Two Damage Suits Filed

Two damage suits, one filed by C. J. Verges and Werner Muller against W. E. Winterringer and the other a cross petition filed by Mr. Winterringer against the plaintiffs are booked for trial in the Wayne county court at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

In the original action, Verges and Muller seek $99.65 with interest for services to the defendant at the Verges sanitarium at Norfolk, where between May 17, 1937, and Jan. 13, 1939, they provided medical, surgical and hospital services for the defendant amounting to $139.65 for which the defendant has paid only $40.

In the cross petition, Mr. Winterringer is seeking $975 with interest at 6 per cent for injuries he claims resulted from the treatments received. He states in his petition that he had a rash on the back of his hands when he consulted the sanitarium for medical care, which Alpine light treatments given him there caused to spread over his body, resulting in great pain and discomfort. His petition adds that he sought treatment elsewhere.

E. A. Butterfield and F. S. Berry are attorneys for Mr. Winterringer, who now resides in Wayne and H. G. Greenamyre is attorney for Verges and Muller.

Wayne County Leads

The fact that Wayne county sent the largest delegation of 4-H club members and leaders to the annual Judging Day event Saturday at Emerson is indicative of increased interest in the clubs and their work in this area.

Farmers Co-operate

That farmers living in the Wayne vicinity are ready to co-operate with the City of Wayne for the benefit of both has been demonstrated again through the excellent response received by the Volunteer Fire Department in its campaign for a new fire truck.

Veteran Farmers

Wayne county apparently numbers among its farmers an extremely high percentage who have farmed in this region for a score of years and more. Many were born on the farms which they now operate or on nearby farms.

A Quiet Fourth

Wayne experienced a safe and fourth Fourth if the absence of fireworks is indicative. In fact, the city ordinance prohibiting the use of fireworks within the city limits was violated more before July Fourth than on Independence Day, which came more nearly resembling Sunday than any such holiday in past years.

National Industries Weekly Review

The Nation's Leading Letter by J. E. Jones, Washington, D. C.

WISE KNITTING Washington, D. C., July 7 — Two years ago Herr Hitler replied in the Reichstag to the appeals of President Roosevelt to aid "the cause of world peace" by telling America to stick to its own knitting and leave Europe alone.

Get In Step The government business of national defense was one of the early steps in our neutrality program. Now it is time to get in step, and time to watch your step as changing conditions create unusual situations and impress one with the fact that "business as usual" is not on the schedule.

Auto Industry And Defense In order to draw attention to what he characterized as the fallacy of procedure in "the various steps that are being taken to curtail the automobile industry", Congressman Louis C. Rabaut of Michigan inserted a newspaper article, by a Washington correspondent in the Congressional Record.

Barter-trades with Germany were cancelled and Mexico decided that it was wicked for her to sell confiscated American oil to Germany and Italy. Argentina, Brazil and other American Republics joined the United States in cutting off trade with the Axis.

Part of our population has suffered from a War of Nerves. But those good folks are feeling better. The emergency in England has been met by the American arsenal and our granaries.

Statistical reports show that 4 1/2 billions of lend-lease funds have been allocated for orders, including 601 ships. More than 2,700 planes have been delivered by American manufacturers in the past two months for our own and British uses.

Naturally, a lot of controversial troubles and problems are with us. The control of prices and the volume of production of automobiles is too big a matter to be tossed off by order of a defense administrator. The facts do not justify hasty decisions.

also derived 412 million dollars from automobile license taxes.

"The biggest fallacy of all", described as a political hallucination, is that the automobile is "essentially a luxury". The Congressional Record records the fact that from 70 per cent to 88 per cent of the transportation in cities of less than 500,000 population is provided by private passenger automobiles and that in the larger cities nearly one-half the population use private cars.

Highlights Of Past Week In Defense

Defense agencies moved on two fronts last week to increase the flow of aluminum into military aircraft manufacturing and other defense industries.

The Office of Production Management recommended to the War Department immediate construction of eight aluminum plants with a combined capacity of 600 million pounds annually.

The increase in aluminum production, which will be financed by the government, will raise the United States' yearly output to 1 billion 400 million pounds.

Further increase in steel production, also vital to defense, was made possible as the OPM approved a proposal of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation to spend $85,000,000 on new facilities.

The expansion, which amounts to 400,000 tons in ingot capacity, was requested by the Navy to speed up the naval building program.

OPM Production Director John D. Biggers called a meeting of auto manufacturers July 2 in Washington to consider means of reducing car and truck production beyond the 20 per cent previously adopted.

A reorganization of the OPM meanwhile was affected as a means of expediting the ever-expanding defense program. Industry advisory committees and commodity sections are being set up to enable representatives of industry to deal with one agency rather than three.

OPM Associate Director General-Sidney Hillman called attention to the success of the training within industry program which, he said, has forestalled threatened skilled labor shortages in defense industries.

Numerous defense plants assured the OPM Labor Division that Negroes will be hired in accordance with the Presidential proclamation that no racial discrimination will be countenanced.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson, in one of his busiest weeks, moved further into the consumer goods field by establishing ceiling prices on six types of cotton cloth, forecasting overall price ceilings on automobiles, and asking the Federal Trade Commission to investigate costs, profits, and prices of the furniture industry.

OPACs placed ceiling prices on pig iron, a major raw material in the production of steel, announced that a schedule will be imposed on upper-grade lumber on the west coast, took steps to prevent an increase in the prices of carbon black, and asked railroad car wheel builders to withdraw price advances scheduled to take effect July 1.

Trucking Committees Formed With transportation of defense goods becoming a growing problem, Transportation Commissioner Ralph Budd formed 16 regional committees to advise him on motortruck hauling.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, as director of Civilian Defense, called upon Americans everywhere to join in a gigantic demonstration of unity on July 4 when the President addressed the nation and asked his listeners to repeat with him the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

He also asked the state governors to set up organizations for the handling of the aluminum scrap collection campaign and urged housewives to donate all aluminum kitchenware, which they no longer find useful.

A program for providing defense housing projects with necessary materials promptly was worked out by Priorities Director Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., and Defense Housing Coordinator C. F. Palmer as President Roosevelt approved 30 new localities for liberalized FHA financing and temporary shelters for 10 defense communities.

Defense Bond Sales Sales of Defense Savings Bonds during the 3 weeks ended June 21 totaled $185,790,000, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau reported June 26. In addition, $2,125,000 worth of Defense Saving Stamps were sold.

Freverts Ship Market Topping Hogs Herman and Carl Frevert of Wayne had market-topping hogs at Sioux City last Thursday — six averaging 180 pounds that sold at $10.75, and 36 other porkers weighing 261 that cashed at $10.50.

Weekly Farm Review

By Chester Walters Wayne County Extension Agent

LAMB FOR FRESH MEAT

With the rapid expansion which is taking place in the farm flocks in Nebraska, lamb meat is becoming more readily available to farm folks.

The neck, shoulders, foreshank, and breast of the lamb which comprise approximately 40 per cent of the carcass are used for stew.

For those who do not like lamb stew, these cuts may be boned and ground. I know of one retailer who has earned quite a reputation for his "lamburger".

The rack and the loin of the lamb are customarily used for lamb chops. If the fell, the thin papery membrane which covers these cuts, is removed, the lamb chops become more attractive and more palatable.

The lamb legs are a standard roasting cut. When the lamb leg proves too large for the family, chops or steaks may be cut from the end until the size is reduced to one satisfactory to the family.

I was rather interested in talking to some army officers, high and quartermaster corps, a short time ago. They told me that in the past the army had been "beefed" to death.

the diet. The National Livestock and Meat Board suggested lamb. The army officers were aghast. "The soldiers will never eat lamb", they said. However, they agreed to let Mr. Pollock and other workers from the National Livestock and Meat Board make a test at Fort Sheridan and Camp Grant.
