

Wayne On Parade

Thumb-nail sketches of the past week—Cool weather and rain raised a flock of smiles on the faces of the natives... Don McGuigan registering real satisfaction as the nickels pour into his new music box and warning the world that slugs won't get melody out of this one... Dan Farrell, veteran newspaper man, admitting sheepishly that he pulled a cub reporter's trick and pounded out stories on opposite sides of a sheet of paper by mistake... Paul Gertner twirling his knife in circles as usual... Earl Merchant giving the cafes a play while his wife's away, but still contending that he's really a good cook, just doesn't enjoy it... Carl Wright massing statistics... Hank Ley, torn between love of the drama and banking, moaning that he'll have to abandon one or the other... Otto Stratton raving about the wonders of Missoula and the hotel that is to be there soon, thanks to his energy and effort.

Members of the fair board are smiling again, now that the premium list has gone to press. Wayne county subscribers of The News will receive their copies in the next edition. Both The News and The Herald co-operated in publishing the edition, advertisements for which were handled this year by the fair board.

Progress continues at a steady pace on the two school buildings being constructed in Wayne now. Meanwhile with summer school closing, teachers at WBTC will have a few days in which to catch their breath before the fall session opens. However, the fact that there are no classes doesn't mean that the college teachers have nothing to do except vacation. Many are kept busy getting ready to launch the long fall and winter term.

Aside to An Observer—Your letter regarding the comparative merits of the two local educational institutions was received but cannot be published until you march boldly forward with your name for use with same. We appreciate your kind words but The News does not publish unsigned letters.

With fall merchandise arriving at many stores and the torrid temperatures of a week ago giving way to a mild weekend, summer is beating a retreat. Now, if August would just contribute more than its usual amount of rainfall, it could be chalked up as one of the best months of the year.

The WPA layoff order is to be enforced throughout the state, according to latest word from officials at Lincoln. The slash was limited to a few workers in Wayne county at first, but now it is probable that all 33 originally scheduled to be cut from the rolls will be removed soon.

Postmaster J. M. Strahan joins us in the belief that the City of Wayne is far too modest in its population claims. The postmaster says that the business handled at the local postoffice far exceeds that of the vast majority of towns of 2,300 in Nebraska even considering the fact that the college contributes considerably to the volume here. He points out that Wayne has no industries which do a great amount of postoffice business as do several towns of similar size. The scarcity of vacant houses and the number of meters used here also indicate that Wayne actually has a few hundred more citizens than it claims. A good Chamber of Commerce would hike this figure around the 3,000 mark without blushing.

Wayne Gets More Moisture During Weekend

Wayne received .07 of an inch of rain Sunday which boosted total for that date in August to 1.31 inches. Clouds hovered over this city throughout the day Monday and contributed some additional moisture.

With August only a week old, the precipitation thus far compares favorably with former years. Last year, the month's rainfall amounted to 5.79 inches. In 1937, it reached only 2.99 inches and in 1936, there was not enough moisture to dampen the rain gauge.

Rainfall thus far this month is recorded on the gauge at the Carhart Lumber company as follows: August 1, .88; August 2, .36 and August 6, .07. A drop in the temperature accompanied the rain over the weekend.

86 Farmers Apply To CCC For Soil Work

Rapid Progress Being Made At Winside Camp

With a total of 86 applications filed by farmers for soil conservation work in the vicinity of the Winside CCC camp, steady progress is being made, according to camp officials. To date, 31 farmers have agreed to go ahead with a complete program.

To acquaint Wayne county residents with the purpose and progress made by the camp, the following information regarding it and its personnel was submitted to the News by M. L. Hazelrigg, who is in charge of information, and E. E. Stipsky, camp superintendent:

With the recent development of national interest in the problems of soil and moisture conservation it has become apparent that individual farmers need very definite assistance in formulating and carrying out these conservation measures.

Assistance is being provided to individual farmers by the Soil Conservation Service, and CCC Camps attached to the Soil Conservation Service.

50 Work On School Job

Every Effort Made To Speed City Project

Racing against time, contractors on the Wayne High school building and remodeling project started this week with more than 50 men on the job as they bend every effort toward getting the old building in shape for the fall term of school.

During the past week the contractors incorporated approximately $4,700 worth of labor and material into the project and indications were that this week would run ahead of last.

New Boiler In Place
The new boiler, which fire underwriters for years had urged for the high school building, was in place late last week, a late arrival having made its placing in the structure a slow task.

In an estimate for partial payment on the contract, submitted to the architect and to the Public Works Administration for approval, Principal Contractor O. E. Kingery based his voucher on 25 per cent completion of the entire project, as of July 31.

The Nebraska Normal college association held its 14th annual reunion at the college campus Sunday afternoon with about 150 members and their families present. The luncheon was served in the recreation room of Pile hall on the campus.

New officers for the coming year were elected at the business meeting which followed the luncheon. They are as follows: Dr. G. E. Plaque Unveiled

After the business meeting, the group gathered in the parlor of Pile hall for the unveiling of a bronze plaque bearing the likeness of James M. Pile, founder of the Nebraska Normal college in 1891. Musical numbers were presented by the sextette of Pierce under the direction of Miss Genevieve Lunack, and organ solos by Mr. Magdanz of Pierce. Short talks were given by O. R. Bowen, Rolfe W. Ley, Fred Berry, Dr. G. E. Peters, Mrs. John Grier, Ralph Crockett and others, who related experiences under Professor Pile. Most of the members attending were graduates of the college. The plaque is two feet wide and three feet long. The inscription beneath the likeness gives his name and the years he lived, 1857-1909 and that he was the founder and educator of the Wayne college.

The first picnic of this sort was held in Bressler Park, August 15, 1926. At this meeting an association was formed with Mrs. Leah Wolverson-Falke as president, Mrs. John Grier, secretary, and J. J. Cut In Tax Levy Slated

County Board Is Expected To Make Reduction

The tax levy for Wayne county this year will be set at a meeting of the county commissioners next Tuesday. A slight reduction in the levy this year compared with that of 1938, which was 3.6 mills, is expected due to a slash in estimated expenses of $27,114.93.

Total estimated expenses for the coming year are $177,606.43. The county levy last year was one of the lowest in the state and the budget for 1939 was further reduced as county commissioners continued their efforts, to keep expenses at a minimum.

The state board of equalization fixed the state property tax levy at 2.61 mills on each dollar's valuation, which is the lowest since 1936 when the levy was 1.76 mills. Increased valuations for the state as a whole and reduced property tax appropriations by the economy-minded legislature are responsible.

Meet Pioneer Walter Miller

Editor's Note—Following is the third of a series of articles, reviewing highlights in the lives and early day experiences of Wayne's pioneer business men. This is the story of Walter Miller, prominent garage owner and city council member.

Walter Miller will always remember vividly the winter of 1888 in Wayne. In the first place, it was that year that he—a boy of eight years—arrived here with his parents. But it was the blizzard of 1888 which is frozen in his memory.

"My parents arose too late for me to attend school that day," Mr. Miller told a News reporter. "It was about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, as I recall, that the blizzard swept into town. And what a blizzard it was. The storm reached such proportions that the children together with a rope so that they wouldn't get lost."

Other Sidelights
Several other interesting sidelights on the early days here were recalled by the popular city council member, such as the opening of the Normal school here, a

City School Opening May Be Delayed

Plan To Hold Classes Elsewhere Being Considered

Bulletin
The board of education virtually agreed at its session Monday night not to attempt to hold regular classes pending completion of the remodeling of the City school building. This means that the opening of school will be delayed at least two weeks and probably until October 1. However, some activities, scheduled for early in the year such as football practice, will get underway at the time slated.

No definite action on the selection of a music supervisor was taken but another meeting will probably be held within the next week to fill this vacancy.

Opening of the Wayne City school will probably be postponed until the last week in September or the first of October, school authorities indicated Monday. The school board was expected to discuss the advisability of opening school at the regular time and holding classes temporarily in other buildings, pending completion of the remodeling work on the old structure.

Use Old Building
As soon as the remodeling has been completed, classes will be held in the old building until the addition is finished and a completely new arrangement worked out.

Professor Frank Thorpe assumed his duties as superintendent last week and is making the necessary preparations for the opening of school at whatever date is finally selected as most advisable.

Should the opening be delayed three or four weeks, it is probable that at least part of the time would have to be added to the school term next spring.

Progress Made
Workmen are making rapid progress on the building but were delayed in getting started due to the litigation over the school bond issue.

Professor Thorpe indicated that he was anticipating no additional changes in the faculty of the institution this coming year and the board was expected to consider several applicants for the position of music supervisor at its session Monday night.

Lueders Are Erecting New Bungalow

Plans have been drawn by Chris Lueders to build an all-modern bungalow type house at 221 Logan street and work will be begun as soon as the old house now situated on that site, is torn down. Work on the razing of the old building was begun Monday morning and will probably be completed the latter part of the week.

Mrs. H. J. Lueders, who has resided in the old house since coming here many years ago, moved to another dwelling.

The new house will be of one story with a full basement. The beauty parlor now operated by Mrs. Lueders in the residence at 309 Logan street will be moved to the basement of the new structure and will have an outside entrance entirely separate from the living rooms of the house. The shop will be modern in every respect and will be larger and more convenient, than the old shop.

Farm Income

The farmer must first battle to produce a fair crop regardless of the weather conditions and then, if successful, still depends for his profits on the scale of prices paid for farm products.

While the farmer is certainly not receiving as much today as his efforts and the risks involved warrant, he may credit the present administration with making definite progress in its campaign to rescue agriculture. Only by considering conditions over a period embracing several years may a fair picture of this progress be obtained.

In 1932 the situation of agriculture was rapidly becoming critical just as the banking situation was causing alarm throughout the nation. Gross farm income had fallen 57 per cent from its earliest peak to only $5,562,000,000, the lowest on record. Farm prices as a whole had fallen by a tremendous percentage.

Then the Roosevelt administration moved swiftly to help agriculture. Naturally, such a tremendous undertaking cost money, but the extent to which it has been successful is shown by a comparison of prices on farm products.

Between 1933 and 1937, gross farm income rose 66 percent, an increase of $3,658,000,000. Meanwhile, farm prices jumped 86 percent.

All these figures do not mean that the farmer is getting even his just share of revenue today and better and more effective methods of assisting him are being sought and tested. Some will undoubtedly be abandoned as have many of the past efforts, but some will continue and be improved. Some are costly; some have not been effective. But many have contributed greatly to the progress which has already been made.

With campaign year ahead, statistics of all types will be introduced, some covering only certain crops, others dealing with just a few months, selected carefully to substantiate the case of the candidate quoting them. So, it is well to keep in mind that the really important thing about the many farm relief measures enacted is their long-time effect and the large increase in farm income which has resulted. Past accomplishments speak a far more forceful and truthful language than future promises.

Wayne's Trade Territory

With improvement of the highway extending north from Wayne definitely scheduled, this city's future will be linked more closely with that of the towns and communities in that territory.

Already the chief market place for many residents of that area, Wayne's trade territory should be expanded in that direction. Both the city and the residents of that area will profit by closer cooperation. A movement is being launched now with this objective; if efforts are united it will be most effective and may accomplish much for the future of Wayne.

Needed!

Probably more merchants are discussing the need for the organization of a retailers association in Wayne than at any time in recent years. The majority hesitate to take the lead for fear they will be criticized by some who may seek to find a selfish motive behind the scenes. It is probable that any person, attempting to obtain action along this line, would be opposed by a few, but until some one braves these minor attacks and devotes his time and energy to making such an association a reality, it will remain just another much-to-be-desired affair.

How They Voted

Recent rejection of the administration's lending program by the house as a belated economy gesture may have been for the best interests of the country. Undoubtedly, there were two sides to the question—benefits and objections.

That all the congressmen voted their convictions and with only the best interests of the country at heart, however, seems extremely doubtful. The democrats divided on the measure, enough supporting the 100 percent republican bloc to defeat it.

Perhaps some of the democrats voted with political considerations in mind and with an eye on the coming election. That is difficult to determine because of the fact that the party's votes were split. But it is not so difficult to see that undoubtedly many republicans opposed the measure only in an effort to knife President Roosevelt, most likely standard bearer of the democrats again this coming election. Granting that there was plenty of room for an honest difference of opinion regarding the measure, surely there were a few republicans in the house who believed the bill's benefits outweighed its objections. But they voted solidly against it or rather they voted solidly against President Roosevelt.

It is a pity, one of the prices America pays to the political interests, that as an election nears many of those, honored by their fellow citizens by being elected to represent their interests in congress, look away from the country's best interests toward the ballot boxes as their guides.

What Editors Say--

Appeal To A Nation

The Hatch bill is law. Its father, Senator Hatch, is a democratic New Dealer. It was passed by congressional groups reflecting all schools of political thought. It was signed by President Roosevelt.

Its introduction by Hatch, its passage by congress, and its signature by the president gives it no greater force than the conscience and the soul of this nation shall breathe into it. For it aims at cleaner politics, more decent politics, better government, and they are elusive goals. They are attained only through inspired leadership and inspired citizenry.

It was a great triumph for President Roosevelt when he signed that bill. He knew millions of others knew, some of the spirit back of it. Back of it was partisanship, the enmity he has incurred within the ranks of his own party, and the opposition of politicians.

And those were not the only questions. For the Hatch bill opens up, if improperly administered, the opportunity to strip millions of Americans, of their inherent liberties in political expression. The right to participate in open assembly, the right of freedom of speech, the right of freedom of thought could all be menaced if there should be improper administration.

Mr. Roosevelt's friends will rejoice that he signed the Hatch bill. Some of those back of it may have been actuated by the desire to embarrass him but the underlying spirit of the legislation is so eternally decent and so vital to political progress that the American people should rejoice Mr. Roosevelt rose above any of the petty considerations his enemies charged to him. And it now becomes the responsibility of the American people that the law itself shall not be distorted into an instrument to strip citizens of their liberties. —Lincoln Star.

Secretary Hull is fostering a measure that will restrict the travel of Americans in combat areas during a war. This should apply particularly to doughboys. —Joplin (Mo.) Globe.

According to estimates, the average adult consumes three pounds of water, four pounds of food and thirty-five pounds of air, daily. And unless he is careful, about fifty pounds of propaganda. —Christian Science Monitor.

The Nation's Leading Letter by J. E. Jones, Washington, D. C.

From Waste To Waste

Washington, D. C., August 7— Looking back upon the past seven months that congress was engaged in doing its "daily dozens" there is very little in the way of satisfactory record of current history.

The great majorities of our citizens cling to the old-fashioned belief that the country's greatest interests should be put ahead of party politics. That's the hitch!

During the first six months of the session the principal interest of members seemed to center in getting across appropriation bills, and the selfish desire to get "the share" that belonged (?) to their state or district reflected very little to the credit of the legislative groups.

The wastes are longer than in previous years. The New Deal cannot be accused of being wholly to blame, because the political spoils have been divided.

The waste this year has been so great that, as July passed, there was impatient haste to adjourn, in order to evade the responsibility of acting on several very important measures, including labor laws, housing and other "pets" of the Administration, or "pets" of the opposition.

So far as the row between congress and the president is concerned the latter got the worst of it in most instances. But that's another story.

Why This Investigation?

When the house of representatives suddenly voted to investigate the National Labor Board, people all over the country began to wonder what had happened.

The explanation is found in facts that show the determination of a lot of politicians to prevent any kind of reform in the labor laws. The Wagner Act, Labor Board, Wage-Hour, and other legislation were all enacted as experimental measures, to prevent strikes, walk-outs and all labor troubles, and to increase stability in employment, and strength in collective bargaining between Union workers and employers.

The enmity between the two great labor groups never yielded to persuasions in behalf of peace—or even a valid truce. CIO was charged—with plenty of evidence—to be the favorite, as well as dictator to the Labor board. A.F. of L. made bitter charges to that effect.

Amendments were proposed in congress to labor laws. They were "stalled"—all ticketed to be "put off until next winter". Suddenly the log-jam broke, and an investigation was ordered by angry congressmen.

That seems to be all that is necessary to start the log-rolling, and clear up the jam. It looks as though the country may look forward to general revisions that will make labor laws fairer to those most concerned, viz: 1-The Public. 2-Employees. 3-Employers.

Not Wholly Neutralized

Exports of war materials to foreign countries have nearly doubled in the past three years. Increases are in exports of aircraft material, iron, steel, petroleum, and other major products.

New Job Opportunities

What motivating forces are in the offing to act, and did the great industrial developments of past decades, as new accelerating agents for the general economy?

The head of a large corporation was interested enough in that question to conduct a survey among more than 100 industrial organizations, large and small, which he said reveals an amazing number and variety of new things—some already being produced on a commercial basis, others so well advanced in the laboratory as to indicate the probability of their practical application in a short time.

Accordingly, this leader was able to answer his own question with the following conclusions, which are those of Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of General Motors: "One emphatic answer lies in the laboratories of industry, in the constant striving for more and better products at lower cost.

"With only casual public notice, there has been emerging from industrial laboratories and scientific workshops everywhere, during the depression years, a flow of new products and new concepts which bid fair to create for us, in reality, a new world of tomorrow. New knowledge and new skills have opened up fields of possibilities little dreamed of even a decade ago.

"Seldom in so short a period of time have so many possibilities appeared upon the industrial horizon. It may be said, therefore, that there exists today the fundamental elements essential to a summer, and return home with substantial vacation benefits.

See your country with eyes focused on the beauties of the landscapes, the complexity and power of cities and towns, the tempo of the people, the glories of out-of-doors, the spread of business and opportunities, and enjoy the ease with which you find revealed the story of America.

Besides gas, service and sale stations everywhere, and a place to stop when you are ready to rest, you should note what the different states do with their products and salable articles.

What are they? Who, buys them? For what?

Excelsior, paper, lumber, chemicals, mohair and talc are valuable products of Maine. Lumber, mercury, paper, cooper, zinc, magnesite and silver plating figure heavily in the economic affairs of the State of Washington.

Cotton, lumber, chromium, mercury, magnesite, soda, silica, sulphur, chemicals, mohair, moss, talc, wool, platinum, gold, borax are included in the natural wealth of California. Eastern States maintain their economic conditions through manufactured products, lumber, cotton, glass, paints, iron ore, aluminum and turpentine. The middle-Atlantic and adjacent states produce and ship leather, hogs, coal, beauxite, tungsten, hides, mica, tin, lead,

"Just As Good"

When the World war was in blossom the demands for cotton multiplied because cotton was a base provided in the manufacture of explosives. Foreign fighting nations are not restricted from buying our cotton. In fact the U. S. is willing to pay part of the export tax. The drawback is that smart foreigners have developed substitutes for cotton "just as good" for the manufacture of explosives.

silver, flaxseed and practically every commodity and thing that grows.

All these products are a part of our American automobiles, to which every state contributes its part and receives pay from its best customers, who own and operate automobile factories in Michigan and other states.

Sucker-Proof Markets

The recent stock market boom has been roundly applauded by the same federal officials in Washington who have been accused of "trying to ruin the investment market". The brain-trusters have always insisted that they intended to make the markets okeh, and now, they claim that the lambs are less likely to be fleeced.

Food Stamps For Relief

Experiments made in Rochester, New York, and Seattle, Washington, have convinced the U. S. Department of Agriculture that the new plan of issuing food-stamps has made it possible for many underfed families on relief to secure essential food supplies. Orange stamps issued to reliefers, charged against their relief checks and good for purchase of foodstuffs in retail stores, are now supplemented by blue stamps given to reliefers in 50 per cent of the value of orange stamps, and good for the purchase of foods on the current surplus lists.

HOLDERS of these stamps have used them, and the government officials declare that it is a way that guarantees our poor citizens enough to eat. One hundred cities are to be supplied with the stamps, and included in the plan. This indicates that the same benefits are likely to be extended to the aid of persons on relief in every part of the country.

Rainfall In July Shows Marked Decrease

Rainfall in July amounted to only 1.97 inch compared with 5.26 inches for the same month in 1938, according to the official government check at Wakefield. This brought the total precipitation from Jan. 1 to Aug. 1 to 10.70 inches compared with 17.02 inches for the same period in 1938.

Temperatures were slightly higher last July than a year ago as shown by the following figures the first in each case are for 1939, the second for '38—Mean maximum, 95.80; 92.45; mean minimum, 71.61; 72.22; mean, 83.70; 82.34. The maximum temperature in July was 112 compared to only 103 last year.

LUCKY NIGHT BEATRICE FABER SYNOPSIS: Cora Jordan, wealthy and socially prominent, breaks her engagement to Joe Milton and admits that she'd like to meet a man who'd take her breath away...

Copyright 1939 by Loew's, Inc.

Chapter Nine

Bill's paint job flourished as did his love for Cora. Sometimes he would stop in the middle of the day to muse on fate and its way with men...

Now he was on his way up in the world and was wedded to a beautiful wife with a lovely face and a fine imagination...

"I'm always in great form on Saturdays," said Bill.

your new house is surrounded by trees, so all the green you can get in the rooms, brings the outside inside and I think that would be nice...

Bill bowed like a prince, pleasantly conscious that Blondie and she were watching. It will be a pleasure. Thank you very much, ma'am. Goodbye.

Bill approached the two girls. They were grinning at him. Blondie observed, "He could have sold her purple just as easy. I never seen anything like it."

Bill hurried to the office. Now what, he wondered. Just suppose Carpenter was sore at him and life's sweet young dream among the paints was over...

Bill had practically forgotten he was there. He reached for the telephone. "Oh boy! Am I going to break this news fast?"

College Job Order Sought

Finishing Touches For Addition To Hall Included

A change order submitted during the weekend for Public Works Administration approval would provide the finishing touches for the addition to Council Hall at Wayne State Teachers' college.

It provides for painting, decorating and installation of Venetian blinds on certain main windows and shades at 113 other window openings in the new structure.

Because the funds set aside for the building included this work, it is felt certain that the change will be approved by PWA. The change is in the form of an addition to the contract of the general contractor, John L. Soderberg.

Part of the second floor corridor in the old building, were the biggest construction steps during the past week. Lathing, partition work by carpenters and other renovating in the old unit also went ahead.

Latest PWA estimate on completion indicates that the project as a whole would be 50 per cent completed by August 30 and 70 per cent finished by Sept. 30. This allows for the old unit to be 100 per cent remodeled prior to the latter date.

Reports of eight tests of concrete samples made to date show wall footings to run 25 to 50 per cent stronger than specified and the stairs and second floor slab testing 30 to 40 per cent more than required by the architect and PWA for fireproof structures.

highway letting of the year, which included the Highway 15 project in Wayne, Dixon and Cedar counties, being accepted $220,981 lower than the estimates.

Other Projects Let Construction jobs awarded aggregated $1,474,019 and included 43 miles of surfacing of which a 16 mile strip on U.S. alternate 30 in Butler and Saunders counties will close a pavement gap between Omaha and a point 3 miles west of Osceola.

Representatives of 74 bidders submitted 707 offers on the projects estimated to cost $1,685,000. All but $9,000 of the estimated work is construction.

As most of the highway to be improved is in Dixon and Cedar counties, those counties will furnish most of the workers for the project. However, federal employment officials indicated that there would be several jobs available for Wayne county workers who are experienced in handling dump trucks.

A contract was awarded the Platte Valley firm for grading 1.2 miles of Highway 15 in Dixon and Cedar counties for $6,374 and Weldner and King were awarded the culvert and bridges work on this same project. The latter bid $11,335.

Final decision on the staging of an amateur hour contest at the fair with entries competing for honors in the vocal and instrumental divisions is being delayed to see if there are sufficient number interested to justify it. private institution which accepted tuition from children of farmers in the form of corn, potatoes and a variety of other crops. The first Normal was in the building now occupied by the Central Market and Mr. Miller credited Phil Kohl with being largely responsible for Wayne getting one of the four state normal schools.

Miller recalled that his parents located on a farm about a mile from Wayne called the Lou Owens place but he attended school here. The Millers moved to Wayne from Newcomerstown, Ohio, coming by way of Sioux City, where they crossed the river on a ferry. There was no bridge there at that time spanning the river.

In those early days, brick yards here supplied brick to all points in the county. John Surber owned one of the yards and John Lewis the other and it was in these brick yards that Miller obtained his first job. The yards were later forced out of business because of poor quality of the clay available.

Partner In Garage

It was 20 years ago last Thanksgiving that Mr. Miller started in the garage business as a partner of his brother-in-law. The garage building they erected was of cement block. He served for years as city commissioner and is the veteran member of the city council, the only member nominated at the last election by both parties.

Mr. Miller has continued in the garage business in partnership with his sister, Mrs. Minnie Strickland. They operate the Central garage and have the Ford sales and service agency in Wayne.

first term of school in a wood frame store building on the present site of the Central Meat Market in Wayne. September, 1892, the first building on the present campus site was completed and occupied. Around this four story brick structure dormitories sprang up, and in 1906, the school opened with a new, three story brick building, which was to meet the increasing demand of more room. At this time the campus consisted of two school buildings, five dormitories, president's residence, and a central heating plant. The enrollment had climbed over the thousand mark during the winter season.

During the depression and hard times, in the nineties, students were assisted in obtaining their education, due to the fact that Mr. File accepted agricultural and dairy products, also livestock, for full or part payment. For two years, the only fuel used was ear corn. The student's personal welfare was a matter of great importance to him and during the thirty years that he was a teacher, thousands of lives were touched by his influence.

In 1932 at the picnic, it was decided that a committee be appointed to compile and print a book which would refresh the minds of the members, the days when the college was new. Hence, after much research and by the use of newspaper files, an annual has been prepared. These books are now complete, and may be obtained from officials of the association.

pose of demonstrating the value and need of soil and moisture conservation measures in this community. The Winside camp is one of eleven such camps in Nebraska and one of approximately 400 in the United States on such work. Other Nebraska camps doing soil conservation work are located at Madison, Weeping Water, Pawnee City, Broken Bow, Blair, Beaver City, Franklin, Columbus, Bridgeport and Hebron. The camps doing soil conservation work are operated by agriculture technicians trained in the work of soil conservation.

The aim of the work of these camps is to establish a complete demonstration of effective erosion-control practices within the area in which it is working. The Winside CCC camp will effect the demonstration of conservation measures through active co-operation with individual farm owners and operators within its 15 mile area.

Labor Crews Used

CCC labor crews are used by Soil Conservation Service to carry out the more difficult and laborious work involved in effecting a complete conservation program on the farms signed for demonstrating such work. The number of men in camp will average approximately 200.

The soil conservation personnel and their duties are listed below:

- E. E. Stipsky, superintendent in charge of the work program. M. J. Hankins, camp soil conservationist in charge of co-operative agreements with the farmers. G. L. Ellithorpe, camp engineer. M. L. Hazelrigg, camp soil surveyor. W. R. Harder, camp agronomist in charge of cropping practices. Foremen, in charge of crews on farms: M. P. Kessler, C. C. Butler, J. W. Whitney, L. K. Swarts, J. H. Lowe, camp mechanic. Program Outlined

Ley Explains FSA Purchase Plan In Broadcast

Rollie W. Ley, Wayne banker and member of the state committee for the FSA tenant purchase plan, was one of the featured speakers on a program, broadcast by Station WNAK at Yankton Tuesday evening, to explain the FSA plan. W. M. Hawkins, FSA district supervisor, accompanied Mr. Ley to Yankton.

The program provides for loans at 3 per cent interest over a 40-year period where funds are used for the purchase of farms, which are valued on the basis of their production.

Wayne county was recently included in the group of Nebraska counties which may take advantage of this plan. In Cedar county, which was included in the program two years ago, nine farms were purchased under the provisions of this act.

Both farmers desiring to purchase land in Wayne county under this plan and those who want to sell land through this arrangement are urged to confer with Ray L. Verzal at the courthouse. More than a score of Wayne county farmers have already made applications to purchase farms under the FSA plan and a county committee will be selected soon to pass on their applications.

Weekly Farm Review

Grasshoppers

There are a great many grasshoppers in the stubble fields. When the fields are plowed the hoppers are crowded to the middle. Several very good "kills" have been had where a small strip was left in the middle of the field and poisoned.

If the thistles and weeds are destroyed, and the hoppers aren't poisoned they will go into adjoining fields. The additional damage which they do is not the only factor, but the "hopper egg" infestation will be greater for next year. Poison spread on stubble fields and idle land will be well worthwhile.

We have plenty of supplies in Wayne county to continue mixing bait.

Meeting for Project Women

On Friday, August 11, at 1:30 p. m. the women who are working on the extension pageant for the fair will meet in the Methodist church at Winside.

Each club should send at least one member to this meeting. Any musical talent that is available, will be greatly appreciated and a big help to the program. Remember the date and place, August 11, in the basement of the Methodist church at Winside.

Club Holds Achievement

Thrifty Workers, with Mrs. Bendin as their leader, was the first club to finish its project. The Achievement Day was held in the schoolhouse, Dist. 78 on Tuesday, August 1.

Following the business meeting, the members gave a short program. The display of dresses and other articles made by the 4-H club members was interesting. Refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served. County Agent Walters was a guest.

High Ceilings May Not Make Rooms Any Cooler

Contrary to common opinion, engineering tests do not show that rooms with high ceilings are materially cooler in hot weather, and high ceiling rooms cost more and are harder to heat in the winter. This conclusion is one of the results of a study of farm home construction in which the United States Department of Agriculture and the University of Georgia have been co-operating.

The experiments included a pair of test houses in which the walls were of interchangeable panels, making it easy to alter the location and the number of doors and windows and the height of ceilings, as well as the materials and conductivity of the walls.

Thermometers on the walls and at various heights in the room did not show significant differences in favor of 10-foot ceilings as compared with 8-foot ceilings, when the same number and kind of windows were used in each test. A desirable arrangement of windows and doors to provide cross ventilation and to take advantage of the prevailing breezes did more to make the rooms more comfortable.

Prepare for Rye Pasture

Many Wayne county farmers plan to get their seedbeds ready at once so that as soon as moisture conditions are favorable they can plant rye for pasture this fall and early next spring.

It has been suggested that this may be a good way to handle fields where corn has failed and where the stalks have been cut for silage. Rye can be planted successfully for pasture following the first good rain.

The sooner rye is planted, the earlier grazing it will afford this fall. However, if rye is planted in August following a small shower, the seed may sprout and the stand may be lost by subsequent hot, dry weather.

Rye has an advantage over wheat in areas where the Hessian fly is a factor, since wheat should not be planted until the fly free date has passed; but this date may be safely ignored with rye. In most areas it is too early now to plant either rye or wheat for grain, but not too early where rye is to be used for pasture.

Farmers have come to depend a great deal more on rye for grazing than they did before the drought years. But even where permanent pasture is abundant, rye is very beneficial by making it possible to keep the stock off permanent pastures in the early spring. Rye also provides earlier grazing.

With the wide participation expected in the AAA during the coming year, many farmers will have land released for forage and pasture purposes. In view of the fact that conditions may not be favorable for grass and legume seeding and since there is a limit to the amount of hay and forage most farmers can use, part of the land can well be utilized for rye pasture.

Care Of Cut Flowers

Here are some hints on prolonging the life of cut flowers. They come from Miss Verna Glandt, extension home demonstration specialist at the University of Nebraska college of agriculture.

Miss Glandt points out that cut flowers need to absorb a maximum amount of water. To make this possible, cut each stem the desired length with a sharp knife, using a long diagonal stroke. If scissors are used, the blade tend to crush and mangle the stem.

After cutting the stem, immediately plunge it into water. If the stem is exposed to the air even only a few minutes afterward, the value of cutting is lost because nature immediately starts to seal it over.

However, the ends of flowers that "bleed" such as the oriental poppy and dahlia should be sealed by passing them through a gas or candle flame, to stop the "bleeding". Cut flowers will last longer if as much of the stem is under water as above it. The container should be roomy so the flowers will not choke, but will fall into their natural position which is the most artistic arrangement.

Fair Rents on Forage

Landlords and tenants in Wayne county may find some practical suggestions for determining a mutually satisfactory rent on forage crops from a recent statewide survey.

The survey is a part of the Nebraska Pasture-Forage-Livestock program. The suggestions come from landlords, and tenants themselves. One recommendation is that the acreage of forage crops such as sudan and sweet sorghums be limited to about the amount the tenant can use or afford to store himself.

For example, if the tenant thinks he can use the forage from 20 acres, he might plant only that amount and then buy the landlord's share at prevailing prices when the crop is harvested. This plan seems more practical than for the tenant to plant 30 or 40 acres of forage, to get 20 acres for his own share.

In eastern Nebraska, from 60 to 75 per cent of the farmers reported that cash rent is commonly paid for a forage crop, but in central and western Nebraska, most of the forage crops rent for share.

Another suggestion from the landlord-tenant survey is that the rate of rent on grain crops be raised and the tenant get all the pasture and forage crop acres free of charge. In a territory where the common rate of grain is one-third, this rate might be raised to two-fifths and all rents cancelled on pasture, buildings, forage crops, etc.

Such a change would be practical only on farms where the proportion of grain crop acres and other acres of crop and non-cropland are within reason. However, the suggestion takes care of some of the problems connected with types of rents that are hard to pay and hard to collect when conditions are unfavorable.

Farmers, landlords, owner-operators, and men who look after land for large companies sent in reports in the landlord tenant survey. A district summary for this section of the state is available at the Wayne county Farm Bureau office.

Interest In Judging

A new record may be set in number of entries in 4-H club judging contests at the Nebraska State Fair Sept. 3 to 8, a report from L. I. Frisbie, state 4-H club leader for the Nebraska college Extension service, indicates. The report from Extension Service shows that more than 6,200 farm boys and girls and leaders attended a series of 18 practice 4-H judging days throughout Nebraska during June and July.

Training was given in animal husbandry, crops, dairy, poultry, girls room, clothing, baked foods and canned foods. Frisbie has received requests for an even larger number of judging days next year.

Making Ironing Easier

Summer ironing may be simplified by care in hanging up the clothes, Miss Helen Roake, extension clothing specialist at the College of Agriculture, reports. When dried evenly, many articles may be folded and used without ironing. One simple rule to keep in mind is that articles should be hung by their heaviest and firmest part, which allows them to dry more evenly with less strain and wear.

If towels, pillowcases and other small straight pieces are folded over the line about six inches and pinned an inch from the side edges, they will dry in shape and be easy to iron.

Underwear and wash suits are hung by their hands. Handkerchiefs, napkins, and wash cloths are folded over the line, several together and pinned.

Tablecloths, sheets, and spreads may be folded crosswise through the center and hung right side out hem to hem.

Shirts are hung upside down or by the tails so the strain and wear of the pins comes on the less worn part.

A satisfactory way to iron garments having a row of buttons or snaps is to place the garment with the button side down over a folded turkish towel and iron over them.

Out Here Where Tall Corn Grows

Wayne County Gets Favorable Publicity

Wayne county received some favorable publicity in the June edition of Community Jeweler, a magazine which circulates to jewelers throughout the country.

Carrying the caption, "The long and short of it" is a picture of L. A. Fanske, Wayne jeweler, holding a huge stalk of corn in front of his jewelry store. The article states that Mr. Fanske will tell you that when it comes to cultivating corn, they do things in a big way in Wayne county. He says the stalk he is holding "is one of the smaller stalks of the locality, only 13 feet 10 inches high."

The writer adds that just about the time Mr. Fanske sent in this picture he saw the following Associated Press news item from Des Moines:

"Kenneth Snapp who said he came to Iowa to pick corn sought lodging at the city jail here. The police inspector took a look at Snapp and said, 'Just how tall are you?'"

"Four feet, three inches," said Snapp.

"It looks as if you're out of a job to start with," said the inspector, "Haven't you heard how tall the corn is this year?"

"And so, if you follow Horace Greeley's advice you'd better be tall or able to handle a set of stilts."

No, the corn wasn't from this year's Wayne county crop but it was raised in this county a few years ago.

Interest Rate on FHA Loans Is Cut

Interest rate is now 4 1/2 per cent instead of 5 per cent for Federal Housing loans on homes anywhere in Nebraska or the United States. This is announced by Frank S. Selby, vice president of The National Company of Omaha, who is making FHA loans all over Nebraska.

The National Company, which has a broker in this city taking FHA loan applications here, has just received word from Washington that, effective August 1, 1939, the maximum interest rate will be 4 1/2 per cent.

Mr. Selby feels sure this exceptionally low rate of interest on a mortgage on a home will still further stimulate the activity in FHA loans in this city as elsewhere.
