The happy, fighting sons of old Ireland were wearing the green on St. Patrick's day in Wayne. Although in the minority by a heavy margin here, the Irish manage to let other residents know they are proud of their nationality come St. Patrick's Day. Of all the green we encountered, the old blarney stone should be awarded Rev. William Kearns, who was sporting a muffler that was the greenest green you're likely to encounter this side of Dublin.

Speaking of the clergy, Rev. Whitman tells a good story about muddy roads and a lost spare tire compartment key. E. E. Fleetwood's version of the same adventure is equally entertaining although differing as to his role in the incident. They're still arguing over which tale is correct.

The horseshoe pitchers, who stage some hot tournaments here during the summer months, are going to be forced to absorb a little more sunshine when the season opens this spring. The old trusty limbs, which formerly shaded the town's favorite pitching grounds, were victims of the tree trimming crusade, staged by the city. But the champion in these parts denies that it will hurt his game since he isn't "any sissy even if it has been a few score years since I started throwing ringers".

One of Wayne's leading local merchants believes in early preparedness. L. W. McNatt is giving

Pool Hall Damaged By Fire Sunday

The Pete Petersen pool hall was damaged by fire, which started in the basement of the building early Sunday morning and which was quickly extinguished by the fire department. Damage was confined to the pool hall, which was continuing business as usual Monday despite the fact that home building repairs will be necessary.

Early discovery of the fire by Don McIntire and George Burke, of the Wayne News, who were passing the building, was credited with averting serious loss. The building was filled with smoke and part of the floor burned before the fire was discovered and reported.

Two Wisner Women Hurt In Accident

Auto Plunges Down Bank After Crash Near Here

Mrs. John Shrader and Mrs. Delmonte, both of Wisner, were injured and remained unconscious for several hours following an automobile accident about 12:15 Sunday morning when the car which Mrs. Shrader was driving collided on a hilltop with a car driven by Herbert Obst. The accident occurred about a mile south of town.

Following the crash, Mrs. Shrader lost control of her car and it plunged down a 20-foot bank. Both women were rushed to a Wayne hospital along with Betty Coffman of Omaha and her sister, Mrs. Laughlin of Wisner, both of whom were riding in the Shrader car but suffered only from shock. Both women were allowed to return to their homes after their injuries had been treated and it was learned that they were not critically hurt.

Mrs. Obst and the three Obst children who were in the other car were not injured although both cars were damaged.

Sheriff Pile also investigated an accident about 3:30 Saturday morning when a car driven by Burdet Thies of Wayne and one driven by Thomas Steffen of Hartington, collided, 4 miles north of Wayne on Highway 15. Mrs. Steffen was the only one injured and she was suffering largely from shock. Both cars were badly damaged. Thies and several companions were returning from a dance at Randolph at the time.

Rites Held For Hanson

Farmer Found Froze May Have Suffered Stroke

Funeral services for John Hanson, 48, who was found frozen to death last Wednesday morning in the Ben Hollman pasture, 3 miles east of Wayne, were held at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Hanson home near Pender and at 1:30 at the Lutheran church there. Rev. Shipwright was in charge of the services.

A trucker hauling livestock to the Sioux City market last Tuesday aided Hanson in removing his car from a mudhole on Highway 35. The trucker reported to officers. On his return trip at 4 o'clock Wednesday morning, he found Hanson's car in another mudhole, abandoned.

Facts leading up to his death are unknown but some expressed the belief that he had suffered a stroke of paralysis prior to freezing. No inquest was held.

A passerby early Wednesday morning discovered Mr. Hanson's body lying in a pasture and called the Hollmans, who in turn notified officers.

Body Found
The body was found about 500 feet from the car and the victim's overcoat and jacket were about a block from where he fell, indicating that he had wandered about in a daze during which he discarded his clothing. His face and forehead were bruised and cut.

Mr. Hanson had been in Wayne Tuesday, where he purchased a horse, which his son took home.

Car Reported
Hanson's abandoned car was noticed first by a trucker returning from Sioux City early Wednesday morning, who reported to Sheriff Pile and Marshal Walter Phipps, who went to the scene and investigated. They found the sedan in a ditch south of the road, headed west and searched in the vicinity of the car but failed to find the victim's body. Believing he had gone to seek help, they returned to Wayne.

Hanson is survived by his wife and five children.

162 Attend YM, YWCA Meeting Here

Kirby Page's Addresses Are Special Features

The annual Nebraska Conference of the Student Christian Movement of the Rocky Mountain Region was held last Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Wayne State Teachers College.

A total of 162 registered in the Administration building for the conference. After dinner there was a general conference mixer in the college gymnasium. Games were played, some time was spent dancing, and at the close of the evening coffee and doughnuts were served in the calisthenium.

Highlights Of Program

Saturday morning from 8:30 to 9:00 the Wayne State YM and YW sponsored a short program consisting of musical selections, scripture reading, and an address of welcome by Dr. J. T. Anderson. Following this was the platform hour with Eleanor Smith presiding. Kirby Page gave an interesting address on the "Unique function of the campus 'Y'." Open forum and a period of informal conversation and relaxation followed his talk. The remainder of the morning was spent in various work sessions.

After lunch the afternoon sessions opened with another platform hour with Chuck Schwiezo and Evelyn O'Connor presiding. Kirby Page gave an inspirational address on "Areas challenging the 'Y'." After open forum, tea was served at the president's home. Work sessions were resumed at 4 p. m. The following topics were discussed at group meetings—personal relations, reinterpretation of religion, world affairs, personal attitudes toward conflict, economics and labor.

At 6:30 an Estes banquet was

Many Seek To Complete Loans Before Deadline

Warning that the original closing date of March 31 for the completion of loans on 1938 corn, published in The News last week, brought a rush of applications to the Agricultural Adjustment offices in Wayne, officials said Saturday.

Applications are being received so rapidly now that officials are having difficulty handling them and expect to be kept busy until the closing date is reached.

Some of the applicants have slightly exceeded their quota and should have applied earlier to allow time for investigation of their cases and appeals. All eligible applicants must have their corn loans completed prior to the final date, according to the county agricultural conservation committee. All loan documents must be completed and in the mail, postmarked not later than midnight March 31, 1939.

Closing date for the signing of farm plans is expected to be between April 15 and May 1, Wayne officials warned in urging operators and farm owners to make a careful check as soon as convenient to see that their farms have been listed.

County Farm Agent To Be Hired April 1

Bureau Being Reorganized; New Vote Is Expected

If present plans materialize, Wayne county will have a farm agent again April 1, according to members of the executive board of the county farm bureau chosen at a meeting last Wednesday. Selection of a competent agricultural agent awaits recommendations from the extension department of the state agricultural college.

Arrangements have been made with the county commissioners to obtain the necessary office rooms for the agent in the courthouse. It is probable that the offices used by the former agent will again be provided.

Plans Given
Hopes of the committee is first to complete the required membership for the bureau, which will assure an agent for the next nine months and then to place the question of a permanent county supported farm agent on the ballot again. Interest shown recently in obtaining an agent indicate that the proposal would likely carry if presented a second time

Anything Goes But Mannish Suits Lead

Today's Topic

Should War Vote Plan Be Adopted

Axel Swan—"No, we elect congress to do that sort of thing for us. We probably won't be plunged into a war very soon, anyway".

G. A. Renard—"I still have enough confidence in our representatives. The people in the middle west don't know enough about conditions in the east to vote on the referendum".

F. C. Reed—"We have a congress; such situations belong in their hands. Someone out here in this part of the country might vote against the referendum; they might vote for it".

C. R. Chinn—"There are good and bad aspects to the proposal".

Dr. J. C. Johnson—"I'm opposed to it. People aren't familiar enough with the situation to vote on it. We would be more likely to be forced into a war by people than by congress".

Lenore P. Ramsey—"People should have something to say about their own death. On the other hand if people have their say, we might be in the same kind of war as Japan and China".

Mrs. Perry Theobald—"We are definitely in favor of it. It is the only way that people can accept the responsibility of their privileges in a democracy".

Allen Cook—"In my opinion it should not be adopted; ours is a representative form of government. People have elected their representatives to congress and I believe the members of congress are as capable of making decisions on matters of this kind as upon any other matter of national concern".

Man Fined In Check Case

Joe Winkelbauer was brought before the county court Monday on charge of giving a check for $5 to J. O. Dunnwoody and having no funds in the bank. He pleaded guilty and made restitution. He was fined $5 and costs amounting to $4.45.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Manning moved Friday to Genoa, Neb., where they will manage a hospital.

Sentence Delayed; Chamberlain Is Given Three Years

C. H. Hendrickson, Wayne attorney, surprised both the prosecution and court attaches Monday by entering a nolo contendere plea to the criminal libel action on the opening day of the court term. Mr. Hendrickson had been expected to battle the charges of libel against E. W. Huse, Wayne publisher, at a jury trial.

Judge A. E. Womke of Stanton, who is presiding at the present session, accepted the plea but failed to pass sentence, and is asking another district judge to do so.

Plea Explained

A nolo contendere plea is so seldom entered that its meaning is not familiar to the layman. It is a plea by the defendant in criminal prosecution, which, without admitting guilt, subjects him to a judgment of conviction as in the case of a plea of guilty, but it does not preclude him from denying the truth of the charges in a collateral proceeding. In practice, according to County Attorney Burr Davis, it is used in some cases where a civil damage suit might follow since it does not admit the truth of the charges in such a second proceeding.

Erwin Chamberlain, Homer youth, who was arrested for the attempted holdup of the Otto Victor filling station, entered a

Power Lines Being Staked

Deadline For Second Project To Be March 30

With the deadline for additional applications from farmers desiring to be included in the second allotment for power lines set for March 30, staking of lines on the first project was slated to get underway this week.

Sufficient corners have been located to permit line staking on the first project which will include 158 miles of line and for which a total of $197,000 was allotted. Some of this money will be available for use on the second allotment since cost of the project was less than anticipated.

Applications are being received for the second project from all parts of Wayne and Pierce counties. A total of 225 farmers in Wayne county and about 185 in Pierce county have already applied. Additional applications are expected and it is anticipated that the second allotment will amount to approximately $100,000, although it may exceed this figure. These applications are in addition to the one included on the first project, work on which is underway.

REA officials here are gratified by the co-operation they have received in this county from the farmers, who are rapidly having their houses wired in advance of actual construction of the power lines.

Self-Governing Body Functioning At Terrace Hall

The self-governing body is now established at Terrace Hall, Wayne State Teachers College. The general hall elected the following officers for their organization: Bob Moran, president; Fred Murray, vice-president; Harold Hultman, secretary-treasurer.

Six councilmen were elected by the boys in each wing to represent their particular section of the hall. These are Gaynor Rundahl, Evan Binkard, Virgil Lindahl, Gene Hallsted, Dean Razz, and Werner Welchert. Six alternates were also elected to serve in the absence of any of the regular councilmen.

Dr. J. T. Anderson, president of the college, approved the plan of the organization and co-operated with the students forming it.

Wayne High Debaters Win District Title

Wayne Prep To State Meet In Class B

Wayne City High School established its supremacy in District 3 debate competition by capturing the district Class A debate tournament, held at Wayne Prep last Saturday, by winning three straight debates without a single loss. Wayne disposed of Blair and West Point in the morning rounds and then defeated the fine Norfolk team in the afternoon to win the title. Lyons won the Class B crown, with Wayne Prep a close second, after an all-day battle between equally matched teams.

Kenneth Gamble, Ray Larson, Marion Vath, and Wilmer Ellis represented Wayne City High in the tournament. Gamble and Larson, debating both sides of the question, won the three debates this keeping their teammates, who had prepared an alternate affirmative case, from entering competition. The same squad will represent Wayne at the state tournament in Lincoln, April 1. Both Wayne and Norfolk are eligible for the state meet.

Closely Matched

Wayne Prep, Crofton, Hartington, Lyons, and Emerson were so closely matched in Class B that 7 rounds of debate were necessary to determine the winners. Lyons emerged as champion after five rounds by having won three victories, suffered one defeat by Wayne Prep, and drawing one bye in the round robin. Wayne Prep, Hartington and Emerson were tied for second place with two victories and two defeats. Prep drew a bye in the sixth round and Emerson defeated Hartington. Prep then disposed of Emerson easily in the seventh round. Willis Noakes and Herbert Welch, upholding the negative, won this debate. Both Lyons and Wayne Prep are eligible for the state meet.

Judges Listed

Judges for the tourney were: E. R. Edney, Sioux City East; R. T. Knolle, Roosevelt Junior High, Sioux City; and L. T. Wiksell, Morningside college, for Class A and B. M. W. Feddersen, Wayne City High; Don Warner, Norfolk; E. D. Brandt, Lyons; and John Kyle, Wayne Prep. Miss Florence Drake of the local Teachers college was in charge of the tourney.

The question for debate was: "Resolved: that the United States should establish an alliance with Great Britain".

100 Legion Members At Anniversary Event

Approximately 100 Legion members attended the 20th anniversary prarogam last Wednesday evening at the Legion hall. A large number of the guests were members of posts in Winside and in Wakefield. The regular business meeting was followed by the members listening to the address of National Commander Stephen Chadwick of Seattle, Washington, whose message was broadcast over the NBC network. The remainder of the evening was spent socially. A delicious meal was served.

Mr. F. C. Reed arranged a 10-piece band composed of members from posts in Winside, Wakefield and Wayne which furnished music for the program. L. W. McNatt was in charge of arrangements for radio equipment.

The following men served on the luncheon committee: Phil Conner, L. B. Fitch, M. C. Bloss, F. C. Reed, William Kieper, and Ray Busirkirk.

Parade Of Fashions

Spring arrives officially today, bringing with her the gay fashions which always mark this season of the year. Life appears just a bit more carefree, more worth living as trees blossom, flowers bloom and bright sunshine routs the snow and icy blasts.

The new spring fashions reflect this gay trend. Conservative blacks and dark blues give way to colorful, light dresses and suits together with saucy bonnets and pert hats. Easter arrives early this year so preparations for the annual Easter parade must be made during the next few weeks.

Merchants of Wayne have prepared to meet the demand for the latest spring styles this year by assembling large stocks of new merchandise, much of which is now on display. Elsewhere in this edition, you will find valuable tips on the new spring and summer fashion trends. It will pay you well to read all the ads carefully so that you may shop intelligently.

The wide selection of spring merchandise of all kinds—clothing, hats, shoes, furniture, hardware and so on—should satisfy the most fastidious and you will find Wayne's prices, as usual, compare favorably with those of other towns and cities in Nebraska. Naturally, the early shopper has the greatest selection. Wayne's merchants invite you this week.

Education, First!

Scholastic achievements apparently are given the important recognition they deserve in the schools of Wayne and with encouraging results. It is evident that this is entirely possible without neglecting athletics as shown by the excellent records made by the basketball teams of both Wayne High and Wayne Prep.

As evidence that athletics are not over-emphasized here to the detriment of other phases of school life, glance at the excellent record made this year by the Wayne City high school debaters.

Their latest achievement was to win first honors in the nine-town, 20-team tournament, held at the local high school recently. Chief credit for this particular championship goes to the two debaters, Marion Vath and Wilmer Ellis, who chalked up a victory in the fourth round while the other two local teams, which also made creditable showing for the entire tournament, were being defeated. But back of the victory and in a large measure responsible for it is the debate coach and the training which the school offers.

Much complaint has been voiced in recent years that the schools are over-emphasizing athletics to the extent that the scholastic phase, which should be the major consideration, has suffered. This contention is justified in many schools. It is apparently not true of the Wayne schools, officials of which realize that the primary purpose of educational institutions is not to produce winning teams to entertain the home town fans or to make sports a business which pays dividends.

Athletics do have their place and it is an important one. They help develop school spirit; the competition is often helpful and the physical training is no less beneficial because it is enjoyable. However, the latter advantage is limited to the few except when intramural competition is encouraged. But they should remain, as they are here, only a by-product of our educational system.

Nebraska's Intellectual And Artistic Leadership

Nebraska has intellectual far more than its share to the intellectual and artistic leadership of the nation, as pointed out by Leta Stetter Hollingworth, University of Nebraska graduate and now professor of education at the Teachers college at Columbia University.

Miss Hollingworth has gathered her material from the studies of impersonal investigators, people in no way connected directly with the state.

She calls attention first to the reports of Dr. Stephen Sargent Visher of the University of Indiana, who counted the birthplaces of notables born within each state, and ranked the states for number (per million population at the time of the birth) of such birthplaces. Nebraska was found to rank third among the states in production of American notables of the nineteenth-twentieths, trailing only Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Nebraska's productivity of persons named in categories of American notables is nearly three times that of the average for other states of its region, having yielded 30 per million, the nearest competitor, Kansas, producing 12.5 per million.

The author also calls attention to the more limited studies of notables by Dr. James McKeen Cattell, editor of 'Science', and by Dr. S. W. Fernberger of the University of Pennsylvania. The former listed Nebraska as gaining what New England was losing in American men of science. Fernberger points to the peculiarly conspicuous status of Nebraska, as having produced and trained many psychologists, who later served and serve in all parts of the nation.

The Nebraskans included among the notables were born on the average about 45 years earlier than the decade of their notability. They came into being under pioneering conditions. The author suggests that perhaps the rigors of pioneering teach habits of hard work. She also suggests there must have been something in the breed of the people who first settled the plains of Nebraska that was exceptional.

Probably, it was a combination of these factors. At any rate, Nebraskans have reason to be proud of this remarkable record. The pioneers of this state achieved a high standard which their children and grand-children should strive to maintain.

What Editors Say--

Under Hitler's Protection

In his initial drive to claim the Sudeten land of Czechoslovakia for Germany, Adolph Hitler spoke in high emotional tones of the oppression of minorities. The Sudeten land largely was populated with people of German blood.

Within twenty-four hours last Tuesday he wiped out the last vestiges of the Czechoslovakian republic and marched his soldiers into the ancient Czech provinces of Bohemia and Moravia, announcing he was placing them under German protection. That incidentally demolishes any pretense of protection for the rights of minorities. For if in the last four generations the Sudeten land had been colonized by German blood, ancient Bohemia has been the home land of the Czech for a thousand years. There the people of Czech blood have dominated overwhelmingly.

Of chief interest in the revival of this Czechoslovakian trouble is what are its portents for the future? Does it restore in its old form the old storm center of Europe, which for the better part of a century concentrated in the Balkans? The Czech believes in his independence and his liberty. His spirit and his devotion to that principle have survived every test. But for the present, abandoned by his allies, the Czech submits and must submit, and Hitler goes marching on triumphantly.—Lincoln Star.

The tense situation in the north Pacific fishing grounds where Russian and Japanese fishermen have clashed several times has been developing for many months. It is really surprising that a crisis has not come long since. This situation emphasizes one peculiar aspect of Russo-Japanese relations. No matter how bitter the quarrels may be, no matter how tense the situations, actual warfare does not develop. Japan is not anxious to acquire a new opponent and Russia is not anxious to have war with anyone.—Lincoln Journal.

State Solons Rap War Vote

Ludlow Proposal For Referendum Meets Opposition

The University of Omaha's Midwest Poll called the roll of Nebraska and Iowa congressmen and senators and found not one willing to support the Ludlow proposal for a war referendum now pending before the house judiciary committee.

Two senators, one from Iowa and one from Nebraska, responded to the University's most recent canvass of congressional opinion in the two states. Senator Clyde L. Herring of Iowa declined to take a stand on the measure; but Senator Edward R. Burke of Nebraska, a member of the Senate Judiciary committee, condemned the Ludlow bill in no uncertain terms.

"I consider this proposal wholly impractical, certain to result in very grave dangers to this country if adopted, and altogether contrary to the spirit of representative democracy. I do not favor any proposal, no matter how attractive it may be made to appear upon superficial examination, if it is bound to result in a breaking down of the fundamental principles of our representative form of government."

"It is my clear conclusion that the citizens of the United States should exercise the greatest care in choosing their representatives and senators, and having done that, place upon them the responsibility of carrying on the government, particularly in respect to matters altogether unsuited for direct public opinion."

Congressman Vincent F. Harrington from Iowa's ninth district, who voted to discharge the Ludlow amendment from committee during the last session of congress, also assailed the referendum proposal. He reiterated Senator Burke's belief that the declaration of war is properly a congressional function and added that senators and representatives "are better equipped because of the fact that they are in constant touch with both sides of every question through the hearings which are held in both the upper and lower houses of congress."

"It is my opinion that they are not subject to so much appeal of a sentimental nature as is the public at large, mostly because they do have a better opportunity to sit in judgment on both sides of the question."

The University's report showed that only one of Nebraska's five representatives to congress was willing to take a definite stand on the referendum issue. He was Congressman Harry B. Coffee from Nebraska's fifth congressional district, who voted against the referendum in the last session of congress.

Still opposed to the referendum, Congressman Coffee stated that "the adoption of this proposal would enhance rather than diminish the possibilities of war because it would have a tendency to encourage aggressor nations to disrespect our rights with a feeling of impunity."

Another Nebraska congressman, Charles McLaughlin from the second district, said he had voted against the bill in the last congress but added that "this does not mean that my mind is closed on the subject."

National Industries Weekly Review

The Nation's Leading Letter by J. E. Jones, Washington, D. C.

Congress Passes The Red Light Washington, D. C., March 20—The national congress hasn't done much in arranging or disposing of its duties to the American people. The President's suggestion that it will help business if congress speeds its affairs and adjourns early sounds like the usual request "to get out and I'll do everything".

Congress has just passed the red-lights and the green flashes "GO". It is recorded that the size of congress is 98 senators and 435 representatives. That indicates the importance of the legislative body in our constitutional and democratic government. They are well paid—$10,000 a year each, plus too much mileage and allowances.

There are plenty of big things for them to do—enough to keep them busy until July of August. The hot Washington weather is no longer an excuse to quit, as all congressional quarters are air-cooled—lots more comfortable than most legislators are fixed up at home.

If this is a 7 or 8-billion dollar country congress should stay in session most of the time and uphold constitutional government.

The constitution of the United States received all its well-earned bows from the nation's highest officials on its 150th birthday. The President, the chief justice of the supreme court, members of congress and other important individuals did their country and its time-honored program all the honors.

The chief justice is truly a great man, but he does not appear often in public ceremonies. The President is a familiar figure, so that no particular significance rests in the fact that Mr. Hughes was outstanding as the celebrity in the congressional celebration, and the ovation to him was a personal tribute.

The constitution is a good document to live by, and more people should familiarize themselves with its contents. Anyhow, it has successfully resisted all attacks, which shows how well the founders planned this government of ours.

Motorcar's Debt To The Chemist

A section of the American Chemical society served as the sounding board for a dramatic story of the chemist's role in the development of the automobile when T. A. Boyd of the research department of General Motors told how the retail price of cars was lowered between 1925 and 1937 on an average of $300 per vehicle, thus saving the purchaser 30 per cent at the same time he was getting a bigger and a better automobile.

Tires are one of the chemist's contribution. Charles Goodyear started his experiments with rubber by mixing it with sulphur and then heating the mixture which changed gum elastic from a useless stuff, into one of the most useful materials in the world. The research chemist pointed out that each car now has 250 or more parts of rubber and that 80 per cent of all rubber goes into automobiles.

The chemist and metallurgist have eliminated waste in the iron and steel industry, and encouraged the development of alloy steels as materials of construction. The materials with which cars are being finished nowadays are almost entirely synthetic chemical products, thereby reducing the time needed to paint a car body from the four to nine days formerly required to but a few hours.

Mitting the chemist's gift in the matter of the investigation of petroleum, back in 1855, and the subsequent developments in the refining of gasoline, Mr. Boyd explained that while all these improvements have been yielding more and better gasoline, the retail price of gasoline, exclusive of taxes, has gone down steadily.

Every element of the motorcar, except the few wooden pieces—and possibly the water in the radiator, is either a chemical or metallurgical product, or else it has chemistry involved in its manufacture.

It is even a chemical reaction, namely, the burning of gasoline and air, which makes the automobile go. But other factors mentioned by Mr. Boyd as important, include safety glass, aluminum, brass, bronze, bearing metals, spark plugs and other items. He found the useful information that one-fourth of all the industrial research laboratories in the country are maintained either by the automobile industry itself, or by the makers of materials used in motorcars.

Labor And Peace

On the eve of the negotiations for labor peace between the CIO and the A.F.O.F.L. the latter organization carried some important items in its Weekly News Service. The supreme court decisions were vigorously approved and sit-down strikes were handled in vigorous language. Said A.F.O.F.L.: "Although hailed by communists, anarchists, parlor intellectuals, pseudo-liberals and political opportunists as an advance technique for the workers in labor disputes, the sit-down strike was definitely killed and appropriately buried by the United States supreme court."

The A.F.O.F.L. publication, at the same time, reported on its Peace Conference committee: "In announcing the appointment of the committee Mr. Green, said the American Federation of Labor would not consent to make the 'democratic principles' which underlie the structure of the American Federation of Labor the subject matter of negotiation. He added that the mechanical difficulties in the way of peace had increased, since the unsuccessful negotiations at the end of 1937."

A.F.O.F.L. and CIO have their national headquarters in the National Capital and their ups and downs are well known to Washington newsmen, who agree that "patched peace" is a bare possibility and permanent peace is an impossibility.

Two Big Unions

In the very beginning of the split between A.F.O.F.L. and CIO the latter organization built up a big membership, principally during the sit-down strikes. But this appears to have been a mushroom growth. The labor union situation is receiving consideration in congress and in view of the supreme court decision a determined attempt will be made to amend the Wagner Act. Early action will be delayed to await the results of the labor peace conferences. Congress must judge more impersonally than in past years the rights of the public, the workers and the employers. This would seem to be a comparatively simple undertaking inasmuch as collective bargaining, wages, hours and many other points of controversy have become settled.

How Docile Are We?

During the senate discussion on armament a Senator observed: "We have never drawn a gun to enforce the Monroe Doctrine", and he thought it was all because of the "psychology that existed". He indicated that the people of the United States are almost as docile and peace-loving as Chinamen. In the United States that kind of a statement is interpreted to mean that there is something pretty soft about us, and of course no one thinks that Americans and Chinamen are alike.

As a great nation that is capable of admitting its own human shortcomings our people will perhaps plead guilty of the charge that we are too tolerant and "docile" in our relations with some of the countries of Latin-America. It does not take much investigation into affairs to find that we bend over backwards in tendencies that are traced to the Mongolians and their standards of government.

Before we entered the World war our weaknesses were discovered by Germany, and they attempted to make the most of it in Latin-America, where they easily gained Mexico as their ally. The present German government has not forgotten, and they were Johnny-on-the-spot when President Cardenas confiscated American-owned oil properties last March. Shortly thereafter barter trade operations were arranged between Germany and Mexico, and American-owned oil that had been stolen by Mexico seemed for a time to offer rich rewards in barter trade with Germany. But the best laid plans of schemers often fail; as is indicated by the Annual Review of the United States Department of Commerce, just off the press. That Mexico has not obtained the prosperity that it sought is shown by a statement from Mexico City showing substantial decreases in imports and exports in its foreign trade, and in large decreases in its bank deposits.

Congress refrains from Latin-American criticism, and this attitude has been especially noticeable since preparations were made for the Lima conference. But Mexico's perfidy to the Good Neighbor policy figures strangely, though importantly, in the demands of the President for heavy armaments. Likely this accounts for the slurs appearing in German newspapers, one of which calls out President "the Don Quixote for Democracy".

A strong message of protest from Secretary of State Hull was sent to Mexico months ago, and for some reason it was held up in the American Embassy in Mexico City. This led to a resolution recently offered in congress requesting the presence of Ambassador Joseph Daniels in Washington, to give congress information about the Hull message and other unusual circumstances which have brought the Mexican government practically into disrepute in Washington.

Only last month Secretary of State Hull made a statement which if transmitted into vigorous action would bring matters to a head in Mexico, and put fresh props under our boasted Pan-American solidarity. "Human rights and property rights" were linked in the Hull declaration, and he added that they "lie at the very foundation of international friendship". The statement applies definitely to the inequality existing between the Donald Richberg mission to Mexico City—to plead for a square deal—and President Cardenas. "These rights must be defined, and they must be maintained", declared the secretary.

National Defense

The authorizations for greatly increased armaments are going through congress much more smoothly than they did "before the last war", when Woodrow

20 Years Ago

Mrs. C. E. Carhart went to Omaha Tuesday morning, a delegate from the Wayne organization of the Daughters of the American Revolution, to the state meeting there this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Oman went to Winside Tuesday, and were guests at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Oman.

Misses Dorothy Huse and Hatie Crockett, teachers at Stanton, were home for Saturday and Sunday with the home folks.

A. D. Lewis, chiropractor, has moved his office to rooms over the Orr and Orr store.

J. H. Foster was looking after business at Winside Monday. He is in the building business, and tells us that owing to the high cost of material, labor and all things entering into building, it is a little slow starting.

William Beutow was a visitor at Omaha Monday, and as there were Masonic meetings there at the time of his visit he perhaps went to attend some of them.

The W C T U will meet with Mrs. C. O. Mitchell Friday afternoon.

Wilson was opposed by a group of "willful men" whose opposition to a war to end war tied up the congressional machinery. In those "good old days" the government counted its money and spent it with considerable caution. Now little attention is paid to a few millions. The fact is that congress has made only minor gestures in reducing total spending. The appropriation bills for the departments are being pared as much as ten per cent but the heads of the different groups of government are already protesting so loudly against what they call "discrimination" that no one needs to hope for any of the loudly-heralded benefits from taxation that are predicted to come from this session of Congress.

World's Fair Trade

The New York World's Fair expects visitors to spend a billion dollars in the metropolis. San Francisco is leaving no stones unturned to draw the crowds—perhaps not alone for the money they will spend but for the privilege of showing the visitors the glorious sights of sunny California.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rain! to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "top up and up". Bileless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25 cents. Stubbornly refuses anything else.

Ping Pong Badminton Hold Stage

Spring Football, Track Underway At Wayne State

Ping Pong and badminton are in full swing as the inframural work of the college moves on. Men's singles are being played off in both these activities.

Wednesday night marked the grand finale in the YMCA basketball tournament, with Paper's Powerful Pushers victorious over Hansen's Hoopers with a score of 30-27. Johnson's Jumping Jacks were defeated by Retzies Ramblers, 24-17. From all reports there was good reason for everyone to cheer from the floor—nobody could remain seated for any length of time during the excitement!

Spring has invaded sports. Volley ball is to start soon, and if the Weather Man permits, the boys expect to commence spring football and track in the immediate future. The first meet is approximately two and one-half weeks away, to be held at Yankton, S. D. This is to be an English type meet which means that the team with the lowest number of points is the winner. Four men must be entered in each event, these to be chosen by agreement of the various coaches. Coach Morrison says that this will be a preliminary for the meet to be held at Hastings April 15.

While the boys sprint around the track, the sportswomen are awaiting the annual Play Day to be held next Saturday.

Concert Violinists Will Appear With Symphony

Philip Williams and Mary Becker, young American concert violinists, with the College Symphony orchestra, John R. Keith, conducting, will present an evening of the world's finest symphony and concerto music at the Wayne Municipal Auditorium, Thursday, March 23, at 8 p. m.

The college symphony is being augmented for the occasion by some of the finest musicians from Leo Kucinski's Sioux City Symphony orchestra. Albert Stoessel, conducting, last summer, and were heard over the coast-to-coast broadcasts of that famous organization. Albert Stoessel's "Suite Antique," written for two violins and orchestra, will be one of the numbers on Thursday's program at the Wayne Auditorium. The college entertainment committee sponsors this program, which is open to the public at a nominal admission charge.

Wayne High Candidates For Track Training

Candidates for the Wayne-high track team have been reporting in large numbers during the past week, but the changing weather has interfered considerably with training.

Coach Morris has plenty of candidates but it will take sometime to determine how strong a team Wayne will have this year. The coach is planning to mix a bit of spring football with track for the first time, which may result in more interest among candidates for the track team.

First meet of the season in which Wayne high is scheduled to participate will be at Hastings, April 1, and the triangular meet is slated to be at Hartington, April 6. Pierce, Hartington and Wayne will compete in the triangular event.

Students In Crash Return

Only Minor Injuries Are Suffered

Four Wayne State Teachers college students, who were injured in an auto accident, 6 miles east of O'Neill the night of March 12, recovered rapidly. While the injuries were painful, none was considered seriously hurt.

Erma Jane Tische of Wood Lake sustained a gash over the left eye; Evelyn Clark, Ainsworth suffered a badly bruised eye and a cut on the nose and Dorothy Scheinert, Fairfax, S. D., and Evelyn Smith, Ainsworth, escaped with minor bruises. Harold Ulrich of Winside also suffered a lip cut and the Ulrich car was damaged considerably.

The students, who had spent the weekend at home, were returning to Wayne Sunday evening with Mr. Ulrich driving. He failed to see a truck, which had halted on the highway, after hitting the back of a car belonging to Cecil Anderson of Gregory, S. D., who was later fined $50 in county court at O'Neill for failing to put out flares when he stopped on the highway to change a tire. Peter Kelley, Bassett was the truck driver.

The injured students were pushed to O'Neill by passersby, but with the exception of Evelyn Clark, who was taken home for a few days to recover from the shock and injuries, were able to return to Wayne Monday.

Mrs. P. J. Fuesler of Norfolk spent last week at the home of her son, E. J. Fuesler.

Wildcats Eliminated

Teachers Drop First Tourney Contest, 20-35

The Wayne Teachers College Wildcats dropped their initial game in the National Intercollegiate basketball tournament at Kansas City last week.

The local cagers failed to hit their usual fast stride and were easily defeated by a strong Maryville, Mo., team, 35 to 20. The Wayne team returned here Wednesday.

Coach Jim Morrison and Homer Smothers accompanied the Wildcats to Kansas City. Players making the trip included Bradford, Hunteiner, Ahern, Whitmore, Marshall, G. Wright, Rembold, Tell and Durrie.

The Wildcats closed their regular NIAA conference season tied with Kearney for second place. They led the race until their final game of the season was lost to Peru, which clinched the title by a double victory over Chadron the following week.

Color Marks Men's Style

All Wearing Apparel Will Feature It

As usual, men's styles are showing less radical change this year than the fashions for women. Both double-breasted and single breasted suits are being shown in large numbers at men's clothing stores in Wayne.

Green will be the predominant color, according to one local clothier but suits of all colors are being shown. Young men continue to show a preference for the double breasted models while their fathers as consistently as usual cling to the single breasted type.

Plenty of color will be found in other wearing apparel for men including hats, shirts and ties. Here again, green is reputed to have made rapid progress in popularity this spring. Colored shirts will retain their popularity probably adding some additions from the ranks of those who have previously preferred only white shirts.

Two tone shoes will also be extremely popular this spring and summer. Several new combinations are being introduced and will be found in the shoe departments of Wayne's leading stores. Even hats will have more color than usual but the usual variety of shapes are being shown.

Shelterbelt Tree Demand Exceeds Supply

Farmers and landowners within the Nebraska shelterbelt planting areas have applied for more trees than are available for planting. Forest Service officials announced this week. The Neligh, Loup City, and Norfolk Shelterbelt districts have oversubscribed their allotted quotas sufficient to make up the small shortage in the Alliance District.

The shelterbelt mileage allotted to the Nebraska unit of the Prairie States Forestry project is 1,000 miles, and this has been exceeded by approximately fifty miles. In addition to this mileage, there are 282 applications on hand which may have to be deferred to the 1940 planting season because of shortage of nursery stock.

Planting the trees with WPA labor is expected to start this month, weather permitting, and it is hoped that all new plantations will be planted by April 30. Over eight million trees will be planted on 2,000 farms. At the completion of this season's work, the project will have planted 19 million trees on 4,500 Nebraska farms.

SYNOPSIS — Looking almost exactly alike, Brooks Mason, film star, and George Smith, Hawaiian planter, exchange names. Brooks goes to Hawaii for peace and quiet while George is mobbed by the star's admirers in New York. In love with a dancer, Dorothy March, whom he met on shipboard, Brooks is claimed by George's fiancée, but her father has him jailed, charging that George Smith had stolen $50,000 which he had entrusted to him to put through a deal.

"Yes." She looked at him silently for a moment, still disbelieving. "Look, George, get out of the room, but don't let me see you."

"Look like him?" Brooks exclaimed, becoming too excited to remain seated on the cot. "I am him! I'm Mason. That's what I started to tell you last night."

"Mason's in New York. You told me that yourself, and I read it in the ship news."

"I lied to you about that."

"Oh, and the paper lied, too, I suppose."

"The paper wasn't exactly lying."

"Of course, it wasn't. But you are. Please, George, be honest with me. Whatever you did, I'll stick by you, but tell me the truth."

"I am telling you the truth," he said in desperation.

"I don't believe you," said Dorothy. "I'm ready to go now."

"Dorothy," he pleaded, "don't go away like this! Please listen! Let me tell you what happened."

But the jailer had unlocked the door and Dorothy stepped out without a glance for the unhappy Brooks.

"I tell you I'm not George Smith. I'm Brooks Mason!"

"Now, now, how can you say that, George," chided the jailer. "I've known you ever since you were a kid."

Millie De Grasse was washing handkerchiefs and stockings in a basin before a mirror that was plastered with drying handkerchiefs, and trying to comfort Dorothy.

"What do you care, Dot, who he is, if he loves you and you love him?"

"But why didn't he tell me the truth?"

"Oh, such a fuss about the truth! Perhaps he is Brooks Mason."

Chapter Nine

SUCH A FUSS ABOUT THE TRUTH!

"He's no good, I tell you. He's a thief." Homer Grayson stood over his daughter, crying bitterly on the sofa, for Cecilia had just learned that her father had had her fiancée thrown into jail.

"He is not!" she cried, looking up defiantly through her tears. "I've told you over and over again, George wouldn't do a thing like that. I know him!"

Grayson, who had started to pace the floor angrily, stopped and shouted furiously: "I know him, too. And I also know when a man deliberately steals $50,000 from me."

"I don't believe it! You never liked him! You're just doing this to keep me from marrying him! I warn you: it won't work!"

"Don't you talk to me like that. I'm older than you are."

"Then you ought to know he's innocent!"

"He's not!"

"He is! If you were ever in love with him, you'd know it!"

"If he's innocent, why did he run away?"

"He didn't run away. I sent him."

"You sent him?" Grayson looked down at his daughter incredulously. "Where? Why?"

Cecilia began to cry again. "We had a quarrel. I told him he was stupid and dull, a naive farmer. So he went to Hollywood — to become a man."

"Hollywood!" snorted her father. "Nobody's going to spend my money on movie actresses — unless it's me!"

The jailer stood lazily outside the cell into which Brooks had been thrust, watching in some amazement the prisoner's antics as he shook the bars and shouted: "But I'm telling you, it's a mistake!"

"It's your mistake, not mine."

"Well, for Pete's sake," said Brooks, quieting down, "let me make a phone call at least."

"Have you got a nickel?"

"No. I want to call New York."

"New York!" and the jailer broke into a hearty laugh.

"Yes, a friend of mine's there. He'll clear me in a minute."

"Listen, this is a jail. You get food and lodging, but that's all. No long distance calls, no horseback rides, no pillow fights." Still laughing, the jailer walked lazily away, and Brooks sat down on the iron cot and buried his face in his hands, bitterly regretting that he had ever changed names with George Smith. Being mobbed by fans, spending days in hospitals was better than being jailed in Honolulu. Still, if he had not, he would never have met Dorothy.

At the click of a key in the lock of his cell he got up, a happy smile on his face. The mistake had been discovered and he was going to be freed.

"Pardon my intrusion, Master George," said the jailer with a teasing smile. "A lady to see you. Shall I tell her you're in?"

"Thank you," smirked the jailer, and stepped aside to reveal Dorothy March. She went straight into Brooks' arms, dumbfounded by the jailer.

"If you require anything, Master George," said the jailer formally, as he backed the cell door, "just ring. I'll get it to you if I have to break down the door to do it." He ended with a deep bow and left them together.

"Oh, darling!" cried Dorothy, hugging him tight. "I called and Wong told me. It's not true, is it that?"

"Certainly not! It's a ridiculous mistake."

"I'm so glad, darling."

They sat down on the cot, his arm about her waist.

"George Smith may be a thief," she explained. "He may have stolen $50,000, but I'm not George Smith."

"What?" She sprang to her feet at the shock.

"I'm Brooks Mason."

"Brooks Mason?" she repeated incredulously.

"But I'm telling you it's a mistake!"

"Ho isn't he is, why did he sneak out here under another name? If he isn't Brooks Mason, he's George Smith and George Smith stole $50,000."

"He stole it before he met me."

"Maybe he had a vision he was going to meet you."

"But look — everybody in town can't be crazy. Mr. Grayson says he's George Smith and he ought to know. It's all here in the paper."

"Who's Grayson?"

"The man he stole the money from."

Millie took the newspaper from Dorothy and read the account of Brooks' arrest. She threw the paper down, went to the closet, took out a suit and put it on.

"Where are you going, Millie?"

"I'll tell you where I was. If you want to cry any more, wait till the handkerchiefs get dry."

"I'm not going to cry any more. Not over him. He's not worth it."

"Maybe he ain't to you, but if I fell in love with a man by the name of Smith and he said he's Mason, I'd marry him and make believe he's Mason."

"Homer Grayson sat behind his desk, facing Millie De Grasse.

"Well, Miss De Grasse, what can I do for you?"

"Mr. Grayson, you are one of the most influential men on the island, and I would like to have you sign a petition to spring an innocent man from the cooler."

"If he's innocent, why is he in the cooler?"

"They said he did it, but he didn't do it."

"Well, if you're sure he's innocent, I'd be the first man to sign a petition like that. What's the man's name?"

"Sign the petition first. We'll fill in the name afterward."

Grayson drew himself up coldly. "I must know the man's name first."

"I can't tell you the man's name, but George Smith wouldn't steal anything."

"George Smith," cried Grayson, springing up. "You want me to sign a petition to release a man who robbed me of $50,000? He's where he belongs — in jail! I gave him the money, in cash, to negotiate a deal for me with a man named Jones because I didn't want Jones any more. I was connected with it, and he can't produce the deal; he can't produce the money, he can't produce Jones, because there is no Jones much you know! There is Jones. I'm Mrs. Jones. I left him when I found out he was a crook, and changed my name back to De Grasse. Mr. Grayson, you've got the wrong man in jail. The man you want is Jones, the man who stole the money."

Grayson's secretary entered. "Excuse me, Mr. Grayson, there's a Mr. Jones to see you."

HELP KIDNEYS

To Get Rid of Acid and Poisonous Waste
Your kidneys help to keep you well by constantly filtering waste matter from the blood. If your kidneys get functionally disordered and fail to remove excess impurities, there may be poisoning of the whole system and body-wide distress or too frequent urination may be a warning of some kidney or bladder disturbance.
You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.
In such cases it is better to try on a medicine that has won county-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. A multitude of grateful people recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor.

ing lawn mowers a play now prior to the arrival of the grass. But, maybe, he's right. Prospective purchasers may be easier to convince now than when the time arrives and they realize that as soon as they buy they must swing into action on their long neglected lawns.

There's an old saying about there being two sides to every question, but you'll seldom find a town in which both of them are aired with greater consistency than in Wayne. Just let an individual, club or virtually the entire community launch some enterprise or for that matter mention it in a loud voice, and here comes the critic or critics. At any rate, you should be prepared to dodge the brickbats, halibats and just plain ordinary bats that are hurled immediately. Both sides of any question should be presented, of course, providing there is room for argument but opposition for the purpose of making a noise, dividing a community and thereby blocking its progress seems to lean heavily on the silly side. Now, we'll duck.

The flu continues to take a heavy toll of sufferers in the business district in Wayne. However, most cases have been comparatively mild; only sufficient excuse for a few days away from the store and work. But, golf always was a better excuse to get away than business.

Judge Cherry is firmly convinced that the county books must be in great shape now after the vast amount of checking they have received recently from auditors.

While Hitler deserves at least most of the brickbats which are being tossed in his direction, he must be credited with averting any unemployment among map makers, munition, aviation and trench workers throughout Europe and even in the United States. He hardly leaves a breathing spell between invasions as he apparently advances on the theory that there should never be a dull moment.

County Farm Agent To Be Hired April 1

so that all would share the expense as well as the benefits from his work.

A. G. Sydow, Lee Sellon, George Langenberg, Tom Roberts, Mrs. Henry Kleper, Mrs. Lawrence Ring and H. J. Podoll comprise the executive for the farm bureau, chosen at the membership meeting at the old City hall in Wayne Wednesday. They are in charge of the completion of the organization.

State, Government Aid
The salary of the county agent is paid through the federal government and state extension service, but the bureau furnishes the finances for other expenses through membership fees. This plan, which was followed when Wayne county had a farm bureau in the past, had to be revived when the proposal for a tax financed bureau was rejected at the polls.

of chatter. But, Nebraska weather just will not be ignored.

A week ago Sunday we were firmly convinced that spring had arrived. The old family bus, which had been consigned to a frigid garage to weather the storm as best it could, was reclaimed and wonders of wonders, it had apparently thawed and was hitting on four or five. So we drove about the country, visualizing how beautiful it will be in a few weeks with the flowers in bloom and the last traces of snow and mud only a memory. That was a week ago Sunday. Monday, was also fair and mild.

Then came the dawn of Tuesday and a heavy fog. The mercury went down with all the rapidity of the 1929 stock market and the wind started blowing in Texas Panhandle style. Just to make matters worse, we received our first gas bill on that day, which bore a striking similarity to the German war debt, and had announced in The News plans for our Spring Style edition, which you are now reading.

Just imagine trying to write about spring weather, gay fashions, light clothes, sunshine and summer with the wind cutting icy capers with bits of snow. That takes imagination and our training in fiction has been decidedly neglected. But the calendar said Tuesday would be Spring and Spring it must be with or without the co-operation of the most fickle brand of weather in our memory. Maybe, someone should rush out and notify the weather man that Spring is here.

Chapter 2, Thursday
The weather man is apparently relenting. The wind which howled throughout the night in mid-winter fashion has calmed and the sun in struggling with some success to penetrate the cold wave. While by no stretch of the imagination could this be interpreted as a heat wave, the prospects for warmer weather are much brighter. Maybe, the calendar is correct after all.

Chapter 3, Monday
Warnings broadcast Thursday and Friday that northeastern Nebraska would be invaded by another snow were delightfully false, although it was not until Sunday that the Weather Man delivered real Spring weather. It was the type of day which inspires poets and would make a Californian ashamed of the coast's famed brand of weather. Monday was equally fine so the way was cleared in great fashion for the entry of spring slated for 6:20 this morning. The weather may be fickle but it all makes one appreciate the really fine days which arrive about this time of the year. The End.

AAUW Members Work Through Study Groups

Distinguished Women Scholars Head Organization

Editor's Note: Following is another of the series of stories describing Wayne organizations, their activities in the past and plans for the future together with their complete membership. This story deals with the American Association of University Women.

The American Association of University Women is an educational organization of more than 59,000 members who are alumnae of colleges and universities of high standing. Branches of the association—800 of them in June, 1938—are organized in every state, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Japan, China, the Philippines, and Argentina. Its officers and committee members are distinguished women scholars and leaders in educational and cultural fields. It was founded in 1882 because it was believed that by working together the alumnae of different colleges could open doors of opportunity to women in the educational world and secure for women a fuller share of intellectual life.

Activity Listed
The work of the A.A.U.W. is divided into three branches, namely, national, state and local. The chief lines of endeavor for the national association are: Establishing and maintaining standards in education; compiling data on problems and trends in education; carrying on a program of study and educational community projects; supporting legislation and other public action that embodies the association's objectives; encouraging women in the field of creative scholarship through graduate fellowships, and otherwise seeking to enlarge opportunities for women; maintaining a national headquarters and club in Washington; encouraging international understanding, especially through the International Federation of University Women.

The work of the state divisions is done particularly in the field of educational legislation. Then the entire program is carried out by the local branches in various ways.

Equality of educational opportunity, individual liberty and freedom of thought, social and economic security, and peace—these form the guiding policy of the organization.

Local Work
Local work is made up of study groups. Some of the topics considered by these groups are education, international relations, social studies, and arts. School, family, and child problems; present-day international troubles; economic, social and political questions; fine arts in the form of music, painting, dancing and literature are studied by various members and reported upon at meetings. These meetings are open to anyone interested. At least once each year an evening of entertainment is provided to which the public is invited. The Wayne division each year has given $5. to the senior girl who was graduated with highest honors.

Officers, Members
Officers for 1938-1939 are: Mrs. G. W. Costerisan, president; Mrs. J. T. Bressler, Jr., vice president; Mrs. P. F. Dierking, secretary; Miss Coral Stoddard, treasurer.

Following is a list of members: Jessie Boyce, Mrs. J. T. Bressler, Mrs. C. R. Chinn, Mildred Clark, Mrs. P. C. Conner, Enid Conklyn, Mrs. G. W. Costerisan, Lois Crouch, Maude Curley, Frances Davis, Esther Dewey, Mrs. H. D. Griffin, Helen Gildersleeve, Gretel Hackenberg, Harriet Hazinski, Clara Heylman, Mrs. Mary T. Honey, Mrs. T. S. Hook, E. ### Mechanics and Machinists Are Wanted

In view of the improving business outlook and because of the increased activities in the aviation field, the Norfolk office of the Nebraska State Employment Service reports that inquiries from various parts of the United States have been received concerning the availability of skilled mechanics and machinists.

For this reason the office is interested in securing the names and addresses and a record of the experience of all skilled mechanics and machinists who are not now working at their trade and who have had aircraft experience, or who would be interested in securing training in aircraft mechanics.

Any applicant who has previously registered and who has not contacted the Norfolk office, or the interviewer from that office, during the past 30 days should see the interviewer to renew his application.

It is requested that any person in this community who has the above mentioned skills, but is not working at his trade, visit the interviewer, Mr. Ziggafoos, for the purpose of registering.

Mr. Ziggafoos will be at the courthouse in Wayne on Tuesday, April 4, from 1 to 5 p. m. served at the college cafeteria. From here the conference members adjourned to the college gym for an informal good time.

Climax To Conference

The Sunday morning service in the college auditorium was a grand climax for the conference. The Kearney delegation sponsored a beautiful worship service which well established the desired mood for what was to follow. Wayne A Cappella choir, directed by Professor Russell Anderson sang "O Bless the Lord" and "Open Our Eyes". This was followed by Kirby Page's final address entitled "How to live triumphantly and creatively".

Mr. Page suggested that two things in particular are necessary for triumphant and creative living. In addition to mutuality, which he had discussed to some extent in a previous address, he stressed the importance of alternating. He began by relating some of the facts which people are prone to waive as being too unpleasant to discuss. In order to best illustrate his point he read part of Carl Sandburg's recent poem, "We the People". By his convincing and eloquent speech his audience was compelled to consider the pessimistic side of life.

Mr. Page maintained further that we must not only be aware of need but also that we must be willing to do something about it personally. Having expounded to some extent upon this subject, he proceeded to explain the alternative about which he had first spoken. "It is well to bear the burden", he said, "but to continually look at that side of life would soon break a man". Therefore, there must be an alternate. A man must lay down his burden and rest before he can go on.

The alternative may be in any one of several forms such as music, nature, friendship, and beauty of any kind all of which are basically the manifestation of God. Thus Mr. Page built up to a splendid climax which left his listeners with a profound sense of peace as well as a determination to follow his suggestions.

plea of guilty to a robbery at night charge and was sentenced to serve three years in state reformatory at Lincoln. His attorney urged that the sentence be suspended and County Attorney Davis asked that it be carried out.

Other Cases Slated
Chamberlain was previously convicted in county court on an assault charge in connection with the holdup attempt and sentenced to serve 30 days in the county jail.

Trial of the case of Effie Lund versus Elizabeth Woodway, a partition action in an equity case, was opened Monday afternoon but was not completed until court was recessed until Tuesday, when the hearing will be continued.

Only two cases were set for trial next Monday, when the jury session will open. They are the cases of Fred Buckner versus Walter Wantooh and Gale M. Creger vs. W. H. Neely and others.
