in care of your newspaper, and ask for the week's menus. Complete menus for the week will be sent to you on request. Please enclose 3 cent stamps to cover return postage.

Board of Equalization

Wayne, Nebraska, June 20, 1938.

Board of Equalization met as per adjournment. All members present.

Inasmuch as there were several protests on the valuation of land in Wayne County, this Board goes on record as favoring a 10% reduction on all farm land in Wayne County, not including improvements.

However, the State Tax Commissioner believes that valuations will be adhered to as they now stand, and the Board is not asking the County Clerk or County Assessor to make such reduction on their assessment records until the State Tax Commissioner or State Board of Equalization certifies Wayne County's valuation for the year 1938 showing approval of such a decrease.

On motion the Assessment Roll for the year 1938, after making such changes as ordered by the Board of Equalization of Wayne County, is allowed to stand as the assessment for Wayne County, subject to such 10% decrease, and the County Assessor is to be notified that such is the final assessment subject to such 10% decrease, and that it is now ready for his certification to the State Tax Commissioner or State Board of Equalization.

Whereupon Board adjourned to July 5, 1938.
Bertha Berres, Clerk.

YOUR LIFE INSURANCE

ABOUT two out of every three dollars paid out by life insurance companies last year went to living policyholders, according to a statement made today by the National Committee for Life Insurance Education.

"The $2,400,000,000 total disbursements," said the committee in commenting on the 1937 payments of 315 American life insurance companies, "were made possible because thousands of people agreed that for a moderate, regular payment they would anticipate a certain future event, such as economic retirement or death, at an uncertain future date.

"The law of averages shows that a penny tossed up 6,000 times will turn heads up and tails up an equal number of times, but the penny tosser never knows for a certainty on which toss the penny will turn up heads or tails.

"The thousands of people who bought insurance know for a certainty that some day they must retire, but they are uncertain about the day they must retire or if such retirement will be interfered with by a certain but unforeseen death. It is the uncertainty for individuals, about such matters as retirement and death that makes insurance necessary. It is the certainty, through carefully gathered statistics, about the retirement and death of thousands of individuals that makes insurance possible and safe.

"Payment of $1,400,000,000, or around 60 per cent of the $2,400,000,000 of total disbursements, to living policyholders proves that you don't have to die to win with life insurance. Nevertheless many of the living policyholders who received portions of the $1,400,000,000 were as uncertain about the date of their retirement, either through physical disabilities or economic trends, as the penny tosser was about whether tails or heads would turn up. And many thousands of the beneficiaries and their dependents who received the $860,000,000 disbursed by life insurance companies on policies of deceased owners were equally uncertain about the death of their breadwinners.

Life insurance companies, by employing the law of averages, have been able to compile a series of statistics, known as mortality tables, which show with certainty when great groups of people—not individuals—will die. It is these mortality tables which furnish the certain guides by which the life insurance companies are able to put price tags on the policies they offer you.

Life insurance companies from 1930 to 1937, inclusive, paid out to policy owners or their beneficiaries $21,026,058,860. Last year was the smallest for such payments for this period amounting to $2,400,000,000, according to the National Committee for Life Insurance Education, while 1932 was the largest of these seven years, with payments totaling $3,087,012,687.

Payments of American life insurance companies to policy owners or their beneficiaries from 1920 to 1937 inclusive totaled $21,026,058,860, or nearly twice as much as war debts owed and in default by all European countries to the United States.

New Interest Bill Becomes Law

Reduced Interest Rates to Benefit Many Farmers

Nebraska farmers and stockmen stand to benefit by more than 4 million dollars during the next two years as the result of a bill passed during the closing days of Congress.

The bill continues the temporarily reduced rates on Federal Land bank and Land Bank Commissioner loans and applies to all interest payable prior to July 1, 1940, Charles McCumsey, president of the Federal Land bank of Omaha, said today.

On the 42,000 land bank and commissioner loans outstanding in Nebraska, totaling more than 160 million dollars, he estimated the saving to Nebraska farmers during the next two years at approximately $4,452,910.

The new legislation, which became law on June 16, continues the temporary interest rate of 3½ per cent on all outstanding Federal Land bank loans. Contract rates on land bank loans now in force—that is, the rates at which the loans were originally written vary from 4 to 6 per cent, averaging slightly under 5.

As a result of Congress' action, President McCumsey explained, the temporary rate of 4 per cent on Land Bank Commissioner loans also will remain in effect until July 1, 1940. This is 1 per cent under the contract rate on Commissioner loans.

He pointed out the new law will not reduce the income of the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation, which holds commissioner mortgages, or of the land bank. The law provides that the difference between the contract rate and the temporary rate will be made up by the United States treasury.

Farmers and stockmen who obtain new mortgage loans, he added, likewise will receive the benefits of reduced interest rates during the next two years.

CIO PURGES

With the approval of John L. Lewis, of the CIO, the United Automobile Workers has been subjected to a "purge" by Homer Martin, president of that organization. He suspended most of the top ranking officers of the big automobile union.

Months ago Martin took a stand against the continuance of irresponsible labor strikes and he made efforts to live up to his bargains with the automobile manufacturers. The riotous fellows kept breaking away from his leadership. This led to the drastic action related above.

EXPERIMENTS IN RURAL AMERICA

The farms and fields are producing abundantly this season.

"Control" by the government is challenged by surpluses and fluctuating prices in the markets—prices that are nevertheless too low.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has followed a steady course since he undertook the Herculean task of regulating the affairs of the good earth. But, the "farmers' dollar" has showed increased strength and discouraged farmers throughout the nation are now more optimistic than the industrialists.

A great experiment is being carried on, and many elements of success have been demonstrated. Further developments and progress are of foremost importance—now being followed by an interested public that watches the development of rural America.

A NEW DAY

The promptness with which action was taken in the Vernon Staskiewicz case is a recommendation of the sincerity of Nebraska brewers and beer distributors in their undertaking to enforce a standard of law observance and decency in the beer business.

Two agents of the state liquor commission were assaulted in the Staskiewicz place last Saturday morning. Whether the proprietor personally participated in the assault or not the act was obviously evidence of the failure to maintain good order in his place. The beer trade investigating committee finds sufficient cause in the affair to shut off the supply of beer to the tavern keeper and to recommend cancellation of his license.

The inference is perfectly plain that tavern keepers who fail to maintain orderly and decent places can hope for neither support nor sympathy from those who supply their stock. On the contrary they will find an organization not only backing opposition to them but even initiating it.

Considering the past history of the liquor trade and the difficulties which have been encountered in public regulation the skepticism of the Rev. Herbert L. Ford, superintendent of the Nebraska Anti-Liquor league, is not without justification. It will not be easy for a professional dry to believe in the effectiveness of an attempt by one branch of this trade to reinforce instead of thwart public regulation. And yet the character of the beer trade's chief executive officer, Charles E. Sandall, and the promptness with which it appears to be ready to act should go a long way toward dispelling this skepticism.

This evidence of the realization of responsibility truly looks like the dawn of a new day in the conduct of the beer branch of the liquor trade. — Omaha World-Herald.

IS JOS. P. KENNEDY A MIRACLE MAN?

Joseph P. Kennedy came to Washington to head the Security Exchange commission and in a short time it was announced that his job was completed. So he left it and the commission hasn't been running well since. He headed the Maritime commission and submitted a careful program that was submitted to congress. The American Merchant Marine hasn't improved since Mr. Kennedy went away.

Now comes the cheerful news that Ambassador Kennedy is hopeful that he may induce Great Britain to pay her war debt to the United States, and that he will resign and come home. This may be just another international business yarn.

Anyhow, that's all right Joe, but you'd better stay on the job this time until payments start coming in.

NATIONAL INCOME AS A WEATHERCOCK

For every ten billion dollar increase in the national income, the consumption of motor cars increases, on the average, at a uniform rate of approximately 36 per cent, says General Motors in a statement just issued to stockholders. The national income is the Weathercock! President Roosevelt told congress in a message a few months ago that it was possible for the national income to reach one hundred billion dollars, and that he said, would mean abundant prosperity. Unfortunately, the national income has been following the downward spiral. Motor cars, like all other machines and products, cannot be produced unless they are sold, and only to the extent that they can be sold. General Motors and the President seem to be in exact agreement about the influences of the national income upon manufacturing.

Tuberculosis kills more people between the ages of 15 and 25 than any other disease. In this age group, it kills once and a half as many women as men.

When tuberculosis begins there are no symptoms. Later it may warn you by unexplained fatigue, loss of appetite, loss of weight and a persistent cough. Any one of the signs needs investigation. Tuberculosis is not inherited. It comes from contact with a person who has the disease.

There are a lot more counties which have their applications for a loan in Washington the same as Wayne County has. They are going ahead with their sign-up, and if successful, will have first right to what money is available.

Our time to complete the project is very limited. It is up to you and each of your neighbors to make this project a success or failure. If we fail to get at least 1000 miles of line, bringing $10 income per mile per month, we will have no project.

My dear fellow farmers, won't you please keep this appointment with me. I will be looking for you, your wife and family, Friday evening, June 24. Your support will be greatly appreciated by all our customers and by the members of the board of directors.

was broken by cool breezes and a cloudy day Saturday. In town the people who suffered the most were the kids who have no "swimming hole" in which to seek relief. And too, the tennis players will be more than thankful for some cool days for tennis. Everyone seemed to be more good natured as the temperature dropped from the high 90s to the 60s.

4th of July Eventful In Nebraska History

Prepared By the Federal Writers' Project of WPA

Memorable incidents have occurred in Nebraska on the Fourth of July. The first formal celebration of the day was held at "Bellevue City" (Bellevue) in 1854. The assemblage of pioneers, their views, their children and their wagons gathered near the Indian Agency there, and at noon hoisted the American flag. Here it was predicted by one of the speakers that "this country will be, indeed, the 'Eden' of the world." The country was large enough to accommodate fifty million inhabitants, and the hearts of the settlers were large enough to receive them. The physical, moral, and mental worth of everybody present was praised; toasts were given and everyone applauded.

In Brownville in 1859, the first circus came to Nebraska. Says the Brownville Advertiser: "The Circus company advertised to perform on that day, it being the first appearance of that class of amusements, there appeared to be a somewhat general conclusion among the masses to 'go in' and enjoy themselves."

On the Fourth of July, 1860, the cornerstone of the First Methodist-Protestant church of Nebraska City was laid. The group met in a grove on Kearney Heights, where the exercises were opened by a hymn and a prayer. After an appropriate address, a procession was formed and marched to the building site. A box containing a copy of the Holy Bible and various other enclosures was deposited in a space fitted to receive it, and the cornerstone was laid. Some concluding remarks were made, a hymn sung by the choir, and the ceremonies closed with a benediction.

July 4, 1864, the First Constitutional convention met at Omaha. Sterling P. Majors was elected president on the first formal ballot. Immediately after organization of the convention, a resolution was offered: "Resolved, that this convention adjourn, sine die, without forming a constitution." The resolution was carried by a vote of 35 to 7, and the matter of statehood was placed on the shelf for the time being.

According to provisions of the State Constitution, the first session of the legislature was to convene on the Fourth of July, 1866, (though the actual date for Nebraska's statehood is March, 1867). This session of eight days resulted in the election of United States Senators, as follows: Thomas W. Tipton having been nominated as a republican, and J. Sterling Morton as a democrat, twenty-nine votes cast for the former, and twenty-six for the latter, Thomas W. Tipton was declared duly elected. Twenty-nine votes having been cast for John M. Thayer, and twenty-six for Andrew J. Poppleton, John M. Thayer was also declared duly elected as Senator.

The celebration of the Fourth in Lincoln, 1876, featured a tribute to the freeing of the slaves. Some ten colored men, clothed in rags and looking particularly woe-begone, destitute, and terror stricken, handcuffed, shackled and chained together with huge ox chains were driven along the street by a man representing an old-time slave driver. He carried a blacksnake whip, and his black chattels carried a banner reading: "1776 and Slavery." Following this party, with heads erect and buoyant tread, came a like number of Negroes, cleanly and neatly dressed, with limbs unfettered and glances free. They bore the significant banner, "1876 and Freedom."

The Populist Party was convened in Omaha on July 4, 1892. Two Indian bands furnished music, and delegates in Sunday suits began arriving at seven o'clock in the morning. Daniel Freeman of Beatrice, "the original homesteader," presented the chair with a gavel made of wood from his farm. The loudest and longest demonstration came when the platform was adopted. The platform included wealth for him that creates it, free and unlimited coinage of silver, postal savings banks, and prohibition of alien ownership of land. One of the sensations of the convention was supplied by an eastern delegate who arose at every opportunity, shouting Amen. When he mounted the platform to raise a point of order, he was found to be out of his mind; he had to be allowed to speak one minute to get him out of the hall.

In Omaha on the Fourth of July, 1897, a great bicycle race was held. Rai spoiled the one-mile professional race. The two-mile professional race was the most desperate of the day. It was won by F. G. Barnett, time: 5:05.

The Fourth of July, 1916, was celebrated in Fullerton when a concourse of people, headed by the Hussar band, marched to the court house where a boulder in memory of Pawnee Reservation was dedicated and unveiled with impressive ceremonies. During the A. A. U. championships at Lincoln on July 4, 1927, a new American record was set by Elkins, a University of Nebraska freshman. Elkins scored 7,574.42 points, bettering by 222.53 points the national record held by Harold Osborn. On the Fourth of July, 1932, approximately 50,000 people were in Grand Island to assist Hall county in celebrating the 75th anniversary of the settlement of the county. On the site where 75 years ago, the first colony of Hall county settlers unfurled an American flag on the morning of July 4, 1857, a group of men and women raised the Stars and Stripes in tribute to the little group who first claimed this part of Nebraska for the white man.

Evidence of tuberculosis has been found in the mummified bodies of early Egyptians. In the days of Moses tuberculosis already plagued the Egyptians.

His father had two famous cousins, one, Alfred Gruenfeld, a renowned pianist, the other, Adela Strauss, third wife of Johann Strauss.

At the age of seven, he started to study the violin, and in a few years had mastered not only that instrument, but the piano, trumpet, drums, cello, and other musical instruments. At fourteen he was conducting school orchestras and bands.

He came to America at the age of twenty-two, and went to work in a pencil factory for $7.00 per week. In three days he had found a job as a pianist in a cafe for $15.00 per week and all the goulash he could eat. Within a few days the conductor at Pabst's Harlem Restaurant, N. Y., offered him $25.00 per week and chicken. At the end of the year he was earning $45.00 per week.

He left his last restaurant job in December, 1913, on the day of the dress rehearsal of his first Broadway show, "The Whirl of New York," presented by the Simeys at the Winter Garden. He wrote sixteen Winter Garden shows in a row and six other Broadway productions by 1919. He is the composer of "Maytime," "Blossom Time," "Student Prince," "Desert Song," and "New Moon."

As her first assignment, the cub reporter was given the task of running down what she considered the most important news of the week.
