

SCHOOL 23 TAKES LEAD IN CONTEST

57 Cent Corn Loan Available December 1

Farmers Exceeding Acreage Are Not Eligible

Loans on 1938 corn meeting certain eligibility requirements will be available in Wayne County soon after Dec. 1, according to Herman J. Podoll, chairman of the county agricultural conservation committee.

A loan of 57 cents will apply to eligible corn produced this year on farms in the commercial corn area which did not exceed their 1938 corn acreage allotments. Loans of 43 cents a bushel will be made on eligible corn produced this year on farms outside the commercial corn area which did not exceed their total 1938 soil-depleting acreage allotments. The 57 cent rate will apply in Wayne county which was within the commercial corn area the past year.

The county ACP chairman made it plain that no loans will be made for corn produced on farms which exceeded their acreage allotments as outlined above. Farmers in some parts of the state have received the impression that loans of 43 cents would be made for corn produced on farms which did not take part in the farm program. This impression is incorrect and is undoubtedly due to the confusion with the 43 cent loan which will be made for corn produced outside the commercial corn area on farms which did not exceed their total soil depleting acreage allotments.

Here are other eligibility requirements for loans on 1938 corn:

1—Loans will be made only on merchantable field corn, husked and in the ear, containing not more than 20 1/2 per cent moisture and otherwise grading No. 3 or better.

2—The corn must be stored in a crib of satisfactory condition. In order to prevent loss or spoilage, such cribs must not exceed a maximum acceptable width which varies with the moisture content of the corn.

No deductions will be made on eligible corn with less than 15 1/2 per cent moisture content. Two per cent of the volume will be deducted for corn with 15 1/2 to 16 1/2 per cent moisture; and an additional 2 per cent will be deducted for each 1 per cent increase in moisture content above that figure, up to the maximum eligible limit of 20 1/2 per cent moisture.

If a farmer has moved to a different farm which he will operate in 1939 he may purchase sufficient corn to replace the amount of eligible corn which he produced on his old farm, and obtain a loan on the purchased corn. This ruling is made only to eliminate the necessity of moving eligible corn from one farm to another, and is the only condition under which a farmer can buy corn and obtain a loan on it.

60 Schools Enter, Votes Must Be Sent Weekly

Added Votes Will Be Given to Schools Entering Parade

School District No. 23 of which Miss Irma Von Seggern is teacher was leading the Rural Schools contest this morning with a total of 46,831 votes. District 68 with Miss Lozen M. Baird was in second place and District 66 with Miss Elvira Schroeder was in third place.

Special awards will be given to the three teachers whose school is in first, second and third place each week from now until the contest closes Dec. 24. Votes must be entered each week. They may be brought or mailed to the contest manager at the Stratton hotel.

Votes count double if the participating firms ad appearing in local newspapers is initiated by the firm, pinned to the sales slip, and entered with the schools votes.

It is important that all schools observe the rules and give full cooperation with the contest manager. All votes are rechecked and a careful record is made by the contest manager. The teacher, however, is instructed to count and keep a record of her own votes. It will help the manager if the teacher will mark the number of votes plainly on each package she turns in to the contest manager. REMEMBER VOTES MUST BE TURNED IN EACH WEEK TO THE MANAGER AT THE STRATTON HOTEL TO RECEIVE CREDIT.

Business Men Give Special Votes

On Saturday, Dec. 10, Wayne merchants are sponsoring a special entertainment which involves a big street parade. The parade will form at 1:30 o'clock on First street. Only a display of the school district number is necessary in the parade entry. No special floats, decorations, etc., are required.

Entries must be made for the parade by noon Wednesday, Dec. 7. Drop a card to the contest manager, Hotel Stratton, Wayne, so it will reach him on or before that date.

Twelve more schools have entered the contest which is still open for schools still wishing to enter. There are almost four big weeks left in which to gather votes and a careful reading of the rules will show there are many ways to secure extra votes. Prizes will be given to every school entering and major prizes to those placing highest. The standing of each school will appear in the Wayne News and Wayne Herald each Tuesday and Thursday. Watch the standings and work for your school. was urged by the manager, who predicts competition for the grand prizes will be close with only the final count Dec. 24 determining the winners of the grand prizes. What Will Farmers Do With Agriculture's Future?

In his election eve address, President Roosevelt compared the problems of government with the building of a house. He pointed out that he once considered the two procedures similar but that experience has convinced him that while a house could be built within a given time along specific lines the building of a government was quite the opposite. He gave numerous illustrations how various administrations had from time to time inaugurated programs and succeeding administrations proceeded to nullify their objectives with a reversal of procedure. The privilege of the people in a democracy to do just that thing is considered by dictators as a weakness and a vehicle of retrogression. One does not have to be a student of history to find instances where this country has lost ground when public opinion has swayed too far one way or the other.

The danger of committing this error in our agricultural program is perhaps the most significant situation confronting this part of the country today.

Recently it was our experience to visit farmers in an area of abundant crops and in an area of crop scarcity. The two places being middle Iowa and middle South Dakota. In both localities, farmers were found who had changed from one view to the opposite during the past few years.

In South Dakota one farmer who was a cooperator in the farm program for a few years and who has received practically nothing in the way of farm income except the checks from the government was absolutely convinced the controlled program was wrong. He pointed out that the corn loans were responsible for present low corn prices. This farmer is forced to buy corn and the low price is to his advantage yet he feels corn should be $1.00 a bushel.

While over in Iowa there were many farmers puzzled this fall on how to make room for the new crop when they had their cribs full of last year's crop. Many of them took advantage of rescaling. One farmer who has been in the program every year stated that we would never have good prices until the speculator returned to control prices as in the past. This farmer said in his experience under the old system of low prices subsequent to the husking season with prices doubling and tripling during the summer as the speculator saw fit gave better prices to those who could hold their corn for summer marketing. He favored a return to the old plan as against the controlled board of trade and price fixing.

Still another farmer placed emphasis on the cost of production and a reasonable margin of profit guaranteed by the government.

There you have three distinct viewpoints on the farm problem. There seems to be agreement that the recent election evidenced a growing disapproval of the present farm program. Practically every farmer with whom we visited predicted the downfall of recent farm legislation with the 1940 election.

Thinking in terms of the good of all concerned in the farm belt what is the constructive solution of the farm situation? Whatever the correct solution is and whoever can give it life, we are for.

It is almost undisputable that never in our history has the farmer had such an opportunity to weave his own fabric. Never has there been a time when farmers brought forth such a comprehensive cooperative program as this country has witnessed during the last few years. Yet today there is sufficient difference of opinion as to what should be done among farmers as to jeopardize the future of agriculture. In our opinion, agriculture in this country stands at the cross roads. It would not require much travel in the wrong direction to place the American farmer on the peasant basis found in many countries. On the other hand it would not require a great deal of perfecting of their organization to place it ahead of industry and labor in position of advantage.

By a gradual process of favorable legislation, industry and labor has always occupied a position of advantage over agriculture. For years it was a common belief that farmers were too individualistic to present a common front. In recent years farmers have exploded that conception. Tomorrow is another day. What will the American farmer do with agriculture? Anyone who makes a living directly or indirectly should be concerned with these questions.

Frequently one hears the statement: "If farmers could work out their problems without political interference there would be hope" we believe there is something to that. The political demagogue is a menace to farmers whether he is offering a fool-proof plan or whether he is just "agin" what has already been accomplished. We believe farmers possess the intelligence, the knowledge, and power to, to perfect and strengthen a flexible program assuring them of economic independence as well as their individual freedom of action.

Down With Alarm Clocks!

"Eat, drink, and be merry because tomorrow we will be cold and hungry but the government will help us," seems to be the maxim by which many Americans live. This is not applicable to the millions who are caught in the meshes of circumstance but is only too true of the countless who prefer relief funds and ease to manual labor and self respect.

The majority of us at all times must fight "grasshopper" instincts and pattern our way of life after that of the ant. On cold winter mornings, how much simpler it would be if one could ignore the alarm clock and if one's wish of a week of Sundays would come true. It's in these morning hours when one wishes the theme song of modern life was "Oh, the world owes me a living," instead of "Survival of the Fittest."

Hurray for Regimentation!

What a wonderful thing regimentation is! Not only does one regiment labor, attempt to regiment capital, agriculture, the price of eggs and what many will wear this spring but, the world as a whole has regimented personality attributes to certain days of the year. We are thankful on Nov. 23, generous on Dec. 25, patriotic on July 4, and out to do others before they do us the other 362 days of the year.

With the month of December, the spirit of giving begins to seep in and non-budgeters are stopped short with the looming problem of so many gifts to purchase and very little wherewithal. And for once, the majority of us stint ourselves to spurge in gift giving.

How much better it would be if we were more generous all days of the year instead of the once-a-year generosity call.

What About Your Visibility, Motorists?

Those who were enroute to some destination late Wednesday for a Thanksgiving visit found difficulty in visibility due to a frost covered windshield and other covered windows. All except those who were prepared for the sudden cold snap. If the testimony of those people who were not prepared could be had it would fill a newspaper with near accident stories. So near did some encounter smash-ups that they were compelled to delay their journey so that defroster apparatus could be installed on their cars. They would much prefer to give this business to some home town service station or garageman, but somehow the need escaped their attention.

The season is here when to continue to drive without this protection is too much of a risk to property and life. A few dollars will fix the windshield and other windows to assure visibility and the outlay is incomparable with the benefit.

The state of Minnesota has a law compelling motorists to secure this protection, but the individual who values his life and that of others, needs but to be cautioned. An aviator may be able to fly through fog and ice without visibility but its a dumb motorist who thinks he can.

State College Schedules 5 Home Games For 1939

27 WILDCATS RETURN

Coach Morrison announced today the completion of the Wildcat Football schedule for 1939 which will bring five teams to play here. The first home game will be with Augustana College of Sioux Falls a team which has consistently won the South Dakota conference championship in recent years. Midland, Hastings, Chadron and Morningside will also play in Wayne. Morrison was jubilant over his schedule and prospects in general for 1939. "All I need is an outstanding passer and two big tackles and we will give everyone on our schedule a busy afternoon," said "Jim", "It may be that we can develop a passer during spring practice as we will have more time but I do hope at least two heavy fast tackles arrive by practice time, continued the Coach.

Twenty-seven men most of whom saw action this year will return. The gaps left at center guard and end with the graduation of Johnson, Johns and Goodell will be felt as these players were outstanding in the Wildcat line this year.

1939 Cars Ready for Auto Shows; Have New Beauty, Many Features

(Pictures courtesy Nash Motors)

Detroit, Mich.—Be prepared to be very unhappy with your old auto—the new cars are all ready to make their 1939 bow at the annual auto shows. And what wonders they are this year—styled to win the hearts of your women-folk, and boasting new features which will urge you to reach for your checkbook.

The motor makers deliberately set out to make you unhappy with your old "buz." Singlehanded they have turned the country back toward prosperity several times by creating products which were so desirable the public just wouldn't do without them. They've done the same thing with the 1939 models.

There is a new style motif created of pleasant flowing lines, as the top picture shows. The new cars are so perfectly styled that they look like they are moving even when parked. Narrower radiator grille, "catwalk cooling," lights in the fenders, wider seats, more leg room, automatic tuning radios, gear shifters on the steering posts and engines with hurricane power are some of the new things.

Probably the most important 1939 development is the "Weather Eye" conditioned air system for winter driving. It brings June to the automobile in January, and all winter long, and does it automatically. You can drive as cool as you want, or hot enough to wear a bathing suit when it's zero outside, as the pretty model above is doing.

This new system breathes in as much as 800 cubic feet of fresh, outside air a minute, and conditions it. Drafts are eliminated, there is no dirt or dust, and tobacco smoke is whisked out of the car as if by magic. You set the dial, as the bathing beauty above is doing, and the system does all these things automatically.

Auto makers are looking for a good year, and we think you'll agree that they deserve one.

In the five years that the Soil Conservation service has been working with farmers in instituting complete programs of erosion control on demonstration areas throughout the state, hundreds of acres of land have been taken out of cultivation and planted to grass. Practically all plantings have been made by seeding native grasses.

Grass seed collected for erosion control plantings include large quantities of blue stem, Indian, switch, buffalo, blue grama, side-oat grama. Aside from these, small quantities of such grasses as wild rye, prairie drop seed and hairy grama have been collected.

How New Hair-Do's Change Famous Faces

WHAT a difference a change of hair-do can develop. With the suggestion that women should accent their good points to further advantage, Margareta Byers, co-author of the best-seller "Designing Women," presents in the November issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine several famous women with their well-known coiffures "done over."

"Perhaps their respective publicists insist upon keeping them as they are," Miss Byers says, "but we have taken the liberty of posing them to illustrate our theories, for the benefit of women who look like them."

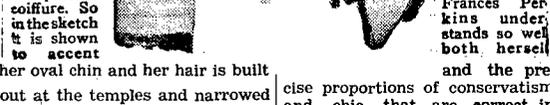

Fanny Brice should not be so diffident about the new hair styles. For instance, these upswept wings would give her width at the temples which she needs while the wide browline would discover charming oval contours. A word to the smart is sufficient—especially to the creator of precocious Baby Snooks!

Elsa Maxwell is always so obliging about being a guinea pig that she has been chosen to illustrate two points. A well-designed high coiffure will balance her type of chin becomingly, and it will give her face a dignity that in no way detracts from its friendliness.

Frances Perkins under-stands so well both herself and the precise proportions of conservatism and chic that are correct in Washington that Miss Byers suggests only one alteration—tilt of the hat.

Kate Smith probably hides a nice peak under her present coiffure. So in the sketch to be shown to accent her oval chin and her hair is built up at the temples and narrowed at the ears, giving her face and figure better proportion. It will also make her look taller.

Issues First Quarter Report Cards Tuesday

The College Training school issued first quarter grades to pupils last Tuesday. It is a report of "firsts." It is the first time the card was issued quarterly. It is also the first time emphasis has been placed on personality traits and classification of aptitudes. Modern educators are placing less stress upon grade marks and more upon corrective mental hygiene and development of excellent personality traits.

Proclamation!

There is no precaution too great for you to take to protect your home and family from tuberculosis, so it gives me great pleasure to endorse the annual Christmas Seal campaign of the Nebraska Tuberculosis Association now in progress in this community.

An organized, co-operative campaign of this kind is the most effective means of stamping out this disease—tuberculosis—which has the power to wipe out an entire family and seriously infect a community in a year's time.

The work of the Nebraska Tuberculosis Association is financed entirely by the sale of Christmas Seals. They cost but a penny apiece. Buy as many as you can. Seal every letter, Christmas card and Christmas package you send out during the Yuletide period with Christmas Seals.

DO'S AND DON'TS IN WINTER FASHIONS

YOU must use wit and discretion in dealing with the details of the new fashions, says Helen Koues, fashion director of Good Housekeeping Magazine. What you can wear in the twenties you can't always wear in the forties when the scales are unkindly generous but tempered discreetly, this season's allure has just, staidness, and yet is progressively feminine.

"The Do's in the new fashions are sometimes hard to find—especially those to suit you," Miss Koues writes in the November issue of Good Housekeeping. "And important preliminary Do's are: (1) Study your type; (2) Study the new fashions and then (3) Apply the fashions to yourself and reap the result in self-possession and new charm to others."

"Do rearrange your hair in some higher fashion to suit your type and age," she advises. "Do wear the forward-tipped hat; do have at least one day-time and one evening skirt which swirls about you and reduces your waist to a wisp; do have a bit of frivolous jewelry—a bracelet with coins and seals, or a necklace with danglers worn close to the throat."

Accompanying Miss Koues' interpretation of fashion Do's, Margaretta Byers of the Good Housekeeping fashion staff, presents an amusing analysis of the "Don'ts at Any Age."

DRESS TO SUIT YOUR PHYSIQUE, NOT FEELINGS

"WE all know women who have what psychologists call split personalities," says Margaretta Byers, of the Good Housekeeping fashion staff. "I mean the women whose minds don't match their bodies, who insist on dressing to suit their feelings rather than their physiques."

With an alarming assortment of illustrations, Miss Byers presents the "Don'ts at Any Age" in dress in the November issue of the magazine. "Everybody knows the dowager figure who persists in dressing to match her baby talk," says Miss Byers. "She's got it all wrong—she's as old-hat as the opera diva of yesterday."

Again we have the very patrician matron who tries to dress to express her gamine yearnings in skirt and overalls and is therefore likely to give her gardener quite a turn. She should get rid of her hoydenish impulses in the hunting field where she can wear clothes designed to suit, for if she doesn't, she is riding for a severe fall.

"As to this business of psychologists' dressing women according to their minds rather than their bodies," Miss Byers writes, "we do think in such cases a psychiatrist is badly needed, not to dress the patient but to teach her to keep soul and body together. If she can change her body—fine. But if she can't, she will have to change her mind—at least about the clothes she will wear."

FIRST LAW OF FASHION STUDY YOURSELF

GOING much farther than the customary formula for fashions conceived to fit your type and figure, fashion authority Helen Koues interprets the season's styles in terms of the Do's and Don'ts in the twenties, the thirties, and the forties in the November Good Housekeeping Magazine.

In the twenties take advantage of your youth, she advises. Do capitalize it. Do wear some such lovely dress as Vionnet's plum wool with its tiny buttons studded in heavy brass nailheads; short skirt for formal day, long for informal evening. The sleeves are short enough to show gold bracelets with all the danglers, or a bracelet to which gold mesh purse, compact, and lipstick are attached. Wear a high plum turban, plum shoes, and gloves with the new slightly darker shade of stockings. Be sure that your plums are deep and match, or switch to black shoes and white gloves to match the bolero.

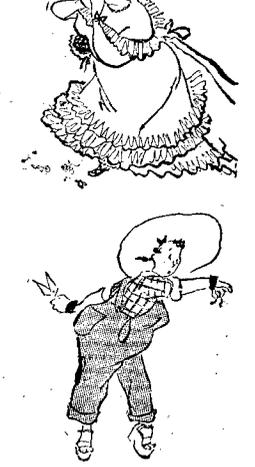

In the thirties the world is yours, says Miss Koues. Early youth is expectant; charming thirties know. It's the women of thirty who set the styles. To do this, you must wear a style while it is new. If you buy a style, not a fad, you have bought clothes which outlast the season. The town suit, backbone of the wardrobe, is the short fitted model buttoning to the throat and reaching only to the hipbone; skirt straight or flared; neckline collarless or furled; jacket to contrast or match. Do be sophisticated for now is your time.

In the forties, and this means the fifties, also, you must watch your step. How old you look depends largely on your figure, hair, and complexion. Don't make the mistake of trying to be young—try instead to be smart. Study yourself as you never have before. Take more care in selecting your clothes than you ever have done. Be more honest with yourself. Be wise and wear new fashions. That in itself will make you younger.

Ak-Sar-Ben Winners Top Nation In Baby Beef Sale

Here is John Gosh, 18-year-old Ida Grove, Iowa, farmer with "Mickey" winner of the 4-H baby beef championship at the annual Ak-Sar-Ben live stock and horse show. With him is shown Fay Hosman, operator of a chain of Omaha restaurants, who paid $1.25 a pound for the Hereford champion, netting its owner $1,189.77.

Nearly a quarter of a million dollars went into the pockets of exhibitors at the eleventh annual Ak-Sar-Ben live stock and horse show recently conducted at Omaha, figures just compiled by officials show. Of this huge total the 4-H club boys and girls from five states—dominated by Nebraska and Iowa entries—took a large slice of $37,037.24 from the sale at auction of their baby beefs, fat heifers and swine. At the auction of baby beefs, prices much above the market prevailed to net sizeable profits to all of the entrants. The market was topped, of course, by the grand champion baby beef, owned by John Gosh of Ida Grove, Ida county, Iowa, which was sold at $1.25 a pound. This is the highest price paid at any show in America this year for a 4-H baby beef. It was a great triumph for young Gosh and his calf, "Mickey," a Hereford, as there were 925 calves entered in the competition, the largest entry list in the history of American live stock shows. Although dropping from the high mark of the grand champion, premium prices continued throughout the list of the hundreds of calves sold at auction. The grand champion Angus brought 40 cents a pound, the reserve champion Angus 13 1/2 cents; the champion short-horn, 19 cents, while the reserve champion sold at 14 1/2 cents. The average price was $12.62 per hundred-weight. The same story of premium prices held true in the carlot stock division, also the largest in the history

False Hunting License Brings Heavy Sentence

Cooperation of Federal and State officials is producing results in game-law enforcement. The Biological Survey cites a recent case concluded in State court at Seattle, Wash., with a $150 fine and a 30-day jail sentence for using a hunting license issued in the name of another. While hunting ducks, the violator, a night-club entertainer of Seattle, was checked by a Federal agent and asked to show his State hunting license. The license appeared to cover his description except as to color of eyes. Later investigation showed he was using a license issued to one who was reported to have moved to Chicago, Ill. A federal agent in Chicago followed up the case, and the violator was finally apprehended through the efforts of the Seattle Police Department.

First Graders Entertain Second Graders at Party

The First grade Pilgrims of the Wayne City schools entertained the Second grade Indians at a Thanksgiving party, Wednesday afternoon. Both grades were in costume. For entertainment the second grade put on a dance and song. The first grade gave a play of the first Thanksgiving. For the lunch the first grade made paper plates, napkins, and place cards and served apples, candy, and individual pumpkin pies. Lois Russell furnished the 50 pies as a birthday treat. The Indians brought the popcorn and a deer which Wilhelmina Benthack had killed with her bow and arrow.

On Monday the first grade visited the sixth grade sand table. On their return to their room they made some very interesting reading charts of what they had seen.

Love, Eleanore Benthack, and Joyce Johnson. The Knighthood of Youth club held their regular meeting Wednesday. The old officers had served their term of three months so election of officers, was held. The new officers are Richard Sala, president; Maryruth Smothers, vice-president, and Jacqueline Wightman, secretary. Various committee chairmen included Royce Gildersleeve, Lorraine Pollard, Alice Smolsky, Lois Zepplin, Pearl Mattingly, Jerome Reiners, Fred Ellis, and Patty Love. The other sixth graders are members of the committees.

Progressive Farmers Urge Diversification

The need for a trend away from cash grain farming to more diversification was clearly indicated last week as the southwestern Nebraska Pasture-Forage-Livestock program came to a close at Holdrege with 12 farmers being honored for outstanding achievement. The three farmers gaining superior recognition at Holdrege included John Strangman of Franklin county, Max Junkin of Gosper county and Earl Hansen of Clay county. All participated in the Pasture-Forage-Livestock program sponsored in that area by the South Platte United Chambers of Commerce and the Nebraska agricultural college extension service.

Speaker after speaker on the afternoon "clinic" program emphasized the need for restoration of livestock numbers on farms. The use of grain and forage sorghums in producing feed for stock was emphasized also.

Farm Tenancy Rises as Public Land Disappears

From 1880 to 1935 the number of farm tenants increased from 1,024,601 to 2,865,155, a gain of about 180 per cent. The trend to tenancy and absentee ownership of the land became particularly noticeable when good farm land in the public domain began to disappear and agriculture became more highly commercialized. Evils of the tenancy system, particularly in the cash-crop areas of the nation, are pointed out in the 1938 Yearbook of Agriculture, "Soils and Men." The system is largely an outgrowth of one aspect of the pioneer American attitude toward land—that it is an instrument for quick profit making, either through immediate returns from cash crops or the sale of land at high prices. As a result, the authors declare, many landlords do not want their land tied up under a long term lease because a favorable opportunity to sell may arise at any time. On the other hand, many tenants look with disfavor upon long-term leases because they want to be free to rent a better farm or buy one of their own. In general, leases developed in such a way leave the landlord free to sell the farm, tenants free to move, both free to exploit the soil, and neither accepting responsibility for conserving it.

As increasing proportions of agricultural lands become tenant-operated, the authors continue, the need for more adequate tenure increases. The work of the Farm Security administration in setting up tenants as landowners under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, while limited, is a step in the right direction, says Gove Hambridge, Yearbook editor.

10 Per Cent Increase Shown in Ag. Program

Latest figures show about a 10 per cent increase in cornbelt participation in the federal farm program this year and farmer sentiment indicates that additional gains will be made in 1939, says Claude R. Wickard, director of the AAA north-central region. Wickard made the statement in Washington after returning from a 3-week trip through the cornbelt where he addressed farmer meetings in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

"AAA committeemen report that much more interest is being shown in the 1939 program than in any previous program and sentiment expressed in the four states visited indicates more farmers will participate in 1939 than participated in the program this year," Wickard declared. "A series of meetings on the farm program has just been held in each state in the north-central region. A total of about 40,000 farmers attended averaging around 4,000 per state. Every thing points to a successful program next year."

Hatchery Has Eggs With Christmas Colored Yolks

A pen of unusual hens that lay eggs with Christmas colored yolks is on display at the Colson hatchery. Judged by external appearances these hens look no different than average farm hens. But no one would ever believe it to look at their eggs when broken in a dish.

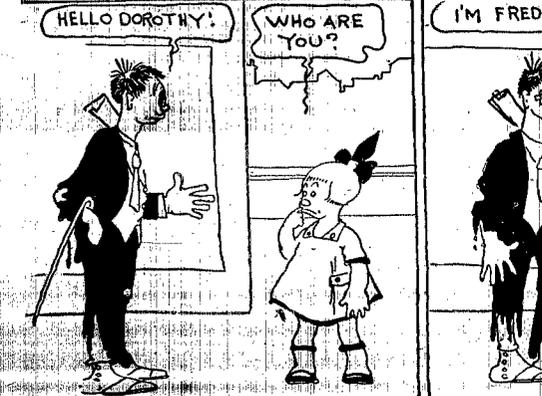

It all depends on what a hen eats. It has just lately been discovered that what a hen eats she puts into the egg. A hen adds nothing to the feed she eats in making eggs but acts as a manufacturing plant, converting raw materials into a finished product. The quality of the egg she lays is determined by the raw materials she gets. When her ration is high in vitamins and minerals her eggs are high in vita-
