many defense activities ares are underway or planne Wayne county that loc spapers are likely to be force to add a national defense department. For example in this edition, you'll find stories about the Red. Cross war relief find drive, the Victory book campaign, Defense Bonds and Stamps sales, "plans for the third and largest county registration of men for military training and service, the salvage campaign for defense, and trand car rationing not to mention the President's Birthday dance to campaign against another enemy, infantile paraylsis. There are a lot of good causes and plenty of places for your dimes, dollars, energy and time:

Half the business men in Way-

Half the business men in Way-e are giving freely of their time s well as their morey on one r more of these defense activit-es and drives. And if there les and drives. And if there aren't enough to get you war conscious, they'll be more and similar campaigns underway before long. They are worthy causes, however, and Americans have everything at stake, which means that victory is worth whatever it may cost. So remember as many as possible of them and help bring this great world tragedy to an early end.

Speaking of defense, a five Speaking of deferse, a five county defense pavings meeting will be held in Wayne the after noon of January 29 at which the state chairman of the rational defense savings committee J.F. McDermott, will preside Mr. McDermott is coming to Wayne on that date to deliver the principal address at the annual Chamber of Commerce membership dinner. The general public is cordially invited to both the dinner and principal address or come ly invited to both the dinner and remain for the address or come to the auditorium following the dinner to hear Mr. McDermott's talk. The counties to be represented at the defense savings meeting include Wayne, Dixon, Dakota, Thurston and Cuming.

Speaking of Defense savings, Wayne residents are apparently contributing their full share. J. M. Straham, postmaster, checked his records of Defense bond and stamp sales from Oct. 1 to Jan. 10 for The News Monday and reported that a total of $1,391.55 had been invested at the post-office here in this portion of the government's war chest.

As Mr. McDoymott is also state.

As Mr. McDermott is also state commander of the American Legion, posts throughout this area are being invited to send large delegations here to meet with their leader and hear his address. The dinner is scheduled for 6:30 at the Municipal auditorium and committees are already at work making arrangements for the affair.

One good thing about sub-zero weather is that by the time it ends, as it did here Sunday, you have gained a genuine appreciation of the pleasant warm variety which we had prior to the series of storms but didn't really appreciate to the fullest until it returned.

Hopes are again bright for the establishment of bus service linking Wayne, Wister and Fremont. according to word received by Win Swett. Wayne really needs that service and every effort is being made by the C. of C. to land it. The application of the Capitol Stage Lines is again being considered and apparently much more favorably now than a previous hearing.

An article by Prof. Howard H. Hanscom, Wayne college music department, appeared in the November December issue of the Music Educators Journal. The article, "Who's to Blame?" inquires why students enter music classes in college with a poor background of musical training. Prof. Hanscom states that many pupils in rural and small-town schools receive no instruction n music and that many high school students obtain no musical training except in a glee club. The article answers its leading question by asserting that there is a lack of legislation requiring musical in struction on the pre-college level and that colleges may not always be strict enough in setting pre-requisites for courses in music.

We Live And Learn

One factor is missing in this war which was present in World War No. 1 which indicates that the American people learned an important lesson in the previous conflict and apparently learned that lesson well. We refer to the fact that there has been no inclination to throw rocks at persons with German and Italian names. There have been few wild reports by neighbors of mere suspicions and it appears that the FBI is not going to follow a policy of jailing men and women by the hundreds because of such rumors. Naturally, some arrests have been made but in virtually every case those arrested have been engaged in subversive activities to such an extent that they have lost the right to their liberty. Apparently, reasonable precautions are being taken at defense plants but calm leadership will keep this nation from again making innocent persons suffer for imagined wrongs.

Tire And Car Rationing

Because Americans have become so accustomed to getting what

Because Americans have become so accustomed to getting what they want when they want it if they have the money with which to buy, many of them find it difficult to believe that tire and car rationing are with us for the duration.

Some contend that the rubber shortage really doesn't exist and that the drastic program is just a scheme to make us war conscious. Partially to blame for this attitude was the ill-advised gasoline shortage scare in the East months ago. However, in the case of tires, experts agree that this is the real thing. They point out that the territory north of Singapore contains about 40 per cent of the world's rubber and even if Signapore is saved from the Japs, they have already advanced far enough to cut off that source of gupply. Japanese landings in Sumatra threaten the Netherlands East Indies which produces another 40 per cent.

It is true that this country has a large stock of rubber on hand but it will be needed for defense equipment and the most essential civillian needs iso that rationing is a necessity and not a wild scheme to influence our thinking.

It is likely, of course, that both tire and car rationing regulations may be relaxed $\frac{1}{2}\times$ conditions necessitate and permit in the future and experiments with substitutes may brighten the picture later. But, it appears likely that for months to come it will pay every individual to donserve what rubber supply he has in the way of these and tubes. The same applies to cars. It will pay to take Tar better care of them than the average motorist has in the past because they may have to serve us a long, long time.

Farm Bureau

Members of the Wayne County Farm Bureau paid tribute to their leaders at the annual meeting of that important organization Friday night when the entire board of directors who served during the past year was re-elected.

The nominating committee nominated in addition to all the members of the old board five other progressive and popular farmers but the entire old board was re-elected. Obviously, members of the Farm Bureau are well satisfied with the manner in which it is functioning and certainly the organization's accomplishments during the past year justified that confidence. Members of the board, who have given freely of their time, and Chet Walters, extension agent, have made an excellent record and contributed much to the progress of Wayne county agriculture during the year.

The Bureau has an excellent program for the coming year and will doubtless continue to make its important contribution to the county's future.

Community Calendar

The Community Calendar of Events which is being prepared by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce to halt the conflict of meetings insofar as that is possible will be of value only if all organizations co-operate. An appeal has been made to officers of most organizations and a large number have responded by notifying the C. of C. office of their meeting dates. Several have not, however, and officers are urged to do so at their early convenience. The organizations will benefit most from the calendar. With the increase in the number of defense organizations and units, some such arrangement becomes desential. The calendar serves merely as a clearing house for scheduling meetings so that conflicts will be kept at the minimum.

Many Ways To Help

Mr. Average American need no longer ask how he may help win this war. A variety of methods of shouldering his share of the burden and contributing his part of America's victory march are now offered him.

To mention just a few, all of them worthy and all of them vital—Buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, contribute to the Red Cross war relief fund, volunteer to serve in civilian defense work, contribute books to the Victory Book campaign, enlist in any of the many branches of active military service, work on defense projects, do Red Cross work, contribute to naval or army relief funds, conserve on those materials vital to winning the war.

All of us should do as many of the above as we are able to assure a quick victory and to help guarantee the liberties which we enjoy.

Prolonged sub-zero weather has apparently only one bright side. As it continues, you become so accustomed to it that when the mercury finally climbs a few degrees above zero, you feel that warm weather has returned again. Of course, when you receive your fuel bill, you have a relapse and experience both chills and fever again, but that's the other side of the picture.

One of the great military de-tes of modern times has been lat concerning the relative ef-tetiveness of landpower, sea-ower and airpower. Each of less fighting arms has had brit ant, convincing, and even fana-cal nartisans then, was largely developed along Clausewitz's ideas. All remember how it swept everything before it and seemed an irresistible force until American manpower came to the aid of the faltering allies and turned the tide of battle.

The most able advocate of seapower was an American—Captain Mahan, who also wrote before anyone conceived of warfare in the sides. Mahan believed that seapower would be the deciding factor in any major war. His writings greatly impressed Emperor Wilhelm II and led to the naval building contest between Germany and England. The end was victory for the British after the battle of Jutland, when the German surface fleet fled to its base at Kiel and was immobilized for the duration of the war by the British blockade.

The most able advocate of seapower, airpower—have no real and detached meaning. The amble termed global power, with each service dependent upon the other and with airpower absolutely essential to them all?. In other words, landpower or seapower without strong air rup port, are under terrible handicaps. There were, apparently, no RAF planes on hand when the Prince of Wales went down. There service in the form of a land invasion of Greece, which provided the bases from which airpower of this war is this:

of airpower were the Italian general, Doubet, and the American general, Billy Mitchell: Doubet, wrote that wars could be won through lavish use of the air-arm alone, by terrorizing whole adding and forcing swift internal collapse at home. The tragic case of Mitchell is well known in this country—he was demoted and finally forced out of the Army by ress type (nor, for that matter, superior officers who thought his alms for the airplane were absurd.

the air bomber attained real range and attacking capacity. Her architects considered her practically invulnerable to air aftack. Yet she, along with the Repulse, an older but fairly modern British battleship, were destroyed and sent to the bottom in a matter of minutes. And aircraft alone was employed by the Japanese in the battle which resulted in Britain's darkest day since Dunkirk.

Does this mean that the air-

The master of land warfare was the great German strategist. Clausewitz. Writing in the days before the airplane existed, he largued that the nation with the largest concentration of well-equipped ground troops would be the certain victor in war. The German Imperial Army of 1914, which was unquestionably the finest the world had seen up to then, was largely developed along Clausewitz's ideas. All remember low it swept everything before orttles, is No. Fletcher Pratt, the American military expert, writing in Life recently, said: "None of the major victories of this war could have been accomplished by airpower alone. To sum up, airpower has proved itself to be a fighting force ed Itself to be a fighting force which must supplement and back up all other kinds of fighting force. The range and load capacity of bombers steadily increases. Fighters operate at higher and higher altitudes, and the increase in their fire-power since the war began, is nothing short of miraculous. America started way behind in the battle for airpower, but she is beginning to eatch up now.

Food For All

War is producing shortages in many fields, but food isn't one of them. As the President recently said, "There is enough food for all of us and enough left over to send to those who are fighting on the same side with us".

The fact that an abundance of food exists in this country, however, isn't all there is to the question. The great majority of consumers live considerable distances away from food producing areas. They are dependent upon the agencies of distribution to bring them food at the lowest possible price. And here is where we Americans are extremely lucky. This country's food retailing system is unequaled in the world.

Tighten Both Belts

Tighten Both Belts
In these days, with the public gaze fastened on war outside our continental borders, it may seem prosaic and uninteresting to talk of taxation, debt, and government fiscal policy. But the hard fact is that we must talk and act on those matters if our kind of government, our kind of life, is to survive. Fiscal recklessness has been the ruin of many a government of the past.

to survive. Fiscal reckuessus to been the ruin of many a government of the past.

A new tax bill is now being planned. And, after all possible sources of new tax revenue have been tapped to the limit, many believe that a system of forced savings will be the next inevitable step. Necessity calls the tune in war-time—and necessity demands that the people accept a degree of taxation which would have seemed impossible a year ago.

have seemed impossible a year ago.

As the people tighten their belts, so must government tighten its belt. According to authorities, the non-defense cost of government could be cut about $2,000,000,000 a year without eliminating any essential function. To save—that much money is vital to the morale of the public. It would demonstrate that their government realized the gravity of the situation and was doing what it asks them to do.

We must condition ourselves to the times we live in. Those who have been living off government "depression spending" must learn that it cannot go on. The communities which have had a habit of asking for and repaired.

must learn that it cannot go on. The communities which have had a habit of asking for and receiving help from the Federal Treasury whenever they wanted it, must learn that they must again stand on their own feet.

War has two phases—a strong millitary power at the front, and a sound economic system at home. We have the military power and it is growing in strength fast. Now we must give attention to building up our financial bulwarks. This belt tightening munit go on in Washington as well as in the average American home, even at the expense of many pet political projects.

Chairman, Nebraska State AAA Committee

A good neighbor policy, based open reciprocal trade, will be a vital part of rural life in Nebraska for the duration of the war.

It won't be new.

There are no people more neighborly or willing to share work and difficulties than our farm familics. This newspaper regularly carries stories of husking bees and similar events in which farm men, women, and children have been and similar events in which farm men, women, and children have been and similar events in which farm men, women, and children have been and similar events in which farm men, women, and children have been and similar events in which farm men, women, and children have been and similar events in which farm men, women, and children have been and similar events in which farm men, women, and children have to trade labor and machines for more and machines for the common good. Only in this way can farm families meet the difficulties arising from labor and machine shortages and provide the abundance of milk, eggs, nork, beef and vegetables that Americans and our allies must be interested in word that a talk on corn breeding will be part of the program.

Dr. G. F. Sprague, who is in charge of corn research work at lowa State College, will speak on "Trends in Corn Breeding" in one session to be held Thursday foremoon, February 5. Since farmens are much interested in hybrid corn, it is expected that this feature of the Organized Agriculture program will meet with much favor. Dr. Sprague is recognized as one of the leading authorities on corn breeding in the United States.

justments, friendly co-operation is more essential than ever before, it will be fatal to our own welfare and the future of our allies to allow efforts to be wasted on littleneeded foods. We must keep our production in balance according to needs and transportation and storage facilities.

Industry, working with OPM, is turning out a balanced supply of weapons—ships, planes, guns, tanks, bombs, bullets and other needs in proper proportions, AAA is the OPM for agriculture. Work, ing through our AAA Program, we farmers can keep constantly informed as to the food needs of the nation and thus keep our farm plants producing and marketing a balanced plenty of milk, eggs, meat products and vegetables.

I am confident that in meeting food needs all farmers will find the neighbors they elected to county and community AAA committees a constant source of information. I am hopeful that if such a need develops, the community committeemen's homes will serve as clearing houses for labor and, machine trades.

Working together, we can produce all the food necessary to fuel the great machine that now in in high gear headed toward the goal of victory, peace and world freedom.
