

County fair season is getting well underway in northeastern Nebraska with the Dixon county fair scheduled to open at Concord for three big days on Wednesday, and the Wayne county fair slated here September 6 to 9, inclusive.

The Dixon county fair will feature wrestling matches, a racing program, three baseball games and concerts by three bands, spiced with free acts and agricultural exhibits.

When in Wayne, you will know them by these tips—The man who spends most of his time under some other person's auto repairing is Alfred Fisher... the one with the friendly grin and who is usually rushing around is Ed Seymour...

PWA and WPA may both be employment units working for Uncle Sam, but it's a grave error to accuse an employee of one with being associated with the other.

Enough Wayne residents motored to Minnesota last week to form a small colony. In fact, several parties did manage to unite in the lake region there long enough for a few games of golf.

Work is progressing fairly rapidly on the Wayne City school but date for the opening of classes this fall is still uncertain, depending on progress the next few weeks.

The potential fair queens really got into action selling fair tickets this week and, if by some miracle, you haven't purchased your quota yet, better start searching for those extra coins.

Novelty Features For Fair Slated

Mud Wrestle Polo Games In Spotlight

Two special features booked for this year's county fair—the mud wrestle and the draft horse polo games—are attracting wide attention and are expected to play major roles in attracting large crowds.

Adam Krieger of Lincoln will referee the mud wrestle in which Earl Wade of near Winside has been booked to meet Walter Underhill of Tampa, Fla.

Teams have been organized for the draft horse polo game, which will probably supply more fun than science.

Pony Polo Game Plans are also being made to stage a pony polo game but additional entries are needed. Anyone who desires to compete in such a contest should notify M. C. Bloss, fair manager.

Another novelty on the fair program will be a Model T Ford novelty race, originally booked as merely a Model T Ford race. Just what the novelty features of this race will be have not been revealed by officials in charge, but they agree that it will furnish real entertainment.

Tentative plans have been made to stage a pony race and a bicycle race, but the fate of these two events depends upon whether or not sufficient entries are received.

The sale of season tickets, one of the phases of the fair queen contest, opened Saturday. Contestants, garbed in special uniforms advertising the fair, launched the sale. Cash prizes are being awarded the entries in addition to the votes they will receive through the sale of these season tickets.

Progress is being made in arrangements for the horse races with many entries indicated. Racing was popular here several years ago but they were dropped from the fair program recently and returned again this year.

Every effort will be made to arrange races which will attract followers of this sport throughout this section of the state.

Interest in agricultural and livestock divisions of the fair continues to grow with indications that there will be many entries.

Cafeteria To Be Ready By Sept. 10

Day And Night Shifts May Be Used On Hall

Interior millwork for the faculty apartments on the second floor of addition to Connell hall, Wayne State Teachers' college, is due to arrive this week and carpenters are to start at once on the interior trim, it was announced Monday by John L. Soderberg, general contractor.

Although the Nebraska State Normal board, as owner, has made application to the Public Works Administration for an extension of the completion date to October 19, Dr. J. T. Anderson, college president, asks that the cafeteria be ready for Sept. 10 and the faculty apartments not more than a day later.

Contractor Soderberg has promised the cafeteria on time and said that he will make every effort to deliver the dormitory apartments by Sept. 11. It appeared Monday that the contractor would put on day and night shifts of building craftsmen to comply with this completion date.

In the faculty apartments workmen started Saturday to lay out the subement floor upon which the finish wood floor is to be laid. Brickmasons are working on a new entrance for the cafeteria, while inside the carpenters are applying a new insulation board ceiling and sheetmetal workers are completing ducts for the air conditioning.

Roofers completed their work Saturday noon. All plumbing has been roughed in and the work is ready for fixtures. The heating lines have been completed and the risers to the radiators are about 50 per cent completed.

Grant Approved Terrazzo work on this job is expected to start some time this week.

Dan Farrell, jr., resident engineer, PWA, received word during the week that the owner's application for $14,422.60 in additional PWA grant funds had received favorable action in the regional office at Omaha and that payment could be expected shortly. The state normal board previously had received $24,654 in grant payments. Total PWA grant is $50,227.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bartels left Saturday morning on a two weeks' vacation trip to Minnesota. They plan to visit in Canada before returning home.

News Gets Shipment Of Fountain Pen, Pencil Sets

Demand For News' Premium Grows

A new shipment of the high quality, guaranteed fountain pen and mechanical pencil sets was received Monday by The Wayne News to meet the increasing demand of persons wishing to take advantage of the News' premium offer.

The demand of both old and new subscribers has been so great that a second order for these sets was necessary. The News adopted this plan of giving its premium direct to the subscriber in the form of these useful sets, purchased from the manufacturers through a special contract, instead of staging a costly campaign in which the subscriber fails to share in the benefits and premiums.

18 Scouts Group Makes Trip To Camp Wilderness

Eighteen members of the Wayne Boy Scout troop, No. 174 and their scoutmaster, Rev. J. A. Whitman, went to Camp Wilderness near Fremont, Monday for a five day camping trip.

The camp is located about seven and one-half miles southwest of Fremont and was built especially for Nebraska scouts. The land was donated to the organization by Max Miller of the Miller Cornflake's Company and is equipped with an administration building, hospital, warehouse, kitchens, and dining rooms.

A new swimming pool, fed by spring water piped to the pool, is the second largest in the state.

Into Three Patrols

The eighteen boys from Wayne were divided into three patrols, each with a patrol leader. The three leaders were Harold Johnson, Bob Haas and Chubby Wedge. These scouts also served as life guards for their own patrol.

All preparations for the trip were made beforehand with each patrol making out a menu and each boy bringing a certain amount of food. He also furnished his own bedding. The cooking, cleaning and general work was done by the boys, each one having different tasks to perform each day.

The Fremont Scout troop was also at the camp and the days were filled with pranks the two troops played on each other. A three layer chocolate cake was the premium of a raid made on the Fremont camp Thursday night.

The boys returned home Friday evening. Scouters from Wayne who went on the trip are Bob Birdsall, Fred Potras, Bud Harder, Jim Strahan, Harold Johnson, Bob Haas, Tommy Johnson, Bobby Okblom, Bob Wright, Don Boyce, "Chubby" Wedge, Johnny and Bob Elnung, Paul Peterson, Buddy McNatt, Gordon Johnson and Howard and Richard Sala.

Most rural schools in this county will open August 28.

Drought Hoppers Take Toll

Crop Loss Claims Filed; Sign Wheat Plan

Drought appears to be the greatest single enemy of the wheat crop in Wayne county.

This is the principal cause of losses now being reported by growers who insured their 1939 wheat crop under the Federal crop insurance program, Thomas P. Roberts, county agricultural conservation committee member in charge of crop insurance, said today.

To date four of the Wayne growers have put in claims for losses, according to Mr. Roberts. The adjustment reports show that drought is listed as the principal cause of loss in all cases, thus making it the most damaging hazard faced by the 1939 crop.

The other hazard that took a toll from the 1939 production in the county was grasshoppers.

Under the wheat insurance program, growers can protect up to 75 percent of their average yield against loss from all unavoidable hazards.

Signing Wheat Plans Farmers of Wayne county will have an opportunity in the next few weeks to sign the "Wheat Plan for Participation in 1940", indicating whether or not they plan to participate in the 1940 AAA wheat program.

A farm program representative is going into the field with these plans, according to Herman J. Podoll, chairman of the county Agricultural Conservation committee.

By signing the form, which is similar to the farm plan used for the 1939 program last spring, the farmer indicates that he intends to participate in the 1940 wheat program by planting within the acreage allotment for his farm.

Only by signing the wheat plan can a farmer become eligible for a 1940 parity payment on wheat. Unless the form is signed, the farm will not be checked for compliance with the parity payment program next year, Mr. Podoll points out.

Insurance Available At the same time that they are circulating wheat plans, the crop insurance representative is selling crop insurance, which is available to all wheat growers of the county under the improved 1940 crop insurance program.

A farmer who begins to plant wheat on his farm without having signed these forms forfeits his opportunity to sign either of them, Mr. Podoll pointed out.

City School May Open On Sept. 26

Work Speeded; Teaching Staff Completed

Although date for the opening of the fall term at the Wayne City schools is still indefinite, contractors have been urged to make every effort to have the top two floors of the old building, which is being remodeled, ready for occupancy before Sept. 26.

Whenever that portion of the building is completed, classes will be held there, pending completion of the remainder of the structure, according to Superintendent Frank Thorpe.

While teachers and pupils will be handicapped in some respects by this crowded arrangement, it is essential to get classes started with the minimum of delay. However, some officials indicated that it is unlikely sufficient progress will be made to open school before the first of October despite the fact that work has been speeded in recent weeks.

Staff Completed With the employment of Austin Cramer of Red Cloud as music instructor, the teaching staff for the coming year has been completed unless additional resignations should be received prior to the opening date.

Mr. Cramer, who was selected for the post here after the school board considered the many applicants for the position, has a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Music education from Nebraska Wesleyan university, where he was a member of the class of 1934. He majored in trumpet, voice and violin were his minors. Mr. Cramer also attended the summer session at Columbia University in 1937.

Since being graduated, he has served as music instructor of Pierce High school from 1934 to 1938 and as instrumental and vocal instructor in Plymouth, Mass. high school the past year. He was student director of the Nebraska Wesleyan Men's glee club on its tour in 1932 and 1934 and director of the Plymouth Men's glee club in 1938 and '39. He is also a member of the Handel-Haydn Choral society of Boston.

Wire Being Strung For REA Lines

Right-Of-Way Given; Interest In Project Grows

The work of stringing wire for the REA project in Wayne county got underway Monday with workmen working west from a point two miles west of Winside.

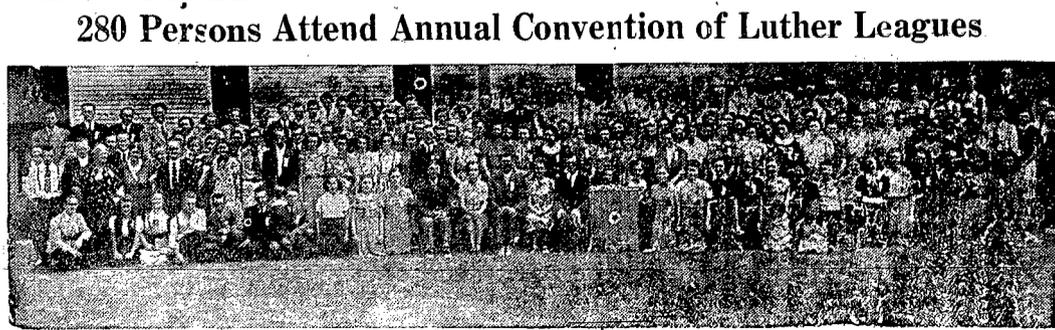

As soon as this section of the project is completed, crews will begin stringing the wire on the east section. All necessary right-of-way to complete the first county project has been obtained. As the REA allows no funds for the purchase or leasing of such right-of-way, agreements were obtained only through the co-operation of the farmers.

Henry Moeding expressed his appreciation of the excellent co-operation he has received from the farmers in obtaining this right-of-way.

Although many inquiries have been received from farmers about the second allotment, funds for which are being sought from the government, no word from Washington has been received. That many farmers living in the area which would be covered are interested is shown by the number of inquiries.

Kiwanis Club Has Meeting

Kiwanis club met at noon Monday. Rev. J. A. Whitman, scoutmaster of the local Boy Scout troop, gave an interesting talk on the Boy Scout camping trip which he and eighteen of his boys enjoyed last week at Camp Wilderness near Fremont.

years of age on April 1 of the calendar year in which they enter the Naval Academy, and, in the case of the Military Academy, be not less than 17 years of age or more than 22 years of age. Candidates for the Military Academy become ineligible for admission upon the day they become 22 years of age.

Eligible candidates must, also, have graduated from high school or be assured of graduation not later than the spring of 1940.

FBI Strives to Sever Gangland's Political Ties

"LOCAL political corruption dots America from Atlantic to Pacific, grasping impartially large town and small," declares J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in a plain-spoken article, "Streamlining Justice," written in conjunction with Courtney Ryley Cooper in the September issue of Cosmopolitan.

"The amazing interlock of crime and corrupt politics," Hoover writes, "which came to the knowledge of the FBI in the investigation of what the average citizen believes to be ordinary criminal cases, was horrifying to Frank Murphy, Attorney General of the United States, when he took office last January. Attorney General Murphy instituted his "spine-and-spine" program and the result has been magical. Justice has been materially speeded up and rendered more efficient. Numerous communities, given new strength against corrupt domination have announced plans for housecleanings.

Many instances—brought to the attention of Mr. Murphy—were matters which the Department of Justice could not solve or remedy, because they were outside its jurisdiction. Hoover says, "Citizens who are being robbed by venal politics must face the facts. The other fellow can't help you unless you help yourself. Your city, your county and your state government will be only as good as you fight to make them," he declares.

"Persistent, big-time crime simply cannot exist without the aid of corruption; this is its heart and soul. If your city has a high crime rate, if there is gambling, widespread prostitution, graft; if there are lapsed elections due to assessments on city employees, merchants and the underworld, then you have corruption and you must fight it by home methods or by never-ceasing vigilance for evidences of Federal infraction."

High school graduates who have also completed one or more years of college or university work, will find the additional academic preparation of considerable value in meeting entrance tests and in pursuing the training following admission to either academy.

I shall make the nominations on a purely competitive basis and the preliminary competition will be initiated by a congressional designation examination conducted by the United States Civil Service commission on October 7, 1939. This is not an admission examination, but solely an examination to determine the comparative qualifications of candidates for the purpose of enabling me to make nominations of principals and alternates on the basis of the comparative qualifications disclosed by the examination. The nominees for admission will subsequently be called upon to present themselves for physical and mental tests precedent to actual admission.

At all times between now and September 10, 1939, but not later than September 10, 1939, I shall be glad to receive the written applications of young men who possess the above mentioned qualifications coupled with a desire to enter the Naval Academy or the Military Academy, as the case may be. The initial application will be for admission to the competitive Congressional Designation Examination and each applicant should definitely state the academy of his choice.

All applications and requests for further information should be addressed to me at 1017 House Office Building, Washington, D. C. Karl Stefan, M. C., Washington, D. C., August 19, 1939.

Mrs. E. H. Merchant and son, Robert, and Mrs. Leota Senter returned home Saturday after spending three weeks visiting relatives and friends in Seattle, Washington and Portland, Oregon. They visited Cooley Dam located about midway between Portland and Seattle and many other places of interest.

Business Shows Upturn

While local business, dependent as it always is in this section of the state on the condition of the crops in the immediate vicinity isn't particularly rushing, it is cheering to see that business in the country as a whole is showing a steady increase.

Figures compiled by financial newspapers during recent months have reflected a definite upturn and had the President's self-liquidating lending program been passed by congress, it would have been even more pronounced. Just what the effects of the defeat of this important recovery legislation will be remains for time to reveal. It will probably slow the recovery movement to an extent but the fact remains that the country has made major strides from depression lows under the guidance of the present administration.

Ample proof of a definite upward trend has been supplied throughout the country, but there remains many, who, seeking to belittle the administration for political purposes, stubbornly close their eyes to progress. They paint gloomy word pictures about the disaster which is to result from the recovery spending. In fact, if memory serves us correctly, they predicted years ago that this country would be stranded on financial rocks long before the present time. But, disaster is still coming, these gloomy prophets warn, unless, of course, they hasten to add, the present administration is retired from office and their own favorite candidates take over the job.

They insist that economy should be practiced and heavy spending ended. The very vital question, however, is just what spending would they eliminate. Would relief and work checks, which claim a heavy percentage of the treasury's expenditures, be eliminated or drastically reduced and would farm aid be halted. These are important questions left unanswered by the critics.

They would cut expenditures by eliminating extravagance in federal spending and again they fail to explain where and how. Naturally, they are afraid of offending one group or another of those who are being helped by the government; these groups represent votes. The critics could make good use of the votes so they try to ride the fence, promising on one hand that payments to these voters will not be reduced and declaring on the other hand that economy will be rigidly practiced.

The American people are not so easily misled. The vast majority are vitally concerned at the mounting national debt but they are also aware that relief must continue until private industry is able to absorb a large percentage of the unemployed. It is encouraging then to note that private industry is showing gains which revive hopes of a solution to this difficult problem in the near future.

Progress is being made on the road out and until the critics are able to frame a program which will include specific plans rather than generalities which mean nothing—a plan which will stimulate rather than halt recovery—the American people are not going to gamble their progress uphill for the promises of fence riding, ambitious critics.

Fair Time Near

Fair time is rapidly approaching with the Dixon county fair, which will held at Concord, first on the list in this particular section of Nebraska. The Dixon fair is scheduled to open for three big days on August 23.

Majority of the other counties in this area have their fairs slated for September with the Wayne county event scheduled for September 6 to 9.

Some will tell you that the day of the fair has ended; that interest is far less keen in these annual events than in former years. That is undoubtedly true of many county fairs, but other counties have been able to retain interest by giving the people the type and variety of entertainment which they desire. The county fair has won a place which no other type of festival will be able to replace and certainly should not be abandoned.

It has made a distinct contribution to the improvement of agriculture through providing well deserved recognition for the farmer and stockmen who produce superior crops and livestock. It has stimulated pride in their work and a certain amount of pride is good for the best of men.

The fair also may be credited with leading to better community spirit and a closer relationship between city, town and rural residents. It occupies its own place in dominantly agricultural communities. True, it fuses greater competition in the amusement world than previously but if properly managed and publicized it can and should remain a major event.

National Industries Weekly Review

The Nation's Leading Letter by J. E. Jones, Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., August 21—Long lists of legislation that was proposed to the congress at its recent session are listed by the newspapers and correspondents. The lists show some substantial victories for the President, including the appropriations he asked for his defense program, the reorganization of government, and a continuance of his monetary authority and the 2 billion dollar stabilization fund.

It was the greatest spending congress on record.

Congress also grabbed off a lot of the money that in former times would have been given to the President, and they blew it in their own way. They gained victories for themselves, but they didn't do the taxpayers any good, so there isn't very much for anybody to crow about, even though congress decided to "keep us out of war" by defeating the neutrality bill that the President said was so essential if we were to remain out of the forthcoming fight.

After the political fogs in Washington, what's next?

A national discussion of the issues that were so bitterly fought in the battles between the President and congress is needed.

From Farm To Auto Factory

"Well, Ma, while you're finishing up your chores, I guess I'll go over to the north '40' and cultivate that crop for next year's automobile production."

Sounds as if Farmer Jones might be a bit "teched" by the heat of the noonday sun. But don't jump at any hasty conclusion. For such imagined discourse isn't so far-fetched.

Few realize how much of the material in their cars is grown on farms. In recent years a great many industrial uses for farm products have come out of research laboratories, opening up new markets for farmers and products of industry. Here are just a few examples of the uses General Motors makes of farm products:

Cotton is used in making lacquers, plastics, tires, upholstery, artificial leather, electrical insulation, safety glass, felt.

From corn comes adhesives, textile sizing, alcohol, molded plastics . . . corn stalks make fiber board. Sugar cane furnishes alcohol and insulating material.

Flax yields linseed oil for paints, soap, and foundry core oil. Goat hair makes mohair for upholstery.

Hides mean leather for belting, upholstery, and many other uses. And the science of chemistry—of adapting farm products for industrial use—is still in its infancy. New uses are being developed constantly and the many crops so carefully tended by the Nation's more than 6,000,000 farmers promise still more new materials for men to work with, not just to eat or drink or wear.

Party lines in congress crumbled, crashed and divided in the last days of the past session. Ordinarily at the close of congress there are major moves made by leaders to restore harmony and patch things up. It was different this time. Lewis's attack upon Vice-President Garner, and the widespread speculation over a possible rift between President Roosevelt and Mr. Farley are straws in the wind that may swing state delegations in 1940. Conservative and New Deal democrats are headed in different directions.

The republican situation is not such a complicated tangle because republicans are a minority party. They are "fishing" for ideas and a definite program—in fact most anything to find a way to win.

More Trouble For Banks

The bankers of the country still "take it" and try to like it as the government at Washington tells them how to conduct the details of their business. Banks everywhere are loaded down with government securities—they say they must take them, whether they want them or not.

Perhaps it is not overly important but it is interesting news that the National Labor Relations Board has ruled against a San Francisco bank which laid off an employe because he was a member of a labor union, and very noisy about it. NLRB ordered him reinstated. The bank appeals to the courts and will make a test case of the charge that it violated the National Labor Act.

Public Is Not Narrow-Minded

One day last spring Marian Anderson swelled her voice as she sang to nearly 100 thousand listeners at the Lincoln Memorial. She is a negro blessed with remarkable talent. The white people took the matter philosophically and when it was found that the occasion did not arouse race prejudice you will recall that Miss Anderson was called upon to sing before the King and Queen of Great Britain at the White House.

These are the three general classifications into which all persons naturally fall, according to one analyst. But he goes on to admit that some individuals combine qualities from two or even three groups. "Then, too," he says, "it is possible for the natural-born thinker-upper to bend and warp himself into a getter-thinker-upper. However, the effort required is frequently clear out of proportion to the results obtained and almost invariably these results are way below those that could have been obtained had the efforts been spent in the direction of natural inclination".

Ralph L. Lee, among whose duties with General Motors it is to address supervisory and other groups both within and without the corporation, also has expressed the conviction that many persons spend a life of bitter disappointment as a result of their failure to classify themselves or, having done so, aspire to position or accomplishment for which they are not naturally fitted.

Without belittling the value of training for leadership, Mr. Lee believes that the "something which differentiates potential leaders from potential followers is an attitude toward other people". In this connection he suggests a few excellent qualifications as being essential to effective leadership:

A respect for the limitations of people.

A respect for the hidden or potential abilities of other people.

A respect for the pride of others.

Freedom from self-consciousness.

Sincerity.

An effective leader must be wrong sometimes and admit it.

Mr. Lee's conclusion—"A leader must be a servant of his followers"—gives it to you in a nutshell.

Same Old Laws.

The wage hour law has not created as much disturbance in the major industries as was anticipated at the time of its passage.

Several needful amendments before the house and senate labor committees were pigeon-holed. Too bad!

Tax revision will be tackled in earnest next winter. What congress will invent for tax revision is a big question for a small bunch of politicians, with conflicting ideas.

Bad laws are hardest to change. That's why there was so many "same old laws".

Three Legs

"There is one thing that stands out crystal clear", says the wise Charles F. Kettering. He adds: "We can't get out of the productivity of any unit of industry more than we put in but we can do this—we can put more in, and if we put more in, then we get more out of it". This wizard of the automobile industry says that the three legs upon which the automobile depends are steel, rubber and petroleum.

Why Sock The Motorist?

Highway users taxes made direct contributions to state treasuries in the fiscal year of 1938 totaled $1,177,010,000, according to the official statement of the United States Public Road Administration. State gasoline taxes accounted for $771,764,000, motor vehicle fees were $388,825,000, and motor carriers taxes brought in $16,421,000. These funds were distributed for state highway purposes, streets and roads, parks and forests. There was an expenditure of $158,284,000, that went to relief, education and general funds. The government bulletin did not indicate how much of this sum was a "diversion" of highway taxes.

But the Automobile Manufacturers Association claims that up somewhat with statistics showing that "one out of every eight automobile tax dollars is used for non-highway purposes". The same source shows the gradual increase of the state tax on gasoline, with Florida, Louisiana and Tennessee charging 7 cents a gallon. Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina and South Carolina tax gasoline 6 cents per gallon. The minimum rate in states is 3 cents in California, Connecticut, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, New Jersey, North Dakota and Rhode Island.

The story of taxes on the big business of highways shows such tremendous totals as to bring them in a competitive class with the rates imposed upon liquor and cigarettes. Why should automobiles be taxed in that proportion?

A Dictator Exposes His Hand

One of the most notorious bluffers on the American continent is President Busch of Bolivia, whose antics have both interested and concerned the big brother USA ever since Bolivia lost its democracy and yielded to the rule of a dictator.

Recent news dispatches have reported Busch's formulas to "bring modern culture to the Indians"—which carries us back to the night that we say the great actress, Maude Adams, step to the front of the stage and ask her audience: "Do you believe in fairies", and everyone of us answered in the affirmative.

Dictator Colonel Busch is taking other rabbits out of his hat. He has a pipe-dream about pipelines to Germany. It won't go direct, but he has a way to hook-up with another South American country and pump oil that legally and morally belongs to American oil companies to the coast and ship it to Germany.

The Bank of Bolivia has been officially declared a monopoly as sole foreign brokerage agent of tin exports. Bolivia is a very important producer of tin. This resource has been supplemented by confiscated American oil properties which furnished the big Busch fresh visions of getting all the money (or more) than any small country could ever dream of. Heretofore, he has had difficulty in selling the oil that came within his light-fingered grasp. But difficulties are supposed to create only a temporary pause in Bolivia.

The sequel is found in the Bolivia government's announcement early this month of a new trade agreement with Germany. Under this bargain with the Nazis the Bolivia Bank will receive aski marks, which is the new wild-cat trade currency of the Hitler government. Bolivia will in turn force its own business men and industries to take these green-goods tokens and buy German merchandise with it. That leaves Uncle Sam way-out on the end-of-the-limb.

The whole affair is about as brazen a violation of the Good Neighbor Policy as has been flaunted before the American Republics up to date. But this trading accord was made at La Paz, the Capital of Bolivia, by two direct representatives of the German Foreign ministry, and after they negotiated the agreement they left for Lima to try to sell a similar trade swindle to Peru.

How anybody can refrain from feeling disturbed about dictator trends in the Western Hemisphere is, un-understandable.

What's To Be Done About It?

Congress began making laws against trust and monopolies in the gay nineties—and that was a long time ago. In the past thirty years the law books have been made thicker and thicker so that the laws about trusts and monopolies would all be handy for lawyers to thumb through.

The Department of Justice, Federal Trade Commission, the Security Exchange Commission, and other Federal agencies with names galore, have been given statutory powers over monopolies, and everything! How far afield they can go has been shown by indictment of leaders in private industries and professions, in recent months.

What Editors Say---

Melon Patch Death

One fourteen year old Brookings, S. D., high school boy was killed instantly, another was wounded and the farmer in whose melon patch the youths were at the time they were shot in is custody. It is all so regrettable and so uncalled for; and probably no one regrets it more than the man who did the shooting, unless it be the members of the slain youth's family.

It is quite likely that watermelon patches have been despoiled ever since melons were first planted. Mostly the raids are made by youngsters, as much for a lark as for the melons and it is true that some of them commit vandalism, maliciously destroying fruit. Such things must of course result in exasperating the farmer, who may depend to a certain extent on his melons for cash income.

But however great his indignation, the owner is not justified in shooting down boys, who may be doing no more than he did when he was their age. Human life is too sacred to be sacrificed in this manner, and it is hoped that the man who did the shooting is made to realize this fact. The boys were committing an unlawful act in going upon his land and taking his property, and they should have been apprehended and punished. But the man who killed one of them and wounded another committed a far greater offense.—Lincoln Star.

The Pudding, Too, Will Depend on the Taste

By next January, we will know. The president's plan for a huge spending program has been rejected by a congress which believes it correctly understands that the people of the country demand a brake on spending.

Of course, this same congress pushed farm appropriations to a new high. And the deficit for the current year will probably be tops. Nevertheless the principle has been established. Those who have felt that congress should reassert itself, and halt the presidential philosophy of pump-priming as such, have had their way.

Business has been forging its way gradually upward throughout the year, and up to the time of the congressional checkmate, had been making steady progress toward a level that promised a year perhaps 70 per cent above 1938.

Those who have been demanding encouragement to business in the form of some sort of brakes on the spending program, some sort of rebuke to the New Deal attitude toward business recovery, have had it. The pudding for this year has been cooked.

How will it taste? That will be the proof of the pudding.

Will the budding business revival continue? Will the slowly-increasing employment rolls and the slowly declining unemployment list absorb those who have been taken off WPA? Will timid capital, encouraged at last by having gotten what it wanted in the form of a "turn of the spending tide," now rush into the breach? Will people furloughed and otherwise removed from WPA rolls make the expected effort to get jobs and will there be any jobs for them to get?

All economists agree that at least a billion dollars in savings awaits immediate productive investment. We used to invest around eight billions a year, including refundings. Recently it has been nearer three. The money is there. Congress has gone to some lengths to create the mood and the opportunity.

Next January, congress will be back. They will have heard, in the meantime, from their constituents back home. They will have seen at first hand the results of the new policy. They will have sampled the pudding.

And on the taste of it will rest the proof, and the recipe for the kind of pudding which congress will be most likely to start cooking next January. If the retrenchment pudding tastes good, the congressional cooks may feel justified in assuming that the country likes it and wants more of the same. If not, Chef Roosevelt may again be asked to provide the recipe which was rejected this year. The proof of this pudding, like that of all puddings, will be in the eating.—Shawnee (Okla.) Star.

Marketing Act Changed

Operation Simplified By Amendments

Should marketing quotas on corn or wheat become effective in Wayne county, administration will be simplified as a result of amendments to the marketing quota provisions passed by the last congress...

The amendments provide that the marketing percentage for wheat and corn be 100 percent of the farm acreage allotment. Farmers who did not exceed their acreage allotments for these commodities would be able to market their entire production without penalty in years when quotas were in effect.

The corn amendment further provides that any referendum on corn marketing quotas be held at the end of September instead of August, as previously provided. Changing of the date makes it possible to use the September crop report instead of the August report for determining a corn marketing quota.

Mr. Podoll pointed out that the corn crop is often materially reduced during August and that in some years a referendum might be held when the September crop report would cancel it. Through this change in dates, the time for announcing the marketing quota will be September 15 instead of August 15, and the date for announcing the results of any corn referendum October 10 instead of September 10.

Farmers who exceed their corn or wheat allotments will be subject to penalty on any corn or wheat they market in excess of their quotas. They may avoid penalty by storing on their farms an amount of corn or wheat equal to the amount which they produced in excess of their quotas.

No marketing quotas will be established unless approved, through referendum, by at least two-thirds of the farmers who would be affected by them.

Weekly Farm Review

By Chester Walters
Wayne County Extension Agent

Warning!

A great deal of care should be taken to avoid loss of livestock caused by unused grasshopper poison. If there is a sack or two left that wasn't spread, it should be disposed of. The best plan would be to spread it. The sacks used for poison are also dangerous. They should be burned to avoid any possibility of an animal chewing a sack which would carry sufficient arsenic to cause death.

Poisoned bait is still available. We will maintain the poison mixing station until Saturday, Aug. 26. If the amount being used doesn't justify keeping it open for a longer period, it will be closed at that time.

The fact should be remembered, that every hopper which is allowed to complete the season will mean from ten to ninety more hoppers next spring.

Specialist Meets with Wayne Group

Individual practices were held at the auditorium—again on Saturday evening.

Super, Mrs. Carl Peterson, Mrs. Henry Mau, Jr., Mrs. Emil Hogelen, Mrs. Fred Beckman, Mrs. Lawrence Victor, Mrs. Geo. Otte, Mrs. Fred Heier, Jr., Mrs. K. R. Ramsey, Mrs. Gust Johnson, Mrs. Irve Reed, Mrs. Pearl Baird, Mrs. Carlos Martin, Mrs. Otto Fleer, Mrs. Wm. Wylie, Mrs. Lloyd Morris, Mrs. Basil

Osburn, Mrs. Fred Baird, Mrs. F. I. Moses, Mrs. Melvin Larsen, Mrs. E. W. Lundahl, Mrs. T. P. Roberts, Mrs. Geo. Kabisch and Mrs. Lawrence Ring.

Mrs. Carl Peterson and Mrs. Lloyd Morris are in charge of music. Mrs. Lawrence Ring is in charge of general arrangements.

Mr. Gaines will again meet with the Wayne county group on Friday, Aug. 25 at 8 p. m. This meeting will be held in the auditorium at Wayne.

Achievement Day

The "Tasty Cooks" cooking club, the "Blue Ribbon" swine club the "Golden Fleece" lamb club will hold their Achievement Day together. The meeting will be at the Congregational church 3 miles west of Carroll, Thursday, Aug. 24. It will be called at 2 p. m. A program has been planned and everyone interested in 4-H club work is invited to attend.

Mrs. T. P. Roberts, Mrs. C. H. Morris, and Mr. Owen Jenkins are the club leaders.

Leading in Trees

Addressing more than a hundred 4-H club boys and girls and leaders from all corners of the state, attending the annual conservation camp at Seward August 8 to 11, Dr. H. H. Wheeler paid tribute to Nebraska's activity in planting trees.

Dr. Wheeler, who is chief lecturer for the U. S. Forest Service, said Nebraska has done the "best job of planting trees of any state in the plains," and has well earned her name of the "tree planters' state." He pointed out that many fields protected by windbreaks have yielded materially higher than fields nearby which had no protection from hot and drying winds.

Enrollment at this camp, the fifth annual event of its kind, was somewhat larger than last year, according to L. I. Frisbie, state boys and girls club leader.

Good Leases Make Better Farms
The length of the lease has a big effect on arrangements for farm improvements, seedings and conservation practices which produce no immediate income. That is the opinion of Nebraska landlords and tenants as revealed by over two thousand landlord-tenant reports received recently by the Nebraska Agricultural College, Extension Service.

Summaries of these reports are now available at the office of the Wayne Agricultural Extension Agent in the courthouse. The summaries show that legume and grass seedings, tree planting, go-down crops, fallow, resting of permanent pastures and repairs of farm buildings are all affected by the duration of the lease.

Even after the drought years, the old custom of the landlord furnishing the legume or grass seed and the tenant doing the extra work free still prevails in eastern Nebraska. In central and western Nebraska an increasing proportion of the replies indicated the tenant should be paid for his work.

However, replies to the questionnaire indicate that a good continuation clause may be as satisfactory to both landlord and tenant as a lease written for a period of years. And with the protection of such an arrangement, landlords should be willing to make seedings, rest pastures, and do additional work free of charge.

Central and western Nebraska farmers were divided in their opinion about handling go-down crops. From a third to two-fifths of them thought the tenant should be furnished his seed or paid for his work. There is some tendency, although not very marked, to lower rent on wheat after fallow from one-third to one-fourth share to the landlord.

Landlords make the most sacrifice in resting permanent pasture and setting aside restoration land. Therefore, they should have most, if not all, of the ACP practice payments, the majority of reports indicated.

Statewide Sing
For the first time in history of the Nebraska State Fair, Nebraska homemakers from widely separated sections of the state will take part in a big statewide sing on the opening day of the fair.

The event will be held in the 4-H club building at 2 p. m. Sunday, September 3, with a large number of county women's project choruses taking part. Around 250 women will participate in the event. Miss Mary-Ellen Brown, state leader of women's work for the Nebraska Agricultural College Extension Service, will direct the group and mass chorus singing. A number of the choruses will sing special selections.

Feature Extension History
Homemakers from Wayne county who attend the Nebraska State Fair September 3 to 8 will have an opportunity to see the development of women's project work from the very beginning, as portrayed in historical exhibits. Agricultural extension's 25th birthday this year will be featured throughout the home demonstration exhibits, with special pennants and banners calling attention to the event. All the women's project club circulars used as lesson material since the beginning of extension work in Nebraska will be on display.

Farm Facts and Fun
When the "Farm Facts and Fun" radio broadcasts over a special Nebraska network return to the air on Saturday, August 26, two popular features will be included on that first program of the fall and winter season.

Dr. F. L. Duley is to appear on the broadcast on that date to discuss the experimental "right-side-up" farming methods now being studied at the University of Nebraska college of agriculture. He will explain how in the future farmers may seed their wheat without ever turning over the stubble.

The second feature will include a comprehensive discussion of the 4-H club show at the Nebraska state fair. L. I. Frisbie, state 4-H leader, will present the facts about the 4-H exhibit.

Farm Facts and Fun—sponsored by the Nebraska Agricultural college Extension Service in cooperation with Nebraska radio stations is heard every Saturday from 1 until 1:30 p. m. over the following stations: WOW, Omaha; WJAG, Norfolk; KGFV, Kearney; KMMJ, Grand Island; KGNF, North Platte.

Circular on Silage
A new emergency circular on harvesting, storing and feeding silage is now available free at the Wayne county Farm Bureau office in the courthouse.

This circular was prepared jointly by several departments at the University of Nebraska college of agriculture, primarily to answer a large number of questions from farmers concerning utilization of drought-damaged corn. However, sorghum silage is also discussed in detail.

Different sections of the circular suggest what silage rations should be used for beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep and horses. It advocated particular caution in feeding silage to hogs. Considerable attention is also given to the problem of cutting silage, and to different types of silos. The number is emergency circular 768.

More Interest In Sheep
From every angle, the third annual Nebraska Sheep Day program and sale at the State Fair grounds in Lincoln proved a big success. Once again the growing interest of Nebraska farmers in high quality lamb and wool production was demonstrated.

The crowd of over 500 exceeded advance estimates and overflowed the sale ring. The sweepstakes champion ram, a Shropshire, brought $85.00 to its owner, Fred Feeken of Crete, exceeding last year's top price by five dollars. R. W. Faulkner of Lincoln was the high bidder.

The 99 rams consigned to the sale brought an average of $41.00 or $4. per head more than last year. Indicative of the quality and drawing power of the show is the fact that around one-fourth of the rams went to Kansas buyers. Lee Hester of Arlington was crowned state champion shearer. Prof. M. A. Alexander of the University of Nebraska college of agriculture, who is secretary of the Nebraska Registered Sheep breeders, announced the show and sale will be held again the first Friday in August next year.

Fairs Encourage Progress
County fairs and other livestock shows are an excellent place for the individual farmer to check up on his standards and his progress in breeding better animals, Wayne County Agricultural Agent Chester Walters observes.

He cited a comment which came to him this week from Prof. Wm. J. Loeffel, acting chairman of animal husbandry at the University of Nebraska college of agriculture.

In 1903 the University of Nebraska exhibited Challenger, the grand champion steer at the International livestock show in Chicago. This steer, which weighed some 1,800 pounds, was mounted and proudly exhibited at the St. Louis World's fair the following year.

By the late 1920's cattle breeders and feeders had made so much progress that the apologies and excuses were in order for the steer that had been the last work in his day, Prof. Loeffel points out.

The department chairman commented to me that twenty years ago most cattle were marketed as three-to-five year olds, while today the yearling is the accepted come in cattle production. As recently as five years ago bacon was one of the most popular pork cuts and lard brought satisfactory prices. Today, due to improvements in ham curing methods, hams and picnic shoulders have tremendously increased in popularity and bacon has become a "problem child" to the pork packer, while lard is a real headache.

County fairs and particularly the livestock shows offer one of the best opportunities for a livestock producer to keep abreast of the times — to check up his own stock against the best his neighbors have to offer, even though he may not agree with every official placing. And when all is said and done, perhaps the most valuable feature of the livestock show is the opportunity for fellowship, for hubbing shoulders with the other fellow, and for swapping experiences to the mutual benefit of all concerned.

Speedy Planting Protects Trees

Large Number of Trees Survive Many Hazards

Efficiency in planting in the field windbreaks of the Prairie States Forestry Project has aided a high survival of trees in spite of drought, grasshoppers, jack rabbits, and other hazards of the prairie plains, the Forest Service of the Federal Department of Agriculture reports.

Under approved procedure, the roots of the young trees are not exposed to the air for more than 90 seconds from the time they are dug from nursery beds or river bottoms until they stand in the windbreaks. Although every care is taken of the young trees, high-speed planting has been maintained.

At the nurseries, the little trees are packed and wrapped so that their roots are guarded from injury by wind and sun. When the trees arrive in the field, they are unpacked by W. P. A. workers under supervision of trained foresters. The young trees are placed roots down in tin or wooden carriers and the roots covered with water or mud or both.

Trees are not watered at planting time nor afterward and must depend upon soil moisture and future rains if they are to survive. For this reason the trees are all grown from seed collected locally, so that they inherit their capacity to withstand plains environment. It has been found, the Forest Service explains, that trees develop capacities for survival in a given environment and transmit these capacities through the seed.

More than 42,000,000 trees in 4,500 miles of new windbreaks were planted in 1939. Plantings since 1935 total more than 127,000,000 trees in over 11,000 miles of field windbreaks on 20,000 farms in eastern counties of the Dakotas, central Kansas and Oklahoma, central and western Nebraska and Texas Panhandle.

Silt Rate Increases in Historic York River

This historic York River of Virginia is an example of the way in which too much land in clean cultivated crops, and land worn out and abandoned because of too much row cropping, may increase sedimentation in a stream. Sediment has been accumulating in the York river during the last 27 years at a rate five times as great as during the preceding 57-year period, the Soil Conservation Service finds.

Carl Brown, geologist in charge of the studies, says this sedimentation is the result of increased erosion on the slopes draining into the headwaters of the river—slopes on which in recent years there has been an increase in land either in clean-cultivated crops or abandoned because of too much row-crop farming.

A comparison of navigation charts prepared by the Coast and Geodetic Survey indicating water depths on the stream in 1857 and 1911 shows that during that 54-year period approximately 5,600 acre-feet of the soil from the watershed settled as sediment in the York River estuary. Sediment accumulated at the rate of more than 100 acre-feet a year. From 1911 to 1938, when scientists of the Service made soundings to determine the extent of accumulation, 15,293 acre-feet—566 acre-feet a year—lodged in the river bed.

In determining the amount and rate of accumulation, the surveyors took water depths at the same points along the river at which measurements were made in 1911.

Shower Saturday Totals .21 Inch

Another shower Saturday night added .21 of an inch of moisture to Wayne's total for the month of August. The shower brought a brief break in the temperature and was accompanied by a strong wind. The downpour extended over a considerable area between Wayne and Omaha.
