

One of the heaviest snows of the season followed by several of the warmest days in the past six months — that's March in north-eastern Nebraska. The snow was most welcome because of its high moisture content and so was the sunshine and taste of Spring which followed for the good reason that winter had out-stayed its welcome in these parts. Now if March will be as generous with its rain as it was with its snow, this should be a great year in Wayne and neighboring counties. Surely, it's time the Weather Man gave this section of the country a break and all indications are that he is doing just that.

Tonight's the night that wives will gaze longingly at the latest Spring creations displayed in local shops and department stores and hubby will make a vain attempt to keep a firm grip on the family bankroll. But, Hubby will lose as usual and friend wife will blossom forth proudly in the Easter parade wearing just what she wanted. However, husbands get a break tonight, which might more properly be termed a temporary stay, because most of the stores will be closed. At any rate, they'll get a chance to see for what the money is being spent before it has already disappeared or the bills arrive early in April.

Seriously, the Spring Opening program should be a popular one including much free entertainment, plenty of melody, a preview of everything that's new this Spring and even an election. A delegate will be chosen to represent Wayne at the Surprise party convention to nominate one Gracie Allen for the president; it's all in the spirit of good clean wholesome fun from the state of Confusion. They'll be booths on Main street where everyone is urged to register. A total of 79 Wayne merchants have indicated that they will co-operate.

Wayne Prep's basketball team, which was defeated by the strong Winnebago team in the Class B district tourney in Wayne, has no reason to be ashamed of its defeat since the state tourney. The Indians, who won the championship of the district here, also captured the state championship at Lincoln Saturday night when they defeated Minatare in the finals, 23 to 22. In the World Herald's all-tourney team, Guard Neil McCluhan of the Indians was picked on the second best five. All of which indicates that the Prep team was one of the strongest in the state. Incidentally Creighton Prep of Omaha won the Class A title by defeating Lincoln in the finals.

With the primary, April 9, drawing near, Wayne is being visited almost daily by one or more candidates, who always leave a flood of very complimentary literature in their wake. We are still searching for a modest man seeking a political office; there may be such an animal but he's difficult to find.

Most Wayne business men will remember Scotty Anderson, who formerly pounded the pavement in these parts on behalf of advertising in the Nebraska Democrat, now the Wayne News. Scotty, who was probably the best advertising man and promoter who ever wore out shoe leather here, has recently been placed in full charge of the Chicago Tribune advertising service. He confided to us in a letter last week that Wayne is still considered by him as his old home town and that if he can ever spare the time he'll be back to chat with his many business friends here.

Edson Bixby, publisher of the Springfield, Mo., newspapers and formerly managing editor of the Muskogee Phoenix, suffered a fatal heart attack Sunday. Mr. Bixby was our first boss when we entered the newspaper business on the Muskogee (Okla.) Phoenix and as fine a newspaper man and gentleman as you are likely to find. We were the proud possessors of a B.J. from the University of Missouri and thought we knew all the answers. Since then, we have often wondered how he was able to exercise such great patience with our cub efforts, but he was always helpful and encouraging. He deserves all the fine tributes which are now being paid him and a place in journalism's hall of fame.

New Plan For Sewage Plant Probed

Contract — WPA Labor Setup Is Being Considered

Wayne City officials have under consideration a plan to use contract-management, with WPA labor, instead of the ordinary WPA participation on the proposed sewage disposal plant here. The plan was outlined here Friday by E. H. Quinney of Omaha, representative of the Associated General Contractors. It has been used with success in other parts of the state, especially in Omaha, but never been tried in this district.

Plan Described Under the contract management plan outlined to Mayor Martin Ringer and other city officials, bids are taken as on an ordinary contract, the contractors setting their price and posting surety bonds to guarantee completion of the project at that price and within the stipulated time.

In figuring the bid the contractor deducts the amount of labor to be furnished by WPA, which usually is all the common labor plus that skilled labor that happens to be on the certified list.

The labor then is furnished by the WPA, which has a foreman in charge, who acts as a subcontractor for labor only. The contractor furnishes his own equipment, runs the work to suit the needs of the project.

Features Combined The plan combines some of the features of private contract work but also embodies the advantage of the use of WPA labor. According to Mr. Quinney, it avoids waste of labor and materials, provides adequate supervision; results in expediting the completion of the project and gives the city a guarantee of the maximum final cost.

Engineer Joe Reynolds of Omaha, who drew the plans for the plant here, stated that he supervised a plant at Harlan, Iowa, a city slightly larger than Wayne, in less than 90 days under private contract. The plant at Tekamah, built under the ordinary WPA plan, took a year to complete. Mr. Quinney estimates that under the contractor management plan, using WPA labor, the job here would take about five months.

Action on the proposal is expected at a council meeting late this month.

Series Of Stamp Plan Meetings Slated

Another step in the campaign to obtain a seven-county federal stamp plan setup which would include Wayne county is expected to be taken at a series of meetings to be held in Norfolk Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Representatives of the federal food stamp plan will be present to make a survey of the proposed district.

The extension committee of the Wayne Chamber of Commerce, which has been co-operating with other similar civic organizations in the seven counties, will send representatives to several of the sessions and W. H. Swett, executive secretary, will attend all sessions.

Others planning to attend at least part of the meetings from Wayne county include Larry Brown, chairman of the committee, Mrs. Esther Thompson, welfare director, Frank Erxleben, county commissioner, and Henry Ley, treasurer.

Hildebrand Will Address Men's Club, Farmers

Dan Hildebrand of Seward, president of the United States Live Stock Association, will address the Wayne Men's club Wednesday when the members will bring farmers as guests to their 6:30 dinner at Hotel Stratton. Mr. Hildebrand, who was formerly a member of the board of directors of the Omaha branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, is a well known farmer and leader.

J. T. Bressler, jr., is in charge of arrangements.

March Term Of District Court Opens

The March term of district court convened Monday at the courthouse in Wayne, with District Judge Adolph E. Wenke on the bench. Court action was confined to rulings on several motions and the granting of one divorce.

The jury session, which was originally scheduled to open next Monday, was postponed until April 3. However, a jury assignment is now being prepared.

The three cases in which interest in this term of court centered, those of the Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Moede of Altona who are asking damages amounting to a total of $108,041.30, will not be tried at the Spring term, it was announced by court attaches after Monday's session. The cases are those of Beata Moede vs. Anton Pflueger; E. J. Moede vs. George Roggenbach et al and E. J. Moede vs. H. W. Bergt.

Bridge And Road Work Starts Soon

Officials Fear Detours May Not Be Ready In Time

Work on the improvement of Highway 15 north of Wayne and construction of the new bridge there, which will force the closing of the road for several months, will get underway as soon as weather permits, Frank Erxleben, county commissioner, said Saturday.

While it was hoped that the detours for highways No. 35 and No. 15 would be improved before it was necessary to close Highway 15 directly north of Wayne, the bridge contractor is anxious to begin construction work and start work before the detours for No. 15 and No. 35 are graveled. However, that work will be rushed as rapidly as possible, officials indicated.

The detour for Highway 15 will extend two miles west on Seventh street and then north five miles where it will connect with the highway. The detour for No. 35 will extend a mile east on Seventh street and then north to connect with No. 35.

Meanwhile equipment has already been moved in for grading the four miles north of Wayne and contract for hard surfacing the newly graded sector of No. 15 between Wayne and Laurel will be let by the state board at Lincoln April 4. The contract will provide for 13.9 miles of road and will be the same type of surface as was placed on the road from Wayne south.

Most Sections Of Building Are Taken Over

Moving into the new Connell hall addition, a Public Works Administration project, was underway early this week.

Although the grill was not yet ready, other parts of the new building were to be taken over. Mrs. Lutgen, Club Speaker

Citizenship Day Program Is Described

Mrs. S. A. Lutgen explained the purpose of the young people's Citizenship Day to be sponsored by the Woman's club some Sunday afternoon in May and asked the co-operation of the Kiwanians in her talk at their noon luncheon at Hotel Stratton Monday.

The Citizenship Program is being planned to impress upon young men and women past 21 years of age the importance of the ballot and the responsibilities and privileges of citizenship.

Elements Listed "The citizens of tomorrow," Mrs. Lutgen said, "depends upon the types of parents we have today." She went on to list the four important elements of citizenship as home, church, school and community. The home, which she defined as the place where that intangible something is found which makes it the child's center, should teach the child obedience and prepare it for life's work.

In giving the responsibility of the church in citizenship training, Mrs. Lutgen said that two-thirds of the children in the United States have never been inside a church. She said this was an unfortunate situation since children receive inspiration in church to carry them through times of trouble.

Character Builders She quoted a famous educator as saying "Schools are character builders, not grade builders". Schools, Mrs. Lutgen added, are for the purpose of teaching children how to live and how to use tools.

Wayne was blessed by Mrs. Lutgen as an ideal community for teaching children good citizenship. It is the type of community a college town should have.

Judge A. E. Wenke was a guest of the Kiwanians. A new member, William Crossland, was introduced.

Violet Smith, daughter of Axel Smith of Carroll, underwent a major operation at a local hospital Saturday.

Light Vote In Election Here Likely

Official Notice Is Published Interest Slight

Official notice of the city election on April 2 will be found published elsewhere in this edition of The News. Little interest in the campaign has developed since the Citizen's and the People's parties selected their slates of candidates with identical entries for four major offices.

As both parties have nominated candidates, who are well qualified for the offices, the election is not expected to attract a heavy vote. However, it is important that a sufficient number go to the polls to prevent any small faction from dominating the election and to elect the favorite of the majority.

Voters will elect a mayor, city treasurer, city clerk and police magistrate—incumbents in these four cases were nominated by both parties at their annual conventions—councilmen representing the first, second and third wards and two members of the school board. The Citizen's party ticket consists of present officials exclusively while the People's party selected other nominees for all offices except the first four listed.

Voting precincts will be as follows: First ward, City Hall; Second ward, Grace Lutheran church; Third ward, Courthouse. Polls will open at 8 a. m. and close at 8 p. m.

The program has been developed by Prof. Albert G. Carlson of the College Piano department and is sponsored by the K.M.K. Piano club. Students taking part are: Larhyllis Whitmore, Genevieve Lundak, Margaret Haglund, Frances Blezek, Harold Humphreys, Eleanor Gustafson, Eleanor Martin, Helen Schulte, Dolores Nelson, Lela Swenson, Dorothy Zimmerman, Maxine Mills, and Genevieve Dodds.

Proposed Wayne County Soil Conservation District

"The Wayne county soil conservation district, hearing on the proposed organization of which is scheduled for April 3, is shown on the above map. It includes a large section of the five precincts which form the southern boundary of the county and Wilbur precinct, where interest in the project is reported keen. If sufficient support for the plan is demonstrated at the hearing, a referendum will be called by the state committee which will determine definitely whether or not the district is organized. Its organization is believed virtually assured.

Weekly Farm Review

By Chester Walters
Wayne County Extension Agent

Seed Survey

Recently cards were sent to all farmers living in Wayne county. These cards carried an outline of a seed questionnaire and anyone who was interested could fill out the blanks and return it to the Farm Bureau office in Wayne.

A good many of the cards were returned. A wide variety of seed was listed for sale by local farmers. This information has been summarized and mimeographed copies of the information will be mailed to those who returned cards. Extra copies will be available at the Farm Bureau office in Wayne.

Who Is Growing Certified Seed?

Each year the Nebraska Crop Growers association publishes a list of certified seed growers. In all cases, the field in which the seed was produced, was inspected by a representative of the Crop Growers association for variety and purity. The inspection is made during the growing season. The demand for pure seed is increasing each year. The individuals who grow certified seed and have it listed in the crop growers certified list could often sell much more seed than what they actually have for sale.

Anyone who is interested in growing certified seed may secure full particulars at the Farm Bureau office here in Wayne.

The Crop Growers association covers the entire state. Wayne county is represented on the board of directors. Mr. R. F. Roggenbach is a member of the association and one of the six state directors.

Iron In The Diet

One of the most needed nutrients in the diet is iron. Miss Mabel Doremus, extension foods specialist at the Nebraska College of Agriculture, points out. Iron is needed in every body cell and is particularly important in the blood stream. She offers the following suggestions on good sources of iron for American diets, which are traditionally low in this important element.

Rich sources of iron are eggs, lean meats, green leafy vegetables, whole grain cereals and legumes. Liver is richer in iron than are the muscular tissues.

Egg yolks is especially high in iron. This is the time of year when eggs are most abundant and lowest in price.

Wild greens as well as spinach, will soon become plentiful. These green leafy vegetables are rich in iron. Dandelion greens, turnip greens, and kale are valuable iron along with beet tops, Swiss chard, and spinach.

The green outer leaves of cabbage and head lettuce are far richer in iron than the pale inner leaves. Green leaf lettuce, therefore, outranks bleached head lettuce.

Economical sources of iron are the whole grain flours and cereals. More iron is found in these than in the highly refined grain. Dried beans, molasses, sorghum and cane sirup may be added to the group of economical sources of iron and dried fruits may be added too.

Inclusion of iron-rich foods in the spring menu will make sure that individuals in the family are not listless, pale or lacking in appetite from lack of this important mineral, Miss Doremus concludes.

Turkey Production Increasing

With Nebraska turkey production in 1940 apparently headed for a new high record, many growers are considering the possibility of over expansion, Extension Poultryman J. H. Claybaugh pointed out this week.

Last year, Nebraska produced nearly a million turkeys — a 60 per cent increase over the 1938 crop. Total United States production was estimated at around 32 million, or a 22 per cent increase over the preceding year.

With more than 65 million pounds of the 1939 turkey crop in storage, there will be less demand for early hatched, out-of-season turkeys. The storage holdings are expected to effect prices during the summer and early fall. Present low turkey prices and higher feed cost might easily wipe out any margin of profit from many efficient producers. Growers wishing to study production costs may obtain a free copy of Nebraska Turkey Bulletin No. 55-B from the Wayne County Farm Bureau office.

Predictions of a record Nebraska production again this year are based on the following observations:

There is an increase in breeding stock of 10 to 40 per cent. Despite much lower prices, careful growers profited from their 1939 operations. Turkey production fits into many Nebraska farming operations under the AAA program, and has been used as a means of creating jobs for members of the family not otherwise fully employed.

There is a tendency for growers who started with small flocks to increase the size by starting full size brooder house units. Poultry packing houses are offering a minimum guaranteed contract price near the cost of production. And those who promote the sale of poulters on financed plans encourage large rather than small flocks of turkeys.

Blue Ribbon Swine Club Reorganizes

The Blue Ribbon Swine club was reorganized a week ago Saturday evening at the Owen Jenkins home with eight boys and Agricultural Agent Chet Walters present.

Officers elected are: Owen Jenkins, leader; Waldon Smith, assistant leader; Glen Nelsen, president; Irwin Morris, vice president; Merlin Jenkins, secretary; Elden Woods, treasurer; Jack Brockman, news reporter; Howell Roberts, cheer leader. Charles Brockman is an associate member.

The next meeting will be held April 1 at the Herman Brockman home.—Jack Brockman, news reporter.

What About Spring Pasture?

What are we going to do about spring pasture?

That's the question scores of Wayne county farmers are asking these days. And, it is all because throughout most of Nebraska winter wheat and rye may not make sufficient growth to furnish much grazing when spring opens up.

Some information which may help solve the problem, however, is forthcoming from experiences in the Pasture-Forage-Livestock program last year. For instance in southeastern Nebraska, where chinch bugs were an important problem in 1939, farmers in the P-F-L obtained sufficient feed from one acre of oats pasture to carry one cow for an average of 52 days without additional feed. Barley was not used for pasture because of chinch bugs.

In northeastern Nebraska, farmers in the P-F-L program had an average of 22 pasture days from oats and 48 pasture days from barley. In central and southwestern Nebraska, barley apparently excelled oats for pasture carrying capacity last year. One cow could get feed from 11 to 16 days on one acre of barley and from 8 to 10 days on one acre of oats. In western Nebraska, the records again give barley the advantage — 14 days per acre against 9 days per acre for oats.

Agronomists point out, however, that this data represents only one year and may change from year to year. However, farmers are reminded that these two crops — barley and oats — have given early pasture where they are planted early in the spring.

Either crop should be planted as early in March as possible so as to secure pasture in the early spring months. Some grazing was secured from P-F-L co-operators during the latter part of April from March planted oats and barley.

Lamb Market Outlook

Nebraska sheep producers may be supplying more early lambs for the market this year than ever before in the opinion of Walter Tolman, assistant extension livestockman at the University of Nebraska. And more and more Wayne county farmers are becoming interested in producing early lambs.

The Easter rites of the Orthodox Greek church and the Jewish Passover, coming at about the same time, create a special demand for these choice 60 to 70 pound lambs; and the Easter market is usually, the highest of the year. Lambs ready for the Easter market were dropped in November, December and early January and grain fed since they were a week or 10 days old.

Only a small percentage of lambs can be produced early enough and fed well enough to sell for the Easter trade. The next best market is usually in late April, May, or the first ten days of June, between the marketing of fed, old-crop range lambs and the grass-fed, new-crop lambs produced in sections of the country having early pasture. The market at this season averages $1.50 to $2.50 per 100 pounds higher than the summer and fall market.

Lambs selling before June 10 ordinarily have been lambled before March 1, have received plenty of milk from their mothers and almost always grain in addition, and must have been stired by thick-bodied, early-maturing rams.

Crop-feeding early lambs pays since it not only helps get them ready for a favorable market but experiments at the University of Nebraska indicate a bushel of corn or grain sorghum eaten by a lamb will produce 12 pounds additional weight which will sell for double the cost of the grain.

If later lambs can be produced cheaply enough they may be marketed in the fall, even though the market is lower, with an equal profit. Ewes lambing on grass will require less grain than ewes lambing early, and if the summer and fall pasture is very good lambs may be sold off grass without grain and top the market. Lambs, especially larger lambs with considerable wool, will not make as good gains during hot weather as in the cooler spring months. Stomach worms are a parasite which must be kept under control if lambs are to be successfully summer-fed. Rotation of pasture and regular drenching are the best means of stomach worm control.

If summer and fall pastures are at all short or dry, these lambs will need a grain feeding period of 30 to 60 days before market and may consume as much or more grain than spring marketing lambs.

Mrs. Gust Hanks of Carroll was dismissed from a local hospital Saturday where she had been a medical patient since Tuesday.

David E. Johnson of Laurel underwent a minor operation at a local hospital on Tuesday. He was dismissed Thursday.
