Ted Hook was elected temporary charman of the organization and Russell Bartels, Wayne attorney, was appointed temporary secretary. Mr. Hook was authorized by the unanimous vote of those attending to name a committee of 15 to 20 members which would draw up proposed by-laws and a tentative budget. This committee was also authorized to solicit members for the Chamber of Commerce and pledges of funds from these prospective members, which would include all business and professional men, citizens of Wayne and farmers, who are interested in the future of this city and the trade territory which it serves.

Unanimously Adopted
The motion to organize, which was made by Dr. J. T. Anderson, president of Wayne State Teachers college, was unanimously adopted after an excellent and informative address by Leo Dailey, secretary of the Sioux City Chamber of Commerce, and talks by Russell Largon, Ted Hook and Bill Goryell, who investigated the methods and accomplishments of similar organizations in Iowa towns about the size of Wayne.

The response was unanimous.

It was emphasized at the meeting that the Chamber of Commerce, if tentative plans for its organization continue to develop as now indicated, should have the support of virtually every business and professional man in Wayne. It will be open to all to participate and each member will have an equal voice in the manner in which it operates. Its success will depend largely on the number who co-operate.

Wayne should be the amusement and entertainment center of northeastern Nebraska as well as its trading center. As such it has a year-round obligation to provide entertainment opportunities on holidays.

The Wayne Men's club and the Kiwanis club are luifilling that obligation this Yuletide season in a manner which should do credit to both organizations and the city, if advance preparations are indicative. Four outstanding programs have been arranged by the committee in charge at a minimum of expense, the type of entertainment considered.

Outstanding among the attractions booked for the entertainment of Waynettes and their guests during the holiday season will be the first of the series of programs, slated for Wednesday, Dec. 13, and to be staged in the City Auditorium. The popular WOW Oshkosh entertainers, six men headed by Lyle DeMoss, will present a program of music and fun. Arrangements to obtain this popular attraction were made by Larry Brown.

Second of the pre-Christmas programs will be the big Santa Claus parade on Tuesday, December 19. Mr. Anderson will bring his ponics here and old Santa has promised to pay this city a visit on that day and be its honored guest in a big parade in which the Wayne college band, directed by Prof. John R. Keith, will participate. It will be a big day for the kiddies, who will not only get an opportunity to advise Santa of their Christmas hopes but also will receive bags of candy. Rural schools in the district are being requested to dismiss classes on that date so all the children may join in the fun.

"The Messiah", famous oratorio, will be presented at the auditorium Sunday evening, December 17, with the Kiwanians as sponsors. Prof. Keith and Prof. Russel Anderson are in charge, which guarantees the funcess of this program.

Children will find Wayne is their Santa Claus headquarters again on Saturday, Dec. 23, when a special program, prepared for their enjoyment, will be staged.

In addition to all these Christmas attractions, the Wayne Herald is sponsoring the presentio

A Year Older

The Wayne News has a new volume number today. It is beginning its fifty sixth year of service to Wayne and its large tradeserritory.

ginning its fifty-sixth year of service to Waync and its large trade territory.

During that span of years, a score of publishers have managed. The News, but they have only managed it; The News has been theirs only in the sense that they have been its custodians and when they left the paper has gone on, serving its subscribers, its advertisers and the citizens of northeastern Nebraska.

So it is with every newspaper which really strives to fill its role as a public servant. The publishers are not in reality the owners; they are custodians for a time because any newspaper, which is worthy of the rame, lives on long after the publisher is forgotten. Its policies may change to some extent with its publishers, but the publisher, who does not regard the paper he edits as really the property of the town and its citizens, is not worthy of the responsibility.

Today, The News rededicates itself to serving this community and city. Unidoubtedly, many mistakes have been made in the past and many more will be made in the future. But, they will be honest mistakes. We will always advocate what we believe is best for the future of this city and its citizens and strive to serve both our readers and advertisers fairly. Because, in reality, The News is their newspaper.

One of the theories of current liberal government has been founded upon the idea that if any class of people want more money than they are able to earn that the government should find some way of lending it to them. have been a good thing inasmuch as the New Deal kept it, and has pump-primed it as a program to supply money to big business, little business, and farmers.

A lot of that money was wasted on "ducks and drakes".

The board of governors of the Federal Reserve System still want it known that it is particularly interested in small business credits. Board member Ernest G. Draper, defines small business as "a small or medium-sized concern which hires 500 or less employes or has total assets of less than 1 million dollars".

To a newspaper man that sounds like big business, but to a New Dealer the definition means all small manufacturing industries "hiring 500 employes or less".

Trade Markets

All United States exporting eyes are pointed southward where our trade flounders, as Europe busy with war, neglects her Latin-American markets.

How to sell more goods to our Latin neighbors, as well as how to buy more of their goods, to the benefit of all, is a common question which has inspired a multitude of varied answers.

Some Washington statesmen believe that the sure, quick way to Latin-American trade is through their loan accounts. "Loan them money in gobs," we are told, "and they'll soon be buying everything they need from us".

Business leaders in foreign trade fields who have watched foreign investments and trade over the years, and who have neither political theories nor programs to support, believe that the loan method is a panacea, not a real cure.

These leaders believe that the one and only way to cure our stagnate trade condition in Latin-America will be for our government to give legitimate United States foreign investments oul states foreign investments it oul states foreign investments it oul states foreign investments it out of the first World war came the Age of Youth's Disil-

Youth Of Today

Out of the first World war came the Age of Youth's Disilinston, the era when bizarre behavior was smart. The twenties was the decade of the flapper, jazz, the cookey pusher and the drug store cowboy. Short skirts, prohibition drinking, late dates and automobile joy rides, caused Viewers with Alarm to shake their heads in the firm belief that the younger generation would come to no good.

A decade has passed since the post-war twenties. Another generation of youth is growing up, and it is entirely possible that the horror of another world-wide war is in its first stages.

If this possibility becomes reality, the time will come when all of up must pick up the pieces and examine the results of this war. But before that time it is interesting to look at the youth of today who will have to face them. It is a reassuring picture. The youth of today is pretty level headed, pretty evenly balanced, and its excesses, whatever they may be, are certainly not the obvious and old farshioned vices that lead to damnation.

A recent survey of American youth showed alcohol to be the least important of its beverages. Tea, on the other hand, is among the most popular. It is not an uncommon sight to see a New York debutante enjoying herself in a night club with nothing stronger than a pot of hot tea. And the dances she likes best are the waltz and the polka. Youth of today lacks false modesty and has substituted in its place self-reliance and an appreciation of bodily health. Tennis and swim ming followed by a piece of cake

Charles F. Kettering, the wizard of the research division of General Motors, and John D. Bliggens, president of the Libbey-Owens-Ford Company are agreed that new process of high-test laminated safety plate glass has been developed scientifically to a point where clarity of vision is combined with greater safety for the passengers. The new glass can "take it". Tests show that a 16-pound bowling ball dropped from a height of six feet hits with a terrific impact but the high-test safety plate glass holds the ball — and the inner layer of the "sandwich" holds the layers of crushed glass together.

A Perfect Sandwich in Glass When Edouard Benedictus the French chemist was sputtering "mon dieu" back in 1903, because of an accident in his laboratory that smashed up some glass he had no idea that his misfortune would play an important part in today's development of high test safety plate glass that is used in the 1940 cars having Fisher bodies.

They call this a glass sandwich, but it has no reference to the glass that once made Cape Cod famous, when the best glass made in America was named after the village of Sandwich, where it was manufactured. The hundreds of village workers found year-round employment in the glass works, and it became a prosperous, happy community, but human-nature must have been about the same then as now, because a few radicals planned to strike. engineers, agronomists, forestens, and soils men in laying out fields for contour farming, strip cropping, basin listing, pasture furrowing, terracing, building of dams, or whatever conservation practices the owner and the district agree are best suited to a particular farm. The district may own special equipment such as graders and tractors for terracing, buildozers, tumble bugs, basin listers, and such other necessary equipment that the average farmer does not have.

A landowner who wishes to have work done on his land will apply to the district supervisors. The supervisors will direct the technical men to make careful surveys of the farm and to work out with the landowner a conservation plan adapted to that farm. In working out this plan, the supervisors of the district and the co-operating landowner will agree to do or provide certain things. The supervisors might ask that a memorandum of these provisions be drawn up so that there will be no misunderstanding.

Where does the district get funds with which to operate?
The district cannot levy taxes, make assessments, or issue bonds against any land within the district. The district will need to operate entirely on funds provided by the federal or state governments or through donations. At the present time these funds are likely to come entirely from federal sources. A portion of this money will come from flood con-

Many Report For Athletic Teams At College

Boys at Wayne State Teachers college are evidently going to take full advantage of the athletic program offered under the direction of Coach Jim Morrison and his aides.

So many answered calls to compete in the various types of athletics offered that the problem now is to find adequate room in which they may practice. A total of 147 reported for intramural basketball, 51 for volley ball, 81 for badminton, 14 for boxing and 12 for tumbling.

The college basketball competition will get underway this tition will get underway this week with the Wildcats still not too well prepared to week with the Wildcats still not too well prepared to meet their initial foes. However, when the league games get underway, the cagers should be hitting their stride and give basketball fans an opportunity to see some fast games this year.
