To Raise Funds to Stamp Out Infantile Paralysis

Telling the graphic story of men against the maiming death, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis today published a campaign booklet entitled: "Another Step Forward."

The booklet outlines in detail this year's "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign and its objective—to raise funds to stamp out infantile paralysis.

Written by Keith Morgan, chairman of the committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday, the brochure declares that the Four Horsemen of an American Apocalypse—Infantile Paralysis—are Fear, Panic, Death and Human Wreckage.

Men of medicine, of science and of education have sworn to conquer these ruthless riders and the people of America have been called to mobilize the fight behind them, the booklet said.

It pointed out that: "Volunteers often win battles but to win a war you must have a permanent army."

It further stated: "To guard our homes and save our children we must mobilize permanently. Mobilization to be effective must be thorough, painstaking and above all complete."

The booklet states that the objectives of the Trustees of the National Foundation are:

1—To mobilize the fight.
2—To make the fight permanent.

3—To build a field force—the eyes and ears of the army—so that the men of medicine and education (the board of strategy) may have troops through which to act whenever possible.

4—To place in the United States a specific, definite, permanent field agency of the National Foundation, embracing every county.

5—To create chapters of the National Foundation, embracing every county, each chapter to be headed by a broad gauged committee representing the local communities, the doctors, the hospitals, the health officers and cooperating agencies.

6—To set up a permanent, far-reaching program for raising funds for the ammunition needed in the War Against Infantile Paralysis.

In the group are some well matched teams. It has been a good many years since horse buyers have had such an opportunity to select from an offering of this calibre.

Colonel Gus Herfkens stated today that the sale is expected to attract buyers from a wide area. Provisions have been made to show the animals to prospective buyers early in the day.

Field-Riddling Gullies Placed Under Control

Fencing gullies is a sure way to stop their growth, according to A. E. Jones, regional conservator for the Soil Conservation Service. A gully with vegetation on it and a diversion terrace above it is one that does not grow.

On farms under five-year cooperative agreement with the Soil Conservation Service on demonstration erosion control areas throughout the state, hundreds of gullies have been placed under control by fencing to protect vegetation from live stock. Many of the gullies now well vegetated have had no artificial plantings made on them.

Grass and trees on gullies must be guarded from fire if maximum protection is afforded the soil, Jones says. Fire, it is explained, rapidly accelerates erosion.

Fenced gullies protected from fire make ideal homes for farm wildlife. On some farms gully control work is believed to have already resulted in increases in numbers of game birds and animals.

"What Ak-Sar-Ben Means to Me"

Prize Winning Entry By Barbara A. Rehberg, Royal, Neb.

As far back as the records of human industry can be traced, they show that man's best work has been the result of two objectives: First, pride in his production, and second, a material profit.

This holds true for the 4-H work as well as the artist's, for actually the work of the two is more akin than is generally noticed, since the 4-H work includes home-making in all its phases as well as good farming and production of live stock.

Because lean years of drouth and depression have robbed farming of so much of its profit and pleasure, the work of the 4-H clubs is doubly important. Parents and children are working together on what might be termed small samples of their best—a fat lamb, a purebred calf, a shelf of canned fruit or a pen of first class chickens, thus preserving ideals that tend to interest the young people as well as fit them for the best to be found in rural life.

The Ak-Sar-Ben has understood and appreciated our efforts. It is meeting us more than half way, both in helping us to realize a profit and in exhibiting our work. Each fall boys and girls all over the state exhibit the results of their summer's work at the expenses of Ak-Sar-Ben.

Hundreds of dollars are sent out by the directors of the race commission of Ak-Sar-Ben, to be offered as prizes at the county fairs. Here the productions are judged by experts; perfections displayed, errors discussed, corrections suggested and substantial prizes awarded.

Then the winners from each county go on to Omaha to be judged at Ak-Sar-Ben. No one but the boy who has raised the prize calf, can realize the thrill of this.

The judging process is repeated. There are more prizes, more appreciation of honest effort. And last of all, the Ak-Sar-Ben calves are auctioned off for top prices to those who appreciate the best. The boys and girls have had the valuable experience of trading good products for fair prices. This is an experience that adds pleasure and dignity to any line of work.

The heart-ache at parting with a dumb friend is partly forgotten in the zest of getting home and starting another winner on his way to Ak-Sar-Ben.

Unemployment Compensation Benefits Soon

Employees Must File During the Week of January 3

Mr. Raymond McNamara, Deputy for the Unemployment Compensation division, will be at the Court House in Wayne each week on Wednesday mornings to take applications for unemployed people.

Lincoln — Thousands of Nebraska workers who have earned rights to benefits under the Nebraska Unemployment Compensation law will file initial claims for unemployment benefits during the week beginning Tuesday, Jan. 3, in 20 offices of the Nebraska State Employment Service.

R. T. Malone, Director of the Nebraska Unemployment Compensation division, stated last Wednesday that a fund amounting to $7,035,000 was available for benefit payments. Final plans have been completed for accepting claims and for processing them so that valid claims can be paid promptly and accurately.

Only persons who have worked some period of time since Jan. 1, 1938, for an employer subject to the law are eligible as covered workers for Unemployment Compensation benefits.

A covered worker must have earned wages for approximately eight weeks of fulltime employment under employers subject to the law during the first nine months of 1938, in order to file an initial claim through the State Employment Service office during the first three months of 1939.

Benefit checks will amount to one-half the worker's most recent full-time wage with $15 as a maximum benefit and $5 or three-fourths of the full-time weekly wage, which is the lesser, as the minimum. The law provides a maximum of sixteen weeks of benefits in any consecutive 52 week period. No claimant can draw any more than $240 in any one year.

Types of employment not covered by the Nebraska law include agricultural labor, domestic services in private homes, services performed as officers or crew of a vessel on navigable waters, services performed by designated members of one's family, services performed for a religious, educational, charitable, or scientific institution, non-profit in character, and services performed for federal, state, county, or municipal governments or any political subdivision thereof.

Offices of the Nebraska State Employment Service are located at the following points: Alliance, Beatrice, Chadron, Columbus, Falls City, Fremont, Grand Island, Hastings, Moldrege, Kearney, Lincoln (138 No. 11th St.), McCook, Minden, Nebraska City, Norfolk, North Platte, Ogallala, Omaha (210 So. 18th St.), Plattsmouth, and Scottsbluff.

The following information concerning the Nebraska law is given so that benefit claimants may know who is eligible for benefits:

1—The person filing a benefit claim must be totally unemployed and able to work and available for work. He must have worked for an employer subject to the law for some time since Jan. 1, 1938.

2—After Jan. 1, 1939, any Nebraska worker covered by the law who becomes unemployed should secure a separation notice from his employer. These separation notices will not be required of eligible claimants who became unemployed during 1938.

3—The claimant should apply for work at once when unemployed at the nearest office of the Nebraska State Employment Service or write for instructions, if no Employment Service office is located in your city.

4—He must file his claim for benefits in the State Employment Service office or with a representative of the Employment Service. Claimants should produce Social Security account numbers when filing claims for benefits and must report back to the State Employment Service office once each week while unemployed.

5—After a claim is filed, the claimant must be totally unemployed for a waiting period of at least two weeks. During this time an effort will be made to secure a job for him, and his claim will be examined. Both the claimant and his employer will be notified concerning the disposition of the claim.

6—If either the worker or employer is dissatisfied with the ruling on the claim, a claims deputy will review the claim or it will be reviewed by an Appeals Tribunal.

7—A claimant will receive his first benefit check by mail at his last known address from the State Unemployment Compensation division, if his claim is valid, some time during the fourth week after his claim was filed.

A worker may be penalized for the following reasons: Leaving work voluntarily without good cause; being discharged for misconduct in connection with his work; refusing without good cause to apply for or accept suitable work, or to return to customary self-employment.

A worker may also be temporarily disqualified from receiving Unemployment Compensation benefits if he is a member of an organization directly participating in a strike or if he is drawing workmen's compensation of various types of federal benefits or pensions. Workers on federal WPA projects are considered as in employment and may not file claims for benefits while they are so employed.

Jan. 31 Set As Deadline For Employers to Pay Tax

All Nebraska employers who are subject to the Nebraska Unemployment Compensation law will receive notification within the next few days that special care should be taken to see that all contributions on 1938 wages are paid in full to the Nebraska Unemployment Compensation fund before Jan. 31, 1939, so that these employers may obtain full credit on their federal excise tax under Title IX, Section 902 of the Social Security Act.

Employer contributions on 1938 wages paid to the Nebraska Unemployment Compensation fund will be certified to the commissioner of internal revenue for credit on 1938 excise tax returns under Title IX of the Social Security Act. This year's contributions must include all wages payable up to Jan. 1, 1939.

Special payments in the form of bonuses, gifts, etc., that become payable during the fourth calendar quarter should be included in the contribution report even though the payments include work performed during the entire year of 1938.

Any employer, who has been subject to the law during the calendar year 1938, without having any 20 weeks in the calendar year in which eight or more workers were employed, who de-

26 High School Teams Invited To See Game In City Auditorium

26 High School Teams and Coaches Invited to See Game

With the city auditorium the site for tonight's basket ball battle between Omaha University Cardinals and the Wayne State Teacher Wildcats, basket ball fans from a wide area will be treated to some exciting entertainment.

The Wildcats lead the Cardinals throughout the greater part of the game at Omaha two weeks ago to lose 30 to 28, and tonight's game promises to be another close contest. Coach Stuart Baller called his players back from Christmas vacation a week ago to prepare for the Wayne game while Coach Morrison will be handicapped with his squad having reported only yesterday. In spite of this fact Coach Morrison stated his boys had kept in good physical condition during vacation and would give the Cardinals a busy evening.

Regardless of the way the game progresses Morrison will use 10 to 12 players in preparation for his conference games which open Jan. 13 with Kearney here. Besides the Omaha game tonight the Wildcats have one more game in which to experiment. This game will be played here Friday night with Nebraska Wesleyan University in the city auditorium. The Methodists will bring to Wayne an outstanding array of sharpshooters, the champions last year of the Nebraska College conference, Coach Dwight Thomas has practically the same team this year. Wesleyan lost to Augustana College of Sioux Falls by a margin of one point while the Wildcats lost to the South Dakota team by 15 points so on this basis of comparison the locals will have to upset the dope bucket to defeat the Lincoln team.

The College Athletic department will have as their guests tonight coaches and teams from 26 surrounding high schools and the two local high school squads and their coaches.

College to Give Basket Ball Movie Jan. 9

On Jan. 9 the College Athletic department has invited the coaches and teams of surrounding towns to see a basket ball movie. The picture is a production of the Converse Rubber company featuring the "Phillip 66" star aggregation as demonstrators. The coaching advisory staff was composed of Chuck Taylor formerly of the original New York Celtics, Dave McMullin of Minnesota, Ward Lambert of Perdue, Phog Allen of Kansas, along with several other nationally known coaches.

The film takes up in detail and in slow motion the fundamentals of individual play, both on offense and defense. Time will be taken for comment and the asking of questions at this meeting.

The college has gone to considerable expense to bring this film here and it is hoped the response will warrant the expense.

The picture will be shown at the College auditorium and will be open to the public. No admission is required to see this outstanding basket ball picture.

A Study of American Business

Washington, D. C. The performance record of American business finally comes under the spotlight as the Joint Congressional Executive Monopoly Committee begins its sessions. It has $500,000 at its command for the purpose of pursuing investigations into the causes of concentration and control of business; the price system levels, the levels of trade, employment, profits, consumption and effects upon taxation, patents, competition, and every feature of American business that it is possible to link with the new policies of the government.

This committee was authorized last June by Congress. Since that time the committee has built up a staff of more than 100, and their preliminary investigations are serving as ammunition for government economists in presenting lengthy outlines to the Monopoly Committee.

The committee starts off examinations with the automobile industry, into its practices of the "use, distribution and pooling of patents."

Monopoly investigators indicated that the testimony about the automobile industry is likely to present a picture of unusual interest inasmuch as the industry is comparatively new, modern and progressive—which is more than might be admitted concerning some nineteenth century industries.

The public will have the benefit of the sounding board furnished in the monopoly investigation that will show that there exists and is maintained highly competitive conditions, and a constant lowering of prices for a product that is always being improved. The committee appears anxious to convey the impression that it is not antagonistic to good business methods and the automobile industry has been selected to show a friendly start, and thereby break down antagonism that is being directed towards the committee.

The committee expects to make an early study of insurance companies, investment banking, trade associations, anti-trust laws, and interlocking directorates. —J. E. Jones

The Councils of American Nations

Secretary of State Hull on board the steamship Santa Clara spoke a final message to the American people just before the liner set sail in which he hailed the Pan-American Conference at Lima as "a solid cause for hope in a world threatened with despair." The American Ambassador to Germany had hastened to the ship to deliver a gloomy report to his chief just before the final whistle blew for departure. Mr. Hull said the delegation stood solidly for "the continued loyal observance of the American system" which, he added, "was based upon the powers of consultation and cooperation."

If Herr Hitler or anybody else has been inclined to believe that there is any division in the United States about our fraternal relations with Latin America, the appointment of Alfred M. Landon as a member of the delegation and his public remarks before sailing, furnish the answer.

The Monroe Doctrine is 115 years old. It was not a one-man idea, by any means, as Jefferson, John Quincy Adams and other leaders of that period backed the new American doctrine that was proclaimed by President Monroe. The Holy Alliance headed by the Emperor of Russia was making threatening gestures against new world democracy, and our "old boys" in the United States thumbed their noses at the dictators and told the Holy Alliance to read the Monroe Doctrine, and be sure to understand that it was not a bluff.

In years that have passed Latin American countries have frequently complained of the United States as the "Colossus of the North," and within recent weeks our State Department has been calling Mexico a cheat and a fraud—of course in diplomatic language. And there is no doubt but what Mexico will be asked to change its methods by the councils of American nations.

In fact Pan-America is no Pollyanna union of nations. For 50 years understandings have improved. Misunderstandings have been cleared up in more than a half dozen conferences like the one at Lima. A blast from the Old World accuses the United States with "imperialism"—but that doesn't matter. —J. E. Jones

"We Know So Little About Anything"

In this age in which we call ourselves scientific we know very little about anything, says Charles F. Kettering, famous scientist and philosopher and inventor of the automobile self-starter, and identified with Delco light plants, in the early days, and with so many other important public benefits that he is the recognized wizard of the General Motors organization of which company he is vice-president, and in charge of research.

He recently analyzed "a scientific fellow as a fellow who doesn't know what he is working on and is afraid to admit it" and he observes that "we have a wonderful future ahead of us in any line of business today if we will just lift the lid and say we know so little about anything."

"We are just learning about steel, we are just learning about rubber, we are just learning about oil," stated Mr. Kettering. "Never were there such opportunities for young men and women of ability as there are today," he declared, and explained that there never were such opportunities to do things, "but you can't do the same things we are doing now; we have got to open up a new field, and there are thousands of new fields standing waiting."

"We have today a very unusual condition in this country where we have an excess of materials, excess of money and excess of men," said Kettering. "Which means," he continued, "that we are technologically behind and not technologically ahead, and if you could get this idea that we know very much about anything out of our minds, and that the whole thing is ahead of us, then I think we would have a shortage of labor in a short time. People right away would say, 'What are you going to do? I don't know. Any place you pick up you could start, because we don't know very much about anything.' He recalled that at a gathering of engineers the question came up: "What are we going to do when our supply of fuel runs out?"

"Well, I don't know," replied Kettering, who continued, "Maybe we can run our cars by radio at that time. Maybe all you will have to do is to have some central power. Stations with big antennae and have a little antenna like you have now for a radio receiving set, and you can pick up the fuel power that way." These engineers were unconvinced and disagreed. "But you can't do that," they said.

"But, how do we want them run?" "Well," they said, "we run them with gasoline." Mr. Kettering asked, "what is gasoline?" They decided that it was distilled from petroleum, and Kettering added: "What is petroleum?"

"Well, petroleum is something that is in the earth; it has been there for a long while." "But where did it come from?" Kettering demanded to know.

"Well, it came from perhaps decaying vegetation, and so forth and so on." "Where did that come from?" "It came from the growth of plants," was the reply. "Well, how did the plants grow?" "From the rays of the sun."

"So we are running our automobiles now by radio, but all we need to do is to take out a few of the steps in there and run them direct," replied Kettering.

Think that over and you'll agree that "we know very little about anything" but that the real opportunities that Kettering has spoken of are about us, everywhere. —J. E. Jones

The Story of the County Superintendent's Office

By Pearl E. Sewell

Again, I wish to thank the many friends, who so kindly gave me their support in the recent election, and especially do I value the loyalty of voters of Wayne City who have supported me so loyally through all the years.

I am quite proud of the fact that I have been in office longer than any other woman county superintendent in the state, 24 years. One other woman has served 22 years and another one a little over 21 years.

Five men county superintendents have been in office as long or longer than I have. Mr. W. T. Poucher of Burt County has been in for 27 years, counting this year. Mr. W. C. Bloom of Dawson County has served for 24 years. Mr. Wilfred E. Voss of Dakota County for 26 years. Mr. Fred S. Lecron of Platte County for 30 years, and Mr. F. J. Vogtance of Colfax County for 31 years. All except Mr. Voss were re-elected. I was pleased, too, that during the first 16 years I had no opposition at all.

Looking back over the past 24 years I find that teachers to the number of about 1,800 have taught in the schools of the county. With very few exceptions they were worthy, earnest and conscientious, doing good work as they passed along.

During the past 24 years 2,634 girls and boys of Wayne County have completed the eighth grade, passed the state examinations and then gone on into high school or out into the world. I have noticed many times that the honor students in the graduating classes from the town schools were rural pupils.

I thought it might be interesting to some to review the names of all persons who have held the office of County Superintendent of Wayne County up to the present time. Following are the names and the dates of their terms as nearly as I could get them from the records:

- R. B. Crawford, 1870-1876.
- Andrew Bevin, 1876-1878.
- D. C. Patterson, 1878-1880.
- James A. Elliott, 1880-1882.
- W. B. Wetherbee, 1882-1883. (Resigned).
- G. M. Lodge, 1883-1884. (Later became the Presbyterian Minister).
- Jesse S. Hake, 1884-1886. (One morning when he came into town from his home in the country, he found that the court house had burned down).
- A. A. Welch, 1886-1888. (The late District Judge Welch).

Willis E. Howard, 1888-1890.
 J. J. Gildersleeve, 1890-1892.
 Charlotte M. White, 1892-1896.
 Myra D. Fletcher, 1896-1898.
 Charlotte M. White, 1898-1900.
 Ed. A. Lundberg, 1900-1902.
 Chas. H. Bright, 1902-1905.

Later instructor in Nebraska Normal College here at Wayne and also at the Chadron State Teachers College.

Robert Elliott, Sept. 30, 1905-Dec. 11, 1905. President of Chadron State Teachers College.

A. E. Littell, Dec. 11, 1905-June 1, 1909.

Mrs. Elsie Ringer Littell, June 1, 1909-Jan. 1, 1915.

Pearl E. Sewell, Jan. 1, 1915-Jan. 1, 1939.

R. B. Crawford, the first county superintendent, and his wife, seem to have arrived in the county in the fall of 1869. They had been teaching in Dakota County. During the latter part of 1870 and at least a part of 1871, the records show that the county superintendent's office was at Taffe, which was two or three miles south-east of Wakefield.

Mr. Crawford later became a doctor here in Wayne. He went to some other state, but his wife lived in Wayne until she passed away some few years ago.

In 1870, Mr. Crawford, on receiving word from the state superintendent to do so, organized the whole county into one school district, district Number One.

Then later on at the request of the inhabitants of the different parts of the county it was thought best by the county superintendent to divide the district already organized into three districts, therefore on the 4th day of April, 1871, he divided the county into three districts. District 1 was, and is now, in the east part of the county. It now contains six sections.

Number 2 is a few miles west of it. Each of the three districts consisted of about one-third of the county at that time.

District 3, just west of Hoskins now, comprised the four west and northwest precincts. The school in this district at one time was very large and the school house had to be enlarged, now a partition has been put in, and the 11 pupils are not at all crowded.

I have watched a good many schools grow from small to large ones, and large ones get very small. Many of the schools today are small in number. There are 85 school districts in the county now. Most of the schools are quite well equipped.

There are a few in which the pupils have not had as fair a chance as those in other schools on account of not always having the best of teachers and the school boards failing to provide enough of the necessary books and supplies.

There are not so very many Standard Schools in the county. A Standard School requires a new or a remodeled building with proper lighting and floor space. A few years back there was quite a little boom of building new school houses, but during the last few years of drought and depression there is not much talk of new buildings. A few more schools could have been standardized if the few extras required had been gotten.

The water supply in many districts is not good. Not many schools have wells. There should be a good well in every district, especially where there is no home nearby from which water can be gotten, instead of pupils having to drink water all during the day that is brought from home in the morning.

The teachers' wages are not as high in Wayne county as they are in some of the other counties. In Douglas county rural teachers are getting from $80 to $125, per month. They get good experienced teachers there and they stay in their same schools for several years. A few years back, in this county, the Taxpayers League members recommended that the minimum wages for rural teachers should be $40. They wanted to set it at $35. This year one teacher is getting $40 and two are getting $70. In closing, I extend my best wishes to all pupils and teachers in the schools of Wayne County.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Goshorn of Dixon and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Meyers and children were dinner guests New Year's day at the John Goshorn home.

MAKE YOUR OWN CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

FOR indoors and out, you can make your own Christmas decorations.

The Good Housekeeping Studio in the December issue of the magazine turns to the gay, happy spirit of Christmas decorations, laughter, and light. "Don't let that last-minute rush of Christmas Eve and you lost and helpless with a few odd pieces of decoration and worn-out lights from last year's collection," the Studio urges. "Think what you want, where you can get it, and the time it will take to make."

The Studio has chosen the trifles which can be bought everywhere and which you can easily and quickly put together. Novel ideas are illustrated in bright, holiday color and directions are given for turning store-bought things into a fairyland with gay paper, Colophane glassips, a paste pot, and the usual baubles which can be purchased at any general store.

Plans Go Forward For Rural School Ground Beautification

Above is a general plan to be used as a guide in landscaping rural school grounds according to the program carried out throughout the state by Federated Club women, working with other organizations.

Started locally some three years ago through a contest sponsored by the Wayne Woman's Club, it was so successful that Mrs. S. A. Lutgen made it one of her objectives in her 9-point program when she became president of Third District, N. F. W. C. Now it has been taken over as a state project by Mrs. Walter Kiechel, state president of the federation. State Superintendent C. W. Taylor, A. L. Burnham, executive secretary of the Nebraska Teachers' Association; G. G. Hansen, president of the District Teachers' Association; county superintendents and many civic organizations are co-operating in the project.

Knowing the value of shelterbelt plantings as protection against storms, as preventives against soil erosion, as well as for their esthetic influence and beauty, the Prairie States Forest Service will plant two rural school grounds with shelterbelts in each of 11 counties of the district of which Wayne County is one.

These shelterbelts are to be purely on an educational and demonstrational basis. It being their hope that a few plantings of this nature made by the Forest Service will create sufficient interest in such windbreaks to cause other School Districts to make similar plantings without their assistance. They agree to furnish the three to eight rows of trees and shrubs needed; will plant the trees and replace any that die during the first years. The school board agrees to prepare the ground for planting, care for the trees through cultivation especially during the summer, and protect from live stock. The trees to be the property of the school entirely after windbreak well established. Plans must be made before April 15. All arrangements will be made by a committee of club women working with and through the county superintendent of schools. Districts interested should leave their names with him.

All landscaping plantings will be made by teacher, pupils and district groups. At least two trees for shade will be furnished each teacher by county commissioners or civic groups or both. These to be supplied through the superintendents office. If shrubs, seeds, etc. cannot be obtained in their own district, teachers shall report their needs for such and the club women will help to obtain them. Mrs. E. J. Hunter, Wayne, is chairman of the club group.

The above design is used merely as a suggestion of what can be done by simple plantings. It must, of necessity, be changed to fit the individual school plot. Space about the flag pole; walks bordered with iris, beds of Hollyhocks and other hardy flowers can be worked out to give individuality and charm. Every rural school ground should become the park of the district as well as a beauty spot for growing youth.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the works of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fall to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up at night, leg pains, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to get rid of excess poisonous body waste. They are gentle to the urinary tract and tend to relieve irritation and the pain it causes. Many grateful people recommend Doan's. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Ask your neighbor.
