

Showers served two excellent purposes here last weekend and Monday, bringing relief from the climbing mercury and adding a bit of surface moisture which was needed following hot winds of a few days ago.

City Tax Levy Cut To 23.1 Mills

Schumaker of the Winside team and Kneifel, Wayne's hurler, were doing a fair job on the mound for their respective nines Sunday when the latter weakened in the seventh and Winside bunched its hits to score four runs.

Just a suggestion - Why not couple a National Defense show with this year's Wayne county fair. The government is anxious to build up support and co-operation in a variety of national defense efforts and doubtless has available interesting exhibits and qualified speakers on various phases of the vast program.

Wayne city taxpayers will pay a levy of 23.1 mills, .7 of a mill less than last year, the city council decided at its regular meeting last Tuesday evening.

A half mill cut in the auditorium bond fund levy plus a reduction of .2 of a mill from the amount for sewers accounted for the saving. Other expenses of the city are expected to be about the same as the past year so levies for them were unchanged.

The total levy of 23.1 mills is divided as follows: General fund, 5 mills. Parks, 1 mill. Intersection bonds and interest, 10 mills.

How Levy Divided The total levy of 23.1 mills is divided as follows: General fund, 5 mills. Parks, 1 mill. Intersection bonds and interest, 10 mills.

Other Business Only other business transacted by the council was to allow current bills, except a petition seeking curb, gutter and gravel on Second street west of Douglas and granting Albert Brader permission to erect a business building on West First street, excavation for which is underway.

Lights For Park Sought

Softball Tilts To Raise Funds Being Planned Plans are underway to sponsor a softball game to be played on some Sunday at the local Athletic Park between two leading softball teams in this section of the county to raise funds for purchasing lighting equipment for the field.

The athletic committee of the Chamber of Commerce which is making the arrangements is anxious to have lights installed at the park so that a local softball league may be organized and games arranged for the summer months. If the initial exhibition game proves popular, it is likely that others will be arranged during the season.

Plans are also being discussed for the organization of a softball league to include teams in Wayne and neighboring towns. However, all plans for the organization of softball teams and leagues are largely dependent on whether or not arrangements can be completed for lighting the field since most of those desiring to play are unable to do so except in the evenings.

Al Lueders is chairman of the sub-committee of the Chamber of Commerce athletic committee handling softball plans.

Park Work Begins Soon

Plans Outlined As WPA Funds Are Sought

If approval of the transfer of the City of Wayne's credit of $7,800 in WPA funds allocated to the Athletic Park to the city's new Municipal Recreational Park, a mile north of Wayne, is granted this week as expected, actual work on the vast project will get underway immediately.

Application for the transfer of these funds along with detailed drawings and estimates, required for WPA projects were sent last week to Lincoln for final approval.

Second One Slated As soon as the first park project gets underway, application will be made for a second one providing for the expenditure of about $20,000, to supply electric power, water and other improvements at the park. The first project includes grading and building of roads in the park, the planting of about 7,000 trees and shrubbery and preparing the golf course for play.

The nine-hole golf course will cover 48 acres of the site and about 11 acres will be devoted to recreation grounds with adequate facilities for picnics including a dozen outdoor fire places. Tennis courts will also be constructed along with facilities for other outdoor games and contests.

Work Rushed Work on the project will be rushed so that the park will be ready for use early next spring. Some golfers were hopeful that the course might be in shape for play this fall but that is believed unlikely now.

The recreational park, which is being built on the excellent site a mile north of Wayne on Highway 15, which was given the city by the Wayne Country Club, will provide free recreational facilities for all citizens and every effort is planned to have a sufficient variety of equipment erected there to appeal to a vast majority of the citizens. Only golfers will be required to pay a fee and the funds so collected will be expended to maintain the golf course.

Four Called For Training

Group Chosen To Fill Quota For June 17

With six Wayne county young men already scheduled to leave June 10 for Selective Service training, another group of four was selected last week to fill this county's quota for the June 17 call.

Three of the four to leave here on June 17 are taken from the selective service roll for this county and the fourth is a volunteer. Two other young men from the roll have also been chosen as replacements in case one or more of the four originally selected fail to pass the tests.

The four selected for the June 17 call together with their order numbers are: Fred Albert Kay, 13; Elmer Rudolph Kai, 15; Walter Carl Strate, 45; and the volunteer, Robert Coats Adams, whose order number is 131. The two selected as replacements and their order numbers are Robert Paul Hanson, 48, and John Joseph Hank, 64.

Both the group of six selected for June 10 call and the four who will follow a week later will report to the county Selective Service board in Wayne at 5:30 in the morning and will be sent to the induction station at Ft. Crook.

Instructions were received last week by the local board to defer veterinary doctors and students from selection for military training due to a shortage of veterinarians menacing the success of the national defense program.

Mr. and Mrs. K. D. Hanson and children spent the weekend at Millard, Ia., with the L. C. Agler family.

Governor Is Speaker As 98 Graduate

WSTC Class Urged To Study Public Questions

Impressive graduation exercises for 98 Wayne State Teachers college seniors were held at the Outdoor Theatre Thursday morning. The academic procession started at 9:15 from the administration building. The exercises began at 9:30.

Gov. Dwight Griswold, who flew by airplane to Wayne accompanied by his secretary, Valdemar Peterson, gave the commencement address.

Public Issues He urged the graduates to take sufficient time to become better informed on public and political questions and praised the parents who make sacrifices so that their children may receive an education.

"You who are graduating here," he said, "have had many advantages. You have spent your time in a school established in one of the fine young cities of our state. You are so much more fortunate than are those who have spent their school years in a large city. You have had the advantage of a closer touch with your teachers and have had the greater advantage of being in closer touch with nature."

Continue Education Gov. Griswold reminded the students that the granting of a diploma was not the end of their education but only the beginning. He told them to go out from this college, determined to make use of the fine knowledge they had received, ever striving to increase their knowledge and use it for the advantage of our country and fellow men.

Congratulations . . .

1,000 Attend Services

Prof. Parke Delivers Memorial Day Address Here

About 1,000 persons attended the Memorial day services Friday morning at the soldiers' and sailors' memorial plot in Greenwood cemetery.

The American Legion sponsored the affair, with A. R. Ellis, post commander, presiding. Fred Dale, sergeant-at-arms, had charge of the parade. K. N. Parke, post chaplain, gave the invocation, memorial prayer and address. C. A. Orr read the list of departed veterans of the Civil, Spanish and World Wars. K. D. Hanson directed the band.

The Legion Auxiliary had charge of decorating the graves. William Beckenhauer lent his amplifying system for the occasion.

In his address, Professor Parke mentioned the fact that it is customary to decorate the graves and honor individuals who have contributed to the personal welfare of all of us but we fail to realize the debt we owe our country and all those who contributed to the greatness of the country. "A good many folks view with pessimism the future of democracy," he said. He contrasted the situation in the United States and in Europe and said that the citizens of this country should wake up to the fact that we are in danger of losing our democracy.

Mixed Hopper Bait Available In Wayne Now

Several Wayne county farmers have asked for grasshopper poison, according to Extension Agent Chet Walters. Reports are that hoppers are quite thick in some places.

A good supply of poison materials is still on hand in Wayne county and will be available to any farmer wanting to spread poison. The demand for poison at this time is not sufficient to justify having the poison available at more than one place in the county. However, mixed bait is available at the present time at John Kay's elevator. Anyone wanting any large amount is asked to call or send a card to the County Extension office as only a small reserve supply is kept on hand. Farmers are being asked to bring their own sacks.

Miss Bette Blair is expected to arrive home from Boulder, Colo., this week.

Showers Aid Small Grain Crop

May's Total Varies Widely Throughout Region

Brief showers, falling at frequent intervals throughout the day Monday, measured only .11 of an inch at 6 o'clock that evening on the gauge at the Carhart Lumber company in Wayne. However, the showers were scattered and varied greatly throughout this area, so that some sections of the county received considerably more moisture than was recorded in the city. The moisture and cool weather were of great benefit to the small grain.

While rainfall recorded in Wayne during May amounted to an even two and a half inches as registered on the gauge at the Carhart Lumber company, nearly an inch more than the 1.59 inches which was May's total last year, some nearby areas received considerably less moisture.

The government gauge at Wakefield, for example, registered only 1.2 inches for the month compared to 1.37 inches in May, 1940. The same gauge showed a total of 7.46 inches from January to June 1, this year, compared with 8.26 inches for the same months in 1940.

Wayne, on the other hand, received 5.51 inches in April alone, a new high mark for that month.

Warmer Than In 1940 The month of May this year was warmer than May, 1940, and included several windy days which robbed the surface of much moisture and left the small grain in need of the moisture which fell last weekend and Monday.

The government weather record as recorded by Charles W. Long of Wakefield for last month compared with May, 1940, follows:

Table with 2 columns: Month of May 1940 1941. Rows include Mean Maximum (74.51 vs 80.55), Mean minimum (45.40 vs 53.83), Mean (59.96 vs 67.19), Maximum (94 vs 99), Minimum (31 vs 36), Range (44 vs 41), Precipitation (1.37 vs 1.20), Greatest in 24 hours (.54 vs .66), Total Jan. 1 to June 1 (8.28 vs 7.46), Clear days (17 vs 11), Partly cloudy (12 vs 20), Cloudy (2 vs 0).

13,219 Pounds Of Roosters Sold Here Tuesday

Wayne's second annual Rooster Day event, which was sponsored by the retail trade extension committee of the Chamber of Commerce, resulted in the sale of 13,219 pounds of roosters in this city last Tuesday.

While the total was slightly under the 14,000-pound mark reached last year when a similar event was staged, it resulted in the circulation of about the same amount of Rooster Day scrip due to the increased price offered. Roosters sold here on that date at the season's top price of 11 cents a pound.

Crowing roosters were heard throughout the business district and the event stimulated retail trade here as merchants co-operated by offering Rooster Day specials. Scrip was accepted on the purchase of merchandise on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Medals Awarded Two Heroines Of Homer, Winnebago Floods Year Ago Today

Mrs. Nell Lazura, former chief operator at Winnebago.

Mrs. Mildred Lothrop, chief operator at Homer.

Homer Nab, looked like this from the air during a disastrous flood caused by the overflow of Omaha creek a year ago today, June 3, 1940. When this picture was taken, the water had receded considerably. The creek normally flows as a mere trickle beneath the bridge in the foreground.

The arrow indicates the office of Mrs. Mildred Lothrop, chief operator of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company at Homer, who twice has been the heroine of the little community in remaining at her post and warning residents to flee to safety. For her bravery in the first flood two decades ago she was awarded the first gold medal given out under the Theodore N. Vall Memorial Fund. Twenty years to the week after the first flood she again was a heroine, in the catastrophe pictured. Again she was awarded a Vail Gold Medal.

Flood conditions at Winnebago, seven miles down Omaha creek, were the same as shown in this picture. At Winnebago, Mrs. Nell Lazura, chief operator of the Northeastern Telephone company, proved herself a heroine by braving flood waters and making every effort to warn residents. Mrs. Lazura also has been awarded a Vail Gold Medal.

Twelve persons lost their lives in these flood waters at Homer and Winnebago. Two of these persons perished in the roofless structure shown in the lower right-hand side of the photograph.

A gift was presented to Lorraine Johnson who left last week for Kansas where she will make her home. Hostesses were Mrs. C. C. Stirtz, Mrs. J. M. Strahan, Mrs. A. T. Cavanaugh, Mrs. Frank Strahan, Jr., Mrs. Elmer Harrison and Mrs. French Penn.

More Food Is Needed

FSA Farmers of County Are Co-operating

Farm Security borrower families in Wayne county are already in step with the new U. S. Department of Agriculture "Food for Defense" program, said Ray Verzal, county FSA supervisor, in calling attention to the stepped-up production program for dairy products, meat, eggs and poultry. "The government is asking farmers to produce more of these products, both for the democracies abroad and for home consumption", Mr. Verzal said. "This program is just as important as anything we are doing in defense, and fortunately, due to a stable agricultural program, we are in a position to carry on".

Further, said Mr. Verzal, the "Food for Defense" program follows just what FSA has been doing for the past six years; more production of foodstuffs on the farm for family subsistence, with surplus augmenting cash income. Thus, he states, Wayne county FSA families are in a position to increase production along the lines mentioned and to improve their own health and living, and at the same time share in the larger American commercial market for farm products.

In urging farmers to produce more, Mr. Verzal said, the government warns against over-expansion. For example, hog production will be larger and the government will support for two years a $9 minimum, based on the Chicago market. But farmers should not go to heavy expense for more buildings, greatly increased herds, etc. Instead, they ought to utilize, if possible, present buildings, raise more foundation animals themselves.

The plan is to convert surplus feed into food that people can use, and that means more livestock, poultry and eggs, and more gardens. Much of this food will be sent abroad, and to conserve space and prevent spoilage will be preserved. This means more dried milk and eggs, packed meat and canned vegetables.

Madison Spelling Champ Is Eliminated

Douglas Kielty, 13, of Madison, was eliminated in the first round of the national spelling contest held at Washington, D. C., last week. Competing with 28 others, he was stumped by the word "bifurcated". Louis Sissman, 13, of Detroit, won the contest.

Douglas won the Nebraska state title at Omaha April and also won the District spelling contest held in Wayne April 11. Delores Peters of Wayne placed second in both these events. Douglas won first place in the Nebraska-Iowa interstate contest at Omaha April 25, and Delores Peters won third place.

Miss Pearl Sewell arrived home last week from Winnebago where she has been teaching. She has been re-elected at an increase of salary.

RIGHT OUT OF THE AIR

Kate Smith is already spending her week-ends at her camp at Lake Placid in upper New York. After her musical program goes a tip on a story, she goes out and digs up the facts for herself.

Helen Hayes' performance of "Twelfth Night" is being so enthusiastically received by Chicago theater-goers, it is likely that she will be held there throughout the remaining weeks of her current air series.

It's seldom that a radio singer doubles as an actress before the mike but Audrey Marsh is one of the few doing it. She sings with Ray Block's orchestra on the Tuesday night "Johnny Presents" programs over NBC and acts in the Friday night "Great Moments From Great Plays" over CBS.

participants completely at ease when they take part in his "Treasure Chest" quiz games. Heidt does it by being "just a friendly guy" devoid of the characteristics of the typical emcee.

off the air the last of June, she will again spend all her time at Placid, broadcasting her midday commentary from a small studio off the camp living room.

When "We, the People" first started there was apprehension over whether the supply of interesting program guests would hold up indefinitely. That these fears were strictly unfounded, is vouched for in the latest report from the program's producers. They say that never before have they been so well fortified with interesting "acts."

Although James Melton is usually heard on the Air Monday nights as the tenor star of the NBC

"Telephone Hour" he was a Friday mike visitor on Memorial Day. He was given the honor of singing at the famed Arlington Cemetery services which NBC broadcast.

Congress

As Seen by KARL STEFAN

Albert Engel, a representative from Michigan, has been a one-man committee to investigate expenditures in the construction of army cantonments. To date, he has visited thirteen of these places. To the approximately $800,000,000 spent, he figures that about 30 per cent has been wasted. He is putting this information in the Congressional Record from time to time for the attention of members of congress and administrative officials of the government.

From the committees on Merchant Marine and Naval affairs have come far reaching measures that have passed the house during the week. The naval affairs committee put through a bill authorizing the construction of many new auxiliary vessels needed by our fighting ships. They will cost about 5 million dollars each. No navy can move without auxiliary crafts. The Committee on Merchant Marine effected house passage of a measure to increase administrative power respecting priorities of cargoes and ship movements and to authorize the construction of additional cargo ships. The building of

Believe it or not, Carl Vinson, chairman of the house committee on naval affairs, has accepted an invitation to visit Ted Metcalf—the Chief Admiral of the Nebraska navy.

Experts say that the cost of construction of the bomber assembly plant at Omaha exceeds the cost at which it could have been constructed at other points but the Omaha site is justified because of strategic location relatively safe from attack.

Less talk about convoys in Washington this week. Reason is that Admiral Land told house members that sinking of ships bound from America to Britain are negligible. Big advertisements in Washington papers read, "Britain Delivers the Goods—Sixty thousand pieces of merchandise reach us safely from England within the past few weeks. Prices about a third of what you have to pay ordinarily." Union Labor spokesman ask embarrassing questions about labor scales in Britain and the effect of imported competitive goods on American products.

L. E. Tyson, Nebraska aeronautics Commission engineer, has been spending several days in Washington consulting CAA and Army officials respecting the joint efforts of the state and the federal government to develop the facilities of aviation. Mr. Tyson believes the Nebraska Aeronautics commission program for this year is meeting with high approval here.

If Uncle Sam ever finds himself short of aviators some blame will attach to rules and regulations that operate against young men who have not had college educations. At the present time, the army will take not to exceed 25 per cent of the pilot trainees from among men who have had less than two years of college work. Even these non-college youth have one or more strikes against them. In our land today we have many farmer boys, mechanics, clerks and others who have had no college training but want to be service pilots. Some of them have many hours of flying to their credit. But they can't get into Uncle Sam's aviation schools to be trained to fly and defend this country in time of need. General Connolly, head of the CAA, who is a friend of the non-college boy, says something ought to be done about that.

Recent visitors in the office of the Third District congressman are Fred Berry, Wayne; Mrs. George Prasse—and daughter, Bertha, Columbus; Dr. G. E. Charlton, Norfolk; W. H. Anderson, Lincoln; Clarence Mackey, Fremont; Dwight Felton, Lincoln; Otha DeVillis; Lincoln; Bernice Mellemann, Norfolk; Louis A. Holmes, Grand Island; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Ryan and son Thomas Tilden; L. E. Tyson, Lincoln; Val Peter, Omaha; John Franek, South Omaha.

Norfolk will have some distinguished visitors June 15, 16, 17, when the Nebraska chapter of the Association of Postmasters holds its annual convention there. Bill Bray, special assistant to Postmaster General Walker, will be there to speak, and Walter Meyers, the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, tells the Third District office that he, too, will be there if he can arrange it. The Fourth Assistant will dedicate a new postoffice building at Benson, Neb., on June 14.

Late rumors among the majority in the house indicate shake-ups in high places in Washington. One rumor is that Madame Perkins will be replaced soon. Another is that a place in the government in Washington is about to be made for Mayor LaGuardia of New York and also for Wendell Willkie. A stranger report is that Secretary Hull may step out but those close to State Department activities find this difficult to believe. Robert Jackson, attorney general, is believed scheduled to succeed Chief Justice Hughes of the Supreme Court.

Parity prices on farm products are prices that would place the farmer, the laboring man, and the industrialist on precisely the same basis as to their relative earning power as they were before the depression. With labor now having a guaranteed floor below which wages cannot drop, and with industry now receiving government contracts on a cost-plus-profit guaranteed basis, many members feel that the farmer who is both the greatest consumer and the most important producer in the country, should receive similar protection.

E. A. Strate of Hoskins and Miss Iche Townsend of Bassett were dinner guests at Frank Larsen's Tuesday.

Mrs. Chris Tietgen went to Hooper Thursday to attend the funeral of her cousin's daughter, Phyllis Ann Mitchell, the year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Burrill Mitchell.

The Wayne News Advocates

1. Formation of a Wayne civic organization with a paid secretary which will have as its sole objective the improvement and growth of Wayne; an organization through which all business firms and professional men may unite their efforts.
2. Expansion of Wayne's trade territory.
3. Co-operation between WSTC and Wayne for their mutual benefit.
4. Improved transportation facilities including all-weather roads throughout this section of the state.
5. Extension of the soil and water conservation work throughout Wayne and adjacent counties.
6. Improvement of educational facilities and standards in both rural and town schools.

Flowers For The Council

Members of the Wayne city council, like those of virtually all cities, are usually on the receiving line for far more adverse criticism than praise. Serving as a public servant, particularly in a small municipality where nearly everyone is in close touch with the conduct of the city's business, is generally a thankless job with the small salary inadequate recompense for the time required.

The city council, then, is due a few flowers when its actions meet with popular approval. Obviously, the reduction in the tax levy at a time when federal taxes will dig deep into all taxpayers' bank accounts, is such a move. It will be particularly appreciated at this time and answers those critics of the council who have voiced fears at intervals that it was embarking on spending sprees.

Another step which deserves commendation is the establishment of a supervised recreational program during the summer months for the children of Wayne. Coach Frank Sullivan of the Wayne High staff is well trained to handle such a project and the program should be of great value to the children. It is to be hoped that parents encourage their children to participate.

Dairying In Wayne County

With local markets for sweet cream and milk facing shortages at frequent intervals which sometimes force them to have supplies shipped from outside this trade area, it would seem that farmers throughout this section should be encouraged to increase their herds. When the milk is supplied by farmers in this district, the entire county benefits from a double payroll—the payroll to workers at the local plants and that received by the farmers supplying the milk and cream.

June is national Dairy Month and the industry is one of sufficient importance to this county and Wayne's trade territory to merit some special observance which would provide all farmers with the facts about the market here for dairy products so that they may determine for themselves if the purchase of additional dairy cattle would not prove most profitable. We believe that such an educational campaign would pay dividends to Wayne, the farmers and the firms which purchase milk produced in this section of Nebraska.

In The War

Only the final plunge, which may come at any time, stands between America and the World War. Other barriers and those which might halt quick action in case of its advisability were destroyed by President Roosevelt's chat last week.

While the President said virtually what it had been expected that he would say and whether or not we agree with the policy adopted, the good citizens of this country will march along, following in the footsteps of their leader and striving to sail the course through the stormy waters of today and tomorrow to the goal he has indicated.

Great power, great trust and grave responsibilities face both President Roosevelt and the nation today. Americans will prove that a democracy can in times of stress function as efficiently and as swiftly as a dictatorship. The President's address cleared the atmosphere of doubt; Americans now know the course this nation will follow. They may not agree that it is the wise or the safest course but they will support it with determination and full realization that there is no turning back now and that victory must be won at virtually any price.

Wayne county farmers are demonstrating in convincing fashion that they realize the value of the protection provided for them through the Wayne fire department by contributing generously to the fund being raised to help the City of Wayne purchase a new fire truck. The new truck will be used exclusively to answer farm alarms and members of the city fire department will battle the fires as in the past. First flow of contributions toward the fund indicates that hopes of raising a substantial amount in this manner will be realized.

National Industries Weekly Review

The Nation's Leading Letter by J. E. Jones, Washington, D. C.

"WOE IS ME" TO REPORT WHAT I SEE

Washington, D. C., June 2 — The difficulty about writing news letters from Washington these days is that what may look like hot-stuff today becomes outmoded tomorrow. For example: When Hess dropped out of the skies in Scotland our own National Capital buzzed with excitement and hundreds of "what for?" debates continued for almost two days. Then the little island of Crete, which is about the same size of our Porto Rico, monopolized the news with horned devils, tanks, men and guns coming down in parachutes and gliders. It rocked American nerves and neutrality. But there came another day, and when the Hood was blown up by the Germans gloom settled down on our national capital. Came still another day when the fog lifted as news came hot from the press and radio that the Bismark had gone to the bottom of the sea. That actually was the happiest day in the month, up to dark on May 27. Then came the night of the same day. At 9:30 E. S. time the President of the United States delivered his Fireside Chat — and if you were the Washington correspondent for The News, what would you write about that? The world heard it over the radio, and the commentators began interpreting the message about the time the President finished. I can say it was an "undeclared declaration of war" which you have known for several days. The situation in Washington shows definitely that President Roosevelt can do what ever he pleases and that congress will not stop him.

"This said that three or four big stories break every day in Washington. That's something else — and I'll see you later! Signing off, right now!"

Many Contribute To Defense

In the first stages of defense, to get the program under way, it was essential that large initial orders be placed with organizations in a position to take complete responsibility for them. The government thus could start jobs off quickly and gain the advantage of centralized management skilled in large scale production in speeding the program to full bloom. The concerns themselves undertook the difficult tasks represented by these big defense contracts in full recognition of a public responsibility.

The second stage, which we have already entered upon, permits of a multitude of supplementary contracts of great variety calling for the facilities of thousands of smaller shops and plants throughout the country. But even a big defense contract given for execution to a big company such as General Motors does not mean that the big organization is hogging the work.

Whatever benefits of increased employment there may be in a defense job they are scattered far and wide in the sub-contracting process. For example, the Allison airplane engine is not made in Indianapolis alone. Its materials, parts and supplies are drawn from 65 different communities extending from Iowa to Connecticut. All kinds of things from carburetors to cotter pins are made by men who never saw an Allison engine. But each of these men plays in his community just as important a role in defense as the men who man the machines in the great Allison plant itself.

Similarly, the Cleveland Diesel engines that drive the new navy boats are not as people suppose solely the product of Ohio. From 177 different communities spread over 26 states from California to Vermont come parts, materials and supplies for those marine engines involving the work of many men in many places.

In like manner, an order for a tank or truck or machine gun gets reflected in jobs and materials and services that reach into a thousand communities.

Defense Sub-contractors

"A New City Comes to Virginia" and it will employ a force of 4,500 men on a tract of 4,000 acres of countryside. It is pictured in a national defense book, which shows huge buildings being rushed to construction where a year ago there was only a placid countryside. Other illustrations show the manufacture and assembling of machine guns and anti-aircraft guns in Connecticut; and a shell loading plant in Iowa and a 47 million dollar ordnance plant in Ohio. That's how defense is passed around and furnishes help to all localities.

"Man's Foot Catches Up With Woman's"

Man is going to get his chance to even up with the Nylon-equipped female. How? With chemically riveted socks that will wear up to three times as long as socks of the present day.

Research has made this possible.

Scores of pairs of woolen socks treated by the new process survived three and a half months of daily wear for 15 hours each day. They withstood 90 launderings during this period before a hole developed. What's more, the process eliminates shrinking almost entirely.

Processing is accomplished by immersing the fabric in a bath of certain colloidal substances suspended in water. What happens then, the chemists say, is that microscopic particles of the colloidal substances do a job throughout the fabric that can be described only as "riveting" the fibres in the twisted threads so that they resist wear.

Just as Nylon was tested for a long time before it was ever offered as material for milady's stockings, so was this new method tested. One sock in each pair was treated and one sock was not. Treated socks worn 15 hours a day lasted ninety days. Untreated socks wore out in 16 to 30 days. Then the test ended officially. Unfortunately, the treated socks were worn 106 days before the first hole developed.

None of the socks are available yet for the general public but production has begun and distribution will soon begin.

Development division of the United States Rubber company, which conducted this research and evolved the riveting process, points out that process works equally well when applied to underwear, flannels, mittens and blankets.

But the first contest will be between milady's Nylon stockings and man's riveted socks.

Hidden Hunger Lovers Human Health

The United States grows too much food, and still there are thousands who starve for want of it. Too many children who are able to eat all they need prefer doughnuts, hot dogs, and pop, in place of milk, and other proper foods that have the right vitamins. Unfortunately they fail to get a healthy start in life.

Secondly — boys and girls in their teens cut out the home dinners and mother's foods, and replenish their tummies with candy, various sweets, soft drinks, and cigarettes, tidbits, and other things that lack nourishment.

Apparently takes a war to bring out the sad fact that 45 per cent of draftees are victims of "undernourishment".

Nearly a thousand of the country's leaders in nutrition attended the call of President Roosevelt to a National Nutrition conference in Washington. Vice President Wallace told the delegates: "This conference is firing the opening gun in a real new order... a new order based on physical well-being, equal opportunity, and freedom of the soul".

Mr. Wallace and other government officials, and medical and health authorities agreed that "wide undernourishment" exists throughout the width and breadth of our land, and the President wrote to the delegates that "every survey of nutrition, by whatever methods conducted, shows that here in the United States undernourishment is widespread and serious".

The seriousness of conditions was estimated by Professor Russell M. Wilder of the Mayo Foundation, who told the conference that more than one-third of all families have been buying food which could not provide a diet rating better than "poor" by conservative standards, and not more than one family in four obtained food which would provide a diet rated as good. This meant, he said, that 75 per cent of our people were suffering from what is called hidden hunger.

The country is going to hear a lot about "hidden hunger", and the necessity of vitamins A, B, etc., from an educational program headed by the Department of Agriculture and other government groups. Defense officials are going to help fight the battle against this nation's physical slump. The problem is important and serious and the readers of this newspaper are advised to keep track of statements that will be issued in the near future by responsible government and state health authorities.

Europe Is Hot Hot

Only 205,000 residents of the United States went over seas last year, while in 1939 there were 394,000. Evidently, Americans are doing a better job than usual in "seeing America first", and that ought to be good for them.

Growth Of The Labor Unions

Six years ago there were 4 million labor union members in the United States. Today there are 9 million, and leaders of principal unions predict that they will eventually have 25 million members. This remarkable growth of the unions is credited to official recognition and backing of "collective bargaining" by the United States government.

The unions frequently ignore the National Labor Relations board and take short cuts in making demands, threatening strikes, and picketing employers. The government has maintained a systematic policy of "hands off" in such cases, beginning with the sitdown strikes in the automobile industry and continuing up to the present time. During the past few weeks there have been many strikes that have closed down industries engaged in the production of materials for national defense and aid to Britain.

The primary purpose of the National Labor Board as stated in the act is to prevent unfair labor practices "when they affect commerce", and the board has the responsibility "to prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of the act". The general public is entirely familiar with the disputes in recent months and has been disturbed over the way in which the rights of employers have been trampled under, and the national defense program interrupted. In practically every instance no measures, or laws, were employed to protect anybody, except the CIO and the AF of L. The spirit of the laws, and the emergency of war measures and administration have been entirely ignored. A half dozen branches of the federal government have been active in proceedings and prosecutions against large and small businesses while at the same time the unions, puffed up by their mushroom growth, have been unchecked and been permitted to run wild.

It is perfectly obvious that official regulation and control should be kept on the behavior of all kinds of organizations, industries, unions, lodges. While millions of new members have been added to the unions some of these groups have unlawfully seized private property and defied the public interests.

The question is: What is going to be done about it? The official record up to date is almost nothing. The labor board hasn't even tried to protect the employers. The Department of Labor's record is zero. Even the war, navy and national defense officials and the mediation board have appealed against strikes, with very little success.

If we are going to defend this country why not begin by establishing peace in industry at home? These millions of workers are good, loyal Americans, who have gone into the unions to improve their own welfare. Evidently, in the events of whirlwind membership drives large numbers of union folks have not been able to protect themselves against domineering and unscrupulous leadership. In such cases the duty of the government is obvious to enforce justice and re-establish the spirit of fair play so that these millions of new members of labor unions and their employers may get together on friendly terms at all times. That is what is usually understood as the basis of the kind of democracy that Thomas Jefferson said should provide "equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state or persuasion".

A Little Stuff, by "Sure Nuff"

The United States is doing a good job with National Defense. We'll be ready on time sure 'nuff. Are taxes piling up very high. Sure 'nuff, they is.

They tell us folks in Everywhere Town that the cost of living is going up, sure 'nuff. You're hearing true stuff.

Some one asked Willkie if he was going to try and get the democratic nomination in 1944, and he sure 'nuff confessed that he had about the same notion about that as de did about the republican nomination a year before that he was nominated. Sure 'nuff, Governor Stassen thought up that scheme three or four months ahead of the Philadelphia convention.

Beats all how far some folks see into the future. Sure 'nuff, the man who still thinks we're soon going to make the world safe for democracy must be a clairvoyant.

That's 'nuff of this sure 'nuff stuff!

Price Fixing Challenged
When Leon Henderson, Price and Supply official, announced a reduction of about 20 per cent in the maximum price schedule for combed cotton yarns he stirred up a hornet's nest.

"An inflationary movement in the price of any basic material used in the manufacture of cotton textiles and related products raises costs of production for the entire industry", said Henderson in defense of boosting cotton yarn. He believes that raw materials should be watched to prevent higher costs in manufactured cotton goods.

Car Count Being Made

Travel On Highways In State Checked

Travel on the highways in this county is being checked by counter-crawlers for the Nebraska department of roads and irrigation and results of the survey will be utilized as a guide for the state's road program. Four crews, equipped with mechanical counters, were assigned to work in the Wayne vicinity and similar crews will continue the survey throughout the state.

Data on the income and expenditures for road work and improvements is being collected as a part of the survey, which will determine to a large extent where the need for improvements is the greatest.

The count is made through the use of small pneumatic tubes, which are stretched across the highway, so that vehicles passing over them are recorded in the metal box recorder to which the tube is connected. Signs are placed on each side of the road during the checking.

Persons driving vehicles which might cut the tube or damage it in any way are urged to co-operate in protecting this equipment by moving the hose off the highway rather than crossing over it as will other motorists and then replacing it so that the count may continue. The hose may be moved easily by slipping the clamp over the top of the spike on the opposite side of the road from the counter box and then pulling the hose out of the way. Drivers of road drags, discs, tractors with steel logs, cultivators and similar equipment should observe this request.

State Crop Outlook Good

Spring Grain And Hay Crops Good; Corn Planted

Nebraska's spring grain and hay crops are "very promising" and corn planting is virtually completed, with the co-operative weather and crop service reported.

During the week ending Tuesday, "more than half of the counties reported ample precipitation, surface and subsoil moisture". Weather hopes of farmers vary. In the west, where wheat is lush and headed there is a desire for coolness but in the central section where new corn is poking up above the soil, warmer temperature is desired to halt the work and crops are promising.

Spring grain crops, the service said, "are very promising but more rain would be of considerable benefit, except in those counties that have received fairly heavy rainfall recently." "Growth is quite heavy and moisture is being used rapidly and high winds increased the demand. Winter wheat and rye have made some improvement. Hay crops are promising. The first crop of alfalfa is very good and will soon be ready for harvest. Wild hay is making good progress. Sugar beets and potatoes are looking good."

Moisture reports from the service's stations were as follows for the week ending Tuesday: Eastern Division—Auburn 1.09; Beatrice .13; Fairbury 1.06; Fairmont .33; Walls City .59; Fremont .22; Grand Island .06; Hartington .56; Hastings .12; Lincoln 1.28; Nebraska City .47; Oakdale .02; Omaha .37; Red Cloud .02; St. Paul .07; Sioux City, Ia., .18; Tekamah .29; Wakefield .23; and York .27. Average for the week .33; total since April 1, 5.42; normal, April-May 6.58.

Weekly Farm Review

By Chester Walters
Wayne County Extension Agent

SURPLUS OF GILTS IN NORTHEAST COUNTIES

Just as soon as farmers in the drier areas of central and western Nebraska get enough feed on hand or in sight to get back into hog production, they should have no trouble in locating foundation breeding stock within the state. County extension agents in a number of northeast Nebraska counties report a surplus of gilts will be available to farmers in other counties who want to breed for fall litters. In Cedar county alone, County Agent J. C. Rosse estimates there are 1500 or more gilts that could be bred and made available for other counties if there is a demand for them.

With a ratio between corn and hog prices now favorable to feeding and good prices for hogs seemingly assured for the next several months, many Nebraska farmers are expected to seize this opportunity to build their livestock numbers back to somewhere near normal. Extension livestockmen at the College of Agriculture point out, however, that it's safest to start from a small foundation herd and then "grow back" rather than "buy back" into livestock production.

NEIGHBORHOOD "FLOWING BEE"

Perhaps pioneer days in Nebraska are gone, but the neighborly spirit that went with them is still alive and flourishing, as illustrated by a story from Dixon County Extension Agent Howard Gillaspie.

In Dixon county recently the neighbors of Everett Wheeler, who was seriously ill at his home near Allen, turned out to do his plowing. Men helping out in the plowing were Vern and Maurice Swanson, Claude and Gene Wheeler, Virgil Isom, Jewell Kilion, Harry Warner, Ezra Christensen, Monie Lundahl and Percy Hale.

"The 'women folks' had a good dinner ready for them at the home of Gene Wheeler.

SLIGHT INCREASE IN CORN LOANS

A few additional corn loans under the 1940 loan program, are still trickling in according to latest reports from the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In number of loans completed, Iowa stands first in the nation with more than 56,000 and Nebraska is second with nearly 15,000. In number of bushels, however, Illinois ranks in second place—just slightly ahead of Nebraska. Illinois has around 13 1/2 million bushels of last year's corn sealed under loans; while Nebraska has around 12 2/3 million bushels under loan.

WEED CONTROL FOR GREATER PROFIT

One way Nebraskans can step up their milk production—that is, the production of milk fit for human consumption—is by getting rid of weed taints.

It's estimated that Nebraska producers are losing around $2,000,000 annually as a result of weed tainted milk and cream. Two weeds that most seriously taint dairy products are penny-cress and peppergrass. These weeds cause objectionable odors that cannot be removed from the milk itself, or from any type of dairy products made out of the milk.

will help in keeping the cows off of weed-infested permanent pastures. One method of controlling these weeds is to mow them when they first begin to form seed. However, if mowed too early the cut plant may send out branches along the ground where they cannot be mowed.

FARM LABOR

Many farmers have reported that it has been nearly impossible for them to find farm labor when they wanted it.

In an attempt to help this situation, a meeting was recently held in the Wayne county courthouse at which members of organizations who are working closely with the labor situation in Dixon and Wayne counties were present. Represented at the meeting were the Dixon county draft board, the Dixon and Wayne county agents, the Dixon and Wayne county AAA committees, Wayne county relief office, Wayne county WPA office, Wayne county FSA office and the district supervisor for NYA in this area. Mr. Orvill Ziggafoos from the Employment Service at Norfolk called the meeting and served as chairman.

After considerable discussion as to the supply and kind of labor available and the kind needed, the following plan was adopted: Any one wanting to do work on a farm should call the County Extension office. The other agencies, business firms, and so on are being asked to co-operate by seeing that people wanting work make this contact. This information will then be kept on file and available to anyone wanting help. Farmers are also asked to make their wants known at the County Extension office.

In the event that the local supply of labor is not sufficient to supply the demand, Mr. Ziggafoos of the Norfolk Employment service indicated that they would be ready to help secure additional labor in any way that they could.

With the large number of men and boys who have left and who will soon be leaving the county under the Selective Service and for work in industrial plants, the shortage of labor may become more acute. Any person knowing of someone that wants to work or knowing of someone who wants to hire help may help the situation by reporting to the County Extension office.

Winside Nine Trims Wayne, 8-1

Four Run Rallies In Seventh And Eighth Win Game

After getting off to a good start by winning their first two games of the season here, Wayne's baseball nine was given a lesson in how the game should be played by the Winside team in the local nine's first clash away from their own diamond Sunday. Winside won, 8 to 1.

Winside, Pender Lead
As the result of Winside's victory over Wayne, Winside and Pender share the lead in the Big Six league. Pender blanked Laurel, 4 to 0, in their game Sunday and Emerson trounced Hoskins, 17 to 1, converting 17 hits into as many runs. Konkin of Pender turned in the best pitching exhibition of the Sunday contests, fanning 17 Laurel batters and allowing only 2 hits.

In the Wayne-Winside contest at Winside, Wayne touched Schumaker for only four hits while Winside was credited with 12. However, Wayne played errorless ball while two errors were charged against the home team.

After playing six scoreless innings, the Winside players bunched eight hits in the seventh inning and scored four men before the side was retired. The seventh inning rally was repeated in the eighth with Winside again collecting a quartet of runs before the rally could be halted.

Wayne's lone threat of the game came in the first half of the eighth between the two Winside rallies but the local team was able to get in only one score. P. Garvin, who was credited with two hits in his four times at bat, made the only score of the game for Wayne.

Schumaker hurled for the Winside team and did an excellent job on the mound, scattering the few hits he allowed and striking out a total of 13 batters. Kneifel pitched for the local team and struck out nine batters.

Wayne's team journeys again next Sunday but will return to the local park for its fifth game of the season on the following Sunday, June 15.

club is attending Club Week on a trip awarded by the Sioux City Stock Yards company. Marian Schroeder won a trip to the annual Club Week by doing outstanding job as news reporter for the Highland Lassies 4-H club. This award is made by the Omaha World Herald. Bonnie Osburn won a trip to Club Week for being selected as doing outstanding work in girls room project. This trip is awarded by the Omaha Chamber of Commerce.

The Club Week program is under the guidance of L. I. Frisbie, state 4-H club leader. Club members, about 300 of them in number, most of them attending on awards given by various firms and organizations over the state will enjoy an interesting and educational week. It will be their opportunity to hear numerous well known speakers, to see points of interest in their capital city, and to take an inspection trip to Omaha. These 4-H club members should have an interesting report when they return next week.

RADIO PROGRAM
Wayne County Extension Service will sponsor a radio program over station WJAG at Norfolk, Friday, June 6. The program starts at 1:15 and continues until 1:30 p. m.

PRESERVING EGG QUALITY
It will pay Nebraska egg producers to take extra precautions to produce and maintain egg quality. With the supported price being paid for good eggs, we can scarcely afford to ignore management practices affecting quality.

Attention has already been called to the removal of male birds to insure the production of infertile eggs. In this connection it is essential that young cockerels be separated from pullets, and for this same reason. The Wayne Chamber of Commerce should be commended for sponsoring the Wayne Rooster Day.

Because excessive temperature has such a pronounced effect on egg quality, it is necessary to gather the eggs as soon after they are laid as possible and put them into cool places. Since most eggs are laid before noon, a good management practice would be to gather the eggs at noon rather than around sun down. As a matter of fact, it would be highly desirable to gather the eggs in extremely hot weather five or six times daily and take them to a basement or cave to cool.

In hot weather, egg albumen is usually much thinner and this permits the yolk to move about more freely. Thin egg white and freely moving yolks tend to break down egg structure much more rapidly and in so doing speed up the processes of deterioration. At this point it is well to remember that too much handling and rough handling particularly is harmful. Pack eggs as soon as they are cooled into clean, odorless cases with the small end down. After this, do not handle or turn. Unless eggs are stored in a reasonably humid or moist place, there is danger of rapid evaporation and this too deprives eggs of the quality standards desired. If the floor in the basement or cave can be sprinkled daily and in this way kept reasonably damp, evaporation can usually be held at a minimum.

Eggs, like milk, will absorb odors and flavors. This makes clear the necessity of storing eggs in a clean place where foreign odors and flavors will not be acquired. It is especially important to keep them away from kerosene, paint, rotting vegetables, chicken manure, onions and even cantaloupes. Entirely too many eggs go into lower grades because of dirt and filth which could be prevented. By all means have plenty of nests, one to every five hens, and see that they are well bedded and clean. If some hens have the habit of roosting in the nests, it may be necessary to close them at night to prevent this nuisance.

Frequent gathering will mean fewer broken eggs. Because washing destroys a protective coating over the shell of the egg, it is better to have them produced clean rather than clean them. Since artificial refrigeration is contributing so much to the maintenance of egg quality, it is recommended that eggs be gotten into refrigeration as quickly after they are laid as possible. This suggests that eggs be marketed at frequent intervals. Regardless of the size of the flock, eggs should be marketed at least three times a week in order to get them into refrigeration quickly and thus preserve quality.
