AMERICAN BOY MAGAZINE COMPANION TO THOUSANDS Hundreds of thousands of boys and young men read THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine every month and consider it more as a living companion than as a magazine.

"It's as much a buddy to me as my neighborhood chum," writes one high school senior. "THE AMERICAN BOY seems to understand a boy's problems and considers them in such a sympathetic and helpful way. It gives advice and entertaining reading on every subject in which a young fellow is interested. It is particularly helpful in sports. I made our school basketball team because of playing tips I read in THE AMERICAN BOY".

Many famous athletes in all sports credit much of their success to helpful suggestions received from sports articles carried in THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine. Virtually every issue offers advice from a famous coach or player. Football, basketball, track, tennis, in fact every major sport is covered in fiction and fact articles. Teachers, librarians, parents and leaders of boys clubs also recommend THE AMERICAN BOY enthusiastically. They have found that as a general rule regular readers of THE AMERICAN BOY advance more rapidly and develop more worthwhile characteristics than do boys who do not read it.

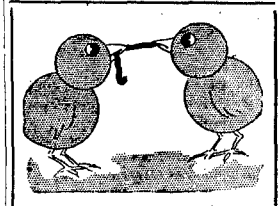

Trained writers and artists, famous coaches and athletes, explorers, scientists and men successful in business and industry join with an experienced staff to produce in THE AMERICAN BOY, the best of reading matter boys like best. THE AMERICAN BOY sells on most newsstands at 20c a copy. Subscription prices are $2.00 for one year or $3.50 for three years. Foreign rates 50c a year extra. To subscribe simply send your name, address and remittance direct to THE AMERICAN BOY, 7430 Second Blvd., Detroit, Michigan.

20 Years Ago

Taken from the files of The Nebraska Democrat, Feb. 5, 1920. There is much sickness in Wayne, mostly flu and grip. It seems to pick on an entire family, and there are many cases where all are in bed at once. To name the victims would be out of the question. We are glad to say, however, that we can learn of no one who is reported in a really critical condition, but many are under the care of the doctors. We hope the blanket of snow has covered the germs and put them to sleep. The hospital is having its share, and is a fine thing for those who can take advantage of its facilities for caring for the sick. At the Evangelical Lutheran church, Wednesday, Feb. 4, 1920, at 1:30 p. m. occurred the marriage of Miss Helen Bichel and Mr. Bernard Meyer, Rev. H. A. Teckhaus officiating. They tell us that land is at the top, but the fellow who refused $525 per acre for a quarter section near Wayne evidently does not think that it is — and he added that they called him foolish when he bought the piece at a couple of hundred per acre not so very long ago.

The Campaign Chorus

Republican candidates for the presidential nomination apparently differ almost as widely from their fellow candidates in their views as they do from the democratic party's stand. A great confusion of opinions has been aired during the past few weeks, all of them obviously phrased in the hope that they would start a stampede toward one hopeful or another.

For example, some will tell you that all the stated objectives of the Roosevelt administration are right but that its methods or machinery are all wrong. Others select various percentages of his program to laud guardedly while condemning other phases, which they believe unpopular. Still others can see little or no good in anything the administration has attempted or accomplished. Writing a platform with any specific planks which will include even the major portion of these widely divergent views is going to require a master mind. It's a strange chorus that is being aired by the many republicans who have tossed their hats in the ring in the hope that they will find a resting place in the White House.

From this great assortment of opinions, let us select the few on which there is more or less agreement. First, most republicans agree with most of the voters that the budget should be balanced as rapidly as possible. The President and democratic administration have no quarrel with that stand. The important thing for candidates to explain is how they would accomplish this. It is not enough to say that they would practice rigid economy, cut the government payroll and (or) eliminate many government agencies.

The American people have a right to know what they will eliminate or drastically reduce. If, they say, too much money is going for relief for the needy, just what agencies would they abolish or how much would they reduce relief payments. If it is farm aid which should be abolished or curtailed, just what phases of this would suffer. Or, perhaps, it is the WPA that should take the cut; to say that this problem should be shifted from the federal government to either the states or communities is not an answer in the sense that it will be less of a burden to the taxpayers. After all, work or relief of some type must be supplied until industry can absorb a greater number of unemployed.

Probably the most foolish argument against the New Deal is that a change in administration would automatically restore the confidence of business, revive industry and abolish unemployment? Would industry place confidence in an administration such as the last previous GOP regime provided, when virtually the only solution to the depression, which was rapidly entering the panic stages as banks throughout the country were crashing, was to ignore it or issue statements assuring the citizens that all was lovely and prosperity was just around the corner?

The people are going to demand a far better program than has thus far been offered before they risk the gains already made to other hands.

This First Milestone

This edition of The News marks the beginning of its second year under our management.

Undoubtedly during the past year many mistakes in judgment have been made and we have failed often to give due credit to those who have contributed to beneficial local projects. They have been honest mistakes, however, as we have tried to advocate those policies and improvements, which we believed would contribute to the growth of both the city and its trade territory and to the happiness, prosperity and well being of its citizens.

We are more confident than ever today that Wayne is marching forward and is destined to grow and progress in the years to come. Despite a serious crop failure, the effects of which are still being felt throughout this city and its large trade territory, Wayne has at least retained the gains it made in previous years and has erected a foundation upon which to build a bigger and a better city in a brighter tomorrow. Indeed, the city's trade territory has been expanded to a marked degree during the past year and road improvements, coupled with the activities of the recently organized Chamber of Commerce, should stimulate this advancement in the future.

Some projects which will benefit the city for years to come have been completed, such as the two school buildings, those erected by Ed Seymour and construction of a few private residences. These, coupled with scores of minor improvements, reflect confidence in Wayne's future.

Probably most important has been the organization of the Chamber of Commerce. Already it has united business firms to a greater degree than in the past, paving the way for co-operative campaigns which are always most effective.

We have tried to play our small role in these various projects and we shall continue to attempt to stimulate and aid every progressive movement which we believe has sufficient merit to warrant support. We have no quarrel with any other publication or individuals striving to serve this territory. We are first and last concerned about those things which contribute to Wayne's future. Undoubtedly some mistakes will continue and we will appreciate constructive criticism at all times, believing that each of us may be of service to the other fellow and that Wayne will benefit most by co-operation among those who are interested in this city's future. Directly or indirectly, all of us will share in the city's successes and failures.

Congratulations to the Boy Scouts, who are celebrating their 30th birthday on Thursday, Feb. 8, the opening of Boy Scout Week. In Wayne and throughout the country, the Boy Scouts are performing a worthy service. It is one of the most effective and popular character-building organizations ever formed. Here, a large share of the credit for the splendid work of the Boy Scouts goes to Carroll Orr, Kenneth N. Parke and the Rev. J. A. Whitman, who recently moved from Wayne. These men have been among the leaders; many others have also given freely of their time and energy. To all of them, the citizens of Wayne owe a vote of appreciation.

Some people will tell you that young men and women of today do not realize the serious step they are taking when they are married. But, if you have ever sold wedding announcements and try to get the necessary information from bride and groom to be, you will note that even the most carefree are almost invariably completely subdued and embarrassed on that particular occasion.

Friday was Ground Hog day. If there was a Ground Hog in Wayne county, and there probably isn't, he would probably have seen his shadow and, according to that old tale, raced back in his hole expecting six more weeks of rough weather. But, throughout most of Nebraska, skies were overcast during the morning, indicating that winter would end soon. So, if the Ground Hog was right and he probably wasn't, Wayne is slated for more rough weather which the rest of the state will escape. Now, figure that one out.

National Industries Weekly Review

The Nation's Leading Letter by J. E. Jones, Washington, D. C.

What Do People Do To Make A Living?

Washington, D. C.—It appears in the annual news review that there are about 187 thousand manufacturing establishments in the United States and that they pay out somewhere around 13 billion dollars in wages and salaries and an additional 38 billion dollars for materials. Then follows terrific struggles to pay a large number of taxes. The value of the manufactured products exceeds 60 billion dollars. The figures may be dry, but they are staggering.

High on the list of industries with the annual value of their products running more than 3 billion dollars each are steel and motors. In the class over 2 billion annually are perfumes, cosmetics and toilet preparations, meat packing, motor bodies and motor vehicle parts. More than 1 billion in value industries are bread and bakery products, electrical machinery and supplies, printing and publishing, boots and shoes, canned and bottled goods, chemical products, yarn and thread, flour and grain-mill products, metals, paints.

That's the way millions of people earn their living. The millions of human beings depend upon their employers, and these employers could not move their machines without their workmen.

"Travel America" in 1940 has been officially endorsed in a proclamation by President Roosevelt, who modernizes and streamlines the old slogan of "See America First" in an official declaration from the White House which urges that "we in the Americas further consolidate our unity by a better knowledge of our own and such others' countries through the instrumentality of travel."

At the front of the movement is the United States Travel Bureau, a setup of the Department of Interior. There have been several meetings of officials to get the travel idea in motion, and to pep up the leaders of travel industry of the United States and Canada. Many of the representatives of interested groups gathered a few days ago in Washington. Among them were the governors of Alaska, Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands, the chief of the Canadian Travel Bureau and various officials and leaders of the automobile and bus industries, railroads, the American steamship lines, travel agencies and airways.

It is not too safe to travel abroad this year. Because of this fact the "Travel America Year" proclamation during 1940 is most timely. With the best highways in the world, and incomparable networks of railroads ready to meet all situations, the officials of the United States Travel Bureau have gone to bat on this position. The American public is told to cherish the thought and cultivate the hope of using the family bus and the commercial vehicles for travel to see our own country during the year 1940. Senator Bailey of North Carolina describes "the economic culture and recreational advantages of travel" as an asset that cannot be over-estimated. Mr. Bailey is the author of a travel bill in the senate, and Representative Lee of California has a similar bill in the house. Congressman Lee told the house that American travelers have spent over 4 hundred million dollars in a single year in traveling in Europe. Apparently those magnificent millions are to be added to the 1940 travel business of the United States. It is a sum not to be sniffed at since it is a substantial need to the domestic situation.

A summary of possibilities issued by the National Park Service indicates that the federal and state government will co-operate in promoting national travel this year. In 1939 the railroads stimulated "circular tours" to the New York and San Francisco World's Fairs. And while that promoted travel by rail it also added to the volume of vacationists and tourists on the highways going East, West, North and South.

Under the theory that dark war clouds have silver linings, with gold trimmings, this travel movement, bedecked as it will be with official approval and encouragement, should make it easy to see more and more of our own country during the coming months.

The Next Reapportionment

President Roosevelt has suggested a solution to the mix-up about reapportionment of representatives in congress. In his letter to the house of representatives Committee on the Census he states that the twentieth amendment of the Constitution which changed the terms of the President and Vice President, and senators and representatives to begin in January, makes it impossible for the President to submit a statement of population to the congress in time to make the reapportionment this year. He suggests that the law be changed so that the President's statement may be sent to the "first regular session of the 77th congress", which will be in January, 1941.

The effect of the change prevents the election of congress on a reapportioned basis in 1940. Therefore, those states that show a gain, or loss, in population will have to wait until the elections of 1942 for a new reapportionment.

In connection with the above it may be said that the general feeling has prevailed in Washington for many years that the membership of the house is already so large that it is clumsy in operation. For that reason the old method of increasing representation at reapportionment-time was abandoned many years ago, and whenever a new line-up is made on the basis of a census some states stand to lose, while others gain.

Thumbs Down On Russia

Congressman Dies and his committee have completely exposed the schemes of the Russians to build up Communism in our country. That is the reason why the house of representatives will continue this committee. Recent personal attacks upon Mr. Dies have not hurt him in the least, inasmuch as the house of representatives has full confidence in his honesty and ability.

The conviction of Earl Browder meets with full approval in the official circles of Washington. Browder never has rated well in the capital.

Anyhow, everything that can possibly be done to show sympathy and support to Finland meets with unanimous approval in Washington.

In Favor Of Home Rule

President L. M. Giannini of the Bank of America, on the Pacific Coast, threatens to convert his banking house into a state institution. He accompanies the threat with the accusation that Secretary Morgenthau has "become more and more arbitrary and vindictive", and has made the troubles with the bank "a personal matter".

Fables Of The Future

Most people will remember the feeling of awe and excitement they experienced, many years ago perhaps, when in the presence of important-looking gentlemen the "cornerstone" of a new building was officially laid. There was a certain thrill in thinking that the cornerstone, and the miscellaneous object, sealed up in it, including as a matter of course that day's local newspaper, would endure for many generations.

The thought is still one to stir the imagination, although somewhat dimmed by the realization that in America most buildings are dismantled, cornerstones and all, and replaced by new buildings with new cornerstones, at relatively frequent intervals.

There was a little of the old feeling of excitement, with a modern touch and a lesson in American progress, for a group of people in Detroit recently. To illustrate the story he wanted to tell, Charles F. Kettering, General Motors research scientist, arranged to have a modern brand-new automobile sealed in a glass case. The sealing was purely symbolic, but illustrated the point he wanted to make just as well as if the car had been sealed up permanently or buried in the ground in a "time capsule".

The story he told was that if we should seal up a new 1940 car in a glass case, theoretically it would be protected from air, dust and other elements, so that it would not depreciate in the least. Fifty years from now—in theory—it would be worth just as much as the day it was sealed up. But actually, if the case should be opened up fifty years hence and the car offered for sale, it would be worthless, except perhaps as a museum piece. The car would have remained the same, but our ideas of what a car should be would have advanced. Future progress would have provided a car so very much better that no one would be in the least interested in purchasing today's car.

How can one help being optimistic in a nation where people look forward in this way toward new and greater accomplishments?

Crowds In The National Capital

Prominent people from states, cities, towns and the crossroads who, in their totals of "prominence" and total numbers must represent every part of the country have stormed the national capital to explain nearly every theory and question that relates to human, economic, political, war, peace, education, national and world affairs. The extent to which they have captured the town is daily revealed by a tour of the leading hotels where one meets the citizens of the Republic.

Of course, most of them have ideas in the back of their heads that they consider important, and they want congress and the administration to know what's what—and what to do about it.

Standing Up For Neutrality

First of all, the United States seeks to be neutral, and for that purpose we have withdrawn our best merchant ships from the best ports, and forbidden them to engage in profitable trade. Great Britain has been taking some of these neutral ships, that are plying in neutral waters, into the War Zones and searched them for mail and articles of merchandise intended to reach the enemy countries.

The United States Department of State has vigorously protested to the British, and that government has been very slow to stop its unneutral trespasses upon our neutral rights. Perhaps the English remember similar circumstances before the World War when they counted on the good nature and forgiving spirit of our government. President Wilson overlooked the violation of our rights and that put an end to the diplomatic breach.

The Chemical Processes

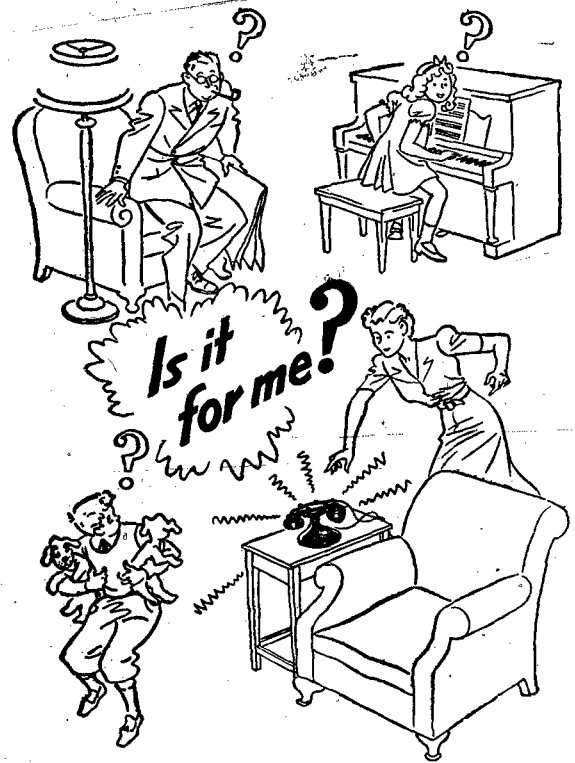

The great chemical factories are making more than 200 thousand products, and most of them are new. Basic raw materials in this manufacturing include carbon, oxygen, hydrogen and nitrogen.

A while ago we ran across a statement made by Dr. C. M. A. Stine, chief of research for the duPont's showing that more than 32 thousand chemists are working in more than 2 thousand American research laboratories, in which they have found that in coal, water and air there are materials from which to make our new fibers, textiles, dyes, perfumes, medicines, plastics. Through laborious and scientific research and changes the chemical industry has modernized their products. They have created great varieties that have increased employment until at present there are 40 million jobs in the chemical industry.

The United States Bureau of Census supplies statistics showing the remarkable increases in the number of workers earning wages in chemical manufacturing regions. Mines, farms, forests, sea and air all add raw materials to the great chemical-process industry.

The forward movement of chemical progress is revealed in the fact that versatile synthetic resins and the semi-synthetic plastics, cellulose, nitrate, cellulose acetate, casein, and soy-bean and certain petroleum distillates have been developed commercially at high speed these past ten years. To a degree they have successfully displaced glass, wood, metal, rubber, bone, paint materials, textiles. Plastics may be roughly classified into the vegetable-fiber group—cotton linters, wood pulp. The synthetic resins are acid or mineral bases. The proteins are casein, soybeans.

Mrs. Max Ellis, formerly Nora Echtenkamp, who underwent a major operation in Los Angeles recently, is reported to be in good condition.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's possibility of Doan's Pills, after many years of worldwide use, must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion is the best endorsement of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under existing laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging back ache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes - feel weak, nervous, all played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won worldwide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor! DOAN'S PILLS

Wildcats Break Deadlock At Halftime To Defeat Wesleyan Cagers, 46-34

Anderson And Childs Lead Offensive

The Wayne State Teachers College Wildcats, who were knocked out of top position in both collegiate conferences the week before last when they dropped a game to the fast stepping Peru Bobcats, found their stride again last Friday to hang up a well earned victory over the Nebraska Wesleyan cagers. The game was played on the Plainsman court and the victory keeps the Wildcats in the race for the title.

Chief credit for the victory goes to two guards, Burton Anderson and Dick Childs, who led a second half assault after the two teams were deadlocked at 18 each at halftime which ended with the Wildcats in possession of the long end of a 46 to 34 score.

Peru Wins
Meanwhile Peru nosed out Doane 45 to 41; Chadron trimmed Kearney, 60 to 43 and Simpson whipped Omaha University, 52 to 35.

In the first half of the Wildcat-Plainsmen battle, the lead changed several times with the Wildcats holding a one point margin when the first quarter ended, 10 to 9. In the second quarter a long flier by Souders tied the winners.

Anderson was also high point man for the entire game, accounting for 15 tallies. Don Glothier, center, was second with a dozen to his credit and Childs' seven gave him third place.

Wayne Prep Cagers Win 8th Straight

Wisner Is Beaten 32 To 25 In Rough Fray

The fast Wayne Prep cagers continued on their victory march, making it nine straight by defeating Wisner Friday, 32 to 25. It was a rough battle throughout as shown by the fact that 31 fouls were called.

The Wayne Prep team was handicapped somewhat by the loss of its ace guard, Heikes, who is battling the flu.

Next Friday and Saturday, the local team will face stiff competition when it invades Schuyler and Bethany. Should the Prep boys win both of these games, they will be rated among the top teams in the state. Next home game for the Prep school is with Plainview here Saturday, Feb. 17. M. Bloss is coach.

Wayne Business Firms Do Their 'Good Turn' For Boy Scout Week

IT'S ALL FREE

No Strings Attached

In appreciation of the many 'good turns' the Wayne Boy Scouts have performed and the high principles upon which scouting serves its members and our country, the business firms of Wayne listed below have arranged to give five Wayne Boy Scouts each a one-year subscription to 'The American Boy' magazine.

When the Boy Scouts of America celebrates its 30th birthday on Thursday, February 8, all of the 1,330,000 Scouts, Cubs and Scout leaders will re-dedicate themselves to the service motive which has characterized the Movement for three decades. Scouting offers adventure, fun and achievement—attractive to all boys—through the democratic life of the Scout Troop and Patrol, as essential ingredients in its character-influencing program for the boys of America. Drawing on the rich experience of the Movement, local and national Scout leaders anticipate the opportunity to serve more boys annually.

The Wayne Scouts and Scoutmasters may select the five lucky boys in any manner they desire and notify The Wayne News of their selections.
